GERMANY ADMITS TORPEDOING NEBRASKAN; EXPRESSES REGRET AND OFFERS REPARATION

GERMAN FORCES CAPTURE PRZASNYSZ, IMPORTANT TOWN IN RUSSIAN POLAND

TEUTONS BEGIN NEW DRIVE ON WARSAW FROM EAST PRUSSIA

Village of Konsyz, to the North of Kaliro, Also Taken and Heights of Olszauka Stormed.

On the Western Front Paris Claims Counter-Attacks Have Offset Victory of the Germans.

Berlin, July 15, via London.—Przasnysz, a town of Russian Poland, fifty miles north of Warsaw, has been captured by the German forces, according to the official statement given out today by the Germay army headquarters staff.

The Germans also announce that they have captured the village of Konsyz to the north of Kolno, and have stormed the heights of Olszauka to the northeast of Suwalki.

On Western Front.

London, July 15.—The latest Paris communication counters the claims of German success in the Argonne region, with the report that the French have set foot at several points in the German trenches on the road to Marie Therese and that the French are making progress in their attacks beyond the Servon road to the west of the forest of Argonne.

On the eastern front nothing approaching a decisive action has been reported in a fortnight. The Germans, however, again are showing activity in the region between the Rivers Nie-

RED BOOK FROM AUSTRIA-HUNGARY

Says Italians Had Incorrect Information About the Austrians.

Berlin, July 15, by wireless to Sayville.—Among the news items prepared by the Overseas News agency today for transmission abroad by wireless telegraphy was the following:

"The Austro-Hungarian government has published a red book dealing with the preparedness of Italy for war. It shows that the Italian government received incorrect information from its diplomats, who under-estimated the preparedness of Austria. The documents have to do with the years 1909 and 1911 and prove that the alleged violation of the Triple Alliance was approved by Italy."

LABOR TROUBLES AT ARMS PLANT SERIOUS

Another Attempt to Be Made to Settle Strike at Bridgeport.

Bridgeport, Conn., July 15.—With the labor troubles at the great plant of the Remington Arms company rapidly growing more complicated and threatening, industrial Bridgeport today turned its eyes hopefully to a conference to be held during the day between Maj. W. W. Penfield, head of the company, and a committee of the Millwrights' union in an endeavor to adjust the differences growing out of the company's construction work. Reports are current that the hod carriers, hoisting engineers and members of the Sheet Metal Workers' union will soon go on a sympathetic strike with the structural iron workers unless the troubles are smoothed over.

There is also said to be unrest among the machinists in other shops in the city following the announcement that the Remington company had voluntarily made a reduction from a ten to an eight-hour day. Predictions are made that other shops will be asked to make similar concessions.

In view of a disturbance last night, when a laborer was beaten by one of the guards because he stepped over the so-called "dead line," where the construction work is in progress, extra precautions have been taken by the company to prevent trouble.

Early today the millwrights stationed pickets near the company's buildings.

WALTER RUNCIMAN.

Heavy Shipments to Allies Endangers Neutrality, It Says.

Washington, July 15.—Austria's diplomatic representations that American exports of war munitions to the allies have attained dimensions endangering the neutrality of the United States have been under consideration at the state department since July 1, and so far it has not been determined what reply, if any, the United States will make. The Austrian note delivered to Ambassador Penfield on June 29, probably will not be given out here. It was substantially reported, however, in last night's dispatches from Vienna via Amsterdam and London.

The Austrian note contends that war exports as "a proceeding of the present war, are not in consonance with the definition of neutrality."

It adds that "it would be quite sufficient to advise the enemies of Austria-Hungary and Germany that the supply of food stuffs and war materials would be suspended if legitimate trade in these articles between Americans and neutral countries was not permitted."

SCHMIDT AND CAPLAN WILL BE TRIED OCT. 4.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 15.—Judge Frank Willis, of the criminal department of the superior court yesterday overruled a motion to reopen hearings on a motion to quash indictments charging Mathew A. Schmidt and David Caplan with murder in connection with the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times building, Oct. 1, 1910. Oct. 4 was set as the date on which the two men should go to trial.

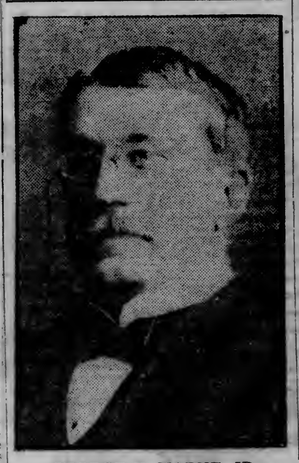

Prejudice on the part of grand jury members was alleged and a letter was offered in support of the motion, said to have been written by F. J. Zeehandelaar, secretary of the Merchants and Manufacturers' association to a special prosecutor, describing the prospective jurors as favorable or unfavorable to that organization.

DANIELS LEAVES TO CONFER WITH EDISON

Washington, July 15.—With the departure today of Secretary Daniels for West Orange, N. J., to confer with Thomas A. Edison in regard to the proposed navy bureau of invention and the civilian advisory board, naval officials looked forward to an announcement to follow immediately after the conference.

The secretary will seek the views of Mr. Edison about some of the men to be invited to join the advisory board. Pending the conference, however, Mr. Daniels will not make known the names of other possible board members.

RUMORED TO HAVE RESIGNED AMBASSADORSHIP TO RUSSIA

GEORGE T. MARYE, JR.

Cornish, N. H., July 15.—Reports that George T. Marye, Jr., American ambassador to Petrograd, had presented his resignation to President Wilson were lacking in confirmation here today. The president could not be reached directly, but members of his party said that Mr. Marye's resignation had not been received since Mr. Wilson reached Cornish.

Washington, July 15. — Secretary Tumulty said no resignation from Ambassador Marye had been received at the White House.

Would Prevent Spread of Strike.

New York, July 15.—With 21,000 workers on men's clothing on strike here, a meeting of committees representing the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and the American Clothing Manufacturers' association, was called for today to prevent a spread of the strike to other cities throughout the country.

SHE THOUGHT SHE WAS PLANTING PEACE SEEDS, BUT A CROP OF THISTLES GREW.

OVER 150,000 MEN GO ON STRIKE IN WALES

Virtually Shuts Down All Mines in Great Coal Fields Which Supply Fuel for British Navy.

London, July 15.—Out of the various manifestations of unrest in the British labor field shown since the outbreak of the war, there developed today what may prove, unless an early solution is found, one of the most serious strikes in the history of the country. More than 150,000 men have laid down their tools, thereby shutting down virtually all the mines in the Welsh Coal fields which supply steaming coal for the British navy.

The British government, using for the first time the authority granted by the so-called munitions measure, ruled that the miners must not strike, a proclamation to this effect having been issued yesterday. The miners' answer to this proclamation was to go on strike.

Miners Refuse Advice.

Though subject to a heavy daily fine for striking, and though urged by their leaders to allow their demands for higher pay to be arbitrated, the miners threw aside all advice and today refused to take up their picks, thus not only stopping the mines, but leaving idle the mine railways and some ships engaged in coal transport.

Theoretically the government is empowered to check the strike forthwith, but it is a puzzling problem how the fines, authorized under the munitions measure, are to be enforced.

No Rioting Reported.

No rioting in the strike district has been reported.

The men's leaders have called a conference in the hope of reaching a settlement, and the whole country is watching the outcome of the case, which is to be a test of the government's power to force labor to arbitrate in the face of the men's contention though not of the leaders, that having made their demands, there is nothing to arbitrate.

ATTACK NOT MEANT FOR AMERICAN FLAG SAYS NOTE TO U.S.

Official Memorandum Transmitted to Ambassador Gerard Settles Question As to How Ship Was Injured.

Message Says Steamer Was Not Flying Any Flag and Submarine Supposed She Was An Enemy.

Washington, July 15.—Germany, in an official memorandum transmitted today from Berlin by Ambassador Gerard, admits that the American steamer Nebraskan was torpedoed by a submarine; expresses regret and readiness to make reparation, and assures the United States that the attack "was not meant for the American flag, but is to be considered an unforunate accident."

Secretary Lansing made public the German memorandum, which disposes of the question whether the Nebraskan was struck by a torpedo or by a mine. The German memorandum closes the incident, it was said, except as to the payment of damages.

The state department made this announcement:

"Ambassador Gerard has telegraphed to the state department the following memorandum from the German foreign office relative to the damaging of the American steamer Nebraskan by a German submarine:

Started Investigation.

"The German government received from newspaper reports the intelligence that the American steamer Nebraskan had been damaged by a mine or torpedo on the southwest coast of Ireland. It therefore started a thorough investigation of the case without delay and from the result of the investigation it has become convinced that the damage to the Nebraskan was caused by an attack of a submarine. On the evening of May 25 last the submarine met a steamer bound westward without a flag and with no neutral markings on her freeboard, about thirty-five nautical miles west of Fastnet Rock; no appliance of any kind for the illumination of the flag or markings was to be seen. In the twilight, which had already set in, the name of the steamer was not visible from the submarine. Since the commander of the submarine was obliged to assume from his wide experience in the area of maritime war that only English steamers, and no neutral steamers, traversed this war area without flag and markings, he attacked the vessel with a torpedo, in the conviction that he had an enemy vessel before him.

Hoisted American Flag.

"Some time after the shot the commander saw that the vessel had in the meantime hoisted the American flag. As a consequence he, of course, refrained from any further attack.

REPORTS ARE CONFLICTING

Allies and Turks Both Claim Victory in Straits Fighting.

Ottomans Fighting With Great Gallantry, Says Allies' Report.

London, July 15.—"The allies on Monday made four assaults on the Turkish positions on the Gallipoli peninsula," says a dispatch to the Daily Express from Athens. "They finally occupied two hills defending Krithia, and took 4,000 Turkish prisoners."

Turkish Report.

Constantinople, July 15, via London. —An official report issued here says that the allies on Monday made a determined attack against the left and right wings of the Turkish lines, supported by warships, but they were repulsed with heavy losses.

Details From Dardanelles.

London, July 15.—The official British press representative with the allied forces in the Dardanelles, in a dispatch dated July 7, and reaching London by way of Alexandria, Egypt, July 14, says:

"A successful allied advance on the left wing June 28 alarmed the enemy seriously, causing him to bring up heavy reinforcements, including raw troops, and he has been launching vigorous counter-attacks ever since in a vain effort to recover his lost ground.

"Enver Pasha, the Turkish minister of war, hurried down from Constantinople to stimulate his troops, a great banner being hoisted on Achi Baba to signalize his arrival. There had been some dissension among the Turkish leaders, especially regarding the advisability of counter-attacks, but

BRITISH TROOPS ARE FIGHTING IN SERBIA

Assisting Serbians in Their Battles With Austria-Hungary.

Liverpool, July 15.—That British troops are now in Serbia fighting with the Serbians against the Austro-Hungarians, was given official confirmation today by Crawford Price, the British eye witness with the Serbian forces.

Lecturing here, he said the British army authorities now permitted him to make this announcement, thus confirming what has been often rumored, but never officially substantiated.

The strength of the British forces in Serbia was not stated by the lecturer.

SUMMARY OF THE WAR NEWS

Przasnysz has been taken by the Germans almost at the inception of what appears to be a new drive at Warsaw from the north. The official statement from Berlin announces the capture and also records successes along the East Prussian frontier to the northeast. The village of Konsin, south of Kolno, has been taken and the heights of Olszauka, northeast of Suwalki, stormed.

Simultaneously, the Germans report the breaking down of attempts by the French to win back lost ground in the Argonne region and the infliction of heavy losses upon the attacking forces.

Paris reports the capture of a line of German trenches north of Arras and the failure of a Germann attack in the Woevre region. It concedes a German advantage at one disputed point in the Argonne.

Austria has made representations to Washington that this country's exports of war munitions to the Entente allies have reached such dimensions as to threaten the neutrality of the United States.

German forces again are active in the region north of Warsaw, causing military observers to believe that a drive at the Polish capital from that direction may be imminent.

The Russians admit a German offensive has begun in one sector, where a Russian force retired to its second line positions. Apparently the same operations, however, were alluded to in the most recent German official statement as resulting in "local successes."

The German drive at the French lines in the Argonne forest region has been followed by attempts on the part of the French to regain lost ground. The latest report from Paris claims partial success in the effort.

Two hills defending Krithia on the Gallipoli peninsula were occupied by the troops of the Entente allies after four assaults on Monday last, according to Athens advices received in London. Constantinople, reporting on the same engagements, says that allied attacks, in which warships supported the troops, were repulsed with heavy losses.

A German submarine sank the Norwegian steamer Rym. One of the merchantman's engineers was killed. The rest of the crew was saved.

Great Britain's coal strike problem continues acute, 150,000 miners having gone out, despite the prohibitions of the war munitions act.

Shortly after Dell Link removed here from Avon, the dog disappeared. Link has just received word from Avon that the dog arrived at the old home several days ago, seemingly overjoyed at being in the old surroundings.

WILL CHOOSE SITE FOR WORK FARM FOR WOMEN

First Steps Toward Taking Advantage of New State Law.

City and County Acting Together Will Purchase Forty.

Steps preliminary to the establishment in St. Louis county of a correctional farm for women law-breakers were taken yesterday afternoon when the joint county and city work farm commission, at its July meeting at the courthouse, instructed a committee to look around for an available site.

The 1915 legislature granted St. Louis county and the city of Duluth joint power to purchase not to exceed forty acres of land not contiguous to the present work farm for the purpose of a women's department. The work farm commission, at its meeting yesterday afternoon, took the initial step towards securing a site.

The committee appointed consists of A. H. Crassweller, president of the commission, Fred B. Meyers and Thomas Olafson of West Duluth. Various sites in the vicinity of the present work farm for men will be inspected and it is expected that as soon as a choice has been made that the commission will come before the city council and the county board with a request that the land be purchased.

The law provides that the women's department shall be conducted under the direction of the work farm commission and that the superintendent of the men's institution shall also be at the head of the women's correctional farm. Female offenders may be sentenced by any of the courts of the county in like manner as male offenders are sentenced to the present work farm.

Report for June.

Supt. Fred Ward's report to the commission showed that during the month of June, 1915, a total of 229 prisoners was received at the farm, or an average of 9.38 daily. The average cost of feeding the men at the farm was $.0672 per meal. Since the farm was established in January, 1914, the total number of men received at the institution has been 1,494, the figures not including any received after June 30, 1915.

The superintendent reported that during June $53 had been paid out from the relief fund. There were eight so-called relief cases, where the commission assisted families of men confined to the work farm.

Temporary employment was given to twenty-two discharged prisoners, thus affording them an opportunity to earn some money with which to buy some clothes. These men were placed at work in some of the outside "contract camps" which are being run by Supt. Ward.

Since the "contract camps" have been in operation they have afforded many men an opportunity to earn a few dollars and get on their feet before starting out again in the world. And incidentally the gross revenue from these camps has been more than $7,000, all of which has been paid into the work farm fund after paying the necessary expenses.

Five of such camps are now in operation. Two of them are at Pike Lake. One is constructing a log cabin for Chief of Police R. D. McKercher and the other is engaged at clearing land for C. A. Duncan. A third camp is engaged at the work of clearing land on the E. J. Filiatrault farm at Cotton. Another is kept busy making roads and clearing land at Nopeming, where the county sanatorium is located. A small crew of men from the farm is also employed on the Jean du Luth farm.

OBJECTS TO TERM "STOOL PIGEON"

To be dubbed a "stool pigeon" is to be slandered, according to the viewpoint of M. M. McInnes, Duluth barber.

Yesterday afternoon in district court he filed a damage suit against William Duvall, asking $3,248 as damages for alleged slander. McInnes claims that on several occasions Duvall has maliciously and falsely accused him of being a "stool pigeon."

McInnes states that on Sept. 1, 1911, when Duvall first accused him of being a "stool pigeon" he was drawing a salary of $22 for his work as a barber. As a result of Duvall's remark, he lost his job.

Since 1911, McInnes claims, Duvall has persistently accused him of being a tool of the police department and has, he claims, created a false impression which has been responsible for him losing several jobs. He claims that he is now able to earn no more than $16 a week.

For the loss in wages, McInnes asks $1,248 special damages. He also seeks $2,000 general damages as a balm for his wounded feelings in being "held up to scorn and ridicule by the public."

McInnes is represented by Attorney A. E. Parker. Duvall has filed no answer. He has engaged Attorney B. M. Goldberg to defend him.

AGED AITKIN COUNTY FARMER BEING SOUGHT

Aitkin, Minn., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Kellerman, a middle-aged farmer living at Cedarbrook, three miles west of Aitkin, left his home yesterday morning and no trace of him has since been found. No effort was made to find him until in the afternoon, as his family supposed he had gone to a neighbor's. Searching parties were out all night and the Mississippi river is now being dragged. No cause is known for his disappearance, although he was not in good health.

LIFE GUARD FOR BEACH

Duluth's First Municipal Swimming Instructor Is Appointed.

Will Give Free Lessons to All Who Would Learn.

Life guard and swimming instructor for the city of Duluth was the title confered upon Roland B. Reed today by Henry Cleveland, superintendent of parks.

Mr. Reed, the first city employe to be listed in this way, will begin his work of instructing younger Duluth in the mysteries of the crawl stroke at Indian Point beach tomorrow. He will be stationed at the beach until Sept. 15.

"I am very much pleased with this appointment," said Supt. Cleveland. "Mr. Reed formerly was assistant instructor in swimming at the Y. M. C. A. and is an expert in that line of work. He will be at the beach all the time, to take care of inexperienced swimmers and instruct those who want to learn."

J. R. Batchelor, recreational and playground director, stated yesterday that paddling in shallow water would be taboo and that swimming lessons would be made practical. The new lifeguard will be associated with the playground director and assist him in his task of teaching Duluth youngsters to swim.

"Ability to swim a dozen yards is of no value to anyone," declared Mr. Batchelor. "We are working on the theory that swimming is of little value unless a person is able to keep afloat for a considerable distance."

With this subject in view, he will divide the aquatic classes into three divisions, A, B and C.

Those in the lowest class will first swim 25 feet, the same distance on their backs, dive 20 feet from standing, later swim a quarter of a mile and float for one minute.

Class B swimmers first will train themselves to swim 25 yards, a like distance on their backs, dive 30 feet, then make a half mile and learn to float three minutes.

Swimmers in class A will keep stroking for 100 yards, with the same distance back swimming, dive 40 feet, then swim a mile and float five minutes.

Work for the highest class also includes the following feats in one performance: Back swimming 10 yards, side swimming the same distance, breast stroke 10 yards and crawl stroke 10 yards.

Those who qualify in class A will receive emblems as practical swimmers. As swimmers master requirements in the two lower classes they will advance until they qualify as swimmers in class A.

D. & N. M. ROAD IS LOSER IN APPEAL

Interstate Commerce Commission Declines to Revise Former Rate Order.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, July 15.—The interstate commerce commission today denied the petition of the Duluth & Northern Minnesota railroad for a revision of the order made in the pulp and paper decision some months ago restoring that road's old rates on pulpwood.

This line operates from Knife River to a point seventy miles distant near the boundary line between Lake and Cook counties. It connects for through traffic with the Duluth & Iron Range road at Knife River.

Some time ago the Duluth & Northern Minnesota road appealed their case to the supreme court of the United States on the ground that the new and lower rates fixed by the interstate commerce commission were confiscatory. The highest court judges, sitting en blanc as a court of appeal, heard the arguments and decided that the proper procedure of the road was to apply to the interstate commerce commission for a rehearing of the case on the grounds stated. This was done with the result given, the commission evidently considering the allegation that the rates are confiscatory as not well founded.

BANKERS SANGUINE OF BETTER TRADE

While the local business and financial situation has not been marked by any special changes of late, Duluth bankers are sanguine that a marked gain in the general trade movement will develop within the next three or four weeks.

Whole and manufacturing interests are said to be pursuing a conservative course at present pending developments in the crop situation, but with a favorable outcome in that respect, it is thought that all lines of trade will show a turn for the better.

As financial men see it there is a better circulation of money in all lines of trade, and business interests here are feeling the benefit of the activity in the Michigan Copper country, and improvement in mining operations over the range territory.

"The definite announcement that the Minnesota Steel company will push its plants through so as to be ready for the operating stage by Nov. 1, has created a feeling of confidence in this city, and business men appear to be showing more nerve in carrying along their various ventures," said an official of the First National bank this morning. "There is certainly good reason for better sentiment for, as can be readily understood, the assurance that nearly 3,000 men will be placed steadily at work in the late fall will be a big thing for the city as a whole. With that start we will have good reason to hope for other favorable developments. The fact that fresh employment on a large scale will be afforded here during our usually dull season will be a boon."

As previously intimated, bankers consider that with the additional facilities afforded by the Federal Reserve banking system, no difficulty will be experienced in financing the crop movement during the fall and winter months. It is pointed out that the local financial institutions are abundantly supplied with funds, and that furthermore easiness of money is the rule the country over. Duluth bankers are receiving encouraging news regarding the crop outlook from correspondents in Minnesota and North Dakota. It is admitted that the wheat harvest will be later than usual as a result of backward weather conditions in June, but expert opinion is that no real damage has been sustained.

NO COMPLAINT ON EK'S WORK

Civil Service Board Considers Case of Former City Blacksmith.

No Action Taken Because His Position Has Been Abolished.

Sitting upon the case of Gus Ek, for nineteen years city blacksmith, who was discharged recently by Works Commissioner Farrell, members of the civil service commission this morning told Mr. Ek that they could do nothing in the matter, as his competency had not been questioned by the commissioner.

Two formal findings of the commission in the case were: First, no charges questioning Mr. Ek's ability had been made to the board, and that no complaint concerning his work had reached their ears; second, the reason they took no action was because they had been informed by the city commissioners that the position of blacksmith had been abolished.

It was only after a three-hour session marked by several heated discussions and a controversy between Mr. Ek and Commissioner Farrell, that the commission made its findings and adjourned.

"Mr. Ek wanted a clean slate," said Frank E. Randall, his attorney, "and the commission gave it to us. I am not in a position to say whether or not the case will be carried any further, but I am satisfied that there will be interesting developments if it is."

Whether or not Mr. Ek was qualified to hold the position of master mechanic, created by Mr. Farrell, and now held by Carl Holmstrom, the former smithy's successor, was not brought out at the hearing.

"We had to have Holmstrom make thirty-eight special snow plows for us in his West end shop," the commissioner told the civil service men.

This charge was denied by the ex-blacksmith who claimed that he had designed, drawn plans and made all of the plows himself, while he was city blacksmith.

"All Holmstrom did was to repair the shoe on one of them," he said.

SPENCER'S HEIRS WILL PAY $1,241

Heirs of the late George Spencer, former president of the Consolidated Elevator company, who died in Duluth Feb. 14, last, will pay taxes on their inheritances aggregating $1,241.91.

Mr. Spencer died intestate leaving property valued at $125,480.20. Under the decree of the probate court determining the taxes to be paid by each of the heirs, the widow, Mrs. Helen Mattocks Spencer will receive $41,839.70 and will pay a tax of $511.79. The decree was filed today.

The three children, Elizabeth S. Hartley, Helen S. Miller and George H. Spencer will each receive $27,880.17 and will each pay a tax of $243.20.

FEDERAL JURY INDICTS FOURTEEN

The Federal grand jury made its report at 2:30 this afternoon, returning indictments against fourteen alleged offenders. George Lazourlen, charged with having counterfeit money in his possession, admitted his guilt to Federal officials and is expected to plead guilty at 3:30 this afternoon.

The indictments follow: Richard H. Garrett, forging money order; Morris Hughbanks, securing mail and opening it by deceit and fraud; introducing liquor into Indian country, Frank Incho, William Darvinen, Mose Posey, Louis Smith, Fred Warner, William Arashoff, Dan O'Donnell, Edward Merry, James Ilick and John McKee.

J. Reefer was indicted on a charge of violating the narcotic law.

HOUSE CLEANING AT CITY HALL

March weather of the last two days evidently has deceived city commissioners into believing that spring is near, for house cleaning has started at the city hall.

When Safety Commissioner Silberstein announced yesterday that his sanctum sanctorum was to be remodeled and his office moved into the front part of the building in search of better ventilation and more light, Works Commissioner Farrell also got out the family broom.

Offices of the works division are to be entirely remodeled, several partitions torn out and changed around to give the engineers more room and better light, and to provide better facilities for handling the many visitors.

Commissioner Farrell's present office will be turned over to City Clerk Walter Borgen, who then will vacate his room on the west side of the corridor. The commissioner will move to the room facing on Michigan street, beyond the general works division office, occupied by Secretary Ned Culver and his staff.

A long counter, paralleling the corridor, will run the length of the two large rooms occupied by the works division, and the partition between them, extending from the main entrance to the east wall of the building, will be torn out.

A contract for part of the work, involving several hundred dollars, was let this morning and work will start Friday.

SAYS PARENTS HOODWINKED HIM

Bernt Berntson Claims He Signed Away Property in Ignorance.

A story of how his parents conspired against him to hoodwink him out of his property is told by Bernt Berntsen, Jr., in a lawsuit filed yesterday afternoon in district court against Minnie Peterson and Molly Benson. The action is one to have a ded to certain land in section 18, 52-17, set aside.

On May 4, 1908, Bernt was a young man of 23 of very limited education, and still clinging to his mother's apron-strings. At that time his parents induced him to sign a paper which he learned four years later was a deed conveying an undivided two-thirds interest in the tract of land in question. He alleges that his mother and father told him it was another sort of a paper and one which required his signature as the oldest son in the family.

Bernt asked that the conveyance be set aside as fraudulent and that he be restored to his property rights. He alleges that no consideration was paid him for his interest in the property. Minnie Peterson, one of the defendants, resides in Coleraine and Molly Berntson, the other, resides in Minneapolis.

WANTED!

RAVINE USED AS DUMPING GROUND

Insanitary conditions prevailing on Eighth street between Fourth and Fifth avenues east will be remedied by the public works division.

"Dr. Fahey of the health department has notified me that this block is in bad condition, and that the ravine at that point is a catch-all for refuse," said Commissioner Farrell today.

"In order to clean it up properly, we will have to grade the street, do some filling and build a culvert across the ravine."

Mr. Farrell will prepare a resolution covering this work and present it to city commissioners for action at the coming meeting of the council.

"I do not like to take such a small stretch of grading work, without trying to clean up the street for a considerable distance, thereby lessening the cost per front foot and equalizing the assessments," he said, "but in an emergency of this kind it will have to be done."

WIFE IS GRANTED DIVORCE AND ALIMONY

In district court yesterday afternoon, Judge Dancer signed findings in favor of Mrs. Emilia Nordton, 35, who sued her husband, Perry Nordton, 38, for a divorce alleging cruel and inhumane treatment.

Nordton is ordered by the court to pay his wife $10 a month alimony for a period of three years. Should his wife remarry, however, before the three years has expired, he will be relieved from any further payments. Mrs. Nordton was granted the custody of their five children.

Mrs. Nordton claimed that her husband was of a violent temper and that he subjected her to physical abuse and mistreatment on many occasions. One time, she claimed, he drove a darning needle through her wrist.

SUPERIOR

BADGER BAR IN SESSION

Superior Is Host to State's Leading Lawyers—Interesting Addresses.

J. L. Washburn of Duluth Will Speak at Closing Banquet.

An account of the national convention which in 1860 nominated Abraham Lincoln for the presidency was the feature address given at the session of the Wisconsin State Bar association in Superior this morning. George W. Hazelton of Milwaukee, 86 years old, who is now the only surviving member of the nominating body, was the speaker. He told of the convention and the stirring events preceding and following.

The Rush-Bagot treaty, an informal agreement between Great Britain and the United States, limiting naval forces on the Great Lakes, was viewed by Robert Wild of Milwaukee, another speaker at the convention, as the nucleus of an arrangement which might solve the disarmament problem of the world.

Judge F. A. Geiger of Milwaukee defended the American courts against the charge that the administration of justice is unnecessarily slow.

There are no dead laws in Wisconsin, according to the report of B. R. Goggins of Grand Rapids in his report as chairman of the committee on amendment to the laws.

A discussion of the advisability and desirability of the attorneys of the state forming a corporation to regulate the practice of law and disciplining members was also heard. Claire B. Bird, Wausau, advocated such a solution and Judge L. K. Luse of Superior opposed it.

Entertainment Begins.

The convention closes its business sessions this afternoon. Tomorrow will be devoted to the entertainment of visiting delegates by members of the local bar.

At 1:30 o'clock this afternoon the wives of the visiting members of the state bar were entertained at a reception at the Superior hotel, at which the wives of local attorneys were hostesses. At 4:30 o'clock delegates to the convention will be entertained at the Country club.

The annual bar banquet will feature the activities this evening. More than 200 guests are expected to be present. Among the principal speakers will be Judge John B. Winslow, chief justice of the Wisconsin supreme court, and J. L. Washburn of Duluth.

GOLDBERG WILL BE TRIED IN LA CROSSE

Louis Goldberg, arrested in Chicago on a charge of violating the Mann act, will be tried at the Federal court term in La Crosse, according to an announcement made today by John A. Aylward, United States district attorney, who is in Superior on court business. Mr. Aylward was informed today that Goldberg had been transferred to the Western Wisconsin district for trial. Goldberg is said to be a member of the Chicago-Superior-Peoria gang, charged by the Federal authorities with supplying segregated districts at Superior and Peoria, with "white slaves" from Chicago. Louis Goldberg and his brother, Joseph, were arrested in Chicago recently after being indicted by the Federal grand jury at Eau Claire.

GIVES INDIAN GIRL LIQUOR; SENTENCED

William Masterson was sentenced to a year and a day at the Leavenworth penitentiary by Judge F. A. Geiger of the Federal court on being convicted on a charge of having supplied Maggie Fuller, an Indian girl, with liquor. The jury was out five minutes before finding the man guilty. It was alleged that he had furnished the young woman with the liquor while she was working in a hotel at St. Croix Falls, and had later attempted to assault her.

Masons Plan Picnic.

Masons of Duluth and Superior will hold a picnic Saturday at Billings Park. It is expected that about 1,500 members of the order and their families will be present. Arrangements have been made to operate special cars on the Billings Park line in order to handle the crowds. A lengthy program has been arranged for the day.

TO LICENSE ALL BUTTERMAKERS

Wisconsin Assembly Passes Bill With That End in View.

Madison, Wis., July 15.—Agricultural interests received consideration by the assembly today when it passed the bill providing for the licensing of all butter and cheese makers in the state and concurred in senate amendments to the agricultural consolidation bill creating a commission of one member with auxiliary boards to manage the state fair and livestock sanitary agencies. By the creation of the agriculture department, several independent boards heretofore existing are consolidated.

After going into committee of the whole on the county board of education bill which sought to be repealed the senate refused, 14 to 8, to call Prof. C. E. Patzer, chairman of the legislative committee, and former president of the Wisconsin Teachers' association, whose views were desired by Senator Jennings. The movement to bar Prof. Patzer from appearing was led by Senators Perry and Bennett. They say the bill had been heard a dozen times in the education committee and that no more light was needed. It was finally agreed that all persons interested in the bill should meet with the education committee to seek a settlement over this much mooted question.

The assembly refused to pass over the governor's veto the Caldwell bill curtailing the straying of dogs in the country districts.

The senate over a protest by Senator Bennett received a new bill by Senator Bichler abolishing the office of state claim agent. Senator Bennett declared the state of Wisconsin still has upwards of $2,000,000 due from the federal government which the claim agent should collect.

An assembly proposal asking for the dismissal of educators connected with the board of public affairs who took part in the educational survey, was turned down in the senate. It is said this measure was aimed at A. N. Farmer of the normal school survey.

With a view to expediting the session Senators Arnold, Bichler and Bosshard were appointed a committee to sit with an assembly committee to consider the state of business in the legislature and to fix a date for final adjournment.

PASSENGER RATES ARE BEING ARGUED

Arguments are being heard on the request of the railroads to increase their passenger tariffs from 2 cents to 2½ cents on interstate business. Representatives of various lines are meeting today in Chicago with members of the interstate commerce commission.

Should the request of the railroad lines be granted, it will mean an increase in the passenger rate from Duluth to all points outside of the state. It is believed that a decision will be reached in the near future.

DULUTH CREDIT MEN WILL HOLD PICNIC

Plans for the annual outing of the Duluth Credit association have been perfected, and members of the committee believe that this year's affair will eclipse anything ever before attempted by them. A special train will leave the Omaha station at 1:45 p. m. for Solon Springs, Saturday, July 31.

FARRELL REFUSES TO SUBSTITUTE GRAVEL

New Duluth residents want gravel used for concrete in the $43,000 paving job on Commonwealth and Grand avenues, for which a contract was let, but Works Commissioner Farrell says "No."

"They're protesting against the crushed rock, which was specified in the contract," he said this morning, "but I intend to make it stick that way.

"Some of the property owners affected own gravel pits near Carlton, and of course they want us to use their material. Gravel is inferior to the crushed rock, however, and on a job as large as this one I'm going to be very careful to see that it is cleaned up in a satisfactory manner."

With Assistant City Engineer Otto E. Brownell, Commissioner Farrell went to Carlton this afternoon to inspect the gravel and sand pits at that place.

"I am willing to use Carlton sand on the Commonwealth job," he said, "if the sub-contractors can deliver the goods. If the sand doesn't come up to standard, however, I'll have to get it some place else, regardless of the fact that property owners affected by the paving work are interested in the sand pits."

DIVIDES HIS TIME.

President Puts in Day Working, Golfing and Automobiling.

Cornish, N. H., July 15.—President Wilson divided his time today between working, golfing and automobiling. He was out on the golf links early in the morning and afterwards retired to his study to consider official business. He has been absent from Washington during his present trip longer than at any other time since becoming president.

Employer Used Revolver.

When John Arnold, herder employed by Walter Jonof, Rice Lake dairyman, failed to bring home the cows, Jonof produced a revolver and fired several shots in the course of a heated argument, according to the herder.

Jonof was arrested yesterday afternoon by Sheriff John Meining and brought to police headquarters at Duluth. He was arraigned before Municipal Judge W. H. Smallwood late in the day and will be given a hearing tomorrow afternoon on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

Blindfolded Tire Buyers

This is to point out the way to the light.

Tires which seem identical are often most unlike. There are dozens of standards. The fierce competition compels many a compromise, affecting what you seek.

Features Which Cost Millions

Goodyear Fortified Tires have five great features found in no other tire. They have others which are rare—hidden features, never missed until the tire meets trouble.

These Goodyear extras, on this year's output, will cost us $1,635,000. Our 1915 improvements alone will cost us $500,000 yearly. And nearly all for things you never see—things you never miss until the tire falls down.

Yet our late price reduction saves our users about five million dollars this year. And that was our third reduction in two years, totaling 45 per cent.

How to Judge

Judge tires by the maker. Judge them by known features. Each exclusive Goodyear feature combats a major trouble.

Judge, above all, by records. Not by mere good luck or mishap, but by Tiredom's general verdict. In its 16th year the Goodyear tire far outsells any other. It has outsold for years.

By any measure you can use, Goodyear tires are best. Adopt them. Any dealer will supply you.

The coke ovens at the Minnesota steel plant will be the first department of the plant to be put in operation. This part of the plant will, according to plans, be started on Sept. 1.

Construction work on the coke ovens is being pushed by a large force of men. The machinery for the handling of the coal used in the manufacture of the product, is being installed and effort is being concentrated on this plant to have it in operation within forty-five days.

The coke ovens are the largest in the Northwest and of a design different from any in this country. Only one other set of ovens in the world is said to be similar. They are located in Germany.

There are ninety-six individual ovens in the building. These will have a capacity for turning out nearly 800 tons of coke each twenty-four hours. The ovens will furnish the entire plant with sufficient gas for the blast and the operation of furnaces.

Monster apparatus for the handling of the coal, screening it and otherwise preparing it for the ovens is being put into shape. Huge gas tanks are also located on various parts of the ground wherein the gas will be stored for future use. These ovens will also furnish gas for domestic consumption on Morgan Park.

It is necessary to have the coke ovens in operation a considerable time before the blast is turned on at the blast furnaces in order to have, not only a supply of coke on hand to mix with the ore, but also to have sufficient gas to insure the operation of other departments.

The receiving pits for the coal and coke are nearly complete. It is expected to begin the hauling of coal to the plant within a short time. This coal will be received from boats at the company's dock at Allouez and carried in gondola cars to the plant via the Interstate Transfer company's line, constructed by the company three years ago.

SUPERVISION INADEQUATE

Complaints of the supervision given the municipal bathing beach at Indian Point are being made by West Duluthians.

The principal complaints are that the attendants supposed to have charge of the place do not enforce segregation at the two bath houses; that children are allowed to overrun both dressing houses, and that the bottom of the bathing beach a short distance from the shore has an overabundance of tin cans and broken glass mixed with the mud.

Scraping of the bottom, and dumping sand and gravel into the place following the scraping would cost probably $1,000.

Children under 16 years of age should not be given privileges at the beach after 6 o'clock in the evening, it is suggested, time after that being for adults. "Unless there is better supervision at the beach, people will become disgusted with the place," said Mrs. George L. Hise, 525 South Seventy-first avenue west, yesterday afternoon. "Men and boys finding the men's booth full, crowd into the women's booth and no one so far has been there with the authority to put them out.

"Yesterday afternoon young boys occupied every booth—those designated for the men as well as the women. Several girls who wanted to use the women's booth were unable to gain admission. At another time a little girl was locked in one of the booths and her screams could be heard all over the place. No one was there to look after this condition of affairs."

Bathe in Underwear.

Charges are made that young men were allowed to bathe at the beach without bathing suits, using their underwear, some of which was of gauzy material.

"There should be a woman there to check clothes," said Mrs. Hise. "Bathers are willing to pay a small sum for such checking. A nominal sum of 5 or 10 cents could be charged and bathers would be glad to pay that much to know that their clothes were safe. The beach in that manner can be made to pay its own running expenses."

WANT CROSSING GUARDED.

C. N. Will Be Asked to Provide a Watchman or Gates as Safeguard.

The Canadian Northern railroad will be asked to place a watchman or install gates at the crossing at Seventy-first avenue west. Several near accidents are said to have occurred there recently, one on Tuesday evening when George Highmark of Midway had his motorcycle smashed, the accident almost being fatal.

Highmark intended crossing the tracks at this point and failed to observe that a train was approaching because of misconstruing the light on the engine. The engine was backing up a string of flat cars, and it was into these that Highmark ran his machine. The motorcycle was demolished.

With gates or signal lights installed it is claimed that accidents could be avoided. There was considerable talk some time ago of asking the railroad to build a viaduct over the street for team traffic, and it is probable that this will be demanded in the near future. The crossing is used by farmers of Midway and all wagon and automobile traffic between Duluth, Cloquet, Carlton and the Twin Cities.

NEW STATION FOR THE SOO

Passenger and Freight Depot Planned for West Duluth.

South Shore Trains Also Expected to Stop There.

The Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie railroad will this summer or early in the fall build its passenger and freight depot in West Duluth, according to the belief of Supt. J. R. Michaels. Plans for the depot are expected to arrive any day from the general offices of the company in Minneapolis.

Passenger trains of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railroad are now being operated through West Duluth. These trains are not as yet making any stops in the suburb, but it is expected that as soon as the station has been provided that West Duluth people will have an opportunity of boarding the trains at this point.

Mr. Michaels said this morning that nothing definite was as yet ready to be announced as to when the trains of the Soo line would be operated over the line through West Duluth, nor was it yet decided as to what trains would run that way. He stated that the company had chosen the site on the west side of Ramsey street as the place where the company would erect the depot. He said he was expecting orders almost any time now to go ahead with the construction.

The operation of the passenger trains through West Duluth will enable the company to make better time between the Duluth Union station and Superior. Many people of West Duluth will also be accommodated, as they will not have to go uptown in order to catch passenger trains to points on the line.

The two teams will be organized within a short time, according to announcement made last night at the meeting of the homestead at Gilley's hall.

An informal program of other sports such as races and contests for men, women and children will be arranged. Swimming at the beach will also be one of the features at the park.

An entertainment for the members to be held on July 28 was planned. The committee is headed by Mrs. E. Kelber, lady rowena of the lodge, and Miss Phoebe Brassard, Miss Amelia Perry, Robert Burton, Mrs. Joseph La Vergne, Roman Joblonski, Miss Tillie Soshie, David Perry and Ray Fadden. This committee will also act in the capacity of a "Fellowship" committee at future meetings.

CORNISH CHAMPION WILL WRESTLE

Jack Rowatt Will Meet All Comers at Calumet Saturday.

Houghton, Mich., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Michigan Sons of St. George, at the reunion which will close their state convention here Saturday, will see in action the best-known Cornish wrestlers in the world, including the famous Jack Rowett of Ironwood and Bessemer.

Rowett is the world's heavyweight champion, defeating the former champion, Joe Ziehr of Calumet several years ago, and later defending the title successfully against Herman Stoll of Calumet. He is a splendid athletic specimen, standing well over six feet and weighing nearly 300 pounds, without an ounce of superfluous flesh. He is now a state game warden and has served his county, Gogebic, twice as its sheriff.

Although above 40 years of age, Rowett is in his prime and expects to successfully defend his honors against all other heavyweights at Houghton this week. One thousand people are attending the convention social affairs, and 5,000 are expected for the reunion on Saturday.

COMPELLED TO ISSUE PERMIT

State Railway Commission Grants One to Rochester Telephone Company.

St. Paul, Minn., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Taking the position that the law is directory and that it has no choice in the matter, the State Railway and Warehouse commission today issued to the Rochester Telephone company an indeterminate permit. The permit was granted after the company had filed notice of the surrender of its charter given it by the city of Rochester.

Charles E. Elmquist, a member of the commission, was asked if any inquiry into the company's position at Rochester had been made by the commission and he answered in the negative. He also did not know for what reason the company had surrendered its local charter and had asked for one from the state.

"The law is positive in this matter," said Mr. Elmquist. "It says we shall and that is all there is to it. We are carrying out the telephone control law as it reads and as we interpret it. This company is under our control and we have regulations over its rates. The city of Rochester still maintains its police powers and we suppose that if Rochester has any protest, it can secure satisfaction in the court."

Judge Mills, a member of the commission, left today for Thief River Falls to conduct a hearing on the petition of the Tri-State Telephone company for an indeterminate permit to operate in that city. The company operates an exchange in Thief River Falls, but its application for a license has been turned down by the city officials.

WHISTLE SIGNALS AND SAFETY ZONES TO HELP SOLVE TRAFFIC PROBLEMS

Safety Commissioner Decides on Move to Protect Pedestrians; Suggests a Change in Routing of Hillside Car Lines.

Whistle signals for traffic policemen and safety zones marked by iron standards have been agreed upon as necessary for protection by pedestrians in the business districts and will be inaugurated by Safety Commissioner Silberstein at once.

Iron standards or pedestals with signs carrying the words "Safety Zone —Police Dept." will be shipped to Duluth by a Minneapolis concern this week and will be placed at Third avenue west and other congested corners along Superior street.

"The street is not very wide there," said the commissioner this morning, "but it is too dangerous for persons about to board or alight from street cars and we must have the safety zones.

"When the traffic police are provided with whistles, with which they will signal traffic without turning so much, they will be able to keep much closer watch on the vehicles, as well as on pedestrians."

Change Car Routes.

Predicting an early change in street car routing system through the center of the city, the commissioner expressed the belief that cars now turning up Third avenue west soon would have to climb the hill along some less thickly congested street, preferably Second avenue east.

"Third avenue west and Superior street is the busiest corner in the city," declared Mr. Silberstein, "and it's growing worse right along. It is but a matter of a few years until the street car company will have to use a different right-of-way up the hill, and I would like to see those tracks moved as soon as possible."

The commissioner stated that he had been working on the problem of congestion at the Third avenue corner for some time. His decision on methods to be adopted came after several conferences with police department heads and automobile men.

Traffic will be halted at the Third avenue crossing in the future, according to the plan, and will move in both directions on Superior street at one signal, and in either direction on Third avenue at another signal.

Steps probably will be taken to have the street car company arrange a new routing for the East Fourth, West Fourth and East Ninth lines, it was intimated.

Some time ago Commissioner Silberstein proposed safety zones at crowded corners, but gave up the plan temporarily because of the narrowness of the street.

CITIZENS URGED TO SUGGEST PLANS FOR DULUTH STEEL PLANT CELEBRATION

All Duluthians Expected to Take Active Interest in Affair.

Every Community Organization Asked to Join General Committee.

Banquet and Features Making for Exclusiveness Are Barred.

Opinions of the readers of The Herald are asked as to what form the proposed celebration of the opening of the steel plant should take, and suggestions will be received by The Herald for the benefit of the general committee that will be in charge.

Herald readers are invited to fill out the coupon printed herewith and to send it in, for the publicity committee of the Commercial club has made out no tentative program, but is leaving that up to the general committee that will be named by the various organizations of the city. That this committee will be anxious to receive suggestions is taken for granted, for it is the desire of those who have taken the initial step in the matter to have the celebration a real one, and such that enthusiasm over the first move to actually turn Duluth into a Western Pittsburgh will be given full vent.

The idea of holding a banquet is frowned on by the members of the publicity committee for the reason that there is no place where a banquet of the necessary proportions could be held, and such an event would mean a small crowd and might smack of exclusiveness, and the purpose is to hold a celebration for all of Duluth and as much of Minnesota as will take part.

No Exclusiveness.

"We want nothing that bears any resemblance to exclusiveness," said George D. McCarthy, assistant secretary of the Commercial club this morning. "This has got to be a big affair, with everybody in it. We want every man, woman and child in the city to cut loose and let the world know how glad they are. Let's have it in the open where everybody can take part."

That is the spirit that predominates and it will be passed along to the general committee, which will be formed from the various civic and business organizations of the city.

Mr. McCarthy, acting for the publicity committee of the Commercial club, has written letters to the following organizations asking them to take part:

Duluth Rotary club.
Duluth Builders' Exchange.
Duluth Real Estate Exchange.
West Duluth Commercial club.
West End Commercial club.
New Duluth Commercial club.
Duluth Retail Merchants' association.
Duluth Building Managers' association.
West End Hillside Improvement club.
Park Point Improvement club.
Oneota and Hazelwood Improvement club.
Central Hillside Improvement club.
Lakeside Improvement club.
Fifth Ward Improvement club.
Gary Improvement club.
Glen-Hunt-Wood commission.
Woodland Neighborhood club.
Munger Improvement club.
Trades and Labor Assembly.

The letter follows:

"Dear Sir—

"The beginning of operations at the plant of the Minnesota Steel company, Nov. 1, will mark the opening of a new industrial era for Duluth. The manufacturing of steel at last will have been brought to the source of supply of raw material. Predictions often made that Duluth would become a great steel manufacturing center will have become certain of fulfillment.

"The event is one that should be fittingly celebrated by Duluth in the opinion of the publicity committee of this organization. The celebration should not be confined to any organization or any few organizations, but the entire community should participate. The arrangements can best be made, however, by representatives of the business and civic organizations of the city as representative of the whole community.

"The publicity committee of this club accordingly requests your organization to make arrangements for the proposed celebration. Will you please report the names to the undersigned at your earliest convenience. As soon as all organizations respond, a meeting of the general committee will be called."

The publicity committee, which started the ball rolling, consists of the following: Harry W. Zinsmaster, chairman; Charles A. Marshall, Alfred H. Moe, Miron Bunnell, Stillman H. Bingham, Fred S. Curtis, H. V. Eva and George D. McCarthy.

The coupon, asking for suggestions, is given herewith. Those filling them out should mail their suggestions or leave it at The Herald office, addressed to "The Steel Making Celebration Editor." It is urged that every reader of The Herald take this much interest in the preliminary work, for the more suggestions that are offered, the greater material for the celebration program the general committee will have to draw from.

Fill Out This Coupon and Mail It to The Herald.

Thin men and women who would like to increase their weight with 10 or 15 pounds of healthy "stay there" fat should try eating a little Sargol with their meals for a while and note results. Here is a good test worth trying.: First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Then take Sargol—one tablet with every meal—for two weeks. Then weigh and measure again. It isn't a question of how you look or feel or what your friends say and think. The scales and the tape measure will tell their own story, and most any thin man or woman can easily add from five to eight pounds in the first fourteen days by following this simple direction. And best of all, the new flesh stays put.

Sargol does not of itself make fat, but mixing with your food, it turns the fats, sugars and starches of what you have eaten, into rich, ripe fat-producing nourishment for the tissues and blood—prepares it in an easily assimilated form which the blood can readily accent. All this nourishment now passes from your body as waste. But Sargol stops the waste and does it quickly and makes the fat producing contents of the very same meals you are eating now develop pounds and pounds of healthy flesh between your skin and bones. Sargol is safe, pleasant, efficient and inexpensive. Boyce Drug store and other leading druggists in Duluth and vicinity sell it in large boxes—forty tablets to a package—on an guarantee of weight increase or money back.

FOUND DEAD IN AUTO SEAT

Chauffeur Dies in Garage While Working on Employer's Car.

Wife Finds His Body; Heart Failure Probably the Cause.

An attack of heart failure while working on an auto last night resulted in the sudden death of Earnest C. Hoffhein of 728 East Fifth street, chauffeur for F. A. Cokefair.

Hoffein had taken out the owner of the car during the evening and was evidently in good spirits. An autopsy to determine the exact cause of the death will be held tomorrow morning in the undertaking rooms of Grady & Horgan, 24 East First street, to which place the body was taken this morning as soon as it was found.

In addition to some other driving, Hoffhein took Edward Scrivens, nephew of Mr. Cokefair, to the home of a friend in the East end. Mr. Hoffhein was joking about the carburetor, which was not working right, and which he said he would have to look to as soon as he returned to the garage. Upon returning home he was with the family a while and then went down to the garage to work on the car. When he did not return about 11 o'clock his wife looked out of the window and, seeing the light still burning in the garage near by, thought that he was working late on the car, as he had often done before. She did not worry and retired. In the morning, when she found that he had not returned during the night, she went down to investigate and found him dead in the front seat.

Jailer L. A. Root and Police Surgeon Harry Klein were called.

"The news, when it reached me this morning," said Mr. Cokefair, owner of the car, "was a distinct shock. He was an excellent man, a careful driver and a most reliable man to have around the car. He has been with us for two seasons and has driven the car more than 12,000 miles. He appeared to be deeply devoted to his family and was a most steady and industrious workman."

Mr. Hoffhein is survived by his wife and two children, a daughter aged 6 and a son aged 2. Two weeks ago, while out driving with the owner of the car, he complained of a pain in his heart and was forced to return home. It is the belief that another such attack was the cause of his death.

QUIGLEY FUNERAL MOST IMPOSING

Procession of Over 1,000 Priests Forms an Impressive Spectacle.

Chicago, July 15.—The funeral of Archbishop James Edward Quigley, held today, was the most imposing seen in Chicago in many years. In the three days since the body was brought here from Rochester, N. Y., where the churchman died, it is estimated that 50,000 persons have joined in paying tribute to his memory.

Hours before the time of the funeral mass thousands of persons flocked to the Cathedral of the Holy Name, and most of them remained outside as admittance was by ticket only.

A procession of more than 1,000 priests, headed by the celebrants of the solemn high pontifical mass, and accompanied by acolytes formed an impressive spectacle as it moved slowly from the parish house to the Cathedral.

Cardinal Gibbons and Archbishop Bonzano, papal delegate, occupied the thrones of their respective offices in the church. Archbishop Bonzano celebrated the mass and Archbishop Hanna of San Francisco preached the funeral sermon. Assistants to Archbishop Bonzano were Archbishops Aldering of Fort Wayne, Ind.; Francisco Plancarte y Navarette, Mexico; Leopold Rutz, Mexico; Joseph Weber, Ontario, and Elshops Henry Althoff, Belleville, Ill.; M. F. Burke, St. Joseph, Mo.; John P. Caroll, Helena, Mont.; T. F. Cusack, Albany, N. Y.; John P. Farelly, Cleveland; John E. Fitzmaurice, Erie, Pa.; Edward D. Kelly, Ann Arbor, Mich.; Richard Scannell, Omaha; Edward Kozlowski, Milwaukee; Peter J. O'Reilly, Peoria; James Ryan, Alton, Ill.; Peter J. Muldoon, Rockford, Ill.; E. M. Dunne, Peoria; T. F. Hickey, Rochester, N. Y; Michael De La Mora, Mexico; Paul P. Rhode, Green Bay, Wis.; A. J. McGavick, Chicago, and Theophile Meerschaert, Oklahoma.

The official pallbearers were clergymen who have been active in the work directed by the decedent.

WILL PRESENT FORMAL ORDER

Thaw's Counsel to Ask Commitment to Matteawan Be Vacated.

Justice Hendrick Will Give His Decision on Friday.

New York, July 15.—While awaiting the decision of Supreme Court Justice Hendrick on the question of Harry K. Thaw's sanity, Thaw's counsel had prepared for submission to court today a formal order vacating the original commitment under which he was first sent to Matteawan asylum.

The jury which declared Thaw sane yesterday deliberated but forty-eight minutes before returning a verdict.

Shortly before 4 o'clock, a bailiff came from the jury room, and informed Justice Hendrick that a verdict had been reached. The doors immediately were locked and Justice Hendrick, ascending the bench, warned the spectators that any demonstration would be met with severe punishment.

Thaw Is Sane.

Then the jury came in. In reply to a question by the clerk of the court as to whether a verdict had been reached, the foreman handed over a sheet of legal paper, which was passed to the justice on the bench. Justice Hendrick read it and handed it back to the clerk.

"Gentlemen of the jury," said the clerk, "the question you have been considering is this:

"Is Harry K. Thaw now sane? Your answer is yes."

Two Ballots Taken.

In explaining why two ballots were taken, one of the jurors, Paul J. Marks, a brother of the president of the borough of Manhattan, said that, on the first ballot, the vote was 11 to 1 that Thaw was sane. The dissenting juror said that he cast his ballot that way more as a matter of form than anything else, so that the verdict would not be rendered without formal discussion. The vote was unanimous on the second ballot.

Mr. Marks also said that he and the other members of the jury believed that Thaw was eccentric and possibly mentally weak, but that they did not believe that he would harm anyone else.

Justice Hendrick on Friday morning will announce whether the commitment upon which Thaw was incarcerated in the state hospital for the criminal insane at Matteawan shall be vacated, thereby giving the slayer of Stanford White the liberty for which he has fought in the courts for nine years.

HUNTSMAN CASE IS DISMISSED

Bedford, Iowa, July 15.—The case against Bates Huntsman, who has been on preliminary trial before Justice M. A. Sawyer for the alleged murder of Nathaniel Smith, a Missouri cattleman, and his son, in September, 1877, was dismissed today by Justice Sawyer.

The case was dismissed on the motion of the attorneys for Huntsman shortly before noon. Attorney General Cosson acquiesced in the motion, stating to the court that the refusal to admit the evidence of John Derrickson with reference to "Doc" A. E. Goliday, the hermit druggist, who is said to have been a participant in the alleged crime, had made it impossible for the state to proceed further.

STEAMER HOWTH HEAD HAS NO BOMBS ABOARD

Norfolk, Va., July 15.—The British steamer Howth Head, on board which it was feared a bomb had been placed before she cleared from New Orleans, July 8, arrived here safely last night.

The vessel is not equipped with wireless and Capt. Moore knew nothing of efforts to notify him of the supposed danger, until the ship was boarded by a pilot off Cape Henry. A thorough search then disclosed no explosives.

The Howth Head will take on coal here and continue to Dublin and Belfast. She has a general merchandise cargo.

Fears for the vessel's safety were aroused by the receipt of a letter by a New Orleans newspaper in which the notice was given to watch for reports of the Howth Head and also the British steamship Baron Napier, which left New Orleans with mules for England. The Napier has reported by wireless that a search showed no bombs aboard.

SINGLE TAX ADVOCATES COMING TO DULUTH TO SPREAD PROPAGANDA

Mrs. Mary Fels, Widow of Millionaire Who Gave Life and Money to Spreading of Henry George's Theories, Heads the Party; Speeches Will Be Made on Single Tax and Woman's Suffrage; On Extensive Tour.

Mary Fels will visit Duluth next Wednesday.

How many Duluth people know who Mary Fels is?

Probably not a great many, but those who do, think of her as one of the great women of her day and generation.

Mary Fels is the widow of Joseph Fels, who died a year ago last spring. Joseph Fels was a millionaire of Philadelphia and London, who became a convert to the doctrines of Henry George, the single taxer, and devoted his fortune to the propagation of the Georgian philosophy of taxation. His method was unique and characteristic of the successful business man that he was. He agreed to match every dollar that any one else gave to the single tax propaganda with a dollar of his own. He did not limit his offer to the United States alone, but covered Canada, Australia, England and the Scandinavian countries as well.

Gave Services Also.

But he did not follow the tracks of his millionaire predecessors with the mere giving of his money. He gave himself to the work and traveled and spoke and harnessed up with his coworkers wherever he thought it would help. Nor did he demand the management of the various funds to which he contributed so largely. In each country where his contributions went, he insisted on the other contributors selecting the commissioners to determine how, when and where the money should be spent. In the United States, the Joseph Fels Fund of America is managed by a commission, containing among its members such well known men and women as Louis F. Post, the assistant secretary of labor; Brand Whitlock, minister to Belgium; Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Lincoln Steffens, Frederic C. Howe, Margaret A. Haley, Raymond Robins, Bishop Charles D. Williams, and Jackson H. Ralston, general counsel for the American Federation of Labor. The chairman of the commission is Daniel Kiefer, a retired capitalist or Cincinnati, who will be in Duluth with Mrs. Fels.

Widow Takes Up Work.

Upon the death of her husband, Mrs. Fels, who had been in intelligent sympathy with him in his efforts to spread the gospel of the single tax, took up his work where he left it, continued his financial support of the movement, and threw herself into the work as he had done. She and Mr. Kiefer and Dr. Slaughter, who lectures on the single tax, are on an itinerary which began on July 6 at Cincinnati, and takes them to Winnipeg and the Canadian cities westward to the coast, thence through the Pacific coast cities to San Diego, and back via Denver, Kansas City and St. Louis to Louisville, the entire trip covering a period of over three months.

Suffrage Also.

Mrs. Fels is interested in the suffrage question as well as the single tax, and will speak in Duluth on both subjects.

Duluth has no organization of single-taxers, but there are many here who believe in its efficacy to remedy many of the evils of present methods of taxation. There is a much larger number who believe, at least, in its partial application by assessing household goods, farm implements, machinery, livestock and buildings at a lower percentage of their actual value than real estate.

Minnesota Investigates.

The Minnesota tax commission made a special investigation of the subject about three years ago by sending one of its members on a tour through Western Canada, where it is claimed the single tax has been in successful operation for several years. The report of the commission is considered one of the best conservative presentations of the virtues of the system that has ever been issued by an official commission. It was largely the result of that report that the Spooner bill for graduating the valuations on different classes of property was passed at the 1913 session of the state legislature.

It is expected that considerable public interest will be shown in the meetings that Mrs. Fels will hold. They are intended to be purely educational, and students of taxation reform will doubtless be interested to hear what she will have to say. Definite arrangements have not yet been made for the meetings, but it is expected that Mrs. Fels will address a meeting of women in the afternoon on "Suffrage and the Single Tax," and that she and Dr. Slaughter will speak at an evening meeting on the single tax.

its rights as a neutral in selling war exports to the allies. Austria's representations touch a different phase of the question.

State department officials do not regard the Austrian communication in the nature of a protest and are not yet certain that it requires an answer. Nothing was made public here about the communication, officials said, because of its origination in Austria. They regard it as apparently one emanating solely from the Vienna foreign office without collaboration with Berlin

At Request of Germany.

London, July 15.—A dispatch from Berlin by way of Amsterdam to the Exchange Telegraph company today says:

"The Austro-Hungarian protest to America is a sequel to the recent conference at Vienna between Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the German imperial chancellor, and Gottlieb von Jagow, the German foreign minister, and Baron Stephen Burian von Rajecz, the Austro-Hungarian foreign minister.

"The protest was sent at the request of Germany, and Turkey will follow suit.

"The object is to warn America that a rupture of relations with Germany will mean also a rupture with Germany's allies."

Out of Loyalty.

Cologne, Germany, July 15, via London.—The Koelnische Zeitung, commenting on the Austrian note to the United States, says:

"This announcement of the Austro-Hungarian government to the United States is an act of loyalty to its ally of the highest value. Austro-Hungary thus takes her diplomatic place alongside of Germany in the single instance in which Germany has become involved in a serious diplomatic discussion with a neutral state, just at the moment when the diplomatic relations have become strained to the critical point.

"This means that by the dispatch of the note, President Wilson now knows that at least Austro-Hungary shares the German standpoint and doubtless is determined to bear all the consequences of this standpoint."

Note From Austria.

London, July 15.—According to Amsterdam dispatches to Reuter's agency, it is stated from Vienna that the Austro-Hungarian minister of foreign affairs sent a note to the American ambassador at Vienna on June 29 drawing attention to the fact that enormercial business in war material on a great scale is proceeding between the United States and Great Britain and her allies, while Austria-Hungary and Germany are completely cut off from the American market.

It is set forth in the note that this subject has occupied the government of the dual monarchy from the very beginning and although the government is convinced that the American attitude arises from no other intention than to observe the strictest neutrality and international agreements yet "the question arises whether conditions as they have developed during the course of the war, certainly independently of the wish of the American government, are not of such a kind as in their effect to turn the intentions of the Washington cabinet in a contrary direction.

Cannot Be Doubted.

"If this question is answered in the affirmative, and its affirmation cannot be doubted," according to the opinion of the Austro-Hungarian government, "then the question follows whether it does not seem possible or even necessary that appropriate measures should be taken to make fully respected the wish of the American government to remain a strictly impartial vis-a-vis of both belligerent parties."

The note continues:

"A neutral government cannot be allowed to trade in contraband unhindered, if it takes the form or dimensions whereby neutraly of the country will be endangered. The export of war material from the United States as a proceeding of the present war, is not in consonance with the definition of neutrality. The American government therefore is undoubtedly entitled to prohibit the export of war material.

In Position to Redress.

"Regarding the possible objections that American industry is willing to supply Austro-Hungary and Germany, which, however, is impossible, owing to the war situation, it may be pointed out that the American government is in a position to redress this state of things. It would be quite sufficient to advise the enemies of Austria-Hungary and Germany that the supply of foodstuffs and war material would be suspended if legitimate trade in these articles between America and neutrals was not permitted."

In conclusion the Austro-Hungarian government appeals to the United States calling attention to the uninterrupted good relations and friendship between that country and the dual monarchy, to take the present note under careful consideration.

GERMANY ADMITS TORPEDOING THE NEBRASKAN

Since the vessel remained afloat he had no occasion to concern himself further with the boats, which had been launched.

"It results from this without a doubt that attack on the steamer Nebraskan was not meant for the American flag, nor is it traceable to any fault on the part of the commander of the German submarine, but is to be considered an unfortunate accident. The German government expresses its regret at the occurrence to the government of the United States of America and declares its readiness to make compensation for the damage thereby sustained by American citizens."

Name Painted on Side.

The official report of the attack forwarded by Ambassador Page after investigation by Lieut. John H. Towers, naval attache of the embassy, stated that the Nebraskan was in water ballast outbound from Liverpool for Delaware Breakwater, and that although her flag had been hauled down, just after sunset as is the custom, there were painted on her sides in letter six feet high the words "Nebraskan, New York."

After the attack the ship headed about for Liverpool and convoyed by British ships, reached the port safely. No one was seriously hurt in the explosion, which left evidences causing some doubt at first wether the ship had been struck by a torpedo or a mine. American naval officers, however, finally came to the conclusion that it was a torpedo.

The Nebraskan case, coming close on the sinking of the Lusitania, and coupled with the attack on the Gulflight, threatened to become one of the important issues in the controversy with Germany over submarine warfare. There were some circumstances which made the case more complex.

The Nebraskan had been under charter to the White Star line of the International Mercantile Marine, but the charter had been cancelled and she was returning home to carry coal from Newport News to California for the United States navy.

Enver Pasha insisted upon general attacks which were undertaken repeatedly with great bravery and tremendous losses, the Turkish troops falling away before the allied artillery.

Turk Batteries Active.

"Meanwhile the Turkish Asiatic batteries were active in causing annoyance at our landing places, but there were few casualties, since all the troops were too well entrenched to be harried except by direct hits.

"The allied men all pay tribute to the extreme gallantry and indifference to death shown by the Turkish infantry, but their methods of attack are crude and wasteful. They are lacking in knowledge of how to carry out an assault scientifically.

"The Turks generally mass for an attack behind some natural barrier. Generally our artillery is informed of their massing before the attack is launched, whereupon knowing all the ranges to a foot, we break up the mass with a torrent of shell.

"The Turks recently have been adding extensively to the defensive possibilities of their positions in an effort to prevent any further advance by our troops and the Turkish soldiers have been given special orders prohibiting their retirement under any circumstances. Their officers have been directed to shoot soldiers who attempt to retire."

GERMAN FORCES CAPTURE PRZANYSZ

men and the Vistula, where they have attacked in force, making an advance along one section from which the Russians retired to their second line.

Point to New German Drive.

All these signs point to a new German drive toward Warsaw from the East Prussian frontier, but it is believed by military observers here that the Russians have sufficient forces in this direction to oppose formidable resistance.

It is expected that the period of quiescence in Southern Poland will be ended by an attack on the Austro-German toward the River Bug. Great Britain again is experiencing domestic troubles with 150,000 coal miners actually on strike.

From Athens comes a report of a substantial advance made by the Anglo-French forces against the Krithia-Achi-Baba line, but since so many wild rumors have originated in the Grecian capital, this is received with reserve until officially confirmed.

French Statement.

Paris, July 15, 2:35 p. m.—The French war office gave out the following today on the progress of hostilities:

"Activity during the night in the region to the north of Arras was quite diversified. To the south of the Chateau De Carleul, we seized a line of German trenches. Around Neuville Saint Vaast and the 'labyrinth' there was hand grenade fighting.

"In the Argonne the fighting was circumscribed within the region situated to the west of the forest, where we had progressed yesterday. To the north of the Servon road, after a series of counter-attacks, the Germans succeeded in regaining a foothold in the Beaurain woods. In the rest of this sector there was no change in the situation.

"Between Fey en Haye and the forest of Le Pretre, an attempt of the enemy to sally from his trenches was immediately halted by a curtain of artillery fire and the fire of our infantry."

MILLIONS IN FIAT MONEY

Mexicans Have It But Need Real Coin to Buy Food.

Washington, July 15.—Mexico City, freed of the perils of siege, and with prospects of food for the starving, now is confronted with another famine—a scarcity of money. Millions in currency, issued by the various factions as control of the capital passed back and forth between them during the last year, have been repudiated by each succeeding government.

Although supported by decree while the issuing faction remained in control, all such currency now in the hands of the populace is of doubtful value. Villa issued large amounts, as did Zapata, and when Gen. Obregon first occupied the city for Gen. Carranza, he made a large issue. Now that food may come in, many of the famished, although possessed of some kind of money, may be unable to buy it. Officials here have been expecting that the Carranza government will act to regulate the situation. Travelers arriving yesterday at Vera Cruz reported Mexico City quiet and said foreigners were safe from molestation. The populace seemed indifferent to the shifting scenes of government.

Duluthians at Marquette.

Marquette, Mich., July 15.—Joseph A. Jeffry, R. L. Jeffry and M. S. Roff of Duluth are in the city on business; Mrs. Sadie Carey of Duluth is a guest of Mrs. Paul Christensen, Jr., for the summer; C. H. Matthews of Duluth representative of the General Electric company, was in the city Tuesday.

ASK $14,000,000 FOR PRODUCTS HELD UP

Washington, July 15.—Difficulties of American meat packers with Great Britain over the detention of their cargoes to neutral countries will be taken up by the state department in a note to the British government, it was said today.

The packers, who have appealed to the Washington government to demand that Great Britain stop interfering with their cargoes consigned to neutral ports and settle for $14,000,000 worth of their products now held up in prize courts, continued their conferences with state department officials today.

The American note to Great Britain, which, it was said, would be sent immediately, would deal specifically with the complaint of the packers. The general subject of interference with neutral trade under the British order in council will form the subject of another communication to Great Britain.

MISTAKE TO LOAN TO EUROPE, SAYS PRATT

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., July 15.—Bankers of the United States were warned today that they must prepare to handle the financial end of a wide American foreign trade, by Dr. E. E. Pratt, chief of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, in a speech before the West Virginia Bankers' association convention here today. The development of a large export business is now under way, Dr. Pratt told the bankers, and manufacturers and merchants will call upon the banks for extensive services in handling the cash and credit export transactions.

Branches in South America.

Dr. Pratt said that American banks are now establishing branches in South America and other parts of the world to handle American business, and that the European war has resulted in the extensive substitution of American dollar exchange for English pounds sterling exchange in international transactions. He estimated that the total loans of American money and credit to Europe so far during the war totalled $500,000,000, and suggested that the putting out of large sums of American money in Europe was an economic fallacy.

Keeps Up War.

"In loaning money to European nations," he said, "we are enabling them merely to keep up their wasteful warfare, and if we continue to loan money to Europe for reconstruction purposes after the war is over, we will simply be building up our most active competitors. If, however, this money is loaned to other countries of the world, countries which are not our competitors, but which are customers, and also the customers of European nations, it will be building up our customers; we will be strengthening them and we will be strengthening the ties between them and ourselves."

CZECK LEADER UNDER ARREST IN BOHEMIA

Berlin, July 15, by wireless to Sayville.—A dispatch from Prague, Bohemia, to the Overseas News agency says:

"Dr. Raschin, a Czech leader, has been arrested. He was president of the Czech newspaper Narodny Listy and was a well-known Pan-Slavism leader. Twenty years ago he was sentenced to a prison term for political reasons. More recently he was elected a member of the Austrian diet."

HEARTBROKEN over leaving the Duluth Children's home, where she has been cared for, a little 6-year-old girl ran away last evening and hid, hoping that she might escape being taken away this morning with thirteen other little children who were county charges and who were being taken to Owatonna to the state school.

This little miss was one of a family of six orphans who have become state charges and she didn't want to leave Miss McGregor and the other women and children at the home and it was only after a several hours' hunt with the aid of the police that she was found shortly before 9 o'clock. She said she didn't want to go and she thought she would hide until after the rest had left.

Some of the fourteen children taken this morning have been at the Duluth Home since last July on account of sickness and quarantine here or at Owatonna, but last week they were given a clean bill of health and this morning were sent to the state home.

The women in charge here had hoped to place some of the children in homes for adoption especially the six brothers and sisters so that they might be kept near together, but they had to be sent on for as soon as they are entirely orphaned with no source of support they become state charges.

Minneapolis Wedding of Interest Here.

A wedding of interest to Duluthians was that of Miss Ethel J. Rockwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Rockwood of Minneapolis to Tilton Frank Phillips of Duluth, which took place yesterday at high noon at the home of the bride's parents in Minneapolis, Rev. Lathan A. Crandall, pastor of Trinity Baptist church of Minneapolis, performed the ceremony in the presence of relatives only. During the ceremony Mrs. Crandall played Schubert's "Serenade."

The bride wore a gown of Georgette crepe and held an arm bouquet of daisies. After the ceremony a luncheon was served and the rooms were prettily decorated in pink and white.

Mr. Phillips is an instructor in the Duluth Central high school and Mrs. Phillips was formerly a teacher of English in the same school.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillips left for a trip on the Vermilion range, and will be at home at 4427 Luvern street after Sept. 15.

Musicale at Church.

A delightful program was given last evening at the musicale at which Miss Agnes Mae Johnson was hostess at the parlors of the First Presbyterian church in compliment to Miss Esther Anderson, who will be married to Harland C. Griswold next month. The guests were the members of the Philathea class of that church and assisting the hostess were Mrs. Jay Hoag and Mrs. John Alvin Johnson. Mrs. Helen Preece Chipchase, who, as Helen Preece, made a great hit by her riding at the New York horse show in 1912, is being sued by Mrs. Beatrice M. Chipchase to prevent her using the name, Mrs. George H. Chipchase. The first Mrs. Chipchase admits that a marriage ceremony was performed between George H. Chipchase and Helen Preece on March 20, 1915, but declares that the ceremony was void because although a divorce had been granted between her and her husband it does not become absolute until July 12 of this year. Helen Preece has been declared as the greatest girl rider in the world. She has won many honors in this country and England.

Mrs. Lansing Right at Home in Cabinet

New York Evening Sun: Not since the days when Mrs. John Hay entertained official Washington as wife of the secretary of state has a cabinet hostess of this rank appeared who is so well equipped as Mrs. Robert Lansing, wife of President Wilson's new chief secretary.

Mrs. Lansing will enjoy the unique experience of succeeding to the exacting social duties which were performed so ably by her mother back in the Harrison administration when John W. Foster, her father, was secretary of state.

Mrs. Lansing, then Eleanor Foster, was just making her bow in society, having been graduated from Smith college. Her interest in her mother's duties was sufficient to give her an experience which she will now be able to turn to practical advantage.

Many Exacting Social Duties.

The wife of the secretary of state is called upon for many exacting social duties, and Washington expects to see Mrs. Lansing make a notable place for herself as a cabinet hostess. She is a good conversationalist, quick at repartee and somewhat of a wit. Furthermore, Mrs. Lansing is the youngest woman upon whom the duty of leading the cabinet's social affairs has fallen in many years.

Mrs. Lansing was married to Mr. Lansing in 1890 in the home of her father on I street, where the Fosters lived for many years. The Lansing wedding was attended by a notable gathering, including President Harrison and family, Vice President Morton and has family and other important officials and diplomats.

Mr. Lansing took his bride to a new home in Watertown, N. Y., where they have always lived except for the time spent in Washington. They spent many winters with Gen. and Mrs. Foster before Mr. Lansing was appointed counselor of the state department, and since then they have continued to make their home with the Fosters, who have built a spacious and luxurious home on Eighteenth street, just opposite the Austro-Hungarian embassy offices.

Precedence Over Older Women.

Mr. and Mrs. Lansing have no children.

Mrs. Lansing, as the foremost of the cabinet wives, will take precedence over many older women. She will take the lead in all things social in the cabinet circle. In social rank she comes next to the wife of the president or the president hostess. Even the wife of the vice president does not have the social responsibility of the wife of the secretary of state. It is her duty to entertain the diplomatic corps and it is to her that the wives and families of newly accredited ambassadors and ministers pay their respects after they have made their formal calls at the White House.

The most brilliant function of New Year's day, next to the White House reception, is the breakfast given by the secretary of state and his wife to the diplomatic corps.

No More Grape Juice Dinners.

There is one feature about dinners given by the secretary of state in the last two years which is likely to be lacking at the entertainments given by Mr. and Mrs. Lansing. The absence of wine and the presence of grape juice or fruit punch at the Bryan dinners has long since come to be a matter of amusement, especially among diplomats and their families. Experiences at Mr. Bryan's "dry" dinners have been a ready subject of conversation at social gatherings for more than two years here, and now society will have to turn to something else.

Mrs. Lansing is known in Washington as a woman of exceptionally good taste, modesty and common sense.

IRONWOOD HOME WEDDING.

Employe of Oliver Iron Mining Company Marries School Teacher.

Ironwood, Mich., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Lillian Nelson, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Nelson, and William H. Tonkin, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. James Tonkin, were married here at the bride's home, which was prettily decorated with ferns and flowers.

Miss Amy Erickson played a wedding march as the bride came down the stairs and was met by her father, who gave her in marriage. She wore white silk crepe de chine. Her sister, Miss Alfield Nelson, was bridesmaid and wore pale green suisine silk. Clarence Tonkin attended his brother. Rev. Mr. Johnson, pastor of the Swedish Mission church officiated. Following the ceremony a wedding supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. Tonkin left for Chicago on their honeymoon. The bride was graduated from the Ironwood high school in 1911, and has taught in the public schools of this city. The groom has spent all his life in this city and now holds a responsible position in the main office of the Oliver Iron Mining company in this city. They will go to housekeeping on their return at 227 South Curry street.

MANY AT PICNIC.

Large Crowd Expected at Bay Lake Affair on Friday.

Brainerd, Minn., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Brainerd will be largely represented at the community picnic at Bay lake tomorrow. Fifty autos have been pledged by the chamber of commerce members to take farmers from this section to the picnic. Everything points to a record attendance, estimated by some to be 3,000 or more. Large delegations are going from Crosby, Ironton, Deerwood, Cuyuna and other range towns. Many will come from the north, gathering at Brainerd and being taken to the picnic grounds in automobiles. The speaker of the day will be President George E. Vincent of the University of Minnesota.

The program has been printed in The Herald.

Among the other prominent visitors expected are Col. Freeman Thorpe of Hubert, editor of the New Farmer, and Congressman C. A. Lindbergh of Little Falls.

Theater Gossip.

Miss Edna Munsey's engagement in "Madame Sherry," at the Lyceum next week, promises to attract unusual attention on the part of Duluth theater-goers. At the meeting of the Elks' lodge last evening, the members voted to attend the theater in a body Monday evening. Miss Munsey is a daughter of the former exalted ruler of the local lodge, and has always been a prime favorite with local members of the antlered order. It is expected that fully 200 Elks will be in the audience Monday evening, and many of them will be accompanied by their families.

In addition to the interest among the members of the order, the inquiry at the box office has been brisk, and "Madame Sherry" is expected to set a new record for the company's spring and summer engagement.

Fred Carleton has joined the company, and will appear in one of the principal parts next week. He is a former member of the Henry W. Savage forces, and has appeared in "Madame Sherry." Last season he had one of the principal roles in "Sari," which had a successful run. He and Miss Munsey will have the principal singing roles, and George Fox will be the principal comedian, appearing as Theophilus.

"The Squaw Man" attracted a capacity audience at the matinee yesterday. It will continue until Saturday night, with the usual Saturday matinee, and "Madame Sherry" will open Sunday afternoon.

A vaudeville and photoplay program that displays careful selection is the newest new bill opening for the week-end at the popular New Grand. The bill is a double headliner featuring the Aki Trio, Japanese wonder-workers and Nick Hufford, assisted by the Lockhart Sisters.

JAPANESE TRIO AT GRAND.

Truly marvelous are the wonderful feats performed by the Aki Trio. Absolute indifference to danger and with but one end in view, and that to thrill audiences, seems to be their slogan. Gorgeous Oriental settings in black velvet and gold give the act a striking appearance.

Nick Hufford and the Lockhardt Sisters corral most of the laughs with their comedy offering, "The Colored Parson and His Dusky Belles." The act is new and classy, as is also its costuming. A little dancing, some good comedy songs well rendered compose the act.

Bits of vaudeville are offered by Jermon and Mack. This versatile duo fill in fifteen minutes with fun and entertainment.

Paddock and Paddock offer a diversion in singing, talking and society dancing.

A Broadway star feature, "The Silent W," in two reels; one of the Helen Holmes railroad stories, "The Midnight Limited;" the Pearl-Setig News of weekly events and two comedies complete the bill.

Hazel Dawn, a member of the more youthful element of Broadway stars who have won international popularity as presented in what is perhaps her greatest film characterization, as Clarissa, in a photo-version of "Gambler's Advocate," based on the well-known story of that name by Ronald MacDonald, and produced by the Famous Players Film company, appearing at the Rex on the Paramount program tonight.

HAZEL DAWN AT THE REX

The exterior scenes, which were produced in Florida, are gems of nature. The admirers of Miss Dawn will be even more devoted to their favorite after witnessing her in this performance, while those who have not yet been fortunate enough to see this gifted artist in her previous screen appearances will not be puzzled to understand her rapidly increasing popularity.

The story itself is an intensely interesting exposition of the lengths to which a determined woman will go to save the life and honor of the man she loves. The man is portrayed by James Kirkwood.

Seldom in the history of the Zelda theater has the pretty little photoplay house received such an enthusiastic audience as it did yesterday and last evening for the presentation of "Fine Feathers." The huge cement dam is shown breaking and an entire city is flooded. Such a scene was impossible in the stage version of "Fine Feathers." It will close its engagement at the Zelda tonight. In addition to the big five-act production is a Charlie Chaplin colored picture called "The Pagodas," and an educational film that ends with a very funny cartoon. This program, including a vocal solo by Miss Jones, and several pipe organ selections by Miss Goldie Robinson, is one of the best yet shown at the Zelda. The program changes tomorrow.

LEADER OF FALLEN ANGELS.

Pastor White Discusses the Work of Satan.

"God's word is truth—not fiction. It deals with realities—not the fictitious. And as certainly as there is a personal God whose throne is in a real Heaven; as certainly as man is a real being upon a real earth; with Jesus as a personal Saviour, and the heavenly messengers real angels; just so certainly is the devil a real personality," declared Pastor Stemple White last night at the Bible chautauqua tent, where he spoke on "The Origin, Work, and Destiny of Satan."

"Satan is the leader of those angels, who kept not their first estate," said the speaker, "and his original name before his fall was Lucifer. This covering cherub sinned, instigated a rebellion in heaven, and after rejection of all gospel offers of divine grace, became the devil, and with a third of the angels was cast out of heaven, lost but not yet destroyed. Man in Eden, through sin, sold out to Satan, who in turn became the usurped ruler of this world. A seed was promised Adam, who, eventually would deal a death blow to the serpent. That Seed died on the cross, that he might eventually destroy the devil, Paul wrote.

"The world's Redeemer now represents this earth in the courts above, not as an accuser, but as our brother intercessor."

Mr. White will speak tonight on the topic, "Was Jesus the Messiah?"

HAS BEEN LIVING "UNDER FIRE"

Following the lead of English families, who seek refuge in their basements upon the approach of bomb-throwing Zeppelins, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Shapiro have been living in the basement of their house at 1330 West Superior street.

Blasting from the point of rocks across the street shakes the house, cracks the wall plaster and drives out renters who take the upstairs rooms, Mr. Shapiro says in a summons and complaint in a suit for $2,000 damages filed against the city yesterday afternoon by his attorney.

Since May 1, 1913, or for more than two years, Mr. Shapiro avers, he has been living "under fire" and frequently chunks of rock, blown by a heavy charge of dynamite, strike the building.

The complaint further says that the house has become unfit for tenants as a result of the two years' bombardment.

WILL ACT AS CITY ATTORNEY.

J. E. Samuelson's Duties Increased Because of Illness of H. F. Greene.

Because of the continued illness of City Attorney H. F. Greene, Assistant City Attorney John E. Samuelson, beginning tomorrow, will have office hours at the city hall.

"Some city work has been held back necessarily, because of Mr. Greene's illness," said Mayor W. I. Prince, this morning, "and I have arranged to have Mr. Samuelson spend two or three hours in the office every morning to relieve Third Assistant McHugh.

"At present he will be there from 9 until 11 a. m., but these hours may be lengthened if the pressure of business warrants it."

Attorney Samuelson, as first assistant, spends most of his time at the county courthouse, handling district court cases in which the city is involved.

Attorney Greene has been ill at St. Luke's hospital for some time, and according to reports today, will not be able to resume his duties for possibly two or three weeks. He may be compelled to undergo an operation.

Life Member of Shrine.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Clarence A. Hale, former potentate of Kem temple of Grand Forks, was honored by the imperial council at Seattle, with election to honorary life membership.

Wife Refuses to Testify.

Devils Lake, N. D., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because his wife invoked her constitutional right of refusing to testify against her husband, accused of introducing liquor onto the Fort Totten Indian reservation, John Belgrade was freed from the charge before the United States commissioner here.

Hard Hit by War.

Watford, N. D., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The war has laid a heavy toll on the family of August Fick, a homesteader residing near here. He had two brothers slain in battle, and a third—his only other brother—crippled for life by the loss of a leg.

Peggy Peabody's Observations

Pay Your Vacation Board.

The country relative, sometimes neglected by his city cousin nine months out of the twelve, comes in for quite a little friendly attention just as the heat and grind of the city becomes unbearable. Especially is this apt to be the case if the country relative has a comfortable farmhouse, several broad, spreading acres, a berry patch or two, some cows and hens and strips of well planted soil planted here and there which yield the season's delicacies in vegetables.

This sort of relative is likely to awake and find himself the object of attention from various of his city relatives about the first of June, and don't think that he is not very much alive to the reasons therefor. He knows as well as you do that the country is a great place for growing boys and girls set free for three months in the summer time. He knows as well as you do of the care that his good wife gives your children.

This foisting one's self and family upon one's country relatives for all or even a part of the summer, unsought by any member of the farmer's family, and being as hospitably welcomed as though one had shown them favors for which they could never adequately thank you, isn't all right unless you make a fair return for the hospitality.

Just because these country relatives own their home, pay a small tax and dig most of their sustenance out of the soil is no reason why you should sit back and reap the profit of their hard work. Insist upon paying them something for all the trouble in the currency that has such a cheering effect upon you. It will make them feel better and think better of you, and surely it ought to make you feel more respect for yourself.

There has always been a great exodus of cityites to the abodes of relatives in the country. Mothers take their preserving jars. Children are admonished to drink all the milk they can and eat plenty of eggs. And all the time the heads of the family are calculating just how little it will cost them for a vacation that is bound to improve them in health and spirits, and financially, too, because they are dealing with country cousins.

Pay, you who are flocking to the homesteads of your ancestors, and, moreover, offer those who still maintain them the hospitality of your house during the months when the farm is a dreary place, cut off from communication with most of the world.

To Overcome Sunburn, Tan, Freckles, Wrinkles

If your skin is unduly reddened, freckled or tanned, dab a liberal amount of ordinary mercolized wax on the face and allow it to remain over night. When you wash off the wax in the morning, fine, flaky, almost invisible particles of cuticle come with it. Repeating this daily, the entire outer skin is absorbed, but so gradually, there's not the slightest hurt or inconvenience. Even the stubbornest freckles are affected. The underlying skin which forms the new complexion is so fresh and youthful-looking, you'll marvel at the transformation. It's the only thing known to actually discard an aged, faded, muddy or blotchy complexion. One ounce of mercolized wax, procurable at any druggstore, is sufficient in most cases.

If sun and wind make you squint and frown, you're bound to cultivate wrinkles and crow's feet. To overcome these quickly, bathe the face in a solution made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. —Advertisement.

DULUTH AND MINNESOTA SHOULD CELEBRATE THE STEEL PLANT OPENING.

Duluth's new twenty-million-dollar steel plant will be set going November 1, months ahead of the expected date. Orders to put it in operation on that day have been issued, and their character is such as to leave no doubt whatever that the plant will be running by Monday, the first day of November.

The publicity committee of the Commercial club has decided that Duluth should celebrate the opening of the great new industry.

The suggestion is good, and the celebration should be a real one. Its character and details may well be left to the committee that will be formed to plan it, but that there should be a celebration and that it should be one that can be heard all over the country everybody will enthusiastically agree.

This is a Duluth plant, a new Duluth industry, the dawning of a new epoch in the history of Duluth and of Minnesota. The celebration, therefore, should be a Duluth, St. Louis county and Minnesota affair, and city, county and state should be represented in it.

Minnesota is foremost in agriculture and mining, but has been laggard in manufactures. To be a well rounded state, living up to its opportunities, the manufacturing side should be developed. The coming of this great new steel manufacturing industry to Duluth means that this neglected side of Minnesota's growth will be neglected no longer. Therefore, the event of November 1 will be of wide significance to the state, no less than to Duluth.

The opening of the steel plant means vastly more than most people, in Duluth or in the state at large, have yet realized. To Duluth it means not only the immediate addition of many hundreds of workers to its pay rolls, but the widening development of its industrial side—the factor that, in the last analysis, is to make Duluth if Duluth is to be made. To Minnesota it means the rounding out of its heretofore incomplete manufacturing field, and the addition of thousands of buyers of its agricultural products.

The steel plant is in Minnesota, in Duluth—and Duluth and Minnesota should by all means observe adequately the mightily significant occasion of its opening.

Under the leadership of the Commercial club a large and widely representative committee should immediately be created. That committee should get to work as soon as possible on the necessary arrangements, and because this event is of wide significance not only to Duluth but to the whole state, it should see that the state as a whole is properly represented in the celebration.

And yet historians probably will record that Thaw was freed in the year of the great war, instead of that the great war occurred at the period when Thaw was freed.

ENOUGH OF THAW, PLEASE.

Thaw is sane, the jury says. So—presumably—he goes free at last. That's up to the judge, who ought to make a bargain with him: freedom so long as he maintains decency and obscurity.

Of course Thaw is sane—as sane as anybody is who, blessed with no more than a fair amount of brains, was unfortunate enough to be born into a rich family that made him a spoiled child and a pampered youth, with no incentive to self-development and plenty of money and leisure to addle what wits he had.

What hope was there for a none too brilliant youth who had an allowance of eighty thousand dollars a year before he was of age, and whose fool parents made it possible for him to spend fifty thousand dollars on a dinner to Paris stage beauties and to lose forty thousand dollars in a Pittsburgh poker game?

The original verdict of insanity was the jury's compromise, and it saved Thaw from the electric chair or the penitentiary for life. But it inflicted upon the country nine years of front page headlines that—because Thaw was news and you couldn't get away from it—kept dinging the sordid tale into public consciousness from time to time.

If Thaw has sense as well as sanity, he will hie himself—if the judge lets him—into the completest obscurity he can find, there to atone for a wasted life as best he can.

His story has not been without its value. At least it has shown the folly of the silly and stupid overkindness of rich parents that so commonly makes snobs and wastrels and worse than useless incumbrances of many who, given some other incentive than pleasure, might have earned a decent right to exist. But lest the lesson be lost through over-emphasis and sheer weariness of its repetition, Thaw's best atonement to society will be to bury himself from public sight forevermore.

Chicago boasts of being a chiggerless summer resort, but most folks would rather dodge chiggers than chuggers.

FOOLISH TALK.

> Let him (the president) give Bernstorff and his aides, civil, naval and military, their passports and call Gerard home.
> Then let him say that the American navy will protect American commerce in accordance with American traditions.
> Then at the next attack he will have to call congress together.

That's crazy talk, just now!

Lots of us feel about that way, but those who let thought govern their utterances and do not give way to sheer, blind emotion don't talk it.

It may come to that, but not yet.

The German note was bad enough—it could, indeed, hardly have been worse. It is a flat refusal, and its difficult protestations of innocence and friendship do not disguise its character. It is no decent reply to President Wilson's warning of February that this country would hold Germany to a "strict accountability" for interference with American ships or American travelers, followed up by these vigorous utterances after the assassination of the Lusitania:

> May 15.—It (the United States government) confidently expects, therefore, that the Imperial German government will disavow the acts of which the government of the United States complains, that they will make reparation, so far as reparation is possible for injuries that are without measure, and that they will take immediate steps to prevent the recurrence of anything so obviously subversive of the principles of warfare.
> June 10.—The government of the United States therefore very earnestly and solemnly renews the representations of its note transmitted to the Imperial German government on the 15th day of May. The government of the United States deems it reasonable to expect that the Imperial German government will adopt the measures necessary to put these principles into practice in respect of the safeguarding of American lives and American ships, and asks for assurances that this will be done.

Nevertheless, the note discloses clearly the fact that Germany does not want trouble with the United States; and the United States must be careful to avoid trouble if trouble can honorably be avoided. This country is not engaged in this controversy to hurt Germany or to help the allies. It is engaged in it because its own self-respect, the protection of the rights of neutrals, the prevention of world anarchy and the preservation of civilized international law are involved. It will not abandon this high duty or stultify itself in mere cowardly self-protection.

But before action leading to war is taken—and the action proposed by the Post leads straight to war—every honorable means to preserve peace will be exhausted. If we must go to war, there is no hurry about it. And few, even today, believe that war is in sight.

The idea of notifying Germany that the American navy will protect American commerce is simple folly. American ships are not threatened. Shall American war vessels follow every belligerent merchantman that carries American goods or an American passenger? And if they do, what then? Germany's navy is greater than ours; yet it has not been able to prevent the complete paralysis of German commerce. England's navy is the greatest in the world, yet it is utterly unable to stop Germany's submarine attack upon England's commerce.

The situation is bad enough without making it worse by letting emotion, unrestrained by thought, break loose in the form of fool advice.

Neither of the theaters of the war will be given up to stock this summer.

The Motor Age for the Farm.

Kansas City Star: The Star said yesterday that the motor car is going to rebuild every city in the country in the next ten years. It might add that it is going to revolutionize farm life.

The jitney bus between towns, the motor truck hauling farm produce and other freight, and the private car used by the farmer for business and pleasure, are making over conditions in the country.

The time is coming when the farmer must have an automobile to do business in competition with his neighbors, and when he must have roads for the automobile to run on.

The motor car is going to put the unreliable dirt road out of business. It is going to make the rock road a necessity. The sooner this fact is realized, the better it will be for the community that benefits from it.

Making No Mistake.

Chicago Herald: He was an urchin of the streets, but did not lack wits.

One day he saw a well-dressed woman with a benevolent face coming along. At once he dropped in a miserable heap on the curbstone and began to sob pathetically.

The kind lady paused beside him.

"What are you crying for, my boy?" she asked gently.

Stifling his sobs with ease, the youngster looked up and replied:

"Dunno. What have you got?"

Just Like a Parrot.

Chicago Herald: Mr. Brown bought a parrot. He was told it was a good talker, and would soon learn to repeat anything spoken in its presence. A fortnight later, however, he brought it back to the shop.

"What's the matter with it?" asked the dealer.

"W-w-why," said Mr. Brown, "the s-s-s-silly c-c-creature s-s-st-st-stutters!"

It Is Mr. Bryan's Move

By Savoyard.

Washington, July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Speculation is still rife as to what William Jennings Bryan intends to do—what capers and shines he purposes to cut on the broad and expansive field of American—and foreign—politics. Col. George Harvey opines that "the Peerless" and "the Matchless" designs to torpedo without warning the craft Woodrow Wilson on the high seas in a rather piratical stunt. Senator John W. Kern thinks that Mr. Bryan "is loyal" and will work like a Trojan and fight like a Hector for the Democratic administration.

Possibly both the colonel and the senator are right. Mr. Bryan would fling his torpedo if he dared; he will fight for the Democratic ticket because he must. On the 10th of June last William J. Bryan was the most astonished statesman America ever saw. He had expected that his old innumerable following would flock to him as "the pit rose" to the actor Kean. They did not "flock," and in my little opinion Mr. Bryan will do the "flocking" and be in the thick of the fight for Wilson and Democracy in 1916—unless he has lost his head completely and is bent on political suicide entirely.

It is conjectured by Col. Harvey that it is Bryan's purpose to bring an issue with Wilson on the canting nonsense of "peace at any price"; that he will divide with him on the question of nation-wide prohibition; that he will challenge the Democratic president for his stand that woman suffrage is a matter for the states and not for the nation; that the second term trash be a paramount. And failing all these Mr. Bryan will branch out for government ownership and another raid on the money power.

I wish to take a glance at that second term balderdash. Mr. Bryan's crusade against a second term is a reflection on George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, and Andrew Jackson—all of whom accepted a second term of the presidency. Opposition to it was never anything in the world but an appeal to the stupid, and therefore rank demagogy. It is possible that all parties have declared for this stuff at one time or other, and always on the ground that the party that does not contain a lot of fools among its membership will be short of a majority on election day. Now, a majority is a vital factor in a government like ours. No party ever declared against a second term except to catch votes. You see it sounds well in the ears of the simple.

Counting R. B. Hayes as one, twenty-three individuals have been chosen to the presidency in national elections, and of these nine have been twice preferred to that great dignity. We may add Roosevelt to the list, for he himself regarded his election in 1904 as his "second term." Nor is that all. Martin Van Buren, Grover Cleveland, and William H. Taft, while serving as president, were renominated by their respective parties and defeated at the polls. To these we may add both the Adamses, who were defeated for re-election, though in their day political parties were not what they subsequently became in our day.

Mr. Bryan talks with his accustomed garrulity of the "principle" of the thing. Well, let it go at that—"principle." History shows that the American people have indorsed the "principle" of a second term, rather than embraced the "principle" of a single term. But what is the use of talking? This opposition to a second term is all bosh!

Now, there is no "principle" to it. There is a sentiment against a third term and only a sentiment, and that sentiment would have been knocked into a cocked hat if Abraham Lincoln had lived, or had U. S. Grant been nominated at Chicago in 1880 as he very nearly was.

Nobody with any respectable discernment or common information doubts that had Abraham Lincoln lived his reconstruction policy would have been precisely like that followed by his successor Andy Johnson, a man, by the way, whose fame is just now beginning to ascend, and when impartial history is told Andrew Johnson's name will be writ large way up among our great presidents. His "pocket veto" of the bill to reconstruct Louisiana passed by the radical element in congress of his own party showed where Lincoln stood, and the very night he was slain he had announced that Christ-like sentiment, "With charity for all, with malice toward none." Subsequently Stevens and Sumner, with malice for all and charity toward none, purusued Andy Johnson, and because of some faults of temper on the part of that great man they nearly got him and they did get the South.

Well, had Lincoln lived, by 1868 he would have been in death grapple with the terrorists of his own party in congress, as Johnson was. The issue would have been his own official head or the political ostracism of Stevens and Sumner, Wade and Chandler, and Conkling, and their demoniac clans. As for Morton, Logan, Sherman, Cameron, Blaine, Garfield and their clans—they would have been on the side of the president.

Mr. Lincoln would have been renominated and re-elected to his third term. The South would have been set on her feet, and all the infamies and horrors of reconstruction at the South avoided.

But the pistol of a lunatic served to defeat all these beneficent calculations and hence "the Solid South."

Mr. Bryan, it is your move.

Irreparable Yesterdays

From "Neighbors," by Herbert Kaufman (Doran): The winds sang to you last night—they crooned around the windows and called through the chimeny and sobbed the oldest music of the spheres.

Out of the unknown they came to you, laden with such melodies as only great hearts and brave souls can understand—wistful and eerie largos of the what-has-been and the what-can-never-be.

There aren't words with which to phrase the burden of their lays—at sound of which old wounds dulled with the chill of Time ache to open and voices call from the Never-Never-Land, asking the why and the wherefore of things that shame you and make the best in you blush for the worst of you.

Oh, the irreparable Yesterdays—the steps that can never be retraced—the roses that can't be picked from the gutters of wantonness and cleansed of their soil!

And it isn't so much the things which you did—the reckless impulse or the meditated wrong—as what you have neglected.

There are lonely mounds in quiet acres, marked by rain-stained shafts, around which the grass grows wild and the weeds find root. The wind is trying to tell you—trying to say to you that there's still time—time to remember. Not with ostentation and parade of things that men can see. Real monuments can't be built of stone. Memorials of tinted glass are tablets to your vanity, by which a mob can learn the lavishness, not the depth of your emotion. If you would build windows to memory, set them up within a soul.

Nothing in Them.

Judge: "Williams," said the good wife, looking up from her paper, "here I see an article that says a man out in Kansas is suing his wife for divorce, simply because she went through his pockets after he was asleep. Goodness knows, William, probably the poor woman never got a cent from the brute of a husband in any other way!"

"Uh-huh," replied William.

"William," came from his better half, "don't you dare sit there and 'uh-huh' me in such a manner! What would you do if you woke up and found me going through your pockets?"

"Who—me?" asked the sleepy husband, who had already turned over his pay envelope to the boss of the house. "Why, I'd get up and help your search, of course, my dear!"

In the Twelfth Month

Editorial in The Springfield Republican.

Few believed when the war began that it could last a year. Yet the end of the first year is in sight, and there is little evidence to support the vague hope which has unmistakably been growing during the past month that Europe is groping its way toward peace.

In a military sense there has been little change. Germany continues to show itself by far the most powerful of all the nations in arms, and gives not the least sign of weakening the wonderful offensive which it has sustained ever since the beginning of the spring campaign. During the past month it has almost completed the task of helping its ally to eject the Russians from Galicia, and in the past few days it began what may prove an equally formidable onslaught upon the Russian center in Poland.

Meanwhile, it has not only held its own on the western front, but seems to have been winning back the initiative. The German attacks in the Argonne, threatening Verdun, and between Arras and Ypres, are not mere counter-attacks to relieve pressure; the Germans are doing their full share of offensive fighting without waiting for reinforcements from the eastern front. It is a wonderful exhibition of organization and of the aggressive energy which the German philosophy of war prizes so highly. It would be easy to find excuses for a defensive posture here or there, and history shows how great the temptation is and what an effort of the will is needed to keep on striking blow after blow. Never in history has this aggressive ideal been sustained on so colossal a scale or with so great an effort. Germany has won more military glory than all the other belligerents put together, and has earned it at a cost which can only be conjectured. It is an unprecedented manifestation of what Nietzsche calls the will to power.

Yet at no point has German prowess been able to win a decisive victory, and while the past month has been full of triumphs it has given no suggestion of ability on Germany's part to impose its will upon the allies. In fact, the events of the month have deepened the impression of a deadlock. The advent of Italy on May 23 led some commentators to assume rather hastily that the end was near, but after six weeks Italy is still bottled up among the Alps and its action has not even relieved the pressure on the Russians, whose continued reverses have destroyed the hopes of the allies for speedy help from that quarter. The Balkan states, meanwhile, which had been expected to follow Italy in the ranks of the Entente, are still holding off, and their aid is not to be counted upon.

The sole military factor, therefore, which can be looked to for the breaking of the tie in favor of the allies is whatever increase of strength Britain can give, either in men or in munitions. For the time being munitions are the more important; apparently more men are available than can now be used. There has been some discrepancy of testimony as to whether a shortage of ammunition existed, and the lie direct has been given to Mr. Asquith. Yet it is possible that both sides in the controversy are telling the truth and that to reconcile their statements would be easy but indiscreet.

The case is that the British are holding a very short part of the line, about a tenth of the whole, and, according to a recent statement in the house of lords, are doing it in an inefficient way, holding the trenches with riflemen while the French keep in their trenches a few men protected by excellent artillery service. This situation suggests that while it may be literally true that the British have ammunition enough, their striking power might be very greatly increased by multiplying guns and shells, thinning their lines in places, and striking hard blows by artillery fire.

Also, the existing conditions suggest an explanation of the retention of so large a part of the army in England; no more men are needed on the present line, and till a vast new equipment is ready it would be rash to assume larger responsibilities. That the time is near at hand when the British army can make itself felt somewhat more effectively is not unlikely, but a sudden and decisive push such as many looked for in the spring now seems somewhat improbable.

There is still gossip about a possible landing of troops in Holland to take the German lines in the rear, but Holland, though agitated by new rumors of a possible annexation of Belgium, is keeping a careful neutrality, and is displeased by British efforts to persuade the Dutch that they should join the allies. This propaganda may react as unfavorably as the German propaganda did in the earlier days of the war; what Holland wants is unmolested neutrality and an early peace.

How otherwise even a powerful British army could exert swiftly decisive pressure is not very clear, but it may be noted that the other day in a lecture in London Col. F. N. Maude predicted that when Joffre was ready for his great coup "he would ask us for a million men and they would be sent; the longer he delayed the great blow the more appalling would be the disaster to the Germans." But obviously if the blow is to be struck at all it must be before the war ends in general prostration. In all countries the burden grows heavier day by day, and the demand for peace, only whispered as yet, will grow louder; if the common people of Europe had their way it is likely that peace would be not far off.

Pride, ambition and fear are the three obstacles to a peace which all the nations concerned would welcome as soon as convinced that to fight to the bitter end means general ruin and an inconclusive result. If the responsibility lies mainly on Germany, it is partly because Germany is the most universally feared of military powers, and partly because with the long succession of German victories the spirit of conquest has been growing in that country. To give up either Belgium or the Russian Baltic provinces would be a bitter blow; to give up both might cause a revolution. Yet obviously the allies are not so hard pressed as to consider a peace which would leave Germany in possession of these alien territories.

It is hard to see how peace can be restored until Germany is ready to give a convincing demonstration that the war on the German side was really defensive. An offer to surrender Belgium and indemnify its people and to yield the Russian territory seized would go far at this stage of the war, while German arms are in the ascendant, to serve as a pledge of good faith and a peaceable disposition, and such an offer might bring surprisingly good terms. Whatever desire there may be to "crush" the German empire is due mainly to fear of its aggressive temper, and till that fear is relieved the allies dare not consider a peace. And this is the really formidable "deadlock" into which the war threatens to settle.

Earth Is Enough.

We men of Earth have here the stuff
Of Paradise—we have enough!
We need no other stones to build
The stairs into the Unfulfilled—
No other ivory for the doors—
No other marble for the floors—
No other cedar for the beam
And dome of man's immortal dream.

Here on the paths of every-day—
Here on the common human way
Is all the stuff the gods would take
To build a Heaven, to mold and make
New Edens. Ours the stuff sublime
To build Eternity in time!

Which Was It?

Chicago Herald: The young mother was frantic. Her 2-year-old daughter howled and howled and howled.

"Whatever is the matter with the child?" asked the father in despair.

His wife sank limply into a chair and began to weep, while the baby went on howling.

"I d-d-don't know!" sobbed the distracted mother. "It's either because she's eaten too many strawberries, or she wants more!"

Says We Need Field Artillery

A statement made by an officer of high rank in the United States army to a correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger.

What would the United States do for munitions of war if it became apparent that we needed them? That is a question which has often been asked during the last nine months.

Yankee inventive and constructive ingenuity long ago passed into a proverb. We are a nation of mechanicians. Our big cities are vast machine shops. Thus we would find no very great difficulty in producing munitions.

Already the war department has all plans made for utilizing the resources of dozens of huge private plants, including locomotive works, steam engine shops and motor car factories, for the manufacture of shrapnel and various other military necessaries. In a certain sense, we have already made important preparations, our capacity of output where munitions of many kinds are concerned having been enormously increased during the last few months, owing to the demand from abroad. Thus, for example, our capacity for turning out rifle cartridges has been multiplied by six since August of last year.

The war department now has on hand 600,000 rifles of the latest and most improved models. It also possesses 350,000 Krags. They are still first-rate guns—so good, in fact, that the allies in the present war have tried their best to buy them from the United States.

If, however, more should be wanted, they could soon be had. The two government small arms factories at Springfield and Rock Island, Ill., can each turn out 1,500 rifles a day, working twenty-four hours, with night and day shifts. There are also private concerns at New Haven, Conn., and Ilion, N. Y., each of them with a capacity of 1,000 rifles a day. This represents a total output, for government and private plants, of more than 1,000,000 rifles a year, without reckoning that of still another concern, allied with the Westinghouse company, which is rapidly putting together a big plant for the making of rifles.

In the matter of artillery we are much less favorably situated. One of the revelations of the present war in Europe has been the overwhelming importance of modern high-power cannon. Such guns, and especially howitzers, are employed in numbers hitherto undreamed of, and with an effectiveness unimagined heretofore. This was one of the new facts of warfare worked out by the Germans long before the first fight began, and to their preponderance in artillery they owed much of the success gained by them at the outset.

In view of these circumstances, it is manifest that our field artillery must be not only augmented, but multiplied many fold, if it is to meet the requirements of up-to-date warfare. Our prospect of successfully "standing off" an invading force would depend mainly upon the number of guns at our disposal. The infantry rifle is well enough for peppering the enemy, but shrapnel is what does the business by wholesale, in the way of destroying men. Were an army to be landed upon our shores, it must be driven into the sea before it has a chance to obtain a foothold.

It takes from four to six months to make a field gun or a howiter. The former is a weapon of three-inch caliber; the latter, in our own regular service, is of three different calibers—3.8 inches, 4.7 inches and 6 inches, the last of these throwing a shell that weighs 120 pounds.

It takes three months to make a machine gun. Two of these are the present allowance for a regiment of troops. It has been proposed to increase this number to four. But the experience of recent warfare in Europe has shown that such a provision is wholly inadequate. Fifty machine guns to a regiment would be none too many. The newest weapon of this type, by the way, bears no resemblance to the Gatling or Maxim gun, being relatively light and portable. It weighs less than thirty pounds and fires ordinary rifle cartridges, which are contained in brass clips of thirty each.

This weapon is an automatic machine rifle, known as the Benet-Mercier. Under practice conditions it can discharge 300 shots a minute, but in actual fighting it fires about 150 shots in sixty seconds. It is a gun of French invention, but under an arrangement made with the foreign owners of the patent it is manufactured at the Springfield armory and also at a private plant in Hartford.

The war department now has in readiness forty-five batteries of heavy field artillery and 150 batteries of light three-inch field guns. With four guns to a battery, it is easy to figure out the total number available for use. We ought to have, say the experts, at least ten times as many. To build such guns, as already stated, takes time—nearly half a year from the making of the forgings—and congress may see fit to provide for the work without delay. There is even lack of an adequate supply of artillery ammunition, which is manufactured at the Frankford arsenal in Philadelphia.

The war department now has 180,000,000 rifle cartridges on hand. It takes time to make such a cartridge. But, fortunately, plants in this country are now turning them out at the rate of 30,000,000 a week. At the beginning of the present war the capacity of such plants, including the Frankford arsenal, which makes the cartridges for the government, was only 10,000,000 a week, and this maximum output was reduced in effect to 5,000,000 owing to the fact that there was smokeless powder obtainable only for that many. The great private cartridge-making concerns are at New Haven, Bridgeport, Lowell and Cincinnati.

Just a Moment

Daily Strength and Cheer.

Compiled by John G. Gnintus, the Sunshine Man.

That he might present it to himself a glorious church, not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing; but that it should be holy and without blemish.—(Ephesians v., 27).

In the body of his flesh through death, to present you holy and unblamable and unreprovable in his sight.—(Celossians i., 22).

Whatever the particular call is, the particular sacrifice God asks you to make, the particular cross He wishes you to embrace, whatever the particular path He wants you to tread, will you rise up, and say in your heart, "Yes, Lord, I accept it; I submit, I yield, I pledge myself to walk in that path, and to follow that Voice, and to trust Thee with the consequences"? Oh! but you say, "I don't know what He will want next." No, we none of us know that, but we know we shall be safe in His hands.—Catherine Booth.

Much of our strength in prayer and effort is exhausted in striving to induce God to agree with us and come to our assistance. Some one asked Abraham Lincoln to appoint a day of fasting and prayer, that God might be on their side. "Don't bother about that," said the man of common sense. "God is now on the right side; you simply get with him." The only way to command God is to obey him, just as the only way to command electricity and steam is to obey the laws that govern them.—A. C. Dixon.

Working Up to a Climax.

Joliet Herald-News: The charm of a perfect June evening, with the odor of roses in the air and a cloudless summer sky, added the final note of exquisite harmony to the appointments of a sweetly simple wedding last night at Grace M. E. church which united in the holy bonds of marriage Miss Edna Nichols and Howard Bateman. One of the interesting features of the groom's part in the wedding was the fact that the suspenders which he wore had been carefully embroidered seventy years before, by his grandmother, for his grandfather's wedding day.

Keeping Up With Minnesota Editors

Scattered Comments Taken From Minnesota Papers.

A Most Uncommon Calm.

Waconia Patriot: Using the Good Book as their authority, many people predict that this war is ushering in the end of the world. But even that dire possibility fails to ruffle the dignified calm of our editorial person. Since we were not here at the beginning, it will at least be some consolation to have the unique experience of sliding out at the end.

Try These on Your Family.

Fairmont Sentinel: The sweetest names that ever rolled from the lips of human beings come from the savages who once held sway in this land. Here are a few that are familiar in Minnesota, the first being from the Ojibwa tribe: Manitou, Sanagaga, Kawishiwi, Bemidji, Winnebigoshish, Eshquagunia, Pokegama, Sisagama, Nokassippi, Biwabik, Kanabec, Wadena, Koochiching, Mahnomen. And these from the Sioux, who but a few score years ago pursued the panting deer over the prairies of Martin county: Anoka, Chaska, Cokato, Chokio, Dakota, Eyota, Hokah, Isanti, Kandiyohi, Kaposia, Kasota, Mahtomedi, Mahtowa, Mankato, Mendota, Minnehaha, Minneiska, Minneola, Minneopa, Minnetonka, Minnewashta, Okabena, Owatonna, Sisseton, Shakopee, Tintah, Wabasha, Wacouta, Waseca, Wasioja, Wayzata, Watonwan and Winona.

Score Another for Good Roads.

Little Falls Transcript: Most of the smaller cities of the state that have tried the plan have found that the existence of good roads leading into their borders from the outlying country have been an incentive to draw trade in their direction. Good roads leading into an industrial center prove an able competitor against the catalogue houses. And this is an argument for good road building that can be applied to every community.

"May" Is Putting It Mildly.

Faribault Pilot: Governor Hammond appears to be about the right size of man to sit comfortably in the governor's chair in Minnesota, and the conservative voters of the state may decide to compel him to occupy the chair another term.

Er— Thank You! Thank You!

Sauk Center Herald: Northern Minnesota is a kingdom in extent, an empire in resources and a universe for nerve.

The "Sure Thing" State.

Heron Lake News: Don't worry. Minnesota will be there with the goods this fall. She never disappoints her people when it comes to rolling up big crops in harvest time.

Hard to Beat, Anyway.

Pine City Pine Poker: Out in South Dakota, in Day county, it is alleged that the meanest and most contemptible man has been discovered. He didn't bribe his children not to eat at night and then take the bribe for the breakfast furnished his offspring, nor did he use a wart on the back of his neck for a collar button, but he charged the county $6 for taking his blind father to the poor farm. He's the fellow—the most contemptible man in the country.

All Pull Together.

Winnebago Enterprise: The jealousy between various sections of Minnesota goes the limit in futileness. There is no real need of any dissension between the northern, central and southern parts of the state. We should all pull together for the common good and present a united front for the upbuilding of the whole state. The sooner we abandon childish tendencies the better off we will be.

Little Rock, Ark., Gazette: A motion of the plaintiff in the case of Mary Jordan vs. the American Charitable Society of Western Thinkers, negro, to dismiss the appeal of the defendants from municipal court, was upheld in the Third division Pulaski circuit court yesterday and a judgment for the plaintiff for $109.36 allowed to stand. Owing to a desire to save space in preparing the court records the entire name of the defendant society was not given. It is: "The American Charitable Society of Western Thinkers of the United States, Department of the Brother and Sisterhood of the Sons of David, Daughters of Athens, the Good Samaritan and the Floating Palace of the South."

The Same.

New York Evening Post: Let's see, is the Mr. Bryan who demands $500 for a lecture on peace the same Mr. Bryan who wants a law compelling editors to make affidavit that they have no financial interest in any cause they may advocate?

WELL, OSLO IS A MIGHTY PRETTY LITTLE TOWN

To the Editor of The Herald:

Enclosed find money order for The Herald. To us it is like a letter from home. We have taken it for the last eight years. We think it is the best daily paper printed.

Yours respectfully,
MRS. T. M. KAVANAUGH.

MISSIONARIES AND THEIR PROTECTION

To the Editor of The Herald:

I would like to answer "American's" letter in the News Tribune of today (13th), but for some reason a writer whose ideas are of a different complexion to that so-called free press is denied space, so to take up any political question I am compelled to fall back on the courtesy of your Open Court to answer "American," who says "yet more than any other class of men have they (the preachers) demanded protection abroad."

Well, I do not carry a brief for the church, as I never go into one, still I must say that the church today has not got two United States gunboats in Tampico harbor or uniformed men in Nicaragua, and without permission from those foreign countries, where United States money is invested in oil in the first place, and a New York bank's cash is invested in the other, both contrary to the comity of nations; but it appears where dollars are concerned comity of nations is of very little account, for commercial supremacy rules Uncle Sam equally with other so-called Christian nations, and again its policy is not putting the "kibosh" on the missionary business, for that "business" stands on a higher plane than any group of system-like nationalism, but stands on the broad true Christian and Socialist idea that takes in all nations as one brotherhood of the world, one from the spiritual and materialist, but the other only from the materialist point of view, but both will end in this materialist world with some gain for the people, but not the way the "American" intimates, for they both live above creeds and dogma, and work for all humanity and its uplift.

ELKS' PICNIC AT TWO HARBORS

Duluth Lodge Will Take Annual Outing on Aug. 19.

Duluth Elks will hold their annual picnic at Two Harbors Aug. 19, instead of Aug. 12, as formerly planned, according to arrangements announced last evening at the regular meeting of Duluth lodge, No. 133, B. P. O. E. The trip will be made by boat.

Local Elks are planning on attending the Monday evening performance of "Madam Sherry" at the Lyceum in a body. This is in honor of Miss Edna Munsey, who will appear in the title role. Miss Munsey is the daughter of George S. Munsey, past exalted ruler of the local lodge.

OLD ENGINEER EXPIRES WHILE RUNNING TRAIN

Winona, Minn., July 15.—The Dakota and Black Hills express, eastbound, on the Northwestern road, arrived Tuesday night, two and a half hours late. William Scott, 65, third oldest engineer on the division, was not in his seat, although he began the run at Waseca late that afternoon. Scott dropped dead in the cab while the train was traveling forty miles an hour, two miles east of Owatonna.

Fireman Tony Lippert was attracted when the engine bounded over a road crossing without the usual blast of the whistle. He found Scott's body rigid in death. The fireman assumed charge of the unguided train and took it into Havana, where another engineer was procured.

Scott had been an engineer on the road for thirty years and lived with his family at Waseca.

STATE-WIDE BENEFIT FUND

Local Delegates to Mail Clerks' Convention Favor Proposed Measure.

C. C. Mathison May Become Candidate to Head State Organization.

A state-wide sick and accident fund for postoffice clerks will undoubtedly go into effect immediately after the convention to be held at Albert Lea tomorrow and Saturday. Local delegates who left for the meeting this afternoon stated that the finishing touches to the plan would be made at the convention, carrying out the idea put forward last year. This is considered the most important matter coming up before the convention.

The delegates from Duluth are Bert A. Erickson, clerk in the city distribution department at the postoffice and president of the Duluth local of postal clerks, and Nelson Keeler of the mailing department. C. C. Mathison, who is state treasurer, also will be at the convention. It is expected that Mr. Mathison will be put forward as a candidate for the state presidency. Up to this time Minneapolis and St. Paul have kept the chief office confined to their representatives most of the time, while Duluth has been overlooked.

Another matter which has been hanging fire for a long time is a proposal to have a civil service retirement fund. Action will be taken to have the national convention of mail clerks pass resolutions to send to the next congress asking that a bill be introduced authorizing such a fund. Local delegates are strongly in favor of such action, and will do their share of work in behalf of the proposition.

Duluth now has a sick and accident benefit fund and the delegates say that the proposal to make the benefit statewide has been under discussion for a year. The movement seems to be strong, they say, in all parts of the state.

DRIVER DIES FROM FALL

Martin Hagen Drops From Wagon and Wheels Pass Over Chest.

When Martin Hagen, 904 East Third street, fell from his wagon at Twenty-seventh avenue east and Sixth street yesterday, the wheels passed over his chest, inflicting injuries which resulted in his death at St. Luke's hospital an hour or so later.

Hagen was found unconscious on the roadway by Frank Norrish, 28 Fifty-sixth avenue west and about 100 feet further along the road stood a delivery wagon of the J. J. Le Borious floral shop, with the reins hanging down over the horses' backs.

Just how the accident happened probably will never be known, as Hagen died without regaining consciousness, and there were no witnesses to the affair, according to police. The drivers' clothes were mud-covered and it is thought that he was dragged along the street after being thrown.

J. J. Le Borious said Hagen had been in his employ for about three months, and that he was sober and industrious. Little is known of the man in Duluth, except that he is single and has a brother living at Portal, N. D. He was about 35 years old.

Authorities notified the brother last night of the accident, and the body is being held at Crawford & Sons undertaking rooms pending word from him.

COURT VACATION SEASON ARRANGED

Only One Judge on Duty in District Court Beginning Monday.

In accordance with a custom established about two years ago, district court judges of St. Louis county will take turns presiding over the court during the summer months. Between July 19 and Aug. 28 only one judge will be available at a time, according to a notice filed yesterday afternoon with the clerk of the court. A change will be made each week.

Three of the four judges will be thus at liberty to work on cases pending decision and take their vacations. Attorneys having business with the court when in chambers are directed to consult the presiding judge.

The state meeting of district court judges, scheduled to be held at St. Paul on July 7, has been postponed until Aug. 5. It will be held at St. Cloud in connection with the sessions of the Minnesota State Bar association. The purpose of the meeting is to discuss changes in court practice.

EXPECTING DEFEAT OF REGIMENT IDEA

Sons of St. George of Michigan Will Probably Sidetrack Idea.

Houghton, Mich., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Michigan Sons of St. George opened their grand lodge convention here last night with a formal reception. The real business of the convention began today. The matter of raising an American regiment for British service will be presented to the convention today or Friday, but is practically certain of being turned down, as it has been in Wisconsin.

New Bismarck Building.

Bismarck, N. D., July 15.—Two new business blocks will be erected in Bismarck in the near future. A. W. Lucas and Dr. R. H. Treacy will build on the northwest corner of Third and Broadway, opposite the postoffice. Details of this building have not been made public, but it will be a substantial building and will add to that fast growing business district of the city. John Whalen plans to build just west of the Bismarck bank building.

Hygienic Aspects of the Dairy Lunch

PRIMITIVE man devoted his whole time to the business of protecting himself against starvation, cold and enemies. Only when he met with good luck in the quest for food did he manage successfully the other two functions. As soon as he learned the secret of storing and preserving food to tide him over temporary famines he began to find a little spare time for intellectual pursuits, such as making love and adorning his person, and that meant evolution.

In the modern struggle for existence speed in eating is a factor of considerable importance. In the pay-as-you-eat emporium speed is consummate. The speed is not in the eating. Patrons of the dairy lunch masticate their doughnuts and pie about as thoroughly as Americans do anywhere. But time is saved in the serving. That is what makes the quick lunch popular.

Watching from day to day the variegated stream of patrons you discover that the business is a real factor in evolution. Clerks, stenographers, little merchants, big merchants, messenger boys, shoppers, professinal men, travelers—you see them all rubbing elbows in the hurry-up restaurant.

Cleanliness Before Your Eyes.

Everything is prepared and served before your eyes. You don't have to take chances on a typhoid waiter. There are no thumb prints in the soup. Every patron is his own waiter, and he can be reasonably sure his waiter's hands are clean.

Your cup of coffee, your hot roll, chicken pie, rice, baked apple or pint jar of certified milk is served as clean and as quickly as can be. If there are flies in evidence it only goes to show that the health department of your city is somnolent. But there are usually no flies, because it kills business. The kitchen is right there in sight all the time.

The dairy lunch is an economic success, for it feeds thousands at a minimum expense and with a minimum waste. Its bill of fare furnishes all the variety and nourishment a normal appetite can crave. It is an object lesson in hygiene and efficiency. Its patrons get what is good for them and acquire by experience the art of selecting a meal that meets the special demands of their occupation. No one tells them what to eat. They eat what they want when they want it.

The airy, clean, orderly dairy lunch is a civilizing force in any community. It help to balance the claim of Dame Nature holds against the lobster palace.

L. C. states: Am much troubled with catarrh of throat which keeps me hawking and expectorating. Bad smelling pus comes from my gums and tonsils, and I have much pain in the bones. Lots of gas belching from stomach. Please advise.

Answer—You ought to have your doctor or dentist kill off the entamoebas which cause the trouble in the gums. This requires hypodermic treatment as well as the use of a tooth paste containing the amoebacide. That alone may be the thing you need.

BLACK RUST---WHAT IT IS AND THE CONDITIONS THAT CAUSE IT

With black rust a topic of absorbing interest in grain trade and business circles these days, information regarding the origin and development of the pest is quite apropos at this stage.

The following facts in reference to it have been prepared by J. E. Carney of the Keusch & Schwartz company, which has offices on the Duluth board of trade:

"Black (or stem) rust is confined more or less closely to the stems and sheath, and the area most susceptible to its development is the hard spring wheat belt of Minnesota, North Dakota, and South Dakota.

"At irregular intervals of several years wheat rust epidemics, more or less general, occur throughout the country. That these depend to a great extent on climatological conditions is quite generally believed. Periods of excessive rainfall, followed by warm, muggy days are supposed to be favorable to their development, though why this should be is not generally understood.

"At least three conditions must be fulfilled before an epidemic can occur: (1) A sufficient number of rust spores must be present on the growing grain to give the fungus a start. (2) The drivers' clothes were mud-covered and humidity and temperature conditions must be favorable for the germination of these spores, and consequence infection. (3) The grain must be in a receptive mood.

"Rusts, like dust particles, may be carried by air currents from regions where they are plentiful to regions where grain is in a receptive mood. Where soils are rich in nitrogen, other conditions being equal, rust attacks are as a rule, most prevalent.

Critical Period.

"The most critical period for attacks of black rust is during the heading time, a period of about ten days for any one locality. If for any reason this period is delayed or lengthened, the number of spores falling on each plant is considerably increased, infections have a longer time in which to develop, and the danger of an epidemic is intensified.

"Whether or not these spores cause infection after falling in the grain, depends upon various conditions. Sudden showers at this time undoubtedly work off many of the spores before germination occurs, while fairly humid conditions and moderate temperatures are not only favorable, but almost absolutely necessary for infection.

"Contrary to the general belief, moderately cool and even subnormal temperatures are more favorable for spore germination and infection of the grain than higher temperatures.

"In the epidemic of 1904 the average temperature during the critical period was 3½ deg. below normal in South Dakota, North Dakota and Minnesota, and it is believed that this unusually low temperature was an important, if not the determing factor for the rust epidemic of that year. Precipitation was above normal in only one state, North Dakota, being below normal in all others. The humidity in this period average 31-3 per cent above normal as compared with 6 per cent above in 1905. As a market factor it became prominent on Aug. 1. While the government report of that year showed a decline in conditions during the months of July and August, the final report showed a yield of 11.65 bushels per acre as against a ten-year average of 12.4 bushels and estimated the total loss from black rust at 23,000,000 bushels."

ORGANIZING RIFLE CLUB

Spanish War Veterans Take Initiative in National Defense.

Will Have Use of New Armory for Target Practice.

Duluth will have a branch of the National Rifle association, if plans of the United Spanish War Veterans of the city do not fail. At a meeting of Camp John G. McEwan, No. 6, U. S. W. V. held last evening at Memorial hall, courthouse, the preliminary steps were taken.

G. J. Sherman, Frank E. Bradley, Thomas Brown and J. Scott Cash were appointed a committee to push the project and draft a list of charter members. Spanish War Veterans, Sons of Veterans, and members of other patriotic orders will be eligible to membership in the association.

Col. F. E. Resche of the Minnesota National Guard has assured the promoters that the members of the newly organized club may have the use of the new Armory, Thirteenth avenue east and London road, for winter target practice and the use of the militia range during the summer months.

Mr. Sherman, who is past department commander of the Minnesota United Spanish War Veterans, declared that the United States government will furnish rifles and ammunition for the association. He also said that the United Spanish War Veterans are strongly committed to the proposition of a more adequate national defense.

"The Duluth camp of veterans," he said, "is sending out literature to other camps and patriotic bodies on national defense. Already Spanish War Veterans are assuming the duty of inculcating patriotism heretofore done by Civil war veterans, whose numbers are being so rapidly thinned."

A Spanish War Veterans' picnic will be held under the auspices of the local camp some time next month, according to preliminary arrangements made last evening.

SHARK RECALLS EARLY HARDSHIPS

Duluthian Reads War News Telling of His Boyhood Home.

Although to most Americans the majority of the long words dealing with the war in Russia mean little or nothing, to some they have a deep significance. To Henry A. Shark the words are as interesting as they are long.

Mr. Shark, when a boy of 11, helped float logs down the Niemen river, near the little town of Kovno, which, though small then, today contains 85,000 Russians. For this labor he received the welcome recompense of 30 kopecks a day—equal in American money to 15 cents. While not working Mr. Shark, with the other boys, swam in the river At the age of 13 he left Russia, and, working his way across Germany, landed in America at the age of 17. He has been in Duluth for six years.

This Week's Sunday School Lesson

Written for The Herald By Rev. J. S. Kirtley, D. D.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: JULY 18.

I. Kings, iii, 4-15: Solomon Chooses Wisdom.

CONNECTION.

David lived perhaps six months after his abdication in favor of Solomon, about B. C. 1015. The old king wrote a beautiful hymn, his swan song, (II. Samuel xxiii, 1-7), gave Solomon some good advice and died, leaving the youth a great task and a great opportunity. When Solomon got the reins of government in both his hands, he was ruler of a nation of 6,000,000 people in a territory of 12,000 square miles. He had a great task to organize their worship, solidify their political interests, fortify the frontiers and lead the nation in a trying crisis. He enjoyed his father's confidence and had explicit instructions from him about building the house of worship, properly treating his enemies and walking blameless before the Lord in every thing. He had the admiration of the people. The first he did was to take care of his enemies and he did that with both restraint and wisdom, considering the times—putting his brother, Adonijah, on his good behavior and finally putting him to death, for reasons; degrading Abiathar from the priesthood and sending him out into the country; putting Joab to death and commanding Shimei never to leave his house. His first real blunder was in marrying the daughter of the Pharaoh of Egypt. That was not in violation of any explicit command of God but it had bad consequences. And yet he loved God and had a great desire for His guidance. So he goes up to Gibeon to offer sacrifices and pray for help. That is our lesson today.

THE LESSON.

I.

Solomon's Wise Prayer 4-9.

"And the king went to Gibeon to sacrifice there; for that was the great high place; a thousand burnt-offerings did Solomon offer upon that altar. In Gibeon Jehovah appeared to Solomon in a dream by night; and God said, Ask what I shall give thee. And Solomon said, Thou hast showed unto Thy servant, David, my father, great lovingkindness, according as he walked before Thee in truth, and in righteousness, and in uprightcousness of heart with Thee; and Thou has kept for him this great lovingkindness, that Thou hast given him a son to sit on his throne, as it is this day. And now, O Jehovah my God, Thou hast made Thy servant king instead of David my father: and I am but a little child; I know not how to go out or come in. And Thy servant is in the midst of Thy people which Thou hast chosen, a great people, that cannot be numbered or counted for multitude. Give Thy servant therefore an understanding heart to judge Thy people, that I may discern between good and evil; for who is able to judge this Thy great people?"

1. WORSHIP.—Solomon went up to Gibeon, six miles north of Jerusalem, one of the two worshiping places. There the tabernacle was set up by Saul after he destroyed Nob. The ark was in a special tent in Jerusalem. Gibeon was a very high place overlooking the whole country. The people were forbidden to worship in other high places because it led to idolatry. Solomon was within his privileges. He felt great need of God's help. We learn from II Chronicles that he had a great throng of people offered a thousand burnt-offerings on the brazen altar that Bezalel had built.

2. PRIVILEGE.—He was offered the privilege of asking whatever he wished. That was offered him in a dream. Quite naturally he would dream of what was so continually in his mind during his waking hours, his great responsibility as a young, inexperienced ruler. He was anxious to be wise and just and every breath was a prayer for God's guidance. God responds to his waking as well as sleeping thought in a dream, as He can so easily do and has so often done, as in the cases of Abraham, Joseph, Daniel, Paul and others. God knew His man in telling him to ask what he wanted. He was safe.

3. REQUEST.—It was full of confidence, based on what God had done for his father, David, and for him in putting him on the throne, on the promises God had already made and on the character of God as Solomon had learned it. He had a great sense of need in view of his age and inexperience and the greatness of his task as ruler of such a numerous and powerful people. The prayer was very humble, for he seemed to exaggerate his defects, as a mere "child" and as very ignorant. It was a wise request, for he asked only for wisdom to do his work, not for honors or riches, nor fame, nor revenge on his enemies, nor long life. Confidence, humility, kindness and wisdom were in the prayer. His task was political, religious, domestic and commercial. He felt an acute call for his best.

II.

God's Gracious Response, 10-14.

"And the speech pleased the Lord, that Solomon had asked this thing. And God said unto him, Because thou hast asked this thing, and hast not asked for thyself long life, neither hast asked riches for thyself, nor hast asked the life of thine enemies, but hast asked for thyself understanding to discern justice; behold, I have done according to thy word; lo, I have given thee a wise and an understanding heart; so that there hath been none like thee before thee, neither after thee shall any arise like unto thee. And I have also given thee that which thou hast not asked, both riches and honor, so that there shall not be any among the kings like unto thee, all thy days. And if thou wilt walk in My ways, to keep My statutes and My commandments, as thy father David did walk, then I will lengthen thy days."

1. GRATIFICATION.—God was gratified because Solomon put his nation above himself, and wanted to do wisely and justly. It was a very unusual thing in any ruler. Solomon also showed an unselfish spirit toward friends and enemies. It pleased God that he put the right things first, not wealth nor any of the things that rulers usually want, but "an understanding heart." It pleased God that he was trustful, clear, humble, unselfish.

2. GIFT.—The gift God gave him was that of wisdom, so that he had no equal in the past, nor would have in the future. The gift was embryonic in the young man and God emphasized it by an awakening and a discipline. The other blessings he didn't ask for were thrown in, as a bonus we might say. Solomon came to have an insight into nature and man such as no one had had; an unequaled versatility, depth, subtleness and practical sagacity. Wealth came from trade with Phenicia; he built towns along the commercial roads from the Euphrates to the Nile, so that the trade of Asia and Africa passed through his dominion. Nations paid annual tribute and kings sent rich presents to him. He didn't reach a great age, because he failed to meet the conditions. Personal blessings came because he set his mind on the higher national blessings. There were two defects in his prayer after all. His motive was not midst of Thy people which Thou hast the highest, as it was for a splendid secular nation, and there was a lack of the sense of personal need of holiness. Still it was a good prayer and brought him blessings.

III.

Solomon's Grateful Offering. 15.

"And Solomon awoke; and, behold, it was a dream; and he came to Jerusalem, and stood before the ark of the covenant of Jehovah, and offered up burnt-offerings, and offered peace-offerings, and made a feast to all his servants."

1. SACRIFICE:—The dream was the medium for a real interview with God. In the dream he had naturally shown what he was and what he most desired, and through it God had shown what He purposed and expected. It was fitting that he should at once offer sacrifices at Jerusalem, the home of his father, thereby consecrating himself to his task.

2. GENEROSITY.—That was really the way he felt toward the people as he gave them gifts and feasts.

WHAT THE MASTERS SAY.

No man is fit for any office who thinks more of its elevation and emoluments than of its duties and responsibilities.—Candler.

George Muller got £50,000 for others, because he asked nothing for himself. Dwight L. Moody received funds for three schools, because he never asked a cent for Moody.—Cowan.

Dreams become significant when they are the concentrated essence of the main stream of the waking thought and picturesquely exhibit the tendency of the character. This is precisely the use of dreams; our tendencies unbridled by reason and fact, run on to results; and we see the character unimpeded by social checks, and as it would be, were it unmodified by the restraints and efforts and external considerations of our conscious hours.—Dods.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

1. When new and severe duties are assumed what is the strictly first thing?
2. Does God do such a thing as give blank checks to people to fill out?
3. Why does the struggle to know duty sharpen the sense of duty?
4. How may a fool become wise and a wise man become a fool?
5. When prayers are answered what should be the first action?

Beware of the Big Dividend

Most of our savings depositors, particularly our young men, look forward to the time when they shall have saved enough to enter the world of business. Such ambitions are eminently right and proper. But proceed cautiously. The lure of the big dividend—big profits—has enticed many a man and woman into the loss of every dollar. Put it down as an almost invariable rule that with big dividends go big risks—great danger. Be absolutely sure of yourself and of your investment before you make a move.

ALMOST FREE OF TYPHOID

But Three Cases on Record; Families Not Using City Water.

Hypochlorite Treatment of Water Proves Great Success.

Typhoid fever no longer has any terrors for Duluthians.

At least that is the case if health department records, showing the city to be practically free of the disease, cover the situation.

There are three cases of typhoid on the tabulation kept by Ruben Johnson, secretary of the health department, and all three are in families where city water is not used, and where the well water used was not boiled.

To Dr. E. W. Fahey, present director of public health, is due the credit for the system which has given Duluth pure water, and which has been largely responsible for the great reduction in the number of typhoid cases.

"Our hypochlorite treatment of water has proved an unqualified success since installed at the reservoir three years ago under Dr. Faheys' direction," said D. A Reed, manager of the water and light department, yesterday.

"During the sixteen hours of every twenty-four in which we pump water, a carefully prepared solution is run into the reservoir. We have found that to be sufficient to kill any bacterial life."

Pumps at the reservoir station are used throughout the day, excepting between the hours of 4:30 a. m. and 8 a. m. and 4:30 p. m. and 8 p. m. A vat containing the hypochlorite, or lime solution, is placed near the intake valves and a pencil-sized stream of the mixture is run in while water is being pumped.

WEST END

FUNERAL FOR ACCIDENT VICTIM

William Williamson, Dock Worker, Dies Without Regaining Consciousness.

The funeral service for William Williamson, age 22, "tapper" at the D. M. & N. ore dock, who died at St. Mary's hospital yesterday afternoon from a fractured skull, caused by a wrench slipping while he was dumping one of the cars, will be held Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the West end undertaking rooms, 2118 West First street. Rev. Carl Oberg will have charge of the service.

Mr. Williamson was injured Tuesday afternoon and failed to regain consciousness. He boarded with an aunt, Mrs. John Anderson, 229 South Twenty-eighth avenue west. His parents reside in Finland. The young man was a member of the Swedish-Finnish Temperance society.

JITNEYS ENTER BROADER FIELD

Invade Taxi Business of Party and Boulevard Driving.

Jitney parties, a new form of diversion, are said to be very popular with many people and agreeably remunerative to drivers of the little busses; but they have succeeded in arousing the ire of the taxi drivers. Many such parties originating in the West end recently are said to have come to the attention of the taxicab men who, in turn, now propose to wage war "to the death" on the jitneur.

For a price of $2 an hour, and some times considerably less, the jitney drivers are said to take parties ranging from two to four people on jaunts to nearby lakes. This price is about half of that charged by the taxis and a great deal of the revenue usually going into the pockets of the taxi drivers is, therefore, being diverted to the jitney men.

The "jitney" sign is said to be discarded while the machine is away on these jaunts. This prevents the machine being marked in any special manner. In addition to the trips to the lakes and streams, the jitneys are said also to be picking up sightseers and taking them around the boulevard at the nominal charge of "two bits" per person.

"If this does not stop we will enter their field and do our best to put them out of business," said a driver of a big car yesterday. "Our receipts have been cut so that taxi driving is now at a minimum, when it should be at its best. Our business has got to be left alone if they intend to keep our friendship."

"WATCHING" THE CITY GRAVEL PIT

Are political debts being paid in the West end?

It was alleged that a watchman was being kept for the first time in several years at a gravel pit belonging to the city near the Hermantown road. The city has not taken gravel from this pit in two years. Neither has anyone else, it was said, because of the inability to get near the place with a team.

Shortly after the new administration took charge the watchman was appointed. The watchman was claimed to have spent his first three weeks of employment by the city in watching the pit owned by D. H. Clough, a local contractor. At the end of that time he was told where the city pit was located, it was said yesterday.

Since that time he has spent his time watching the pit. The job was claimed by those at the meeting to have been handed out in order to pay a "political debt."

Burial at Hermantown.

Funeral service for Mrs. August Wagner of Hermantown, who dropped dead of apoplexy yesterday morning while delivering produce at the home of D. City Will Spend $150,000 for Gas and Water Extensions.

Increase of More Than 30 Per Cent Over Last Year.

Duluth will spend $150,000 for water and gas main extensions this year.

This is an estimated increase of about 36 per cent, as compared with the $110,000 expenditure for this work in 1914, according to D. A. Reed, manager of the water and light plant.

"Seventy-four extensions have been requested by citizens so far this year," said Mr. Reed yesterday. "This is an unusually large number, and we are spending more money for work than ever before in the department's history. It is an excellent indication of the way the city is growing.

"At least fifty-five or sixty of the jobs petitioned for will go through," he continued, "but I expect to see about a dozen fall by the wayside because of a lack of signatures.

"These fifty-five or sixty jobs involve a $100,000 expenditure, to say nothing of the new work which will be asked for by property owners in various parts of the city between now and fall."

"Under the 8 per cent guarantee plan there is little danger of overdoing the service extension work; because property owners are not willing to assume their share of the cost of putting in water or gas mains until they need the improvement.

NO BAGGAGE VALUE DECLARATION ASKED YET

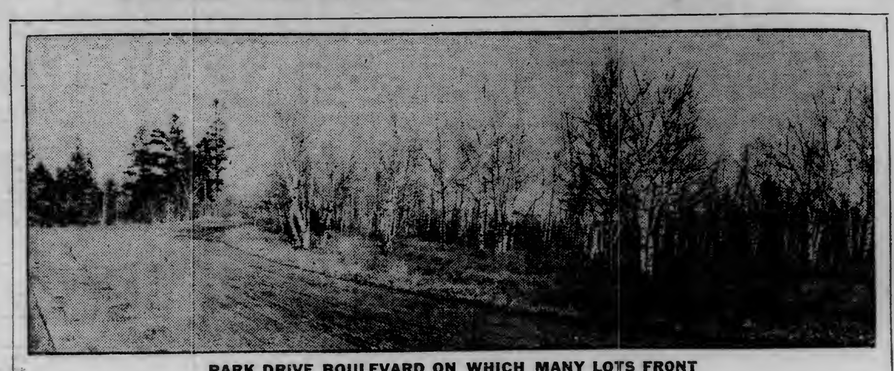

Still no orders have been received at the Duluth passenger stations to have those checking their baggage make declarations of values. T. E. White said today that few, if any, of the roads of the West are demanding declarations, but that he has received several C. O. D. orders on baggage received here from the East, where the roads have taken up the matter. One such order was received here yesterday, there being a charge of 10 cents on a trunk.

It is still a question whether the Western roads will act on the matter. Most of them, it is said, are not disposed to do so and will not unless it is found that under the Cummins non-liability act declarations of value of baggage are mandatory. But so far no move has been made on any of the roads running into Duluth.

PARK DRIVE DIVISION

THE IDEAL HOME SITE

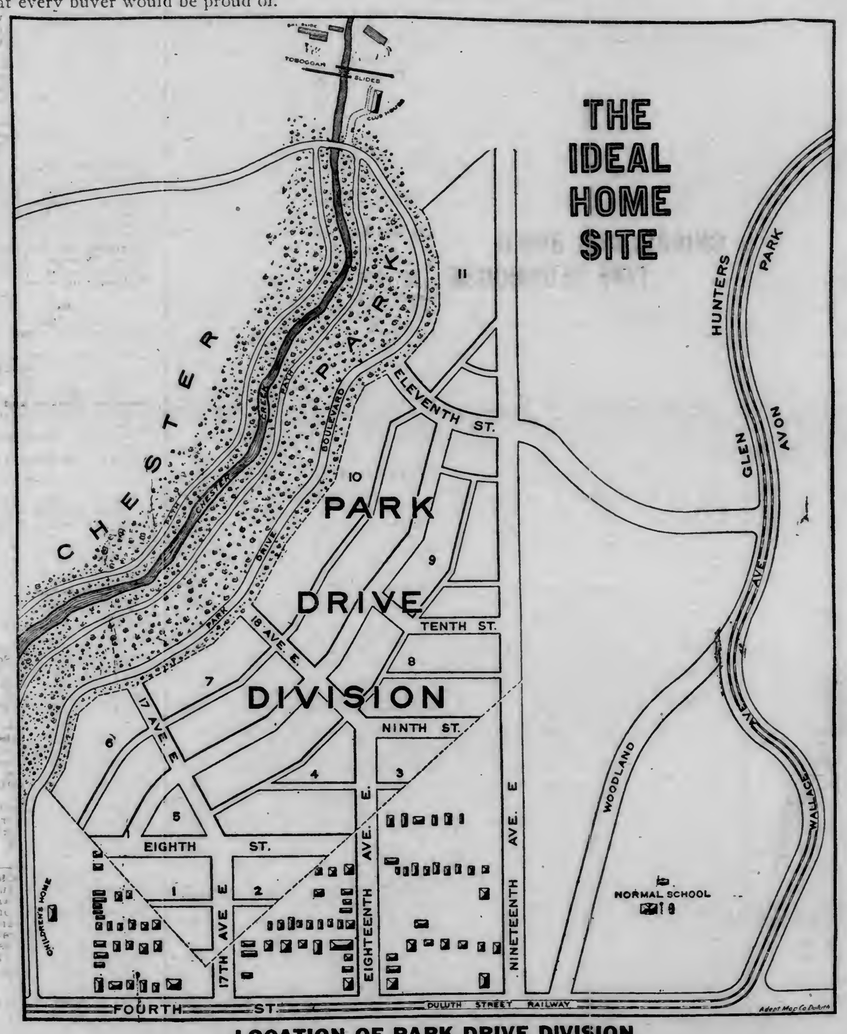

PARK DRIVE BOULEVARD ON WHICH MANY LOTS FRONT

Buy where it is for the interest of the seller to have that property grow, and start a solid foundation for the future.

A number of our most prominent business and professional men have purchased lots in this addition upon which to build their future homes.

This is not a division in which the seller has no further interest after the lots have been disposed of, but a division in which we take great pride in developing—a division which we aim to make the most attractive site for the home builder and one that every buyer would be proud of.

LOCATION OF PARK DRIVE DIVISION

SPECIAL ADVANTAGES

A number of large lots along the entire westerly side of the property front on the magnificent boulevard drive and Chester Park. No assessments for maintaining the streets on these lots. Every lot is accurately surveyed and plainly marked with iron monuments. Gas and water mains have been laid throughout the entire division, and all lots south of Tenth street have sewer. Lots without sewer are sold subject to cost of constructing the same, which we agree to do at any time the purchaser wishes to use the lot for building purposes—the cost thereof not to exceed 80c per lineal foot, which the purchaser agrees to pay. All streets and avenues are graded.

HOW TO REACH PARK DRIVE

Take any car line in the city, transfer at Third avenue west and Superior street to any East Fourth street car. During the busy hours of the day cars run every five minutes. Get off at Seventeenth avenue east and go north three blocks and you are on the property.

COME EARLY—GET THE BEST

This close-in addition completely solves the most serious problem of the homeseeker whose business demands that he be within the easy reach of downtown. Being but a short distance from the car line and but ten minutes from the business district for single fare, a home on one of these choice lots gives the owner all of the advantages of the city with the disagreeable features excluded. When boulevards and asphalt streets are infested with automobiles, the streets and back alleys are the only playground left for the children. It is there that the temptations from evil associates prove a greater menace than the dangers from accident. To live in Park Drive Division permits plenty of recreation for the child and freedom from worry for its parents.

PRICES AND TERMS

Warranty deed, Torrens title. These lots will be sold on easy payments without interest until January 1st, 1916; 10% discount for all cash, 5% discount for one-half cash; cash payments 10%, balance on easy monthly payments. Taxes to be paid by the seller for year 1915. Purchaser to pay all taxes after the year 1915.

CHISHOLM SPENDS $8,000 PER MONTH

Showing Made at Council Meeting as to Present Expenditures.

Chisholm, Minn., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Trustee Mahne asked the village council yesterday afternoon to instruct the recorder to prepare a semi-monthly report of the number of men employed, of the work being done by the council, and of the amount of money expended each week in the different departments. He stated that he thought there was favoritism shown in the allotment of work, and he wanted everyone to get a square deal. The council agreed to so instruct the recorder.

Jack Rice and A. L. Bergeron, members of the old Fire Relief association, requested an accounting of the funds of the association, which they said were either turned over to the treasurer or recorder by the state auditor. The matter will be investigated.

Licenses Transferred.

Transfers of liquor licenses were granted to Louis Roth from Adam Payton, Manfinen to Fent and Dematis to Barus. Application of Charles Peranti for permission to move his saloon from the Rubloff building to the Brian-O'Rourke building was refused. The application brought out a heated discussion on the merits of permitting the transfer. Attorney Joseph Austin appeared for Rubloff and Attorney O. J. Larsen of Duluth for Peranti. Rubloff also addressed the council, accusing the application of underhand dealing and making charges of law-breaking. The application was denied.

The council in executive session discussed the matter of paying Mrs. Thomas Kosman $7,500 for the loss of her husband, who was killed by a falling rock from a blast on the new water main to the Myers location. The council wanted to compromise with the widow, but as she had no legal representative present, the matter was held over.

The council was served with a claim for the widow by Attorney Croker by Victor Power.

Alma Johnson, residing at the Glenn location, made application for damages of $500 for injuries received on a rusty nail sticking point upward from a board.

Spending $8,000 Monthly.

The recorder reported expenditures of the village to be less than $8,000 per month, all working forces being reduced to a minimum.

Trustee Graham alleged favoritism in the paving of sidewalks, stating that the north side was being neglected, while the south side was getting more than its share. Trustee Mahne thought that the paving of sidewalks should be proceeded with as the streets were torn up and impassable. The laying off of the crews was poor business, he said, as it was cheaper to finish the work now started with experienced men than to stop the work and begin again with men who had to be broken in. Trustee Graham wanted to be taken off the streets and sewers committee, claiming he was never consulted in any matter pertaining to the work.

Trustee Graham suggested that a fire drill be held twice a week, if not oftener, as the men new to the business of fire-fighting needed it. This was agreed to.

PUBLIC BARN PROVES BOON FOR FARMERS

Virginia, Minn., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—More than 3,000 horses have been sheltered in the stable and sheds on the public market site since it was opened in February, according to figures compiled by Matt Pohlman, in charge of the stable. The greater number of the farmers, who patronize the market are from the Pike river and the Sand lake neighborhoods.

So far this month 353 horses have been cared for during the day time while farmers are transacting business here. The city does not furnish feed for the horses, but it can be purchased from Mr. Pohlman, who has a large supply on hand.

The market barn and shed accommodate about sixty-five horses a day. Farmers living way over on the Vermilion range are beginning to take advantage of the market by trading in Virginia.

PANAMA U.S. EMPLOYE VISITS TWO HARBORS

ARTHUR J. BELAND.

Two Harbors, Minn., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Arthur J. Beland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Beland, of this city, has just returned from the Panama canal zone, where he is employed as a mechanical draftsman by the government. Mr. Beland is employed in the fortification department with headquarters at Balboa Heights, only a few miles from the city of Panama.

Mr. Beland has been in Panama for the last two and one-half years and is now home on his annual vacation. He will return to Panama about Aug. 15. He was employed by the Iron Range railroad here as a draftsman previous to taking the civil service examination and accepting the position with the government.

CHICAGOANS BUILD FINE CLUBHOUSE

Grand Rapids, Minn., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fame of Itasca county as a resort place is spreading, as indicated by the large number of visitors from other states who come to this section every summer.

Herman Freidstedt of Chicago is the head of a group of wealthy men of that city who have built a splendid, commodious and costly clubhouse in Marcell township. Mr. Freidstedt was up this week to inspect and pay his first visit to the completed resort. Carl Christiensen of Chicago, who has had charge of the men who have been at work there all winter, will remain. This clubhouse is a private one, not intended for entertaining paying guests, and will be kept open all the year around for use of the members for hunting and fishing in season.

Is Substantial Concern.

The clubhouse complete represents a cost of $20,000 and is a permanent investment equal to a good-sized factory, for, it will employ some men and consume products from nearby farms. The main building is 40 by 50 feet in size, made of logs in a most attractive style of bungalow architecture, having a large dining room and a commodious reading and smoking room.

REPORTS ARE EXPECTED

Various Things to Be Discussed By Virginia Commercial Club.

Virginia, Minn., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The committee on the Fourth of July celebration will this evening probably submit its report to the Commercial club at its meeting. C. L. Eaton is chairman of that committee.

The matter of entertaining the editors, who attend the meeting of the Northern Minnesota Editorial association, will be up for consideration. A report is expected from the committee on farm loans, which has been out for several weeks.

The transportation committee will likely make a report on the matter of securing a physical connection between several of the railroad lines in this city and that of securing smaller switching charges.

President Murphy will make a report on the carnival matter, but it will not be complete as the committee has yet to bring the matter up with council of the village of Franklin and that of this city.

The matter of, if possible, having the county resume work on the Sand lake cut-off road so as to insure its completion this fall, will be before the board. The committee on the volunteer range firemen's tournament will report.

KEEP CEMETERIES UP.

Two Virginia Burying Grounds Kept in Good Shape.

Virginia, Minn., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Through the efforts of A. H. Braa, superintendent of the Calvary and Greenwood cemeteries, the yards have been transformed from a confusion of weeds to a nicely parked lawn, which is cut over at least once a week with a lawn mower. The cemeteries are now a credit to the city.

Twenty men have been employed at each of the cemeteries under the direction of Mr. Braa for the past four months and they will continue to work there during the remainder of the summer.

The city recently appropriated to the both cemetery associations $2,000 to be equally divided between them.

FURNISH MUCH WATER.

Hibbing Wells Are Given Inspection By Some Engineers.

Hibbing, Minn., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The four wells drilled south of Alice in conjunction with the new water system, developed approximately 2,550,000 gallons of water daily, according to measures made by S. W. Tarr of Duluth, chief construction engineer of the Oliver Mining company; Ed Hawley, village engineer, and R. J. Morehouse of Kansas City, who made a trip to the wells yesterday and took tests of Wells No. 2 and 3.

HIBBING LIBRARY MAY HAVE TO CLOSE

Lack of Funds to Manage Institution May Cause Action.

Hibbing, Minn., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Carnegie public library here may be closed this month for lack of ready money, according to M. J. Moran, president of the library board.

Liberality on the part of the village council in issuing village orders to the library board has not been effective in holding off the financial stringency as directors have on hand $1,500 village orders which so far, Mr. Moran said, the board has been unable to cash. A request by the library board to the council that it pay current expenses of the library from the village treasury was denied yesterday as a question developed as to the legality of such action by the council. Recorder D. D. Haley declared that it was doubtful whether the council had the legal authority to pay expenses not included in appropriations.

"Personally I don't see any way out of it but to close the library," Mr. Moran said. "The village council has done everything it possibly can to keep the library going much longer. The board and council have put forth every effort possible to get ready money but so far have had positively no encouragement. Mining companies which have been willing to supply cash for the school expenses, have refused to cash the orders for the library board.

Recorder Voices Regret.

When Recorder Haley was told that the library might be closed he said: "No one regrets this any more than the village council. However I don't see what there is to do. The council has put forth every effort to keep the library open. We believed that it was not the object of mining companies, in refusing to pay taxes here, to cripple the educational facilities of the village. Council members have always held that the library is one of the most important institutions in the village from an educational viewpoint and has taken the initiative in many instances in extending the scope of its activities. At the present time we would be only too glad to defray all the expenses of the library but our hands are tied."

So far this year the library board has received $3,000 from the village council in conducting its work. Branch libraries have been established at Kelly Lake, Brooklyn addition, Alice, Stevenson location, Carson Lake, Little Swan and Kitzville, all of which will be closed if cash is not received soon.

WAS CARNIVAL QUEEN.

Ely Girl Married in Duluth Is Popular in Vermilion Range City.

Ely, Minn., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Lillian La Beau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William La Beau, who was married in Duluth Saturday to Frank Stephanas, was born and grew to womanhood here. She was voted the most popular lady and crowned queen of the carnival held during the firemen's tournament last July.

Mr. Stephanas was employed by the Boyd Construction company here during the erection of the new grade school. The young couple will be at home in St. Paul where Mr. Stephanas holds a respensible position.

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

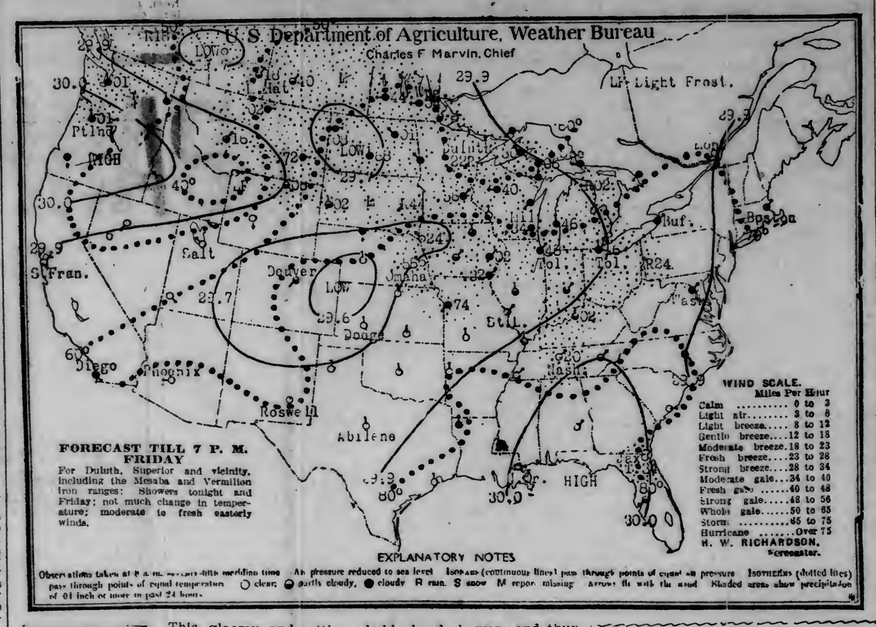

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, the less soap you use the better.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.—Advertisement.

OFFICIAL MAP OF THE WEATHER

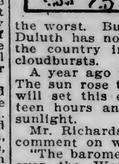

FORECAST TILL 7 P. M. FRIDAY

For Duluth, Superior and vicinity, including the Mesaba and Vermilion iron ranges: Showers tonight and Friday; not much change in temperature; moderate to fresh easterly winds.

EXPLANATORY NOTES

Observations taken at 8 a. m., seventy-fifth meridian time. Air pressure reduced to sea level. Isobars (continuous lines) pass through points of equal air pressure. Isotherms (dotted lines) pass through points of equal temperature. ○ clear, ◒ partly cloudy, ● cloudy, R rain, S snow, M report missing. Arrows fly with the wind. Shaded areas show precipitation of .01 inch or more in past 24 hours.

SHOWERS

This gloomy and rainy weather is proving to be a serial story, at least in two parts, and may be "continued in our next," for today is decidedly disagreeable, damp, cloudy and cold. What the future will bring forth no human can accurately tell, so the safest way is to be prepared for the worst. But it will be noticed that Duluth has not joined a large part of the country in having tornadoes and cloudbursts.

A year ago today was partly cloudy. The sun rose this morning at 4:28 and will set this evening at 8, giving fifteen hours and thirty-two minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The barometric depressions centered over the West and Northwest have caused showers throughout Central and Northern districts during the last twenty-four hours. Heavy local rains fell over Northeastern Florida. Moderately warm to hot weather continues in Central, Southern and Eastern states. Cool temperatures prevail this morning over Northeastern Minnesota, Wyoming, Nevada, Western Montana, Alberta and Saskatchewan. Light frost occurred in Yellowstone park."

General Forecasts.

Chicago, July 15.—Forecasts for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Friday:

Minnesota and Wisconsin—Showers to night and probably Friday; not much change in temperature.

North and South Dakota—Unsettled weather tonight and Friday, with probably showers; not much change in temperature.

Montana—Showers tonight and Friday.

Iowa—Unsettled tonight and Friday.

BUSINESS MEN WILL GO TO CAMP MILLER

Twenty-five prominent Duluth business men, seeking rest and recreation in Nature's wilds, will leave next Monday, July 19, for the Y. M. C. A. senior camp at Camp Miller. This is the number that has already been "signed up" by Physical Director A. L. Olson of the Y. M. C. A., who will be in charge of the party. By the time the train leaves, however, Mr. Olson believes that there will be several more who will be ready to take the trip.

The camp will last two weeks, from July 19 to 31. Most of the men in the party will stay the entire two weeks, while there are a few who will stay only a few days.

Camp Miller is visited by parties of young men, old men, boys and parties from the Y. W. C. A. It is the official camp of the Y. M. C. A., each party having an allotted period during the summer. Shortly after the men return the boys of the Boys' department will leave for their annual encampment. The camp is on the shores of Sturgeon lake, one of the most beautiful in Minnesota.

"This is the second annual camp of the seniors," said Mr. Olson, "and it is getting more popular all of the time. Last year there were eleven men who went. It is a great surprise to me that more persons do not take advantage of this splendid opportunity to get such a wonderful vacation at such a low cost."

New Home Treatment for Banishing Hairs

(Beauty Topics)

With the aid of a delatone paste, it is an easy matter for any woman to remove every trace of hair or fuzz from face, neck and arms. Enough of the powdered delatone and water is mixed into a thick paste and spread on the hairy surface for about 2 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed. This completely removes the hair, but to avoid disappointment, get the delatone in an original package. —Advertisement.

SCARCITY OF SALT BOTHERS FISHERMEN

St. John's, Nfld., July 15.—A scarcity of salt threatens to offset to a large extent the benefits to be derived by Newfoundland fishermen from the unusually large catch of cod along the northern and eastern coasts and on the Grand Banks this summer. Because of the small catch during the last two or three years the importers this season reduced their orders for salt, which comes from Trapini, Scilly and Cadiz, Spain. In addition, the war has caused delays to steamers bringing the salt.

Practically all the salt in the island has now been distributed to the fishing ports. Although at least 15,000 barrels additional is expected to reach this city during the next month, it will arrive too late to save a large amount of cod, which is rapidly piling up at the various fishing centers.

NEW TICKET LOOKS LIKE NEWSPAPER

A new railroad ticket made its appearance at the local Omaha office today. It is more of the shape and general size of a newspaper than the ordinary railroad ticket.

Instead of using twenty railroad tickets for twenty different lines, the Omaha railroad system under the new ticket system can use one ticket for more than twenty lines. On the ticket are the names of a multitude of different lines. The routing of the owner of the ticket is punched across the ticket. The ticket could be used on any one of the different railroad lines indicated on it merely by punching in the name of the line and the route.

ONE OF FIRST TO DIE FOR HIS COUNTRY

Alessandro Di Santo, age 23, brother of Joseph and Pasquale Di Santo of Duluth, was one of the first of the Italian soldiers to give his life for his country in the present war between Italy and Austria. A telegram stating that he had died gloriously on the battlefield was received by his surviving brothers this morning.

"His death came as a great surprise to me," said his brother Joseph today. "It was only day before yesterday that I received a letter from him, written shortly before his death, in which he stated that he was in the best of health and full of enthusiasm for the cause of his country. He said he was eager to fight for Italy and secure the provinces of Trent and Trieste, which he believed rightfully belonged to Italy."

He was a non-commisioned officer and was killed in the mountain passes. The telegram gave no details as to the nature of his death.

IS IT DUE TO RAIN FOR FORTY DAYS?

Long Wet Spell Will Be Expected By the Superstitious, Following Wet St. Swithin's Day.

St. Swithin's day, if there is rain
For forty days it will remain;
St. Swithin's day, if it be fair,
For forty days 'twill rain nae mair.

Today is St. Swithin's day, which, according to the old English adage, exercises a mysterious influence on the weather. St. Swithin was the bishop of Winchester from 852 till 862. At his death he was buried in the church yard at Winchester at his own request.

Was Wet Argument.

Some monks got the idea that they would remove the remains to the cathedral, but when they attempted to do so it rained almost continuously for forty days which was taken as a wet argument, and the body was left in peace in its own resting place.

Ever since that time the belief has prevailed in rural districts in England that the weather for forty days after July 15 is governed by the conditions on that day.

St. Swithin's day is one of the old English black letter days in the calendar of the Episcopal church, but there will be no special observances of the day in Duluth.

NORTH DAKOTA CORN OUTLOOK FAVORABLE

Bismarck, N. D., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Commissioner of Agriculture R. F. Flint of Bismarck deals with the crop situation in a letter just issued:

Mr. Flint says good weather from now till Sept. 15 will return to the farmers an excellent crop of corn, thorough shallow cultivation being necessary to bring the crop through properly.

The corn acreage in the state is greater than ever, and a great deal was sown with North Dakota grown corn. The fact that home-grown seed is used is favorable to the crop, in that it will be more able to withstand severe weather while maturing than seed grown in a more southern climate.

ESCAPES SECOND TIME FROM JAIL

Warren, Minn., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Skog, who broke away from the Marshall county jail about six weeks ago, and was recaptured at Glendive, Mont., three weeks since, again broke away from the same institution at 5:30 yesterday afternoon. How he got out remains a mystery to the local officials. He was seen in the cell at 5 o'clock by the jailer and 6, when the meal was served he had strangely disappeared. This gives Skog, who has served time at several state penal institutionss a notorious record. A posse is searching for him.

PEN ARTISTS ARE BUSY.

Two Forgers Mulcting People of Upper Peninsula.

Calumet, Mich., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two clever forgers have been operating the past three weeks in the four counties of the Copper country, including Houghton and Baraga, and have picked up, from unsuspecting business houses, a large sum of money. They are still operating for, despite the best efforts of the authorities of the several counties, who have special secret service men detailed on the trail of the pair, they have not been caught. Their method is crude and simple, being merely the making out of checks for amounts of from $10 to $50, with a few odd cents over on each check, and signed with the forged name of some contractor or business man. Several lumbering contractors and construction contractors have been victimized in this manner. Yet the pair keep themselves well hid when not operating and make sudden jumps from one town to another, probably driving because cars and trains are watched. The officers have excellent descriptions of the couple.

DULUTH CREWS TO RACE AGAINST BEST IN WEST

Regatta of Next Week Will Afford Duluthians Their First Opportunity of Seeing Really Great Crews in Real Races; Since 1911 Ten Eyck's Boys Have Established National Reputations.

BY BRUCE.

PERSONS and institutions deserving success generally get it. Some lean against a lamp post or a counter with a brass rail a foot from the floor, and set up a whining cry of ill luck. There is a lot of success due the approaching Northwestern International Rowing association's regatta—and it looks like the success was parceled up and ready to deliver.

In the first place it looked as if the regatta was placed in the chain gang with failure. Winnipeg's great club is so busy with the grim and serious question of war that it has not had the time nor inclination to pay any great amount of attention to rowing. St. Paul, it seemed, a month ago, was not going to send anything to cause rowing enthusiasts to kick a pair of joyous heels in the air over.

It was at this dismal fork of the road that officials of the Duluth Boat club got exceedingly busy. One old gay guy says that all things come to him who waits. It is believed that this fellow had the rheumatism. A quicker way to achieve results is to hustle, and that is just what the rowing committee of the boat club has been doing for the last thirty days.

Jimmy Ten Eyck has been laboring hand and foot with the rowing committee. In addition to coaching winning crews, he has been assisting in the efforts to bring some crack crews up here to give our boys a race.

With Winnipeg out and only St. Paul in, there would not have been much for us to defeat. Most of the races would have been between our own crews. Now the case looks different; so different, in fact, that dopesters are beginning to figure what chance we have of getting an even break in the list of wins.

The big rowing show carded for July 23 and 24 looks like the best regatta that has been arranged for in the West for years and then some more years. Anytime they send five, and possibly six, crews away in the big senior race contest, the derby event of the two days of racing, you can make up your mind that you are going to get the kind of sport that will send the thrills up and down your spine, and raise you out of your seat.

When you look down on the even setting of the water, with the sun shining down, and watch the colors flashing down the course and hear the exhortations of the coxswains, as they drive their men on, and get the deep diapason of the whistles and the fanfare of sounds that mingle in a deep cry of battle, you see some real sport.

Up here we have heard a lot of our senior eight. Lots of persons have had to be quite satisfied with hearing. The senior eight, as its strength is represented today, has never been seen on the St. Louis bay course in a real race. The last regatta of the Northwestern International Rowing association was held here in 1911. At that time Ten Eyck had not fully developed his crew; he had not weeded out the old material, nor had he imparted his now famous stroke.

It was the next year at Winnipeg that Duluth really came into its belated own. The golden smile of success continued to glow upon the boat club at St. Paul and again last year at Kenora, while since 1911 the crews of the Duluth Boat club have won their great national honors at Boston and Philadelphia.

Therefore the regatta that is to be staged here will be the first opportunity legions of Duluthians will have had to see the greatest crews in the United States race against some of the greatest crews of the West.

Sometimes it is difficult to realize that we have the greatest crews in the United States. Intervening miles often lend glamour and enchantment. Down East, for instance, they speak of the Duluth crews with awe. Occasionally here at home we get into the habit of taking our wonderful crews as a matter of fact.

But—get this—Friday and Saturday of next week sport lovers will see the greatest rowing crews developed in the United States or Canada during the last three years pitted against the crews of some of the best boat clubs in the Middle West.

The greatest crews in the United States and Canada are the Duluth Boat club crews, coached by James E. Ten Eyck. The other crews are those of the Minnesota Boat club of St. Paul, and the clubs of Peoria, Ill.; Grand Rapids, Mich., and Lincoln Park, Chicago. It looks like an exceedingly big day.

In the second game Cheney won a pitchers' battle from Tesreau and Schauer. The Cubs won by scoring two runs in the seventh inning on a pass to Saier, Williams' single, a sacrifice fly by Phelan and a three-base hit by Archer.

Groh's place double and a single by Williams, the latter a recruit from the Northwestern league, gave Cincinnati its only run in the fourth. Brooklyn tied the score in its half on singles by Cutshaw and Getz, a double steal and Herzog's wild throw of Coombs' grounder.

With Myers on second in the tenth and two out, Toney passed Daubert to get Wheat, who singled to right, bringing home the winning run. Score:

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Lose By Delay.

Chicago, July 15.—Dilatory tactics, in attempts to have the game called on account of rain, cost Philadelphia the second game of the series with Chicago yesterday, the locals winning 6 to 4. The game was started five minutes early to beat the rain. Chicago was leading by two runs, when the roar of thunder inspired the visitors to use almost every means known to baseball to delay the game before the legal number of innings were played. In the fourth, Pitcher Bush did not attempt to put a ball over the plate, yet the local batsmen swung in order to hurry the game.

Faber was hit by one of these wild throws and jaunted to first. He continued around the bases and scored the run which, in the end, proved to be the winning run. He was credited with a steal of second, third and home. A few moments later Weaver dropped a Texas leaguer into right and almost reached third before he was thrown out. Murphy, Lajoie, Kopf and Schang handling the ball before he was retired, when he could easily have been put out by Lajoie. When it became evident that the umpires were insistent upon playing the visitors braced, but could not overtake the lead which they had given to Chicago.

Chicago made their early runs by bunching hits with a base on balls, and an error by Strunk. Schang's home run in the fifth and the fielding of Fournier and Leibold were features. Score:

Philadelphia ...0 2 0 0 1 0 1 0 0—4	9	1
Chicago .....2 0 2 1 1 0 0 0 x—6	8	0

St. Louis tied the score in the seventh, when Walsh singled and went to second on Howard's sacrifice hit and scored on Severeid's single. In the eleventh, Gandil singled, took second, while Austin fumbled Connolly's grounder, and scored on Henry's single to right. Score:

Cleveland, Ohio, July 15.—Cleveland and Boston again broke even, Cleveland winning the first game 3 to 2 and Boston taking the second, 7 to 1, yesterday. Cleveland bunched five hits in the first inning of the opener and scored all its runs. Morton was a puzzle except in the fifth inning. The defeat broke Wood's winning streak, he having won nine straight. In the second game, Collins pitched his best game of the year, allowing only two hits. One was a triple by Southworth and scored Hoffman, who had walked. All of Cleveland's pitchers were hit hard. Scores:

MAKING READY TO INVADE NEW YORK

Federal League Will Move Headquarters From Chicago to Gotham.

Chicago, July 15.—Headquarters of the Federal Baseball league will be moved from Chicago to New York city within two weeks, according to an announcement by James A. Gilmore, president of the league.

"The change is dictated by necessity alone," Gilmore said. "We are going to enter New York—that is, place a club there next year and this will entail a lot of work in this office, so I thought it best to move down there."

Until President Gilmore had announced the transfer there was no inkling that the league headquarters would be changed, as the organization had its birth in Chicago and it was taken as granted it would remain here.

Resolute Wins Again.

New York, July 15.—In the second of the new trials off Sandy Hook to select a defender to meet Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock IV, the yacht Resolute yesterday defeated the Vanitie by 52 seconds corrected time. The race was run over a 30-mile triangular course.

RAIN AGAIN BUTTS INTO NORTHERN LEAGUE GAMES

Series With Virginia May Be Cut in Two By Downpour of the Sky Soup—St. Paul Loses Money on Opening Boxing Show—State Takes Charge of All Receipts.

BY BRUCE.

Rain promises to smear up some of the dates of the Dooks' revised schedule. Yesterday's game with the Ore Diggers was called off when the sky soup began to drop, and early indications today point to another layoff for the crew from the iron country.

Virginia is here tomorrow and Saturday and then comes a return of Fort William for a series of five games.

The dropping of Superior and Grand Forks from the schedule has caused a sharp rearrangement of the playing dates of all teams. The fact that Fort William is not turning out in swarms may have had something to do with the scheduling of the Fort Bills for two series here with but one intervening series of games between.

Fargo comes after the Fort Bills. After that series the Dooks make their last visit of the season to Winnipeg.

Bob Unglaub is making a strenuous bid for the pennant with his Fargo Uhlans. Earlier in the season Fargo kept plugging along, despite the fact that injuries kept several of the best players out of the lineup. Additions to the team have given the Uhlans increased strength and have made the North Dakota aggregation one of the dark horses of the race.

When the Winnipeg club was here it looked like the best baseball aggregation in the Northern league. Since the visit to Athletic park of the Burmeister team changes have been made that have, in the opinion of many observers, weakened the team.

Roy Peterson has been let go, while Tom Wilson, a catcher that no less an authority than John McGraw of the Giants characterizes as the best throwing receiver in the minors, is no longer with Burmeister's aggregation.

Bemis, one of the fastest outfielders in the league, and old Ollie Pickering, who was sure crowning the pill for the Peggers, have also gone.

Peggers Reduce Expenses.

It is said that an economic policy of retrenchment had something to do with the disposing of the players in question. All of the men let out are said to have been high-salaried players, speaking from the Northern league standpoint.

The very fact that Winnipeg weakened its team has led some observers of Northern league affairs to believe that Burmeister has come to the conclusion that this is a bad year for the game in Canada and that economy is the best policy.

Eddie Reddy's Bone.

After the members of the Capitol City Athletic club of St. Paul dropped a generous roll on the first legalized boxing show to be held in the state, it is the general consensus of opinion that Matchmaker Eddie Reddy pulled a bone in the scheduling of his opening card.

Tommy Gibbons and Billy Miske had fought before at Hudson and it was generally believed that Gibbons would have little difficulty in proving his superiority. All prognostications ran to form. Gibbons won handily, and the public, anticipating the result, refused to buy the show.

The huge Auditorium in St. Paul was just about half filled, the club lost money, and Reddy, who has always been more or less mixed up with the Gibbons boys until handed his conge by Mike, is coming in for a panning at the hands of the followers of the sport.

Commissioner Thompson of St. Paul came out with a statement in which he said that a tariff of five bucks was too much for the show. The receipts at the first legalized boxing show to be held in Minnesota in more than thirty years prove that it requires no great amount of perspicuity to observe that.

Here Is a New Angle.

After the Monday's night boxing show in St. Paul the state auditor's department walked right in and took charge of the dough. The tubercular fund of the state gets 10 per cent of the gross, and it looks, from the action taken at St. Paul, that the state is going to have charge of the cash until the count up has been made in a thoroughly satisfactory manner.

Now, in the case of the boxer who wants to leave the city after the show—what is he going to do?

In Wisconsin the state commission has a representative who gets the count and later has the check sent to the commissioners. In Minnesota, judging from the opening show, the state takes charge of the receipts, holding the money until complete settlement has been made.

The final score was 6-3, 6-7, 6-1.

REFUSES TENNIS TITLE BY DEFAULT; WILL PLAY

St. Louis, Mo., July 15.—A blister in the hand of Drummond Jones yesterday prevented his playing Roland Hoerr for the singles championship of the Central States Tennis association, and though the authorities of the St. Louis Amateur Athletic association were ready to declare the match forfeited to Hoerr, the latter refused to accept the 1915 championship by default.

Jones and Hoerr, by defeating Paul Darrough and Eugene Monnett, champion of Oklahoma Tuesday, retained the doubles championship of the Central states. Hoerr, who won the singles championship from Jones last year, will play his partner for the same honor this year as soon as Jones' hands and feet have recovered from wear and tear they suffered in the long drawn out fight for the doubles championship.

TORNADO HITS BALL PARK; SPECTATORS HURT

Decatur, Ill., July 15.—A tornado struck the grandstand at the Decatur baseball park yesterday just after the Decatur and Rockford players were lining up to play. The entire roof of the grandstand was torn off and a portion of it fell upon the crowd below. A number of people were badly bruised but there were no serious injuries.

Players on the Decatur and Rockford clubs rushed to the rescue of the people buried under the wreckage. The damage is estimated to be in the neighborhood of $5,000.

DULUTH HAS HEAVY CREWS

Average Weight of Seniors and Juniors Greatest in Years.

Jim Wray Declares St. Paul Has a Faster Eight Than Harvard.

Duluth's senior eight averages 159¼ pounds; one of the junior eights averages 163½ pounds, the other 157 pounds; the senior four averages 154½ pounds; one junior four averages 150 pounds and the other 160½ pounds; one bantam four averages 138¼ pounds and the other 139¾ pounds.

The senior eight will be the heaviest that has represented Duluth in some years, probably the heaviest since 1909. Also the crack senior four is the heaviest the present crew has ever been. The members of the crew are heavier than last year, the first season the present senior four rowed as a senior crew.

Development of Fours.

This crew started as a bantam four in 1912 at Winnipeg, winning the bantam race that day with such ridiculous ease as to make a procession out of the contest.

The following year at St. Paul the crew rowed as a junior four, again finishing pulled up so far ahead as to take all of the race out of the contest, the other crew finishing nearly an eighth of a mile in the rear.

Last year at Kenora, rowing circles of the Northwest were thrilled with the prospect of a great contest between Con Riley's veteran four and the young crew that had performed so brilliantly under the tutelage of Ten Eyck.

Like the bantam and junior experience of this crew, the contest against the famous four of the Winnipeg Rowing club proved a veritable walkover, Duluth winning by something like ten lengths of open water.

St. Paul Has Great Four.

Now comes word from St. Paul that followers of the fortunes of the Minnesota Boat club are supremely confident of the ability of their senior four.

To supplement the firing of the first gun from the camp of an opposing club, comes the statement that Jim Wray has said that the St. Paul junior eight is faster than the Harvard 'varsity eight.

If this is true then watch for a great race here on the opening afternoon of the regatta, Friday, July 23.

Duluth will have two junior eights in the going, while Lincoln Park and Peoria will also have eights lined up at the stake boats.

Winnipeg Not Coming.

Definite word was received today to the effect that Winnipeg will not make an entry in the regatta. Kenora is expected to send a four. Port Arthur has wired that it will also send down a lapstreak four.

Crews of the Grand Rapids, Mich., Rowing club, the Peoria Rowing club and the Lincoln Park Rowing club will board a special train at Chicago next Wednesday evening and make the trip from the Windy City in regal manner. The big special will bring the outside crews here next Thursday, one week from today.

"Ham" Peyton has been appointed official timer of the races. The rowing contests will start at 4 o'clock. This will give all classes of people an opportunity to get down to the grandstand on time and will also give the oarsmen more assurance of smooth water.

Haakons, Moore and Hall, the three junior coxswains, drew last night to see which of the two would stick, there being but two junior crews and three "coxes." Hall and Moore were the lucky ones, so unfortunate Haakons is out of it.

BELMONT HORSE WINS SUBURBAN

Third Victory for Same Colors in History of Famous Handicap.

New York, July 15.—When Stromboli, the 4-year-old chestnut gelding, by Fair Play-St. Priscilla, owned by August Belmont, flashed under the wire a winner of the classic suburban handicap at Belmont Park yesterday, it marked the third winning of this big Eastern stake for the chairman of the Jockey club.

Away back in 1889, Raceland, ridden by Garrison, wearing Belmont colors, finished first, and again in 1905, Beldame, on which O'Neill had the mount, carried the scarlet, maroon sleeves and black cap to victory for the same owner.

Turner, who had the mount on Stromboli yesterday, an impost of 122 pounds, was said to be responsible for crowding on the bend, leading from the back to the main stretch, which resulted in three horses and jockeys being thrown. One of the animals, Norse King, a Belmont bred colt, which was bought last year for $300 by F. B. Lemaire of Brooklyn, who since refused $20,000 for this half brother to the winner of yesterday's race, broke his leg and had to be destroyed.

After the race the stewards heard all the jockeys who rode in the race when a claim of foul was made. Several of the riders claimed that Turner was responsible for the accident. The officials, however, did not change the placing of the horses as they finished, with Stromboli the winner by a length, T. J. O'Brien's Sam Jackson, 100 pounds, McDermott, second, a nose in front of S. L. Parsons' Sharpshooter, 106 pounds, but well ridden, which beat the Western horse, Hodge, owned by W. J. Webber, a scant head for third money. The time was 2:05 2-5.

Freeport Gets Team.

Chicago, July 15.—A. R. Tearney, president of the Three I Baseball league, said today that he had received word from Freeport, Ill., that the amount required by the league for the transfer of the Dubuque ball team had been raised, thus insuring a baseball team for Freeport. President Tearney said that the games would begin at Freeport as soon as minor details were adjusted, perhaps next Sunday.

TO AUTOMOBILE DRIVERS

During the last few weeks there have been many collisions and near collisions between street cars and automobiles.

Fortunately these have not been attended with any serious results.

Most of these collisons have been between street cars and automobiles crossing the track on steep avenues. Our motormen are warned to keep a sharp lookout for automobiles at such intersections, but at many corners their view is obstructed until they reach the corner.

Again, there are cases where an auto may be hidden from the motorman by a low obstruction, like a fence, billboard or bushes, but where the larger and higher street car is visible to the automobile driver. Remember the motorman may not always be able to see your automobile when you can see the upper part of his car.

We would respectfully ask automobile drivers to use great care in driving across streets where there are car lines. Slowing up when approaching the street would prevent many collisions. Remember that a STREET CAR CAN'T DODGE. When a motorman is suddenly confronted with the possibility of a collision, he can only go ahead or stop. He cannot change direction. Our streets are becoming so congested that the number of collisions is showing a decided increase, and unless greater care is exercised fatal accidents are very likely to occur. We will try to do our share. Will you do yours?

"FRAMERS OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE U.S.A." NO. 8

The Pinckneys—"Fathers of the Republic"

PERHAPS South Carolina's best gift to this Free Republic was the splendid services of her two great sons—Charles Cotesworth Pinckney and Charles Pinckney. It can truthfully be said of the Pinckneys that their love of honor was greater than their love of power, and deeper than their love of self. One played an important part in the "Louisiana Purchase"—the other, while an envoy to France, was told that the use of money would avert war, and to this replied: "Millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute." Both devoted their eminent abilities toward framing our National Law. The Constitution of the United States, as it stands to-day, was built upon the framework of a plan first proposed by Charles Pinckney. It was he who demanded that it contain freedom of religion, freedom of the press, habeas corpus and trial by jury. In political faith only did these two great men differ. Charles Pinckney was an ardent Democrat, and Charles C. Pinckney a loyal Federalist, and was twice a candidate for President. It is easy to imagine the horror that these two great lovers of Personal Liberty would have expressed if shown the proposed Prohibition Laws of to-day. It is needless to say that if alive they would VOTE NO to such tyrannous encroachments upon the NATURAL RIGHTS OF MAN. The Pinckneys both believed in the moderate use of light wines and barley brews. They also believed in legislation which encouraged the Brewing Industry because they knew that honest Barley Beer makes for true temperance. For 58 years Anheuser-Busch have been brewers of honest Barley-Malt and Saazer Hop beers—the kind the Pinckneys knew to be good for mankind. To-day their great brand—BUDWEISER—because of its quality, purity, mildness and exquisite flavor, exceeds the sale of any other beer by millions of bottles; 7500 people are daily required to keep pace with the public demand for BUDWEISER. CORN CROP BACKWARD

Wheat and Oats Heading Out Well; Alfalfa All Right.

St. Paul, Minn., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Crop reports continue to arrive at the state immigration office and the following counties have reported:

Becker County.

Crop prospects in this vicinity, especially in the timbered portion and the hilly country are very promising. Corn is a little backward. Clover and grasses are showing promises of big yields. Potatoes manifest most favorable results. All garden stuffs look excellent.—Theodore Beaulieu, reporter.

Murray County.

Small grains of all kinds are excellent. Oats and barley heading rapidly. Corn is backward but of good color. Potatoes looking fine, as well as clover and tame grasses of all kinds. Quite a number of farmers have from three to ten acres of alfalfa which is excellent; three cuttings will be had.—Burt I. Weld, reporter.

Itasca County.

Corn is backward on account of wet, cool weather in the past, but warm weather will bring it out fine. Small grains look fine. Alfalfa, of which the acreage is yet small, is doing well. Numerous fields are being sown to that crop this year. The potato crop is late, however it looks exceedingly well.—Otto I. Bergh, reporter.

Benton County.

Corn is backward. Hay crop looks good. Alfalfa has done well in the few small plots and more is likely to be put in. Alfalfa is ready for first cutting and is good.—J. A. Cederstrom, reporter.

Roseau County.

All crops are looking good. Corn is later than usual but looks good and if warm weather continues will come out all right. The grass is coming fine and a heavy growth of clover, timothy, alfalfa and wild hay is assured. Rye, wheat and oats crop have never promised better for many years.—G. F. Mattson, reporter.

Mahnomen County.

In spite of the extra amount of rainfall in the county the crops are in better shape at this time of the year than they have ever been and looks like a good big harvest. Alfalfa grows very well in this county. Potatoes and small grains look fine; corn is holding its own with the other crops.—John Carl, reporter.

Houston County.

Wheat and oats are heading out good. Early barley looks good and late barley is half headed out. Very good crop of hay. Corn looks good, only a little backward, but the present warm weather will bring it out all right. There are several small pieces of alfalfa and it is doing fine. Ready for second cutting on some fields.—C. H. Murphy, reporter.

Stevens County.

All small grain has good color and good stand when not on too low land. Corn and potatoes backward on account of too much rain and cool weather. Clover and alfalfa good.—H. P. Eames, reporter.

Wilkin County.

All small grains look fine. Corn is backward, but has a good chance. All alfalfa plots are doing well and some of them will soon be ready for a second cutting. Potatoes are doing well. Rye looks good.—G. W. Burrows, reporter.

Yellow Medicine County.

All small grains are in excellent shape, and have not been better since the year 1891. The last few days of warm weather have done wonderful things for the corn and if it continues, will have a splendid yield of corn. A large acreage of alfalfa has been sowed and it is in splendid condition. First cutting was in June and averaged two to three tons per acre, and the second cutting promises fully as large a yield.—G. W. Allen, reporter.

Martin County.

Oats is heading out. Corn, some of it knee high, others backward. Alfalfa acreage small, but in splendid condition. Potatoes are good. Rye and barley average condition.—Frank A. Day, reporter.

Jackson County.

Prospects for small grains are as good as ever, couldn't look better. Corn is backward for this time of the year, but with favorable weather will go a good crop. Alfalfa does very well and are gaining in acreage each year.—F. I. Gillespie, reporter.

Hennepin County.

All small grain is looking fine. Rye and barley is heading. Corn is backward, but the past week of warm weather is bringing it out fine. Potatoes in excellent shape. Alfalfa first crop is all under cover. It was a full average crop and the second cutting has a very good start and promises even better than the first.—M. H. Hegerle, reporter.

RAILROADS EXPECT TO BE CROWDED

Repair Shops Getting Damaged Cars Ready for Fall Business.

That the volume of freight being carried by the railroads is increasing is attested in improved earnings as reported by the leading Eastern and Western systems. Railroad officials generally report a better movement of freight and from the present outlook they are of the opinion that the grain movement this summer and fall will tax the capacity of their rolling stock to the fullest extent.

The monthly report of the American Railway association showed a decrease of 24,817 during June in the number of idle freight cars in the country, the aggregate on July 1 standing at 275,111, compared with 298,928 on June 1.

All the Northwestern roads are preparing for a rush of traffic during the fall months. Repair shops are being operated full time in the effort to place out-of-order cars in condition, and considerable new rolling stock will be ready to place in commission.

DULUTH GETTING MUCH ADVERTISING

Credit Associations' Bulletins Boosting for the August Conventions.

The official bulletins of the Retail Credit Men's National association and of the National Association of Mercantile Agencies, which will hold joint conventions in Duluth next month, are about all given over to the conventions and to advertising Duluth these days. The general program of the Retail Credit Men's National association has already been published in The Herald, and that of the other body is expected to be issued soon.

In the bulletin of the latter, recently issued, about 90 per cent of the articles it contains concern Duluth and the advantages of the city as a place to hold conventions, and it appears that the boosting of George H. Fairley of Duluth is bearing fruit, for he is the instigator of most of this advertising.

Mr. Fairley is the man who captured the two conventions for Duluth and on his shoulders falls most of the work of getting ready. Of course the other credit men of the city are doing their part, but it is to Mr. Fairley that the officers of the two national organizations look for arrangements and he is working hard getting them to completion.

In about a week from now the program of the local committee will be ready for announcement. It will set the time for business and the time for play, based on the business programs of the two bodies that will meet here, interspersing entertainment features through the general programs. It is understood that the entertainment being planned by the local committee is quite elaborate and that it is their aim to have the visitors forget past conventions and remember only that at Duluth and to have this a standard for all future ones.

Mr. Fairley has received assurance of an immense attendance and among other things he has been called upon to do is to route many of the delegates and parties that will attend over the most enjoyable approaches. A number of parties from the East and South have written him concerning the most pleasureable way to get here and he has replied, telling of lake trips, or part lake and rail; also of the various places of interest that may be found along the way.

Reservations are already being made at the Spalding hotel, which will be headquarters for the visitors.

BUMPER CROP IN DAKOTAS.

Dickinson Editor Gives Optimistic Report of Conditions.

A bumper crop is expected in the Dakotas this year, according to H. L. Mahnke, city editor of the Recorder-Post, Dickinson, N. D., who is visiting at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Mahnke, 24 Fifty-sixth avenue east. Crop conditions are excellent, Mr. Mahnke declared, and all of the farmers are especially optimistic.

Henry Truelsen, former mayor of Duluth and the man who founded the town of Zenith, N. D., near Dickinson, is prospering, according to Mr. Mahnke.

WHEN you start to using the Real Tobacco Chew you will understand just why so many men are telling their friends about it.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough—cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

Take less than one-quarter the old size chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just take a nibble of it until you find the strength chew that suits you, then see how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

"Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste."

No Radical Action Expected By New North Dakota Organization.

Members Are More or Less Familiar With Educational Situation.

Bismarck, N. D., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Economy and efficiency will be the keynote of the state board of regents in its administration of the affairs of the state educational institutions.

This does not mean that economy will be practiced to a point where efficiency is impaired or the quality of service lowered, but an effort will be made to give the state the most for its money.

When the board met here recently for organization, Lewis F. Crawford of Sentinel Butte was chosen president and Frank White, former governor, of Valley City, vice president. The regents selected Charles Brewer of Fargo for secretary and the matter of naming a commissioner of education was left open till the next meeting as a number of names suggested by U. S. Commissioner of Education Claxton and others are under consideration.

Those who came into close personal contact with the members of the board while here gained the impression the members are likely to act very conservatively. No hasty changes are likely to be made and complete and thorough investigations will be made before any radical movements are attempted.

Are Familiar With Situation.

Each of the five members have had a widely varied business experience and have a comprehensive grasp of conditions in the state and more or less familiarity with the education situation. While many changes will possibly be made in due time, the board will proceed slowly in inaugurating new plans.

In order to get, as quickly as possible, some first hand information regarding each educational institution, the board was divided into committees which, accompanied by the secretary, will visit each school informally and gather such data as is necessary to gain a general knowledge of the systems used. Later on the entire board will visit in turn each institution and secure more information in detail.

The next session of the board will be held here Aug. 9, when the preliminary work will be completed.

For the present each institution will continue to be conducted by the same officials as had been selected by the boards having charge of them up to June 30. Necessary changes will be made as the situations develop.

Business Gives Way to Pleasure at Biennial Joint Meeting.

St. Paul, Minn., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Social activities occupied the attention today of those attending the biennial joint convention of the Woodmen of the World and its auxiliary order, the Woodmen's Circle. Business sessions were adjourned until tomorrow and most of the delegates spent the day at White Bear lake.

Officers of the main organization will be elected tomorrow.

Omaha Woman Reelected.

Mrs. E. B. Manchester of Omaha was reelected supreme guardian of the Woodmen's circle, the women's branch of the Woodmen of the World, at a business meeting late last night at which committees were organized, and reports accepted.

The Woodmen of the World yesterday listened to addresses, adopted the report of its credentials committee, and ordered greetings sent to the Shriners in session at Seattle.

BADGER DEMOCRATS IN HARMONY PLEAS

State Committee Seeks to Smooth Over Criticism of Senator Husting.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 15.—Open hostility over the distribution of Federal patronage by Senator Paul O. Husting, was manifested at the meeting of the Wisconsin Democratic state central committee which opened here late yesterday with pleas for harmony in the Democratic party of the state.

F. R. Hughes, who led a delegation from Chippewa Falls, asserted that Senator Husting had recommended appointments without consulting any of the party leaders in the state. Mr. Hughes prophesied that the senator's action would cost the latter thousands of votes if he ran for office.

Vincent Hennessy of the Fourth district, introduced the following resolution which was adopted after announcement had been made of the appointment of H. A. Sawyer, Hartford, for United States attorney and Samuel W. Randolph of Manitowoc for United States marshal of the eastern district of Wisconsin:

Resolution Adopted.

"Resolved, That the chairman appoint a committee of three to submit at the next Democratic state convention, a set of principles, which the convention may adopt as its recommendations to our federal representatives for their consideration in making appointments to Federal offices."

Harry Bolens then produced a note for $4,000 signed by Paul A. Hemmy, state Democratic chairman in 1912, which he (Bolens) had contributed to the party and for which he had not been reimbursed. After some discussion a finance committee was appointed to raise a fund to pay the note.

The formation of an association of Democratic county chairmen of the state as an auxiliary to the state central committee, was proposed.

Fealty to President Wilson was expressed in a resolution adopted.

MODEL DAIRY BARN

Planned at State Fair to Demonstrate Concrete Construction.

St. Paul, Minn., July 15.—Plans for a model dairy barn of concrete construction were approved yesterday by the executive committee of the state fair board, and a ground permit issued to the Lehigh Portland Cement company. The building will be erected by the cement company in time for the opening of the fair. It will be a permanent structure, 60 by 40 feet. The company will build the barn at its own expense to demonstrate the practicability of concrete construction.

The committee opened bids and awarded a contract to the Minneapolis Roofing company for repairing the roof of the livestock pavilion. Its bid of $3,800 was the lowest submitted. The work will be completed before the opening of the fair. J. Stilwell, Minneapolis, chairman of the committee, presided at the meeting, which was held at the fair grounds.

No other business of importance was transacted.

OSHKOSH LUMBER STRIKE.

Granted One Concession, Strikers Now Want to Unionize.

Oshkosh, Wis., July 15.—A large number of the employes of the Paine Lumber company went out on strike yesterday afternoon, giving as their reason their objection to the employment of an efficient expert by the receivers of the company, the Wisconsin Trust company of Milwaukee, J. A. Kimberley, Neenah, and A. L. Osborn, Oshkosh. The receivers have agreed to remove the expert, but the men declare that they are now going to unionize and have sent to Chicago for an organizer.

PHONE RATE INCREASE.

Railroad Commission Promises to Look Into Matter.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 15.—The railroad and warehouse commission has made answer to the protest which W. P. Trickett, traffic director of the Minneapolis Civic and Commerce association, recently made against the increase in long distance telephone rates, recently announced by the two big companies operating in Minnesota.

The commission explains that the nature of the act which placed the telephone companies under its control places on the state the burden of proof of excessiveness of rates. It cites the fact that the increases were made before July 1, the date on which the companies came under state control and concludes by saying that Mr. Trickett's letter "will be placed on file and despondency are believed to have prompted the act.

DR. FLEXNER GOING TO STUDY GOPHER SCHOOLS

Minneapolis, Minn., July 15.—Abram Flexner, eastern educator, will come to Minnesota in September to investigate the state's rural school system. His visit will be the result of a report by Dr. George E. Vincent, president of the University of Minnesota, to the general education board, which met last week at Rockland, Maine. Dr. Vincent, who returned from the meeting yesterday, said he told the board that consolidation of Minnesota rural schools had greatly improved the system and the board was so impressed that it decided to send Dr. Flexner here with a view of recommending the plan in other states.

BEMIDJI IMPROVEMENTS.

Considerable Work Is Being Done in Beltrami County Seat.

Bemidji, Minn., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—During the past month building activity here has increased at a gratifying rate. The St. Hilaire Retail Lumber company has spent $4,000 in improvements this spring and made the Bemidji plant the most complete in its entire system of more than forty plants. The improvements of this plant consist of a large modern warehouse and dry shed, the yards have been completely changed and now a carpenter workshop is being built.

Troppman's department store will undergo a thorough remodeling, and when completed will be brick construction throughout, instead of frame. A solid brick wall is to be built on the east and south sides connecting with the brick walls on the north and west sides which were built last summer. The building now covers a space of 50 by 90 feet and has 14,000 feet of floor space, but it may be extended to the alley before the improvements are completed.

On Third street the buildings of George T. Baker & Co., and the Palmer hardware store and the old McCaig store, which are owned by Charles Warfield, are to be extensively improved. New brick fronts are to be put in each building and the interiors of the Palmer and McCuaig buildings are to be improved.

The new $12,000 Birchmont Beach summer hotel has also been completed and is one of the most modern and up-to-date buildings of its kind in Northern Minnesota.

Several improvements are being made on the depot of the Minneapolis Red Lake & Manitoba railroad and will include a concrete foundation, a concrete platform and a new heating plant will be installed.

RAINY RIVER LOWER.

Reducing Water in Lake of Woods Has Its Effects.

International Falls, Minn., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer Kenora, which was to have taken an excursion trip down the Rainy river last Sunday night, was unable to land at the lower dock because of the low water. The captain was also afraid to take a chance on the river with a large crowd since the low water makes navigation very dangerous. The reason for the sudden lowering of the water was that it was let out of the Lake of the Woods at Kenora, Ont., where a dam controls the level of the lake. Farmers along the south shore near Baudette and Warroad were complaining that their land was becoming flooded.

BARTENDER IS HIT WITH BEER GLASS

International Falls, July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Tubbs, bartender at the Koochiching saloon, was struck in the head by a beer class thrown by an Italian Monday noon. Tubbs and two Italians became entangled in some controversy and the foreigner threw the glass, cutting Tubbs' head badly and injuring one eye. The two then ran and word was sent to Chief of Police Robert Kirkpatrick, who was home to lunch. He immediately started out and ran into the two men, bringing them to jail. No hearing has yet been held. The man throwing the glass bears a bad reputation here and it is said that he once made an attempt at the life of one of the prominent citizens of this city.

NO FARGO CHAIN GANG.

Closing Moorhead Saloons Cuts Off Usual Human Derelicts.

Fargo, N. D., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—There are fewer human derelicts here since the Moorhead saloons were closed. The Fargo police can no longer secure a sufficient number of either local or transient human driftwood to make the street chain gang.

The authorities are now planning to adopt more rigid regulations regarding tramps and vagrants in order to recruit the chain gangs to the usual number.

With the saloons closed in Moorhead, however, there will be fewer of these characters hanging around and it looks like Fargo will have to pay out perfectly good money to have the weeds on vacant lots cut and the rubbish on the city parks and the public play grounds collected.

The DOCTOR'S ADVICE

by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply in any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Ellwood streets, Dayton, O., enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name, and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

"Vain" asks: "How may I cure my scalp of a very disagreeable itching and scaly condition and at the same time not endanger the growth of my hair? I have tried many so-called dandruff lotions but they have been more harmful than helpful."

Answer: The liquids you have used to cure dandruff have no doubt contained alcohol and cheap perfume. I would suggest the immediate use of plain yellow minyol to remove dandruff and make the scalp alive and healthy. Three or four treatments should correct your scalp and beautify your hair.

"Too fat" writes: "Since I have gotten so stout, I don't feel well and I tire easily. I want to reduce safely but surely."

Answer: Five grain arbolone tablets are highly endorsed as safe and sure flesh reducers. I have recommended them in many cases of obesity and they have given perfect satisfaction.

"Worried" writes: "My condition is worrying me. I am only thirty, and up until a few months ago never knew what it was to feel tired or worn out. Now the feeling of fatigue never leaves me. I've 'lost my backbone' have a shortness of breath and feel almost exhausted and wholly without ambition. Feel grouchy and have pains in the back of my head and spine. What will liven me up and make me strong, so that I can meet social and business requirements?"

Answer: You need a good tonic to build up your blood and soothe and strengthen your nerves; something to restore your energy and overcome the weariness and make you a man again. Three grain cadomene tablets are most effective and highly recommended. Start using them now, and in a short time you should feel fine and better than you ever did.

"Mary G." asks: "How may I increase my weight? I am very bony and angular looking. I eat plenty but it does not seem to nourish my system."

Answer: The most satisfactory and healthful treatment, to increase your weight, you will find in the use of three-grain hypo-nuclane tablets. Taken with your meals they cause proper assimilation of the food, and in this way nourish and tone the tissue and nerve cells of the body. They should be taken for several months.

"Worried" writes: "I have constant headache and backache, my feet swell and I am tired all the time. My eyes look puffed and appear yellow. The urine is very little and of bad odor. My blood seems to be turning to water. I am quite worried, as I seem to get worse all the time."

Answer: You have a bad case of kidney trouble, and you should be very careful. Don't work too hard and avoid taking cold. If you will begin at once taking balmwort tablets, you will get almost immediate relief and continued treatment should greatly relieve you. These tablets come in sealed tubes with full directions.

"Mrs. W. J. T." writes: "You helped a cousin of mine when she had diseased blood. I think now my blood is impure and I want a good blood medicine. I am very much constipated."

Answer: If your blood is impure you would know from some of these symptoms: constipation, headache, coated tongue, sallow complexion, breaking out of the skin, tired feeling and possibly indigestion and some fever. Take three grain sulpherb tablets, (not sulphur). They are splendid to clean the system and put your blood right.

HIGH OFFICIAL GIVES PRAISE

Superintendent of Printing in Kentucky Lauds Tanlac.

Says It Relieved Bad Case of Catarrh After Others Failed.

Frankfort, Ky., July 14.—Moses R. Glenn, state superintendent of public printing, whose popularity and wide acquaintance are indicated by the importance of the elective public position he holds, told today how he had found relief from an obstinate case of catarrh through taking Tanlac, the premier preparation.

"I am a conservative man," he observed, "and I have always been especially skeptical about indorsements of any medicine. This is so in spite of the fact that I have tried one remedy after another in the effort to rid myself of catarrh. I believe I had used nearly everything on the market before I tried Tanlac.

"At night, when I slept, which was always unsoundly, I evidently swallowed the accumulations of mucous from my nose and throat. Invariably I woke with a choking, sickening sensation. My head felt full, and I expectorated during the morning.

"The itchling in my ears became almost unbearable, and there was a roaring noise, too. I had an unpleasant taste in my mouth. I ate very little, and did not enjoy that.

"My condition became so distressing that I decided it would be necessary for me to resign my position and go to a dry salt climate like Florida.

"I watched the introduction of Tanlac into Kentucky with interest, and finally decided, when I found so many others telling of the good it had done them, to try it. I confess I had little faith that I would derive any great good from it, but I had reached that stage where I was willing to resort to anything. I was most pleasantly surprised. I began to improve rapidly.

"My whole system is improved now. The accumulations in my nose and throat have disappeared. I am so benefited physically that I have been able to throw off the other symptoms. I eat heartily and digest my food without difficulty. I am a well man, and I feel that it is my duty to tell others of the good this wonderful remedy has done for me."

Mr. Glenn is but one of hundreds of prominent persons in Kentucky who praised Tanlac publicly. This, "the master medicine," is now on sale in Duluth at W. A. Abbett's drug store, 319 West Superior street. Claude J. Meredith, "the Tanlac man," is present to explain to the public the merits of Tanlac. —Advertisement.

TO PAVE MORE THAN PLANNED

New Petition Filed for Improvement of West Eighth Street.

Eighth street will be paved from Twenty-second avenue west to Twenty-fifth avenue west, instead of from Twenty-second to Twenty-third.

When a petition signed by Emil Kjall, 2431 West Eighth street, and twenty-two others, was filed with the city clerk today, Works Commissioner Farrell announced that advertisements for bids on the one block of work, now out, would be withdrawn, and the entire job readvertised.

"This will complete the stretch and equalize the assessment," he said, "making it much more satisfactory for all concerned."

Some time ago a petition was filed asking that the street be improved between Twenty-second and Twenty-third avenues west.

In the petition, it is specified that crushed rock macadam be used, that the street be twenty-six feet wide and that four-foot cement sidewalks be installed.

"I will hold up the first block of work until this second petition is acted upon," said Mr. Farrell, "and put it all through at the same time. I intend to advertise for bids on gravel, roc-mac and class B macadam, and then allow the property owners to choose what they want."

A petition signed by M. J. Solberg, 701 Grand avenue west, and six others, asking that a sanitary sewer be installed in Eighth street along Central avenue to the westerly line of lot 10, block 44, West Duluth, also was filed with City Clerk Walter Borgen.

BRIGHT PROSPECTS FOR CUYUNA RANGE

Ex-Congressman Buckman Predicts New Era of Prosperity.

Mining operations on the Cuyuna range are continuing with great success near Brainerd, according to C. B. Buckman, Little Falls, deputy United States marshal, who is in Duluth attending to business relative to the July term of the Federal court. Mr. Buckman has mining interests near Brainerd, and is optimistic regarding the ore situation on the ranges.

"The ore industry never looked brighter than it does at present," said Mr. Buckman today. "The European war is causing a great revival in all lines of the metal industry, and I look to see quotations go much higher. The industrial situation throughout the whole country is getting better and business is making big gains. Duluth and all northern Minnesota are in a position to profit by it.

"The railway situation is also improving and there seems to be a change of sentiment regarding corporations. There has been a lot of regulative legislation during the last few years, and the country is now ready to go ahead in a more quiet and steady manner than ever before. The next few years should show remarkable prosperity all over the United States."

While declining to discuss politics, Former Congressman Buckman declared that crop prospects in his part of the state were excellent and that he believed that Minnesota would produce a record yield this year.

NO CREDIT FOR AUTOMOBILES

Henry Ford Says Manufacturers Will Not Carry Banks' Burden.

Wisconsin Bankers Warned Against Loans to Farmers for Autos.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 15.—A meeting of the executive council of the Wisconsin Bankers' association, to be followed by various committee reports and the discussion of "country bank problems" from different angles, made up the program of the closing day's convention.

C. J. Borum of Barron, discussing the phase "automobile loans" of "country bank problems," warned fellow-bankers against being too liberal in making loans to be used in the purchase of automobiles.

"If the automobile manufacturer expects to keep up with the present pace, he will need to follow the plan of the piano and the agricultural implement manufacturers, viz., carry his dealer's paper and the paper of his dealer's customer," he said.

Letter From Ford.

A letter from Henry Ford, prominent manufacturer and philanthropist of Detroit, Mich., treating on the same subject, was read, in which he told the members of the Wisconsin Bankers' association that the automobile manufacturer will not relieve the banker of the burden caused by the fact that farmers are buying automobiles on credit.

"Why should time be extended on farm machinery or automobiles until they are practically worn out, any more than time should be extended on the purchase of horses or cattle?" wrote Mr. Ford.

"I know that time is extended on cattle where they grow in value themselves, but I do not know of any system whereby horses are purchased on credit and paid for after they are dead, or the best part of their usefulness worked out. It always seemed to me that the putting off of the day of payment for anything but permanent improvements was a fundamental mistake."

Department Commended.

The work of the state banking department was commended in the following resolutions:

"Resolved, That in the interests of safe banking in this state, we reiterate our stand repeatedly taken at previous conventions in the matter of keeping the state banking department absolutely removed from the influences of politics, and in this connection let it be said that it is apparent the intent of bill 802 A is to again place the office of commissioner of banking into politics, which step, if taken, would jeopardize our system of bank supervision—and we are therefore unalterably opposed to the passage of such a bill.

"Be it further resolved, That it be the sentiment of this convention that 489 S, the intent of which is to give the commissioner of banking certain discretion in the matter of granting bank charters, is hereby unequivocally indorsed."

COPPER COUNTRY BOOMS

All Men Wanting Employment Can Find It There.

Calumet, Mich., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Michigan Copper country is enjoying the greatest prosperity it has ever experienced. There is not a man idle who desires employment and wages are higher than ever before. The substantial gift made the employes of all the companies associated with the Calumet & Hecla Mining company in May brought business back to more than its normal volume and every line is doing well. Deposits in the banks of Houghton, Keweenaw and Ontonagon counties are the heaviest in the history of the district and more new savings accounts have been opened by the working people in the past month or six weeks than ever before in a similar period. The principal amusements, public, of the people of the district are excursions and reunion picnics, for the district, for all it has a population of more than 100,000 people, is without baseball other than the juvenile sort, cricket or other summer sports. Big picnics are held near each town nearly every Saturday and attract many thousands of people.

BRAVERY OF GERMANS ADMITTED BY BRITISH

Berlin, July 15, by wireless to Sayville.—The Overseas News agency today says:

"The conditions of the surrender of the German forces in Southwest Africa make clear that the German troops numbered 204 officers and 3,094 men (a little more than one regular infantry regiment on a war footing) with seven field pieces and twenty-two machine guns. This force was matched after prolonged warfare and terrible fatigue against 20,000 men. The bravery of the Germans was admitted by the British, who even permitted non-commissioned officers and privates to keep their side arms and guns."

WHEAT TAKES SHARP BREAK

Flaxseed Trading Is Quiet, But Quotations Are Firmly Held.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 15.—The market was weak at the close on fresh selling. July wheat closed 2c off; September 2¼c off and December 1⅝c off. July durum closed 1c up and September ⅜c up.

Oats closed ⅝c up at 53c for on the track; rye 3c up at 98c and barley unchanged at from 65c to 70c.

At Winnipeg, July oats closed 1c up at 61¾c bid and October ⅛c off at 42⅜c asked.

Puts on Minneapolis September wheat closed at $1.06 and calls at $1.12½.

Nervousness was shown in the wheat market again today and as trading proceeded weakness developed. At the outset the market was called upon to absorb considerable realizing on yesterday's upturn in prices, and declines of 1⅜c were recorded at the start in the September future. The quotation then recovered to the extent of ⅜c and later on renewed selling, a break of 1c was recorded, leaving it at $1.11⅞ at the noon. Business in the July future was limited. After opening unchanged at $1.46 it broke 1c and then recovered to the same extent. Durum was strong, July selling up 1c to $1.21 and September 2c to $1.20.

With the limited receipts at all the markets and persistent millers' inquiry, the tight situation in old wheat is growing worse. Inspections of all classes of wheat at Duluth today were only 4 cars, compared with 41 last year, and at Chicago there were just 17 cars, compared with 524 a year ago.

The delayed movement of new winter wheat continues to be emphasized, as for example only 85,000 bu was received today at Kansas City against 458,000 bu last year. At St. Louis 44,000 bu came to hand, compared with 313,000 bu a year ago.

Export inquiry is reported to be picking up and expectations now are that a large volume of business will be put through during the first movement of winter wheat to the markets. The seaboard reported that 600,000 bu had been sold yesterday, mainly for September shipment.

It was intimated today that the British and French governments have made Shipman, Anderson & Co. of London their agents for the purchase of grain on their account. This firm is rated as one of the largest in the trade. The Ames-Brooks company of Duluth is understood to be in close touch with it and it was through it that Julius H. Barnes is credited with having placed a large volume of export trade during the past season.

There were no further tangible black rust reports from over the Northwest today and advices were generally to the effect that the crop is making good headway.

Flaxseed Quiet.

Trading in flaxseed was on the quiet order again, but the market held firm in spite of lower cables. Crushers bought only in small lots to cover immediate needs.

July flax closed unchanged at $1.70½ asked. September opened unchanged at $1.74, and closed unchanged at $1.74 asked. October opened unchanged at $1.75¾, and closed ¼c up at $1.76 asked. November opened ¼c up at $1.76 asked, and closed unchanged at $1.76½ asked.

At Winnipeg, July flax closed ½c off at $1.51½ bid, and October ⅛c up at $1.55⅝ bid.

MARKET GOSSIP.

London cables state the British and French governments have made Shipman Anderson & Co., of London, their agent, through whom grain will be bought in other countries. All the contracts will pass through the hands of that firm.

T. W. Lewis wired C. E. Lewis & Co., from Winnipeg: "Rain and cloudy over Canada again. There are large districts in Saskatchewan where rain is a good thing on account of the drought last year, but a period of warm sunshine would be beneficial. A considerable portion of Saskatchewan is just coming into the head and I figure six weeks to harvest from that time brings it close to Sept. 1 before the crop will be ready to cut. There is always danger from frost in this country after Aug. 15. One year they had a heavy frost on Aug. 5. As the crop now stands everything is all right but it needs clear weather."

Paine Commission company had the following from Logan & Bryan at Chicago: "Cables this morning respond in a fair degree to the strength in our market yesterday. Further scattered rains through the winter wheat belt leaves the situation unchanged from that angle. Up to the present time black rust development in the Northwest is restricted to a few scattered localities and is unimportant. Whether or not it will become a menace will depend on weather conditions. The speculative short interest to which we called attention as being over-extended for some time, covered heavily yesterday, some of the heaviest local individual buying being directly traced to them. After this large advance the future course of values will be governed to a great extent by the weather map."

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "Strength in America and dearer Indian offers caused a strong undertone here. Prospective arrivals are light. Spot market was strong and unchanged to 3d higher, with a good demand for old winters and an increasing demand for new. Cargo market was strong, winters a shilling higher, Manitobas shilling 3d higher, Indians shilling dearer and offers light, while Plates were 6 to 9d higher. European requirements will be liberal and very little provision has as yet been made by purchase."

A Minneapolis wire from Wilmot, S. D., says: "Examined several fields of wheat here today where rust was reported. I was unable to find any. Wheat is in blossom. It is three weeks to harvest. Present prospects are for better than an average crop."

A Cogswell, N. D., letter said: "In last couple of days I have examined fields between here and Oaks, Milnor, Havana and Britton. Did not find even a sign of black rust and prospects are for a better crop."

Foreign crop summary:

Russia—Highly favorable crop prospects, winter wheat 5,000,000 acres in excess of last year. Yield estimate is 304,000,000 bu against 216,000,000 bu last year. Poland crops are omitted. Spring wheat outlook very favorable. Rye promises 850,000,000 bu against 773,000,000 bu last year.

India—Moisture is plentiful for new crops. Estimates regarding the exportable surplus are being lowered, and the 80,000,000 bu indicated early in the season will not be realized.

Balkan states—Rain is wanted for corn.

Argentina—Weather is clear and warm with dryness in the north and center. Shipments of wheat this week will be light. Exporters are not buying owing to excessive prices asked. Tonnage is largely given to corn.

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Prices Decline on Start, But Show Quick Recovery.

Chicago, July 15.—Notwithstanding that wheat at the start today showed a tendency to decline, prices quickly recovered. The failure of Liverpool quotations to reflect in full the sharp advances here led at first to a good deal of selling. Sentiment, however, changed in favor of the bull side when the fact developed that export houses here were buying. In addition, the prevalence of rainy weather counted against the bears. After opening ¼ to 1⅛c lower the market underwent a further sag and then rose in some cases slightly above last night's level.

A decided advance ensued owing somewhat to black rust reports from new points northwest. July rose to the highest figures touched since the last week of May. The strength, however, failed to last, it being said the bulge had stopped export sales. Closing prices were unsettled at ¾@1⅜c net decline.

Corn swayed with wheat. Trade was rather light. The opening, which ranged from the same as last night to ⅜c down, was followed by an additional decline and later a complete rally.

Pronounced weakness developed subsequently. Hot weather was said to be forcing the crop growth. The close was nervous ¾@1⅛c under last night.

In oats as well as in corn the chief influence was the action of the wheat market. Most of the transactions in oats were between pit speculators.

Higher prices for hogs lifted provisions. The chief demand, though, came from shorts.

London Money.

London, July 15.—The money market is feeling the effect of preparations being made to pay in full for the war loan next Tuesday and supplies are shrinking and rates advancing. Discounts were firmer today in sympathy. On the stock exchange the old war loan was flat.

The American section was equally dull. Canadian Pacific, United States Steel and a few gold bonds were the only issues traded in during the day.

BRITAIN NOT TO TAKE CANADA'S CROP

Wheat Will Be Put on Market in Regular Way This Fall.

There is now said to be no likelihood of the British government taking over the present season's Canadian wheat as had been foreshadowed at the beginning of the week in a cable from London. The fact that the Canadian crop will be marketed in the regular way will be a relief to Duluth grain men.

The situation is outlined in a dispatch from Ottawa, to the Toronto Globe. It says: "The cabled press report from Great Britain that Premier Borden may arrange with the British government to take over the whole Canadian wheat crop this year is not confirmed in government circles here. There is little likelihood at present of any such action being taken, in view of the fact that, according to the present outlook, there will be ample supplies of wheat available at ordinary market prices from the usual sources of supply for all the allied powers without resorting to any governmental requisitioning of food supplies.

An Impracticable Plan.

"India, Canada, the United States and Argentina, with the prospective opening of the Dardanelles, thus rendering Russia's accumulated wheat supplies accessible, will be able easily to take care of all British and French needs. The uncertainty as to price fluctuations, the variety of grades, etc., also make any action along the line of a governmental fixed price and governmental purchase of the whole crop almost impracticable as well as unnecessary under present conditions.

"The real problem in connection with this year's wheat crop in Canada is in regard to harvest help and ocean transportation. With approximately 150,000 Canadians under arms, a large percentage of whom are men who would have been available as harvesters, there promises to be a serious scarcity of workers in the western wheat field next August and September. With hundreds of ocean steamers taken off their usual routes and requisitioned for war purposes, there has been for months past a great scarcity of Atlantic tonnage. The government is seeking a solution to both problems. A considerable number of harvesters will likely be brought to the prairies this autumn from British Columbia, and an effort will also be made to secure harvesters from the United States if it is found that it is necessary to supplement the expected decrease in the usual numbers who go west from Eastern Canada.

Borden Arranging For Ships.

"To meet the ocean tonnage situation, arrangements are being made with the admiralty, through Premier Borden, to release a number of ships which are now under admiralty orders for transport service, etc., and allow them to relieve the increasing congestion of freight at Canadian Atlantic terminals. Negotiations are being carried on with a view to government requisitioning or chartering of a number of freighters to handle the wheat export from Canada as soon as the crop movement begins in September."

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Standard Shares Divide Honors With the War Specialties.

Steel, Reading and Union Pacific Make Good Gains.

New York, July 15.—War shares gave promise of greater activity and higher prices at the opening of today's trading. Gains of 1 to almost 2 points were registered by Bethlehem Steel, Crucible Steel, Westinghouse, General Motors and Baldwin Locomotive, with a new high record for the latter. In the more representative issues yesterday's irregularity was renewed, Southern Pacific displaying marked heaviness. Canadian Pacific also reflected further pressure, despite its substantial gain in the London market, where other international stocks were variably lower. Reactions from early prices were general before the end of the half hour.

Southern Pacific fell almost 2 points and declines of 1 to 2 points were made by Great Northern and New Haven before fresh buying rallied the list in the second hour of today's trading on the stock exchange. Bethlehem Steel with an overnight gain of 8 points made a new record, likewise Westinghouse and Willys-Overland. American Smelting and National Lead rose 2 and 1½ respectively, but other metal shares made little headway. On the rebound United States Steel led the former leaders, advancing within a fraction of its recent high mark. Missouri, Kansas & Texas made new records with renewed weakness in Southern Pacific at midday. Bonds were irregular.

Further selling of Southern Pacific which was attributed to foreign interests, affected Union Pacific to a moderate degree and the market in general reacted 1 to 4 points. Trading became dull on the decline.

Standard shares divided honors with specialties in the final hour, Steel, Reading and Union Pacific leading with gains of 1 to 2 points. The closing was strong.

EXTREME WEAKNESS IN COTTON MARKET

Extreme weakness has developed in the cotton markets of late, a decline of 110 points being recorded since the appearance of the government crop report of July 1. There has been a maximum decline of 220 points, or approximately $11 a bale from the high points of the season.

The July cotton price of 8.42 cents, sets this week, represented a Southern market basis of about 7½ cents. This is admittedly far below the cost of production upon the basis on which such costs are calculated.

Prospects for a much heavier cotton crop than had been counted upon contributed to the recent slump, and then with German trade cut off the needs of England and France conceded to be filled up for some time ahead, cotton operators are disposed to be pessimistic regarding the export trade outlook. In the meantime the trade is inclined to await the marketing of the new crop and to ascertain definitely what assistance the Federal reserve bank will afford growers in holding it.

ORDERS FOR STEEL GROW ENORMOUSLY

Activity in steel trade circles is being reflected in increased operations at the plants and the employment of additional men in the Chicago, Pittsburgh and Sharon districts.

New business of the United States Steel corporation is estimated to have been coming in at the rate of 60,000 tons a day during the last three weeks. In January new business was at the rate of only 20,000 tons a day. In February, March, April and May it was at the rate of around 30,000 tons, while in June it had advanced to about 40,000 tons daily. Current orders are said to be averaging at between 10,000 and 15,000 tons a day in excess of the present output of the corporation's plants.

All mills and furnaces of the Republic Iron & Steel company are reported to be in full operation and all plants of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube company are operating in full. The Ohio works and upper and lower mills of the Carnegie Steel company are also running to capacity.

COUNTERFEITERS WORKED ALL WINTER IN DULUTH, MAKING THOUSANDS OF BOGUS BILLS

JUDGE DECLARES THAW SANE AND GIVES HIM HIS FREEDOM; STATE ATTORNEYS TO APPEAL

THAW GIVES BAIL FOR HIS APPEARANCE

Bonds to Amount of $35,000 Required By Justice Hendrick.

Commitment to Asylum Not Vacated But Ceases to Operate.

New York, July 16.—Harry Kendall Thaw, adjudged sane last Wednesday by a jury, was given his freedom today by Supreme Court Justice Peter A. Hendrick, who announced that he had adopted the jury's verdict.

The state immediately served notice of appeal and Justice Hendrick fixed Thaw's bail at $35,000 to insure his presence at future proceedings. A surety company was prepared to give the bond and Thaw was taken from the courthouse to the judge's chambers so that details might be arranged.

A crowd that numbered several hundred lined the sidewalks and overflowed the streets around the courthouse, cheered Thaw and applauded wildly when he appeared on the courthouse steps.

Announces Decision.

In announcing his decision, Justice Hendrick took occasion to comment unfavorably upon the action of alienists who had assisted the state in preparing the case and then appeared as expert witnesses in court.

ANTI-ROAD HOUSE LAW IS DECLARED VALID BY STATE SUPREME COURT

MAY BE LANSING'S SUCCESSOR AS STATE DEPARTMENT COUNSELLOR

JOHN W. DAVIS.

John W. Davis, solicitor general of the United States, is being mentioned as a possible successor to Robert Lansing as counselor of the state department. Mr. Davis was born at Clarksburg, W. Va., in 1873. He was a member of the Sixty-second and Sixty-third congresses and resigned from congress to accept his present position. He is a lawyer by profession.

Technicalities and Charges of Illegal Procedure Swept Aside.

Fact That Final Passage Was By Two-Thirds Sufficient.

Both House Journals Show That Law Was Legally Passed.

St. Paul, Minn., July 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sweeping aside all technicalities and charges of illegal procedure raised by the opposition, which caused Judge Michael of the Ramsey county district court to declare the anti-roadhouse law invalid, the supreme court in an opinion handed down today holds the act to be constitutional and therefore good law. The fact that the house in its final vote on the measure gave it more than a two-thirds majority, the court says, is sufficient.

The roadhouse bill was known as Senate File 719. It passed the senate in regular order and when it reached the house was turned over to the committee on temperance, which showed a disposition to put it to sleep. On April 10, Representative Bjornson made a motion for its withdrawal from the committee, which was done. In order followed a motion that the bill be given its second and third reading and placed on its final passage, which was done.

Mistake Not Noticed.

Mr. Bjornson in calling for the sus-

TROLLEY LINES TIED UP IN PROVIDENCE

Few Cars in Operation in Rhode Island City on Account of Strike.

Providence, R. I., July 16.—The tie-up of the trolley lines in this city and throughout the state, resulting from the strike of employes of the Rhode Island company yesterday, was almost complete today. A few cars were put in operation early today but the number of non-union men reporting for work was smaller than on yesterday. Additional suburban trains were put on by the steam railroads during the morning rush hours and motor buses were busy in all parts of the city.

An answer was looked for today from union officials to the offer made yesterday by Mayor Joseph H. Gainer to use his influence to bring about a settlement of the differences. This offer was accepted by the company.

FAMOUS SUBMARINE U-51 SUNK BY RUSS

Gained Fame By Dodging British Ships and Getting Through Gibraltar.

London, July 16.—The German submarine U-51 has been sunk in the Black sea by Russian warships, according to information received from Varna, a Bulgarian port on the Black sea, by the Athens correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph company.

The submarine U-51 gained fame by eluding the British blockade and passing through the Strait of Gilbraltar. The U-51 has been credited with sinking several vessels belonging to the allies, including the British battleship Majestic.

She did much to prevent the allies' warships from co-operating with the land forces on the Gallipoli peninsula.

GERMANS CROSS THE WINDAU.

Berlin, July 16, via London, 3:20 p. m.—The German forces have crossed the Windau river to the north of Kolduyani in Courland. The announcement to this effect was contained in the official statement given out today by the German army headquarters staff.

Paris, July 16.—Hill No. 285, in the forest of the Argonne, which was stormed by the Germans early this week, has been recaptured by the French forces, according to the official statement given out this afternoon by the French war department.

Von Hindenburg Active.

London, July 16.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg has again come into the limelight, which brings the Germans within the zone which they reached last winter when the Polish capital was saved by a Russian counter offensive.

Petrograd appears not to be greatly disturbed over the latest German drive, claiming that much severe frontal fighting must be done before Warsaw can be surrounded by the forces of Field Marshals von Hindenburg and von Mackensen.

In Southeastern Galicia, the Austro-German armies are making their way across the Dniester river under a heavy Russian artillery fire which has prevented the troops crossing in several places.

Fighting again is becoming lively in

CONFESSION FROM LEADER OF GANG TO POLICE OF CHICAGO

Officers Raid Rooming House, Finding $250,000 in Counterfeit Money and $25,000 in Bonds.

When Chicago police raided a West Side rooming house to quell a disturbance this morning they found a quarter of a million dollars in counterfeit money and false Minnesota state bonds to the amount of $25,000, which, in all probability, were manufactured last winter in Duluth.

Samuel Robbins, aged 22, formerly of 28 West Second street, Duluth, arrested in the rooming house, is the leader of a gang of counterfeiters who have been working on an enormous scale, according to Chicago police. Telegraphic reports state that he has confessed.

Katherine O'Leary, proprietor of the rooming house on West Second street, said that Robbins had been there all winter, and that he left in April to go to Detroit, Mich. His home was in Chicago, he told her.

Doing "Art Work."

"It took four men to get his trunk out when he left," she said, "and he had a lot of fine machinery. There weren't any big pieces, but he was very careful of them, and I thought he was doing art work of some kind.

"Robbins was a very pleasant young man, and he told me that he was an automobile repair man by trade. He never worked at that trade, here, as far as I know, but spent most of his time in his room, with the door locked. I don't know what he was doing, and he didn't talk much about himself."

When detectives entered the room in the Chicago house this morning they found what probably was the same trunk, so full of spurious money that two men could hardly lift it from the floor. Included in the counterfeit money were 2,000 genuine $1 bills which had been raised to fives. The usual machinery connected with the

WELSH MINERS MAY RESUME ON MONDAY

Unbroken Front Shown By the Men and No Disorder.

London, July 16.—The South Wales miners today are showing an unbroken front in conformity with the resolution passed at the meeting of delegates at Cardiff yesterday when it was decided to reject the recommendation of the executive committee that the men return to work. Even the men in one district, who last night decided to resume work, reversed their decision and not a pick is moving.

An improvement in the situation, however, is expected as a result of mass meetings in the various districts today, and the conferences of Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade, with representatives of the miners and the pit owners.

May Resume Monday.

The men's leaders, who throughout have opposed the strike, are inclined to the view that a resumption of work may be expected Monday, and the government's prompt action in setting up a general munitions tribunal for Wales and Monmouthshire is thought likely to help bring about a settlement.

Should the Runciman conferences today not turn out favorably, David Lloyd George, the minister of munitions, possibly will visit the perturbed district. His influence with the men in previous disputes has been very effective. In the meantime perfect peace reigns in the coal fields.

DIPLOMACY MAY PREVAIL

German Ambassador Believes Controversy Can Be Settled.

Count Von Bernstorff Calls on Secretary of State Lansing.

Washington, July 16.—Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, told Secretary Lansing today he believed the German reply to the last American note on submarine warfare presented opportunity for settlement of the controversy by further diplomatic negotiation.

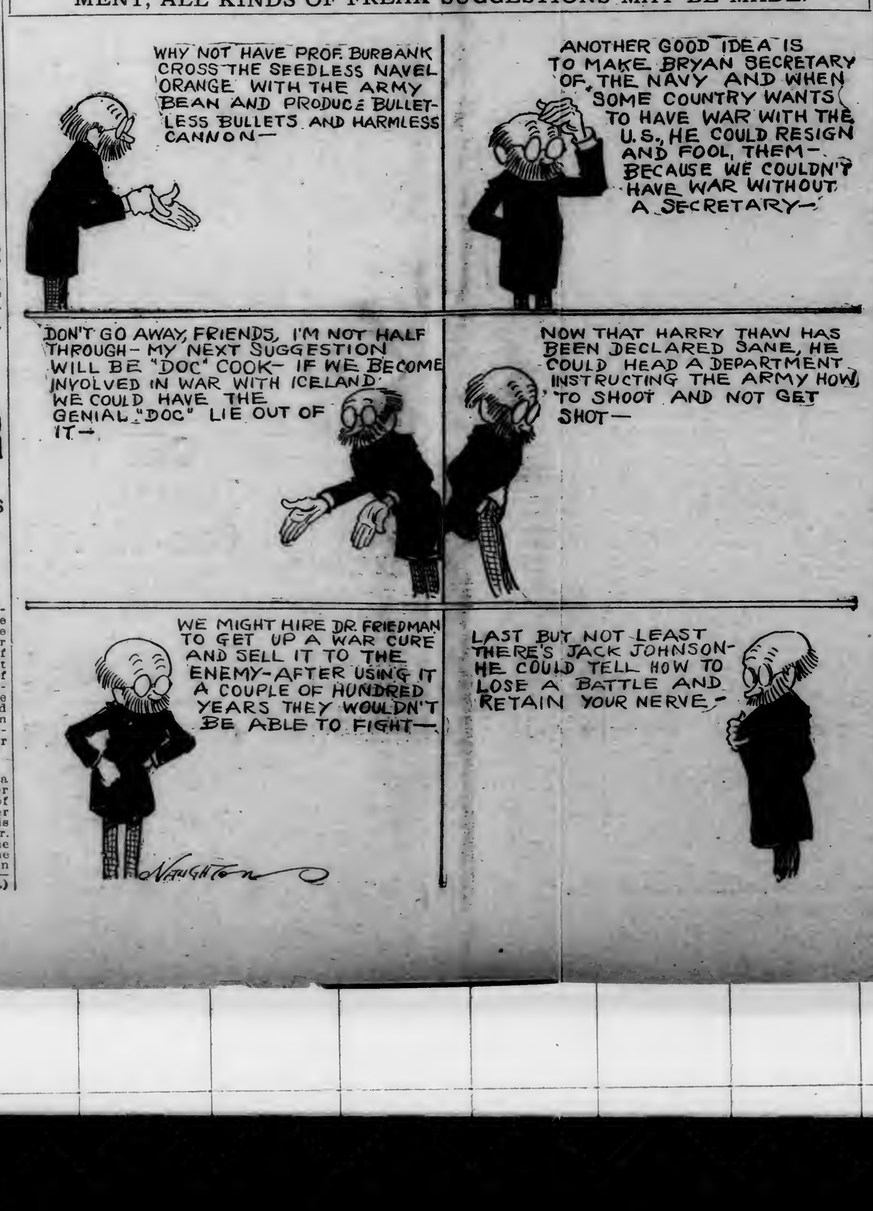

The ambassador conferred with Mr. Lansing an hour, and talked later with Assistant Secretary Phillips. In the absence of President Wilson, Secretary Lansing was unable to inform the ambassador what course the United States would pursue in its next note, but he heard with much interest Count von Bernstorff's explanation of the purpose of the German government to satisfy public opinion at home on the maintenance of submarine warfare and at the same time maintain friendly relations with the United States.

Exercising Greater Caution.

The ambassador personally is convinced there will be no repetition of the Lusitania disaster and that German submarines now are exercising great precaution to avoid incidents which might inflame public opinion in the United States. With that idea in mind he urged that the United States take advantage of the intimation in Berlin's reply that Germany would be willing to have the entire question of the freedom of the seas mediated with Great Britain through the American government. Such a course American officials have indicated might be more welcome if accompanied by some as-

OWNER IS NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR ACTS OF HIS CHAUFFEUR

When Wrongfully Operating Auto Outside of His Employment.

Supreme Court So Decides in Case of Minneapolis Man.

St. Paul, Minn., July 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—According to the supreme court, the owner of an automobile is not liable for the negligent acts of a chauffeur committed when wrongfully operating an automobile outside the scope of his employment. A ruling to this effect was made today by the supreme court and as a result E. A. Conrad of Minneapolis is relieved from the payment of $2,100 given John E. Provo as damages in the Hennepin county district court.

Conrad is a real estate dealer doing business in Minneapolis. He is the owner of an automobile, which while being operated by a chauffeur, ran down Provo, who was riding a bicycle. Provo sued for injuries received.

On the day that the accident occurred Conrad was driven to his home by his chauffeur, whom he directed to return to his own home with the machine, get his supper and then come back to Conrad's home and take the family to the theater. The chauffeur did return to his home, but instead of going directly there, went about eight blocks out of his way on a mission of his own. It was while on this mission that the accident occurred. The court holds that as the chauffeur did not obey orders, no liability rests on the owner of the automobile and therefore directs a reversal of the lower court's findings.

Directs Reversal.

The supreme court today directed a reversal of the findings of the Otter Tail district court in the case of Frank A. Mullen against the Otter Tail Power company. The Glen Falls Insurance company was intervenor. Mullen, who was a customer of the power company which supplied the current, operated a general store. In

SUMMARY OF THE WAR NEWS

Fighting in the Argonne region in France has turned in favor of the French, according to the Paris war office, which claims the recapture of Hill No. 285 from the army of the German crown prince.

The hill was taken early this week in the German move on Verdun, which drove the French back three-fifths of a mile along a front of nearly two miles, the German reports declared, and resulted in the capture of more than 2,500 French soldiers and several guns.

Once more the Germans are hammering heavily on the gates of Warsaw from the north, and claim considerable successes in their movement.

Latest Russian reports carry accounts of the fighting in this region up to Wednesday and make no direct mention of Przasnysz, the capture of which was claimed in Thursday's official communication from Berlin.

Repulse of German attacks between the Orzyc and Wkra fronts (south of Przasnysz), however, are mentioned in the Petrograd statement.

Active operations have been resumed by the Germans in Courland, while near the southern end of the long battle line in the east the Austrians have succeeded in forcing the passage of the Dniester at several places.

The German submarine U-51, noted for its long voyage from German waters to Constantinople, is reported sunk in the Black sea, by Russian warships.

Judge Morris Disposes of Prisoners Who Plead Guilty.

Terms of From Six Months to One Year and Three Months Given.

Federal Judge Page Morris sentenced six of the fifteen men indicted on Federal charges yesterday afternoon, and jail, reformatory, and state's prison penalties were meted out.

Morris Hughbanks, who pleaded guilty to the charge of fraudulently obtaining mail at the Winona postoffice, was given a reformatory sentence of one year and three months at the state reformatory at St. Cloud. Judge Morris gave him a severe lecture for his conduct, and urged him to pursue the straight and narrow path when he completed his term.

R. H. Garrett, who was charged with raising a money order from 2 cents to $14.50, was sentenced to a term of one year and three months at the Federal prison at Fort Leavenworth. Louis Smith and Mose Posey, indicted for introducing liquor into Indian territory, were sentenced to pay a fine of $100 each and to serve sixty days in the Carlton jail. Daniel O'Donnell, indicted on a similar charge, was sentenced to pay $100 fine and to serve sixty days in the Ottertail county jail.

John Reefer, indicted for having in his possession a quantity of morphine in violation of the Harrison anti-drug law, was given a sentence of three months at the Ramsey county jail.

William Darvinen and Anton Wendeln pleaded not guilty to a charge of introducing liquor into Indian country.

George Lazourien, who pleaded guilty to having had counterfeit money in his possession, was not sentenced, his case being held over.

NEW OFFICERS OF MYSTIC SHRINE

J. Putnam Stevens of Portland, Me., Becomes Imperial Potentate.

Seattle, Wash., July 16.—The imperial council of the Mystic Shrine yesterday chose the members of the imperial divan, the election being merely a formality. Imperial Potentate Frederick B. Smith of Rochester, N. Y., retired and the officers under him were promoted each one step.

Imperial potentate, J. Putnam Stevens, Portland, Me.; imperial deputy potentate, Henry F. Niedringhaus, Jr., St. Louis; imperial chief rabban, Charles E. Ovenshine, Minneapolis; imperial assistant rabban, Elias J. Jacoby, Indianapolis; imperial high priest and prophet, W. Freeland Kendrick, Philadelphia; treasurer, William S. Brown, Pittsburgh; recorder, Benjamin W. Rowell, Boston; imperial Oriental guide, Ellis G. Garretson, Tacoma; imperial first ceremonial master, Ernest A. Cutts, Savannah; imperial second ceremonial master, James S. McCandless, Honolulu; imperial marshal, John T. Jones, Oklahoma City; imperial captain of guards, Conrad V. Dykeman, Brooklyn.

The Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, having completed the business of the imperial council, began last night to fold their tents like the Arabs, but not to silently steal away. Instead, the caravans departed with bands playing and banners flying. All the uniformed patrols and bands will visit the Panama-Pacific exposition and many will go to the San Diego fair. Yaarab temple of Atlanta went away in the special train manned entirely by Shriners, which brought the delegation to Seattle. India temple of Oklahoma City also left in its special train.

Buffalo was selected as the place of meeting in 1916.

The feature of yesterday's entertainment was a huge picnic of the bands and patrols in Woodland park. Luncheon was served to 5,000 Shriners.

NORWAY HARD HIT BY EUROPEAN WAR

Minot, N. D., July 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Crop prospects in Norway are poor, and conditions created in that country by the great European war will be made even more acute through the prospective decreased crop, according to S. H. Lonbakken of Minot, who is touring Norway.

In a letter to a local business associate, Mr. Lonbakken writes:

"Crop prospects in Norway are quite poor. The hay crop, which is the most valuable of the crops raised here, is made, and doesn't amount to more than 40 per cent of normal. The grain crop may be better with ideal weather from now on. The reason for its poor condition is the cold, dry spring."

COMMUNITY PICNIC IS GREAT SUCCESS

State Auditor Preus Talks at Gathering Near East Grand Forks.

East Grand Forks, Minn., July 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first annual community picnic of Western Polk county was held in the Charles Ryan grove, three miles southeast of here, Wednesday, and proved a tremendous success.

The day was crammed full of entertainments of music, speeches, sports and other events.

Boys' Club Attends.

The Farm Boys' club which has ninety-eight members, attended the picnic in a body.

The excitement started early in the morning when the different sections of the boys' club matched up to determine the honors on the baseball diamond. The East Grand Forks band furnished some fine music. L. H. Hauter started the afternoon speech program with some remarks of welcome and introduced James Cumming, of the Mallory Farmers' club, who spoke of the great work that a farmers' club can do for a community. Attorney F. C. Massee spoke on "The City and Community." L. E. von Berg, the newly elected director of agriculture, responded with a few well chosen remarks.

State Auditor Speaks.

State Auditor Preus spoke at some length on the community spirit, and also on the development of the state of Minnesota. Auditor Preus entertained the gathering for about an hour in a most pleasing and instructive way. At the close of his address the Mallory Farmers' club led in singing the two prize winning farmers' club songs in which all the audience took part.

At the close of the speaking program John McDonald of East Grand Forks gave a series of fine acts with his trained horses and dogs. There were then a number of races for the younger people and a tug of war between the farmers and city men. This was probably the most exciting event of the day, but proved a rather easy victory for the tillers of the soil.

Another baseball game concluded the program.

Many Important Labor Problems Will Come Up at Winona.

Virtually every labor union in Duluth will be represented at the convention of the Minnesota Federation of Labor, which will be held in Winona next week, beginning Monday morning. Duluth delegates will attempt to elect two officers for the state body. Henry Perreault and Peter Marandaw are already vice presidents of the state organization and they will undoubtedly be returned to office.

Several men of national reputation are to be present. Among them are John H. Walker, president of the Illinois State Federation of Labor; S. S. McDonald of North Dakota and J. H. Strief of Iowa.

President E. G. Hall of the state organization says that the Winona unions are making preparations to show the delegates an excellent time during their visit.

A new plan of procedure in securing labor legislation will be discussed and plans for strengthening the workmen's compensation act will be outlined. State insurance and the attitude of the railroads toward the semi-monthly payroll system will be topics of interest.

ACTIVITIES OF THE BOYS' DEPARTMENT

Weather Interferes With Hike to Pike Lake; Many Learning to Swim; Camp Will Open Aug. 2.

The weather yesterday interfered with the hike the boys' department members were to have taken to Pike lake, but their disappointment was offset by special games and a swim at the boys' department building. The hike will be held next week and will be to Zenith Island.

This afternoon at 2:30 a crowd of boys went to the West Third street grounds for an afternoon of baseball and other outdoor games. The trip was followed by a swim. These outdoor trips have been so popular that in addition to the regular trip Tuesday afternoons for the rest of the season the boys will go on Fridays as well.

Saturday afternoon there will be a trip to Park Point. Each boy will take his lunch, swimming suit and car fare. The outing committee will supply a big fish and there will be a planked fish supper. After supper a big bonfire will be built and campfire stunts and a marshmallow roast will complete the program.

Monday morning at 10 o'clock the beginners' swimming class will meet. Many boys are learning each week. A diploma is given when a boy can swim sixty feet. Swimmers' buttons are awarded boys who can swim 200 yards and 50 yards on the back and dive into seven feet of water and bring up a ten-pound object.

Only two weeks remain before Camp Miller opens at Sturgeon lake for its eighteenth season, Aug. 2 to 28. More than 100 applications are now in. Thirty-five of these are for the first week, several are for the entire month and sixty-seven have signed up for the last two weeks. The accommodations are for 100.

One of the features of the election will be the women judges. Several of them, according to C. A. Bronson, clerk of the chool board, have been chosen for this work.

There are six hold-over directors, three of whose terms will expire in 1916 and the other three in 1917. The hold-over directors are: Mrs. Thomas J. Davis, 1916; W. B. Getchell, 1916; J. R. McGiffert, 1916; E. R. Cobb, 1917; L. Q. Greeley, 1917, and H. J. Grannis, 1917.

ENGLAND TO FIGHT BY GASES AND CHEMICALS

DESCRIBES DEATH OF ROY J. HOLMES

Was Taken Ill After Taking Swim in "Y" Pool.

The manner in which Roy J. Holmes, formerly of Duluth, met his death is related in a Bisbee, Ariz., paper, as follows:

"Roy J. Holmes, aged 25, died suddenly while bathing in the pool at the Y. M. C. A. Death was ascribed to heart trouble.

"Several others were swimming with Holmes when he was stricken. He had just clambered from the water to the side of the pool, when his companions heard him exclaim, 'I feel punk.' He was evidently suffering such distress that word was sent to Industrial Secretary Watkins and Boys' Secretary Carter, both rushing to the scene. Dr. N. C. Bledsoe immediately was summoned, pronouncing the young man dead from heart trouble. After arrival and examination of the coroner, the body was removed to the Palace undertaking rooms.

"Holmes came to the district some two years ago. For a time he was employed in the Phelps-Dodge store, later accepting a position in the Shattuck office, from which he resigned only a week ago. It is a tragic coincidence that, almost simultaneously with the sudden summons to the young man's side, Secretary Carter received a telephone communication from Douglas, offering Holmes a position there.

"Possessed of a pleasing personality and enjoying the friendship of many, both here and in other cities of the state, Holmes appeared on the threshhold of an exceptionally promising career."

The body will arrive in Duluth this evening and the funeral will be held from the residence of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Holmes.

WINS SCHOLARSHIP.

North Dakota Young Russian Honored By Minnesota University.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Benjamin Karpman, a student at the University of North Dakota, has been awarded a scholarship at the University of Minnesota in psychology and covers work during the coming year. It also carries a cash allowance. The scholarship winner has been a resident of the United States only a few years, coming from Russia.

Want No Agitators.

Oshkosh, Wis., July 16.—The strikers of the Paine Lumber company yesterday voted down propositions to return to work by a vote of 247 to 169. The labor men called a meeting at the baseball park for this morning for workmen only and requested the agitators to remain away, declaring this is a question for the workingmen to settle.

DIRECTOR OF INFORMATION BOOTH MUST HAVE "HIS WITS ABOUT HIM"

Informer E. L. Legare Proves Himself Ready for All Comers; Gives Recipe for Fudge and Will Get Cook Book; Nationality Preserved in Signatures to Incorporation Articles of N. M. D. A.

It requires a quick wit and readiness of resource to hold down the job of "director" at the information booth, established by the Commercial club each summer at the corner of Fifth avenue west and Superior street. Pretty nearly every conceivable question is asked of the young man in charge, who, this year, is E. L. Legare. Most of these questions concern directions in the city, where to go to find rooms and so forth, questions that are expected and for which there is data at hand; but a good many others that the information man is not expected to have information for are also asked.

The other day, Mr. Legare had a new one, and it is claimed, a good one. A woman called up and asked him for a recipe for fudge. Mr. Legare gave her one, and, it is claimed, a good one.

"How did you know it?" he was asked afterward.

"Oh, I knew it," he answered evasively, "but I'm going to get a cookbook for the booth."

The Commercial club officials believe that Mr. Legare must be something of a "fusser."

Last year there was another young man in charge, who also seemed to be equal to all occasions. One day R. B. Knox, then chairman of the public affairs committee, but unknown to the young man, had listened to a stream of more or less foolish questions asked the informer, and then walked up to the booth, and, with a solemn face, asked:

"Where can I find my dog?"

With a face equally solemn, the young man replied:

"At Fourth avenue east and Superior street, tied to the hydrant at the northeast corner."

That floored Mr. Knox, and his well-known laugh burst out as he introduced himself.

While dwelling on things connected with the Commercial club, a story concerning George D. McCarthy, assistant secretary of the club, is well worth relating. Mr. McCarthy has had a multiplicity of titles, some of them all in a bunch, but recently "ditched" several of them, as they were taking up too much of his time. However, he retains that of "secretary of the Northern Minnesota Development association," in which organization he is quite active. A few days ago he went to St. Paul to meet Charles T. Kelley of Menagha, president of the association, to execute and file amended articles of incorporation with the secretary of state. McCarthy and Kelley were two first-rate Hibernian names, and, without thinking about it, they had their signatures witnessed by Senator Patrick H. McGarry of Walker and Senator John M. Moonan of Waseca, neither of which names detracted from the emerald hue of the document. Then it dawned on them, so when they saw a notary sign, they went in to be sworn. They told the notary that the paper had nothing to do with the A. O. H., pointing out the excitable tendencies of the names attached, but said they believed it would do.

The notary looked the names over and said:

"I believe it will, so I'll help; my name's Daly."

ONE KILLED IN WRECK NEAR ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Rochester, N. Y., July 16.—One person was killed, eight others badly injured, and about twelve others less seriously hurt when a passenger car on the Buffalo, Lockport & Rochester Electric railroad crashed into a work train at Elm Grove, a few miles north of Rochester yesterday.

The passenger car telescoped the rear flat car of the work train, and when its elevated end came into contact with a feed wire it caught fire and burned to the trucks.

J. P. MORGAN SEES RESOLUTE WIN RACE

Wounded Man Witnesses Contest From Deck of His Yacht.

New York, July 15.—J. Pierpont Morgan, who was shot at Glen Cove, L. I., July 3, by Frank Holt, was aboard his yacht, the Corsair, yesterday afternoon off Sandy Hook, and saw the Resolute win the right to defend the America's cup by beating the Vanitie. The Resolute won by 19 seconds actual time, and 1 minute and 30 seconds corrected time. This was the third and deciding race to select the boat to meet Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock IV.

The Resolute made the 30-mile triangular course in four hours, 17 minutes and 21 seconds, leading all the way. A west wind helped both boats in the first part of the race, while a light breeze pushed them along on the last hour's run.

The Resolute won the first two races, the second on her time allowance of 1 minute and 11 seconds. In this race the Vanitie finished first by 19 seconds. The Resolute thus far has won seven of the eight races she has sailed this season.

SCHOOL VOTE ON SATURDAY

Fourteen Elections Will Be Held in St. Louis County.

Common School Districts and Duluth All Pick Officials.

Annual school meetings will be held tomorrow in all of the independent and common school districts of St. Louis county. It is the day set apart by law for the holding of school elections throughout the state. In the common districts, except in Duluth, which is constituted a special district, the meetings will be held at 7:30 o'clock in the evening, unless a different hour has been set at the preceding annual meeting. Women have a vote and a voice in all school matters.

In the so-called independent districts, of which there are thirteen in St. Louis county, practically the only business to be transacted will be the election of school board members. In most cases this will mean the election of two members to fill terms which have expired. In cases of resignations, the number of school directors to be elected increases. The meeting will take on the form of an election.

Fix School Levy.

In the common districts, the voters fix the school levy at their annual meeting in addition to electing one director to fill a term which has expired. The school board in the common districts consists of three members. There are forty-three such districts in St. Louis county.

The voters in the independent school districts have no voice in the matter of fixing the annual school levy. This matter is left entirely to the discretion of the board of education. In St. Louis county, the following districts come under the classification of independent districts:

No. 9, Tower; No. 12, Ely; No. 13, Aurora; No. 18, Gilbert; No. 19, Floodwood; No. 21, Mountain Iron; No. 22, Virginia; No. 27, Hibbing; No. 33, Alborn; No. 35, Buhl; No. 39, Eveleth; No. 40, Chisholm, and No. 50, Meadowlands.

MARINE

STEAMER MATOA TO SEABOARD

Sold By Lake Interests and Is on Way to Coast.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., July 18.—The steamer Matoa, en route from Duluth, Minn., to the Atlantic ocean, passed Ogdensburg early today in two sections in charge of two tugs.

The vessel was severed in order to pass through the Canadian canals and will be reunited at Montreal.

The Ogdensburg dispatch is erroneous insofar as the port of departure is concerned. The Matoa has not been in this part this season. She was cut in two in the Reid shipyard at Sarnia, Ont., the Reid Wrecking company, which had purchased her, having sold her to coast interests for Atlantic service. Two Reid tugs are towing her to the Atlantic coast.

ALL INTERESTED IN MORTGAGE TAX CASE

North Dakota Counties Watch Outcome of Cass County Case.

Fargo, N. D., July 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Residents of other counties of the state are awaiting the outcome of the injunction suit brought against the state tax commission and the Cass county commissioners to prevent the list of mortgages, recently certified to the commissioners of this county by the tax commission, from being placed on the assessment rolls. The commission took similar action in several other of the larger counties. In a few counties the officials placed the list on the rolls, but the larger number doubted the legality of the order of the tax commission and ignored it. Their future course will depend on the result of the supreme court decision in the Fargo case Sept. 10.

Land Once Assessed.

The contention, aside from the legal points involved, is that the land against which the mortgage is on record, has already been assessed to the owner, and that if the holder of a mortgage on this land is assessed it will mean double taxation. It is also contended that if mortgagee is compelled to pay taxes on his mortgage the cost will come out of the mortgagor ultimately as he will be compelled to pay higher interest rates or a bonus in order to secure a loan. It is asserted that most states have abandoned the idea of assessing mortgages for taxation and that North Dakota is taking a backward step in this plan of the tax commission.

Rev. F. E. Clark Improves.

Boston, Mass., July 16.—Favorable reports from Rev. Francis E. It was said that the improvement in the patient's condition was continuing, although it was slight.

KILLING QUACK GRASS.

North Dakotan Tells How He Turns Trick.

Langdon, N. D., July 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Claiming that he has discovered a sure way to eradicate the annoying quack grass that infests many fields in the Northwest, P. Scully has given his method to the public.

Late in the fall he spreads straw to the depth of a foot or more over the spots on which quack grass has obtained a foothold. He then packs the straw down, burns it and plows the land just about two inches deep with a very sharp plow which cuts off the roots clean. As this is done just before cold weather, the roots are frozen during the winter. The next year the land is cropped in the usual manner and in the fall the plan is repeated. Within three years he asserts he can destroy the worst instances of quack grass. As this pest infests fields all over the entire northwestern states, Mr. Scully's method may prove a great benefit to the farmers.

MRS. MAYO IS BURIED.

Mother of Famous Minnesota Surgeons Laid to Rest.

Rochester, Minn., July 16.—Mrs. W. W. Mayo, aged 90, wife of the late Dr. W. W. Mayo, founder of the Mayo clinic and surgical institute, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. D. N. Berkman. She was married in 1851 to Dr. W. W. Mayo and endured the hardships of the early pioneering days with the famous Rochester surgeon. Besides the daughter, the sons, Dr. W. J. Mayo and Dr. C. H. Mayo, survive her. Dr. W. W. Mayo died four years ago last March. Mrs. Mayo was buried this afternoon in Oakwood cemetery beside the grave of Dr. W. W. Mayo.

REEVE HEADS BOARD.

Fargo, N. D., July 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. P. Reeve of Beach was elected president and J. T. Purcell of Fargo, secretary of the new game and fish board at a meeting held here this afternoon.

Prior to adjournment a number of appointments will probably be made. It is anticipated that both E. B. McCutcheon of Minot and W. F. Reko of Mandan, the present chief warden of the two districts, will be renamed.

Alfred Eastgate of Pekin will be selected as a deputy game and fish commissioner. Some of the judicial district wardens may not be selected until a subsequent meeting.

Mr. Reeve, who was president of the former board, is the only former member on the new board, Mr. Byerly having resigned and Mr. Brewer having become connected with the educational work of the state.

WOMEN TELL OF BENEFITS

Two Declare Tanlac Gave Aid When Others Were Failures.

Say It Proved of Benefit for Stomach and Nerve Trouble.

Knoxville, Tenn., June 1, 1915.—"It is impossible for me to tell how much Tanlac has done for me," Mrs. J. E. Dixon of 138 Baxter avenue said today, in discussing the beenfit she had derived from the premier preparation.

"I have been sick so long, and have suffered so severely, that it would be wrong if I did not tell others of the good I have derived from Tanlac. Two weeks ago I was almost helpless. I suffered so I could hardly turn over in bed. Now I am actually walking around, feeling as well as ever I did in my life.

"I had rheumatism and stomach trouble, and tried all kinds of remedies without relief. After my meals, gas would form on my stomach, so that eating became a terror to me. I had kidney trouble and rheumatism. Sometimes I suffered agonies of pain at night.

"I don't know what I would have done if it hadn't been for Tanlac. It gave me almost instant relief. I feel so much better that I have let my servants go and am doing the work myself. I am happy again."

Paducah, Ky., June 1, 1915.—Mrs. R. A. Burch said today that any woman who suffered as she did should give Tanlac a trial. She lives at 1111 Monroe street here.

"I had kidney and bladder trouble," she said. "I was nervous and run down. I read so much about Tanlac that I decided to try it, and it was the first thing that ever gave me relief. It is a wonderful remedy. The pain in my back has disappeared since I began taking it, and I sleep like a top."

Tanlac is now on sale in Duluth at the drug store of William A. Abbett, "the careful druggist," 219 West Superior street. Claude J. Meredith, "the Tanlac man," explains it.

OUTDOOR PLAY FOR FACTORY EMPLOYES

Patrick Company Establishes Recreation Grounds for Its Men and Women.

Another innovation for providing recreation for employes is being installed by the management of the F. A. Patrick & Co. at its factory at Twenty-ninth avenue west and Superior street. The vacant space in the block west of the building is being fitted up for a playground, where the employes may spend their noon hour in whatever diversion appeals to them.

The ground has been fenced in with a high wire netting. The inclosure has been divided into two courts on which may be played volley ball, quoits, croquet, baseball of the indoor variety and other games. Instructors from the Young Women's Christian association have been engaged to teach the young women employes how to play the games and great interest has been shown.

The playground is only one result of the plans of the company to provide recreation for its employes. The ground will be used only on days that are fine. On other days the employes have full use of the clubrooms inside of the building. These clubrooms are the largest of any provided by a factory for its employes in the Northwest and one of the finest furnished in the entire country. In it are to be found divans and couches, a piano, a branch of the Duluth public library, shower and tub baths and many other conveniences.

For women employes with young children there is provided a nursery and a maid who takes care of the little ones while the mothers are at their work. The nursery is under the supervision of the King's Daughters. The children are fed, given their daily bath, allowed to romp and play about the nursery rooms and, when tired, put to bed and given their hour or two of quiet sleep. From ten to fifteen children are taken care of daily.

The women employes are not the only ones that have been provided for at the factory. On the third floor of the building clubrooms, a smoking room, shower baths and other conveniences are provided for the men. A large cafe, where both men and women may purchase their lunch for a small sum, is provided on the first floor. The price is charged only to cover the actual cost. An employe may bring his or her own lunch and may use the lunchroom and has the privilege of purchasing coffee, tea or milk at cost to go with it.

While the factory is not now operating at full capacity there are about 150 women employed in the knitting mill and about 100 in the garment mill. The latter department is working at about one-third capacity at present, but is expected, in a short time, to increase its force. There are twenty-five men employed at the factory.

WILL PLAN FALL ACTIVITIES.

Spaa Club Will Hold Meeting to Outline Sports Program.

The annual meeting of the Spaa club of the Second Presbyterian church, 1515 West Superior street, will be held next Wednesday evening at the church, according to a call issued last evening by Nels Mealander, president of the society. Plans for artivities for fall will be outlined.

The Spaa club is one of the largest adult athletic organizations connected with any one church in the city. Its membership embraces about eighty young men and women of the church. Games of volley ball, basket ball, tennis and other sports are played every fair evening on the playground in the rear of the church.

The playgrounds were enlarged early this year, giving the club a plot of ground 110 feet by 50 feet. This has been well rolled and fenced and is proving an attractive spot for the young people.

Picnic Postponed.

The picnic of the Bethany Swedish Lutheran Sunday school which was scheduled for yesterday was postponed on account of wet weather. Arrangements have been made to hold it on Thursday July 29. The members of the school will take the steamer Columbia to Fond du Lac, leaving the Twenty-first avenue west dock at 9 o'clock. It is expected that about 400 will attend.

West End Briefs.

The Epworth League Society of the First Swedish M. E. church will be entertained this evening at a lawn social at the home of Gust Hawkinson, 2113 East Water street.

Rev. Swaney Nelson, pastor of the First Swedish Baptist church, returned last evening from Isle, Minn., where his family is camping for a month. He will conduct services at the church Sunday.

The Young People's Society of the First Swedish Baptist church will entertain at a lawn social on the church grounds on Tuesday evening. A program will also be given by the young people in the church.

Rev. G. Hammarskold of New York will conduct services at the St. Peter's Episcopal church, Twenty-eighth avenue west and First street, Sunday. In the morning he will speak in English and in the evening in Swedish.

Idea of Raising Regiment to Fight for England Turned Down.

Houghton, Mich., July 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Michigan Sons of St. George in convention here refused to consider the proposition of raising a regiment of former Britishers in America to serve for England in the war with Germany, maintaining that as American citizens, they are morally bound to stand by American neutrality ideals despite their sympathies in the conflict.

SETTLEMENT OFFER IN OSSEO BANK CASE

Thompson, alleged bank wrecker, is not prosecuted. Mr. Turritin stated that he can not and will not entertain such offers. He says it is entirely up to the county attorney of Hennepin to decide whether the actions of Thompson in the bank were of a criminal nature.

CROWDS OF TOURISTS ARRIVE IN DULUTH ON THE STEAMER OCTORARA

Visitors Throng Streets and Take in Sights; Many En Route for Exposition; Remainder of Season Expected to Be Rushing.

The passenger steamer Octorara steamed into dock here today with the largest number of tourists of the summer season. More than 200 tourists alighted from the boat and, owing to the fact that the Octorara was too late to enable some of its passengers to make connections for the Pacific coast, the majority of them are quartered at the various Duluth hotels.

Today looks more like the real tourist rush of the past than at any time this summer. The majority of the lake travelers are of the wealthier class of tourists. Many of them are en route to the San Francisco fair.

T. J. Offer of Buffalo, a well-known wholesale grocery supply man of that city, declared at the Spalding today that in his opinion the tourist travel during the remainder of the season will be very heavy.

Getting Ready for Vacation.

"We are just beginning to get summer weather down that way," said he, "and the majority of Buffalo people are just getting ready to take a vacation. I believe that there will be a very heavy lake travel and I also believe that the East is going to send a lot of people to the Pacific coast during the remainder of this month and all of August, with the great majority choosing the Great Lakes as the travel route."

Walter Durgis of New York city and the members of his family are on the Octorara. Before leaving for a trip to Yellowstone park Mr. Durgis made a business trip to England, he being in the importing business.

"Business in London and Liverpool," said he, "is going on at almost a normal gait, you might term it. An American business man making a flying business trip to the two great English centers would not get the true sentiment of the English people over the fight the country is making for its very existence. It is only when you get beneath the surface, so to speak, that you begin to realize all Englishmen feel the ghastliness of this war.

"I went to the homes of several of my business associates and it was while the cares of business were thrown aside that I really began to learn that the phlegm of the English, a national characteristic, in reality conceals the deeper emotions that all real patriotic Englishmen feel over a war that weekly is bringing the horrors of armed combat to the very homes of the British people."

First Visit in Twenty Years.

T. W. Tobbin of East Orange, N. J., is among the passengers arriving today on the big boat. This is the first trip in twenty years Mr. Tobbin has made to the West. Nearly two decades ago he came to St. Paul with a number of investors and paid a flying trip to the Head of the Lakes. Those were the boom days of Duluth, and today, making a trip around the city in an automobile, Mr. Tobbin declared that the Duluth of today had more than realized the rosy expectations of the Duluth of those past years.

George W. Reynolds, proprietor of the Spalding, declared that it looks as if the ice is broken, as if the tourist season has started in earnest.

pension of the rules, named House File 719 as the measure to be voted upon. It was an entirely different bill and the mistake was not noticed in the turmoil which followed. The vote to suspend the rules, the court says, was plainly insufficient as the necessary two-thirds of the entire house and not of those present was wanted. However, this was not a material mistake as the house proceeded with the passage of the bill and in the finals gave it an overwhelming vote. This last fact, the court says, was indicative that the house favored the measure from the start and any technical points raised regarding the two-thirds rule cannot prevail. Speaking on this point, it says:

"Action of the house, the necessary effect of which was to obtain a third reading of the bill and to place it on its final passage, and the passage of the bill by a vote of more than two-thirds of all the members of the house operated to dispense with the rules."

Journal Carried Correction.

Another point raised by the opposition was the daily journal and what is known as the permanent journal. The daily journal contained the mistakes made by Representative Bjornson, while the permanent journal carried a correction. Because of the fact that at the next days session a member directed that the journal of the sixty-eighth day which was the day on which the law passed the house, be approved as printed, such action makes the daily journal the only authorized journal of that particular day's proceedings. While taking this position, however, as to the correctness of the daily journal, the court says both journals practically show that the law was legally passed.

the most distant portion of the Russian front—in the Caucasus—where both the Turks and the Russians claim successes.

The battle in the Argonne, which has proceeded for several days with violent irregularity, culminated today in the recapture by the French of Hill No. 285, which the troops of Crown Prince Frederick William had captured by storm on July 13, and the first impetus of the German attack in this region seems to be lost.

Bomb and grenade fighting now is taking the place of artillery action in the fighting in France, indicating that the lines are closely gripped in the form of struggle which so often has led to a virtual draw along the western front.

The men of the Welsh collieries are still on strike and there is no indication that an early setttlement will be reached.

French Statement.

Paris, July 16, 2:35 p. m.—The following official statement was issued by the war office today:

"In the region to the north of Arras, the enemy attempted to sally from his trench, and to the south of the Chateau de Carleul and immediately checked by our infantry and artillery fire.

"In the Argonne our curtains of fire prevented every tentative attack of the enemy.

"Between the Meuse and Moselle the night witnessed activity but without action on the part of the infantry. There was a bombardment at the Ravine of Sonvaux, bomb throwing in the forest of Ailly and cannonading to the north of Flirey.

"In Lorraine the Germans attacked on a front extending three kilometers the positions which they had lost near Leintrey. They at the same time bombarded all our line from the forest of Champenoux as far as the Vezouse river, delivering some attacks partly with infantry. They were everywhere repulsed. Near Leintrey, after having gained a foothold in an element of the trenches, they were immediately ejected by a counter-attack.

"In the region southeast of the forest of Parroy, assaulting troops which had reached our wire entanglements were dispersed by our fire and left prisoners in our hands. The losses of the enemy appeared considerable."

Russ Offer Strong Resistance.

London, July 16.—Reinforcements have been sent to the German troops in the Russian provinces of Courland and Kovno with the result that vigorous military operations have been resumed in that section. The Russians are offering a stubborn resistance and are holding strategic positions, according to an official statement issued yesterday at the headquarters of the general staff in Petrograd and telegraphed to the Central News and Exchange Telegraph companies here.

COUNTERFEITERS WORKED ALL WINTER IN DULUTH

making of counterfeit money, believed to be the "lot of fine machinery" which Mrs. O'Leary describes, was also found in the place.

Made Confession.

Capt. Porter of the secret service at Chicago, said "Robbins made a complete confession," when asked about the details of the case.

"He said the money was made in Duluth. When I asked if he had made it all himself, he said: 'No, I hired two others to help me.

"He is smart as a steel trap," said the captain, according to reports.

Five men were taken into custody, four at the house, who were entangled in the brawl about payment of rent, which first attracted the attention of officers, and one later.

Robbins is said to have implicated only himself and his two assistants as the actual manufacturers of the spurious money and said that two other prisoners who gave the names of Benjamin Saltsman and John Berkowitz were engaged in passing it.

"Only one man with his little daughter, came to see Robbins while he was here," said Mrs. O'Leary. "He used to come frequently in the late afternoon or early evening and stay for as much as two or three hours. They were in the room all the time, but I presumed he was a relative, and merely on a visit."

Capt. A. G. Fiskett at police headquarters, said that police here had no record of Robbins, but started an investigation at once with the view of learning whether any money had been passed in this city or not. But $300 was passed in Chicago, it is said.

the rear of his store and separated from him by a solid partition was a restaurant. A fire occurred in the restaurant and the power company, as customary, cut the wires leading to the building. The fire spread to Mullen's store and because of the lack of light, he claimed he was unable to remove his stock and fixtures, which were destroyed. He sued the company and was given damage.

The supreme court in reversing the lower court's findings holds that the power company had the right to detach its wires when leading to a burning building, but that there is a question as to whether it used judgment in detaching the same at the time. However, the court believes that Mullen could have averted the loss or at least made it less by reasonable care and diligence after discovering that the wires had been cut. It therefore orders a new trial be given the company.

New Trial.

The supreme court ordered a new trial for Mons Jacobson, convicted in the Otter Tail county district court on a charge of arson. The court holds that the evidence is not sufficient to prove Jacobson guilty beyond a reasonable doubt.

Last December the barn of Fred Harthun, near the town of Dora, was destroyed by fire. Evidence pointed strongly to Jacobson, a bachelor farmer, who was a nearby neighbor. Certain tracks leading from the barn to Jacobson's home tended to make evidence of his guilt stronger and he was convicted. The court holds that this was not sufficient and that stronger evidence must be offered if the charge is to be proved. There was a storm on the night of the burning and Jacobson claims that the fire was due to lightning.

"FAT MEN'S" RACES MUST GO, DOCTORS PRONOUNCE THEM "UNSAFE"

THIS BRINGS ON APOPLEXY.

Somewhere the crowds are happy,
Somewhere their shouts resound;
But there are no more fat men's races
On the Mudville picnic grounds.
—With apologies to DeWolf Hopper.

Aw, what's the use of going on any more picnics?

Doctors have ruled against the fat men's race, without which no self-respecting picnic can hold up its head among the common throng; than which nothing is more amusing to Johnny Jones, the fat man's son; and beside which all other forms of amusement for picnickers pale into near insignificance.

Harry Thaw, William Jennings Bryan's grape juice, Eva Tanguay's "I don't care," Col. Roosevelt's "Declighted," and the fat men's race at the annual Sunday school picnic in Sommers' grove have been cherished as traditions of the people of the United States, and now the most dearly beloved of all, the fat men's race, has been labeled "unsafe" and is about to go by the boards.

"Don't quote me," said Dr. E. W. Fahey, director of public health, 219 pounds. "Just between you and me, there would be nothing to it if I could qualify for a fat man's race, because I could lick any fat man in the city—but I wouldn't run."

"Let the other fellow do it," said Dr. John A. McCuen, 256 pounds. "Of course we can't keep the fat man from running if he wants, and many of them are so obliging that they will run anyway. Not for me, though.

"Seriously," he continued, "there shouldn't be any fat men's races. It's too much exertion—causes too much blood pressure—heart's liable to be weak, etc."

"I really haven't considered the matter very much. It has quite slipped my notice," vouchsafed Dr. John M. Robinson, 110 pounds. "Of course we men who are altogether too fat should be careful not to overexert."

"I am not perturbed," was the comment of Dr. Harry Klein, police surgeon, 135 pounds. "Some of the fattest policemen on the force are the best runners, but it might not work out that way with other citizens."

Doctors have agreed, however, that fat men's races should be abolished before anyone who is fat runs too fast, too far and suffers in consequence.

Hence the cloudy sky, the downcast countenance and the general air of "Aw, what's the use."

JUDGE DECLARES THAW SANE AND GIVES HIM HIS FREEDOM

case," Justice Hendrick said, "and it is based on my own mind, fortified by the action of the jury."

Thaw, sitting comfortably in his chair, his counsel on each side, showed his pleasure and anticipated the court's decision with a broad smile.

"I want to say a word about the alienists," Justice Hendrick continued. "We have been told by one alienist that it is impossible to determine the sanity or insanity of a person without taking the word of alienists. This court and jury cannot depend upon the word of an alienist who for years has devoted himself to a case of this kind and assisted in its preparation. That a doctor can help prepare a case and then go on the stand as an expert witness is wrong.

Should Be Changed.

"I hope the legislature of the state will find some means to correct this. Some other method should be adopted. Gentlemen, I have adopted the verdict of the jury. I declare now that it is the decision of this court that Harry K. Thaw is sane."

Edgar Bromberger of the group of lawyers appearing for the state gave notice of appeal. At a previous conference of counsel in the case, it had been made clear that should the court decide in Thaw's favor, the commitment of Justice Dowling, under which Thaw was sent to Matteawan in 1908, after he had been acquitted on the grounds of insanity of the murder of Stanford White, would not be formally vacated, but would simply cease to operate.

Justice Hendrick decided that the state's notice of appeal automatically acted as a stay. John B. Stanchfield of Thaw's counsel then moved that Thaw be given his liberty under a bond.

This motion was vigorously opposed by the state. Mr. Bromberger told the court that he considered Thaw insane and a danger to the community. Mr. Stanchfield replied that Thaw had been adjudged sane, and that to deny him bail would virtually nullify the court's decision until the appeal had been decided.

The court then fixed the amount of bail at $35,000.

Thaw declined to make any statement at this time, except to say that after the bail arrangements were completed he would get his bags and then go directly to the Pennsylvania station in Jersey City, when he would take a train for Pittsburgh. The sheriff will accompany Thaw until he is on New Jersey soil out of New York state.

Reserves Decision.

Albany, N. Y., July 16.—Attorney General Woodbury will reserve decision as to whether he will appeal from the Thaw verdict until he has examined the court records before Justice Hendrick. This information was made public today in a statement from the attorney general's office explaining that the formal notice of appeal was taken to prevent Thaw leaving the jurisdiction of the court.

surance that during the pendency of the negotiations American lives and vessels would be safe from attack and danger.

Very Satisfactory.

Count von Bernstorff refused to reveal what had taken place at today's conference beyond saying it was a very satisfactory interview and he felt encouraged to believe the danger of a rupture in relations had been reduced. He based his optimism on the view that the German government did not want a break and would do all in its power to prevent one. He is confident the United States holds a similar view. The ambassador is strongly of the opinion that diplomacy will be able to settle the issue.

Entirely Informal.

The ambassador's interview was entirely informal. He came without special instructions from his government. That, however, is not unusual as he would be expected by his foreign office in such a situation to exert every influence toward bringing about an understanding. He sent a long report on his visit by wireless to the Berlin foreign office. Secretary Lansing would make no statement on the conference.

The torpedoing of the American steamer Nebraskan for which Germany has expressed regret and promised reparation also was discussed.

The note from Austria-Hungary on war exports was not discussed, it was stated on the highest authority.

FEAR FLOOD IN CENTRAL OHIO

Over 200 Homes Are Under Water in Lima.

Columbus, Ohio, July 16.—Swollen by torrential rains that have fallen throughout the last ten days, many points in Central Ohio were menaced today by floods that threatened to approach the magnitude of the great flood of March, 1913, when more than 500 persons were drowned and property damage aggregating many million dollars resulted.

The Ottawa river had over run large areas in both Lima and Kenton. Several villages in that section were cut off from communication.

In Columbus an old levee on the northwest side broke early toady, flooding six city blocks in the vicinity of West Fifth and West Eighth avenues and sending water over one playground and many public gardens. Both the Olentangy and Scioto rivers continued to rise today as a result of a cloudburst during the night.

Over 200 Homes Under Water.

Lima, Ohio, July 16.—Ottawa river is raging, driving families to the higher portions of the city and tearing out bridges and viaducts. Since midnight it has risen on an average of six inches an hour and at 7 a. m. was within fifteen inches of high water mark of 1913.

More than 100 homes are under water. Every policeman and fireman in the city was kept on duty all night aiding in rescue work.

Towards Elida, farmers report the water was higher than in the big flood of 1913. Wheat has been beaten down so as to be almost a total loss and the hay crop has been ruined.

The river is full of debris, indicating that above Lima considerable damage has been done. One woman died from burns received when gas in the cellar was exploded and a lamp she was carrying threw burning oil over her. Rising waters had put out gas under a water heater and she lighted a lamp and went to investigate. Four little children in the house received minor injuries. The house caught fire, but the blaze was extinguished.

Improved in Missouri.

Kansas City, July 16.—Although there was more rain in some of the flood stricken districts of Northwest Missouri today, it was not heavy and the high water situation was generally improved. Last night flood waters carried out two big bridges on 102 river, several miles east of St. Joseph.

Railroad service north and east of St. Joseph is prostrated. Train service on some roads is entirely abandoned and on others schedules are demoralized because of high water and washouts. It is likely that regular train service on a number of branch lines will not be resumed for weeks. The damage to the railroads is estimated at a million dollars and it is said it will take months to repair the tracks and roadbeds.

The towns of Rosendale, Craig, Wyeth and Corning, Mo., were still inundated today, but the water was receding.

HANGED AT SUNRISE; MURDERED HIS WIFE

William Sprouse Goes to Death Maintaining His Innocence.

St. Louis, Mo., July 16.—William H. Sprouse of East St. Louis, Ill., was hanged at Clayton, Mo., local suburb, shortly after sunrise today for the murder of his wife. To the last Sprouse maintained his innocence. His last request was to see his six children who had testified against him, but they refused to come to him.

Society women of St. Louis county had sought executive clemency or a reprieve for the man, but Governor Major declined to act, saying no evidence warranting his interference had been presented.

The evidence against Sprouse was circumstantial. His wife, Annie Sprouse, disappeared from their home in East St. Louis, Ill., on the night of Oct. 31. The body found near Brentwood, was identified as that of Mrs. Sprouse, and the evidence connecting Sprouse with her murder then developed.

Evidence introduced at the trial tended to show that Sprouse left home on the night of Oct. 31 with his wife and returned without her.

After the disappearance of Mrs. Sprouse, Mrs. Blanche Scott went to the Sprouse home to keep house. She was arrested as an accessory to the murder, but later was released.

FOOL THEIR FRIENDS.

Cloquet Couple, Married in June, Keep It Quiet.

Cloquet, Minn., July 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—It has just "leaked out" that Miss Viola Bentz and Edward Walter Ritchie, both of this city, were married June 17 at the Methodist Episcopal parsonage, Rev. C. W. Ramshaw officiating Mr. and Mrs. Alex Ritchie were the attending couple.

The young people kept the marriage a secret for a considerable time.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Bentz of Third street and has made her home here for a number of years. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Ritchie of Third street and is employed as delivery man at the Companies' store.

Lightning Strikes Church.

St. Cloud, Minn., July 16.—The Catholic church at Ramney, near Foley, in Benton county, was struck by lightning during Tuesday night's storm and damaged to the extent of $600.

Make it Easier For Baby in Summer

Many of the Hot-Weather Troubles Can Easily Be Avoided.

If the mother will see to it that the bowels are kept regular, much of the illness to which children are most susceptible during hot weather can be prevented.

A mild laxative, administered at regular intervals, will prove an excellent preventive of summer complaints that are caused by inactive bowels. The combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin, sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is excellent for children, being pleasant to the taste, gentle yet positive in action, and free from opiate or narcotic drug of any description. It acts naturally, without griping or other discomfort, and is altogether dependable.

The cleansing of the bowels will most effectively check an attack of diarrhoea by expelling the foreign matter and poisons that irritate and inflame the tissues.

In every home a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin should be on hand, ready for use when occasion requires. It costs only fifty cents a bottle and is sold in drug stores everywhere. A free trial bottle can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 453 Washington street, Monticello, Ill.

PRICES FOR PRODUCE LOW

All Kinds of Edibles Plentiful on Duluth Market.

Fruits Are Cheaper and of Good Quality; Butter and Eggs Firm.

Practically everything in the way of edibles is abundant on the Duluth produce market today, and prices average lower than a week ago. Dealers are counting upon continued heavy marketings, and costs of living in so far as fruits and greenstuffs are concerned are thought likely to be still further reduced within the next couple of weeks.

While butter is still quoted on the same basis as last week at 27@29 cents a pound for creamery, it is predicted that its figure will be lower to the extent of about a cent next week. Production both in the Duluth district and through the East is heavy, and a lower price tendency is now noted at New York. Packers have thus far been taking everything offered readily and prices paid have been higher than a year ago. As a result of the war, exports to England are expected to reach large proportions this season, and dealers are laying in stocks to cope with it, and at the same time take care of the domestic requirements during the winter months.

Heavy shipments from here to the Eastern markets are reported by the Bridgeman-Russell company and the Victor Produce company, and as a consequence the package freight steamers are leaving here with capacity cargoes upon each sailing for Buffalo.

Egg Prices Unchanged.

Eggs are firm at 18@20 cents a dozen, and as receipts are falling off while the demand is heavy, it is thought that quotations will remain at their present basis, if, indeed, they are not advanced. Receipts at their present scale do not leave much surplus over current requirements.

Fruits Getting Cheaper.

Fruits are substantially cheaper than at this time last year, according to the Fitzsimmons-Palmer company and the Stacy-Merrill Fruit company. California fruits and canteloupes are the features at present. The range in that list is said to be good, and the low prices prevailing are bringing about heavier sales by dealers.

Apricots are now off the market and to take their place, the first pears were received this week. The season for cherries and pineapples is also about over, it being expected that stocks will be cleaned up next week. Watermelons are cheaper than a week ago due to the supply coming from nearer-by shipping points.

A remarkably good sale of raspberries has been met with so far this season owing to the splendid quality of the fruit, and prices being on a reasonable basis. It is expected that Minnesota berries will make their appearance next week. Supplies of them are, however, likely to be light owing to their development being retarded through backward weather conditions. New apples are now coming to hand from Illinois, and their market is gradually working lower.

Greenstuff Plentiful.

Home-grown green vegetables have become fairly plentiful as a result of the better brand of weather that has prevailed since the beginning of the month. Lower prices are the rule. New potatoes are cheap for this early in the season, Texas Triumphs being quoted at 82 cents a bushel. Old Minnesota potatoes are being offered at 43 cents and stocks are being rapidly cleaned up.

Supplies of live poultry are slightly better than they were, but prices are unchanged. Just at the present, however, both supplies and demand are comparatively light.

Quotations in meats are firm with everything going at the same basis as a week ago. Receipts of livestock are limited at packing houses just now, and no betterment is expected till the rush of wheat harvesting is over in the Middle West.

Cornish, N. H., July 16.—Report that George T. DULUTH ATTORNEYS ATTEND ANNUAL DINNER OF WISCONSIN BAR ASSOCIATION

J. L. Washburn Gives Humorous Talk on "Foibles of Country Attorneys;" George B. Hudnall Chosen President; Chief Justice Winslow Given Ovation.

"That's our Wash-burn.
He's from Min-ne-so-ta,
We love you Wis-con-sins
But, oh you Wash-burn."

This was the yell that was shouted by the forty Duluth attorneys who attended the annual banquet of the Wisconsin State Bar association last evening at the Badger Inn, Superior. When J. L. Washburn of this city had concluded his address the local delegation arose and gave him this ovation. Mr. Washburn gave a humorous talk on "Foibles of Country Attorneys."

The banquet was attended by more than 200 men and women, and it came as a sort of a relaxation from the two-days' session of the association, largely given over to the discussion of weighty legal problems. Speeches at the banquet table, however, were of a lighter vein. There were few, if any, serious moments. It was an occasion where good fellowship asserted itself.

"Long John" Toastmaster.

George B. Hudnall of Superior, newly elected president, introduced Toastmaster J. A. Murphy as being "affectionately known as 'Long John'." As toastmaster, Mr. Murphy kept his audience continually laughing. Incidentally, he introduced the various speakers.

A rousing "U-Rah-Rah-Wisconsin" was given J. B. Winslow, chief justice of the Wisconsin supreme court, by all of the assembled guests when he took the floor. The demonstration lasted fully five minutes. Judge Winslow spoke on "Judges." He defined the various kinds, the hair-trigger judge, the affable judge, the slow judge and the sleeping judge. He also talked on "Lawyers," the over-prepared, the under-prepared and the dishonest lawyer.

After Mr. Washburn had been called upon and had entertained the banqueters with his humorous address, Christian Doefler, former president of the association, gave a toast. Other speakers were Henry Butler of Superior, Solon Perrin of Superior and Rev. W. T. Downard.

"A Dry Nation in 1920! Why Wait Till 1920? We're Dry Now!" was printed on the back of the program.

At the business meeting of the association yesterday afternoon, Oshkosh was selected as the place for holding the 1916 meeting. The bar association, in a resolution, approved the wearing of gowns by all the justices.

Addison C. Harris, in an address, cited instances of the reversing of supreme court decisions. The most notable instance, he said, was the reversal of the Dred Scott decision made during the Civil war.

The Country Lawyer.

Mr. Washburn's talk on the country lawyer was so well received that it is published in full, as follows:

"Mr. Toastmaster, Ladies and Gentlemen: I am expected to occupy about five minutes in discussing the virtues and foibles of the country lawyer.

"It was suggested to me that I had been both a country and city lawyer and might not find the subject impossible. In thinking about it, I came to the conclusion that I had always been a country lawyer and doubt if I have ever possessed any qualification to be any other. And I doubt if anybody here present has ever practiced in a large city long enough to rid himself of the characteristics of a country lawyer. Perhaps I should tender some apology for this statement to the gentlemen who practice in the city of Superior, with its broad avenues, its white lights, its threshing machines and corn fields, and its cow pastures all operating in full blast.

City and Country Lawyers.

"Upon such little reflection as I have ever given the subject, I have come to the conclusion that outside of a few great cities perhaps there is but little difference between the country lawyer and any other lawyer except in the magnitude of the cases and business in his charge and the amount of the reward he receives for his labor.

"De Tocqueville said:

"'By birth and interest lawyers belong to the people, by habit and taste to the aristocracy; and they may be looked upon as the natural bond and connecting link of the two great classes of society.'

"Daniel Webster said:

"'Our profession is good if practiced in the spirit of it; it is damnable fraud and iniquity when its true spirit is supplanted by a spirit of mischief-making and money-getting.'

"The lawyer's life is one of service, and he should be valued by the service rendered rather than by his accumulations.

"I think, and cannot say that I could wish it otherwise, that the old adage still holds good in our country that lawyers usually 'work hard, live well and die poor.' Personally I have succeeded fairly well with the first two items and think I can make the grade on the third.

Cites Lincoln's Experience.

"There have been many great men who began as country lawyers. Abraham Lincoln hailed from the Sangamore. Frank Ross first planted his legal feet upon the solid foundations of Maiden Rock, John Murphy wandered from the woods of Ellsworth into the legislative halls of Madison when he was 16 or 17 years of age. Longitude and his sad and aged appearance got him through until he actually arrived at maturity. Louis Hanitch and a host of others began their practice among the jack-rabbits of Dakota. John Williams worked on the farm and in the mine, and came to Duluth from a little town on the banks of the Susquehanna. D. E. Roberts and Henry Butler still live where the cow bells tinkle.

"Into every city of any size the country lawyer has come with his habits of diligence, his trustworthiness, his ambition to serve and to be recognized as a valuable servant, and generally familiar with at least one passage of scripture, viz: 'The laborer is worthy of his hire.'

"I have some times thought that the young man who had to fight his way in the old fashioned justice courts and take all the responsibility had, after all, if his clients did not suffer too much, a great advantage over the boy who begins as an assistant in a large city firm and works as such under the guidance of his seniors upon great cases. I was never much in love with justice court, but cannot say that I care to avoid the experience if I had a second chance.

"I think my own son, now working in Duluth, likes best to joke me about a case which my brother told him about that I had more than thirty years ago in justice court in the little village near which I was brought up. My adversary, somewhat my senior, was a friend of mine who afterward became a distinguished jurist in my state. He produced a case which he had not thoroughly read in Howard's 'Practice Reports,' from which he read part of the decision to the jury and laid the book down.

Gives Personal Experience.

"You know you could find almost anything in Howard's 'Practice Reports.' I took up the book and pursued the perusal of the case while he continued his argument. I found that had he read further the decision would have turned out against him. It is needless to say, I read the rest of the case to the jury. The hall was full of spectators. An old German farmer who intently watched the proceedings, afterward told my brother, who still lives down there, 'that he was scared and thought sure Lawyer had Jed beat when he read from dat book, but dat when Jed got done reading he knew Jed had de case,' and I did.

"Afterward I tried many cases in district court with that old substantial farmer on the jury, and I think the little justice court case helped out with other verdicts.

One of Early Cases.

"One of the first cases I ever tried was a suit to recover compensation of about $5 or $6 for whitewashing a house. My client testified that he whitewashed the house both inside and out, and had also whitewashed the fence. The defendant denied that my client had ever done the work, and not content with that, denied that the house had ever been whitewashed on the outside. Other members of the family swore to the same thing. Had they admitted the work and alleged payment, I should have had a more difficult task, for I had no witnesses other than the plaintiff.

"I told the court that I wished I could introduce the house in evidence, for it was well known that woodwork that had ever been whitewashed would continue to show it, and the house would prove who was lieing. I repeated the statement several times. Before the end of the third day the old justice came to my office and said, 'Washburn, I have decided that case in your favor. When I went to dinner the day of the trial, I took my cane and walked around that way. That damned house has been whitewashed, all right.'

"I can truthfully say that no subsequent victory ever gave me greater satisfaction.

"We all can relate many such incidents of justice court experience. They get funnier with the lapse of time. The other fellow, too, has his share to tell on us.

"I once undertook to help a lawyer who lived in a little town twenty-two miles away, to try a case on appeal in the district court against the Milwaukee road for killing a pony. The plaintiff had a judgment in justice court for $100. Our client was a peculiar old fellow, unwashed and uncombed. He was more than six feet high; he had long, coarse black hair, much like a horse's tail in appearance. He was supposed to be part Indian, and I think, from all I could learn, the pony was also. The old fellow had four sons, all of his own size and appearance. When I arrived at the courthouse in the morning, the plaintiff and his sons, who had come in the night, sat there in solemn phalanx.

"That old-time Wisconsin lawyer, Joe Losey of La Crosse, had come over with an abundance of witnesses to try the case and make an example of it, to stop the securing of excessive recoveries for killing stock on his line.

"As near as I could learn the pony had only been slightly accelerated in closing a long and uneventful existence, and was probably of the value of not to exceed $10. When I got there, the judge, who was a great friend of Losey's, was walking about the room turning now and then to get another view from another angle of my picturesque outfit. His first words were: 'Washburn, where in hell did you get those witnesses?' Losey was leaning well over the table convulsed with laughter. I had not been concerned in the prevalent livestock litigation and took advantage of the good nature prevailing to settle the case for $30 and save a bill of costs sure to follow a reduction of the recovery by more than half.

Country Practice.

"One characteristic I think of the country practice more prevalent than obtains in the city is the personal relation between the lawyer and his clientage. He knows all about his clients. They depend upon him for all kinds of advice, and are wont to hold toward him an allegiance and an esteem that is a great stimulus to him, and which he may miss in a measure in a city practice if the city be large enough.

"There, too, is a friendly familiarity among lawyers. It is shown in the calling of each other by their first names or nicknames, a habit I have found it hard to shake off. I could not call the judge of this circuit by any other name than Frank, and I have kept out of his court for fear I would say, 'Frank, that ruling is certainly rotten.'

"After all, the real lawyer is about the same sort of a being I hope wherever he is.

"He cares more for his work than he does for his fees but does not seriously object to fees. His life of service carries with it and wins for him a personal status in the civic community which money cannot buy.

"The lawyer has figured in well nigh all important affairs, both public and private, in the history of our country.

"We live under a government of law, and we may well die both poor and happy if when our time shall come, it can be said of us that we were true to our trust."

BUSINESS SECTION OF VALDEZ DESTROYED

Valdez, Alaska, July 16.—Fire yesterday destroyed the business section of Valdez. The loss was $500,000. United States troops from Fort Liscum aided in fighting the flames. Dynamite was used to check the fire. No rain had fallen for weeks and the wood of the buildings was as dry as tinder.

Valdez, a town of about 500 inhabitants, is situated at the head of Port Valdez, Prince William sound, and gained commercial importance because it was the coast terminus of the Fairbanks-Valdez trail which was for many years the only winter route between the lower Yukon and the coast.

Three thousand prospectors used the trail in 1898, when the gold excitement was at its height. The huge glacier that discharges its water and sand a few miles behind the town was a source of benefit to Valdez, because it was used by many prospectors in entering the mountains in search of gold.

Much placer gold was found in the country tributary to Valdez, but the fields have been worked out. There are promising gold quartz ledges near Valdez.

No Americans Lost.

Liverpool, July 16.—Horace L. Washington, the American consul here has cabled the state department at Washington that the three American sailors who were rescued from the Russian steamer Leo when it was torpedoed by a German submarine off the Irish coast last Friday night, have submitted depositions in which they state that no Americans were lost in the disaster.

Negro Lynched.

Bunkie, La., July 16.—A mob here last night hanged Thomas Collins, a negro accused of wounding a policeman early yesterday. The officer, W. C. Townsend, was shot, it was said, when he tried to arrest the negro.

DULUTH WILL FLARE WITH REGATTA COLORS

Store Windows and Buildings Will Be Decorated for Big Athletic Event of Next Week; Rivalry Rife for Greatest Attractiveness; Handsome Trophy Display.

Window trimmers and decorators of the Duluth stores next week will all have special displays in honor of the big Northwestern International Rowing association regatta that will be held on the bay course at the boat club Friday and Saturday afternoons, July 23 and 24.

From the smallest confectionery or pop-corn stand to the largest retail establishment there will be one continual blaze of color, expressive of enthusiasm over Duluth's greatest athletic event of the year. There will be a great variety of displays and window trimmers are preparing to try to outdo each other to get the most noticeable effect.

"Old Glory" will be floating from every roof and flag pole and displayed in many windows. Blue and white, the boat club colors, will be greatly in evidence, as will be also oars, rowing pictures, attractive signs, and prominent in a number of windows will be the valuable and beautiful cups and trophies that have been brought to Duluth by her famous crews and which will be defended in this year's regatta.

Every store, large or small, is asked to co-operate in the "big noise," as one decorator christened it. Office buildings are also asked to display the club colors or the American flag. If all comply, Duluth will have the "gaudiest" dress that it has enjoyed in a long time, and visitors to the city at that time will get some conception of the esteem in which Duluth holds her crews.

Decorators and window trimmers of the big dry goods stores expressed themselves as being highly in favor of the idea, and all of them have begun their work. Alec McDonald of the Glass Block, J. E. Hopkins of the George A. Gray company, A. Aune of the L. Freimuth company, and M. C. Norske of the Silberstein-Bondy company, were among the many representative window decorators who were especially enthusiastic. Decorators and trimmers of the furniture, hardware and clothing houses have expressed themselves similarly.

The annual cup display will be in the Kelley Hardware company window. John Neipp, window trimmer of this store, is arranging an attractive display that will undoubtedly attract a great deal of attention.

Cups that will be put up for competition in the regatta are: The Lipton grand challenge cup for aggregate points, the Almerle H. Paget senior eight trophy, the Manitoba cup for senior fours, the Porte and Markle cup for junior eights, the London and Lancashire trophy for junior fours, the House of Hobberline cup for bantam fours, the Machlin cup for lap-streak fours, and the Bullard Brothers trophy for senior singles. Trophies of the national regatta that will be in the Kelley window are the Detroit Board of Commerce trophy for intermediate doubles, the Detroit intermediate doubles challenge cup, the Saratoga challenge cup for intermediate fours, the famous Richard K. Fox trophy for intermediate eights, and the Woodlawn challenge cup for senior eights.

WIFE SAYS MARYE WILL NOT RESIGN

San Francisco, Cal., July 16.—Denial of the report that George T. Marye, Jr., ambassador to Russia, is to resign, was made today by Mrs. Marye, who returned from Petrograd to her home here recently to spend a few weeks to gain relaxation from the strain of war conditions in Europe.

Mrs. Marye said she has planned to sail for the Orient next month, on her way to join her husband in Petrograd.

BENZOL IS MADE HERE

Zenith Furnace Company Now Turning Out 200 Gallons Daily.

Benzol, one of the necessary ingredients used in the manufacture of aniline dyes, is now being made in large quantities daily at West Duluth. Only three other cities in the country are now making this product.

The Zenith Furnace company has recently completed installing a department at its plant for the manufacture of this product. At present seven men are employed in this branch of the plant and an average of 200 gallons daily is being turned out.

Benzol in addition to being used in the making of the aniline dyes, is also a cleaner as well as an ingredient used in the manufacture of high explosives. In making the latter the benzol is refined. Small quantities of it mixed with gasoline adds high power to the gasoline.

Shortly after the beginning of the war in Europe, textile manufacturers in this country became worried because the supply of aniline dyes was cut off. The process for making them was said to be unknown in this country. Experiments conducted at laboratories at Washington, D. C., resulted in finding the formula and one of the ingredients proved to be benzol. Immediately places for the manufacture of the benzol were suggested and the Zenith Furnace plant was found to be one of the best adapted for the purpose. Most of the product being turned out is sold in the eastern market and it is said that the company's product for several months in advance has been contracted for.

Climbs on Water Wagon.

John A. Sampson, 48, took the pledge after a trial in the West Duluth court this morning. Sampson was arrested for being drunk and also for spitting on the floor of a street car. He pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined $10 and costs. Sentence was suspended by Judge Lanners on a promise that he would let liquor alone for a year. The arrest was made by Sergeant Andree.

COMMITTEE WILL INSPECT STREETS

Commercial Club Will Urge City to Do More Paving.

The committee of the West Duluth Commercial club in charge of the campaign to create sentiment for more paving is scheduled to make a trip of inspection over West Duluth streets this afternoon. Judge H. W. Lanners, chairman of the committee, announced this morning that he expected to get the committee together in order to make the trip.

All of the various streets that are badly in need of improvements will be gone over. The condition of Central avenue above Cody street will be shown the commissioner in order that the impression created will be sufficient to cause the department to order the work done at once. It is claimed that all legal requirements necessary to have the work started have been complied with and that the only remaining detail is that of advertising for bids and letting the contract.

The subject will be taken up with the women at the next meeting of these lodges.

FIVE STATES EXEMPT.

Original Northwest Territory Cannot Adopt Referendum, Says Hoosier.

The initiative and referendum cannot be legally adopted in Wisconsin, Minnesota, Illinois, Indiana and Michigan, the five states formed out of the original Northwestern territory, lawyers attending the annual convention of the Wisconsin Bar association were told in the concluding business session by Addison C. Harris of Indianapolis. He based his contention on the fact that Virginia, in turning the territory over to the union, provided that the area always should have a "strict republican form of government."

President-elect George B. Hudnall of Superior, will appoint committees to ask members of the supreme court of the state to wear gowns while on the bench, to consider plans for the retirement of supreme and circuit judges on pay and to suggest that the chief justice supervise the ethical training of law students at the state university.

Today the delegates enjoyed a trip around the harbor and an automobile trip through the city park system.

ANOTHER INJURY CASE.

City Clerk Served With Three Complaint This Week Asking Damages.

For the third time this week City Clerk Walter Borgen was served this morning with a complaint in a personal injury case against the city by citizens.

Ellen Ferrier, through her attorneys, alleges that while walking along Fifth street near Fifth avenue east about 11:15 p. m. on the night of June 20, she stumbled over a stake protruding from the sidewalk and fell. For injuries sustained, including a broken right wrist, scratches and bruises, she wants $500 as balm.

The complaint was filed by the clerk and will be presented to the city council at next week's meeting.

CAUSED TERROR AMONG TURKS

Armored Turret Motorcars Used By the Allied Forces.

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

London, July 1.—Reporting in detail how the British and French forces took five lines of Turkish trenches during recent attacks on the Gallipoli peninsula, a Reuter's correspondent discloses that armored turret motor cars were used in the trench warfare. Heretofore the use of these cars have been restricted mainly to reconnaissance and raiding, especially in cooperation with aeroplanes, the purpose for which they were built.

It was a surprise, even to the British soldiers, to have the armored cars come up to help in the rout of the Turks. The cars, which are incorporated as part of the Royal naval air service, had been brought ashore secretly and hidden in anticipation of the fact that they might be helpful, notwithstanding that the roads there were anything but ideal for automobile work. When the allied movement began on June 4, at noon, the armored turret cars made their way from their station through loose dust, more than ankle deep and over ground pitted with shell holes, and across the British trenches over bridges that had been laid for them. They moved up to the very edge of the first Turkish line of trenches, but there had to halt, as they could not leap the deep and wide caverns which the Turks had dug. The appearance of this new and formidable weapon enhanced the general state of confusion and terror in which the Turks seemed to await the attack, and when the cars opened fire with the Maxim gun, which each carried in a turret, they scattered the Turks to the rear.

But as soon as the Turks had recovered from their surprise, they found the cars conspicuous targets. Bullets began to ping against their armored sides and shells fell around them, and one car's turret was knocked off, but nobody was killed.

The correspondent said one prize of the day was "the largest bag of Turkish prisoners secured and the capture of several German officers and bluejackets from the former German cruisers Goeben and Breslau."

LORD KITCHENER VERY BUSY MAN

Shows No Sign of Breaking Down Under Strenuous Work.

London, July 1.—Although he has just passed his sixty-fifth birthday, Lord Kitchener shows no sign of breaking down under the 15-hour workday that he set for himself on taking charge of the war office at the beginning of hostilities. In this interval he has slept out of London only four times. He has a bed in the war building for emergencies and always lunches there.

Lord Kitchener's day begins at St. James' palace at 7 o'clock in the morning. At 8:10 he spends ten or fifteen minutes at breakfast. Breakfast is followed by a walk in St. James' park to the war office, where he arrives at 9 o'clock. Important dispatches must be first cleared away. There are often meetings of the cabinet or of the high explosives or other committees to attend. Luncheon is a matter of fifteen minutes, usually taken about 1:45. From then until 7:30 in the evening he works steadily, if there is business of extreme urgency on hand he continues without dinner. Otherwise, he dines and stays on duty until about 11 o'clock, when he retires to bed in his rooms in St. James' palace.

A somewhat rare form of relaxation of the war lord is a drive into the country in his motor car. Ordinarily his walk in the park is his only exercise. He eats abstemiously, drinks nothing at meals and follows the king's example in regard to liquors. But he does enjoy a cigar after meals.

SMALL GERMAN FORCE ASSISTING TURKEY

Berlin, June 20.—The German force assisting the Turks in the Dardanelles consists of only thirty officers and 500 men, according to the Frankfurter Zeitung. There are now two German admirals in the Dardanelles district, Usdom Pasha and Merten Pasha.

Seven German naval officers have just reached the rank of vice admiral. Among them are Admiral Souchon, who is in the Black sea, operating against the Russian fleet, and Admiral Hipper, who was in command of the German cruiser in the Dogger bank fight of Jan. 24.

LOOKING TO BOYS FOR RECRUITS FOR ARMY

Sheffield, Eng., July 1.—The chief medical officer of the government board of education has notified the Sheffield school authorities that the government regards the medical inspection and supervision of older schoolboys as a matter of supreme national concern. In the event of a long war he points out, boys who are now about 14 years oly may become the source from which recruits in the army will be drawn. Their physical well-being is therefore of utmost importance.

It had been proposed to discontinue the school medical ispections here for the duration of the war, owing to the shortage of physicians.

STORY OF THE EMDEN TOLD IN A LECTURE

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

Amsterdam, June 28.—The story of the German cruiser Emden is being told to audiences in the principal German cities in a lecture by Lieut. von Mucke. He led the party of the Emden's crew which escaped and made it way around Asia and across Turkey to Berlin, and he has proved a great success as a lecturer.

HINDUS OFFERED TO WORK FOR ENGLAND

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

PRISONERS SENTENCED

Youth Held for West End Burglaries Gets Reformatory Term.

Elmer R. Engle, 21, was sentenced to the St. Cloud reformatory by Judge Dancer in district court this afternoon, after he had confessed that he was responsible for a number of burglaries which occurred in the West end recently. Engle was arrested recently in Fargo and brought to Duluth.

Henry Lahti drew sixty days at the work farm on a charge of simple assault. Lahti was arrested on a charge of second degree assault alleged to have been committed on John Maki in a boarding house at 603 West First street, June 5, but was permitted to plead guilty to the lesser offense.

Pert Carl Newman will be arraigned this afternoon on a charge of burglary. It is claimed that he broke into O. A. Peterson's place at 3208 West Third street and stole silverware and other property worth $32. The alleged burglary took place July 10. Newman has evidenced a desire to plead guilty.

MUST HOLD ALIENS UNTIL WAR'S CLOSE

Witnesses in Federal Court Case May Be Ordered Deported.

"When will the European war come to a close?" is the question that is uppermost in the minds of fifteen Austrian and Russian prisoners, held subject to deportation, but at present giving testimony in the action of the United States against George Partridge and Fred A. Harmon, operating under the firm name of the Northwestern Construction company, and charged with aiding in the importation of alien labor to the United States.

Many of these witnesses have alleged that they did not even know that they were crossing the border from Canada, but as their crossing was illegal, they may be deported if the department of labor at Washington so decides. As they are subjects of Austria and Russia, it may be impossible to deport them until the close of the war. If such is the case their feeling toward this country will not be softened as some of them have already been confined in jail since last November.

"The fact that these aliens were ignorant of the fact that they were crossing the border into the United States illegally, does not make a particle of difference in the eyes of the law," said United States Attorney Jaques today. "They are alleged to have come into the United States without permission from this government, and they may be deported if the department of labor so decides. At present it is impossible to deport them, but they will probably be returned to Russia and Austria as soon as possible."

WITH RUSSIANS ON RETREAT FROM CARPATHIAN SLOPES

Long Series of Daily Fights and Daily Russian Defeats.

Inevitable Retreats Before Austro-Germans' Concentrated Artillery Fire.

Headquarters of Russian Third Army, June 20.—It is seldom that the staff of any army cares to allow a newspaper correspondent to observe or write of its defeats and retreats; the field censor's motto is "Nothing passes except good news."

The staff of the Russian Third army has broken the precedent in allowing the freedom of its lines to the British official press representative during the whole of its heart-breaking retreat from the Carpathian slopes, back across Galicia and even across the Russian frontier. The correspondent's first story, covering a long series of daily fights and daily Russian defeats followed by the inevitable retreats before the Austro-Germans' concentrated artillery fire, is as follows:

The advance of the Russians over the Carpathians was sure to draw a counter-stroke, and it came just where many expected it, but with tremendous force. This was because it was not so much the work of the tired Austrians, but rather the biggest effort that Germany has yet put up in her attempts to bolster her ally.

In a house standing high by a church I found the staff of the division. There was a hut on the top of the hill; sitting in front of it one could see for at least ten miles in either direction.

Front of Eight Miles.

The division was holding a front of eight miles across a low line of wooded heights, of which the most marked feature was a village with a little church tower. Against three Russian regiments were nine, mostly German, and backed by the most formidable artillery.

Beyond each of the flanks of the division one could see at intervals black clouds of smoke; one thick stream of smoke that stretched into the skies came from some distant petroleum works. The whole right wing was being pounded with crash after crash, sometimes four black columns rising almost simultaneously at intervals along it; under each would break out little angry teeth of sparkling flame; the only thing that seemed not to be hit was the church tower which, as each cloud died down, came out simple again in the bright sunshine. The left wing was in patches of smoke that sometimes disappeared for a time.

What was happening to the center was not so clear; so after watching for some hours the shells and shrapnel bursting along the line and on the slope, we descended by some winding gullies, drawing a shrapnel as we passed over a low shoulder, and soon reached the staff of the center regiment.

Fighting at Close Range.

Under the nearer wall of a hut little groups were working at the telephones, while a number of soldiers lay on logs around. The colonel came forward and took me into the open, pointing at the ridge some six hundred yards away. All his left was at grips with the enemy, and on his right his men were fighting at the close range of 200 yards in the wood beyond the crest.

The telephones worked incessantly. Each of the battalion commanders reported in turn—one that his machine guns had been put out of action, another that there was a gap in his line, a third that he was holding good at full strength. The colonel explained that his last reserves were engaged. A message came that his right flank was open and was being turned. He seized the telephone and called "two companies forward at the double," reporting his action directly to the staff of the division.

There was a peculiar humanness about all these messages; in form they were just ordinary courteous conversation. The question which brought the most disquieting answers was: "How are your connections?" The colonel on the left reported that his line was penetrated at more than one point, but was holding out. The right wing telephone gave no answer at all. Life there was unlivable; and I heard from soldiers a report that they had seen the Austrians in the Russian trenches.

Under Shell and Shrapnel.

Shells and shrapnel were crashing all round us, especially in our rear; a hut that I had passed on the way down broke out in full flame. Nearer down there fell four black explosives at regular distances of fifty yards, "the four packets," as one officer called it. Our cover would all have gone with a single shot, and the men crouched to avoid the falling splinters from each shell.

In this most depressing atmosphere went on the conversation between the colonel and the divisional staff. "I can get no track of the right wing. Cavalry is reported on both of my flanks. The right has had to retreat." The answer was an order to retire at nightfall. Three hours at least to wait.

The orders were communicated in French over each battalion telephone. The colonel apologized for his elementary French; it was anyhow the French of a brave man.

As disquietude increased, permission came to retire at once; but the colonel answered that this could not be done; he was in hot defensive action, and the enemy would follow on his heels; at present he was holding his own.

My hosts urged me to go. The situation was getting too serious for a non-combatant. It was with an ill-feeling that I turned for the slope. As I began to reach shelter I suddenly saw on the hills to the west men running down the slope toward us. "Perhaps ours, perhaps the enemy," said my Cossack escort. But we reached the crest unmolested and were now in comparative safety, for we were out of the line of fire and the valley to the north of us was full of our own people.

Leveled Out of Existence.

Here was a long train of wounded and we found our automobile in the midst of it. We packed in the men with the worst wounds that we noticed. They lay without a groan, and one said: "Thanks be to the Lord and eternal gratitude to you." A young soldier told us that no living man could have driven the troops on the right wing from their positions, but that the whole area was covered with shells till trenches and men were leveled out of existence. The companies left comparatively intact had all joined the center. Of this section of the line we could only hear vague rumors.

Later in the day we reached the deserted schoolhouse to which the staff had retreated.

By morning the lines lay just outside the town, and the Germans and Austrians were making a tremendous attack on them, pounding them with the heaviest artillery and advancing in close column again and again.

The leader of this division is a fighting general, robust and active. The staff was very close up to the front, and from the balcony of the schoolhouse the general viewed the lines and gave orders. Many parts of the lines were now non-existent, having been reduced to a series of shell pits by the German artillery.

Making my way to the advanced lines I found a brigadier-general and got leave to accompany an attempted advance. It was the first regiment of the famous Caucasian corps, just arrived after an all-night march and going up to the attack. A battalion commander stood just below the hut, puttting his men in position. He was a quiet little man, already elderly and with an old voice that sounded vigorously, however, across the slope. The men made their way by companies up the different clefts in the hollow and soon lined the ridge beyond. The commander moved about among them at an easy walk, directing some, hurrying on others.

Advance on Their Knees.

The men went forward on their knees, separating off into what the Russians call a "chain," where any one with initiative, by finding cover a little further forward, gives a lead to all the rest. The officers walked upright throughout. When the crest was lined, the commander went forward in different directions.

On his return he gave a few orders to his officers. One of them was a little excited and called out: "I have an instinct that it will go right; God grant that it is a true one," and, turning to his men, he shouted, "God is ling to his men, he shouted, "God is with us." Except for this, nothing broke the atmosphere of the evening stillness.

"Well, children," said the commander, "what shall I say to you? With God! Forward!"

One company went off to the wood on the right, and after a few minutes another, with the commander and myself, moved forward over the bare hill, leaving two others to follow in reserve. The men advanced in little groups, creeping in line with each other. The officers walked about freely, often in advance of the men, or encouraging any that showed too much caution. The commander and I branched off into the edge of the wood. He turned and smiled to me as the shrapnel tore away some of the boughs. At the bottom the machine guns were hurried up, and we ascended the further slope.

We were now on a bare height, which was like a tongue projecting forward, and a hot musketry fire was opened on us. A man near me called out that he was wounded and rolled himself down to the hollow, where a bearer set about bandaging him. A shell burst beyond us and another called out. One could see what happened to the men nearest to one.

Strolled Among the Men.

The commander continued to stroll about among the men, in the same way as he would have done out of action; several of the men begged him to lie down. We went round the height and he brought his men everywhere to the edge of it and told them to entrench themselves, which they set about doing at once. We could see where the bullets came from, on the low ground in front. To our left was a ridge with trees, along which we could see men on horseback coming from the direction of the enemy. To our right, beyond the wood, was a high ridge covered with men, who appeared to be advancing upon us but did not open fire.

Suddenly a column of blue figures was seen coming up close on our front. In what seemed a minute, two of our machine guns had been moved to this side. Around some brush-wood thirty yards away came the first rush of the columns; one caught sight of a line of pale faces. Our commander shouted orders; a young officer clenched his fist; our gunners ground out a shower of bullets, and the Austrian column disappeared into the wooded valley.

Later in the day, after I had gone back to headquarters, I learned that the little commander had been brought back into the town wounded in the head in the last Austrian attack.

No Panic in Retreat.

In the evening I retreated with the division staff several miles to new quarters. All along the road the general stopped any straggling soldiers and asked closely what had happened to their regiments. This was all extremely well done; he was really severe only to one batch who told him an obvious lie. Altogether the retreat, for it was that, was unattended by any panic, and everyone seemed anxious to help his neighbor. Going at a sharp trot, we reached our new quarters at 3 in the morning.

I woke at noon in a farmhouse, in a village that was filled with the divisional field train. The divisional general had gone off early to the front to rectify the new positions. The news that came in was uncertain and anxious. The first hut which the general and his staff had entered had been made untenable by the enemy's artillery. The second hut that he visited was also set on fire. No further news of him came till late in the evening, and he had barely escaped capture.

Word came that the general staff must be moved further back. The field trains were set in motion, and we travelled without any kind of confusion across a beautiful range of wooded hills. We stopped more than once to see the fight that was going on below us. It was a blaring line of fire and smoke, and twin hollow and white bursts of the Austrian shrapnel being almost lost in the white or black smoke of the German artillery. We traveled very slowly and for a good part of the day; officers often had a feeling of great vexation at having to retire before troops which they felt themselves capable of beating with any equal conditions.

Great Losses Suffered.

In the afternoon we drew up in a large village full of field trains. Reports came in from all quarters; nearly all the regiments had suffered great losses. The trenches had been left only when the enemy's artillery had made them untenable. In some parts the systematic ploughing up of whole given areas had gone so far behind our lines that even approach to the trenches had been made impossible.

The game was not lost even on this ground, and immediate measures had been taken for counter-attacks the following day. Meanwhile the town in which we were was under an intermittent but violent bombardment of aeroplanes, and all the hospitals were being moved to the rear.

The railway station was crowded with wounded, lying close together anywhere in the family manner of the Russian peasant. Most were wounded in the hands or the head, showing that they had been under devastating fire which hit anything that was at all exposed. There were also many signs of infantry attacks beaten off, in wounds of all kinds all over the body.

The officers lay here like the rest, separated only by the silent respect shown to them by the men. The number of wounded officers is not surprising, for, as I have explained, they stand and walk while their men are ordered to crawl, but the sacrifice in officers is particularly impressive.

ROBERG BREAKS PEACE PERIOD

Sergeant Returns From Vacation and Lands Man Who "Starts Sumpin."

For the first time in two weeks Sergeant John Roberg's name appeared on the police blotter last night.

Sergeant Roberg has more arrests to his credit than any other one man on Duluth's force—at least within the last few years—but for two weeks, until last night, there was not an arrest attributed to him.

When Harry Kelly, age 22, started a disturbance, however, the sergeant's long record for peace went smash, and Kelly went to jail. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $7 or serve seven days at the work farm.

Capt. A. G. Fiskett, in explaining the mysterious absence of "Roberg" on the blotter, said:

"He has been down at Sioux Falls, S. D., on his vacation since June 30."

PIUTE INDIAN NOT GUILTY OF MURDER

Denver, Colo., July 16.—Tse-ne-gat, Piute Indian, was found not guilty of a murder charge by a jury in the United States district court late yesterday. Tse-ne-gat had been accused of murdering John Chacon, a Mexican sheep herder in Southwestern Colorado.

Scott Pleased.

Washington, July 16. — Brig.-Gen. Hugh L. Scott, chief of staff of the United States army, who traversed wild mountain trails in Utah on horseback and induced Tse-ne-gat to surrender after the Piute and his little band had defied a Federal marshal and his posse for two weeks, expressed keen gratification at the Indian's acquittal.

"I am very glad that Tse-ne-gat had justice," said Gen. Scott. "I always have contended that he was innocent."

TWO MORE INDICTED

Italian Editor and Presbyterian Evangelist Must Face Trial.

Improper Uses of Mails Charged; Many Italians Here Testify.

The Federal grand jury today returned indictments against Vincenzo Cimino, editor of The Courier, an Italian newspaper of Duluth, and Gaetano Lizzi, a Presbyterian missionary, on the ranges. Cimino is indicted on a charge of attempting to secure money for his newspaper enterprises by fraudulent use of the mails and Lizzi is charged with sending scurrilous matter through the mails.

The two cases while being separate, are alleged to have a close relation, and both men figure in a sensational series of events which led up to the arrest of both, and in which the most prominent Italians of the city were involved.

Lizzi is said to have published various articles in Cimino's paper, attacking Father Zarilli, the Italian priest here. A controversy ensued, and later Lizzi is alleged to have sent a scurrilous letter through the mails to Father Zarilli, in which he is said to have used language barred by the postal laws.

Cimino is alleged to have published an editorial attempting to coerce prominent Italians of the city to give funds toward the support of his paper. Capt. Fiskett of the Duluth police department is said to have received one of these papers through the mail. The Italian Consul Attilio Castigliano also was solicited to supply funds for the publication, but maintains that he refused because he did not indorse the methods and policy of The Courier.

At the sessions of the grand jury many prominent Italians of Duluth were called to give testimony yesterday afternoon and today.

With the return of these two indictments the grand jury completed its work for the July term of court, and was discharged by Judge Morris today.

CROWN PRINCESS GOT RELEASE OF RESERVIST

Berlin, June 20.—The same mail which recently brought scores of letters of congratulation to Crown Princess Cecilie on the birth of her daughter, Princess Alexandrina Irene, also brought a misdirected letter from a soldier. It was directed to the army headquarters in Berlin, and read:

"May I please have eight days furlough, since my wife is about to have a child. Reservist Welk Polanovitz."

The crown princess was not content with sending the communication to its proper destination; she added the following note:

"Sent to me by mistake. Please grant his request. I can sympathize with the people. Cecilie, crown princess."

The crown princess' request clinched the matter for Reservist Palanovitz, and shortly he was in Berlin. When he went to the court marshal to ask that his thanks be respectfully conveyed to her highness, the crown princess added to his obligations by making him a present.

COLD STORAGE BREAD LATEST INNOVATION

Minneapolis, Minn., July 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Cold storage bread is the latest innovation in the commissary department at the university of Minnesota farm. It has been found that bread placed in cold storage will keep fresh and palatable for at least five days and as a result the number of bakings at the institution has been materially reduced.

ATTEMPT TO WRECK TRAIN WITH BOMB

Altoona, Pa., July 16.—Pennsylvania railroad detectives today were searching the country east of here for a clew that would lead to the identity of the persons who last night attempted to wreck the Broadway Limited, the nineteen-hour train between New York and Chicago. According to the report received here, Robert Westbrook, a brakeman, found an iron pipe filled with twenty pounds of dynamite fastened to a rail of the track over which the fast train was scheduled to pass in a few minutes. Westbrook took the bomb to the nearest tower and turned it over to the operator, who notified division police headquarters here.

ALLEGED AMERICAN IS HELD IN BERLIN

Berlin, July 16, via London.—George S. Speets, who says he is an American, and who is understood to represent American copper interests, was arrested here on Tuesday and is held at police headquarters on charges that have not been divulged.

Speets, who has an American passport and who maintained an office for general brokerage business, had been under police surveillance for several months. Some doubt exists as to Speets' citizenship, and Ambassador Gerard only yesterday, while still ignorant of Speets' arrest, started an investigation regarding the manner in which Speets obtained an American passport. The ambassador also had communicated with German authorities on the subject.

Their marriage occurred in Norway. In the early eighties they removed to Spring Grove, Minn. After residing there some time they took a claim in 1899 in Towner county, this state, and fifteen years ago removed from there to Sheyenne. WATCHMAN WANTED ON FORGERY CHARGE

Tower Lumber Company Asserts Six Forged Checks Were Cashed.

John Golup, who was employed as a night watchman by the firm of Cook & Ketchum, a lumber concern at Tower, up to July 3, last, when he suddenly disappeared, is wanted by the authorities to answer to a charge of forgery.

Yesterday afternoon Sheriff John R. Meining received a letter from the firm of Cook & Ketchum, which represented that six checks drawn on the First National Bank of Tower, each for $70, payable to the order of John Golup and signed Cook & Ketchum by I. G. Ketchum, are forgeries.

Golup was in the employ of the company as watchman up to July 3. In connection with his disappearance, it is also reported that several blank checks from the checkbook of the firm are also missing. Golup can be easily identified because of a defective eye. He has a brother residing in Eveleth.

Cook & Ketchum are offering a reward of $50 for information leading to his apprehension.

A Chicago loan company handled the big transaction, the land in question being owned by Brown Bros of this city.

PAGEANT SHOWING INDUSTRIAL GROWTH OF CITY SUGGESTED FOR CELEBRATION

"Please Let Us Have a Real Parade," Writes Another.

Special Trains to Steel Plant Are Another Suggestion.

The coupon plan of The Herald, in its request for suggestions for the celebration of the opening of the steel plant, was quickly productive of results.

Last night, shortly after the paper was issued, the first suggestion came in and this morning five more appeared. Several people tried to telephone suggestions, but were informed that according to the rules all suggestions should be sent in on or attached to the coupon, and they promised to submit them.

One or two of the suggestions received are reminiscent to a degree in that they bewailing implore that past "fizzles" be avoided. One of these helpers leaves blank everything on the coupon except that dealing with what should be included in the program. There he says:

"Please let us have a real parade. Remember the inglorious one of the Glorious Fourth."

City Pageant.

Another coupon sender dwells at some length on the kind of parade. He is anxious that it be typical of the city. A good suggestion is contained in the idea of having the parade typical of the growth of the city, from the time it was a trading post, showing its business development, especially the growth in manufactories and of other branches of commercial importance, also providing floats of a prophetic nature, depicting what Duluth has reason to hope for in the way of future achievement.

Two others have suggested a pageant on the lake and bay, typifying the growth in marine importance of this port.

Each coupon received declares in favor of the celebration being held in the central part of the city, and two suggest that as a part of the affair special trains should run at regular hours all day between Duluth proper and the steel plant to give residents an opportunity to see the plant at the beginning and that the Steel company officials throw open the plant to the public for that one day, so that permits to go through it will not be necessary as at other times.

Those sending in suggestions, who mention it at all, declare that the money should be raised not only by small public subscriptions, but by the county board, as well as the city appropriating liberally toward defrayment of the expense.

In the meantime, send in your suggestion on the coupon given herewith to "The Steel-Making Celebration Editor," Herald office.

Fill Out This Coupon and Mail It to The Herald.

LACE MAKERS DO NOT STOP WORK

Ply Their Bobbins While War Is Raging at Their Doors.

Poperinghe, June 20.—The lacemakers of Poperinghe, seated before their low cottages, ply their bobbins with undiminished industry, notwithstanding the epoch-marking history being made at their doors. Farmers go about their work in the neighboring fields without even looking up while death-dealing monsters go screeching through the air over their heads. Yesterday and the day before more shells fell in the town; many others ploughed the fields all about in their search for the British batteries. After an explosion there is an inquiry as to where the last one fell and what havoc it wrought, then the life of Poperinghe goes on imperturbably where it was interrupted.

The town has suffered less than many others, but some Belgians who do not share the stoicism of the inhabitants regard recent systematic firing as an ominous sign for its fate if the present positions are maintained much longer. Many of the inhabitants have been induced to leave, the rest, particularly the children, are taken away as fast as the authorities are able to overcome their resistance.

Beside the 12,000 native population there were 18,000 refugees from other regions in Poperinghe before the first bombardment. Then another exodus began. The well-to-do class goes first; the humble stick as long as they can. In many cases where their own roof can shelter them no longer they install themselves in the nearest abandoned house that happens to be rain-proof.

Just outside the most dangerous zone the farmers are more prosperous than ever. All they raise finds a quicker sale, at better prices, and many of them have become dealers in such things as the soldiers demand, principally tobacco and chocolate.

The brewers in this region are making fortunes. They are unable to meet the demand for beer and some of them were tempted to eke out their brew by copious additions of water. Since pure water was not available in sufficient quantities they took the impure and added it cold, resulting in unsterilized beer. Now the sanitary department is hunting them closely, and on the second offense the unscrupulous brewer must shut up shop.

Three schools are still open and fully attended here within range of the German field artillery; others are being opened farther from the lines as fast as possible, while children, that it is possible to separate from their parents, are being sent to schools opened for them in France by Monsieur Berryer, minister of the interior. Fifteen hundred have already gone and accommodations are being prepared for 4,000 more. They are accompanied by Belgian teachers so that the plan of their instruction will be unchanged.

Schools of lace-making at the Belgian hospital near Montreuil-sur-Mer in France, and at points where other schools have been established, will be added to foster the important industry of this region. The lace made by the pupils is to be sold in England for the benefit of the refugees.

FAREWELL DINNER FOR ARTHUR L. AUNE

ARTHUR L. AUNE.

Department heads of the I. Freimuth store tendered a farewell banquet at the Spalding hotel last evening to Arthur L. Aune, who has been advertising manager of the Freimuth store for the last year and a half.

Mr. Aune is leaving Duluth to accept a position with the Macomber Sales Agency of Minneapolis. Richard F. Freimuth presided as toastmaster and each guest present responded to a few words of eulogy in honor of Mr. Aune. They all voiced the same sentiment in saying that during the time Mr. Aune has been in his position that he has worked faithfully for the best interests of the establishment. Mr. Aune has been known as one of the leading men in the advertising profession in Duluth and he will be missed not only by his co-workers at the Freimuth store but by all the advertising men of Duluth.

COUNTY TO OPEN BIDS FOR HIGHWAY

Both St. Louis and Carlton Auditors Will Be Present.

On Saturday, July 31, bids for the construction of two and one-quarter miles of the St. Louis-Carlton county judicial highway will be opened at the office of County Auditor Odin Halden. The proposals will be opened in the presence of the auditors from both counties.

The road as established by the court will traverse the county line from a point on the southeast corner of section 36, 56-16 westerly for seven miles. The portion for which bids are now being advertised is a stretch starting from the easterly end.

The two were taken in charge by Sheriff Matt Solbraa only after a siege of their home lasting twenty-four hours during which the couple barred the doors and spent the time in prayer.

MAMMOTH'S SKELETON FOUND IN ENGLAND

London, July 1.—The skeleton of a mammoth, one of the largest ever found, is being disinterred near Chatham, in the south of England, by a staff of scientists from the British museum.

The creature was about eighteen feet high, and the tusks measure nine feet each. Isolated bones of the species have been discovered in England before, but never a complete skeleton.

Great care is exercised in excavating the bones, and as each is uncovered it is cased in plaster of paris and removed to a warehouse. Some of the bones are so heavy that it requires four men to lift them on a truck.

AIRCRAFT FLOTILLA GIVEN TO ENGLAND

London, July 1.—An imperial aircraft flotilla is being formed by the admiralty, consisting of aeroplanes presented to the Royal Flying corps by various sections of the empire. Six aeroplanes have already been presented, coming from Hong Kong, British West Indies, Gibraltar and South Africa. Additional machines have been promised by Nova Scotia, Saskatchewan and New Zealand. Hong Kong has provided three, at a cost of $22,500, one aeroplane being paid for by the Chinese partners of the Tai Yan bank.

AID FOR CHILDREN OF DEAD SOLDIERS

Berlin, June 20.—To give the children of soldiers who have been killed in the war, children born during the war before their fathers' death or born after his death or fatal injury, a chance in the world, the district of Emden has determined to start bank accounts of 10 marks.

For each such child the sum of 10 marks will be placed on deposit, with the stipulation that it must not be touched until the beneficiary is 20 years old. At the average rate of interest in Germany, compounded annually, this deposit will about have doubled in size by the time it can be withdrawn.

Minot Man Struck.

Minot, N. D., July 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Eugene Craver, aged 18, was run down by Patrick Conger of this city, while the latter was driving his machine across a railroad crossing through a dense cloud of steam from an engine near by.

ITALIANS WILL STAY IN GERMANY

Decide to Remain Until Expelled By the German Emperor.

Basel, June 20.—The South German press is greatly exercised over the problem of what is to become of the Italians residing in Germany. The authorities seem to believe that those who would not be liable to military service in Italy should be at liberty to stay or to leave Germany with their families, as they prefer. For those between the ages of 17 and 55, restraint under police supervision is suggested. Such Italians as are engaged in industries where their labor, owing to the shortage of men, is indispensable, will probably be permitted to continue their work under the supervision of their employers.

At Buehl, in Baden, 500 Italians of military age have held a meeting and addressed the following letter to the former Italian consul at Mannheim, who had advised them to return to Italy:

"Respecting your orders to all of us to return to Italy to fight against Germany, we leave that to you. Here, where we have gained our livelihood for some time past, we shall remain until expelled by the German emperor, Let Somnino, Salandra, Martino and Vittore Emmanuel go to war."

At Singen, in Baden, about 10,000 Italians have been gathered together for repatriation by way of Switzerland.

THE DUTY OF NEUTRALITY.

Just as great an obligation rests upon the people of the United States today to maintain a strict neutrality upon the issues of the war as in the first weeks of the conflict. The natural inclination to take sides is to be resisted as firmly now as then.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

This is a mistake!

The obligation not to give way to the almost irresistible temptation to take sides is ten times more binding now, when it may be our own fate to be drawn into the maelstrom of war.

In forming public judgment on what ought to be done in the controversy with Germany, the most dangerous thing imaginable would be to let sympathy with one side or the other sway opinion.

If we permit ourselves to give away to the impulses of partisanship in the war issues, the danger is that we shall decide our course with reference more to the advancement of the side we favor than to the interests of civilization and of the United States—which are the interests that alone should govern our policy.

There never has been a time since the war began when the necessity of keeping war partisanship under close restraint was so great as it is today.

At least we are no longer expected to assume that the steamer Nebraskan was sunk by an interior explosion of opinion.

THE SCHOOL ELECTION.

The annual election of directors of the board of education of the independent school district of Duluth will be held tomorrow.

There are three places to be filled, and four candidates to be voted upon. The three directors whose terms expire are candidates for re-election, and their faithful service on the board entitles them to that honor. Frank A. Brewer, C. Francis Colman and Dr. D. E. Seashore are the directors who are up for re-election. There is nothing to be said against the other candidate, C. G. Firoved, except that no reason appears for making a change.

Moreover, the men and women of Duluth should participate in this election. Though seldom so exciting as a city election, in some ways it is quite as important, since education is the most important community function and the school board disposes of nearly as much of the taxpayers' money as the city does.

Vote tomorrow.

If Col. Roosevelt feels pessimistic he will just expect that an earthquake will strike San Francisco about the same time he gets there, and take away all the limelight.

WHY NOT BOUQUETS AS WELL AS BRICKBATS?

The Chicago street railway lines, which have lately referred a dispute with their men to arbitration, the other day published a request to their employes to offer any suggestions they may have in mind to improve service and the relations between the companies and the public.

A conductor sent in this suggestion, and it's a good one:

> Ask the people to write of any courtesies extended by conductors or motormen that are worthy of mention, the same to be used as a mark of credit to the said trainmen.

The companies promptly embraced this suggestion, and published advertisements in the Chicago newspapers urging the public to adopt it.

The idea is good not only on Chicago street cars, but on street cars everywhere. It's good not only on street cars but wherever the public comes in contact with the hired employes of others.

When a street car employe is rude to you, you complain about it, don't you? You should, at any rate, and doubtless the company wants you to.

But when a street car employe puts himself out to be obliging—what then? You thank him, of course. Maybe you tell him a little more elaborately how much you appreciate it. But it seldom goes beyond that, and some people do not even acknowledge courtesies.

You write in to the company when you are annoyed. Why not write in to the company when you are pleased? It can't possibly hurt you or the company or the employe. Chances are it will do you good, and certainly it should help the employe.

Street cars are just an example. The same rule should apply to railroad employes, to salesmen and saleswomen in stores, to all the wage-earners you encounter.

If they are rude, complain; only be sure that you have a real case, and don't do the injustice of making trouble for a person dependent on his salary because of something that may be your fault as much as it is his—or more.

If they are polite and obliging, report it. It will be set down to their credit, and all employers appreciate employes who keep on good terms with patrons. Appreciation is likely to take a tangible form, profitable to the employes; at least it ought to.

Why not try this system? It's kind, it's fair, it's just. You will feel better toward yourself, and others will feel better toward you, if your aim and practice are always to be kind and fair and just. Try it.

At this distance it is impossible to feel serious regrets over the fall of a place with a name like Przasnysz.

MAYBE, BUT—

> Many Americans acquainted with conditions in Mexico have more faith in the ability of Huerta to establish a stable government than any of the other leaders. At least he could do as well as Villa if he had the moral support of the administration. Every one acknowledges that what is needed in Mexico is a strong dictator, and Huerta sizes up to these specifications better than any of the other leaders.

This all may be so. We are inclined to believe that Huerta, backed by the moral influence of the United States, could establish a sort of peace and order in Mexico by throttling Mexican hopes of liberty with a cruel iron hand. It would be a despotic peace, turning Mexico and the Mexicans over to Mexican and American and British capitalists for exploitation ad libitum.

But the need and hope of human decency in the treatment of the Mexican people are very real. The hope would die with Huerta's return, backed by the United States. The need would live on, half-smothered but still alive, to break out again in more violent revolts later on.

This hope is not being well fed, it is true, by Carranza or Villa or any of the would-be leaders of the Mexican people. Nobody can feel pleased with them. They have stained the name of liberty with cruel excesses committed in liberty's name; worse, they are not getting anywhere.

What Mexico needs is a dictator who will dictate for humanity's sake, not for the sake of the Cientificos of Mexico, Great Britain and the United States. No such benevolent despot has yet risen. Certainly the murderous, treacherous and insolent Huerta is not the man.

It is asking too much to expect the American people, or any American administration deserving public respect, to get behind a movement to restore tyranny and to assassinate freedom in Mexico, no matter how profitable that would be to American financial interests.

Whatever is done—and something will be done soon—what the Army and Navy Journal and other sycophants of privilege ask will not be done.

But just wait until they get Burbank into that naval advisory board!

GERMANY DOES THE GRACEFUL THING.

In the case of the Nebraskan, at least, Germany has done the handsome thing. The question whether the Nebraskan hit a mine or was struck by a torpedo had not been definitely settled, though suspicion leaned to the torpedo theory; yet Germany admits that the Nebraskan was torpedoed by a German submarine, declares that it was an accident, apologizes for it and offers reparation.

This disposes of what might have been an exceedingly awkward complication. Further, it shows that Germany is trying to cultivate our friendship, even if she is not willing to concede what we are still bound to demand in the matter of the Lusitania.

Germany has virtually revolutionized its submarine practices since the Lusitania protest. The chief complication now is that either a stubborn pride or a fear that her enemies or her own people will think her weakening prevents her admitting that the former practices were wrong, or even admitting that she has changed them.

This country cannot accept the offer in the latest German Lusitania note, and it cannot abandon the high stand it has taken in behalf of her own self-respect, the rights of neutrals in war-time and the permanence of civilized international law. Yet it is bound to recognize Germany's manifest desire to maintain friendly relations, and there is nothing in the situation that is hopeless or that leads inevitably to the break that may mean hostility.

In these days of uncertainty, why doesn't some kindly disposed person present the occupant of the White House with a ouija board?

Quo Vadis?

The Philadelphia Ledger: "Drive like the deuce!" shouted Smith, springing into the taxi. With a lurch the car darted forward and away they went like lightning. Crash! They took off the wheel of a passing wagon. Hi, hi! They missed flattening out a small child by a hair's breadth. Clang! They upset a mild cart. People shouted, traffic officers held up their hands as the taxi dashed up one street and down another, taking corners on two wheels and threatening every lamp post with destruction. At last, after half an hour's furious racing, they slowed up in a narrow thoroughfare and Smith poked his head out of the window.

"Are we nearly there?" he asked, breathlessly.

The chauffeur turned in his seat and shouted; "Where did you want to go, sir?"

Strictly Neutral.

Topeka State Capital: The American concerns that are sending inferior supplies to the allies were showing their strict neutrality. They would have done the same thing to their own country.

German and British Offenses

Editorial in the Chicago Tribune.

It has been the disposition of the American government to hold to the position that it is dealing separately with the nations which offend against the rights of neutrals. It has insisted that the wrongs done the United States by Great Britain do not enter into its case with Germany. Without as much pointed assertion we have maintained that the wrongs done us by Germany do not concern the British.

This is admirable in theory, but it does not hold so well in fact. We cannot maintain that English sea lawlessness against us is without effect upon Germany. We maintain, rightly and in spite of a malignant and shrewd attack upon the right, that we shall make and sell war supplies to whatever nation may get them.

The distortion of historical fact, of considerations advanced in the name of humanity and of considerations of public policy, contrived to disturb our knowledge that the manufacture and sale are right, has few parallels, but we persist and we shall persist.

The American people are amiable. They might be aroused by the appeal to them to stop slaughter by stopping the making of money in the sale of instruments of slaughter. This is the hope of the propagandists, who fail to see that their argument is a prayer that their enemies be delivered helpless into their hands, to be killed without the means of resistance.

We sell arms and explosives. The enemies of Germany may get them and transport them. We also sell cotton, but Great Britain maintains that we may not sell it even to nations not at war because from the neutral nations it will find its way into Germany and Germany must not have it.

We sell copper, but our trade with neutral nations may not be undisturbed because Germany might get the copper from the neutral nations.

The German and the British invasions of our rights are related. We cannot demand of Germany a strict compliance with international law and submit to British noncompliance with it. Principles, if they are to be insisted upon, must sweep the boards. Compromises, if they are to be made, must be compromises with all nations.

We can concede that the transport of military supplies is a hazardous military undertaking. It cannot in fairness be protected by the mask of non-combatants.

If a transport of troops were sunk by a submarine it would be an act of legitimate war. A ship laden with shells and guns carries what makes the troops effective.

A Word for F. P. Walsh

The Public: "Well done," is the verdict which the commission on industrial relations deserves to have passed on its work. There have been many previous official investigations of industrial matters, but none that investigated so thoroughly.

The usual practice has hitherto been that when the investigation had gotten on the trail of something tangible it would abruptly cease. When it seemed that there were about to be disclosed some inside facts about a whited sepulcher, when there was about to be traced the connection between an acknowledged evil and an eminently respectable institution, the investigators would adjourn. Later, a report would appear telling nothing that had not been generally admitted before.

But this investigation has been different. Under the able and energetic guidance of Chairman Frank P. Walsh, no trail was abandoned until it was followed to its end. Witnesses, who did not like to disclose all that the public should know, were not gently allowed to keep such matters to themselves. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has found that not even the angry protests of a press, anxious to serve the wealthy, could save him from the treatment that an ordinary witness in court draws on himself when he withholds facts that he ought to tell. It required extraordinary courage on Chairman Walsh's part to brave the storm of abuse into which even some honest papers and individuals were drawn.

The newspaper outcry arose when it became clear that Walsh wanted explained evidence he had obtained which indicated that Rockefeller had been less ignorant than he claimed concerning Colorado; that some moves had been made to control avenues of publicity; that legislation framed by corporation lawyers to head off laws in the interest of labor, had been without difficulty enacted into law; that the machinery of government in certain localities seemed controlled by Rockefeller subordinates; that the conviction of John R. Lawson looked like an ordered-in-advance affair; and that there was light needed on other matters that might not make a good showing for pretensions of piety, philanthropy and good citizenship.

The investigation was getting dangerous. It was leading to possible consequences; and an investigation that takes such a direction must, according to the plutocratic view, be headed off. But Walsh was not to be headed off. Had Rockefeller been frank from the start he would surely have been spared the humiliation that he brought on himself, and would not have been reluctantly exposed by his own employe, Mackenzie King, in the admission that the pretense of a free hand for the latter was false, and that he was compelled to prepare the kind of labor organization that the Rockefellers could control.

All the specific evidence produced by the commission would have been superfluous had the people been accustomed to tracing economic causes and effects. But the commission has presented the concrete proof of the conclusions of abstract economic logic. It has made the proof of the existence of an industrial despotism so clear that Mackenzie King after much squirming was at last driven to defiantly admit it. The forcing of this defiant admission was alone an achievement for which the thanks of the American people are due Frank P. Walsh.

It Would Go.

Philadelphia Ledger: He was a theatrical manager and incidentally a theater proprietor, and he possessed a reputation in the "profession" of having had, on various occasions, several theaters burn. The day after his latest and greatest conflagration, the following conversation took place between himself and a well-known comedian:

"I suppose you have heard of my misfortune?"

"Yes," said the comedian, "I have."

"I do have some luck, don't I?"

"You do," continued the laughter-raiser with peculiar intonation.

"I've hired the Temperance hall across the way for my performance; it will save my artists from being thrown out of a billet. How do you think it will go?"

"Fine, my boy," said the comedian, with emphasis. "Why, it's all wood."

Of No Further Use.

Bismarck Tribune: Young man (over the counter)—If I should want to exchange this engagement ring for something else it will be all right, won't it?

Jeweler—Oh, certainly, with pleasure. We are always glad to accommodate patrons.

Same young man (over the counter one year later)—I believe you told me when I bought this ring I could exchange it for something else.

Jeweler—Yes, what will you have?

Young man—Well, I'd like to exchange it for a barrel of flour, a bushel of potatoes, a ham and a load of coal.

Hubby's Suggestion.

Philadelphia News: "Now, would you have a fern for a centerpiece, or a rosebush in bloom?"

"My dear, scenery is all right in its place, but your meals are a trifle decorative. Might I make a vulgar suggestion as to a centerpiece?"

"Y-yes."

"I recommend a beefsteak smothered with onions."

Germany's Resources in Men

From the New York Journal of Commerce.

Side by side with the enormous and unexampled destruction of wealth by war, there is going on an equally unheard of waste of human life. If the exhaustion on the financial side may tend to bring the conflict to a close, the drain on the available supply of men must with at least equal certainty make its long continuance impossible. Hence the interest attaching to such a computation as that made by Hilaire Belloc of the German and Austrian losses up to date. These he calculates to have reached a grand total of 3,750,000—that is, of men permanently removed from the field by death, capture or disablement. Hence the conclusion that the potential manhood for actual fighting of the Teutonic allies has, within the first year, probably been diminished from all causes by nearly one-half.

This is a highly significant statement, if true, and there happen to be some available statistics by which at least its probability may be tested. Leaving out of sight the Austrian contribution to the supply of "cannon fodder," we are on solid ground in quoting from the census of the German empire of Dec. 1, 1910. That showed a male population of 32,040,000 out of a total of 64,926,000. But to ascertain the number of males of military age—that is, between 18 and 45, available for service four years later, on Dec. 1, 1914—it is obviously necessary to start with those between the ages of 14 and 40 at the time the census was taken. These are found to have numbered 14,413,039. After due deductions for deaths, there is left a theoretical total of 14,073,526 males between 18 and 45 ready to bear arms last December. But from this there are other deductions to be made; some based on actual returns, others estimated from records of varying degrees of exactitude. To the former class belong the annual rejections of the military inspection boards, on the score of absolute or partial unfitness for military service, and these amounted in the four years to 985,143 men, reducing the available total to 13,088,383.

There remains the more complex group of causes of disablement of men otherwise constitutionally capable, by disease and accidents. The statistical method of dealing with these may be indicated by the statement that while there are in Germany 40 deaths per 10,000 per annum due to pulmonary consumption and diseases of the respiratory organs, medical authorities declare that five times as many persons are left in a state of impaired health which incapacitates them from military duty, by this same class of complaints. Pushing the inquiry into a detailed examination of similar results from other forms of disease, which permanently enfeeble a large proportion of those who survive their attack and allowing for the steady increase with advancing age of the risks contingent on disease, there has been worked out a total loss for the military mill under this head of 3,400,000 men during the four years in question. On the score of accidents, in the pursuit of mechanical industry, on railroads, on the streets and highways and at sea, fairly accurate returns are available, and from these the conclusion is approximately trustworthy that 157,871 must be added to the previous total of disablement. Hence the original total of over 14,000,000 men between the ages of 18 and 45, capable of bearing arms on Dec. 1, 1914, is reduced to 9,530,512.

But by that time, according to trustworthy returns, the German army had already lost in killed, wounded, captured and sick a million and a half men; so that the disposable force of males of military age must be reduced to 8,000,000. Even after assuming, however, that older or partially enfeebled men are sufficient for garrison duty, there remain the necessities of railroad service in the occupied territory as well as throughout the empire; of the telegraph and postoffice, of work in the arsenals and at the navy yards and of the force employed by private concerns in the fabrication of indispensable munitions of war. The draft made by all these services on the vigorous manhood of Germany has been placed at 2,000,000, so that the number of the physically fit available at the front could not have exceeded 6,000,000 at the beginning of the present war.

If the losses of the last five months maintained the previous average of 300,000 a month, the effective strength of the German armies at the beginning of June could not have exceeded 4,500,000. Of these, there are, as nearly as can be ascertained, 3,000,000 on the two battle fronts. In other words, the reserve fighting strength of Germany, for offensive purposes at least, does not apparently exceed a million and a half of able-bodied men. If that be a fact, Mr. Belloc's estimate errs rather on the side of moderation than of over-statement, and six months more of war must reduce Germany to a condition of military exhaustion. Then, as has already been pointed out in these columns, the process of economic exhaustion is necessarily stimulated by the withdrawal of men from productive employment. There is a certain amount of work which must be done at home to keep the women and children alive, and not all of this can be done by the ineffective class of noncombatants. Leaving out of consideration the paralysis of the foreign trade of Germany, which must become more nearly complete with the shutting down of factories owing to the withdrawal of their workers for military service, the supply of absolutely necessary domestic wants cannot be seriously curtailed without a sensible weakening of the morale of the nation.

From all of this the conclusion would seem to be irresistible that Germany is facing the critical phase of the struggle of the war, and that even should there be no exhaustion on the financial side, there are other forms of destitution with which even her marvelous energy may not be able to cope. It is hardly necessary to add that what is true of Germany in this connection is more emphatically true in regard to the Austrian resources in men and economic capacity. The Russian reverses in Galicia may delay, but they can hardly prevent the breakdown of all the forces of the dual empire, and the consequent narrowing of the contest to that of a life and death struggle for Germany.

Anti-German Feeling Wrecks a Barber Shop.

Mildred Aldrich in the Atlantic: The barber, a German, occupied a shop in the one principal street in the village of Couilly, which is, by the way, a comparatively rich place. He had a front shop, which was a cafe, with a well fitted up bar. The back, with a well-dressed window on the street, full of toilet articles, was the shaving and hair-dressing room, very neatly arranged, with modern set bowls and mirrors, cabinets full of towels, well filled shelves of all the things that make such a place profitable. You should see it now. Its broken windows and doors stand open to the weather. The entire interior has been "efficiently" wrecked. It is as systematic a work of destruction as I have ever seen. Not a thing was stolen, but not an article was spared. All the bottles full of things to drink and all the glasses to drink out of are smashed; so are counters, tables, chairs and shelves. In the barber shop there is a litter of broken porcelain, broken combs, smashed up chairs and boxes, among a wreck of hair-dyes, perfumes, brilliantine, and torn towels, and an odor of aperitifs and cologne over it all. Every one pretends not to know when it happened. They say, "It was found like that one morning." Every one goes to look at it—no one enters, no one touches anything. They simply say, with a smile of scorn, "Good—and so well done."

Alive, Anyway.

Judge: "From a physical point of view," remarked the parlor philosopher, "we are much inferior to prehistoric man."

"Well, for my part, I would rather be inferior than prehistoric," replied the mere man.

The Trees.

Chippewa Falls Independent: Every tree in this city is paying its keep. They are something more than ornaments. There is no more beautiful picture than trees about a house, and we could well afford to cultivate them and take care of them, even if there were nothing else at stake but their beauty; but when we remember that they help us to live more comfortably, when we know that they make life more pleasant because of their help in modifying the temperature, we ought to be willing to encourage them for their utility alone.

Accurate Diagnosis.

Green Bay Press-Gazette: Dr. Paul S. Reinsch, on his way home to Madison, is quoted as saying he sees great wealth in China. That is China's chief misfortune—the other nations have seen the same thing and each one claimed to have seen it first.

The Road Question Is Universal.

Antigo Journal: Good roads are a benefit to everyone in one way or another. No matter what line of business you are engaged in or what you may be doing, the road question has some effect upon you. It may be to increase the cost of living to you, interfere with your business or your pleasure. It touches everyone somewhere.

Let Jennie Do It.

Eau Claire Telegram: About the killing of the woman suffrage referendum bill the other day at Madison, there is a mystery as to the change of votes of senators, including the senator from this district. But it may as well be left to the women to dig out the explanation.

Matchless Effort.

Neenah Times: The economy streak has reached Madison. Heretofore the employes at the state capitol were furnished matches free, gratis, for nothing. Now the employes must buy their own matches.

Rythm With a Moral.

Bayfield Progress: When the dust is on the counter and the cobweb's on the shelf, there's no one in the store but your own disheartened self, and your stock is getting shelf worn, and everything looks stale, and bills enough are coming in to make a banker pale. Same in Other States.

Wausau Record-Herald: This state annually pays a large toll of life to the water. Eighteen drownings reported for the month of April will be probably multiplied three or four times for the month of July. Young people, who are most inclined to take risks because they are ignorant of the danger, should be constantly reminded that the water is the most dangerous of all elements. Don't take chances, is the golden rule of safety.

Some Real Emotion Here.

Just a Moment

Daily Strength and Cheer.

Be careful for nothing; but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God. (Philippians iv, 6.)

In prayer the most important thing is to catch the ear of him to whom I speak. Do not offer one petition until you are fully conscious of having secured the attention of God. You need to have your heart filled by the Spirit with the holy consciousness that the everlasting, almighty God is indeed come very near you.—Andrew Murray.

It is not necessary to make long prayers, but it is essential to be much alone with God, waiting on his will, hearkening for his voice, lingering in the garden of Scripture for the coming of the Lord God in the dawn or cool of the day. No number of meetings, no fellowship with Christian friends, no amount of Christian activity, can compensate for the neglect of the still hour.—F. B. Meyer.

It is possible to recite even as sublime a prayer as the Lord's Prayer, and do it with as little thought or emotion or appreciation as though one were reeling off prayers by the yard. To repeat the alphabet or multiplication table is not more thoughtless than many formal prayers that have become mere recitations.—Arthur T. Pierson.

He that saveth his time from prayer shall lose it. He that loseth his time for communion with God shall find it in blessing.—Robert P. Wilder.

Take time to be separate from all friends and all duties, all cares and all joys; time to be still and quiet before God. Take time not only to secure stillness from man and the world, but from self and its energy. Let the Word and prayer be very precious; but remember, even these may hinder the quiet waiting. The activity of the mind in studying the Word, or giving expression to its thoughts in prayer, the activities of the heart, with its desires and hopes and fears, may so engage us that we do not come to the still waiting on the All-Glorious One. Though at first it may appear difficult to know thus quietly to wait with the activities of mind and heart for a time subduced; every effort after it will be rewarded; we shall find that it grows upon us, and the little season of silent worship will bring a peace and a rest that give a blessing not only in prayer, but all the day.—Andrew Murray.

"The Fittest Place for Man to Die."

How little recks it where men die
When once the moment's past
In which the dim and glazing eye
Has looked on earth its last;
Whether beneath the sculptured urn
The coffined form shall rest,
Or in its nakedness return
Back to the mother's breast!

Death is a common friend or foe,
As different men may hold,
And at its summons each must go,
The timid and the bold;
But when the spirit free and warm
Deserts it, as it must,
What matter where the lifeless form
Dissolves again to dust?

'Twere sweet, indeed, to close our eyes
With those we cherish near;
And, wafted upward by their sighs,
Soar to some calmer sphere,
But whether on the scaffold high,
Or in the battle's van,
The fittest place where man can die
Is where he dies for man!
—Michael J. Barry in the Dublin Nation (1844).

Easily Answered.

Chicago Herald: A Chicago woman has been noted since girlhood for her ready wit.

The other day a young amateur humorist exclaimed in her presence:

"What could be more dreadful for a woman than, after mending her husband's coat, to find in one of the pockets a love letter from another woman?"

"Fortunately," she said, "that could never happen. The woman would find the letter first, and then she would not mend the coat."

Political Chaff in the Minnesota Breezes

Off-Year Campaign Talk in the State Press.

Julius, Are You Kidding?

Luverne Journal: It looks as though Julius Schmahl were really going to do it. On the recent trip with the state senators through Northern Minnesota the secretary of state practically declared himself a candidate for governor. We had an idea Julius had been "kidding" all winter when he let the political writers say he would be a candidate, and that he was just taking advantage of the free advertising he was getting. But now it appears that he is in earnest and will really get into the Republican primaries next year.

How He Wrought for the State.

Battle Lake Review: "Hasn't William E. Lee had enough?" shrieks a stand-pat paper, which shudders whenever the Long Prairie man's name is mentioned for governor. Maybe! Maybe! But whether he has had "enough" or not is not material. William E. Lee is responsible for the retirement of the late un-lamented Eberhart, and to a certain extent responsible for a good governor—the happy Mr. Hammond. For these reasons, Mr. Lee occupies a large place in the hearts of his countrymen.

"It Is Written."

St. Peter Herald: A lot of our contemporaries are engaged in the harmless pastime of selecting candidates for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. It is quite probable that the Republicans will go through the formality of nominating a candidate, but it is written that Governor W. S. Hammond will be elected to succeed himself. Governor Hammond is filling his chair with dignity and ability, and the people will see to it that he is kept in the state house.

A Boom for Sam.

Owatonna Tribune: The Republicans of the state have a big question to solve in picking a candidate who will be strong enough to poll a decent vote in case they would even expect a show in the gubernatorial race next year. Unless the party gets together on some progressive candidate—Sam Y. Gordon of Browns Valley, for instance—we cannot see how they expect to poll any vote at all.

Who Knows?

Mankato Free Press: The Winnebago Press News is urging Col. Frank Day to run for congress on a "dry" ticket. The colonel was once a candidate for congress and he probably does not care to repeat the experience.

Will He Talk Then?

Luverne Journal: John Lind is to be the Democratic bugaboo in the senatorial race next year. With a nice, warm bitter fight in the Republican primaries you want to look out for John.

He Can Anyway—"Hammond."

Redwood Falls Sun: If William E. Lee wishes to please many of his best friends over the state he will stay out of the gubernatorial race next year. If he does he can come mighty near naming the next governor.

Will They Doublecross Their Fingers?

Anoka Union (Rep.): If the Republicans don't watch out W. S. Hammond will get 'em again, bogey man that he is.

Hats Off to the Flag.

Boston Record: "The greatest tribute I ever saw paid to the Stars and Stripes," says Col. Payson Bradley, past commander of the Massachusetts Grand Army, "was not on American soil. When the Ancient and Honorable artillery landed at Liverpool on its visit to England in 1896, the line of march was crowded with over 100,000 persons. When we unfolded 'Old Glory' we were struck with surprise at the cheers which went up from those English people. As we marched along, every man from the prince of Wales to the lowest bootblack took off his hat while the Stars and Stripes passed. I would like to see that happen once in Boston or New York before I die."

Tough Luck.

Ladies' Home Journal: "I won't pay one cent for my advertising this week," declared the storekeeper, angrily, to the editor of the country paper. "You told me you'd put the notice of my shoe polish in with the reading matter."

"And didn't I do it?" inquired the editor.

"No, sir," roared the advertiser. "No, sir, you did not! You put it in the column with a mess of poetry, that's where you put it."

DOESN'T BELIEVE IN ANTI-NOISE CRUSADE

To the Editor of The Herald:

Recently I wrote you concerning the causes of most automobile accidents, and what could be done to prevent them, and now I read of the recent accident to 15-year-old Fred Nelson.

Automobiles (and I am a car owner myself) take too many chances. They don't sound their warning signal one-quarter as often as they should. They come up behind a person crossing the street and never think of sounding their signal, if at all, until they are right on top of the person, and then they do not know whether the person is going to jump forward or backward.

In heavy traffic it is almost impossible, when a person is crossing the street, for them to look in all directions at the same time. And even if a horn was sounded the average warning signal is so weak in the throat that it is as bad as no warning at all.

Even people driving a car are in the same danger from other automobilists as are the people on the street. I have a good loud signal on my car—the loudest one I can get—and I never fail to sound it whenever I think a good strong blast on it will keep anyone from running into me, or will prevent pedestrians from running in front of me, not knowing that I am coming.

I believe that you ought to urge some ordinance that will compel automobilists to use their warning signal loud and often, and to have something on their car that can be heard fifty feet away. And when I urge this I want you to know that I am a car owner, and not one who has simply a grudge against automobilists.

Very truly yours,
GRIDLEY ADAMS.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

This department does not pretend to be infallible. It will endeavor, however, to answer questions sent to it by readers of The Herald to the best of its ability, reserving the right to ignore all that are trifling or of concern only to the questioner, or that ask for advice on legal or medical questions.

J. D., Duluth—About a year ago I read in The Duluth Herald how this government spent its money. What per cent of each dollar goes to militarism, regulating rivers, education, supporting the Indians, etc. I had a debate with one of the New Duluth business men. I said that 60 per cent went to the militarism and he said less than 25 per cent did. Now, would you please tell us the fact in the Open Court? —The annual expenditures of the United States are roughly, $1,000,000,000. Of this about 16 per cent goes to the war department, 14 per cent to the navy, 2 per cent to the Indians, 17 per cent to pensions, 2 per cent to interest on public debts. The pension fund might be counted as war expense, making a total of 47 per cent.

J. R., Duluth—Will you please give me some information about the height of Northern Minnesota above sea level?—According to the United States weather bureau records here, the following figures are correct:

The highest point in St. Louis county is in sections 26 and 28, township 59, range 17, northeast of Virginia—2,150 feet.

Tower, Minn., has an elevation of 1,385 feet.

From sea level to the top of the Duluth weather bureau is 1,133 feet.

LONG TALK WITH EDISON

Secretary Daniels Spends Three Hours With Electrical Wizard.

Consider Names of Members of New Civilian Advisory Board.

West Orange, N. J., July 16.—Secretary Daniels and Thomas A. Edison talked for nearly three hours over the proposed navy bureau of invention and the civilian advisory board, of which Mr. Edison is to be the head, in the latter's home here last night. Secretary Daniels said he would not announce the names of the members of the advisory board until after his return to Washington.

"My intention is to have all members of the board so well known that no one will ask 'Who is he?' Mr. Daniels said. "My idea in organizing this naval board is to bring about a mobilization of the brains of the country."

Mr. Daniels explained that he came here merely to get Mr. Edison's views about the personnel of the proposed board the latter is to head. He said he would consult with the navy engineering board before making public the additional members.

To Have National Laboratory.

"We intend to have the proposed board take up regulations and we plan to establish a national laboratory, where experiments may be made with a view to perfecting inventions," Mr. Daniels said.

Mr. Daniels referred to the fact that when he went into the office of secretary of the navy he found that Simon Lake of Bridgeport, Conn., one of the two inventors of submarines in the United States, was behind in his patents and was in danger of not being able to fulfill government contracts for submarines. "I went to Lake's bankers," continued the secretary, "and got them to give him further accommodation so that he could go on with the work. If I had let Lake go we would now have but one submarine to rely on."

Mr. Daniels said that one object of the naval board would be to go to congress and get additional money for naval work. He added that the proposed board was meeting with approval throughout the country, that he has received scores of letters from senators and representatives indorsing the plan.

Civilians for Initiative.

Mr. Daniels said that he wanted civilian advisers to take the initiative in seeking solutions for problems confronting the navy engineers; that he did not plan to have them work only in an advisory capacity. It was his plan, he added, to have the leading scientists who are to become members of the board get into touch with men of science who were not so widely known—men who are obscured from the public because they are buried in laboratory work.

"They say," Mr. Daniels continued, "that we have millions in men and millions in money, but we need something more than that. We need machinery and skill. What we want to do is to bring about a mobilization of the brains of the nation.

"I believe in preparedness, but also in scientific preparedness for war.

Need Experienced Men.

"Because I have insisted that men in the navy have intelligence and skill they have called me a 'faddist,' but the time is coming when the people will realize that we need experienced, skilled mechanics in the navy, men with brains, specialists in machinery and electricity. Instead of having 1,000 laundrymen, we need 1,000 skilled mechanics."

Following his conference with Mr. Edison, which lasted until almost midnight, Mr. Daniels was pressed for an inkling of the personnel of Mr. Edison's assistants on the board. "All I can say," he said, "is that it will be composed of men known nationally and internationally as experts in their particular lines."

This last statement gave rise to the conviction that Mr. Daniels had probably settled upon Orville Wright, the aeroplane inventor; Henry Ford and Alexander Graham Bell for members of the board.

Mr. Edison was silent on the outcome of the conference. Mr. Daniels had motored over to the Edison home in Llewellyn park from the house of Miller Reese Hutchinson, Mr. Edison's consulting engineer, where he had dinner. The secretary was accompanied by Commander Daniel Wurtsbaugh of Washington.

Mr. Edison was waiting on his porch for the secretary. The inventor had previously greeted the newspaper men and introduced Mrs. Edison, who in reply to a question said that she only consented to Mr. Edison's taking an additional work because she understood that he was to act "only in an advisory capacity."

ANOTHER GERMAN SPY IS EXECUTED

Robert Rosenthal Found Guilty By Court-Martial and Put to Death.

London, July 16.—Another German spy has been put to death in England, after having been convicted by court-martial. He was Robert Rosenthal, who was arrested in London early in June, and confessed, it is alleged, to the officials of Scotland Yard, that he had been sent to England by the German admiralty to obtain information concerning British naval matters.

The official announcement of the execution of the sentence of the court-martial, given out here last night, says:

"Robert Rosenthal, who on the sixth of July was tried by a general court-martial on charges of espionage, was found guilty and sentenced to death. The sentence was duly confirmed and carried out this morning."

Rosenthal, when arrested in London early in June as he was about to leave England after a short stay there, had a passport which had been issued at the American embassy in Berlin. He admitted, however, that he was not an American citizen. Information gathered by the American embassy in London indicated that Rosenthal, accompanied by several friends, one of them an American, went to the embassy in Berlin and swore falsely that he was an American, and received a temporary passport.

Ambassador Page at London, in reporting the case to the state department at Washington, said stories were current in London to the effect that Rosenthal in his confession had charged that Capt. von Prieger of the German admiralty office had a complete equipment for issuing fraudulent American passports.

Another "Bomb" Warning.

New Orleans, July 16.—Another "bomb warning" from the mysterious letter written "Pearce" received last night by a local newspaper, asserted the French line steamer Rochambeau from New York, would be destroyed "if the plans of my associates and myself are carried out."

METHODS OF WARFARE BY ENEMIES INDICTED BY AUSTRIA-HUNGARY

Barbarous Treatment of Nationals and Prisoners Is Denounced.

Hostility and Brutality of People of Brussels Related.

Washington, July 16.—Austria-Hungary's indictment of the methods of warfare of her enemies, giving scores of instances of "barbarous treatment" of nationals and prisoners and breaches of international law, was made public today in a "Red Book," issued by the Austro-Hungarian ministry of foreign affairs through its embassy here.

The publication is called a "Collection of Evidence" and is divided into four parts.

"The first two parts," says a prefatory note introducing numerous depositions and affidavits, "contain evidence concerning the treatment of Austro-Hungarian diplomatic and consular officers by the government officers of the hostile countries. The cases adduced deal with the violations of the most elementary rules of the right of hospitality, a right consecrated since the remotest antiquity and respected even by the uncivilized nations or tribes. Never before have so many cases of the violations of this right been instanced. In several cases the illegal expulsion or arrest has preceded the actual state of war, a fact which still further aggravates the offense. The expulsion of the Austro-Hungarian diplomatic agents from Morocco and Egypt, which is irreconcilable with existing international treaties has been made the subject of protests lodged with the neutral powers.

Methods Are Inhuman.

"The third part contains evidence of the treatment to which Austrian and Hungarian citizens have been subjected—in most cases before the opening of hostilities—in hostile countries. Even if it be conceded that the prevention of the enemy's nationals from joining the war is to a certain extent justifiable, the methods employed by the hostile countries, and especially the arrest and incarceration of aged men, sick persons, women and children are contrary to the elementary usages of humanity. It was a French professor of law who thus defined such conduct: 'To inflict sufferings on defenseless citizens of the enemy without imperative reasons is to revert to barbarism.'

"The fourth part comprises authentic proofs of violations of the laws of warfare. From the evidence published herewith the conclusion is inevitable that there is hardly a rule of warfare which has not been violated repeatedly by the hostile armies. To the numerous cases of disregard of the regulations concerning the use of prohibited projectiles, contained in The Hague agreement about the laws and practices of warfare on land, and of the Geneva convention, must be added the unspeakable outrages of which the Serbian and Montenegrin troops have been guilty. This ruthlessly illegal way of conducting war operations and the cruel and treacherous participation of the entire population in acts of war, certify once more the lapse from civilization which the people of those countries have undergone.

Collection Incomplete.

"The 'Collection of Evidence' does not purport to be complete in any respect. It is naturally restricted to the exposition of facts which have been either officially investigated or authenticated in an unimpeachable way.

"In proportion to the number of cases which have actually occurred, the number of the proven instances is exceedingly small. Up to this day the ministry of foreign affairs is still without information concerning the fate of several consular officials who have been arrested. The Austrian and Hungarians who are being detained in hostile countries can be counted by the thousands. Almost all of them still endure in silence the outrageous methods wherein the governments of hostile countries set human dignity at naught. The breaches of the laws of warfare as compiled in part of this collection must likewise be considered, however, as only individual evidence. For the time being we cannot have anything approaching a comprehensive knowledge of events in the territories beyond the enemy's lines. And yet, from the reports which reach us from trustworthy news published in foreign daily papers, it is possible to draw the well-founded conclusion that thousands of shocking violations of the law of nations have occurred, especially in the districts of our country occupied by the enemy.

An Inevitable Result.

"It may be conceded that certain breaches of international law seem to be an inevitable consequence of the massing of troops on so huge a scale as this war has produced. But it is nevertheless most disappointing that the international agreements assuring the protection of lives, the honor, the freedom of the religious faith of peaceful citizens, and the arts and sciences, should be wilfully violated by the troops and officials of the very government under the aegis of which The Hague conferences reformed and completed the laws of warfare. One of the main causes for this unfortunate situation must be ascribed to the employment of troops wholly unable to perceive the legal restrictions applied to warfare. The French professor of law, already quoted above, enumerates the doctrine that countries at war with nations of a low standard of civilization are compelled to apply methods of warfare which correspond to the level of their opponent's morals. He adds: 'The French acted in accordance with this precept in Africa, Tonkin, China and Dahomey; the English in India and Russians in Caucasia and in Turkestan,' France, Great Britain and Russia could, therefore, not possibly expect that their African and Asiatic subjects would respect the provisions of international law; there cannot be the slightest doubt that they are well aware that they are disregarding the law of European nations when they line up savages and half- savages against the troops of European powers.

Grave Breaches of the Law.

"The object of this publication is to adduce only such violations of the international law as have been perpetrated directly and individually against nationals of the dual monarchy; it, therefore, does not include the evidences of numerous exceedingly grave breaches of the law which affected Austria-Hungary in an indirect and general way. Such breaches are to be found in the arbitrary and unlawful declaration of France and Great Britain with regard to the status of Morocco, Egypt and Cyprus, in the violation of the rights of neutral nations and in the systematic disregard of the regulations provided by maritime law.

"The preposterous claim of the hostile nations to the right to subject the entire population of large countries to famine must be stigmatized as a sacrilegious violation of the rules of warfare. No less sacrilegious is the act of the hostile governments in tolerating, if not actually inspiring, the unprecedented agitation of a press which disseminates lies and fosters hatred. Most of the excesses to which thousands of innocent and defenseless people have fallen victims are the direct outcome of that agitation.

"The collection of evidence, as now published for general information, cannot convey even a faint idea of the decay which the notions of international law have undergone and which in the course of a few months have destroyed many a hope; it may, however, furnish some facts for the reflection of those whose judgment has remained unbiased as to who is responsible for the collapse of the law of nations and of the sense of morality in a war brought on by our enemies for the purpose of crushing nations engaged in the peaceful pursuit of the blessing of civilization, and as to who has the right to claim that he is fighting this hotly-contested struggle for the sake of liberty and humanity.

Further Reports to Be Given.

"The Austro-Hungarian ministry of foreign affairs has received, since the printing of this collection was completed, a number of further reports of violations of international law committed by hostile governments, and among them the reports of the consular officials recently released from Russia. These and similar revelations which may come to hand at a future date will be published in the form of supplements to the present collection.

"The names of a number of witnesses have been withheld at their own special request; they have reasons to fear that the publication of their names would lend, as long as the passions aroused by the war last, to subject them to reprisals and thus endanger either their interests or those of other persons in hostile countries. The identity of all the witnesses has, however, been carefully established by responsible government officials; the names which have, for the time being, been suppressed will be available when their publication will not be liable to entail harm to them or other sufferers of the war."

A "typical example of the treatment of Austrians in Belgium is described in a letter from an Austrian merchant in the perfumery business who had lived for fifteen years in Paris and was forced to leave within twenty-four hours.

Brutal Actions.

"The hostility and brutality of the population of Brussels towards Germans and Austrians," he writes concerning his journey through Belgium, "was beyond description. From Brussels we proceeded to Antwerp, where we were arrested by the garde civique on the station platform. * * * My poor wife was hurried on with the butt ends of the guards' rifles. As she took no heed of this, she was struck across both legs with a rifle and was injured. We witnessed most pitiable scenes. A child 9 years was so frightened that it refused to follow its others and clung with both hands to the railings at the exit; a garde civique hit it with his saber and cut its left hand off.

"An Austrian couple, who had owned a restaurant at Antwerp for the last sixteen years, was terribly ill-treated by the mob. The poor woman had one of her eyes pierced with a fork, while her husband had two fingers cut off. Another Austrian woman was expelled from a maternity home with her baby which was only 5 days old. She had neither dress nor shirt on her body, which was only covered with a dirty bed sheet. It was a heart-rending scene, yet it did not prevent a garde civique from making fun of her in a shameless manner; it was such a 'comedy,' very amusing, indeed."

Shocking Treatment.

With reference to the treatment of Austro-Hungarian nationals in France, the chief complaint was against the hardships imposed upon innocent women and children in the concentration camps. A deposition of Miss M. E. Schreiner, a graduate nurse, pictures conditions in a convent at Garaison, to which Austrians, Hungarians and Germans were ordered after a march of twenty kilometers. Here they were informed that they were prisoners of war.

"There were altogether about 1,000 prisoners," declared Miss Schreiner, "half of whom were women and children. There was no furniture available, and straw was the sole bedding. Under the pretext of safety, the existing latrines were boarded up and holes in the ground were dug by the male prisoners in lieu of other arrangements. There were no provisions made for washing. Insufficiency of food and the weather conditions soon brought about serious illnesses, such as dysentery, and in consequence of the inadequate latrines, epidemics broke out. Two women were confined and had to put up with the most atrocious treatment. Four people died."

Other cases cited included the "malicious punishment, rough medical attendance by a veterinary surgeon," and the "shameless molestation of interned girls by French soldiers" at Sables d'Olonne.

Young Girls Assaulted.

"The young girls," according to one of the depositions, "were exposed to criminal assaults by the soldiers. In the beginning they were herded together with the young men, and had to share their rooms or stables with them. Modesty forbids specification of all the acts of indecency to which we had to submit; worst of all offenders was the commissioner of police, Maternes, who unmercifully maltreated all those who opposed his immoral designs."

The royal Hungarian ministry of the interior obtained on Jan. 11, 1915, a report of "the murder of interned Hungarians at Argenton-sur-Cruse, Angers, Bastide-St. Pierre, La Courtine, Garaison and Orville."

In Great Britain, insufficient food and accommodating, it is claimed, were accorded the interned nationals at Devonport and Newbury.

"Col. Haines" (presumably in charge of the detention camps), says a letter from Baron Giskra to Count Berchtold, "would have been quite willing to do something for the prisoners, but his humanitarian impulses were checked by Lord Kitchener."

Similar complaints are made of treatment of prisoners at Dorchester and the Douglas concentration camp on the Isle of Man.

Barbarous Treatment.

In Russia, the intelligence department of the Austro-Hungarian general staff learned of "barbarous treatment inflicted on the interned at Orenburg, where typhus and starvation depleted their ranks by the hundreds." In Serbia besides "rough treatment, plundering and insufficient food, compulsory naturalization was enforced prisoners of war were robbed, badly fed, and forced to do work for military purposes."

Twenty-seven cases of violations by Russia of the laws of warfare and eighteen instances in which Serbia and Montenegro are accused of various atrocities are given in detailed affidavits selected from many more made by soldiers, officers and civilian officials. These include, in Russia, not only the use of dum-dum bullets, firing on the Red Cross flag and ambulances, but organized looting and killing of civilians and numerous authenticated cases of rape.

Cases are recorded of looting and killing directed especially against Jewish civilians who also were forced under the lash to work in the trenches during their holidays."

Atrocities committed by the Cossacks, assassinations and robberies and wanton destruction, all supported by concrete instances were verified, it is claimed, after the Austrians re-occupied the invaded territory where the alleged violations had occurred.

Atrocities of All Kinds.

In Serbia and Montenegro, the participation of the civilian population in the fighting, the misuse of the white flag, use of cartridges filled with wire nails and pieces of vitriol of copper, torture of prisoners, the poisoning of wells with dead bodies and mud, the firing upon the army service corps by women and children, mutilation of bodies and maltreatment of prisoners of war with insufficient food and accommodation, complete the list of atrocities complained of by the Austrian army. Under the head of "Violations of the Laws of Warfare," complaint is made that Russia refused to recognize Austrians described as the Polish and Roumanian legions of belligerents. The Russians are accused of hanging them "wherever they catch them."

"The Roumanian legions, not less than the Polish legions, says the book, "comply not only with all the requirements of The Hague convention in regard to a volunteer corps, but form a part of the army itself."

Charges are also made against the Russians of "grievous acts of terrorism" against Greek Catholics in Bukowina.

Saturday, Aug. 21, has been definitely decided upon as "College Day," at the boat club and preparations are being made for the program for the day.

As in past years the Oatka branch will be used for the celebration but the plans have been changed a little this year and instead of the row of booths, where the colleges put on stunts, shows or various attractions, there will be a continuous program given from a float in which each college will be given ten minutes to put on some "stunt." After the program, which will be given during the afternoon, there will be the usual races and tug-of-war and the picnic suppers followed by the gathering on the beach for the bonfire and college yells and songs.

Aug. 21 has been chosen as there will be a full moon then and Saturday was thought a better day than Wednesday as more people are able to get away from offices and work on that day.

All college people interested whether members of the boat club or not will take part in the day's events and those having suggestions or wishing information about the day are asked to communicate with Mrs. Floid L. Fuller, 25 Bruce street, Hunter's Park, Melrose 5718.

At Tea House.

For Saturday Club Members Will Be Entertained.

Officers and members of the Saturday club and the ex-presidents of that organization will be guests of Mrs. E. Frank Barker at a tea which she will give tomorrow afternoon at her Japanese tea house "O Matsu Chaya" on Park Point. Mrs. Barker will talk on "Yumata Banashli," "The Spirit and Soul of Japan," and Mrs. O. A. Credson will read translations of poems which Mrs. Barker will give in Japanese. Assisting the hostess will be Misses Helen Harbison, Irene Keyes, Eleanor Keyes, Hortense Spiegel and Katherine Kaltenbach.

Preparing to Handle Big Regatta Crowds

For those who dread the crowds in returning from the boat club regatta and festival days, the club has just completed arrangements with Clow & Nicholson to have one of their excursion boats at the end of the government pier on the point shortly after the program at the regattas which will be held at the boat club next Friday and Saturday afternoons, and they will take passengers to the Lake avenue or Fifth avenue docks for a "jitney."

There has never been any congestion in going over to the boat club, but the return has often occasioned long waits and an extremely crowded bridge, so the chance of return by boat will be a welcome relief. One or two trips will be made each day, according to the crowds to be carried over.

Arrangements have also been made with the city to prohibit the crossing of automobiles or any other vehicles on the bridge during the crowded hours, so all owners of automobiles are urged to leave them on the up-town side of the canal unless they cross early and expect to remain until late after the crowd has returned.

Peggy Peabody's Observations

The Woman and the Street Car.

The young woman of today swings off the running board of a street car very much like her brother, and thus saves herself from danger in one direction, while courting it in another. But the woman of uncertain age and older confines herself to almost the one way and that most awkward and ungainly, which would not appear to have one single advantage to recommend it.

It may be that the timid woman of uncertain age reasons that by turning her back upon the traffic and turmoil of a busy street she thus shuts out its danger and gains courage to alight in its midst. Women have a habit of closing their eyes and walking defiantly into dangers that they but partially realize, so this may account for their back-handed methods of leaving a car.

Conductors take more precautions with women than with men. The car comes to a standstill and remains so until they are comfortably off, even should they consume two minutes in the matter. Men take chances in alighting from a car and most conductors let them take those chances. Women have given me serious concern many times, but men! All I can say is that I seldom ride on a car where not only one man but several give me a fright that fairly sends my heart into my throat.

I can't see any great difference between men and women in this particular, save in their ways of endangering life and limb. Woman makes a slow and awvward exit. She looks so ungainly that one is moved more to ridicule than fear. If the car was not brought to a standstill for women and if women generally were not supposed to wait until it had stopped, there would be fearful risk and fearful results from this one folly of women.

There is, however, more danger for the woman who attempts to swing off the car in man-fashion. The one who alights with her back to the thoroughfare will wait for the car to come to a standstill, but not milady who has acquired the proper knack. She sees men jump and land on their feet and she feels that she is just as nimble-witted and just as capable of holding her own in a contest of this kind as men.

But neither one is assured against accident by the proper method as the dragging men get and the falls they receive give ample proof. It is not possible that backing off a car "old woman" fashion is the only dangerous way of alighting, with men jumping off and on with the car going at good speed.

Theater Gossip.

The last glimpse of the Baldwin Players in drama for at least one week and perhaps longer, will be afforded tomorrow. "The Squaw Man," which is this week's attraction, has been conceded to be one of the best dramatic productions of the company's season in Duluth. It will close after the matinee and evening performance tomorrow, and the company will then make its first venture into the musical line. "Madame Sherry" will be the attraction, opening Sunday afternoon and continuing all week. Great preparations are being made for this production, which it is claimed will be the most expensive the company has made in Duluth. Miss Edna Munsey will be the prima donna, and Fred Carleton, recently of the "Sari" company, and formerly with "Madame Sherry" has been brought to Duluth for the week's engagement. He and Miss Munsey, George Fox and Miss Geraldine Blair will have the principal parts next week. Mr. Fox will be at home in musical comedy, as he was for many years a musical director and comedian before coming to Duluth. Mr. Fox is now rehearsing the chorus. Monday will be Elk's night, and from the interest shown by advance reservations for the entire week, it is expected to set a new record for the box office.

Gloomy weather and a bright and attractive show at the New Grand combined yesterday to draw large crowds to that popular playhouse. Standing room was hard to get and the large audiences accorded the new show a hearty welcome. The Japanese trio and Charlie Chaplin are two attractions hard to beat, and these top the vaudeville and photoplay bills respectively.

The Aki Trio, consisting of two Japanese men and a little miss, put on a line of varied entertainment that proved a great hit. Thrilling athletic stunts and a number of popular songs by the tiny female member of the trio were well combined. The songs were encored repeatedly.

Nick Hufford and the Lockhardt Sisters in an act called "The Colored Parson and His Dusky Belles" caused roars of laughter and Mr. Hufford's impersonation of a negro parson was a screaem.

Paddock and Paddock give a program of society dances, singing and talking.

Charlie Chaplin appears in a new film play, "Getting Acquainted." It is up to his usual high standard as a fun-maker. Helen Holmes in her thrilling railway episodes is again on the screen, this time "The Midnight Limited." The Hearst-Selig News Pictorial, offering leading news events of the world, is of much interest. Several other good films are shown.

Victor Moore sets a new standard for silent comedy, in "Chimmie Fadden" at the Rex today and tomorrow. As Chimmie, a funny man like Victor Moore, is a treat after slap stick methods.

CHIMMIE FADDEN IN THE MOVIES

"Chimmie Fadden" was first a series of newspaper stories in the New York Sun and made their author, E. W. Townsend, wealthy. Than it became a book which sold into hundreds of thousands of copies. Next it became one of the most popular of all American comedies and now it reaches the photoplay.

A tough Bowery lad was "Chimmie Fadden," good at heart but mighty weak on manners and sadly out of place in refined society. Chimmie had a dear old Irish mother; moreover, he has an eye for beauty. And when he rescued the rich Fanny Van Courtland from the obnoxious attentions of a "masher" he caught a glimpse of her French maid—and his heart softened to the point of romance. Thus "Chimmie Fadden" becomes the story of the mic Fadden" becomes the story of the Irish-American Bowery boy and his "Duchess."

The three-act production that opened a two days' run at the Zelda theater today is entitled "The Heart That Knew." It is a pretty story and one with a moral. Besides this, Charlie Chaplin will be seen in a two-part feature comedy, and with him is the man who claims to be the real Chaplin. He is Billie Ritchie, in a two-part comedy, entitled "The Curse of Work." Billie Ritchie has performed before royalty and will make a big hit with the Zelda patrons. A Pathe weekly is also on the program.

NEW PROGRAM AT THE ZELDA

The beautiful pipe organ is being played by Miss Robinson, who came here direct from the Clemmer theater, Seattle, Wash. Miss Della Jones, the Zelda vocalist, adds variety to all the Zelda programs.

¶ How Well Our Milk Keeps in Hot Weather

That is because it is chilled immediately after milking and kept at a consistently low temperature until it is put in the pasteurizer.. After it is pasteurized it is at once chilled to 33 or 34 degrees and kept at a low temperature until you receive it.

Souring germs, like all other germs, multiply rapidly immediately the temperature is allowed to rise, and milk that is delivered to you in a warm state will sour quickly, even though you put it right on the ice. We deliver our milk packed in ice so that it may not become warm during its delivery through the city.

We leave nothing to chance, but take every possible precaution to serve you with the very best milk in the very best condition.

AGAIN CROSS THE DNIESTER

Russian Positions Near Border Bombarded By Austrians.

Germans Report Successes in Various Sections of France.

Berlin, July 16, via London.—Dispatches received here from Austrian headquarters say that after a heavy bombardment of the Russian position the Austrians have crossed the Dniester river at Uolebiskupie, on the Russian border, where the Austrian crown lands of Galicia and Bukowina, and the Russian province of Bessarabia meet.

The German official statement today says:

"In the western theater: During one of the enemy's attacks in the neighborhood of Souchez we lost a trench in the section south of the cemetery on July 16.

"Repeated attempts by the French to take away from us the positions we had captured in the Argonne, failed. The positions are firmly in our hands.

"French attacks delivered yesterday and today to the west of Argonne forest failed in the face of the north German landwehr, who inflicted large and sanguinary losses on the enemy in bitter hand to hand fighting. We captured 462 prisoners.

"Since June 20 our troops have fought continuously in the Argonne and to the west of that forest, with the exception of short interruptions. In addition to the gain in territory and booty in materials, the total of 116 officers and 7,009 French prisoners has been reached up to the present.

"On our front which joins the Argonne to the east lively artillery battles are in progress. Attacks made by the enemy in the region were repulsed without difficulty.

"In the neighborhood of Leintry to the east of Luneville there have been outpost engagements.

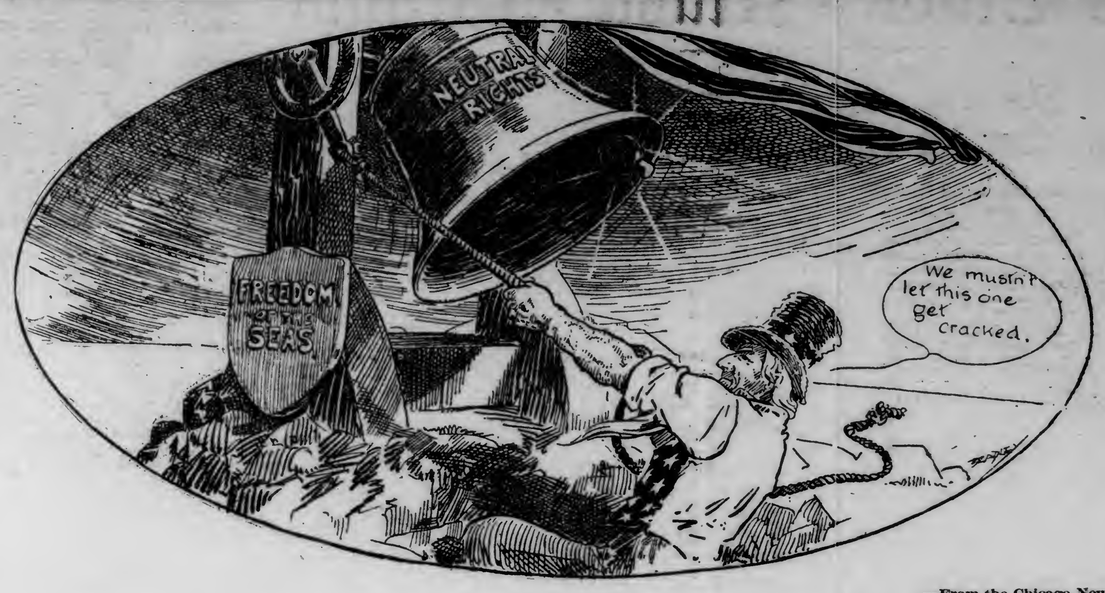

"Our aviators dropped bombs on enemy troops in Gerardmer (in the Vosges mountains, eight miles south of Saint Die).

"In the eastern theater: Our troops have crossed the Windau river, north of Koltinyani, in an easterly direction.

"Southeast of Kolno and south of Przasnysz we have made further progress and are fighting.

"In the southeastern theater: The situation with the German troops is unchanged."

WANTS PURCHASE OF HOTEL SET ASIDE

Mrs. Bessie Hanson Thinks She Was Induced to Pay Too Much.

When Mrs. Bessie Hanson entered into a contract with Sam Badal and his wife, Thea Badal, for the purchase of the furniture and good will of the Radisson hotel, 219 East First street, on June 1 last, fraudulent and false representations were made by Badal, according to Mrs. Hanson's version of the affair.

In district court this morning, she filed suit against Badal and his wife asking that the deal be set aside. She secured from the court an order directing Badal to come into court tomorrow and show cause why he should not be restrained from foreclosing against her on notes which she gave in part payment. Badal is employed as head waiter at the Holland hotel.

The property was sold by the Badals to Mrs. Hanson for $1,700. She claims that their representations as to its value were false and that she now finds that the property was not worth more than $900. She gave Badal $1,400 cash and $300 in notes. At the time of the sale, the property was subject to a chattel mortgage given to the owners of the premises as security for the payment of the rent.

Mrs. Hanson secured Badal's arrest on a charge of selling mortgaged property. The case, however, was dismissed in municipal court, the mortgage being satisfied. Mrs. Hanson is now suing to have the sale set aside and her money returned to her. She claims that she is an inexperienced woman and that Badal took advantage of her.

LET FARM WOMEN "CONSIDER THE LILIES"

Mrs. Bell Van Dorn Harbert, president of the International Congress of Farm Women: We are today facing a moral situation—a state of mind and heart which is doing more harm than any physical hindrance or lack of money in rural home-making.

Go where you will, you will find a large percentage of mothers and daughters dissatisfied, not because they are overworked or ill-treated, but because they are lonesome, and their souls are hungry for love, for happiness, for recognition, for conveniences and for more beautiful surroundings. Supply these and all is changed. Their shoulders straighten, the corners of their mouths turn up, their eyes brighten, mother's step becomes elastic, her work is glorified before her eyes and she loves her farm home.

These things do not depend upon wealth as counted by dollars and cents. The poorest home in the world is a home supplied with money and nothing else.

Is it not time, then, that we obey another command and "consider the lilies of the field," and think of what God has done to make the earth man's dwelling place and how the little things of life have been working out with infinite pains?

God might have made the earth bring forth enough for one and all;
The oak tree and and the cedar tree without a flower at all.
Then why are all these flowers we see? Why did he give them birth?
To minister delight to men and beautify the earth.

Is there not a lesson in this that we are missing? ar investment that would pay more interest than stocks and bonds? an investment that would lift the mortgage of discontent? These little touches of beauty may not pay in dollars and cents, but they pay in spiritual currency—the stuff from which real life is made.

A flower's beauty is the smile or innocence and makes a fit companion for your children. To cultivate a flower means to feed the soul as much as the cultivation of a potato furnishes food for the body. I know the corn field has a substantial look because its products pay for the farm, but the flower garden has a refining look and a characteristic beauty which makes the farm worth paying for.

THE DELUGE BEFORE THE FALL.

Scientific American: According to a translation of a recently deciphered inscription on one of the Sumerian tablets, Prof Langdon of Jesus college, Oxford, says the deluge preceded the fall of man. The tablet, which has been almost completely restored, contains six finely written columns of about 240 lines, most of which are intact. It begins by describing the land of primeval bliss, which it locates at Dilmun, an island in the Persian gulf. "In this paradise dwelt mankind, whom Nintud, the creatress, with the help of Enlil, had created. After the deluge this king is called Tagtug, the divine. And this Tagtug lives in a garden, is himself a gardener, and the wise Enki reveals unto him wisdom. The Greek historians, too, preserve this legend in the story of Oannes, who rose from the Persian gulf to teach men wisdom in primeval times. And so Tagtug, as in the Hebrew history of Noah, plants a garden, names the trees and plants, and is permitted to eat all but the cassia tree, an herb of healing par excellent. Of this plant Tagtug was not to eat, for thereby he would obtain eternal life. Mankind until this time possessed extreme longevity, but not immortality. Tagtug, on his own initiative, takes the eats. He is cursed by Nintud and becomes a prey to disease and ordinary mortality. Thus in the original Sumerian story Noah, the survivor of the flood, is one who eats from the tree of life. No woman is concerned in this disobedience which resulted in our loss of perfect health, peace and countless years."

BLIND MAY READ AT DULUTH PUBLIC LIBRARY; SIXTY VOLUMES WITH RAISED LETTERS IN COLLECTION

READING BOOKS FOR THE BLIND.

The Duluth public library has taken one of the foremost steps of any similar institution in the country by adding to its already many modern features, a library and reading room for the blind.

Many valuable volumes have been placed on the shelves and when the collection has been completed, there will be about sixty large volumes. These were secured through the influence of Miss Bertha Hanford, one of the leaders among the Duluth workers for the blind. The volumes were secured from the state institution for the blind at Faribault.

Miss Hanford, who lost her sight some years ago, is devoting her life to the work of aiding the blind, and the securing of this addition to the public library may be counted as one of the most useful and profitable acts that she could do for the blind here. The library board has aided, also, by giving over a large reading room situated in the front of the building at the top of the stairs.

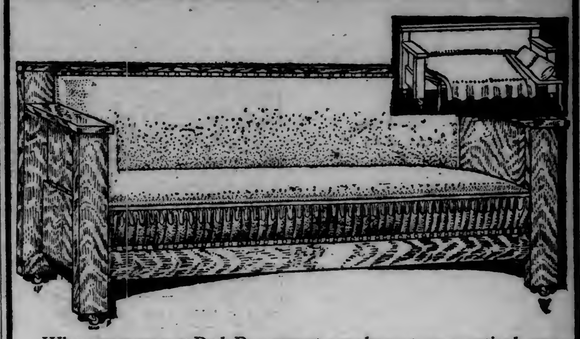

Interesting Collection.

The library for the blind is an interesting collection and is attracting wide interest among all classes of readers in Duluth. The volumes are large, many of them being much bigger than the largest edition of the ordinary Bible. The pages are perfectly white, the letters being raised so that the blind reader may use the touch system in perusing them. The letters are in the form of raised dots, and to the ordinary reader are almost undistinguishable. The blind, however, are abit to pass their fingers over these dots and read very rapidly.

Among the most interesting books of the collection is a copy of the Bible in ten large volumes. Each of these is about the size of an ordinary full-sized volume. Among the other books are "The Last of the Mohicans," "Treasure Island," "Henry Esmond," "Marmion," "The House of Seven Gables," "Aldrich Stories," "The Pilot," "The History of the American People," "Composition and Rhetoric," and many others.

Many more books will be installed for the department in the near future, according to Miss Frances Earhart, public librarian.

RURAL ROUTE OUT OF GRAND RAPIDS

Movement Started to Get Service That Would Benefit Many.

Grand Rapids, Minn., July 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—S. P. Hegdahl of the town of Harris, has started a movement to secure a rural free delivery route out of Grand Rapids, which would serve a large territory.

Mr. Hegdahl has a delivery service figured out whereby a route would go south across the Mississippi river bridge, turn west at the Doran corner, thence to the Ogema hotel at Pokegama lake, thence east past the Tim Hoey farm, through the plat of Cottage grove, serving the farmers and summer cottages there; thence past the Harris place to the Pokegama lake ferry, then back east and north past the Niles and Alton places, past Hegdahl, G. H. Becker's, George Becker's, and then east past the Munday and Thaxter places, and on east to the Jacobs and McLean places, then south over the new road recently built, past the John Hofer, George Shook, J. M. and Art Romans, Robert Bousselot and Metzenhuber places, thence north and east past the Louis Romans and William Dibbert, Claud Day, J. M. Francisco, Fred Yost, S. G. Benzing and Theo Liebrich places, thence north on the state highway, serving en route, the two Staley brothers, E. H. Dorothy, H. B. Personett, R. W. Cook, H. A. Wardall.

The route would make thirty miles, and probably cover more territory than any other route that could be devised in that direction. The establishment of such a route would not only be a convenience to the patrons, but it would stimulate the building and maintenance of roads—in fact one of the requirements for the establishment of a rural route is that the roads be good and that they be maintained.

HIBBING MOTOR RACING SUNDAY

Some Speed Merchants Expected to Furnish Thrills for Crowd.

Hibbing, Minn., July 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tilton E. Lewis of Duluth, who is promoting the big all-range speed races here Sunday, has spared nothing to make this the greatest event that has ever been pulled off on the range. With many of the world's foremost space killers entered the affair promises to be nerve racking.

Several of the speed demons have already been out at the fair ground tracks warming up their machines. Several have hit it off at the 40-mile clip. The fact that the track is only a half mile circular makes the racing unusually risky for the drivers, all of whom declare that it is exceptionally fast. The state record for a half-mile dirt track is not high and all the drivers are confident that it will be smashed badly at the Hibbing races.

Wrestling Contest.

Mr. Lewis is planning also to arrange a big wrestling card between Tom Shaw, range middleweight champion, against Waino Ketonen, the Finn wonder. Shaw has expressed a willingness to forfeit $500 providing he cannot throw the Finn. This money, it is expected, will be inducement enough for Ketonen, who is willing to cover the bet. This go, it is expected, will attract hundreds from all parts of the range and considerable interest has already been aroused as to the relative merits of the two mat wonders.

ROAD IS INSPECTED.

Buck Lake Road Is Gone Over By County Officials.

Nashwauk, Minn., July 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—County Commissioners McWilliams, O'Brien and Passard, State Engineer Lidberg and Charles Latvala inspected the Buck Lake road running north to the Bear River country Sunday, and reported that the road is in fine condition in spite of the heavy rains of the last month. This was the final inspection of this road, which was constructed by McWilliams, Latvala & Lake, local road builders.

The piece of road starting from McLeod's and running north on the Buck lake highway, a distance of four miles, was put in repair the first of the week, and now one can run an automobile direct to Bear River and return by way of Hibbing, a distance of about eighty miles.

NASHWAUK STOCK GETS INTO POUND

Nashwauk, Minn., July 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The running at large of horses and cattle has been stopped by order of the village council with the result that a good many cows and horses were placed in the village pound. Owners of cattle and horses were repeatedly warned that they must keep their stock from roaming the streets at night and when no attention was paid a pound master was engaged to enforce the orders of the council.

The village has men and teams opening up First street from Pearson to Roberts avenues in the southern addition to Nashwauk.

Houses Are Numbered.

This week all houses in the village limits have been numbered and the addresses will be put in a directory.

The annual meeting of Independent School District No. 9, including Nashwauk and Keewatin, will take place in the high school Saturday. Two directors for terms of three years each will be elected. The candidates are John F. Milan and Joseph Scalise of Keewatin and John T. Ring of Nashwauk.

Eli Rokkola was brought before Justice of the Peace Donovan Tuesday on a charge of speeding his automobile within the village limits, and was assessed $3 costs and warned not to again exceed the speed limit. "The speed laws will be strictly enforced," said President Reifel, "and the policemen have order to arrest any one seen speeding within the limits of the village.

The Nashwauk Gun club held a very successful shoot Sunday morning at the trap on the Crosby dump. Three squads participated and Max H. Barber and B. W. Batchelder made the high scores.

LIBRARY'S FUTURE IS NOT SETTLED

Hibbing Board Not Fully Decided About Keeping Place Open.

Hibbing, Minn., July 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dissensions among members of the library board developed at the meeting yesterday afternoon held for the purpose of devising some plan by which the institution can be kept open.

Because village warrants held by the board for the library cannot be cashed at what some of the board members decided is a reasonable discount, M. J. Moran, president, and members S. C. Scott, village attorney, and W. R. Spensley recommended that the library be closed. Mrs. Irvin Lerch, Mrs. T. S. Sillman and T. G. Godfrey recommended that the unreasonable discounts be accepted, while Herman Antonelli would not commit himself.

Another meeting will be held Monday when definite action will be taken. Whether the library will continue its activities all depends upon whether the orders are cashed at a reasonable discount, board members say.

PREUS IN HIBBING.

State Auditor Considers Leasing of State Gravel Pits.

Hibbing, Minn., July 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—State Auditor J. A. O. Preus made a flying trip through Hibbing yesterday on business. While here he looked after some leases of state lands in addition to seeing village officials relative to leasing the village state gravel and sand pits.

Mr. Preus has made tentative arrangements with the village for the leasing of state gravel and sand pits at 50 per cent the cost of what is charged to individuals. This price is fixed under the theory that most of the sand and gravel are used for roads. Highways are usually regarded as being of as much value to the state as to the community in which they are made and for that reason officials advocate that some discount be made for road material furnished by the state.

While in Hibbing, State Auditor Preus was accompanied by State Mining Inspector Frank A. Wildes of this village.

PRAISES NOPEMING.

Hibbing, Minn., July 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. B. S. Adams and Dr. C. F. The trip was made in Dr. Adams' machine and entialed a ride of more than 200 miles. According to Dr. Adams the new tuberculosis building to the Nopeming county sanatorium has added greatly to the facilities of that institution in handling tuberculosis patients. The new addition, he said, was modern in every way and the latest methods would be used in treating patients.

The Real Suffrage Thought of Women

Motherhood is the thought uppermost in woman's mind. And with it, of course, comes the question of comfort, of helpful aids and influences. Among the best of these is a well known external remedy, "Mother's Friend." It is gently applied to the surface muscles. These are lubricated, toned, made pliable so they stretch as nature requires without the strain and pain on cords and ligaments. This influence extends through the myriad of nerves to deeper surfaces, the internal organs. And thus a period of repose must reflect itself not only in the mind of the mother, but upon the babe to come.

Young mothers who have used "Mother's Friend" have written to say how rejoiced they were at the absence of morning sickness, extreme nervousness, and other distresses of which they had heard and feared. Get a bottle of "Mother's Friend" at any drug store. Simply apply it over the stomach muscles and rest assured of perfect safety and comfort day and night. Write to Bradfield Regulator, 403 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their handsome and instructive book.

MAY BE ONE OF VICTIMS

Long Prairie Man Fears Brother Was Killed in North Dakota.

Fears He Was One of Victims of Wholesale Killing at Niagara.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Leo Urbanski of Long Prairie, Minn., believes one of Eugene Butler's murder victims on Butler's farm near Niagara, was his brother, John Urbanski.

The Long Prairie man has written to local authorities, saying his brother arrived at Niagara in the fore part of the summer of 1902, taking employment on a farm near there. Since then he has not been heard from.

His Last Letter.

In the last letter received from Urbanski, he told his brother he was working for an old bachelor near Niagara, the postmark showing the letter had been mailed at Larimore.

Butler, the insane murderer, lived near Niagara, was a bachelor, but was accustomed to doing most of his business in Larimore, so there are features in the case that seem to identify one of Butler's victims as the missing Long Prairie resident.

NORWEGIANS WILL TRADE IN AMERICA

Tobacco Importer Says War Will Shift Purchases to This Country.

Fergus Falls, Minn., July 16.—Bjert Bull, one of the leading tobacco importers of Norway, visited friends here while on his way to attend the Panama exposition.

Mr. Bull has come to America to get in touch with some of the big exporters of the United States. Heretofore, all tobacco imported by the Norwegian wholesalers, has been purchased through commission houses in Hamburg or London. Owing to the war, this arrangement is no longer practicable and hereafter the Norwegian houses will deal direct with American houses. Mr. Bull states that this applies to nearly all other lines of goods as well as tobacco, and that the war is going to result in cutting out the German and English commission houses all along the line.

Boom to United States.

"America is the one nation that is going to profit by the European war," said Mr. Bull. "American business houses will not only be brought into direct touch with the people with whom they have been doing business, but American manufacturers will be the only manufacturers who will be in a position to supply the world with many lines of manufactured goods, heretofore secured largely from England, France and Germany.

Baseball Magnates Are Experiencing Worst Season in History of the Sport, While Boxing Has Also Been Hit Hard—Prices Averaged in the Old Days Are Hard to Get.

BY BRUCE.

BASEBALL magnates over the length and breadth of our land are wailing that this is the worst season in the history of the great American game. Their wails are not built on the shifting sands of fiction for it sure is. And yet the pity of one is leavened by the knowledge that the magnates are at least partly responsible for the sluicing off of the stream of kale.

However, dear old baseball, truly the greatest of all sports, is not the only sport that has suffered from the stringency of the times. There are forms of sportive amusement that have been hit in the middle of the forehead.

The other night in St. Louis Promoter Tommy Sullivan of the boxing club of that city counted just $03 as the gross total of the house. The headliners on the bill received exactly $12.50 as their share of the proceeds.

One night last winter in Chicago a wrestling match was staged and the gross receipts totaled $1.50—one dollar and fifty cents. There is no mistake in the placing of the period.

J. Alex Sloan, a former St. Paul newspaper man, who has risen to the level of all big league promoters of this country; indeed, a hustling chap who has became nationally famous in the automobile racing game, passed through Duluth last night. While stopping over here a couple of hours Sloane declared that from the sport promotion standpoint the present season was simply disastrous.

When baseball begins to shake and wither under the stringency of the times, it indeed makes a follower of sport take an inventory of present day conditions.

Wrestling as a sport has had its ups and downs and the fact that it was dying out was no criterion from which to judge the general sporting tendency of the times. But when week day crowds of only several hundred fans marked the turnstile count in the big show, a cry of dismay was sounded throughout the land.

Ted Sullivan, internationally famous as one of the baseball characters of the world, while seated in a box at Athletic park last Saturday declared that baseball attendance in the majority of the cities of the big league circuits was far from normal, while the Feds, he declared, are getting little play at the gates.

New York was one of the first states to legalize boxing. It was loudly declared from the house tops that fortunes were in the game. Strange as it may seem, but true nevertheless, there has been less money made in New York under the legalized boxing law, in proportion to the clubs in the field, than was the case when boxing existed only because of the suffrance of the police officials or political powers.

Wisconsin took a whirl at the game and in Milwaukee, the metropolis of the Badger state, there was not a single fight club on the profit side of the ledger last winter.

Minnesota is next in line, and now comes the question confronting promoters of the Gopher state; is there really a lot of money in the game.

Now, for instance, Tommy Andrews paid Willie Ritchie $10,000 to meet Charley White in Milwaukee. That was a lot of money, a ridiculously lot of money for half an hour's work, but as a promoter Andrews thought Ritchie would draw a tremendous house against the idol of Chicago.

The house totaled a little over $13,000. Of this gross amount Ritchie not only took $10,000 but an additional $500 for training expenses and two round-trip tickets from the coast. White took 22½ per cent of the gross. and the Auditorium in Milwaukee costs something like $800. Figure the loss to Andrews.

Promoters find themselves in a position somewhat similar to that occupied by one betwixt the devil and the deep brine. The top-notch boxers demand a lot of money and the public demands the top-notch boxers—while after the promoter has paid the exorbitant price demanded by the top-notch boxer, he often finds that not only has he nothing to repay him for the worry and strain of promoting, but oftentimes there is a leering deficit.

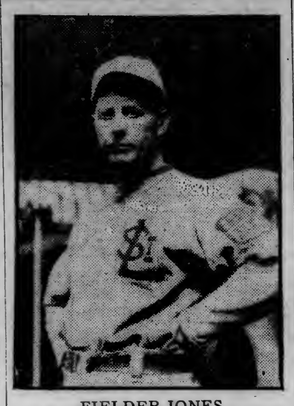

This is a 5 and 10-cent amusement age. In the days of the old Horton law in New York state it was considered nothing out of the way to charge $25 for ringside seats for some of the big battles. Now they are battling in New York for prices avering around the dollar mark.

When Corbett and old freckled Fitz battled at Carson City, Nev., men traveled half way across the continent and braved the rigors of a squalid little frontier town and then paid huge prices to sit on board seats. But those making the journey and letting loose of the coin were repaid, for it was truly one of the battles of the century.

Promoters of the recent Johnson-Willard fight failed to get the prices charged at Carson City, nor did the fight staged in Havana attract the huge and flaming interest engendered by the Corbett-Fitzsimmons scrap.

All this makes one wonder if the fact that you can see the world's greatest artists on a screen for a dime, or ride half an hour in an automobile for a nickel, or watch a man turned convulsive somersaults in an aeroplane 4,000 feet above the earth for 25 cents, is hurting the magnate who has been in the habit of getting $1.50 for the best seats at his ball park, or whether it is hurting the promoters who would like to tax followers of boxing five bucks for ringside seats.

Brooklyn 4; Cincinnati 2.

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 16.—Douglas pitched another great game yesterday and Brooklyn defeated Cincinnati 4 to 2. Benton was hit hard for four innings and gave way to Ames, who held the Superbas to one run, the result of a homer by Myers in the seventh. After making a sensational running catch of Rodgers' liner in the eighth, Myers was overcome by the heat, and the game was delayed several minutes until he recovered. He finished the game. Score:

Wins in Tenth.

Philadelphia, July 16.—Philadelphia won a hard-fought game from St. Louis in the tenth inning yesterday 4 to 3, when Stock, a pinch hitter, singled and sent in Killifer with the winning run. After two runs had been scored by the home team in the sixth Robinson was taken out and Perdue was so slow in going to the rubber that a ball was called by Umpire Klem. Griner succeeded Perdue in the seventh. Score:

Cubs 5; Giants 2.

New York, July 16.—Saier's timely hitting and Lavender's pitching enabled Chicago to defeat New York here yesterday 5 to 2. In the sixth inning, with Fisher on, Saier put the Cubs in the lead with a home run. He drove in another run with a single in the eighth. Lavender yielded nine hits, but was effective in the pinches, striking out ten men.

In the second inning Eason ordered McGraw off the field for talking from the bench. Later Babington, a New York recruit, was sent to join McGraw. In the third inning Eason cleaned the entire Giant bench of players not actually involved in the game. In the seventh inning, after Bresnahan struck out, he got into an argument with a spectator. Byron stopped the argument and after Bresnahan pointed out this spectator Byron stopped the game and lectured the fan. With two out in the next inning Byron ordered Fletcher off the field. Score:

Boston, Mass., July 16.—Boston defeated Pittsburgh 3 to 2 yesterday. In the seventh inning Magee walked and took second when Schmidt's grounder rolled through Wagner's legs. Both scored on Smith's double. Maranville sacrificed Smith to third, and the latter scored on Rudolph's sacrifice fly. Vlox singled in the second inning and scored on Baird's three bagger. In the third Maranville threw wild when Carey grounded, the batter reaching second. Carey stole third and scored on Johnston's bunt to Schmidt. Score:

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Browns Take Double-Header.

St. Louis, Mo., July 16. — St. Louis yesterday took a double-header from Washington, 5 to 2 and 4 to 3. The second game had an exciting finish in which McBride was banished from the field. With Washington two runs in the lead in the eighth, Shotten singled, Austin walked and Foster fumbled Howard's grounder, filling the bases. Then Pratt flied back of second and when Foster missed a catch Shotten and Austin scored and Howard went to third and Pratt to second. With two balls and two strikes on Walsh, Howard and Pratt made a double steal, Howard scoring the winning run.

Washington contested the play, claiming Walsh had struck at the ball which would have made him out. In the ninth, Washington filled the bases on a single, a base on balls and an error by Austin. With two out, James struck out Moeller.

The visitors made seven double plays in the two games. George Sisler, the Michigan star, pitched the first game for St. Louis. Engel was taken out by Washington after St. Louis had collected three runs off him in the fifth inning, and Hooper, who replaced him, was replaced by Ayres. Scores:

Indian's Bungling Loses Game.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 16.—Hagerman's bungling fielding of bunts gave Boston a 4-to-3 victory over Cleveland yesterday. Three of Boston's runs were attributed to his slips. A one-hand catch by Barry of a line drive by Graney cut off two runs. Score:

Chicago, July 16.—Inability to hit Bressler in the pinches yesterday cost Chicago the game with Philadelphia, the visitors winning, 5 to 2. The Athletics had little difficulty bunching their hits off Cicotte. Bressler was touched for only five scattered hits and the fielding behind him prevented Chicago from scoring on several occasions. IMMENSE WAR FUND OF FEDERALS

Set Aside Cold Million to Fight O. B.—Sinclair, Major General.

Kansas City, Mo., July 16.—The Federal league at its recent meeting in New York formed a "war fund" of $1,000,000 to force its right against organized baseball, according to a statement made here by Harry Sinclair, owner of the Newark club.

Mr. Sinclair confirmed the report that the Federal league would invade New York next season and said he had been named chairman of a committee in charge of the expenditure of the big fund.

"We are going to fight organized baseball to a finish," said Mr. Sinclair. "There is not a quitter in the Federal league."

New York, July 16.—Vice President R. B. Ward of the Federal league, confirmed the report that a war fund of $1,000,000 had been collected at the recent meeting of the league in this city. He said that Harry Sinclair, owner of the Newark club, had been selected to carry out the campaign, because of his aggressiveness and ability to deal with baseball problems. Mr. Ward stated the money was already in Sinclair's possession and that it would be used in forwarding the interest of the league as a whole.

He refused to outline the manner in which the money would be expended, but intimated that the Federal league was about to adopt a more vigorous policy in the baseball world. The impression appeared to prevail that the league had lost aggressiveness while awaiting several important court decisions, said Mr. Ward, but these cases were to be decided soon, and then the Federal league would enter upon a broader plan of action.

It is understood that the removal of President Gilmore's offices from Chicago to this city, is in line with this policy.

EVERS LOOSENS TONGUE; INQUIRY

Field Remarks Taken as Meaning Games Are Fixed.

New York, July 16.—An assertion alleged to have been made by Capt. Evers of the Boston Braves, during the progress of Tuesday's game, reflecting upon the integrity of organized baseball, is to be investigated by President John K. Tener of the National league. It is announced from President Tener's office that he will go to Boston today to investigate the charge. John A. Heydler, secretary, will accompany him.

Boston, Mass., July 16.—Remarks alleged to have been made from the sidelines by Capt. Evers of the Boston Braves during last Tuesday's baseball game with the St. Louis Cardinals, are to be the subject of the investigation which President Tener will make here today, according to an announcement from New York.

The Braves' captain, taking exception to a decision by Umpire Rigler, who declared Bob Bescher safe at the plate on a close play, was quoted in a newspaper as having shouted:

"They're trying to get the crowds out; they've ordered a close race; leave them alone boys, they're only following instructions."

Evers later expressed indignation because his remarks had been interpreted as a claim that the National league race was "fixed." He said: "I claim no such thing. I've been in baseball long enough to know better. To be sure, I might have said anything on the ball field. When an umpire hands you one like Rigler did at the home plate, what you say will invariably be the result of hard feeling at the time."

DOUBLE BILL FOR SATURDAY

Dooks and Ore Diggers to Play Off Postponed Games.

Rain butted into the baseball calculations of yesterday, causing a postponement of the third game of the series with Virginia. As the Ore Diggers came with five games tagged on their grips, there are two more remaining combats to be played. One is on the tapis for today and a double-header is down on the cards for tomorrow.

Efforts to corral another pitcher have so far met with failure. It was announced today that the twirler in question wanted too much of the dear old dough. A disagreement along these lines met with a calling off of the negotiations.

O'Brien believes that so long as Posten, Jackson, Hallman and Jackson are hurling such sturdy baseball that he will not have to secure the services of another mounder.

The Dook declares that he has one of the best teams in the league, and furthermore believes that from this stage of the race until the finish the White Sox will climb.

Right now the Dooks are not very greatly separated from a percentage mark of 500. Once over the great divide Darby is convinced that his aggregation will get pointed and set out on a lusty chase for the Canadian Gold Dust twins, Fort Bill and St. Boniface.

Virginia Lacks Punch.

With some of its hitters away down on the list, Virginia appears to lack the punch to remain in its present standing. The members of the range team are not hitting, and it is the old cudgeling that wins baseball games.

Winnipeg is going as unsteadily as a prohibition candidate in Kansas, and unless the official pets of the circuit take a brace little can be expected from the Maroons during the present season.

Fargo is strong, so it looks as if the two Canadian clubs, Fort William and St. Boniface, Fargo and Duluth might battle it out for the gonfalon.

SPEED STARS AT HIBBING

An Attempt Will Be Made to Lower World's Mark in Range Meet.

Hibbing, Minn., July 16.—King Gasoline will reign supreme on the Hibbing race course next Sunday afternoon, when some of the most renowned speed demons and their special racing cars meet in a series of seven races for $2,000 in purses, in the first "big league" automobile race meet ever staged on the Iron Range.

Foremost among the drivers is Louis Disbow, track champion, who holds every world's record for circular tracks from one to ten miles. In addition to numerous track and state marks. He will drive his record-holding Simplex Zip in the meet and will make an attempt to establish a new world's record for a mile on a half-mile track. If he succeeds he will get a $200 bonus.

Other entrants include Eddie Hearne, the Chicago millionaire pilot, who is a former world's speedway champion and who was the runner-up to David Bruce-Brown in 1911 in the American Grand Prix race at Savannah, when he defeated Victor Hemery. Louis Wagner and every foreign driver entered. He is the last of the original quartet of millionaire drivers still in the game. The other three have either been killed or have quit the dangerous pastime. Bruce-Brown was killed in Milwaukee in 1912; Spencer Wishart was killed at Elgin last year and Caleb Bragg has deserted the track for good.

Johnny Raimey, the Cincinnati speedster, is another pilot of renown. He held the world's light car championship for two years with his Ohio and Cino cars, both of which he designed and built. He will drive a six-cylinder creation, the Case Comet, in the coming races.

"Wild Bill" Endicott is known the country over as a dare-devil of the first magnitude. He has gone through fences six times this season, escaping each time with a shaking up. He won the Columbus 100-mile race two months ago and was leading in the Detroit 100-mile event when he went through the fence on the eighty-seventh lap.

Tommy Milton, the St. Paul boy, who holds the state light car championship; Howard Kizer, an Indianapolis driver; Louis Lecocq and several others, constituto the balance of the entrants.

The 300-horsepower Jay-Eye-See, the world's most powerful racing car, will be driven in exhibition time trials by Disbrow, who drove it a mile straightaway, from standing start, on the Galveston beach, in 31 seconds. The car carries 600 pounds of lead to assist the driver in holding the turns.

DRAFT WILL BE SECRET.

Majors Will Get Minor Players on Quiet to Keep Feds in Dark.

Chicago, July 16.—Reports have reached minor league leaders in this section that the "secret draft," under which their players were taken into leagues of higher class last year, will be in vogue again when the drafting season reopens. While the national commission has not announced that the results of the draft this year would be kept under cover, the minor leaguers poitn out that general conditions are the same as they were last season.

At that time, rather than let the Federal league magnates know what players were chosen, the awards were all secret until the players involved had signed contracts.

Vanderbilt Horses Sold.

New York, July 16.—All but six horses of the show stable of the late Alfred G. Vanderbilt, who was president of the National Horse Show association, were sold at auction here yesterday. These included thirty-three horses which brought $24,775. The sale attracted horse fanciers from many parts of the country. J. C. Brady of this city bought Pireno and Mel-Valley Flame, two of the most famous of the Vanderbilt horses.

JUNIORS AND BANTAMS TO BE SENT ON TIME TRIAL

Ten Eyck Declares as Yet These Crews Have Not Equaled the Time of Last Season's Men, While the Senior Eight and Four Are Faster Than the 1914 Eight and Four.

BY BRUCE.

Here it is July 16 and Jimmy Ten Eyck has not had a satisfactory time trial of either his junior or bantam crews. Today, if weather and water are right, promises to witness a trial on the part of these crews against the clock.

The fact that so far neither the junior four nor eight nor the bantam four has been able to show record trials approaching those hung up by the juniors and bantams of 1914 does not seem to be causing Ten Eyck an immense amount of worry.

"From now on until the morning of the day the junior and bantam races are rowed the boys will come fast," said Jim today. "The finish is coming; the power is already there. With the smoothness and unity will come increased speed. We got away to a late start, but decided progress is being made right now."

Seniors Are Strong.

When it is stated that the present senior eight is the fastest that has ever been turned out here, there is basis for the statement. The seniors have been sent against the clock and have hung up a time trial that has satisfied Ten Eyck that the 1915 season will mark the greatest effort to date upon the part of both the four and eight.

Against the best senior eight Duluth has as yet been able to shove proudly to the front, Grand Rapids for one will start a crew that down in the Central West is considered unbeatable.

In 1913 we turned out two eights here that were able to finish first and second at Boston and furnish the real race of the day all by themselves. Last year our senior eight repeated, and this season it looks as if we had an eight that tops the crews that made national rowing history the two previous seasons. Following the logic of this dope, if dope may be said to possess logic, it is difficult to figure how Grand Rapids, Peoria, Lincoln Park of St. Paul can defeat us.

A Great Senior Four.

Few crews in recent rowing history have swung up a greater record than that of the Duluth senior four. Back in the old days of the Northwestern Rowing association, Percy Haughton and Lester Mabon of the Minnesota Boat club went unbeatable in the double for a number of seasons, traveling over the country and adding innumerable victories to their collection.

One eventful day long John Hackett, now of Hackett, Minn., and De Braissey, two remarkable scullers, met Houghton and Mabon in the double and gave the St. Paul pair an awful licking. Bringing the dope down to the present day, it might be said that in the matter of rigid invincibility, Duluth's great senior four ranks with Houghton and Mabon and Hackett and De Braissey.

In speaking of the Duluth four, Horak, D. Moore, Rheinberger and P. Moore, one can repeat what has been said times innumerable: It has never been beaten and has never been given a real race.

Some Big League Stuff.

Not only will there be some great crews entered in the regatta of next week, but in the matter of arrangements there will be class written all over.

The government will take charge of the course. All pleasure boats will be compelled to come to an anchor a quarter of an hour before the start of the races. All craft that are running in answer to the urgent cry of commerce will be made to put on a check when passing up and down the bay.

Like a scene at the rowing class at Poughkeepsie, the regatta here will present a sporting picture that will appeal to the eye with compelling force.

The Gopher will be anchored along the course, while house boats and launches, gayly bedecked with colors, will line the mile and a quarter course from far down toward the starting point to the sweep in front of the big stands.

Half way down the course a signal corps will be stationed on the roof of a house. Equipped with glasses and a telephone, the members of the corps will keep spectators in the grandstand informed of the positions of the boats right down to the point where the last great effort is being made to win.

Entered for National.

Entries for the races of the National Rowing Association of America close on July 31. The regatta of the association will be held on the Connecticut river course at Springfield, Mass., Aug. 13 and 14.

Duluth's entries will be forwarded immediately after the big regatta that is to be held here July 23 and 24. It is expected that Duluth will be represented in the national by a senior eight, intermediate eight, senior four, intermediate four, quadruple four, senior single, intermediate single, senior and intermediate double and possibly a junior four.

The new rowing suits arrived yesterday. In their new regalia the members of the crews are all doiled up. Unlike the man in the song, Duluth oarsmen are not all dressed, but with no place to go. They are sure going to the national.

Outside Officials.

It is expected that either N. P. Langford, Jr., of St. Paul or Jim Denegre will be one of the regatta officials to represent the Minnesota Boat club of St. Paul. Peoria, Grand Rapids and Lincoln Park clubs are expected to send in the names of their officials today or tomorrow.

AFTER RUNNING RECORDS.

Two Stars Will Attempt Smashing on Harvard Stadium Track.

Cambridge, Mass., July 16.—Attempts to establish two new world's amateur running records were to be made today at the Harvard stadium track. Norman F. Taber, formerly of Brown and Oxford universities, planned, with the aid of pace makers, to attack the record of 4 minutes, 14 2-5 seconds for the mile run, made by John Paul Jones on this track three years ago. Taber, who ran second to Jones and who is now a member of the Boston Athletic association, has been doing some fast running since his return from Oxford in the spring.

The other effort planned was made by W. H. Meanix, formerly of Coloy college and nowa student at Harvard.

who hoped to set a new time for the 440-yards hurdles. The record of 56 4-5 seconds was made by G. L. Anderson of England in 1910. Anderson has been killed in the war.

German Derby Will Be Run.

Berlin, via London, July 16.—The German derby, the chief racing event in Germany, will be run as usual next Sunday over the derby course at Hamburg. This race, which in former years preceded the Kiel regatta, always has attracted a great number of distinguished spectators. It was run last year on the day of the assassination of the Austrian archduke, Francis Ferdinand, and his wife at Sarayevo.

PORTAGE LAKE GOLFERS MEETING NORTHLAND TEAM

The opening game for the possession of the T. F. Cole golf trophy, one of the most valuable golf cups ever donated for competition in the United States, begins today between members of the Portage Lake Golf club and the team representing the Northland Golf club of Duluth on the links of the Northland club.

Visiting golfers will strive mightily to win the cup from the possession of the Duluth players. Last season over the links of the Portage Lake club of Houghton, Mich., the Northland players defeated their ancient rivals, thus getting a leg on the handsome trophy donated by the Duluth ardent follower of the ancient Scotch game.

Social features will be a part of the meeting between the players of the two clubs. A banquet will be held at the Northland club tomorrow evening, while a number of social events have been planned for the visiting players for this evening as well.

It is expected that both today's game and the contest of tomorrow will be closely played. Portage Lake has its star players here, while M. B. Cullum will select his teams from the players who have shown the best form in Northland scores of the present season. With good weather for golf it is expected that the largest galleries of the year will witness the two games.

WOLGAST TO BOX WELLING

Former Title Holder and Chicago Youngster Feature Duluth Show.

As announced in last Saturday's Herald, Adolph Wolgast of Cadillac, Mich., and Joe Welling of Chicago will clash in the main event of the opening boxing show of the Duluth Athletic club.

Welling is a comparative youngster and is being touted as a comer by followers of the boxing game in Chicago. While Wolgast is far from the fighting terror that laid Nelson and Owen Moran low, he is still a tough and rugged boy and will probably give the younger Welling all he wants for ten rounds.

Mike Collins' white hope, Fred Fulton, is due to start against Davis, an unknown, and Bert Stanley, a welterweight from Wisconsin, who is said to be a classy boxer, will oppose Kid Billings. There will be a curtain-raiser, making four bouts on the program of the opening show.

TWILIGHT LEAGUE PLANS EXCURSION

At a meeting of the managers of the teams of the Twilight Baseball league, held at the Kelly Hardware company Thursday afternoon, an excursion was planned.

The idea is to promote sociability among the retail clerks of Duluth.

The steamer Columbia has been chartered.

The committee on entertainment has provided for an orchestra, refreshments and special vaudeville aboard the boat.

Printing—Roy Hogue and Hugo Freimuth.

Advertising—Victor Cayo and Lawrence Nelson.

UNCLE SAM AFTER BASEBALL POOL MEN

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 16.—What government agents claim is to be a nation-wide crusade against baseball pools, was begun here yesterday by the arrest of John J. Kilcoyne and Thomas E. Warman, promoters of the Weekly World and Pastime Review, sporting publications, through which an alleged pool is said to have been conducted. Both men, who are charged with conspiracy in the shipment of baseball pool tickets from one state to another by express, waived a hearing, and were held in $5,000 each for the September grand jury.

WILL RESUME PLAY ON OATKA COURTS

All events in the tennis tournament under way at the present time on the Oatka courts, will be resumed today. While it is possible that the finals may have to be postponed until July 23, games in the five events that are being played off will be started.

The courts are in good shape despite the recent rains and it is expected that rapid progress will be made in all of the events.

CHICK EVANS WON'T DEFEND HIS TITLE

Business Keeps Him Out of Western Golf Tournament.

Chicago, July 16.—Charles Evans, Western amateur golf champion, confirmed reports today that he probably will not defend his title at the tournament which begins Monday at Cleveland. For business reasons, he said he would have to remain in Chicago, unless something unexpected should turn up at the last minute. It will be the first Western tournament he has missed since 1907.

Absence of Evans would make the event much more open, golfers said today, and Chicago's chance of retaining the honor considerably less, though the contingent from this city will include former champions Mason Phelps and D. E. Sawyer.

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

TWO THOUSAND BOYS KILLED OR WOUNDED

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

London, July 1.—Twenty thousand boys from reformatories and industrial reform schools have served with the British naval and military forces since the beginning of the war. Three of them have won the Victoria Cross and fifty-six others have been rewarded with lesser decorations. The "roll of honor" shows that 2,100 of the boys have been killed or wounded.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

The Germ That Makes You Shiver

IF A bit of saliva or mucus is taken from almost anybody's mouth, properly stained and examined under the microscope, there will usually be found, among the flora or fauna, a characteristic, double-barreled microbe known as the pneumococcus (pronounced nu-mo-ko-kus).

This ordinary inhabitant of the mouth is usually non-virulent, that is to say it is harmless; but in about every fifth person it assumes a virulent or troublesome character, and then it is capable of great things.

First and foremost, the pneumococcus is the germ of pneumonia. But there are so many other roles played by this versatile microbe that we have ample reason for the assertion that the pneumococcus is by far the greatest enemy of all the microbe parasites of civilized mankind.

Most cases of simple coryza (acute head "cold") are attributable to pneumococcus infection; most sore throats; most acute cases of tonsilitis and quinsy; most cases of sinus disease, middle ear abcess, mastoditis and brain involvement; many cases of bronchitis, pleurisy, chest abscess; not a few cases of acute valvular heart trouble; a surprising number of cases of acute so-called "inflammatory rheumatism;" and last, but by no means least, a good share of appendicitis cases are pneumococcus infection.

The list is an imposing one. The germ is a busy one. The prevention of pneumococcus infection, in our opinion—in our own personal opinion—is an easy matter, viz., avoid personal contact with "simple colds."

Same old story. Never weary of harping on the infectious nature of all so-called "colds." Couldn't do a more useful thing if we tried. Every time we disinter the remains of the long dead "catching cold" delusion and place new emphasis on the catching part of the phrase we are bound to do somebody good, somebody who will take the hint and try to avoid undue intimacy with the germ that makes you shiver.

How the Pneumococcus Travels.

These are the means by which the germ of the Indoor Plague gets about:

1. Open-face sneezing or coughing. Always hold hand or handkerchief over mouth and nose when sneezing or coughing, whether you are "coming down" with a "cold" or not.
2. Borrowed handkerchiefs, pencils, gum or anything else which could convey saliva from mouth to mouth.
3. Kissing.
4. Expectorating.
5. Children sleeping together.
6. The habit of moistening fingers with saliva, then depositing the saliva from fingers on books, other people's fingers, street car straps and the like.

DEVELOPING THE BUST OF A PIMPLY YOUNG MAN.

A young man writes: Two months ago I asked for advice about pimples on my chin. You sent me a letter on the development of the bust.

Answer—Hoping you didn't follow directions as implicitly as we usually like to have 'em followed, we remain, as ever, liable to trifling errors. Pimple letter on the way.

DULUTHIAN'S ESTIMATE OF NUMBER OF INTERNED SHIPS CONSERVATIVE

More Than Hundred German-Owned Vessels in American Ports; Sixty-Nine in Harbors of Continent Alone and Others Are in Refuge at Possessions; Duluth Vessel Man's Idea of Using Them to Force Kaiser to Observance of Neutrality Widely Commented On.

Much comment has been caused in Duluth by the interview, published in The Herald a few days ago, with G. A. Tomlinson, Duluth vessel owner, in which he advocates the seizure by this government of the German ships interned in American ports, and their use as merchantmen to carry American goods to the markets of the world, if Germany persists in her policy of refusing to respect the rights of neutral nations, and in sinking their ships.

Mr. Tomlinson said that the value of the German ships thus interned in American ports amounts up to about $70,000,000, for there are between sixty and seventy involved; and it turns out that his estimate was very conservative. His idea was that if Germany insists upon sinking ships carrying American goods, let them be German ships, so that they will be destroying their own property. He believes that such a threat would cause a change of front by the kaiser in regard to respecting neutrality rights.

More Than Hundred Interned.

According to figures issued by the Federal department of commerce, Mr. Tomlinson's estimate of the number of German ships in American ports was light, for there are sixty-nine ships, not counting the converted cruisers Prinz Eitel Frederich and Kronprinz Wilhelm, in the ports of the continent proper. In addition to that there are the Odenwald at San Juan, Porto Rico, one gunboat at Honolulu, and fifty or sixty merchant vessels belonging to Germany in the ports of the Philippines and at Honolulu. No accurate information concerning these has been obtainable as yet.

The accompanying list of interned German ships shows the name "Prinz Eitel Frederich," but it is explained that this is a ship of that name other than the converted cruiser.

SAMARITANS AT ANNUAL PICNIC

Alpha and Beta Councils Hold Joint Outing at Lester Park.

More than 500 members of the Modern Samaritans from Duluth and other nearby cities attended the joint picnic given by the Alpha and Beta councils of the order yesterday afternoon and evening at Lester Park.

Because of the bad weather it was impossible to hold the races that were scheduled. A dinner last night, attended by 100 persons, was featured by addresses by Mayor W. I. Prince and J. D. Markham of Rush City, imperial treasurer of the order.

W. A. Hicken, former city commissioner and past imperial scribe, lauded the organization for the good work that it is doing in Minnesota. Similar sentiments were voiced by A. E. McManus, general counsel; H. J. Achenbach, imperial scribe; J. A. Barnes, vice imperial good samaritan, and State Senator Richard Jones.

NEW SCHOOLS IN COPPER COUNTRY

Growing Population Calls for More Adequate Facilities.

Calumet, Mich., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Both Lake Linden and Houghton are contemplating the erection of large, modern high school buildings. Osceola township school district has just completed the new high school started last winter at Dollar Bay, having a capacity of 800 pupils. Houghton's high school, although a modern building, has been far outgrown, while Lake Linden's high school was outdated long ago.

At Calumet, whose high school serves Northern Osceola township, the two school districts of Calumet township and Allouez township of Keweenaw county, more high school room is needed. The problem has been a serious one the past three years or since the high school attendance ran above the 1,000 mark. The school is but eight years old and is modern in every respect, covering an entire block and with the finest manual training department in the schools of Michigan, but it has been outgrown.

An effort is being made to secure the agreement of the four school districts to the erection of a trades school, with some high school facilities, to relieve the situation.

Houghton county's school population numbers considerably over 11,000.

AHMEEK, MODEL TOWN, TO HAVE WATER PLANT

Calumet, Mich., July 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village of Ahmeek, the only incorporated town in Keweenaw county, is installing a $20,000 water system and will let contracts for its construction this week. It is one of the model towns of Northern Michigan. During the copper strike two years ago it was one of the strike hotbeds, but since the strike has assumed an importance as a business and residence center it has never before known. Its streets are wide and clean. Concrete sidewalks are being laid and the town is built up with residences and fine business blocks to its very limits in every direction. The new water system will be equipped with an electrical pumping station.

CITY HAS AMPLE FIRE APPARATUS

More Men Only Need of Department, Says Safety Head.

More men are the only need of Duluth's fire department, according to Safety Commissioner Silberstein.

After a tour of inspection of fire halls and apparatus yesterday, the commissioner made two "runs" to fires, which proved to be only false alarms, but which were almost as exciting as real fires.

"The way that truck climbs those hills is a caution," he said, referring to the ladder truck at station No. 1. "We made mighty fast time on those runs.

"Duluthians have all they could wish for in fire protection. Our fire loss is extremely low, and there is no reason for further expenditure of public money in the near future. The city can be considered safe from serious blazes under any but the most improbable conditions."

The commissioners are preparing budget estimates for 1916, while Finance Commissioner Voss is busy estimating general fund receipts to determine the levy for the year.

GERMAN WOMEN TRIED TO CARRY AWAY GOLD

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

London, July 1.—Three German women who were being sent back to Germany under the government's latest anti-alien campaign were found guilty of attempting to carry away with them considerable quantities of English gold. Each of the women was fined $125 for the offense. One of the three had concealed the gold beneath the lining in the heels of her shoes.

SHORTEST SOLDIER IN THE FRENCH ARMY

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

Paris, July 1.—The shortest soldier in the French army is Guy Coudert, who stands 3 feet 6 inches, but is solidly built enough to carry a soldier's load. When he presented himself at the recruiting office at Versailles the surgeon on duty refused to examine him, but later he was incorporated in the One Hundred and Sixty-eighth infantry at Lens. He was the butt of ridicule because of his diminutive stature, but he proved he could follow the pace and soon earned the stripes of corporal.

BOSNIAN SOLDIER ASLEEP SINCE MARCH

Amsterdam, June 28.—A Bosnian soldier who has fallen into a seemingly perpetual sleep in consequence of terror following the explosion of shrapnel, is under treatment in a war hospital at Innsbruck, Germany.

The soldier was admitted to the hospital from the Galician front in March. He has been asleep ever since. The patient is terribly emaciated and must be artificially fed. By continuous electric treatment the doctors hope to bring him back to consciousness, although their efforts have not yet shown any signs of success. The soldier is insensible to needle pricks in the nose, arms or back.

EUGENE SANDOW

He could support with his body a heavy horse and rider, or 20 big men on a plank bridge, and could lift with a harness, 4,800 pounds.

Diet of Sandow Includes Beer

WORLD'S STRONGEST MAN GREAT EXAMPLE OF TEMPERANCE

Eugene Sandow is positive proof that the temperate use of pure beer builds the body. During the years he was touring the world performing feats of strength that astounded and stunned the senses of his audiences, beer formed part of his daily diet.

Respect must be paid to the efficacy of the diet that fed and built strength so colossal.

Note:—By analysis, one quart of beer contains from 46 to 124 grains of albumen, nutritious salts, including phosphate, and a large proportion of extract of malt. English physicians generally, accepting the formula of Anstie, make a moderate quantity of beer per diem about 4 glasses, or one quart.

THAT DELICIOUS TASTE OF BEER DRAWN FROM THE WOOD

Fitger Natural Beer, filtered by the Kieselguhr filter, has the wonderful natural taste and aroma of the finest beer as drawn from the wood.

The Fitger Kieselguhr Filter (first of its kind in America) takes the place of pasteurization, the process used by other brewers for "keeping" bottled beer.

Pasteurization does not preserve the natural taste of beer. Kieselguhr filtration is the only known way to "keep" beer in bottles and preserve its natural taste. For this reason all brewers will in time use Kieselguhr filtration.

STEMPER BILL PASSES SENATE

Madison, Wis., July 16.—The passage of the central board of education bill as amended by the adoption of the Staudenmayer substitute, for a board of five members to manage the fiscal affairs of the state's educational institutions; the killing without a word of discussion of the Bennett bill proposing to replace the three members of the tax commission by a one-man board; and concurrence in the Stemper liquor license bill, radically revised, marked the senate session today before that body adjourned until Monday. The central board bill passed by a vote of 16 to 5. There was no roll call on the tax commission bill.

The Stemper bill passed by a vote of 18 to 4. It raises the saloon limit from one to every 250 people to one to every 500 people and makes the law apply to whole state instead of Milwaukee only as the governor originally desired. The chief of police in every city is empowered to pass upon the location of stands to be relnstated or relicensed. The bill as amended must now go to the assembly for concurrence in the senate changes.

County of Burke.

The detachment of territory from Shawona county and its annexation by Outagamie county for the purpose of creating the county of Burke was sanctioned by the assembly today 30 to 39, when it passed the Ploeger bill to accomplish that purpose.

The assembly passed the Bichler bill to prohibit the soliciting of insurance by assessors and advanced the bill prohibiting the appointment of relatives to the state's service except from the eligible list of the civil service commission.

It advanced the Whitman bill to decrease the butter fat contents from 50 to 43 per cent and passed two small appropriation bills which will decrease the 1915 appropriations by $2,195.

The bills to abolish the office of state claim agent was placed on next Tuesday's calendar.

The assembly reconsidered the vote by which it killed the Crosby direct marketing bill and sent it to engrossment.

To keep senators from wandering to the corridors during the long drawn-out session the sergeant was ordered to lock the doors and keep the members in their seats.

KAUPPI INVESTIGATES.

County Commissioner Visits Floodwood and Hears Plaints.

Floodwood, Minn., July 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—County Commissioner Kauppi was here this week looking over the Prairie Lake road, and investigating complaints made by many people against Sub-contractor Lawton depositing the peat or muskeg from the ditch onto the road, blocking the public highway. This work is being done under the supervision of P. J. McCauley, engineer in charge of the judicial ditches, and while there is plenty of room to deposit the dirt from the ditch on the other side, or between the ditch and the road, Mr. McCauley ordered Lawton to dump the dirt on the road. This greatly hinders the travel and complaints have been made. County Commissioner Kauppi after investigating the situation decided to consult Charles E. Adams, special counsel for the county board, and to take such action as the law will warrant to remedy this unusual condition.

THAW GOING TO PITTSBURGH

Starts Away in Auto After Bonds Are Executed.

Hundreds of People Cheer Him as He Passes Down Broadway.

New York, July 16.—The bond furnished for Harry Thaw by a surety company differed from the ordinary bond, inasmuch as it assured Thaw's obedience to any mandate of the court until final disposition of the appeal. The agent of the surety company said the Thaw family had deposited with the company negotiable sureties valued at $35,000.

As soon as the bond was signed Thaw emerged from the building in which the sheriff's office and the chambers of Justice Hendrick are located and entered an automobile. He was accompanied by a detective and his secretary. The machine, followed by six cars, containing reporters and photographers, moved a block across town into Broadway and then started down town toward the office of Thaw's attorneys.

Cheered by Crowd.

All the way down Broadway persons on the sidewalks cheered and applauded Thaw. Traffic policemen expended much energy to prevent crowds from gathering and the passage of the Thaw machine and those following was expedited at the crossings. The trip downtown was made shortly after 1 o'clock when lower Broadway is thronged with workers on their way to or from their noonday meals. Thaw appeared to be much pleased with the demonstration.

Formally Released.

Thaw got his traveling bags at his lawyer's office and then proceeded to Jersey City by way of the Cortland street ferry. There he was formally released from the custody of the sheriff. After lunch Thaw said he would motor to Philadelphia in company with his secretary. Then he goes by rail to Pittsburgh.

Thaw said he had at first planned to remain in New York over night and visit a theater, but the crowds that beset him today made him change his mind.

STEMPER BILL PASSES SENATE

Madison, Wis., July 16.—The passage of the central board of education bill as amended by the adoption of the Staudenmayer substitute, for a board of five members to manage the fiscal affairs of the state's educational institutions; the killing without a word of discussion of the Bennett bill proposing to replace the three members of the tax commission by a one-man board; and concurrence in the Stemper liquor license bill, radically revised, marked the senate session today before that body adjourned until Monday. The central board bill passed by a vote of 16 to 5. There was no roll call on the tax commission bill.

The Stemper bill passed by a vote of 18 to 4. It raises the saloon limit from one to every 250 people to one to every 500 people and makes the law apply to whole state instead of Milwaukee only as the governor originally desired. The chief of police in every city is empowered to pass upon the location of stands to be reinstated or relicensed. The bill as amended must now go to the assembly for concurrence in the senate changes.

County of Burke.

The detachment of territory from Shawona county and its annexation by Outagamie county for the purpose of creating the county of Burke was sanctioned by the assembly today 30 to 39, when it passed the Ploeger bill to accomplish that purpose.

The assembly passed the Bichler bill to prohibit the soliciting of insurance by assessors and advanced the bill prohibiting the appointment of relatives to the state's service except from the eligible list of the civil service commission.

It advanced the Whitman bill to decrease the butter fat contents from 50 to 43 per cent and passed two small appropriation bills which will decrease the 1915 appropriations by $2,195.

The bills to abolish the office of state claim agent was placed on next Tuesday's calendar.

The assembly reconsidered the vote by which it killed the Crosby direct marketing bill and sent it to engrossment.

To keep senators from wandering to the corridors during the long drawn-out session the sergeant was ordered to lock the doors and keep the members in their seats.

KAUPPI INVESTIGATES.

County Commissioner Visits Floodwood and Hears Plaints.

Floodwood, Minn., July 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—County Commissioner Kauppi was here this week looking over the Prairie Lake road, and investigating complaints made by many people against Sub-contractor Lawton depositing the peat or muskeg from the ditch onto the road, blocking the public highway. This work is being done under the supervision of P. J. McCauley, engineer in charge of the judicial ditches, and while there is plenty of room to deposit the dirt from the ditch on the other side, or between the ditch and the road, Mr. McCauley ordered Lawton to dump the dirt on the road. This greatly hinders the travel and complaints have been made. County Commissioner Kauppi after investigating the situation decided to consult Charles E. Adams, special counsel for the county board, and to take such action as the law will warrant to remedy this unusual condition.

THAW GOING TO PITTSBURGH

Starts Away in Auto After Bonds Are Executed.

Hundreds of People Cheer Him as He Passes Down Broadway.

New York, July 16.—The bond furnished for Harry Thaw by a surety company differed from the ordinary bond, inasmuch as it assured Thaw's obedience to any mandate of the court until final disposition of the appeal. The agent of the surety company said the Thaw family had deposited with the company negotiable sureties valued at $35,000.

As soon as the bond was signed Thaw emerged from the building in which the sheriff's office and the chambers of Justice Hendrick are located and entered an automobile. He was accompanied by a detective and his secretary. The machine, followed by six cars, containing reporters and photographers, moved a block across town into Broadway and then started down town toward the office of Thaw's attorneys.

Cheered by Crowd.

All the way down Broadway persons on the sidewalks cheered and applauded Thaw. Traffic policemen expended much energy to prevent crowds from gathering and the passage of the Thaw machine and those following was expedited at the crossings. The trip downtown was made shortly after 1 o'clock when lower Broadway is thronged with workers on their way to or from their noonday meals. Thaw appeared to be much pleased with the demonstration.

Formally Released.

Thaw got his traveling bags at his lawyer's office and then proceeded to Jersey City by way of the Cortland street ferry. There he was formally released from the custody of the sheriff. After lunch Thaw said he would motor to Philadelphia in company with his secretary. Then he goes by rail to Pittsburgh.

Thaw said he had at first planned to remain in New York over night and visit a theater, but the crowds that beset him today made him change his mind.

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

DEFECTIVE PAGE

MARKET HAS FAIR BULGE

Wheat Sells Higher on Black Rust Fears and Export Inquiry.

Flaxseed Weak on Limited Crushers' Demand and Selling Pressure.

July wheat closed ½c up; September 1¾c up, and December ⅞c up. July durum closed unchanged, and September 1¼c up.

Oats closed ¾c up at 53¾c for on the track; rye unchanged at 98c and barley unchanged to 1c up at from 65 to 71c.

Puts on Minneapolis September wheat closed at $1.07¾, and calls at $1.12½.

After showing some hesitancy at the start the wheat market turned strong today as a result of continued apprehensions over possible black rust developments in the Northwest and the tight supply situation in the old crop grain.

With the delayed movement of winter wheat to market and light stocks available for millers at all points, it is argued that the present is no time to be on the short side. These considerations are advised to have led to a rush of shorts to cover at Chicago today, and thus contributed to the strength shown. Furthermore, better export inquiry was noted in the market, Chicago reporting good buying of September and December delivery futures by interests who have been prominent in the export trade. It is said that foreigners are beginning to show some anxiety regarding supplies in view of the delayed marketing of winter wheat in this country. Bradstreet's estimated exports this week at only 2,400,000 bu, as compared with 6,129,000 bu a week ago and 5,962,000 bu last year.

American primary receipts today were just 474,000 bu against 2,070,000 bu last year. Arrivals of wheat at Chicago were only 13 cars against 578 last year.

It is estimated by an authority that less than 5 per cent of the winter wheat has been threshed so far, and that 20 per cent of the ripe grain is still standing in the fields through farmers being unable to cut it on account of rains.

There was no definite news of black rust damage today, and it is conceded that what indications there are show in only a few sections of South Dakota. Experts generally agree that prospects in the Northwest are for a bumper crop.

July wheat opened unchanged at $1.43, and held there up to the noon hour. September opened unchanged at $1.11 advanced to $1.12⅞, and then eased off fractionally.

Durum continued strong. July held unchanged at $1.21. September opened unchanged at $1.18¾, and gained 1¾c.

Flaxseed Turns Weak.

Flaxseed showed weakness, and its market dragged steadily on light trading. Crushers were reported to be showing small interest, confining themselves to picking up small lots at recessions. The competition of Argentine seed in the East is said to be a bearish factor at present. A moderate upturn came at the close.

July flax closed ½c off at $1.70 nominally; September opened unchanged at $1.74, and closed ½c off at $1.73½ asked; October opened unchanged at $1.76, and closed ¾c off at $1.75¼ bid; November opened unchanged at $1.76¼, and closed ¾c off at $1.75½ bid.

At Winnipeg, July flax closed unchanged at $1.51½ bid, and October ½c off at $1.55½.

At Buenos Aires, flax closed 1⅞c up at $1.24⅝, and London 1¾c up at $1.88⅝.

MARKET GOSSIP.

The H. Poehler company had a letter from the German State Bank of Eureka, S. D., reading as follows: "From present indications it looks as if we were going to have a good crop, and if it comes through the way it now promises, there is a question whether we will have storage capacity enough to take care of the crop."

Lecount wired from Woonsocket, S. D.: "Crops in this territory are decidedly above the average, but wheat here is badly affected by red rust. About two inches of rain has fallen here in the past twenty-four hours, and some low lands are drowned out. Hot muggy weather is unfavorable for small grain, but favorable for black rust development."

John Inglis wired Logan & Bryan from Sioux Falls, S. D.: "From Waterloo through the northwestern counties of Iowa corn is more promising than in the East. Yields are clean, but two weeks late. Heavy rains from Cherokee to Sioux Falls have flattened small grain and especially oats. Weather is unsettled."

Crop report to the Tenney company from F. C. Tenney, traveling in North Dakota by automobile, says: "Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday mornings were very hot, but no damage was done as there was plenty of moisture and good growing weather was needed. Heavy rain came Tuesday afternoon. Today (Wednesday) it is overcast and damp, but not muggy and hot. Weather today can do no damage as there is an absence of the hot, muggy, blue poisons that cause the spread of rust. While there has been no damage in the counties so far covered by machine, Dickey, Ransom, Lamoure, Logan, Stutzman, Barnes, Foster and Wells, except small sections hit by hail or low lands flooded, the grain is not in condition to stand adverse weather, as the growth is very soft, and full of moisture. After three hot clear days, the plant showed moisture half way up the stalk, and on the lower leaves. The heavy dew at night and each rain adds to this condition. The plant looks very healthy, but is very tender. Should rust start under proper conditions, it would spread very fast and do a lot of damage. So far it should cause no worry, but it will bear careful watching should the weather turn off hot and muggy.

"The early wheat is heading well, especially the Marquis barley is 80 per cent headed, and oats 70 per cent. Rye is ripening, but it will be a slim crop, as it was hit by the early frosts, and did not fill well. Both early and late flax are doing fine and do not show any frost damage."

Modern Miller says: "Less than 5 per cent of the winter wheat crop has been threshed. Twenty per cent of the ripe wheat is still standing in the fields. Heavy general rainfall in wheat belt has delayed the wheat movement till Aug. 1. Impossible to estimate damage and loss by lodging of ripe grain and shocks standing in water. Lower estimates of production are indicated in Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Texas and Kentucky. Much tough and light wheat will be marketed, but the amount of grain sprouted is as yet light. Drenching rains in Kansas and Nebraska now causing apprehension."

At Minneapolis cash demand was good for desirable milling wheat. Wheat market was firm. No. 1 northern blue stem sold at 12@13c over July, and velvet chaff at 3@6c over July. Moderate flour sales were reported. Cash No. 1 northern wheat sold there at from $1.38⅝ to $1.43⅝ and No. 2 northern at from $1.35⅝ to $1.45⅝. Wheat stocks in Minneapolis elevators decreased 310,000 bu in the week.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "Notwithstanding the decline in America and better offers of new winter wheat, the undertone here was steady with arrivals lighter. Spot market was steady at ½d lower to ½d higher, with Rosario nominally 1d lower. Cargo market was easier, with winter wheat freely offered at 9d decline; Manitobas 6d lower. Plates unchanged and Indians 3d lower. There is an insistent feeling that importers are quietly buying in no small amounts."

Argentine shipments this week are 296,000 bu, against 514,000 bu last year; oats, 430,000 bu, against 100,000 bu last year; corn, 6,326,000 bu, against 4,527,000 bu last year. Visible supply of wheat is 5,520,000 bu, last year 560,000 bu; corn, 11,730,000 bu, last year, 5,780,000 bu.

Foreign crop summary:

United Kingdom—Dryness continues and fears are expressed as to the yield of wheat.

Europe—Harvesting weather is not favorable as rain continues in parts, while dryness is reported in the late districts.

Argentina—Recent arrivals of boats have served to relieve the tension and freights have declined 2s 6d since Tuesday. Situation broadly is acute, and with present clearance it is believed freights will again advance sharply.

Northern Pacific's weekly crop summary shows that in Minnesota small grains continue to progress in good shape, but the weather has remained unfavorable for corn and potatoes. Corn is badly in need of immediate warm weather.

In North Dakota the Red River valley has been deluged with rain; but cool, windy weather has prevented serious damage. Small grains in the eastern part of the state are in good shape, but prospects for corn are very poor. In Central North Dakota conditions are very favorable for small grains.

Generally speaking, crop conditions in Montana are very good, and no unfavorable reports have been received.

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opens at Slight Increase But Soon Reacts to Lower Level.

Chicago, July 16.—Although reports of storm damage in parts of Kansas and Nebraska had a bullish effect today on the wheat market, the effect failed to last. Enlarged receipts here and increased offerings from the country were largely responsible for the reaction. Traders seemed to be about evenly divided as to the probable course of the market. After opening unchanged to 1½c higher, prices scored a slight further gain and then receded to about last night's level.

Afterward the market took a decided upward swing, influenced by reports that so far not to exceed 8 per cent of the crop had been threshed. The close was unsettled at ⅛ to ⅞c above last night.

Corn was governed mainly by the action of wheat. Hot weather, however, gave some advantage to the bears. Opening prices, which ranged from ¼c off to ¾c advance, were followed by a moderate general sag.

Later the market was helped upward by a fairly good shipping demand. The close was firm, ⅛@¼c to ½c above last night.

Sentiment regarding oats appeared to be against the bulls. Trade, though, was virtually confined to pit speculators.

Provisions suffered from lack of support. Higher prices for hogs were ignored.

NO DECREASE IN WAR ORDERS

Placing of war orders with American manufacturers by the European belligerents is said to show no signs of falling off. The value of new business reported during the last two weeks is estimated at $100,000,000. Orders placed through J. P. Morgan & Co. to date are estimated at $500,000,000, of which $400,000,000 was on account of Great Britain.

Recent orders covered a wider range of commodities than has been the case hitherto, indicating a more general demand on the part of the allies for American products aside from those which are strictly munitions.

Great Britain, for instance, placed a new order for 115,000,000 pounds of granulated sugar, valued at $5,250,000. Shipments are to be made in the current month and the price is said to be 4.65 cents per pound net cash in bond. The French government is reported to have bought 2,690,000 pounds of San Domingo raw sugar at 3.72 cents per pound, c. i. f.

One important feature of the last few days is the development of the export movement of war supplies to the rush point. In the last few months shipments of supplies have been confined largely to powder, foodstuffs and horses, but now the exportation of shells is becoming a feature. The Bethlehem Steel company is shipping at the rate of 25,000 shells a day.

WAR SHARES ARE HIGHER

Make New High Records, While Railway Issues Are Heavy.

United States Steel Actively Traded in at Better Prices.

New York, July 16.—War stocks yielded none of their prominence on the resumption of trading today. Bethlehem Steel soon rose 3 points to 183 and American Can, Crucible Steel, Baldwin Locomotive, Studebaker and Willys-Overland touched records never before attained. United States Steel was the most active feature however, opening with a sale of 8,000 shares at 63⅝ to 63¾, against yesterday's close of 63¼. Immediately thereafter offerings of 4,000, 2,000 and 1,000 shares of Steel were readily absorbed at slight recessions.

All other parts of the list were higher, Southern Pacific and New Haven alone exhibiting heaviness.

Bethlehem Steel advanced to 186 and other issues in the same group added to initial gains in the first two hours today. These shares with United States Steel made up a large part of the first hour's active business. Steel was the actual leader, its firmness imparting steadiness elsewhere. Southern Pacific declined to within a small fraction of yesterday's minimum quotation later making partial recovery. Low priced railways like Missouri, Kansas & Texas and Rock Island sold at new low prices.

More than 1,000 shares of United States Steel 5s at a concession marked the early dealings in bonds.

Stocks developed an irregular tendency in the afternoon. Renewed weakness in Southern Pacific affected allied shares. Meantime, however, was specialties, particularly Bethlehem Steel, common and preferred, were very active.

New high records for war stocks and heaviness in railway issues were the contrasting features of today's market.

Manipulation of the specialties was resumed in the final hour, war shares then making highest prices. The closing was irregular.

GERMANS BEGIN ADVANCE ON GREAT RUSS PORT

NO WARNING IS GIVEN BIG CUNARD LINER

Twenty-One Americans Are Among 227 Passengers on Vessel.

First Idea of Danger Given When Torpedo Goes By.

New York, July 17.—The British passenger liner Orduna, with 227 pasengers aboard, twenty-one of whom were Americans, was attacked without warning by a German submarine at 6 o'clock in the morning of July 9, sixteen hours out of Liverpool, on her way to New York. Announcement of the attack was made by the ship's captain, Thomas McComb Taylor, and passengers, when the Orduna reached here today. A torpedo was fired at the steamer and missed it by ten yards. Twenty minutes later a submarine rose to the surface possibly a different submarine from the one that launched the torpedo, and for half an hour thereafter pursued the steamer, firing shells, which whistled over the decks above the heads of passengers standing there with their life belts on.

Ten minutes before the attack, a sailing ship with two American flags painted on her side was seen ahead. Capt Taylor became suspicious of this craft and began maneuvering his ship. Then came the attack, the first warning of which was the streak of a torpedo which whirled through the water and narrowly missed the Orduna's stern.

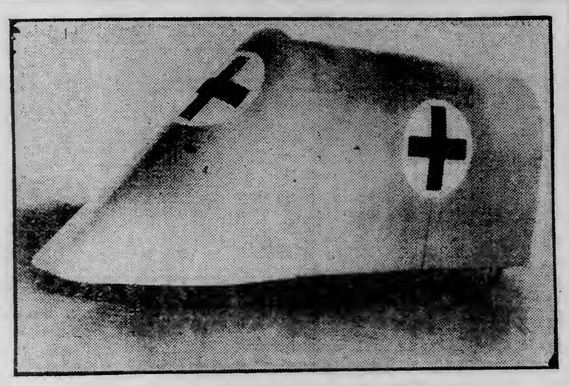

Passengers Bring Story

New York, July 17.—Passengers aboard the British passenger liner Orduna, which reached here today, said that a submarine attempted to torpedo the vessel at 6 o'clock in the morning of July 9, and, failing in its effort, fired six shells at the steamer, none of which took effect.

Few passengers were on the deck when the attack occurred. Baron Ros-

RED CROSS BULLET PROOF COVER FOR STRETCHER

FOR RESCUE WORK BETWEEN TRENCHES.

This is the new bullet-proof cover for stretchers, which enables wounded soldiers to be moved to safety, immune from stray bullets and of course the stretcher bearers are equally protected. It is the invention of Col. Cantli. It is wheeled by two bearers who lift the cover over the wounded man; place him on the stretcher and wheel him away safely.

NEWS COMES AS SHOCK

Expected Unarmed Ships Would Be Warned According to Law.

Washington, July 17.—News of the attack on the Cunarder Orduna upsets the theory of some officials here that Germany, while not yielding in the American diplomatic demands that unarmed ships be warned of attack, in accordance with international law, was in practice observing that procedure.

On that theory much hope had been built for the successful effect of the diplomatic representations brought about by the Lusitania disaster. In support of their theory, officials had pointed out that the British ships Armenian and Anglo-Californian, on both of which American lives were lost, were warned before attacked. Inasmuch as both attempted to escape, and one actually did, the United States held it could give its subjects in those cases no relief.

The view that Germany was now conducting her submarine warfare in accordance with the principles for which the United States contends has been so confidently entertained in official curcles that the attack on the Orduna came as little less than a shock. Yesterday Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, expressed to Secretary Lansing his confidence that there would not be another disaster like the Lusitania's.

Vetoes Anti-Tipping Bill.

Montgomery, Ala., July 17.—Governor Henderson today vetoed the anti-tipping bill on the ground that he did not believe the law could be enforced and that its constitutionality was doubtful.

BEACH GUESTS ARE ANXIOUS TO SEE THAW

Spends First Night of Real Freedom at Atlantic City.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 17.—Harry K. Thaw's first night of real freedom in years was spent in restful sleep at a beach front hotel here. After yesterday's weary ride down the state from New York, where he was released on bail, Thaw was much refreshed and prepared to spend the day quietly. He remained out of sight early in the day and took breakfast in his room. The dining room of the hotel was crowded with guests, many of whom prolonged their meal, hoping to see him. So far as could be learned Thaw has formed no definite plans for the immediate future, except to get as much rest as he can. The length of his stay here is not known, but it is believed he will go to his home in Pittsburgh in a few days.

Board-walk promenaders were on the alert to get a glimpse of the slayer of Stanford White and many lingered about his hotel.

Daniels Plan Monday.

Washington, July 17.—Secretary Daniels today announced he would issue a statement Monday developing his plan for a civilian naval advisory board of which Thomas A. Edison is to be the head.

ARBITRATION AWARD GOES

Company Accepts Findings of Arbitrators in Chicago Strike.

Representative of Company Refused to Sign the Award.

Chicago, July 17.—The text of the arbitration award in the street car employes case was made public yesterday. As announced informally two days ago, the motormen and conductors receive an advance of 3 cents an hour and thus become the highest paid street car operatives in the country.

James E. Sheean, who represented the companies on the board of arbitration, declined to sign the award.

Mr. Sheean later in the day made public a minority report filed by himself in which he criticizes Mayor Thompson, umpire of the board, for seeking evidence brought directly from the men instead of considering only evidence brought formally before the board. The mayor did this, he states, over the protests of himself and of Maclay Hoyne, representing the men on the board.

Mr. Sheean remarked that the men despite the fact that 60 per cent of

CONDITIONS IMPROVING

Less Rainfall in Flooded Districts in Central Ohio.

Thousands of Acres of Land Still Under Water.

Columbus, Ohio, July 17.—The passage of last night without any considerable rainfall resulted in improved conditions early today throughout the Ohio flood district. While many thousand acres of land remained under water, practically all rivers were either stationary or falling and with clear weather generally prevailing, it was believed the worst had been passed.

The Scioto and Olentangy rivers began receding here early today, bringing ease of mind to anxious watchers, especially in the flood stricken district on the west side, where thousands remained up all of last night. Many of them were engaged in moving their belongings to higher ground. Levees along the Scioto river in this city which began leaking yesterday afternoon, were repaired during the

TWO ASSISTANTS OF SAMUEL ROBBINS, COUNTERFEITER, ARE BELIEVED TO BE DULUTH MEN

Gang Arrested Because They Lacked One Good $10 Bill.

Robbins Frequently Visited Herald, Posing as Student of Engraving.

Chicago Police Say Counterfeiting Outfit Was Most Complete.

Two of the five men arrested in Chicago yesterday morning as counterfeiters, when detectives tumbled onto a trunk containing a quarter of million in spurious currency and $25,000 in spurious Minnesota state 6 per cent gold bonds, are believed to be Duluth men.

Samuel Robbins, aged 22, who has confessed, according to Chicago police, and who has been called the "brains of the gang" by secret service officers, told a story of how he had worked in a second-story room of a boarding house at 28 West Second street, Duluth, from November, 1914, to March 30, 1915, making the money.

"I hired two fellows to help me," he said when asked if he made all the money himself, and it is in this statement that Duluth police have found the basis for an extensive investigation which has been begun.

Chief of Detectives Frank A. Schulte wired the chief of detectives of Chicago last night, asking for Bertillion measurements and photographs of the four accomplices arrested there, as well as of Robbins.

May Be Duluth Men.

"Unless Robbins brought his two assistants up here from Chicago," said Lieut. Schulte, "there is a good chance that they are Duluth men. Chicago police have not given out the names of the two assistants. Benjamin Saltzman and John Berkowitz were accused of passing the money.

"We have unearthed one of the most gigantic counterfeiting plants in the country, I believe," said Capt. Thomas J. Coughlin of the secret service, with headquarters at Chicago. All of the bills were of small denominations—

BELIEVED IOWA BANK ROBBERS ESCAPED

North Liberty, Iowa, July 17.—Search for the two masked men who robbed the Farmers' Savings bank here after having bound and gagged the assistant cashier, was pushed with renewed vigor early today. It was feared, however, that the robbers had escaped.

Just before going to the bank the men stopped their automobile at a garage and took on a large supply of gasoline. It was believed today that the amount stolen would not exceed $1,000.

DULUTH MAN ARRESTED IN CHICAGO AS COUNTERFEITER

SAMUEL ROBBINS.

The plate was "touched up" by Robbins himself, who is believed to have been practising on it. It was found early yesterday afternoon by a Herald reporter, among some odds and ends Robbins left in his room at 28 West Second street. He had outlined the head and etched out part of the background.

TO CALL GENERAL STRIKE MONDAY

Bridgeport, Conn., July 17.—J. J. Keppler, international vice president of the Machinists' union, who headed a committee, which today went to the plant of the Remington Arms company to present the demands formulated by a strike meeting of the Bridgeport machinists last night, announced today that a general strike of machinists would be called on Monday. He said Maj. Walter G. Penfield, general manager of the Remington Arms & Ammunition company, had refused to deal with the committee.

EXONERATION IS SURPRISE

Verdict in Lusitania Case Attaches No Blame to Officers.

Americans Express Indignation at Findings of British Court.

London, July 17—"Torpedoes fired by a submarine of German nationality" caused the loss of the steamship Lusitania and its passengers, according to the findings of the court of inquiry appointed to investigate the disaster.

The court held that no blame for the tragedy attached either to Capt. Turner, commander of the vessel, or the Cunard line, the owners.

"After having carefully inquired into the circumstances of the disaster," says the formal report of the court, "the court finds the loss of said ship and lives was due to damage caused the ship by torpedoes fired by a submarine of German nationality.

"In the opinion of the court the act was done not merely with the intention of sinking the ship but also with the intention of destroying the lives of the people on board."

Facilities Adequate.

Other salient features of the report are that the lifeboat and lifebelt facilities were adequate; that the demeanor of the crew was above all blame and that the conduct of the passengers, barring a slight panic

OFFENSIVE IS OF ENORMOUS PROPORTIONS

Riga, Seat of Governor of Baltic Provinces, Is Objective.

Vast Envelopment Movement to Crush the Russian Army.

Czar's Soldiers Are Holding the Line North of Warsaw.

London, July 17—A new German offensive of huge proportions with Riga, a great Russian seaport and the seat of the governor general of the Baltic provinces, as its objective, is revealed in the latest official statements issued at Petrograd and Berlin.

Military experts here construe the offensive to be a vast envelopment movement in which the Germans are making a herculean effort to destroy the Russian army.

Both the German and Russian communications agree that the German forces are at the Windau river near Goldingen, which is only eighty miles from Riga, the great strategic commercial metropolis in the Gulf of Riga and on the upper Baltic.

An official statement received this morning from Petrograd adds details of sanguinary fighting all along the new line in efforts to hold back the German advance, which now is being concentrated on Riga and on Warsaw, while the Austro-Hungarians are moving northward from the Dniester river.

Trail of Destruction.

Advices reaching London today say that the Germans left a trail of destruction along the Baltic sea from Memel to Libau, where the villas, hotels and casinos are alleged to have been destroyed, about the only exception, it is said, being the palace of a Polish nobleman whose cousin married an American woman. The palace is now being used as a military headquarters in which Prince Henry of Prussia and Field Marshal von Hindenburg recently conferred on the new offensive toward Riga.

Fail to Penetrate French.

The Crown Prince Frederick William's drive in the Argonne forest now is accepted as a small success, in gaining a few hundred yards of terrain, but as a failure in attaining its real object—a decisive penetration of the French line.

The ominous attitude adopted by the Welsh coal miners causes serious apprehension.

The miners now have increased their demands by asking the government to withdraw the royal proclamation making the coal mines sub-

FIERCE FIGHTING HIGH IN MOUNTAINS

Italian Statement Tells of Severe Engagements 10,000 Feet in Air.

Rome, July 17, via Paris.—A statement given out at the Italian headquarters signed by Lieut. Gen. Count Cadorna and dated July 16, reads as follows:

"In the upper Val Camonica the enemy, having advanced through the Venerodolol and Brizio passes, made an attack in force against our positions near Rifugio Gavibaldi, but was repulsed with loss, leaving a few prisoners in our hands.

"Our troops after driving back the adversary, occupied the two passes which are, as is known, at a height of more than 10,000 feet.

"In Carnia, the enemy, profiting by fog and darkness, delivered during the afternoon and evening of July 14, two determined attacks on Mount Cogliano and Mount Pizzo Avostano. Both attacks were repulsed. The enemy's ascertained loss was 33 dead, including one officer.

"In the Isonzo region the situation at Preppipappy is unchanged. The enemy by small attacks especially at night, and by heavy artillery fire has continually sought to cause losses, to hamper our advance, and above all, to force our batteries to reply and thus reveal our positions."

Let Us Hope Thomas A. Edison Invents a Machine That Will Stop Wars as Readily as They Are Started.

SUMMARY OF THE WAR NEWS

The Russian lines are holding well immediately north of Warsaw, where the greatest force of Teutonic move against the Polish capital seemingly is being exerted, according to the latest statement from Petrograd.

Attacks by "important forces" west of the river Orzyc have been repulsed with heavy losses, the Russians claim, and in sections where gains were made by the Germans their further advance was arrested.

A withdrawal of the Russian forces between the Pissa and Orzyc rivers to new lines along the Narew, in the face of Gen. von Hindenburg's attacks is admitted by Petrograd. Continuation of the German advance in Courland also is conceded. Increasing importance is attached by military observers abroad to this movement in the Baltic provinces.

Field Marshal von Mackensen's army that swept through Galicia is giving signs of renewed activity in pursuance of the assumed plan of the Teutonic forces to attack simultaneously all along the sweeping 800-mile front from tht Baltic to Bessarabia. Unofficial reports through Geneva declare that at the lower end of this line Austrian troops who crossed the Dniester have been driven back to the other bank, where their retreat is being turned into a rout.

Fighting on the Austro-Italian front has resulted in few recent changes of positions, according to latest reports from Rome. Numerous attacks by the Austrians on the Italian advanced positions are recorded, all of which are declared to have been repulsed.

Attempts at solution of the South Wales coal strike probem failed for the time being, the miners' executive committee adjourned to Monday, after an abortive attempt to reach an agreement on means to secure a settlement

WILL INVESTIGATE NEEDS OF STREETS

Committee Will Make Inspection; Improvements Are Discussed.

West Duluth streets were again the principal theme of discussion at the meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club last night. The club's committee in charge of a campaign for better thoroughfares, reported that it had organized and that a thorough investigation of the needs of all of the streets would be made with Commissioner J. A. Farrell. A trip planned for yesterday afternoon will be taken Monday.

A stop for the opening of Roosevelt street from Fifty-eighth avenue to Sixty-first avenue was taken. A committee will secure petitions asking for the opening of this thoroughfare. Railroad property between Fifty-eighth and Fifty-ninth avenues and private property through a triangle between Fifty-ninth and Grand, as well as property between Grand avenue and Sixty-first avenue, will have to be condemned.

It is explained that this crossing must necessarily be opened. The intersection is the only one running east and west between Ramsey street and Raleigh street that could conveniently be opened. It taps the business district of Central avenue and connects this with the residence district in the western end of the city.

REDUCING GRADE ON THOMSON HILL

Work on reducing the grade on the Thomson road hill into West Duluth will be begun at once, according to Walter Swanstrom, county commissioner from the Third district. Last year a crew of men was put to work on a portion of the hill and succeeded in reducing the grade from 15 per cent to 8 per cent in one stretch. The work this season calls for a reduction of grade from 10 per cent to 7 per cent for a stretch of about five blocks.

Commissioner Swanstrom stated that one of his crews has just finished graveling the Proctor road from Duluth Heights to Proctor. The gravel placed on the road was furnished by the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railway company free of expense. The Haines road which will connect the central portion of the city with the Fraser and Swan Lake roads has also been completed.

Work has also been started on the Decker road. A crew is now engaged in cutting the right-of-way and it is expected that the rest of the work will be finished next season. The road starts from a point on the Hermantown road and extends for a distance of two and one-fourth miles to the Maple Grove road.

MOOSE LODGES PLAN JOINT PICNIC

Many Bright Features Arranged for Day's Outing.

The annual joint picnic of the Duluth and West Duluth lodges, Loyal Order of the Moose, to be held next Saturday at Fairmont park, will be one of the principal outing features of next week.

It is expected that fully 5,000 people will attend. A big sports program has been planned to begin about the middle of the forenoon. Band concerts to be given by the Duluth City band will be a feature of the afternoon and between 6 and 8 o'clock in the evening the Grand Army drum corps will furnish music.

There will be no fat men's race on the program. This feature had been planned, but since recent stories have told of the possibility of such races leading to fatalities on the part of the fat men, it has been proposed instead to have the fat men enter a contest to see which can move the slowest from one given point to another.

Arrangements are being made to run a special Moose train from the ranges to bring the contingent from north of Duluth to the picnic. Members of the committee said this morning that the Moose of Proctor intend making the trip with an ox team.

The members of the joint committee are M. J. Roach, M. C. Greenfield, F. T. Urie, H. Viou, R. J. Baker of the West Duluth lodge and James Downing, Carl Shaum, C. L. Conover, Guy Mahon and James Bennison of the Duluth lodge. James Downing is chairman of the general committee.

FLOWER THEFTS WILL BE INVESTIGATED

Residents of the hillside in West Duluth are "up in arms." For several mornings in succession flowers, principally peonies and roses, have been missing from the flower beds in the yards of many residences and so far no one has been able to find out who has been guilty of the thefts.

At the home of F. J. Lynch, 1107 North Fifty-seventh avenue, fifty peonies were stolen some time between Thursday night and Friday morning. This morning S. J. Nygren, 5521 West Sixth street, reported that several peonies and roses had been stolen from his place last night.

Investigations are to be made by the police. Rumor that such flowers have been seen in profusion in some business places and that they may have been purchased from boys, will be investigated. The residents believe that boys have stolen the flowers during the early hours of the morning selling them at small prices.

WILL SELECT SCHOOL SITE.

Proctor School Board Will Hold Important Meeting.

The annual meeting of the school board of Proctor will be held this evening in the West Side school building. The meeting will begin at 7:30 o'clock sharp.

The election of a chairman of the board and a secretary will be held. A site for the proposed high school will be definitely decided on at this meeting. The village proposed to erect a building costing approximately $50,000 this fall.

Whether the village of Proctor shall become an independent school district or not will also be voted on.

McCurdy-Jarvis.

The wedding of Miss Mabel McCurdy to John L. Jarvis took place at 6 o'clock this morning at the parsonage of the Proctor Catholic church. Rev. E. J. Walsh read the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis left this morning for Lake Vermilion where they will pass a week camping. The groom is night foreman at the D., M. & N. roundhouse at Proctor, and the bride has been assistant chief clerk in the master mechanic's office at Proctor. They will reside on East Main street.

Shoots Himself.

While shooting at a target near his home on the Rice Lake road, Vern A. Molitor, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Molitor, accidentally shot himself in the thigh. The bullet failed to penetrate any part of the bone, but made a bad flesh wound. He was taken to the Duluth hospital on an afternoon train from Fond du Lac. Hospital attendants reported this morning that the injury would not prove serious. He is said to be rapidly recovering.

Linder Funeral.

The funeral services for Mrs. Gust Linder of Proctor, who died Thursday morning, will be held Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from Bell Bros.' undertaking rooms, and at 2 o'clock from the Third Swedish Baptist church, Fifty-ninth avenue west and Ramsey street. Rev. K. A. Linder will officiate. Interment will be in Oneota cemetery.

Gives House Party.

Mrs. Alma Lyons, 317 North Fifty-first avenue west, entertained last night at a house party in honor of her cousin, Miss Margaret Murphy of Minneapolis, who is spending a few days in the city. There were eighteen guests.

Two Weddings at Parsonage.

Two weddings took place Thursday at the parsonage of the Asbury Methodist church, 6009 Raleigh street. Rev. W. H. Farrell read the service for both.

Miss Myrtle Mason and Otto I. Erickson were married during the afternoon. They will make their home at 6 North Thirty-ninth avenue west.

At 8 o'clock the wedding of Miss Clara Mehlum and Charles Suk took place. Mr. and Mrs. Suk will make their home in West Duluth.

West Duluth Briefs.

The Zenith Furnace baseball team will play the Superior Box factory team in Superior tomorrow. The game will be for the championship of the Head of the Lakes.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Pieper of Milwaukee are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Wieland, 5801 West Eighth street.

Grover J. Lowe, clerk in the state boiler inspector's office, has gone to Hibbing for a short business trip.

Mrs. James McCurdy, Miss Elizabeth Smith, Miss Martha Marian of Elgin, Ill., and Mrs. M. J. Solberg will leave today for a month's trip to the West coast. They will visit the Panama Pacific exposition.

Mrs. P. J. Carney, 903 North Fifty-sixth avenue west, has returned from a visit with relatives at Virginia.

WILL SOON BE READY FOR RAILS

Street cars may be running to the steel plant before winter, if trolley company officials carry out their plans to lay rails as soon as street improvement work is finished.

"Pavements, grading and other improvements along the proposed right-of-way from West Duluth to the steel plant will be completed by fall," said Works Commissioner Farrell this morning.

"We will have the contracts cleaned up in plenty of time to allow the street railway company to lay its rails before cold weather begins," he said, "and chances for a car line to the plant this year are excellent."

The work referred to includes the $48,000 paving job along Commonwealth and Grand avenues from Eighty-fourth street to Zimmerly avenue, the brick paving now being installed at Gary and the subway or tunnel being built by the Northern Pacific at Smithville.

JUDGE WEARIES OF JOB OF ARBITER

District Judge Cant has decided to resign as arbiter of the troubles which are continally rising between John Bendizen, Park Point fisherman, and his divorced wife, Anna.

Since the Bendixens were divorced last winter they have been in court several times with their difficulties. The principal trouble has been over the custody of one of the two children and the payment of alimony.

When the divorce was granted, the court gave Berdixen the right to visit his child on the first and third Saturdays of each month. He was ordered to pay his wife monthly alimony.

On several occasions they have been before the court, Bendixen claiming that his wife had disobeyed the court's order with reference to right of visitation, and she asserting that he had failed to keep up his alimony payments.

Today Judge Cant saw a way out. He made an order which will deny Bendixen the right of visitation and which will also relieve him from paying alimony. The court directed him to pay up the amount he was in arrears, about $50, within the next two weeks.

In the future, the court told the Bendixens, there will be no excuse for trouble between them.

ARRESTED, SHE TRIES TO END LIFE

Woman Caught in Police Raid Uses Hatpin as Dagger.

Arrested in a disorderly house raid with three others, early this morning Maud Imbleau, age 28, tried to commit suicide by stabbing herself with a hatpin while being led to the patrol wagon.

Sergeant John Roberg, who with Officer Le Beau, made the raid, saw her snatch the hatpin, and pushing one of the prisoners aside, grabbed her arm just as she was about to plunge the pin into her breast. At police headquarters she became hysterical, and was quieted with difficulty.

The four, including Mrs. John Edwards, aged 33, David Foley, aged 29 and Thomas Wallner, aged 40, were in a room at 632 West First street.

The Edwards woman and Foley furnished $15 bail, which they forfeited by non-appearance in police court this morning. Wallner was sentenced to pay a fine of $17 or serve twenty days at the work farm, while the Imbleau woman pleaded not guilty. Charges of disorderly conduct were lodged against all four.

The Imbleau woman will be given a hearing July 19, bail being fixed at $50.

FLOOD OF SUGGESTIONS FOR PROPOSED CELEBRATION OF STEEL PLANT OPENING

J. J. Moe Outlines Program Including Parade and Numerous Bonfires.

Industrial Pageant, Barbecue and Fireworks Among Suggestions.

That the plan to celebrate publicly the opening of operations and steel making at the plant of the Minnesota Steel company on Nov. 1, is taking hold and interesting citizens in general is attested by the multiplicity of suggestions that are coming to the "Steel Making Celebration Editor" of The Herald. Scores of them have already arrived by mail, and more, according to telephone communication, are on the way.

There have been contests somewhat similar to The Herald's, before now in Duluth, but never before has the response been so ready.

Names Must Be Signed.

One change will be noticed in the coupon printed herewith. The change leaves a place for the signature of the person making the suggestion. Lack of such space, heretofore, was an oversight, for too many are sending in coupons without signing their names to them. This is desired to be avoided. It is hoped that each one making a suggestion will be willing to have his or her name printed in connection with it; but The Herald will, as usual, respect an expressed desire to withhold them.

The most detailed suggestion received for this issue comes from John J. Moe, the West end's big department store man. It is characteristic of Mr. Moe to take a keen interest in all that pertains to the advancement of Duluth and to come forward with suggestions for such a celebration as this promises to be. To his suggestion he signs himself, "Yours for a bigger and better Duluth, boostingly." His suggestion follows:

Mr. Moe's Suggestion.

"First—Declare a general holiday with suspension of business of every kind—mercantile, banking, industrial and manufacturing—giving all employes a holiday with full pay and a hearty invitation to participate in the celebration. This celebration to be held as early as possible to assure good weather.

"Second—Arrange a monster industrial parade or pageant in automobiles, properly decorated for the occasion, getting from 500 to 1,000 automobiles in line, and each unit, mercantile, banking, industrial, lodge and society sections arranging for their automobiles and the decorating of the same. Also industrial floats, if practicable.

"Third—Hire a brass band to head each section in the parade. There should be ten to fifteen bands at least.

"Fourth—Invite the governor and staff, also President Vincent of the state university to participate in the parade and program. The governor and President Vincent being the speakers representing the state.

"Fifth — There should be two local speakers, one representing the city and one the county.

"Sixth—The industrial parade or pageant should start at 10 a. m. from the courthouse square, going east on Superior street and up to the boulevard making the entire boulevard drive over the west extension to West Duluth, thence out to the steel plant, returning to Lincoln park. There a grandstand or speaker's stand should be erected, where the celebration, speech making and general program should be held, winding up the day with a huge, old-time 'family picnic' forgetting all social distinctions and everybody turning loose to have a good time with games, prizes, contests, etc., for the best stunts pulled off for the innocent amusement of all.

Forget Pessimism.

"Now let us all forget that there ever lived a pessimist in Duluth and put our shoulders to the wheel and do our part of the pushing and boosting and our reward will soon be coming so fast and thick that it will surprise us all.

"As a fitting windup in the evening let every civic, fraternal and city improvement organization arrange for an immense bonfire in various parts of the city on the hill tops from Lakeside to New Duluth, to announce to the world at large, by its bright glow, that the greatest industrial plant of the state is about to blow in its great furnaces to consume the raw iron product within the confines of our great state, and supply the finished product to the world."

Fire Marshal Suggests.

The first suggestion received from out of the city comes from R. W. Hargadine, state fire marshal. Mr. Hargadine's home is in St. Paul, even when he is not an official, but he is one of the sincerest believers in Duluth in the state. So far as the future of this city is concerned, Mr. Hagardine has repeatedly declared that there is no question that the city will be one of the greatest in the Northwest. His suggestion lacks detail but it shows the way he feels about it. He says tersely and truly that the place to hold the celebration is "Duluth," and that the money should be raised by popular subscription, and adds:

"It should be very elaborate, for this event will remain the greatest in the history of the Northwest."

Some acknowledgment for a St. Paul man!

Julius Dworshak of 513 East Eleventh street suggests that the celebration be held in the city proper and at the steel plant and that it should occupy two days. He goes into details as follows:

One Citizen's Idea.

"The celebration should be ushered in with a gigantic street parade, made up of all civic organizations, fraternal orders, fire and police departments, floats representing every industry of our city, as well as all business houses with as many banks as possible. The parade should form on First street, marching eastward to about Seventh avenue, then down to Superior street, then westward to Athletic park. Good speakers should be secured from our own and other cities. Speechmaking should last not more than two hours. Every citizen, who does not intend to march with some organization should be requested to fall in line anyway.

"In the evening of the same day, a gorgeous display of fireworks and a Venetian water carnival should complete the program for the first day.

Second Day's Program.

"The next day, the steel corporation should be persuaded to throw open the entire plant to the public for inspection. The committee in charge of this celebration should purchase (or solicit gratis) as many steers, as thought necessary for a grand barbecue, together with bread, coffee, vegetables, etc.

"A large dancing pavilion should be erected on the steel plant grounds, allowing the young folks to dance to their hearts' content. Several bands of music should be obtained for the occasion.

"To meet the expenses of so large an undertaking, every business man and institution in the city should be requested to contribute financially. The city administration and the Steel corporation should also be requested to make a financial donation. Every railroad running into the city should be requested to give excursion rates of not more than 1 cent per mile for the round trip, within a radius of 100 miles of Duluth.

"Arrangements for an athletic program consisting of races, etc., should also be made, and good prizes offered to the winners as an incentive for those who might take part. All of the range towns should also be invited to take part in the parade at least.

"I sincerely believe if this program is carried out to the letter, Duluth will enjoy the biggest advertisement that it has ever received, not only in the Northwest, but throughout the entire United States, for I firmly believe that if we here in Duluth can pull off this card, we will have at least 50,000 visitors in this city for this celebration. I am very enthusiastic over this coming event for I know it means much for Duluth."

Job for Reis and Sheldon.

W. A. McWatty of 4121 Grand avenue, deals with the proposed celebration as follows:

"I have always noticed that to make a success of any meeting the people would have to eat. I would suggest, that we have an old-fashioned barbecue. The opening of the steel plant will be marked down as one of the glorious days, not only for Duluth, but the Northwest in general. Now let us kill the fatted calf like they did in the days of yore and roast two oxen and let Mr. Reis and Mr. Sheldon carve them and serve the nice quicy beef in a sandwich.

"Why I suggest Mr. Reis and Mr. Sheldon to carve the beef is no doubt they will need some help and they will call on the steel officials of the East to help, and by doing this we will be able to hear some speeches as to the amount of labor and tons of ore used and so on.

"A barbecue is something the Duluth people haven't had as far back as I can remember, and I think by the crowd we will have, it will show the steel company our appreciation. Let us hold this barbecue on the snow grounds so we will have plenty of room and be centrally located.

"Since I have commenced to write this I think we should have five oxen roasted instead of two. I put this in the form of a motion. Can some brother second it?"

Unsigned Suggestions.

One unsigned suggestion is as follows: Place, Spirit Lake division of the boat club; continuation, as short as possible; money raising, by assessment; program, "the grading and paving of the west half of the entrance to Morgan park, being the thirty-third street of the city of Duluth, lying along Ninety-third avenue from Zimmerly avenue, about 500 feet southerly. The steel company has paved its half of the roadway, and from the southerly end of the improved stretch has paved a full width of the street. This improved portion makes a beautiful example of Duluth's welcome to the opening of the steel plant."

Another unsigned coupon says that the celebration should be held in the downtown district in the afternoon and evening and that the money should be raised by an office-to-office canvass, each man giving 25 to 50 cents. An afternoon parade and a business directory of Duluth are suggested, and for the evening a good fireworks program.

Still another unsigned coupon suggests the show grounds as the best place for holding the celebration, to continue one day, the money to be raised by general subscription; and as to the program, speeches from the steel officials concerning facts about the steel company and the steel plant.

THE CADILLAC PRICE!

The following letter from the Cadillac Motor Car Co. to its dealers explains itself

SUBJECT: The Cadillac Price.

Detroit, Mich., June 17, 1915.
TRADE LETTER NO. 348.

The Cadillac price is an honest price—it always has been and it always will be.

The cost to produce the resulting quality and inherent value governs the price: a pre-determined price does not govern the quality.

If the Cadillac price were based on the actual worth of the car, in comparison with other cars, the Cadillac would be the highest priced car on the market.

Whatever policies other makers find expedient or necessary to adopt, cannot stem the tide of Cadillac popularity nor impede the constant growth of Cadillac prestige.

On the contrary, recent developments have served only to acknowledge, to indorse and to strengthen the Cadillac position and to increase the sale of Cadillac cars.

To reduce the price of the Cadillac would necessarily demand a depreciation of its quality—something to which this company never has and never will resort.

There is justification for increasing the price rather than reducing it—in fact, an advance in price will unquestionably be necessary.

No Cadillac owner has ever been obliged to suffer an exasperating and humiliating depreciation in the value of his car on account of its maker, under stress of circumstances, being compelled to reduce his price.

Look back on automobile history and you will find that the great Cadillac mechanical advances have been the only ones of importance which were first year successes.

The Eight Cylinder Cadillac stands as the most advanced type of motor car.
Its V-type engine is just one year in the lead, in point of development, over all other American V-type engines.

It is the only American V-type engine which has proven itself.

Today's purchaser of a Cadillac secures a value, a satisfaction and a service which is not obtainable in any other car.

More than 12,000 owners testify that it is a demonstrated success.
And the visible demand is not yet half satisfied.

DULUTHIANS WILL DRIVE TO HIBBING

Many Motorists Planning to Attend the Auto Races.

Many Duluth persons will drive to Hibbing today and early tomorrow to witness the automobile races that will be contested on the fair grounds track at Hibbing tomorrow between some of the fastest race drivers in the world.

The Miller Trunk road and the old Vermilion road are both in excellent condition for driving. Much interest has been shown in the races among auto drivers at the Head of the Lakes, and it is believed that Duluth and Superior will send a large number of machines up to Hibbing.

OFFER TO DIE IN GOOD CAUSE

One of the features of the Northwestern International Rowing regatta promises to be the rowing contests between the "gentleman" eights, crews made up of oarsmen who rowed along in the dark ages of the past.

"Tony" Puck, one of the most enthusiastic oarsmen that ever represented the Duluth Boat club, and one who has rowed in a number of winning crews, is organizing the Duluth eight to compete against the eight representing the Minnesota Boat club of St. Paul.

John Peyton, Hans Haroldson, Bert McDowell, Dennis Deighton, Puck, "Ham" Peyton, and a number of the old-timers will row in the local crew.

"Tony" has promised to have his crew out every evening from now until the day the big race is scheduled to be rowed. Someone has suggested that the race be rowed in relays, but an improvement upon this suggestion was that the contest be of very short duration.

The Duluthians will have several tryouts and then will be in a better position to fix the distance to be rowed.

Palace Team vs. Towers.

The Palace baseball team of Duluth is scheduled to meet the Towers of Superior at Desmond park tomorrow afternoon. Both of the teams are said to be very strong and a fast contest is expected. The Palace team is out for the championship of the city.

HUSBAND FOLLOWS WIFE TO GRAVE

August Wagner of Hermantown Dies After Long Illness.

Death ended the long illness of August Wagner of Hermantown this morning. His wife, Mrs. August Wagner, died Wednesday, and this fact probably hastened the end of Mr. Wagner. The death of Mrs. Wagner was unexpected, while that of the husband was not so much of a surprise. Mrs. Wagner dropped dead of apoplexy, Wednesday, at 15 West Second street.

Mr. Wagner is survived by seven sons, Frank, August, Reynolds, Robert, Richard, Herman and Carl, all of Herrantown, and two daughters, Edith of Hermantown and Mrs. W. M. Moran of Cloquet. The funeral of Mrs. Wagner was held from the German Lutheran church of Hermantown with interment in Hermantown cemetery. No arrangements for the funeral of Mr. Wagner have been made as yet, but they will probably be the same as were those of Mrs. Wagner.

DULUTH WORK DELAYED BY BOAT CLUB

Bids Will Be Opened Next Week on Improvements Ordered.

Bids covering the work had been advertised for by works department officials, and were to be opened during the coming week, but the expense of putting in the improvements, evidently greater than estimated at first, caused a change in sentiment among residents affected.

Commissioner Farrell stated that the work probably would not go through.

IS LOOKING FOR CHOICE EXHIBITS

Sargent on Trail of County Products for State Fair.

William C. Sargent is out after produce to exhibit at the state fair, which will open at Hamline in September, and is scouring the county for things to show what St. Louis county can produce. He is getting results but wants them to come quicker. The exhibit of grasses is now well collected, although still other samples will be added. What Mr. Sargent is now hurrying to get are such things as fruit, strawberries, currants, raspberries and vegetables of all kinds. More grasses and grains will also be acceptable, and those having them to exhibit are requested to let him know.

"I want choice specimens for the exhibit," said Mr. Sargent today: "I have a number of state fair premium lists for distribution and will be glad to furnish them to prospective exhibitors. We wish to make the St. Louis county exhibit at the state fair the best that it has ever been, and it looks as though we are going to succeed."

SUPERIOR

LIVED HERE TWELVE YEARS; DEPORTED

James Shields, a Scotchman, who has lived in Superior for twelve years and during that time has been employed at the Superior Shipbuilding company, was yesterday deported to Canada. Immigration Officer Brown McDonald of Duluth is said to have found Shields drunk with only $2 in his pockets. When asked why he had not taken out citizenship papers, Shields is said to have responded that he did not do so because he did not "belong to this country."

Jitneurs Double Fares.

Jitney drivers propose to charge 10 cents hereafter for fare between the city proper and Billings park. This charge will be made on holidays and Sundays. The increase in fare was brought about at a meeting last night of the Superior Jitney association when members complained that they were not making anything by carrying passengers for a nickel.

THIRST FOR LIQUOR PERMANENTLY REMOVED

I shall be glad to show anyone who desires to have the curse and desire for liquor taken from his life, hundreds of testimonials on my ability to make permanent cures.

I am now located at 1706 West Superior Street, Duluth. My prices are very reasonable and you are guaranteed that your money will be entirely refunded in case I cannot cure you absolutely of the liquor habit inside of two weeks.

PROF. J. B. FISETE, ANTI-LIQUOR CURE

1706 West Superior Street, Duluth.

Channing, Mich., Nov. 20, 1913.

This is to certify that I have taken Prof. J. B. Fisete's Liquor Cure, and am highly pleased with results. It is even more than he claims for it. It has taken all desire and craving for liquor from me and is also a good stomach remedy. I advise any one who liquor has got the best of to try the cure and they will be surprised at the results. It is pleasant to take and will not hinder any one from their work or business. Respectfully,

L. CUNNINGHAM.

Iron Mountain, Mich., Oct. 27, 1913.

To Whom It May Concern:

This is to testify that I, Fred Pecotte, after being bothered with my heart for 15 years, but for the last three years I haven't been able to climb stairs without stopping for breath, or to any exertion of any kind; my limbs used to swell and get cold and numb and I could hardly feel my pulse beat and also had chills, but having decided to try Prof. J. B. Fisete's treatment, and at the end of one week ran two blocks without any exhaustion, and at the end of two weeks was completely cured. I also have lost all desire for liquor and feel better than I have in twenty years.

I have doctored with nine or ten doctors and to no avail, as I was condemned by them all. I make this declaration for the benefit of others who are ailing the same as I had been. So do not let any doctor condemn you without seeing Prof. J. B. Fisete of Duluth. I really believe that he can cure you as he did me, as I feel like a purified and new man in the world. I write this for the benefit of others.

I remain,

FRED PECOTTE.

215 E. A St., Iron Mountain, Mich.

Duluth, Minn., April 26, 1915.

Dear Sir:

I have been a sufferer from dropsy and kidney trouble for eleven years, have doctored with several doctors and was pronounced incurable. But after taking Prof. John Fisete's treatment for two weeks I am entirely cured and highly recommend it to anybody who is troubled with the same disease.

Very truly yours,

MRS. J. CHARRIER.

3516 W. Third St., Duluth, Minn.

Chisholm, Minn., June 30, 1911.

Dear Sir:

I have been a sufferer from dyspepsia for many years and endured a great deal of pain but found nothing to do me good until I tried J. B. Fisete's dyspepsia cure and after a two weeks' treatment found that I had greatly improved, and today am glad to say I have been entirely cured. Anyone suffering with dysnepsia should give this wonderful cure a trial.

Yours,

MRS. A. ANDERSON.

Duluth, Minn., May 12, 1907.

Three years ago I was in Chisholm, Minn., condemned to die by my doctor. My troubles were too much liquor for too long a time. I am now more than pleased to have a chance to testify that Mr. J. B. Fisete's Cure has fully re-established my health and drives all appetite for liquor from me.

DISPOSAL OF CITY GARBAGE

and incineration were recommended to city officials yesterday as the only effective means of waste disposal by J. C. Woodman, Minneapolis mechanical engineer.

City commissioners and officials in general, with quite a number of citizens, were included in the audience which gathered in the council chamber to hear the address, which was in connection with plans to establish a better system of garbage disposal.

"Collection charges now imposed render the Duluth system ineffective," said Mr. Woodman, "because many persons dispose of their garbage in other ways to save garbage.

"Incineration is the only recognized means of waste disposal, but the local one is not modern because it has brick walls instead of water-cooled steel ones and therefore needs frequent repairs," declared the speaker. "Cooking garbage in vats to obtain greases and oils of commercial value would be a menace to public health."

Duluth commissioners are considering a unit incinerator system, with small disposal plants in various parts of the city.

GERMANS ADVANCE ON GREAT RUSS PORT

ject to the munitions act. President Runciman of the board of trade rejected this proposal at a conference last night and a meeting held in London today failed to secure any ground for an adjustment.

The extremist leaders declare, however, that it is a question no longer of a 5 per cent increase in wages but the abrogation of the royal proclamation which subjects the strikers to a fine of $25 daily for striking.

No effort has yet been made to enforce the fines against the 150,000 strikers which the leaders construe as an evidence of the virtual impossibility of carrying out the plans.

Reports received this morning from all the Welsh centers show that the strike continues to cause much agitation, but no disorder.

Austro-Hungarians Repulsed.

The Austro-Hungarian forces which attempted to dislodge the Russians from positions along the Vistula river have been repulsed with heavy loss. The Russians attacking in turn occupied a mile of the Austrian trenches. Fresh Russian batteries which have arrived and which have been posted on the Sereth river, have begun to bombard the passage across the Dniester river, south of Zaleszczyky, obliging the Austrians to recross the river. Their retreat is being converted into a rout by Russian bayonet attacks.

On the Stripa river the Russians have succeeded in temporarily arresting the Austrian offensive.

them already earn more than $1,000 a year, were given practically everything they asked for and undoubtedly, in his opinion, much more than they expected or had a right to expect.

Traction Company Accepts.

Officials of the traction company announced late yesterday that the award of the arbitration board increasing the wages of employes would be accepted, regardless of the refusal of its representative earlier in the day to sign the document of award. The award increased the pay of conductors and motormen 3 cents an hour.

The arbitration board was composed of James M. Sheean, representing the company; Maclay Hoyne, state's attorney, representing the men, and William Hale Thompson, mayor, agreed upon as the third arbitrator.

On Wednesday Mr. Sheean withdrew from the meetings of the board, but returned on Thursday. On Friday the award was made and yesterday the full text thereof was made public signed by Mayor Thompson and State's Attorney Hoyne. Mr. Sheean refused to sign and issued a minority report.

The increase in wages granted the men is retroactive to June 1, when the old agreement expired. It is estimated that the cost to the company will be about $1,500,000 a year. Forty-five per cent of this amount will fall upon the company, and 55 per cent on the city, as under the ordinances, the city shares in street car receipts to the amount given.

Employers and labor representatives say that more important than the raise itself is the establishment by the award of the principle of arbitration and the setting of a precedent for future differences between labor and capital.

when the steerage passengers came on deck, was praiseworthy.

The court also found that the ship was unarmed and carried a cargo of general ammunition consisting only of 5,000 cases of cartridges, from which there was no explosion.

A small gathering composed almost entirely of survivors of the Lusitania and their relatives listened to the reading of the findings by Baron Mersey of Toxteth.

Distinct Disappointment.

The report was a distinct disappointment to the American survivors, who expressed indignant surprise at the portion which exonerated Capt. Turner and the Cunard line from all blame and commended the discipline of the crew.

Several attorneys representing American clients listened closely to the reading of the judgment which may have a great effect on actions brought against the steamship company.

Among the spectators were Walter Webb-Ware, representing the Vanderbilt family; Maj. F. Warren Pearl and Mrs. Pearl of New York, and F. B. Jenkins of Chicago, survivors; and William Crichton of New York, whose wife was lost.

Before the reading began Maj. Pearl, who has followed the whole case closely, expressed the opinion that the decision would sharply condemn the officers of the ship and of the Cunard line for negligence.

Mishaps But No Neglect.

"No doubt there were mishaps in handling the ropes of the boats," Lord Mersey said, "but in my opinion there was no incompetence or neglect."

Baron Mersey found that Capt. Turner was fully advised by the British admiralty as to the best course to follow and added that in some respects he did not follow these out. The court points out, however, that the admiralty instructions were not intended to prevent Capt. Turner from exercising his individual judgment and that his failure to follow the admiralty's advice to the letter was no reason for blame.

The reduction of the Lusitania's speed from 24½ to 21 knots still left the vessel faster than any other boat on the Atlantic, said Baron Mersey, and he found there was no reason to blame the Cunard people for this economy during war time.

Relative to the admiralty instructions the court said this phase of the inquiry was in camera and that it would be contrary to public interest to discuss it.

HOUSE AT 28 WEST SECOND STREET WHERE COUNTERFEITER WORKED ALL LAST WINTER

TWO ASSISTANTS OF SAMUEL ROBBINS

fives, twos and ones. Included with the spurious money were 2,000 genuine $1 bills, which had been raised to fives.

Lacked One Good Bill.

It developed late yesterday that the gang was captured because they lacked a single genuine $10 bill with which to pay the rent for a room in a boarding house at 1502 West Thirteenth street, Chicago. They tried to move in the night, taking the trunk with them, but the landlady was so vigorous in her opposition that they left without it.

In the meantime neighbors, alarmed by the struggle, called police. When they arrived the pried open the trunk and found the fortune in counterfeit currency. With it was one of the most complete counterfeiting plants police have found in years. There were three plates for making $5 bills, one for making $2 bills and one for making fictitious bonds, as well as many photographic plates and engravings of $2, $5 and $10 bills.

Mrs. Katherine O'Leary, proprietress of the rooming house on West Second street where Robbins and his two assistants worked all winter, told incidents today which removed all doubt as to the man's identity.

Among the personal effects and odds and ends left by Robbins when he went to Chicago was a box containing several photographic plates. Two were pictures of himself, one of them being reproduced herewith. Two others were snapshots of Harry Webster, Duluth birdman, in his aeroplane, while others were of the Duluth harbor and of a group of women, one of them holding up a Chicago pennant.

Identifies Prints.

Mrs. O'Leary identified the prints as being of Robbins. He had practiced etching on the photographic plate, and after outlining the body rather crudely, he sketched his nickname, "Sol," across the plate.

Robbins visited The Herald engraving department almost daily during the winter, seeking information and pointers about etching and engraving work, according to Frank Hamm, engraver.

"I don't believe he missed a working day all winter," Mr. Hamm said this morning. "He said he was studying to be an engraver and was so interested in everything I showed him that I let him keep on coming.

Wanted "Finer Line."

"He kept trying to get a finer line, and one day I said: 'Why, man, you want an awful line. That's steel engraving work, not zinc etching.'

"He even brought me samples of his work, and I pointed out defects, to help him along. I also, at his request, gave him the names of various engraving firms to whom he could write for booklets and information."

Mrs. O'Leary's story may give the police further clews as to the identity of Robbins' visitors, who are believed to have been his assistants and who may be Duluth men.

"When he took the room he told me he was interested in art and photographic work," said Mrs. O'Leary, "but he was terribly secretive about everything.

Concealed Plate.

"One day I met him in the hall, and he was carrying a plate of some kind in his hand.

"I said: 'Won't you let me see your picture, Mr. Robbins? I am sure you will be a great artist some day, because you work so hard.' He turned his hand over quickly, when I said that, covering the plate so that I couldn't tell what it was and went on into his room.

"The door was locked whenever he was at home, which was most of the time, and I often remarked to other people in the house that I couldn't imagine what he was doing in his room so much of the time.

Had No Bad Habits.

"He was gentlemanly and apparently had no bad habits. I never saw him with anyone but the two or three men who used to come and see him. There was quite a lot of mail for him from Chicago, and occasionally a package."

Duluth police do not believe that Robbins passed any "queer" money in this city.

"The expert counterfeiter," said Capt. A. G. Fiskett, "has his 'plant' as far from the place where he intends to 'shove the queer' as possible. He never tries to pass any bad money in the town where he makes it, for fear of being discovered."

Chicago reports state that police captured four members of the gang in a Turkish bath near the rooming house, identifying them by means of a group picture found in the room. The fifth was picked up later by police. The names of Robbins' two assistants are being withheld, probably in the hope of finding other workmen.

Walter J. Smith, state treasurer of Minnesota, in a Minneapolis interview yesterday, said that the men had wasted their efforts counterfeiting Minnesota notes, as no bonds had been issued during the last fifty years. He was quoted as saying that none of the certificates of indebtedness had been out of the state and that the last one was retired years ago.

night and this morning were reported to be holding fast against the strain put upon them.

Factories Remain Closed.

Several large factories in this city remained closed today on account of the flood. It was estimated that more than 1,000 men were temporarily thrown out of employment.

The damage throughout Central Ohio will mount into the millions as thousands of acres of wheat and oats have been ruined and corn and other crops washed away.

At Delaware the Olentangy river and Alum creek were receding today and normal conditions were in prospect.

The Muskingum and Licking rivers, which went on the rampage were reported falling today.

At Kenton, where a large part of the town was under water yesterday, improved conditions prevailed today. The damage there will aggregate $300,000.

River Drops Rapidly.

Lima, Ohio, July 17.—The Ottawa river at Lima has dropped as rapidly as it rose and by tomorrow should be at its normal level.

Families are coming down from higher land and moving back into their houses in the lowlands.

Late last night the police were called to rescue a half dozen families marooned on a small island. The force of the water was weakening the houses, and the inhabitants feared they would be swept down stream.

Damage at Harrod, eight miles east of Lima, was severe. Fifteen houses were damaged or demolished. The Methodist Episcopal church was damaged. Damage to crops there will amount to thousands of dollars.

Kansas River Rising.

Kansas City, Mo., July 17.—While several tributaries of the Kansas river were falling today, the stream itself had mounted to 21.6 feet at Topeka, a rise of 5 feet 8 inches since yesterday morning, and the local weather bureau warned the big packing concerns and other business interests in the west bottoms here to prepare for a 28-foot stage at Kansas City by Sunday night.

Residents of the lowlands east of Kansas City also were charged by the government officials to expect a 30-foot mark in the Missouri river. The Kansas river here this morning stood at 23.5 feet, a fall of two-tenths of a foot over night. The Missouri here was 27.5 feet, a rise of two-tenths of a foot since yesterday afternoon. If the rivers here go as high as the weather bureau predicts, serious damage is feared.

Infant Drowned.

The first death in the swollen waters occurred at Seneca, Kan., early today. An infant son of Benjamin Wichim was drowned when a buggy in which Wichim, his wife and the child were riding was overturned while fording a small stream.

Conditions in Northwest Missouri were improved today. No rain fell in the district during the previous twenty-four hours and all streams were receding gradually. There had been no trains north, east or south from St. Joseph for three days until last night, when service on the Chicago-Great Western line was resumed. Country roads near St. Joseph are impassable because many small bridges have been swept away. Not since pioneer days has travel across country been so difficult.

GERMAN SUBMARINE FIRES TORPEDO AT PASSENGER SHIP

enkrantz of Denmark, one of the passengers, reached the deck as the Orduna was fleeing from her assailant and witnessed the attack.

The submarine chased the steamer, it was said, for a considerable time, but finally abandoned pursuit.

The next day a meeting of the passengers was held in the saloon and the following resolution, adopted by twenty-three of them, was handed to Capt. Taylor:

Thank Captain.

"The first cabin passengers of the steamer Orduna desire to express their heartfelt appreciation and admiration of the masterly manner in which you maneuvered and handled your steamer during the sudden and deliberate attack made upon it on the morning of July 9 at 6 a. m. by a German submarine."

The Orduna's passengers included the Baron and Baroness Rosenkrantz, Lawrence Johnson, Jr., of Philadelphia, W. O. Smith of Chicago and F. M. Morz of Winnipeg.

Save for a single cryptic wireless message received yesterday the Cunard line had heard no word from the Orduna since she sailed from Liverpool. This message, which, because it was unexpected and unusual, somewhat puzzled Cunard line officials, gave no inkling, it was said, of the attack by a submarine. The message was sent by Capt. Taylor and contained the information that the Orduna would dock at 11 o'clock today.

In addition, Capt. Taylor said that the Tuscania was then 1,012 miles from shore.

Use Wireless But Little.

For a long time the vessels of the Cunard line have sailed the breadth of the Atlantic with their wireless apparatus little used. Importance, therefore, was attached to Capt. Taylor's wireless, although officials were at a loss to understand what the captain sought to convey to them, or to read between the lines.

The fact that the Tuscania was mentioned, it was said today, had aroused no suspicion, in the light of the Orduna's experience, that she, too, had been attacked.

When the Orduna left Liverpool July 8 she passed out of communication with all the rest of the world. It was doubtful, officials here said, whether the British admiralty had even been informed of the attempt to torpedo the vessel.

The Orduna had aboard 227 passengers, thirty of these were in the first cabin, 112 in the second and 85 in the steerage.

There were twenty-one Americans aboard the Orduna. Passengers say the submarine attack was made without previous warning.

PRESIDENT HEARS FROM SECRETARY

Cornish, N. H., July 17.—President Wilson was in communication today with Secretary Lansing regarding the German situation, including the conference held yesterday between the secretary and Count Bernstorff, the German ambassador. There will be no further developments in the situation, however, until the president returns to Washington early next week.

The president played today what was probably the last game of golf of his present visit. Members of his family will remain here after his departure for Washington.

The president will return later if possible.

STRIKE OF STREET CAR MEN SETTLED

Providence, R. I., July 17.—Normal service was restored today on the trolley lines of the Rhode Island company throughout the state upon which service has been almost entirely suspended for the past two days because of the strike of 2,400 union employes. Under the agreement reached early today, Mayor Joseph H. Gainor will act as chairman of a board of three arbitrators, to whom will be referred the wage and working conditions.

It was expected that the names of the other two arbitrators would be announced today. One was to be selected by the company and the other by the union.

BIG CORPORATION TO MAKE AMMUNITION

New York, July 17.—Most of the leading typewriter and adding machine companies in the East and Middle West, it was stated today, have formed a new corporation under the title of the American Ammunition company to take up contracts for the manufacture of fuses for high explosive and shrapnel shells for the English, French and Russian governments.

The shell commission of the militia department of the Canadian government, acting for the British war office, is said to have awarded to the American Ammunition company within a week a contract for the manufacture of fuses amounting to $10,000,000.

It is understood that the balance of the order is to be apportioned as soon as other companies can qualify for the business. An additional contract also amounting to $10,000,000, it is stated, has been given by the Canadian shell commission to the same group of manufacturing concerns.

The Canadian militia department is reported to have given in addition a $70,000,000 contract for shrapnel high explosive shells to a financial group which will undertake to sublet the business among a number of industrial concerns.

VERDICT IS AFFIRMED.

Royal League Must Pay $1,022 to Mrs. J. L. Anderson.

A decision of the Minnesota supreme court handed down yesterday affirms the $1,022.50 verdict awarded on March 15 last by a district court jury to Mrs. Jessie I. Anderson of this city against the Royal League, a fraternal and insurance order. The case was tried before District Judge Ensign and was appealed to the supreme court.

The suit was over a policy for $1,000 held by Robert Whidden at the time of his death Oct. 15, 1914. Mrs. Anderson was named as beneficiary, but when she sought to collect, she was refused payment on the ground that she was not a dependant of Whidden's as prescribed by the company's by-laws.

Mrs. Anderson proved to the satisfaction of the court and jury that although Whidden was her stepfather, she and her mother had lived with him since she was 6 years of age and up to the time of her own marriage. After her mother's death about seven years ago, Whidden came to live with his step-daughter.

The supreme court holds that Mrs. Anderson was a proper beneficiary as one of the family of the insured and within the class of permitted beneficiaries under the laws of Illinois. The League is an Illinois corporation and the laws of that state govern the rights of the parties.

The verdict returned by the jury includes the face value of the policy and interest.

FORD OWNERS TO GET REFUND OF $15,000,000

Detroit, Mich., July 17.—The Ford Automobile company late yesterday announced a refund of approximately $15,000,000 to owners of Ford automobiles, who have purchased their machines since Aug. 1, 1914. On Aug. 1, 1914, the company announced that if 300,000 machines were sold during the ensuing year, each purchaser would receive a refund of from $40 to $60. The 30,000-mark was reached this afternoon. The company says the refund is strictly in the nature of the profit distribution policy of the company.

For Rifling Mail Box.

Sheldon, N. D., July 17. — (Special to The Herald.)—Charged with stealing the contents of a rural mail box, Peter Solia escaped from the local jail here while being held for the arrival of the federal authorities. Solia was seen leaving the mail box and later it was discovered that a package containing four shirts was missing.

Small Chisholm Fire.

Chisholm, Minn., July 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire starting from unknown origin in the basement of the seven-room house of Elmer Swanson, did $400 damage Friday. The department had just returned from drill when the alarm was sounded. Owing to the house being empty, no insurance can be collected.

Joint Installation.

Chisholm, Minn., July 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Independent Order of Odd Fellows and the Rebekahs held a joint installation of officers at Karl hall Thursday evening. Isaac Van Domlin of Virginia, deputy grand master of the grand lodge was the installing officer.

Woman Seeks Divorce.

Virginia, Minn., July 17.—Alleging that Trezvant G. Feaster, to whom she was married Sept. 20, 1913, deserted her in Feb. 22, 1914, before their daughter was born, Harriet D. Feaster has filed suit in district court against her husband for a divorce.

U. S. SUBMARINE HAS RADIUS OF 5,500 MILES

Bridgeport, Conn., July 17.—In a successful test of a new submarine of the G type, held yesterday, it was practically demonstrated, according to Simon Lake, the submarine inventor, that the vessels of this class have the ability to cross the ocean and return without stopping for fuel. The new craft, the G-3, has proved a cruising radius of 5,500 miles at the rate of 11 knots, Mr. Lake said.

Most of the submarines in the United States navy are now propelled by gasoline on the surface and electricity under the water. The new type, such as was tested, uses oil for fuel. A foreign engine is used.

Mr. Lake said the government is keeping secret most of the specifications of the new craft.

Oshkosh Strike Off.

Oshkosh, Wis., July 17.—Strikers at the Paine Lumber company's works agreed to return to work, when receivers for the company agreed to discharge the efficiency man. The plans were made at a meeting at which all labor leaders were barred. The men completed an organization, but did not affiliate with any body, and the remainder of the grievances will be taken up by the receivers and a committee of the workmen on Monday.

PROPHET OF GOOD TIMES

W. A. McGonagle Sees Long Era of Real Prosperity Ahead.

Time to Lay Aside Selfish Ambitions and Political Prejudice.

W. A. McGonagle, president of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railroad, is well known as an optimist and in his recent optimistic utterances on the signs of the times, even as far back as the first of the year, he "called the turn."

At the last meeting of the public affairs committee of the Commercial club, Mr. McGonagle made a brief speech which set business men tingling with better feeling and healthier anticipation. He declared that this year bids fair to surpass the record of 1910, the banner year in steel business, and declared that everything points to a resumption of active and prosperous business, for steel is always the forerunner of the times.

Charles D. Skillings, in his mining and market letter of current issue, pays tribute to Mr. McGonagle as a prophet of the times and prints a further optimistic forecast by the Missabe road's president. The article follows:

Accurate Forecast.

"W. A. McGonagle, president of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railroad of Duluth, certainly made an early and very accurate forecast of the times, when, in an interview for the Mining Letter of Jan. 30, last, he said, in part:

"'Business and industrial conditions in the United States are undergoing a steady and sure upturn. By the time spring arrives we shall have experienced marked improvement, which will continue to develop during the year. We are on the eve, not only of better times, but of good times,' etc.

"Mr. McGonagle now feels even more optimistic than ever regarding the future, and declares that we are entering upon a 'long period of general prosperity.' In response to a request for a further expression of his views on the business outlook, he has made the following interesting and instructive statement:

"'The iron ore season of 1915 bids fair to equal, if not to exceed, the extremely prosperous years of 1907 and 1910, and there is the usual hustle that always precedes a general wave of prosperity. The steel plants of the United States Steel corporation and of many of the independent companies are now running at practically full capacity, and there are orders ahead for many months to warrant the continuous operation of all the plants.

Local Conditions.

"'The plant of the Minnesota Steel company, in the city of Duluth, will be in operation on or before Nov. 1, 1915, and there are abundant orders to keep it busily employed, and to furnish employment to a large number of wage earners who will start the wave of prosperity that is surely at hand for our city, and for Northern Minnesota.

"'I was in Gary, Ind., a few days ago and witnessed the change of shifts in the great steel plant of that place. About 5 p. m. the stream of workmen began to leave the gates of the plant and start for their homes. Many thousands of men either walked or rode in electric cars, jitneys, carryalls or other forms of conveyance, and an equal number of men moved toward the plant to begin their labors on the night shift. It was an inspiring sight, and was in such sharp contrast to the conditions in December last when I visited the plant, as to be almost startling.

Coast Men Expectant.

"'In talking with business men a few months ago on the Pacific coast they told me that business was materially better than the corresponding period of last year, and that it was growing better day by day, and that they looked for lively times before the close of the present year. The same ideas were expressed to me a few days ago by conservative business men of Chicago, and as these ideas correspond with the signs of the times there can be no doubt that we are entering upon a long period of general business prosperity, which, to an extent, we can make doubly sure by relegating the pessimists, croakers and knockers to the discard and replacing them by men with public spirit, enterprise and faith.

"'This is a time when all classes should co-operate for the general good; when we should lay aside selfish ambition, political prejudice and all the other barriers to progress, and with full faith in the future do our part to bring about the conditions that we all desire. It is a time to forget Mr. Wilson, the schoolmaster, and Mr. Wilson, the politician, and to remember in our thoughts, our actions and our prayers, our President Wilson, who is carrying our burden and who needs our help to solve the serious problems now confronting our country. May our work, in so doing, unify us in all things for the betterment of mankind, and may this spirit leaven our business lives so that in full and loyal co-operation we may bring about a return of prosperous times that we can have if we will.'"

DECLARES DULUTH WILL HAVE BOOM

Baseball and Ore Magnate Optimistic in Interview.

W. H. Yawkey, owner of the principal stock of the Detroit American league baseball team, and also interested in mineral holdings at Virginia and in Cook county, is registered at the Spalding today.

Mr. Yawkey is going to the iron range today for an inspection of his property. He declared that while he had had little opportunity of getting in close touch with the iron business, he believed there was an upturn and that his trip to the iron range was for the purpose of gaining some first hand information.

Professing much interest in the opening of the Duluth steel plant, the Eastern baseball magnate and mine owner declared that Duluth should experience a decided boom from the day the first steel billet was manufactured.

IS FATHER OF TWINS ON HIS BIRTHDAY.

Thief River Falls, Minn., July 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. F. Brown of Grygla, a former resident of this city, was 47 years of age last Sunday and the pleasures of the anniversary were augmented when Mrs. Brown presented him on the same day with twin girls.

How, and Why,—

—the GOODRICH "Fair-List" Propaganda now saves Car-Owners, yearly, over $25,000,000 on Tires

THERE are 1,923,951 Automobiles now State-licensed, and running, in the United States.

Of these, 1,803,951 are Pleasure Cars—i.e., exclusive of Trucks, etc.

More than 90% of them, or about 1,623,555, use Pneumatic Tires.

Each car will wear out and replace, on average, about one Set of Four Tires per year.

Therefore, the interests of each Car-Owner as well as each Car-Manufacturer, each Car-Dealer, and Salesman, is vitally and personally affected by the price of Tires to Consumers.

Because,—Tires and Gasoline are the two big items of consumption in the operation of Motor Cars.

The Owner who used his Car 1,000 Miles less per year, than he would have done, because of "the high-price of Tires and Gasoline," received that much less return from his entire investment in the Car proper.

The potential, or prospective, Car-Owner who fails to buy a Car because of "the high cost of Tires and Gasoline,"—he who sells his Car and does not buy again because of "the high cost of Tires and Gasoline"—or he who, for the same reason, stores his Car and does not run it during a considerable part of the year, is a direct loss to —1st—Automobile Manufacturers, as a class.

—2d —Automobile Dealers, as a class.
—3d —Garage Owners, as a class.
—4th—Lubrication & Gasoline Manufacturers, as a class.

But,—he is a greater loss to TIRE Manufacturers, and Dealers, as a class, than to any others.

Because,—

—Gasoline and Lubricants, for instance, can be sold to the Owners of Motor Boats, Stationary, and other Motors.

But,—Automobile Tires can only be sold, in the ultimate, to the man who OWNS a Car, and who wears out Tires through using it.

o o o

EVERY mile that each Automobile runs, means an automatic Sale of Tires to replace that mileage with new Tires.

But, all the Salesmanship, and all the Advertising, under the Sun, could not increase, by a single Tire, the total sales of Tires beyond the number of Cars owned by Consumers, and the number of Miles each Consumer runs his Car yearly.

The Market for Tires is therefore limited inflexibly, to the number of Cars running, and the Mileage which each Owner is induced to run yearly.

Therefore, we opine that to promote greater Sales, and greater use, of Automobiles, few better incentives can be offered than markedly-lowered cost, TO CONSUMERS, for Tires and Gasoline.

Just as we recognize that the only legitimate expansion open to the Tire Industry, as a whole, would be due to the Sale of more Automobiles each year to Consumers, with a greater average Mileage USE, per year, of each Car by each Owner.

That is why we favor the lowest possible price for Tires,—to Consumers, consistent with maintenance of high quality and a fair profit to Dealer and Mfr.

So this, then, is a leading reason why WE initiated, and propagated, that Goodrich "Fair-List" Movement which we publicly announced in the press on Jan. 31, 1915, and which caused practically every Pneumatic Tire Manufacturer in this Country to follow our lead and bring his prices down to a fairer level.

o o o

THIS is also the reason why some Tire Manufacturers, who could not, or would not, "meet" our BASIC prices for Pneumatic Tires (even though our "Fair-List" Propaganda obliged them to make heavy reductions off their former Lists) might erroneously suppose that "Goodrich" Tires have been cheapened in Quality, as well as in price.

Hence this explanation (to the Public, to Car-Manufacturers, Dealers, Car-Salesmen, Garages, and Tire Dealers generally) that we deem it "good business" to sell the best Goodrich Tires (of fabric construction) we have ever made, at the fairest price possible for such quality.

Hence, too, the following TEST offer to Consumers.

—We will cheerfully pay for any Goodrich Safety "Non-Skid" Tire, sold since our "Fair-List" price-reduction (announced on January 31, 1915), which when cut open shows any reduction in quality, in number of layers of Canvas, in thickness, or quality of Rubber, when compared with any other Goodrich Safety "Non-Skid" made by us, and sold at our higher prices current before the Goodrich "Fair-List" Movement.

And,—this is further to authorize any Tire-User to extend this Offer (at our expense) to any Tire Dealer, or Manufacturer.

We ask Car-Owners, and Tire Consumers, in their own interest, to see that no "implication" of lowered quality in Goodrich Tires goes unchallenged—just as we have protected their interests, for our own sake, through our "Fair-List" Propaganda.

o o o

BECAUSE of that GOODRICH "Fair-List" Propaganda, every Car-Owner who now buys any make of Tire sized 37 x 5, now saves on each set of 4 Tires, an average of about $46.27.

—Every Car-Owner who uses 34 x 4 Tires, of any make, now saves, through the Goodrich "Fair-List" Propaganda an average of about $26.15 per Set of 4 Tires.

—Every Car-Owner who uses 30 x 3½ Tires, now saves, through the Goodrich "Fair-List" Propaganda, an average of about $14.70 per Set of 4 Tires.

Other sizes in proportion.

The 1,623,555 State-licensed Car-Owners who use Pneumatic Tires now save about 20% of what they last year paid for ANY make and size, whether they be Goodrich or competing brands,—equal to more than $25,000,000 per year.

And, don't forget that this giant saving to Car-Owners was never mentioned to the Public by other Tire Manufacturing Concerns until the Goodrich "Fair-List" Propaganda made it imperative that they extend the Saving to Consumers on their Tires, or lose business to the Goodrich Co.

But, notwithstanding all this,—the fact which should loom largest to TIRE-USERS is the contrast of 10% to 40%, in prices, that still exists between the low price of the best Non-Skid Tires (of fabric construction) that money can buy, or the largest Rubber Factory in the World produce,—(to wit, GOODRICH Non-Skid Tires) and all other "responsible" Tires in the field.

Compare prices and see!

Then, if you are not already a Goodrich User, do yourself (and us), the justice to buy at least one GOODRICH "Non-Skid" Tire.

Test that out for Quality, Mileage and Resilience against any other Tire, at any price, which you are now using.

The result of such Test will cause you to wonder why you ever paid more for Maximum Quality, Mileage, and Resilience than the Basic price of Goodrich Non-Skid Tires?

PROPHETESS PASSES AWAY

Mrs. Ellen C. White, Leader of Seventh Day Adventists, Is Dead.

Claimed to Have Had Many Remarkable Visions During Her Life.

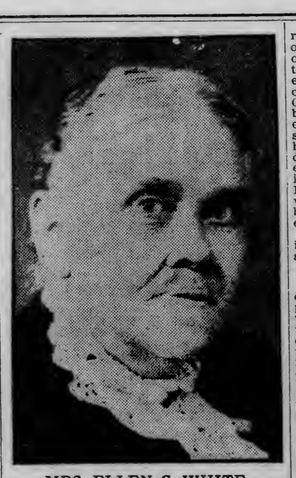

St. Helena, Cal., July 17.—Mrs. Ellen C. White, one of the founders of the Seventh Day Adventists, died here yesterday, aged 88. She was widely known among the members of that denomination throughout the United States, and by many she was regarded as their prophetess.

On Feb. 13, this year, Mrs. White met with a serious accident near her home here, due to a fall which broke the bone in her left thigh. She is survived by two sons, James Edson White of Marshall, Mich., and William C. White.

Considered Prophetess.

Mrs. Ellen G. White was one of the founders of the denomination known as Seventh Day Adventists. She was one of the converts of William Miller, who in the early '40s aroused thousands to a belief in the speedy advent or second coming of Christ. According to information given out by the North American division conference of the Seventh-Day Adventists, Mrs. White was considered by practically all Seventh-Day Adventists as their prophetess.

Born in Gorham, Cumberland county, Maine, Nov. 26, 1827, she had lived to the advanced age of 88 years. Her name was Ellen Gould Harmon, and she was one of eight children, who, like the parents became staunch Methodists in New England. At the age of 9 years the girl, who had shown remarkable mental powers, was struck in the face by a stone which a schoolmate, in sheer wantoness, had thrown at her, fracturing the nasal bone and resulting in an almost fatal illness and permanent disfigurement. The calamity, which made her almost unrecognizable among her friends, wore upon her heart, and she turned with great yearning to the worship of Christ.

MRS. ELLEN C. WHITE.

Heard Miller.

In March, 1840, she first heard William Miller, a Baptist evangelist, tell of the second coming of Christ, which he was then predicting for 1843. She was greatly stirred by the evangelist's message and consecrated her life towards spreading it, and, as she claimed in December, 1844, God gave her a vision of the second coming of Christ, and added as her interpretation of the Bible that it was her duty to observe the seventh-day Sabbath, as she believed it was so observed by Christ. She and her husband, whom she married about this time and who was one of the believers, therefore began the observance of the seventh day and taught this in their meetings, which eventually were held all over the country. While they believed that Christ's coming was near, they did not believe that men knew the date of the event and so never taught or had any sympathy with "time setting." Her husband was James White, a lineal descendant on his father's side of Peregrine White, born on the Mayflower in the harbor of Cape Cod before the Pilgrims had made their homes in the wilderness. Mr. White died in 1881, but Mrs. White kept on with her revelations.

Remarkable Visions.

"While in vision she was repeatedly examined by skeptics, unsympathetic physicians and by one physician conversant with spiritistic manifestations, who had boasted that he could immediately bring her out of vision, but who was compelled to leave the house in alarm. Other men had the same experience. Mirrors and candles have been held before her mouth while talking, showing no indication of breathing. One skeptical man held her nostrils tightly closed with hand over her mouth for ten minutes without in any way affecting Mrs. White. At times she arose and walked the floor, talking of what she was there beholding.

She believed in the ultimate annihilation of the wicked and in the sleep of the dead until the final judgment. She traveled extensively. Besides covering all of the United States, she spent two years in Europe and nine years in Australia, seeking converts to her faith. She wrote some forty books, whose aggregate circulation is said to have been upwards of 1,500,000 copies, and her writings were translated in forty different languages. Her income, which would have been sufficient to have kept her in case, she used freely in the support of needy enterprises and needy people and sacrificed ordinary pleasures so far as she herself was concerned.

She leaves two sons, James Edson White of Marshall, Mich., and William C. White, who was the companion and helper of his mother since the father's death.

Aged Couple Married.

Lisbon, N. D., July 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—"A man never gets too old to fall in love," is the statement made by Nelson C. Kneeland, aged 76, who applied for a marriage license to wed Mrs. Bertha A. Langworthy, aged 72. Both have been residents of this city for many years and their marriage was a great surprise to their friends. They are temporarily absent on their honeymoon.

ARE CHOOSING SCHOOL HEADS

Three New Directors Will Be Chosen for Duluth Board.

Special independent and common school districts of the county and state are today holding their annual elections and meetings in accordance with law.

In the city, which is constituted as a special district, the annual school meeting takes on the form of an election. The polls opened at 6 o'clock this morning and will close at 7 o'clock this evening.

Three members are to be elected to the Duluth board of education to fill three terms which have expired. There are four candidates to select from. They are F. A. Brewer, C. Francis Colman and D. E. Seashore, present directors seeking reelection and C. G. Firoved.

Although the names of four candidates are on the ballot, the names of other candidates may be inserted in blank spaces. Women judges will help handle the details of the election and women will also exercise their right of franchise.

In the independent districts, directors will also be elected by ballot. In those districts where special business is to be transacted, the voters will meet and take action on the matter to be disposed of. Such matters as fixing the school levy for the coming year are left to the school board and are not passed upon by the voters in the independent districts.

In the common school districts, the voters meet, nominate and elect one school board member each year. The school levy for the ensuing year is also fixed by the voters at the annual school meeting. In the rural districts a free discussion of all school matters is usually engaged in at the annual meetings.

DRINK SENDS MAN TO PRISON

B. C. Newman Says John Barleycorn Made Him a Burglar.

Drink caused the downfall of Bert Carl Newman, who was sentenced to serve a term of not more than five years in the state penitentiary yesterday afternoon by District Judge Dancer. Newman pleaded guilty to an information prepared by Mason M. Forbes, first assistant county attorney, charging him with burglary in the third degree.

Newman told the court that every time he got drunk he was possessed of an inclination to commit a burglary. The court thought it best that he be placed in Stillwater prison where this temptation would be removed.

The prisoner admitted that on the evening of July 10 last he broke into the residence of O. A. Peterson, 3208 West Third street, and helped himself to silverware worth $27 and a safety razor set worth $5.

When Newman was arrested considerable stolen property was found on his possession. He admitted to the court that he was responsible for four other burglaries. Among the thefts were a suit of clothes from John Wabler at the Chollette hotel, a pair of shoes from Edward Wentz and a shaving outfit from a room in the Y. M. C. A. building.

K. C. LODGES WILL UNITE FOR PICNIC

The annual joint picnic of Superior council No. 499 and Duluth council No. 447, Knights of Columbus, will be held Thursday, July 22, at Fond du Lac. The trip will be made on the steamer Columbia, leaving the Lake avenue dock at 9:15 a. m. and the Tower Bay slip at Superior at 9:45 a. m.

The steamer Columbia has a carrying capacity of 1,200 people, and has been chartered this day for the exclusive use of the Knights of Columbus, their families and friends. A program of excellent water sports has been arranged. There will be baseball and tug of war contests, and various foot races and other sports.

If the weather is unfavorable the picnic will be held on July 28.

WOMEN EMPLOYES PLAYING VOLLEY BALL.

SPIRITED VOLLEY BALL GAME BETWEEN MEN.

The noon hour is the shortest hour of the day at the F. A. Patrick & Co. garment and knitting factory at Twenty-ninth avenue west and Third street. At least so the employes think who spend the time in recreation, playing volley ball, croquet, tennis and other outdoor sports on the playgrounds recently placed in shape for them by the company.

No sooner has the noon whistle blown and the machinery stopped than the employes are lined up to play ball. For forty-five minutes the ground is crowded.

The ground is divided into two sections so that men and women employes are enabled to play at the same time. Instructors from the Young Women's Christian association have been in charge of the young women, and instructors from the Y. M. C. A., for a time gave instructions to the men. The field inclosed for the playground occupies almost half of the block owned by the company on the west side of its plant.

Today the employes of the Patrick factory are enjoying an outing at Fond du Lac. They left on the steamer Columbia at 9 o'clock from the Twenty-first avenue west dock. Picnic lunches are carried. Those in charge of the outing are: Mitchell F. Jamar, William MacMullen, J. L. Berini, O. Johnson, W. P. Boobar, F. Rilings, G. E. Witherall and Frank Russell.

The program at Fond du Lac includes games and sports of various kinds. Baseball between the married and single men and volley ball by the women will feature the outing.

ANNUAL PICNIC OF YOUNG OLD TIMERS

Members Will Gather on Lester River; Kangaroo Court Planned.

The annual picnic of the Young Old Timers' association will be held tomorrow at L. R. Birch's grove on Lester river. Fully 250 members of the organization and their friends will attend.

Those intending to go will meet at Twenty-first avenue west and Superior street at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning, from where automobiles will be taken to the picnic grounds.

A sports program of several numbers has been planned. One of the features at the picnic, say committee members, will be a "kangaroo court." The judge of this court has not been decided on, they say, but it is intimated that there will be a sufficiency of officials who will be on hand to "pinch" the offenders.

The following are the various committees in charge:

SINGING EVANGELIST HERE.

Rev. J. A. Hultman Will Be Heard at Swedish Mission Church.

Rev. J. A. Hultman of Worcester, Mass., one of the best-known singers connected with the Swedish Mission covenant, is spending a week at the Head of the Lakes. He will sing tomorrow evening at the Swedish Mission church, Twenty-first avenue west and Second street.

Last evening the visiting singer rendered several numbers at the West Duluth Swedish Mission church, Fifty-ninth avenue west and Green street. A request from the audience there resulted in a promise of his reappearance at the same church this evening.

Tomorrow he will sing at the Superior Mission church. Rev. Mr. Hultman is spending three months visiting various places in the West and Northwest. He recently returned from a four years' tour of Europe, where he conducted special singing services in Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Germany, Russia and Finland.

ENTERTAINS FOR DAUGHTER.

Miss Myrtle Hager, About to Leave for St. Peter, Is Guest of Honor.

Mrs. John Hager of 2613 West Fourth street entertained last evening in honor of her daughter, Miss Myrtle, who will leave this evening for St. Peter, Minn., to begin taking the instruction and training for nurses. The following guests were present:

POLICE NOT NEEDED.

Ole Wicker Misses "Roll" in Wall Bank; Safe in Purse.

Visions of burglars having ransacked the house passed through the mind of Ole Wicker, 519 North Twenty-second avenue west, last night. When he arrived home late in the evening he went to his secret "bank," situated in a crevice in the wall, to count his money. Instead of finding a bank "roll" of $90 he found nothing.

Lieut. C. A. Holmstrom of the West end police station was called. When the officer arrived and members of the family were informed what the police was there for, Wicker was informed that a member of the family had found the bank "roll" and placed the money for safe keeping in a pocketbook.

PLAN LAWN SOCIAL.

Young Folk of Swedish Baptist Church Will Entertain Tuesday.

The Young People's Society of the First Swedish Baptist church, Twenty-second avenue west and Third street, will entertain Tuesday evening at a lawn social on the church grounds. It is planned to serve refreshments between 6 and 8 o'clock on the lawn in the rear of the church, following which a program will be given in the church parlors.

It is planned to make the gathering the largest midsummer young people's meeting that has ever been held at the church. Invitations have been extended to young people's societies of other churches to attend. In case of rain during the day, the affair will be held in the church basement.

Pentecostal Assembly.

The Duluth Pentecostal assembly will hold services tomorrow at 3 o'clock and also at 7:30 o'clock at the Merritt Memorial M. E. church, Forty-sixth avenue west and Halifax street. J. E. Chandler of Two Harbors will have charge of the music. Rev. C. M. Neve will speak.

Improving Street.

Sidewalks are being laid this week on Twentieth avenue west between First and Third streets, on both sides of the street. Property owners on this thoroughfare are looking forward to the paving of the street from Railroad street to Piedmont avenue. A petition asking for this improvement was filed with the council last year.

Summer School.

Rev. J. J. Daniels, pastor of the Swedish Mission church, has planned to open a summer school at which Swedish will be taught. The school will be in session for four weeks. It will be conducted in the church. Last year the pastor had an average attendance of fifty pupils each day and it is expected that the attendance will be greater this year.

West End Briefs.

Mrs. Arthur Hudson, 1524 West Superior street, will leave tomorrow for a visit with relatives and friends at Seattle and Portland. She will be gone about a month or six weeks.

Mrs. H. Smith of Minneapolis is a guest at the home of her daughter, Mrs. F. D. Davis, 1808 Piedmont avenue.

Rev. Milton Fish, pastor of the Central Baptist church, and Mrs. Fish are spending a month camping at Fond du Lac. The pulpit of the church is being supplied, and services will be held regularly during the pastor's absence.

DULUTH GOLFERS WIN FIRST GAME FOR T. F. COLE CUP

Portage Lake Golf Team Is Beaten By Score of 6 to 3, But Two of the Visitors Succeeding in Scoring—Final Game On.

Northland Country club yesterday defeated the Portage Lake golf players in the first game for possession of the T. F. Cole cup, which is being defended in this series by the Duluth players. Northland won by the score of 6 to 3, the Nassau system of scoring being used, the winner of the first nine holes getting a point, the winner of the last nine also getting a point, and if one got two halves another point was given.

F. W. Nichols and D. L. Robinson of the visitors won their games, defeating F. E. House and C. R. Rust. Elmer Whyte played a fine game for Northland, rolling up three points, while Dr. M. B. Cullum defeated that other golfing veteran, J. C. Pryor, 1 to 0.

Weather was perfect for the annual competition for the Cole cup, and a large gallery watched the two teams in action. It is expected that the visitors will make a great stand in the match that is being played off this afternoon.

EXCURSION ON MONDAY

Second of Herald Popular Priced Boat Trips Will Be Given.

Lake Trip and South Shore Excursions Tuesday and Wednesday.

The second set of three Herald popular-priced excursions will be held next week, to Fond du Lac on Monday, down the lake to Two Harbors, Tuesday, and along the south shore to Port Wing on Wednesday.

Year after year these excursions have never failed to please thousands of Duluthians, not alone because of the wonderful scenery and conveniences offered, but because of the popular prices as well. Each week for years they have delighted old and young, and have proved about the best and cheapest outing available.

Next Monday, July 19, there will be two boats leaving for Fond du Lac. The steamer Chicora will leave the dock at the foot of Fifth avenue west at 9 a. m., and at the same time the steamer Columbia will leave Twenty-first avenue west, both returning at 6 p. m. The fare for this round trip is 25 cents.

On Tuesday, July 20, the steamer Columbia will leave the dock at the foot of Fifth avenue west at 9:30 a. m. for an all-day trip to Two Harbors, returning to Duluth at 6 p. m. The fare for this round trip is 50 cents.

Wednesday, July 21, the steamer Columbia will leave Fifth avenue west at 8:30 a. m. for an all-day trip along the south shore to Port Wing, the fare being $1. This trip is a great favorite with Duluthians. Tickets may be secured at The Herald office, and the trips will be made only in case of favorable weather.

CLAN STEWART ROUNDS HORN.

Duluth Scots Turn Out in Large Numbers for Outing.

Duluth Scots and their friends enjoyed a trip around the horn last evening on steamer Columbia, the occasion being the annual moonlight excursion of Clan Stewart, No. 50, Order of Scottish Clans. About 500 persons took the trip. The steamer left the dock at the foot of Lake avenue south at 8:30 o'clock and returned two hours later. A Scatch bagpipe and fife band paraded through the streets to the dock and furnished music for dancing on board. Dr. A. Cameron was chairman of the excursion committee.

An idea of the terrible destructiveness of the war in Europe may be gleaned from an account that appeared in a paper printed in Germany, a copy of which was received by John Gonska of this city recently. The story appearing in the paper relates some of the work of the Russians during the past winter when the Russian army occupied a part of Eastern Prussia.

The account states that about 190,000 inhabitants near Konigsberg and about 360,000 people from the territory surrounding Allenstein left their homes during the invasion, but that now most of these have returned to their homes.

The account says:

"Through hostile fire 7 cities, 75 villages and 56 estates around Konigsberg, 10 cities, 292 villages and 97 estates around Allenstein, 7 cities, 205 villages and 83 estates around Gumoinnen were either entirely or for the most part destroyed. The number of buildings destroyed is estimated at 53,-553, a third of which were dwellings. It is estimated that the furniture from 100,000 homes and in the same number of other dwellings was either stolen or destroyed. Scarcely one head of cattle was on hand when the enemy was driven away after occupying one-fifth of the best part of the province all winter.

"Almost all of the farm implements and machines were stolen or destroyed throughout the district. Most of the mills, distilleries and dairies were systematically destroyed. In spite of all this 800,000 acres of land was planted with spring corn and only 160 acres remained untilled on June 1."

AAD WOULD SCORE AGAINST MEDINAH

Duluth Shriners at Seattle After Chicago Temple's Cannon.

The Post-Intelligencer of Seattle, Wash., where the imperial council of the Mystic Shrine is holding its annual session, tells of Aad temple of Duluth recovering its stolen cannon from Medinah temple of Atlanta and the efforts the Duluth Shriners are making to steal Medinah's own cannon. The following from Tuesday's P.-I. tells the story:

"War has broken out in Shrinedom. The conflict is between the delegations from Medinah temple of Atlanta and Aad temple of Duluth and the fight at present is centering about two cannon. Late bulletins declare that the Aad temple is carrying on a successful offensive with stiff resistance being offered by the Medinah delegation.

"For seven or eight years Aad temple has centered its interest in imperial council sessions about a historic war cannon. The cannon was taken to every council session until last year, when the members of Medinah temple stole it at Atlanta. Sunday, when the two delegations were in Spokane, four members of Aad temple, having heard that the Medinah nobles were going to bring the cannon to Seattle with them, formed a scouting party and started out in search of it. They found the cannon hidden in a Spokane baggage room and proceeded to haul it away to their own train. Two colored porters gave the alarm, but the Aad scouts had too much of a start.

"When the Duluth special reached Pasco, a member of the police force was at the station, ready to arrest the men responsible for the theft of the cannon. He could get no satisfaction from the nobles, however, and when the special reached the next station the cannon was expressed back to Duluth, to the headquarters camp of Aad temple. Medinah temple has a cannon of its own with them in Seattle and Aad's forces are concentrating their efforts on it. The Aad scouting party, which was successful in recovering the historic Duluth cannon, was made up of Capt. A. H. Paul, Hogan Lindahl, Harry Olafson and A. B. Kapplin.

"'We'll get the Medinah cannon before we leave Seattle,' was the way Noble Scout Kapplin put the plans of the Aad contingent last evening.

"The Aad and El Zagal temples, the latter of Fargo, N. D., constituted the official escort of Imperial Potentate Frederick R. Smith on his Western trip.

"John F. Treat of El Zagal temple, a past imperial potentate, accompanied the delegation from his temple."

EDITOR OF BROOKLYN EAGLE PASSES AWAY

New York, July 17.—St. Clair McKelway, editor of the Brooklyn Eagle, died at his home in Brooklyn at 3 p. m. yesterday. He had been ill for a long time. Mr. McKelway was 70 years old.

For several years, Dr. McKelway's health had been failing and about five weeks ago his illness, hardening of the arteries, took a more serious turn, and he was confined to his home until his death. Mrs. McKelway was with him at the end.

Journalist, lawyer, orator, educator, Dr. McKelway's activities extended over a wide field, the latter years of life being devoted to his duties as editor-in-chief of the Brooklyn Eagle, a position he assumed in 1885, after serving as editorial writer on the paper, as assistant editor, and Washington correspondent of the New York World, as chief editor of the Albany, N. Y., Argus.

In the campaigns in which Grover Cleveland was elected once governor of New York and twice president, Dr. McKelway's writings were accredited by Democratic leaders as influential in Mr. Cleveland's behalf.

WAR ANNIVERSARIES.

The end of the first year of war is at hand, and presently there will be a stream of anniversaries of startling significance.

Already, on June 28, we have had the anniversary of the killing of the Archduke Ferdinand, heir to the Austrian throne, and his morganatic wife, by a Serbian student—the match that touched off the mine of "preparedness" that underlay Europe. Soon the weeks will swarm with anniversaries.

The actual beginning of the war came quickly. July 23 Austria sent an impossible ultimatum to Serbia, and the next day refused to allow its little neighbor an extension of time. July 25 Serbia humbled herself, conceding all of Austria's demands except that Austria be permitted to participate in the investigation of the archduke's murder, and pleading for mediation. The Austrian minister promptly left Belgrade, on the same day, declaring Serbia's answer to be unsatisfactory. The impression then was, and still is, that if Serbia had granted everything, some other pretext for war would have been found.

Peace efforts were made by England, France and Russia, and when it appeared that Austria and Serbia were already fighting, Sir Edward Grey, on England's behalf, sought to induce the other powers to keep out. Austria's declaration of war against Serbia came on July 28, and on July 29 Austria attacked Belgrade.

On July 28 Germany refused to consider Sir Edward Grey's proposal for a peace and neutrality conference, and Russia began to mass troops on her western border. Mobilization in Russia, Germany and France, countries still nominally at peace, went rapidly forward. On the 30th Germany told Russia that unless it stopped its mobilization, German herself would mobilize.

August 1, after days of general and fevered preparation for conflict, Germany declared war upon Russia, and France ordered a general mobilization. On the 2nd German troops entered Luxemburg, and Germany demanded that Belgium give free passage to its troops. Belgium refused, and appealed to England for diplomatic aid. August 3 Germany declared war on France. England demanded that Germany observe the neutrality of Belgium, and Germany promptly rejected the ultimatum. On the 4th England declared war against Germany, the French war minister declared that a state of war existed with Germany, and German troops laid siege to Liege, in Belgium.

WAR WAS LOOSE, REDHANDED AND BLACKHEARTED, IN EUROPE.

The German advance in the west was swift and well-organized. Had it not been for the unexpected stubbornness of the Belgian defense, giving France its chance to prepare, it would have been swifter still.

Liege fell into German hands on the 7th, Brussels on the 21st. The German right wing circled through Belgium and swept irresistibly toward Paris, the British and French opposing at every foot of the way, but in vain. The Germans crossed the Marne, reaching the high tide of their success in the west, on the fourth of September, having suddenly swerved to the left almost at the gates of Paris. Joffre's reserves were promptly hurled at their right flank, and between the 7th and the 13th the Germans were forced steadily back from the Marne to the Aisne. The battle of the Aisne merged into the battle of the Yser, virtually still in progress.

Meanwhile Germany had laid siege to Antwerp, which fell October 9, and on the 10th began its drive toward Dunkirk and Calais through the hundred-mile unfortified gap between Arras and the sea. This movement was stopped at the Yser about the middle of October, and despite desperate fighting on both sides there has been little change in the situation in nine terrible months.

Russia has swept Galicia and threatened Hungary through the Carpathian passes, and has been swept out of both in its turn. Germany and Austria have rolled to the gates of Warsaw and have been rolled back again; and now they are threatening it once more.

A year of war, the most terrible in history, has brought about relatively slight results so far as progress toward any decisive outcome is concerned. Germany has gained most of Belgium, has lost many foreign colonies, has been driven from the Far East and has had some of her African possessions taken from her. The allied troops have gained a foot-hold in the Dardanelles, but that lock is yet unpicked. Germany has part of Russia and part of France—small parts in both cases. Italy has entered the war, and has a tiny strip of Austrian territory—less than Germany proposed that Austria concede her. France has a foothold in her lost provinces of Alsace-Lorraine.

Navies have played but a small part, though the allied navies have driven German and Austrian commercial shipping from the sea. The greater part of the fleets remains intact, but largely because they are bottled up safely in port. Despite the terrific submarine campaign which has sent many vessels, including the Lusitania, to the bottom, British commerce still is large.

The war today seems farther from an end than it did ten months ago.

Millions have died. Millions are incapacitated for life. Millions, doubtless, have yet to die. Millions of non-combatants have suffered the tortures of the damned. Soon the real anniversaries will be of the day a father, a husband, a son, a brother, a sweetheart or a friend died in battle—of the day a bereaved mother died of heartbreak.

To what end?

This is the day when the women have the opportunity to show how sincerely they want the ballot.

THE SPIRIT EVERY CITIZ EN SHOULD SHOW.

In an interview in Skillings' Mining and Market Letter W. A. McGonagle illustrates admirably the spirit every citizen should exhibit in these times—and in all times, for that matter.

For fine optimism well founded in fact, for breadth of patriotism and height of sound citizenship, what Mr. McGonagle has to say surpasses anything that has lately come to our notice, and every citizen in all this broad land will do well to commit it to memory and make it his creed of thought and action:

There can be no doubt that we are entering upon a long period of general prosperity which, to an extent, we can make doubly sure by relegating the pessimists, croakers and knockers to the discard and replacing them by men with public spirit, enterprise and faith.

This is a time when all classes should co-operate for the general good; when we should lay aside selfish ambition, political prejudice and all the other barriers to progress, and with full faith in the future do our part to bring about the conditions that we all desire.

It is a time to forget Mr. Wilson, the schoolmaster, and Mr. Wilson, the politician, and to remember in our thoughts, our actions and our prayers our President Wilson, who is carrying our burden and needs our help to solve the serious problems now confronting our country.

May our work, in so doing, unify us in all things for the betterment of mankind, and may this spirit leaven our business lives so that in full and loyal co-operation we may bring about a return of prosperous times that we can have IF WE WILL.

This fine, broad, big and patriotic sentiment—it is like the man who said it—should be engraved upon every American heart, and should be the rule and guide to faith and action for every patriot.

Supreme Court Justice Peter A. Hendrick, who freed Thaw, is from Penn Yan, a well-known fount of charity, mercy and humanity.

THE WOMEN WHO DO NOT MARRY.

A great many women, these days, do not marry. There were always some who did not marry, either because they wouldn't or couldn't, and these were called "old maids"—spinsters, in polite terms. An odd fact is the parallel of the increasing proportion of unmarried women and the virtual disappearance of the term "old maid."

Earl Barnes, writing in the Popular Science Monthly, goes into figures. He shows that in 1910 there were in the United States nearly nine million women over fifteen years old who were neither married, widowed nor divorced. These single women constituted nearly twenty-eight per cent of the total number of American women over fifteen.

Of native-born white women between twenty-five and thirty-four, more than thirty per cent are unmarried, while of the same class between thirty-four and forty-four, nearly nineteen per cent are still single.

This investigator is not disposed to say that any considerable proportion of these women are single because they can't get married. "It would be foolish," he says, "to imagine that the great majority of single women could not marry if they want to. Man proposes, but the woman dictates when he shall do so. Why do so many women elect to walk through life alone?" And then he tries to answer his question.

The growth in democratic ideals, which has been steadily working among women since 1870, has much to do with it, he thinks. Women, no longer merely "the sex," have become individuals. They are "folks," and more and more they are demanding legal consideration as "folks," even to the extent of the ballot. Moreover, they are getting what they want—as they always have.

"Now a woman seeks fulfilment not only for her personal liking but for all the qualities of her varied personal life," says Mr. Barnes. "She has not only racial, religious and social interests, but she has an intelligent attitude toward the whole of life; she has musical, dramatic or literary tastes; she is interested in social justice or in the vested interests of caste; she cares for travel or she desires a quiet home; and in a hundred other directions she is an individual. Such a complex individuality does not easily find its complement."

Greater economic independence is another reason assigned by Mr. Barnes, and undoubtedly it is the most far-reaching of all. The widening field of economic independence for women has freed her from matrimony as a necessity. Of old, it was woman's only career. Nowadays there are many other careers, and the average self-supporting woman is doubtless better off financially than the average married women.

Some women—we shall of course not undertake to say how many or how few—married for a living and for nothing else. Either because they were discontented at home, or because the narrow field of work for women did not appeal to them, they more or less deliberately married a salary as a means of self-support. With the wider economic independence of today that compulsion has all but vanished. Only lazy women will be likely to do that today.

Another reason suggested by Mr. Barnes is "superior intelligence." Shall we accept that as a reason? Girls stay in school longer than boys. Perhaps on the whole they get better educated. Maybe he means that. But on the whole they do not gain so superior an educational equipment as to make matrimonial alliances unbearable.

As for the discovery that woman is an individual and has a many-sided personality of her own to work out, that should not necessarily interfere with marriage. If women have learned this, surely men have learned it too, and have learned that nowadays a married woman need not sink her identity into that of her husband. There is—or should be—as much room for individual development in matrimony as there is outside of it.

On the whole, considering all these speculations, one is inclined to center thought on the idea that women do not marry so generally as they used to because they don't have to. If this means that many marriages under older conditions were rather sordidly calculated by women who looked upon matrimony largely as a means of gaining a livelihood, so be it. In point of fact the sordid calculation was often less than half realized; and, besides, many marriages contracted in cold deliberation have turned out better than many others contracted in the hot haste of that evanescent beauty, youthful passion.

Women are said to be working eighty-four hours a week in some of the British ammunition factories. What's become of the old idea that "men must work and women must weep"?

THE POOR FARMER!

A carload of cars arrived last Wednesday for the Wanda garage, which they intend to deliver this week. Another carload is expected next week.—Wanda correspondence in the Redwood Gazette.

Wanda is a thrifty, tidy, tiny village of less than two hundred souls—mainly German by birth or parentage—in the fecund heart of as fair a picture of agricultural fatness as the world can show: an Eden of richness and democratic plutocracy with its luxurious fields ribboned with roads over which automobiles go sky-hooting every other second. This simple little village is absorbing cars at the rate of a carload a week! And there are many such hotbeds of prosperity in Minnesota.

Pity the sorrows of the poor downtrodden farmer!

In case of necessity it might even be possible to press Huerta into service for defense purposes.

JUST "GETTING BY."

A merchant said the other day that his biggest problem in business had been the training of employes.

"I never have any trouble filling places. That isn't the idea. There are always plenty of applicants, if that were all. But I never have been able to train a clerk to take the amount of interest necessary to qualify him to take charge of affairs during my absence."

This employer's luck may be worse than the average, and we have no doubt it is. Still, so many have voiced his complaint or something like it that it seems clear that generally he expresses the sentiment of most employers.

The trouble is in the frame of mind that makes an employe contented if he simply "gets by." So many are satisfied with that. To hold their jobs, to keep the pay envelope coming in, to hang on by the skin of their teeth, as it were, is the slender ambition of altogether too many who work for others. Yet some of these very employes wonder why they don't get on faster, and are bitter because salary raises don't come oftener.

That habit of mind is why these workers don't get on more rapidly, and it is why so many employers complain.

Of course those who are actuated solely by the plan of just "getting by" will never rise. They must do a good deal more than just "get by" to win promotion. Promotion comes, as a rule, to those who earn it, and those who just "get by" don't earn it—don't, even, earn the right to hold their jobs except by sufferance.

Everybody is either going ahead or going back. There is no such thing as standing still. The worker who has settled down in a rut, content to do the least possible amount of work that will keep the pay envelope coming in, may not realize it, but he is going back.

Every worker has the choice of going ahead or going back. Most of them choose to go back, and that makes it all the easier for those who wish to go ahead. When they show that they are trying to climb, they stand out all the more plainly because of the large proportion that never thinks of climbing.

It is still true that success must be won, that no success worth while comes without being worked for, and that victory crests the mountain peak of endeavor and never is found in the valley of sloth.

Employers should do a little thinking, too. They mustn't expect too much for too little. One of the worst mistakes they can make is to let their employes believe that effort is not recognized and rewarded; but very few successful employers make any such mistake as that. The worker is much more likely to have his employer's interest at heart if he has before him something like his employer's expectancy of profit, which is what animates the employer's interest in his own business. To reward endeavor by recognition and increase of pay and position may not invariably bring out employes capable of taking hold of the business and running it; but certainly few such employes will develop where no hope of reward stands before them. Profit-sharing experiments usually have shown marked results in quickening the interest of employes, which is another thing for employers to consider.

If the kaiser knows as much about Edison as the folks over here do, he will see a great light on hearing that the wizard is to help in the preparations for possible defense.

MAKE IT A REAL HOLIDAY, AND LET EVERYBODY IN.

John J. Moe and Mayor Prince suggest that the day devoted to the celebration of the opening of Duluth's twenty-million-dollar steel plant be made a general holiday in Duluth.

That, by all means.

The value of this celebration is two-edged: it will advertise to the world what is happening to Duluth, and it will bring all Duluth to a real appreciation of Duluth's rapidly opening future that will summon into abounding life a new community spirit.

Whatever program is decided upon, it should be something that will take in EVERYBODY.

And in order that everybody may participate, stores, shops, banks and all should close for the day. No pent-up Utica of a banquet, which could take in at most about two per cent of the people, will serve to vent the enthusiasm that Duluth will exhibit on that day. The celebration should be for the many, not for the few.

No limit should be set upon the scope of this celebration, or upon anybody's ability to share in it. It is the most momentous occasion in the history of Duluth, and it should be treated accordingly.

And as no building is big enough to house a community celebration, is there any particular reason, now that the opening by November 1 is assured, why the celebration should not occur far enough ahead of that time to assure good weather for open air doings?

When the naval board holds its first session, it might be possible to induce Col. Bryan to address that body—for five hundred dollars.

RICHES WELL BESTOWED.

When wealth sought out the Fels family it chose with exceeding and rather unusual wisdom. Joseph Fels, a Jew, got rich making soap. When he had plenty he organized his business so it ran itself, and devoted himself and his wealth to the public welfare. He contributed brains and money to such useful purposes as getting people settled on land and started right. He distributed thousands of copies of Bolton Hall's book, the title of which, "A Little Land and a Living," is the humble and wholesome aim of so many.

But it was when he became converted to the single tax theories of Henry George that the zeal of the propagandist filled him, and to the day of his death he worked and spent his money to promote that cause. A year ago last spring he died, and then it developed that his widow, Mary Fels, was as zealous in the cause as he was, and that she would carry on his work. To it she has added equal suffrage, a cause that also appealed to him.

Mary Fels will be in Duluth next Wednesday, to speak on both these subjects. Those whose minds are open, and who are willing to hear new ideas even though they cling to the old, will enjoy hearing her. Those to whom these theories are new will find them interesting and attractive, at any rate, even if they are not convinced by them.

And anyway, people who got rich and then instead of devoting their time and money to pleasure and self-promotion gave themselves heart and soul to what they consider the public welfare are worth seeing and hearing.

Queer we've had no reports from those five thousand bucking bronchos that Kansas ranchmen sold to the allies. It must be the censor is at work.

THE COST.

War is costing Great Britain fifteen million dollars a day. That's just one country out of the many involved in war. Relatively, it is costing the others no less. The total daily cost is a stupendous sum, which would hardly be realized any better if figures were available.

Fifteen millions a day is the wages, at two dollars a day, of seven and a half million laborers.

It would build one super-dreadnaught, thirty submarines at half a million each, five hundred libraries at thirty thousand each, fifteen hundred schoolhouses at ten thousand each, a hundred and fifty sanatoriums at a hundred thousand each.

A day's war expenditures in England would replace all the farm implements and machinery in Minnesota, and would buy the 1914 potato crop of Minnesota and North and South Dakota. Two days of it would buy Montana's 1914 wool crop, etc., etc.

Examples might be piled up in unlimited numbers. And yet the money cost of war, beside the cost in men and human misery, is its slightest factor.

This summer is expected to result in the opening of coal sheds by such ice dealers as have not already had the foresight to do so.

Short Ballot a Success, Long Ballot a Failure

Editorial in the Spokane Spokesman-Review.

Addressing committees of the New York constitutional convention, Mr. Taft spoke ably in support of the short ballot in state government. His point that the short ballot plan of the Federal government is just as well adapted to the state as to the nation has been often made by others, and no one has been able to refute it.

The people of the United States elect a president and vice president. All the other administrative offices are appointed by the president. That fixes definite and undivided responsibility on the president. If, for example, his secretary of state is found by experience to be incapable of masterly handling of the country's foreign relations, criticism is justly directed against the administration—against the president. If that criticism is deemed just by the president, he has a free hand to meet the situation. He can "go over the head" of the secretary; or he can direct him in a different course; or can call for his resignation and appoint another. But he can not dodge responsibility.

The principle applies to all other heads of departments. All of them must follow the president's direction or resign from office. If friction arises in the cabinet the country expects the president to overcome it, and will uphold him if he considers it necessary to reorganize his cabinet.

This method has continued from the foundation of the government. It is just, wise and effective. No one would change it. No one proposes that the people elect the secretary of war or the secretary of the treasury. Everybody sees that it would be a gigantic blunder.

Advocates of short ballot reform would apply that principle to state government. They would elect a governor and a lieutenant governor and lay upon the governor direct and unavoidable responsibility for all the official acts of his appointed subordinates. Such now elected officials as the attorney general, the secretary of state, the superintendent of public instruction and the state treasurer would constitute the governor's appointed cabinet. They could not then, as now, hold themselves above and independent of advice and direction by the chief executive. They could not fall back on the argument that since they had derived their authority from the people the governor had no right to direct them.

We have learned from long experience in state and county government the force and truth of the maxim that "divided responsibility almost always leads to no responsibility." But so great is the force of custom that many people who are quite willing to entrust the distant president with full authority over his cabinet shrink from the more logical application of the principle to their near-at-home state government.

They allow themselves to be swayed by prejudice and precedent, but ultimately precedent and prejudice must break down before reason and the higher welfare of the public.

A Hint for Automobilists

Minneapolis Tribune: Every automobile driver might with profit spend a little time daily in studying the reports of the most recent automobile accidents. The exercise will not prove pleasant in the least. Stories of fractured skulls and broken bones do not heighten the joy of life, but they may serve to bring home in some slight degree the full significance of the average automobile smash-up.

Yesterday appeared an account of how five prominent women of St. Paul barely escaped with serious injury when their machine collided with another car. On Tuesday appeared a story to the effect that a citizen of Plymouth township was painfully cut about the face when his machine crashed into a telephone post. On the same day appeared another account of an engineer stopping his train to give assistance to a pair of victims pinned beneath a machine a few miles east of Albert Lea. On Monday appeared an account of a popcorn wagon being wrecked in a collision with an automobile. On the same day appeared another story of a St. Paul resident being struck by an automobile on Calhoun boulevard and sent to the City hospital with a broken shoulder. And on this same disastrous Monday appeared still another and infinitely more horrible story of a jitney driver whose clothes took afire while he lay pinned beneath his car. On Sunday every newspaper in the country printed a story to the effect that President Wilson and his family were parties to an automobile accident which fortunately failed to prove serious.

These gleanings from the news columns may disabuse drivers of the impression that the automobile wears a charmed life. There seem to be several points about the subject which drivers resolutely refuse to accept. Occupants of a car do not enter into an accident with the zest and buoyancy which the thrilling prospects might be expected to evoke. Drivers are under no obligations to court accidents for the edification of their passengers. However much the driver himself is anxious to taste death, he should remember that there is a popular prejudice in favor of life which is likely to find a few disciples in the car in front of him. He might recall, too, that the fondness for spending the best years of life in a wheeled chair has somewhat abated of late. He need not feel himself bound to leave his passengers permanent cripples in order to commemorate their trip. They have grown remarkably tolerant in overlooking such omissions.

A daily reading of the automobile accidents may inspire in drivers a little of the horror which actual experience awakens. Such a lesson cannot fail to prove of value.

To Youth.

O ye who have no aim in sight,
Who have no goal for which to fight;
O ye whose lives are lax and vain,
Who live but for the moment's gain;
And yet whose paths are vague and dim,
Get ye a God and worship Him.

Walk not the frivoling ways of mirth
That bind you to the sordid earth;
But in thy strength, the strength of youth,
Choose for thy God the God of truth.
Thy soul may mount on wings of fire
And to celestial heights aspire.

—Charles Channing Allen.

Knew Her Job.

Chicago Herald: Things were getting desperate with a certain servantless lady. She was therefore quite excited when the registry office people send her a possible maid.

"Are you a good cook?" she asked the gayly-dressed applicant.

"No, I don't cook," was the reply.

"Are you accustomed to washing and ironing?"

"I'm afraid I couldn't do either; they're too bad for the hands."

"Can you sweep and turn out a room?"

"Certainly not!" This was quite decided. "I'm not strong enough."

"Well, then," asked the exasperated lady of the house, "what do you do?"

"I dust!" replied the girl placidly.

Circumstantial Evidence.

Boston Record: "Speaking of circumstantial evidence," said a lawyer at the University club, "George Frisbie Hoar used to tell this story:

"'A young woman met her husband as he returned from the office, and showed unmistakable signs of recent weeping.

"'What's the matter, Ellen?' asked the husband.

"'Oh, John,' she said, 'I dropped my diamond ring off my finger, and I can't find it anywhere.'

"'Don't worry, Ellen; it's all safe. I found it this morning in my trousers pocket.'"

Saturday Night Talk

By the Parson.

Noses and the Grindstone.

A boy who had been to hear the symphony orchestra play for the first time had a criticism to offer on the performance. He said: "I'd 'a' liked it better if all them fellers had kep' to work. First one would stop an' rest, an' then another, an' it sort o' spoiled the music." That boy will be a hard boss if he ever becomes an employer of men. Perhaps he will be hard on himself, too. At any rate he has yet to learn the function of the rest in music or in life.

When a man announces, with some elevation of the chest, that he has been at his present work for twenty-five years and has never taken a vacation we may conclude either that he has an easy job or that he is an indifferent worker. Most people doing things that are hard and worth while need to stop for a time, at least once annually. They need a rest both on their own account and for their work's sake.

Some workers there are who cannot take a vacation even when the occasion offers. They are to be counted among the most pitiable of mortals. They are simply unable to stop thinking and talking "shop." They have followed one line so long that they can't appreciate any other line. If you meet a "typical business man" on his vacation it is an even chance that you will find him, after the first few days, bored to misery and secretly yearning to get back to the accustomed grind again. He does not know how to rest. Nature and books yield him no real pleasure. His mind has become unresponsive to all stimuli save those of his store or office.

Everyone needs occasionally to get away from the thing he does most of the time. He needs to see it in perspective, somewhat as other people see it. It may be that he will realize thus the enchantment that distance lends to the view and go back with renewed zest. It is probable that he will see ways in which he can do it better. One who holds his nose too close to the grindstone gets near-sighted. There are possibilities in his situation that escape his notice. He gets to feeling that he knows it all and that no one can tell him anything. It is one reason why older men are constantly being displaced by those younger. It is the main reason why there exists in both the business and the professional world that terrible thing called the "dead line."

He who would be really efficient should learn the art of loafing. It is not as easy as it sounds. The hardest thing in the world for lots of people to do is nothing. We are speaking now, of course, of the workers in the human hive and not the drones. The brain worker is even more dependent than the hand worker on a period of change and rest. Of all men he most needs to let himself occasionally lie fallow, as a good farmer does his potato field. It is nothing less than a crime against nature for the teacher, the editor, the preacher, and a host of others whose bread comes by the sweat of their brains to keep those brains always at tension.

Stevenson was a hard worker, and under terrible physical disabilities; but he could be, under proper conditions, an accomplished loafer, too. In his delightful Apology for Idlers he says: "Extreme busyness, whether at school or college, kirk or market place, is a symptom of deficient vitality and a faculty for idleness implies a catholic appetite and a strong sense of personal identity." The world's great workers have preserved the faculty for great loafing, which is not the same as shirking, but merely knowing how to rest, to take time, as the mystic would say, "to let the breezes of the infinite flow through the soul."

It was when the throng was pressing Him, when there were sick to be healed and sinners to be saved that the Master said to His disciples worn by their toil, "Come ye yourselves apart into a desert place and rest awhile." Are we wiser than that?

The Symbol of Money Hides the Ugly Passion of Greed.

London Times: The love of money can hardly be the root of all evil, for it is only one perverse passion out of many. But there is a kind of decorum about money which makes the love of it peculiarly dangerous, since it conceals from the lover the nature and effects of his passion. If a man wants too much food, he is evidently greedy. If a woman wants too many clothes she is evidently vain. But money is not a thing, like clothes or food, that can be enjoyed by itself. It is only a means of getting things that can be enjoyed, and so greed for money is not a direct greed, but indirect. It is a civilized means of conducting the struggle for life, which to a great extent conceals from those who use it the ugliness and the animal nature of that struggle. It is, in fact, a kind of diplomacy, politely conducted, behind which there is war; but the diplomats often do not see the war.

SCOOP THE CUB REPORTER — It's a Long Swim to Gasoline — By "HOP"

THE BULL MOOSE ALIVE—NO. 1

By SAVOYARD

Washington, July 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—In 1912 there were 4,119,538 Bull Moose herded on the field of American politics, and 3,484,980 "regular" Republicans, and now it is vociferously proclaimed by some of the elect that in politics the lesser may attract, swallow and absorb the greater like a snake. They proclaim from the housetops with an excruciating abuse of God's patience and an insolent insult to the king's English that the Bull Moose is a prodigal returned to our father's house, but it is stipulated that no new robe shall cover him, no ring shall be put on his finger, and no feast shall be spread for him. The elder brother is become the head of the household.

There is a man out in Kansas that I wish I could meet. He believes in something. In politics he is very much like what Thomas Carlyle was in letters and in philosophy—he believes something. He may be wrong, and certainly he is wrong in some of his preachments; but he will stand by them "till death hath made him marble." There is no nonsense about him—no cant. Possibly he might take office; certainly he will never seek office. His name is William Allen White.

Mr. White has written a letter in which he opines that 2,000,000 Bull Moose of a class that he defines have gone back to the Republican fold; then he ventures the opinion that another 2,000,000 Bull Moose will "stay put," and that they don't care "whether the Republicans whip the Democrats or the Democrats whip the Republicans." Precisely. Mr. Diogenes, put out that light in your lantern; here is an honest man, a Kansas fellow.

In Mr. White's philosophy it is mental infamy and moral torture for two honest folks to act together unless they believe together. What has occurred since 1912 to bring Theodore Roosevelt and William H. Taft into the same state of political mind? Democratic success? Success is always material and generally vulgar. What Mr. White is after is the spiritual, and the offering the disconsolate peri fetched to the gates of Paradise and that opened that portal, guarded by the flaming sword. That metaphor may be somewhat far-fetched, but possibly it will serve.

The standpat Washington Star is very much disgusted with and concerned about this disgraceful and absurd conduct of this here Mr. White and rebukes him in the same old fashion, as follows, viz:

"Either the Democrats or the Republicans will win next year's contest. The Bull Moosers could not be lifted into power with the aid of a derrick. So that Mr. White and his friends, whatever their number—two millions must be an exaggeration—will be forced to choose between the party to which they once belonged and the party to which they have never belonged, and which they announce no purpose of joining outright now. If they put up a ticket of their own they will in effect choose the Democratic party."

Way back yonder in the last century before I was born a William Allen White-of-a-fellow, named Birney, was a candidate for president, and he was admonished that his campaign could have no practical effect other than to defeat Mr. Clay, but those chaps were made of stern stuff and voted their faith. Something a little like it occurred four years later, though it is possible that it was debased with a spirit of revenge on the part of Martin Van Buren, yet that did not actuate the great majority of those who voted for him and thus caused the defeat of one of the big parties.

If this depraved philosophy, preached by the Washington Star, always prevailed, there never would be a step of progress by mankind, political, material, or moral. No man would dare get out of the beaten track. In politics each party would be nailed down to the platform; and that platform a platitude. If this idea had maintained there would not have been a Republican party, and unless the South, by a miracle, had shucked herself of it, the institution of African slavery would now be in the green tree in our glorious land of the free and the home of the brave.

I have done my share abusing Kansas, and I am not yet done in that line. I have cussed her up hill and down dale a thousand times; but Kansas has some things she believes in. That is all that is required—do you believe? I think there is more of what may be defined as "belief" in Kansas than in any other state, and if she shall keep it up it will make of her the very aristocracy of the American sisterhood, though I have seen some fools she has sent to congress in both houses.

According to my way of thinking, however feeble and imperfect it be, every suggestion that the "regular" Republicans and the Bull Moosers "get together" is an insult to the intelligence and a reflection upon the honesty of both. How can they get together unless they think together?

"The Gold Democrats" and the "Silver Democrats" never got together until 1912, but after sixteen years, when the old issue was dead, they triumphed in the election of Woodrow Wilson. They got to thinking together. That was honest.

Now, the Republican party is not going to win another national election till it enlist William Allen White and men who think as he does. It is a big job, and as a starter the G. O. P. must reduce Barnes and Penrose to the ranks and wish for something other than the spoils of office.

And the villain still pursued her.

TWO THOUSAND ROTARIANS HOLD ANNUAL CONVENTION

Business and Professional Men Gather at San Francisco to Represent the Two Hundred Rotary Cities of the World at Meeting of International Association.

San Francisco, Cal., July 17.—Two thousand Rotarians representing the nearly 200 rotary clubs in as many cities in the United States, Canada, Hawaii, England, Scotland and Ireland, are gathered in San Francisco for the sixth annual convention of the International Association of Rotary clubs. The delegates and visitors are the leading business and professional men in their lines in their respective cities, and the club membership to which they represent likewise are leaders in their respective lines. All of the clubs are affiliated in the international association, except a few which have been organized so recently that they have not had time to receive their charters. The total membership of the clubs is approximately 21,000.

To Last Nearly a Week.

The sixth convention will continue from Sunday, July 18 to Friday, July 23, with one day (Thursday) across the bay at Oakland. It begins Sunday morning with sermons by the San Francisco and Oakland clergymen on the text "He Profits Most Who Serves Best," which is the rotary slogan. A number of clergymen who are members of rotary clubs and delegates to the convention, also will occupy pulpits and preach on the same text.

Sunday afternoon the board of directors and the international officers will hold their pre-convention meeting. In the evening there will be an informal reception at the St. Francis hotel, so that everybody can get acquainted before the opening of the first business session Monday morning.

The morning session will be largely taken up with preliminary reports of committees, presentation of officers, addresses of welcome, and the president's address. The reports of the president, secretary and treasurer for the year ending July 1, will be distributed in printed form. A talk on "Opportunities Presented by the Meetings of the Trade and Professional Sections" will conclude the morning session.

Section Meetings.

These section meetings at the annual rotary convention constitute little conventions in themselves. The rotarians belonging to each business or professional classification gather to discuss the problems of their respective lines. Monday afternoon there will be about 200 of these "little conventions" at the stores, offices, factories, etc., of the San Francisco rotarians. A silver trophy will be presented to the section with the largest attendance, to be held until the next convention.

The morning and afternoon sessions on Tuesday will be general business sessions for the entire convention at which will be presented committee reports and set addresses, all dealing with the problems of making men more civilized and business more humane.

Wednesday there will be another series of little conventions, called "Round Tables." There will be five in the morning and five in the afternoon, for the purpose of discussing at length the problems of certain phases of the rotary work. In the morning there will be round tables of the club presidents, the club entertainment and program committees, the club membership committees, the club fellowship committees, and the club publications. The afternoon round tables will be club secretaries, open-to-convention committees, publicity committees, public affairs committees, and "The Rotarian," the official publication of the association.

To Compare Notes.

These round tables are the sources of great good. The members of the various clubs who are specially charged with certain duties gather, compare notes, exchange ideas, and are generally of service to each other.

The annual banquet of the association will be held Wednesday night, at which time the nominations for new officers will be made.

The Thursday sessions will be held at Oakland, with the Rotary club of that city as hosts. The election of new officers and their installation will take place during these sessions. In the evening the newly elected officers will hold their meeting.

Friday, back at San Francisco, the morning will be devoted to meetings of divisional vice presidents (or district governors if the proposed revised constitution is adopted) with the delegates from their respective divisions.

The keynote of this convention will be the definition of Rotary and an effort to more clearly outline the objects and scope of the association and of the local clubs.

The Rotary club is an organization of business and professional men, the members consisting of only one man from each line, whose banner is "Service—Not Self," whose slogan is "He Profits Most Who Serves Best," and who are proving that the golden rule in business works. The restricted membership is for the purpose of promoting freedom of expression and broadening each member by bringing him into personal contact with representative men in different lines of business than his own.

Objects of Club.

The objects of the Rotary club are to promote the recognition of the worthiness of all legitimate occupations and to dignify each member's occupation as affording him an opportunity to serve society; to encourage high ethical standards in business and the professions; to increase the efficiency of each member by the exchange of ideas and business methods; to promote the scientizing of acquaintance as an opportunity for service and an aid to success; to quicken the interest of each member in public welfare and to co-operate with others in civic development.

In the platform, adopted at the convention of 1911 at Portland and reaffirmed in 1912 at Buffalo, the statement is made that:

"The Rotary club demands fair dealing, honest methods and high standards in business. No obligation, actual of implied, to influence business exists in Rotary. Election to membership therein is an expression of confidence of the club in the member elected and of its good will towards him. As his business is an expression of himself he is expected actively to represent it. Membership in the Rotary club is a privilege and an opportunity and its responsibility demands honest and efficient service and thoughtfulness for one's fellows. Service is the basis of all business."

Organization of Service.

Rotary, in fact, may be called an organization of service and for service. Rotarians have learned to understand one another and have gained a better perspective of their relations to each other, their community, their country and the world. The meetings of Rotary clubs are noted for a high percentage of attendance, a wholesome good fellowship, the constant invention of new "stunts" or methods for making the members better acquainted and for developing the spirit of genuine service. The enthusiasm of Rotarians for Rotary is spontaneous and is grounded upon knowledge gained from experience that the effort to practice the principles of Rotary means a happier, better and more successful life. Realizing that formality and good fellowship do not mix well Rotarians have ousted formality from their meetings and from their relation with one another.

The direct business advantages of membership generally are looked upon as incidental to the other and greater advantages such as: the broadening influence of being educated as to other lines of business; the development of the heart and soul which comes from learning to try deliberately to assist and help others in their work; and the opportunity to be of service in some important civic or community work.

The growth of the Rotary movement has been remarkable. The first club was organized in Chicago, Feb. 23, 1905, by Paul P. Harris, an attorney. It was more than three years before the idea had developed and been sufficiently definitely outlined so that the second club was organized in San Francisco, Nov. 12, 1908. The movement spread rapidly from this time, clubs being organized in Oakland, Seattle and Los Angeles within the year. The movement jumped to the Atlantic coast in August, 1909, when the New York city club was organized, followed by Boston, Dec. 27.

Ten Canadian Clubs.

Between the first part of 1910 and the present there have been almost 190 clubs organized. The first that came into being outside the United States was that in Winnipeg in November, 1910—that being the thirty-fifth club. The first British club was organized August 3, 1911, in London, it being the fiftieth club. Today there are ten Canadian clubs, in Calgary, Halifax, Hamilton, London, Montreal, St. John, Toronto, Vancouver, Victoria and Winnipeg. The British clubs number nine and are in Belfast, Birmingham, Dublin, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Liverpool, London, Manchester and Newcastle-on-Tyne. Organization work is proceeding rapidly in a number of other British and Canadian cities, and in Havana, Cuba, and the Rotary idea is traveling towards South America and Australia. The Rotary Club of Honolulu was organized this spring and was granted a charter in the International association just before the convention.

The International Association of Rotary clubs is a voluntary organization of the clubs in the various cities. Its government at present is vested in a president and board of directors. Frank L. Mulholland, attorney, of Toledo, is the present president. There also are eight vice presidents, each in charge of a division; five in the United States—Eastern, Southern, Central, Western and Pacific; two in Canada—Eastern and Western; and one for the British Isles. Revisions in the constitution, which are to be voted upon at the convention, will, if adopted, abolish the directors and the divisional vice presidents, and will provide for twenty-one district governors, fifteen for the United States, three for Canada, and one each for England, Scotland and Ireland.

The association maintains its headquarters at Chicago, 910 Michigan avenue. The secretary is Chesley R. Perry, who also is the editor and business manager of the Rotarian, the official publication of the organization, a monthly magazine of standard size, which is subscribed for by every Rotarian.

Since the last convention which was held at Houston in June, 1914, there have been fifty-seven Rotary clubs established.

Education may be taken as a very broad term for the entire conscious process of passing on from one generation to another the accumulated treasures, the acquired capacities, of the race. So conceived, it touches every age, but childhood is its special province—the period marked by nature as peculiarly adapted to this process.

If, unlike the beasts that perish, man has a social heritage, handed on from one generation to another, so that we are not dependent upon our biological inheritance alone, it is to childhood that this debt is paid, by the children that the new credit is acquired in trust for the years ahead, in which they are to be the living link between the past with its achievements, and the future with its possibilities.

Childhood Must Have Its Chance.

If therefore the social structure is to be sound and suitable, childhood must have its chance, must have time enough to perform its function, must not be cheated of its debt, expected to yield a harvest of figs from a sowing of thistles.

If we analyze this social task of education from our present point of view, one part of it undoubtedly consists in the mere preservation of actual information. We need not concern ourselves very much about that. The printing press has solved it.

True, there is information which can be preserved and imparted only in other ways, for example, through art. Paintings, sculpture, architecture, music, all tell their own story in a way that descriptions of them, even critical studies of them, do not. The hand which can conceive and execute works of art, and the eye which can see and appreciate them, are essential to the preservation of our social heritage. Actual and valuable information perishes from the world if as an incident of warfare works of art are destroyed, or if, through the failure of education, we cease to know their value. Arts of skill might disappear in the same way. But, speaking largely, the next generation is not in serious danger of a dearth of information.

A second task of education in a policy of social construction is to teach the use of the mind and body. It is of little avail to have a body unless one knows how to use it. Most of us misuse and fail to use our eyes, our ears, our hands, our back, our tongues and teeth, our lungs and diaphragms, our legs, our skin.

From Four Legs to Two.

For a million years or so, no doubt, we traveled on all fours, as babies still do, and now nature fails us sometimes when we try to stand upright. For a million years or so salvation on earth depended on ability to distinguish friend from foe at a great distance. Now, when the objects of our interest and solicitude are nearly always at eighteen inches from the eye instead of a mile, we find ourselves handicapped by an optical instrument fitted for the distant but not for the near vision. We subject ourselves to eye-strain, and have headaches, curved spines, and ill temper in consequence.

No other mechanism in the world, we are often assured, is so continuously and flagrantly abused—from ignorance, from obstinacy, from carelessness, from parasitic enemies, from indulgence of its own eccentricities—as the human body. Education for efficiency implies instruction as to these elementary things: not anatomy and physiology, though those are useful; but cleanliness, respect for bodily functions, co-ordination of muscles, repose of nerves. Hygiene in all its branches is the first element in social education.

But the mind also is useless save as we have learned how to use it. To impart information is no more to give the mastery of the mind that to impart food is to give the mastery of the body. Certain drills are necessary to make the mind rapid and accurate. Certain processes are necessary to develop observation and the critical faculty. Other exercises are useful in cultivating the memory and the imagination.

Choosing Things Worth While.

But, above all, in a policy of social construction, the educational system must be successful in planting, watering, and securing increase in the power of forming economic judgments, in the power of estimating values as higher and lower, of comparing rightly future pleasures with those of the present, the permanent with the fleeting, the spiritual with the material. Right reasoning about what can be attained by a given effort, and what the satisfaction thus attained is really worth, as compared with other possible results from the same possible effort—this, I take it, is a prime function of social education.

One other obvious end of education may be named along with the imparting of information and the development of capacity to use the mind and the body. That is the forming of good physical, mental, and moral habits. The economic reasoning just now referred to is a conscious and sometimes a slow and painful process. But after a while, if the processes of our reasoning are sound, a particular judgment has been formed so clearly, or so often, or is so buttressed by authority, that it is accepted as a moral judgment. It obtains an ethical sanction. Time is saved. Effort is saved. Wear and tear of tissue and vital energy are saved.

No doubt honesty was once the best policy. There may be borderlands where it is so still. But for us and our children honesty has ceased to be a policy. It is an instinct, a habit of mind, an economic judgment so often made, so clearly established, so authoritatively attested, that it offends rather than helps us to allude to its material advantages.

The farther we can go in this direction of economizing the reasoning process, the more instinctive and immediate right conduct can become, the more we shall be able to extend our field of operations, the more complete will be our conquest of nature, and the more productive will be the actual expenditure of energy in satisfying the higher and more complex wants.

This restatement of the elementary aims of education may seem to specialists in the theory of education so obvious as to be trite, or so incomplete as to be fantastic. The school system of the social economist is an instrument like any other of social construction. Education conceived as the means of carrying civilization forward, as the conscious link between the generations of workers and users of wealth, must do at least these things: Pass on the information; make the mind and body fit instruments of satisfying the wants of mind; encourage those habits and instincts which economize power and promote the social welfare.

Put in terms of social problems, the school must aid in preventing poverty by making men more efficient in preventing disease by making men strong and well; in preventing crime by making men law-abiding in spirit and instinctively aware of the rights of others; in preventing violence by inoculating against self-righteousness and brutality.

INDUCTION.

Washington Star: A well-known detective said, concerning a failure:

"I am afraid I didn't use sufficient induction in this case. I was as inductive as Jim Lanigan's daughter.

"Jim Lanigan is a drummer. He's hardly home once in three months. He heard his little daughter on the front porch talking to the cat during his last home call.

"'Kitty,' she said, 'I know all your little boys and girls, and I know your mamma and sister, too, who lives over at auntie's, but I ain't never seen your husband or your papa—I guess they must be drummers.'"

Little Things About the Sickroom

HERE are a few things every home nurse should know. We mention them, because observation shows that few persons, other than those professionally trained to care for the sick, seem to realize the importance of little details in the sickroom.

When giving one in bed a drink never fill the cup or glass; a glass half filled is much easier for the patient to drink from. And if the patient is very prostrated or weak, lift the head by placing your hand under the pillow.

As a general rule visitors should not be inflicted on the patient, for the effort is likely to prove very tiring. In some cases, as during convalescence, visitors are cheering, but it seems to be human nature to want to get in while the case is serious and to forget the patient as soon as all danger is past. Some one in authority, other than the patient, should manage this matter with a firm but gentle hand. There is always this excuse, and the doctor never fails to corroborate it: "I am so sorry, Mrs. Gamp, but the doctor directs that no one be admitted at present." Surely, not even Mrs. Gamp will dare to ignore doctor's orders.

In certain illnesses, like apoplexy, and in many illnesses accompanied by stupor or coma, there is a very unpleasant stertor or snoring sound in the breathing, caused by the relaxed soft palate flapping in the air current. This may generally be avoided by turning the patient well off the back, almost upon the face, so that the face looks somewhat downward. The noise will stop and breathing will become much easier. It is a wise plan to turn such patients from side to side at intervals anyhow. Change of posture in bed tends to prevent congestion of the base of the lungs.

Medicines, utensils, dishes and other suggestive articles should be kept out of the sickroom when not in use. If there is anything makes us madder than a sixteen-page letter in pencil on both sides of the paper it is the sight of a stand or table beside a poor invalid's bed laden with boxes, bottles, spoons and dishes. That kind of nursing is rather worse than none at all.

Never arouse a patient from sleep for medicine, unless specially ordered to do so. Medicine is great stuff, but it is of less value than sleep for the average invalid.

When the neighbors run in to advise you about changing doctors, sheets or diet, just show them in your courteous, refined way that you resent the gratuitous advise and that you consider your own judgment about as good as the average. They wouldn't venture to advise you in that way if they didn't feel that you are capable of forming sensible opinions of your own.

MALTED MILK AND SCURVY.

Our baby, 7 months old, has been fed nothing but malted milk from birth, writes Mrs. B. S. Recently his legs swell, his breath is very bad, he seems to cry every time we take him up or touch him, and there are spots like black and blue marks coming out all over him. His mouth is sore and his gums bleed. Will you please suggest something?

Answer—Scurvy is a condition one might expect to develop in a baby fed nothing but sterile food, and starvation food at that. Orange juice, mutton broth, fresh cow's milk must be fed.

WILLYS PUTS OUT NEW CAR

Model 84, With Knight Type Motor, Offered for $1,095.

Radical Changes in Motor Design and Price Surprising.

This is a season of surprises in the motor car industry.

The new developments have taken the form of multiplying the cylinders of the old type of motor, of radical price reductions, or a combination such as that covered by the Willys-Knight announcement which offers two radical changes—one in motor design, the other in price. The price of $1,095 is the lowest at which a car with a Knight type motor has been offered to the public.

Its reliability, remarkable power, smoothness of operation and economy have made it famous throughout the world. One of its chief advantages is its characteristic of improving with use. It is an established fact that the Knight type of motor gives even greater satisfaction the second and succeeding years than the first. Its simple design and small number of parts insures it against the various evils that frequently come under the head of motor troubles. Retiming is never necessary. There is no guess work. The entire action is positive and never failing.

Important Differences.

The important differences of the Knight type motor from a poppet valve motor is in the valve arrangement. The Knight type is a sleeve valve motor. The valves are merely sliding sleeves. There are two—one inside the other, sliding up and down between the cylinder wall and piston. In each, openings are placed which, at the proper time in the action of the motor, come opposite to each other so as to permit the charge of fresh gas from the carburetor to enter the combustion chamber and similarly for the burnt gases to pass from the cylinder out into the muffler.

Model 84, as this latest production of Mr. Willys' is known, is a large, powerful, five-passenger touring car. In it are embodied all those little comforts and conveniences that go to make up the quality car of today. In design and finish, it compares favorably with cars selling for a much larger price.

The 40-horse power Knight type motor is the efficiency equal of those built by foreign manufacturers for cars selling at from $4,000 to $8,000. The four-cylinders, with a bore of 4½ inches and stroke of 4½ inches, are cast in one block.

The car announced by the Willys-Overland company is of the latest stream-line design. Its symmetrical lines give the long and low pleasing effect that distinguishes the modern car from that of a few years ago. The graceful poise of the car is accentuated by the one-piece cowl dash, gently sloping hood and full curved tonneau back. Front hinged, wide U doors, with disappearing hinges, add to the appearance of the body, giving it a clean and smooth exterior. Frame, running board brackets and battery box are concealed by mud shields.

The car is finished in royal blue with ivory striping. The wheels are gray and trimmings of nickel and polished aluminum. The heavy crowned steel fenders are black enameled.

The long wheel base of 114 inches has allowed the designers ample leeway for creating a large and roomy body. The seats have high, comfortable backs, while the heavily upholstered cushions are built on deep, coiled springs, which give the maximum of riding comfort.

Interior Refinements.

Particular attention has been given to interior refinements. Large pockets in all doors, a hinged robe rail and a foot rest are a few of the conveniences that add to the pleasures of touring in this car. The mohair top is of the one-man type that can be easily raised or lowered. The curtains fasten from the inside and are easily attached. Their snug fit eliminates the annoyance of flapping. The built-in windshield is of the rain vision, ventilating type with universal adjustment.

Ignition is by high-tension magneto, entirely independent of the lighting and starting system, which is of the two-unit, six-volt type. This permits the simplest possible wiring.

The thermo-syphon or natural cooling system is used, with a large, ball-bearing fan. There is no pump. The radiator is of the distinctive Overland type, with vertical circulation. The radiator shell, pressed from a single sheet of steel, is supported by swivel trunions.

Lubrication is furnished by a highly efficient combination of the force feed and splash systems. A pressure gauge denoting the exact flow of oil is located on the instrument board.

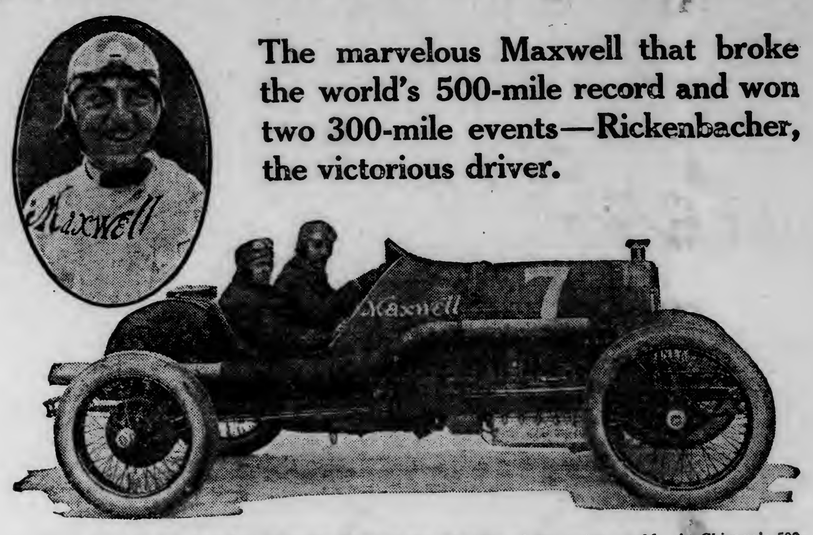

A vacuum gasoline tank under the hood guarantees an even positive flow of gasoline to the carburetor, even when the car is traveling up a steep grade.

The carburetor is an improved type with a hot-air attachment. It is exceedingly simple in adjustment.

Left-hand drive and center control facilitate driving. The electric switches on the steering column make control unusually simple.

America's New Racing Wonder

The marvelous Maxwell that broke the world's 500-mile record and won two 300-mile events—Rickenbacher, the victorious driver.

Three races in ten days has made this Maxwell the sensation of the racing world. At Chicago's 500-mile Derby, June 26th, it defeated all other American entries, finishing third, in 5 hrs., 11 min., 50:23 sec. —an average of 95.32 miles per hour—5 miles per hour faster than the world's record established at Brooklands, England.

At Sioux City, July 3rd, the same Maxwell easily led all competitors in the 300-mile event. At Omaha, July 4th, it again won, averaging 91.07 miles per hour, and leading a representative field by more than ten miles.

Tom Orr, in another Maxwell, made a new record in a time trial for five miles. His mark was 3 minutes flat, clipping eleven and three-quarters seconds of the former mark, held for over three years by Caleb Bragg.

This triple victory emphasizes the phenomenal endurance of the Maxwell Car. It was the same machine that competed in each event, with the same motor and same equipment. Each contest, which usually represents the life of a racing car, only added to the efficiency of the Maxwell and established beyond question the supremacy of the American automobile, both from an engineering and racing viewpoint.

AXLES ARE PUT INTO TWO CLASSES

"Semi-Floating and "Full-Floating" Types Described By Turner.

"Few people understand what is meant by the terms 'semi-floating' and 'full-floating' as applied to rear axle construction," states M. W. Turner, distributor for the Haynes light six.

"Axles may be divided roughly into two classes, dead and live axles. All horse-driven vehicles are equipped with dead axles, that is, the axles do not revolve with the wheels, but are fixed, usually being bolted directly to the springs or body, preventing rotation.

"Suppose, however, that the springs be bolted to a steel tube or pipe instead of the dead axle as before. Then, if the round axle be run through this pipe and fastened to the wheel at the end, so that the wheel and axle must revolve together, it is called a live axle because it turns with the wheel. The tube or pipe in which it revolves, is known as the housing.

"Then, if ball bearings be placed inside the housing, so that the axle turns on the bearings, it is said to be of the floating type because the axle floats in the housing. The wheel is mounted on an outside ball bearing at the end of the housing, so that it may revolve freely, and is fastened on the outer side to the axle by means of the hub plate.

"The entire weight on the wheel is carried by the housing and not by the axle. The end thrust, however, as when the car is rounding a corner, must all be borne by the axle, which sometimes results in serious trouble. This is 'semi-floating' construction. With this type the wheel must usually be taken off in order to get the axle out.

"The wheel on the 'full-floating' type is mounted on the housing so that it not only rolls around on ball bearings, but also absorbs all end thrust on ball bearings, known as thrust bearings.

"This construction takes all the strain of bad roads, including both weight and end thrust, off the axle and puts it on the housing where it should be."

CADILLAC BREAKS PRODUCTION RECORD

Ships 11,895 "Eigths" During First Six Months of 1915.

During the first half of 1915 the Cadillac Motor Car company manufactured and shipped a total of 11,895 eight-cylinder cars. This is the biggest production for a period of six months in the history of this well known concern.

The first "eights" were shipped from the factory in October, 1914.

During the first few months the output was comparatively limited owing to the enormous task of designing, building and installing nearly a million dollars' worth of new machinery, tools and equipment, and getting the manufacture of the new model under way. Additional men were employed as rapidly as high grade mechanics could be obtained.

The actual production is demonstrated through the actual book records which show that 7,043 cars were made in April, May and June as compared with 4,852 during the preceding three months. Taking the figures month by month, the output was 1,321 Cadillacs in January; 1,575 in February; 1,956 in March; 2,235 in April; 2,519 in May and 2,199 to June 26.

"The outlook for the next six months," said Sales Manager E. C. Howard, "is the brightest we ever had. We expect to build and ship fully as many cars, if not more, during the next half of this year than during the first half. Cadillac dealers report that they have more prospects now than in the last four months."

LONG DRIVES ON CONTINENTAL TRIP

Lincoln Highway Tourists Pass Through Cities of Southwest.

The Lincoln highway tourists engaged in making the transcontinental tour are drawing near to the sections where long, trying drives are required. R. C. Sackett, the Studebaker representative in the official party, has forwarded some very interesting pictures of scenes taken along the route. Some of these show gaily decorated automobiles that formed processions marching past the camera men; others show road construction work in parts where improvement of the highway is still in progress and still more illustrate the pretty scenery found along the route.

A Studebaker forms one of the trio of cars carrying the official party and has been lately pressed into service of the men operating the motion picture machines.

The Iowa schedule called for Clinton, July 3 and 4; Tama, 5; Marshalltown, 6; Ames, 7. From this point there was a 176-mile drive to Omaha, where the party rests over Sunday. Fremont is reached on the twelfth. The following day the cars take up a 114-mile ride that brings them to Grand Island on July 14. After spending a day here a jump of 162 miles to North Platte is to be negotiated, this city playing host to the tourists on July 16.

Wyoming calls for a drive of 240 miles for reaching Cheyenne, the first stop. Two days are allowed for this. Laramie is to be reached July 21, and Rawlins, 119 miles distant, on July 23. While in Wyoming the camera men are to catch ranch life scenes that will be specially staged for their visits. The Idaho schedule calls for Rock Springs, July 27, Green River, July 28, and Cranston, July 30. These long drives are made possible only by the Studebaker service stations lining the Lincoln highway.

BIG DEMAND FOR U. S. CARS ABROAD

Market Calls for Thousands of Well-Built, Popular-Priced Cars.

With every British automobile factory engaged in turning out war munitions and cars for the allies, American-made motor cars are gaining a still firmer grip on the European market, according to George Hutton, a well-known automobile engineer of Dublin, Ireland.

"Notwithstanding the unsettled conditions and the fact that a good many of our able-bodied men are at the front, there still continues a very brisk demand for the better grade of American car," says Mr. Hutton. "The well-built Yankee car, equipped with self-starter, electric lights and other conveniences, is meeting with a tremendous demand and our only problem is securing enough cars to go around.

"I was fortunate enough to secure the first Dodge Bros. car shipped into Ireland and I have driven it over 5,000 miles, covering practically every county. This machine, with its wonderful hill-climbing ability and easy-riding qualities, is the type of car which will sell most readily in European markets. In a long journey through the Wicklow mountains I was able to make all of the steep grades on high gear with this car, and had little trouble on the roughest of our country roads.

"Many officers in Irish and English regiments have purchased American cars before leaving for France, and because most of these cars are fitted with self-starters, their wives are obtaining full enjoyment from the machines at the present time."

After driving his Dodge Bros.' car for the last few months, Mr. Hutton decided to visit the United States in an effort to secure the sales rights for the car in Ireland. He is particularly pleased with the handsome new roadster models which are now being shipped from the Detroit factory and intends to have one shipped to his home in Ireland.

MANY HUDSON PRIZES GIVEN

Company Distributes $10,500 in Cash to Its Salesmen.

The Hudson Motor Car company has just completed the distribution of $10,500 in cash to salesmen as prizes in the April and May spring selling tournament. These sales tournaments are becoming a marked feature of the Hudson selling plan, and are responsible for the creation of a large amount of enthusiasm in the selling force everywhere.

The Hudson policy is to go direct to the salesmen. None of this money is given to dealers, all of it goes to the men who makes the sales.

A peculiar feature of the Hudson plan that is not usually found in contests of this character is that the prizes are given on the basis of cars delivered, not merely on cars sold. In order that a salesman may participate in the sale, he must report the actual delivery of a car within the contest period.

The Hudson selling policy of "making hay while the sun shines" is very apparent in their handling of these contests. They are not put on when business is slack, or with the idea of stirring up backward sales. The contests usually are staged in the most active period of a dealer's season, with the idea that while business is coming is the time to keep it coming stronger.

This recent contest is a case in point. It was put on during the months of April and May which are among the best selling months of the year. The result was that salesmen who ordinarily would have sold 100 per cent of their quota, in some cases sold as high as 180 to 190 per cent, almost doubling their record of sales expected during that period. The sales quotas are set by the factory, and checked by the dealers, and are so placed that a salesman must work, and work hard, in order to succeed in winning a prize.

The distribution of $10,500 therefore amongst individual salesmen is indicative of a very high degree of selling efficiency in the Hudson organization.

Hudson Popular With Clubs.

Out of a total of seventeen of the most popular automobiles represented in a recent motor club run at St. Louis, Mo., the Hudson led all machines in point of number of cars used by members. There were nine Hudsons owned by club members. The nearest machine to the Hudson had six owners, ranging them in number four, three, two, and quite a number had but one. Amongst the machines represented were probably the most popular machines on the American market today. They ranged in price from $500 to $5,000.

LEATHER USED IN NEW STUDEBAKERS

Highest Grade Ordered Despite Scarcity in Market.

Conditions in the leather market, whether due to a scarcity of hides or manipulation, did not deter Studebaker from specifying the retention of leather upholstery for the new models recently announced. The automobile industry is the natural outgrowth of carriage building, in which Studebaker

HEAVY FIRE WAGON EQUIPPED WITH "NOBBY TREAD" TIRES

Owners of pleasure cars sometimes buy ordinary tires with a feeling that they can afford to take the chance of securing their money's worth of mileage. Purchasing agents of many fire departments know that the only way to get their money's worth of mileage is to equip fire apparatus with "Nobby Tread" Tires.

One of the greatest proofs that the "Nobby Tread" Tire gives lowest-cost-per-mile with fewest punctures and maximum protection against skidding, is found in the fact that nearly all pieces of motor-driven fire apparatus throughout the United States are equipped with "Nobby Treads."

The picture shows a "Nobby Tread" equipped fire wagon of the Westerly, Rhode Island, Fire Department.

OFFERED $200,000 FOR USE OF NAME

Apperson Refuses to Turn From Policy Now in Vogue.

Elmer Apperson, president and general manager of Apperson Brothers Automobile company, announced recently that he had refused an offer of $200,000 made to him by a Detroit syndicate for the purpose of allowing the use of the name "Apperson" on a six-cylinder car that they desired to make, and which was to retail under $1,400. It was a tempting offer and a sum that the average person would think hard and long before turning down, but it was waved aside as if it had been a trifle.

When seen at his office, Mr. Apperson said:

"I did not hesitate a minute about refusing the offer because there was nothing else to do. I do not think that any sum would make me swerve from the course that I have pursued all my life. Suppose you had been a manufacturer of Swiss watches and had been in business for over twenty-two years, and that all your energy, enthusiasm, love of work and accomplishment were centered in making a wonderful timepiece, and then suppose some one would come along and ask you to turn over your factory for the purpose of making a watch to sell, at $1 apiece."

SIX FRANKLIN OWNERS FIGURE IN TRIAL RUN

Six owners of Franklin cars in Brooklyn, prompted by the high mileage per gallon of gasoline made in the national demonstration of Franklin cars last May, figured in a trial run of the same kind a few days ago, following the same rules and regulations that governed the test by Franklin dealers.

Each car was fitted up so that the supply of gasoline was limited to one gallon, the object being to see what distance could be driven until the fuel gave out. Beside the great personal rivalry between the drivers as to whom the honors would go, each one strove to beat the national average of 32.1 miles per gallon established May 1, seeing in their records equally conclusive evidence of the high efficiency of their own car.

F. F. Koehler went the greatest distance on the single gallon, 3.2 miles. The other records were 33.5, 33.2, 33, 29 and 27.3. The average mileage reached 32.5, exceeding by .4 of a mile the record of the Efficiency test.

Three of the participants were new Franklin owners who had driven their cars less than 1,200 miles. F. H. Evans, who secured the second highest record, is a veteran automobile owner, being 76 years of age.

KLAXON
$20

The Type L is the largest of the Klaxons. It is the one you see on all high-priced cars. You can always tell it. The "right-angle" construction distinguishes it from all other signals. No other signal looks like it. No other signal sounds like it. Its loud, clean-cut, far-carrying note can come from it alone.

The Klaxon on your car means permanent satisfaction. It will last. You can use it on this car and the next and the next. It is guaranteed permanently—not for one year or two years or five years—permanently. You also have the satisfaction of knowing, and of having all who see it know, that your signal is the best one possible to buy.

We will put one on ready to sound for $20.

is a pioneer. Sixty-three years of manufacturing experience has not been without its lessons, and one learned by this concern has been that for seat cushions there is nothing superior to, or the equal of, leather for long-wear upholstery, and serviceableness of production is held a cardinal principle with Studebaker.

And not only did Studebaker engineers specify leather upholstry, but instructions were given the purchasing department to secure only the highest grade—if possible, to improve on the quality of former years. The same instructions held with regard to the hair used for filling purposes. The report of the purchasing department, when the stock was secured, was, that were the leather for use in more expensive motor cars, a better grade could not have been obtained, while the hair filling had been specially made up from selected stock.

The leather for the new Studebaker models is all hard-buffed, bright finish, with straight grain. This meant an additional expense, for the straight grain leather does not cut up so well as does the pebble-grain finish, from an economical standpoint. It presents a far handsomer appearance, though, than the more usual kind of lenther goods, and harmonizes more closely with other features to be found exclusively with the new Studebaker models, that serve to give the car a character both striking and distinctive.

The tufting is of the panel type, following the structural lines of the finish and the car itself. Here is where another advantage is gained from the use of leather for upholstery. Being soft and pliable, it does not crack in handling, nor does it soil easily. A workman might be ever so careful, yet in fitting the material of a seat cushion, the moisture thrown off by his hands, combined with dust particles in the air, could very easily cause a disfiguring spot. Leather will not absorb moisture, hence, should a car be caught out in a rain storm without the top raised, water would not soak into the cushions, rendering them unfit for use until thoroughly dried out.

The hair used for filling the cushions is sufficiently long to curl, and of a high-grade mixture. This serves to give the cushions springiness and helps materially in retaining their shape. Other materials used for filling purposes in upholstery work have been found to knot and flatten, very frequently giving cushions an appearance of lumpiness with a consequent uncomfortable hardness. These facts are always to be taken into consideration by persons who pride themselves on the appearance of their car, as much as they would on the looks and state of their household furnishings, or the piano.

Another improvement in the seats to which Studebaker directs attention is the new type of wire frame, fully braced, to which the springs are tied. This also helps for keeping the cushions in their proper shape. The slightly tilted seats, with the back of the driver's seat shaped as if separate, have not only been found comfort-adding, but the latter improvement serves to permit the operator of the car free and unrestricted movement in handling the wheel.

STUTZ MAY QUIT TRACK

Leases Fast Car for the Summer; No Driver Named.

Failure to Capture First Prize at Chicago "Sours" Owner.

Harry C. Stutz, president of the Stutz Motor Car company of Indianapolis, Ind., has leased the car Howard Wilcox drove in the recent 500-mile automobile Derby at Chicago to E. C. Patterson and Ralph de Palma for the summer racing campaign. Under the guidance of the lessees, it will first be driven over the Elgin race course on Aug. 20 and 21, E. C. Patterson having filed the entry over his signature recently.

No driver has been named for the car. A number of the best men in the country have been taken into consideration, and the Patterson-De Palma syndicate will be represented by a pilot of known reputation and ability.

Patterson's entry was the first received for the Kane county classics, and its nature attracted a great deal of attention in motoring circles. Whether the leasing of the car to Patterson and De Palma means the retirement of the Stutz company from the racing game is yet a problem. The Stutz are known to be the fastest 300-cubic-inch cars ever manufactured by an American builder. Their reputation became international when at Indianapolis and Chicago this year they were almost successful in their challenge of of the premier cars of Europe.

Stutz is known to have been disgusted with racing conditions after the Chicago race when two of his three cars finished high in the rank of the leaders with averages hitherto unapproached in the history of American racing. No reason could be ascribed by motor crites to Stutz's sudden change of heart, as the showing his cars made certainly was considered satisfactory from every standpoint. It was generally understood, however, that he hoped for a victory. Failure to secure first place, however, is said to have soured him on the racing game.

De Palma saw the capabilites of the Stutz cars at Indianapolis, and when he heard the president of the company intended to store them for the summer, he began negotiations to secure at least one of them for his own use until his Mercedes now being repaired at the Packard plant was ready. He tried to get the Wilcox car for Sioux City and Omaha but could not come to terms in time to give the car a complete overhauling. He consummated the deal just before the Sioux City race.

He visited the Elgin course yesterday in company with officials of the Chicago Automobile club and Elgin Road Racing association to see what effect the $25,000 worth of work that has been done on the course would have on its surface. He was completely satisfied and asked Mr. Patterson to file the entry immediately. De Palma will enter the Mercedes as soon as he receives definite word from the Packard factory in Detroit that it will be in as good shape as it was before he won the Indianapolis sweepstakes.

The World's Lowest Priced Knight Motored Car

THIS announces the greatest achievement in the history of the automobile business.

The Knight is the automobile motor that revolutionized the entire motor car industry of Europe.

The Daimler of England, the Panhard of France, the Mercedes of Germany, the Minerva of Belgium—in fact practically all of the costly European cars—are equipped with the famous Knight type motor.

And these are the motor cars that cost from $4,000 to $8,000 each!

The Knight type motor is the nearest approach to 100% efficiency.

This motor differs from other motors in that where all others deteriorate with use, this improves; to all others carbon is harmful, here it is beneficial; size for size it has more power.

It has no noisy poppet valves; no noisy cams; no uncertain valve springs; no troublesome valves to grind; practically no wearing parts.

The Willys-Knight has the same advantages and is just as efficient as those costly European Knight cars.

As we build more cars in a single week than most European manufacturers build in a whole year, we are able to utilize every modern manufacturing economy.

That is why our price is so much less.

The Willys-Knight, in our opinion, has the least vibration and is the smoothest, quietest and most economical car made.

Have your demonstration at once.

FOREIGN EMPLOYES CELEBRATE "FOURTH"

Ford Company Gives Remarkable Americanization Day Program.

July 5, as Americanization day, was celebrated nowhere more enthusiastically than in Detroit, and none among the thousands of foreign-born who took part were more in the spirit of the day than the future citizens from the Ford Motor company's plant.

The 1,600 foreign-born workmen who are learning to read, write and speak the English language in the Ford English school, formed the nucleus for a monster parade, in which fully 6,000 unnaturalized employes of the Ford Motor company took part. Led by a boy scout bugle and drum corps, the men surprised all spectators by the orderly, well-organized manner in which they covered the two miles from where the parade formed to the city hall.

Arriving before the city hall the line, which extended for seven blocks, was closed up until all the marchers were in a compact group. Led by a cornet, this throng of aliens, each of whom hopes some day to become a citizen of the United States, joined in singing "America." At the conclusion of the song, there was a momentary pause, abruptly terminated by a mighty cheer, in which marchers and spectators alike, joined. The incident was filled with significance, for it was the first time in history that such an event had taken place, thousands of aliens singing the hymn of their adopted land.

Mayor Oscar B. Marx, in a few well-chosen words, complimented the men for the spirit they had shown upon Americanization day. At the close of the mayor's speech, the lines were reformed and the men marched to the food of Woodward avenue, where ferry boats were waiting to carry them to Belle Isle, the city's great park. Here games and contests were indulged in, most of the men taking part in the sports. Many had brought their wives and families, and the noon-hour found hundreds of picnics in progress. In the afternoon, the Ford men joined with several thousand other foreigners in attending the ceremonies arranged by the city.

As a closing incident to a delightful day, the teachers of the Ford English school were tendered a dinner in the evening at the Hotel Statler, in recognition of their services in the schoolroom. Ninety-five men were present and, after enjoying a satisfying banquet, they listened to a program of considerable merit. There were nine numbers on the program, ranging from classic piano solos to vaudeville of the "big time" sort, and every part was taken in a perfect manner by Ford employes. All save one of the performers was a teacher in the Ford school, and there appeared to be no end to the versatility of the Ford teaching staff.

AUTO MEN HELP MAKE PLAYGROUND

Utilizing Unimproved Property for Children Latest Innovation.

Utilizing unimproved property for the benefit of the children in the neighborhood is the latest innovation of the Detroit automobile manufacturers. A playground for children is the new feature which has been inaugurated by the Hupp Motor company and it has instantly become so popular that it is filled every day to capacity, although it was first opened only recently.

The new playground, located at Griffin and Moran streets, is similar to, although much larger, than those of the city in the public school yards. Like the city playgrounds, it is under the supervision of the recreation committee, which also furnishes the instructors, a man for the boys and a woman for the girls.

The idea of giving the children in the neighborhood a playground originated with J. Walter Drake, president of the Hupp company, who figured that the company could make a humanitarian use of its vacant property and at the same time take the children off the streets in the neighborhood, where they are in constant danger because of the scores of automobiles which are constantly coming and going from the Hupp factory.

The playground was fitted up with complete apparatus with a gravel and sand flooring and turned over to the city recreation committee, under whose supervision it is being operated.

This commission has appointed J. Richard Hardy as boys' director and Miss Irma Martens as girls' director. As high as 300 boys and girls have used the playground at times. The instructors give them regular lessons at stated hours and the rest of the day is devoted to free play.

There are swings, slides, teter boards wading ponds, sand boxes and a merry-go-round. A canvas will be stretched over a portion of the playground during the hottest parts of the day.

"We fitted up the playground as much for our own peace of mind as for the benefit of the children," said J. Walker Drake, president of the Hupp Motor company. "With cars constantly on the move in the streets around the factory it has been a difficult proposition to avoid accidents, especially on account of the large number of children who played in the streets around our factory.

"As we had this vacant property, which we are holding for additions to the factory, we decided to build the children a playground and let the city supervise it.

"Most of Detroit's automobile factories are located in the congested districts and I think that it would be of great benefit to both companies and the community if the other factories with vacant property would turn it over to the recreation committee."

OFFER BONUSES FOR EARLY DELIVERIES

Packard Twin Six Autos Meet With Heavy Demand.

In several of the larger cities bonuses are reported to have been offered for early deliveries of Packard Twin Six cars.

The office of Henry B. Joy, president of the company, is being flooded with letters from personal friends who seek preferred dates of shipment. The situation is reminiscent of the earlier days of the industry, a memento of which is a framed letter hanging in Mr. Joy's office, written by John D. Rockefeller to a United States senator, asking if the latter's influence could not secure an early Packard delivery.

Last week an owner wrote from New Orleans explaining that his wife was taking one of his cars away and that his son was planning a trip with the other. The writer has an order placed for two new cars and asked that his "street car sentence" be commuted.

Another appeal is made by a Boston woman who writes that the doctors have ordered her invalid daughter to take up a western residence. The mother declares that the young woman cannot endure the train trip and that she has urgent need for the car.

One of the most ingenious attempts to swing a shipment is that of a New Yorker, who holds a claim in a small mining community in Chico, Tex. He has applied for a dealership and hopes, thereby, to obtain one of the demonstrators.

MAKE LONG TOUR WITHOUT MISHAP

Texas Tourists Motor Over Dangerous Roads in Mountains.

After covering a drive of 1,380 miles with a 1,500-pound load, climbing many difficult grades and plowing through deep heavy mud a good part of the way, Thomas B. Van Auken and party of Beaumont Tex., have reached Colorado full of enthusiasm over the tour, which was made without a single disagreeable incident.

Describing the trip after reaching Colorado, Van Auken writes as follows from Sulphur Springs:

"We went from Colorado Springs to Buena Vista over the most dangerous roads in the mountains, such as the Battle Mount pass, Tennessee pass, the Trough and Berthuna pass, the latter the highest pass in the Rockies. This trail has been open but two days this season on account of snow. To our original load of passengers, we have added a camping outfit that weighs 310 pounds, but our KisselKar takes the grades without trouble.

"Today we drove 'The Trough'—seven miles long with a varying upgrade of 8 to 14 per cent and the car did not once boil water, although we saw no other car of which the same could be said. We have not spent one cent for repairs nor has a screwdriver or wrench touched the car since we left home. We have used but 133 gallons of gas and 1½ gallons of oil, remarkable indeed for a big car running through mud and over mountain trails."

KISSELKAR SHOWS GREAT ENDURANCE

Hose and Chemical Trucks Make Remarkable Cross-Country Run.

While many astonishing performances in cross-country driving in touring cars and commercial trucks are being recorded, a similar "stunt" on the part of motor-driven fire apparatus is rare enough to be peculiarly interesting.

Last week two KisselKar combination hose and chemical trucks were driven from Pittsburgh, Kan., to Parsons, Kan., a distance of forty miles. The trip is thus described:

"The drive was made the day following a two-weeks' rainfall and part of the run was over a river bottom with conditions the worst imaginable. We passed through about four miles of bog with the rear footboards frequently scraping the ground. The officials with us expressed themselves as amazed at the stamina of these trucks."

APPERSON AGENT RETURNS.

B. G. Spier Visits Company's Plant at Kokomo.

B. G. Spier of the Apperson Auto agency, returned yesterday from a two-weeks' auto trip to Chicago. He also visited the Apperson Motor company's plant at Kokomo, Ind. The entire trip was made without a hitch in a 1915 Apperson car. The total mileage being 2,070 miles.

Mr. Spier reports that the down trip, which was made through Wisconsin to Milwaukee, was over bad roads. The return trip was by way of Minneapolis.

GOOD-BY FOR OLD DOBBIN.

Noted Equestrienne Gives Up Horse for Cole Motor Car.

The motor car is making new conquests daily in all sections of the country. Each day finds some enthusiastic lover of horses saying goodbye to Old Dobbin for the luxuries and comforts of the automobile.

One of the most recent automobile converts of note in Mlle. Ida St Leon, who in her circus days was one of the most noted and daring equestrienes in the country. She recently has been appearing in "Polly of the Circus," reliving the former triumphs of the sawdust ring. Just a few weeks ago she changed her allegiance after riding in one of the new Cole eight-cylinder cars in Los Angeles, Cal.

"I am a motor adherent now," declares Miss St. Leon. "It seems strange to say it, but I have been won away from the big dapple-grays by the motor car."

Editor Buys Cole Car.

E. S. Warner of the editorial staff of Smart Set and Field & Stream is one of the new owners of Cole eight-cylinder cars. Mr. Warner has had his car fitted with a special Victoria top and has been touring continually for the past three weeks. In that time he has traveled more than 3,000 miles. He reports that the car has exceeded his every expectation in its wonderful performance over all kinds of hills and roads.

Long Trip in Cole.

C. P. Henderson, general sales manager of the Cole Motor Car company, has just returned from a long tour through the East in which the Cole he drove covered 2,000 miles. Mr. Henderson was accompanied by his family.

Much Manufacturing Detail.

Some idea of the tremendous amount of manufacturing detail involved in the making of motor car parts can be gained from the following figures obtained at the big Detroit plant of Dodge Brothers. The cylinder block casting undergoes 150 separate operations; transmission case, 50 operation; speedometer drive gear in transmission, 31 operations; and the drive-gear, oil pan and pistons take 37, 28 and 23 operations respectively. This work includes all operations from the time the core is made in the foundry until the completely machined and gauged part is ready for assembly in the motor car.

WILLIS MADE SALES MANAGER.

Veteran Auto Man Promoted By Chalmers Company.

The Chalmers Motor company has just announced the appointment of Frank B. Willis to the position of assistant sales manager. Prior to his enlistment in the factory sales force Mr. Willis was a Chalmers district manager for the Eastern district. In connection with his new work Willis will come in personal contact with Chalmers dealers throughout the country, spending a large portion of his time in the field.

Fifteen years' service in the automobile business is the record of Frank Willis. For seven years he was associated with Carl G. Fisher in Indianapolis. Beginning with 1909 he spent two years as Packard dealer in Indianapolis, later he was branch manager for Studebaker in the same city.

In 1912 he joined the E. M. F. organization and in 1913 was assistant sales manager to Paul Smith, then with the Lozier company.

As dealer, branch manager, district manager and in other allied capacities he has become intimately acquainted with thirty-two makes of cars. His experience covers selling, accounting and management of every phase of the automobile industry and comes as a valuable addition to the already highly organized Chalmers company.

Mr. Willis' large number of friends in the motor car trade will be glad to hear of his promotion.

PACKARD MAN HONORED.

Russell Huff Nominated to Head Engineers' Society.

Russell Huff, consulting engineer of the Packard Motor Car company, is nominated for the presidency of the Society of Automobile Engineers, which includes the most able creative men of the motor industry. The nomination is equivalent to an election. Mr. Huff is one of the foremost engineering authorities, having been identified with Packard development since the enterprise was started in Warren, Ohio, sixteen years ago.

Dodge Man Promoted.

Godfrey Strelinger, well known in Detroit motoring circles and for the past year connected with the sales department of Dodge Brothers, has been appointed assistant to J. E. French, San Francisco district representative for Dodge Brothers. Mr. Strelinger is now on the Pacific coast. Previous to his connection with Dodge Brothers he was connected with the sales force of the Lozier Motor company.

Brisk Demand for Cars.

The Zenith Auto company, 123 First avenue west, reports the sale of two Cartercars and two Metz cars for this week. The sales were made to persons living at Two Harbors. The Zenith company is receiving numerous inquiries for cars of both types, and the popularity of these cars is gaining in Duluth and the surrounding territory.

Big Shipment of Kings.

A heavy shipment of King Eights will be received in Duluth next week by the Zenith Auto company. A number of King Fours have just been sold.

All-Year Tops Popular.

The body building department of the Kissel Motor Car company is working upon a greatly increased schedule of all-year tops. The demand for this Kissel innovation last season was so significant that greater facilities were provided to meet the expected 1916 demand. But the summer schedule adopted May 1 has already been found inadequate to keep up with orders from dealers, hence a further revision.

Makes 1,600-Mile Trip.

Manager O. W. Rowe has returned from a ten days' outing trip through Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa and Minnesota in his new Apperson six. He reports a very satisfactory journey over 1,600 miles of roads both good and bad.

STATE SUPREME COURT DECISIONS

St. Paul, Minn., July 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Minnesota supreme court yesterday handed down the following decisions:

ST. LOUIS COUNTY.
Illinois Law Governs.

Jessie Isadore Anderson, respondent, vs. Royal League, appellant—

In this action upon a certificate issued by a fraternal benefit society, organized under the state of Illinois, we assume, for the purposes of this case, that the laws of that state govern the rights of the parties.

The deceased member was the stepfather of plaintiff, the designated beneficiary; they were members of the same household when the certificate issued and at the time of the member's death, and he had voluntarily assumed to contribute to the support of the household. It is held that plaintiff was a proper beneficiary as one of the family of the deceased member and within the class of permitted beneficiaries under the Illinois statute.

Defendant's by-law is not more restrictive than the statute, and, given a liberal construction, its designation of an adopted child as a proper beneficiary embraces a stepdaughter who is of the same household with the member. But even were it held restrictive, the evidence shows the by-law to have been waived and defendant estopped from asserting that it excludes plaintiff.

The evidence being conclusive that plaintiff was a proper beneficiary when the member died the issue of dependency became immaterial and errors assigned upon the reception of testimony and the instructions of the court upon such issue, even if well founded, are without prejudice.

Affirmed. HOLT, J.

ST. LOUIS COUNTY.
Orders Affirmed.

W. S. Telford, respondent, vs. Pennsylvania Iron & Steel company et al, respondents, Charles McGillis, appellant; W. S. Telford, appellant vs. Pennsylvania Iron & Steel company et al, respondents—

1. A notice of expiration of redemption from a tax sale which imposes upon the redemptioner the burden of determining which of two amounts stated therein as necessary to redeem is correct does not comply with the statutes upon the subject and is insufficient.

2. The notice in this respect must be definite and specific and free from doubt and uncertainty.

3. A judgment in an action to determine the title to real property is conclusive of the rights of all parties to the action and those in privity with them, and includes all rights or interests in the property which were or could have been litigated therein.

4. Intervener in this action claiming certain rights and interests in the land in controversy conveyed the same to a third person to enable such third person to perfect the title; such third person thereupon brought an action to quiet title to the land, making defendants Stubler, under whom intervener now claims, parties defendant; judgment was rendered to the effect that defendants were the owners of the land free and clear of all claims on the part of plaintiff in the action, who was prosecuting the same in the interests of intervener.

It is held that the judgment forever barred and extinguished all rights intervener may have had in or to the land, including the right to terminate the Stubler title by redemption as their mortgagor.

Order affirmed on both appeals.
BROWN, C. J.

HENNEPIN COUNTY.
Village Not Liable.

Jane L. Austin et al., respondents, vs. County of Hennepin et al., defendants; village of Tonka Bay, appellant—

1. By chapter 164, laws of 1905, and the acts amendatory thereof, the legislature gave counties having more than 150,000 population authority to construct bridges and approaches thereto within villages without the consent or concurrence of the village.

2. Damaging private property abutting upon a highway by constructing an embankment in the highway is an invasion of the rights of the owner of the property for which section 13, article 1, of the Constitution requires compensation to be made.

3. Where none of the property itself is taken and the damages thereto are consequential only, the right of the owner to go into court and compel the municipality which invades the rights secured to him by the Constitution to make compensation therefor, satisfies the Constitutional requirement that such compensation shall be secured to him.

4. The obligation to pay such compensation rests upon the political subdivision or municipality of the state that invades such right, where the legislature has made no other provision for the payment thereof.

5. In the present case, the county invades such right but the village did not, and the duty to make compensation rests upon the county and not upon the village.

Reversed. TAYLOR, C.

HENNEPIN COUNTY.
Not Subject to Tax.

State of Minnesota, respondent, vs. Minnesota Farmers' Mutual Insurance company, appellant—

The defendant is held to be a Town and Farmers' Mutual Insurance company within G. S. 1913, Sec. 3302, R. L. 1905, Sec. 1625, and not subject to the 2 per cent tax on premiums therein provided.

Order reversed. PER CURIAM.

HENNEPIN COUNTY.
Trial Court Sustained.

Charlie Wheeler, respondent, vs. Ole N. Nelson, appellant; Iver A. Olsen et al., respondents—

1. The finding of the trial court that Defendant Olsen never had any interest in the land in controversy is sustained by the evidence.

2. A creditor of a party selected as a mere medium through whom a conveyance of land is made does not, by reason of that fact alone, acquire any right, title or interest in the land by virtue of a judgment existing against such medium.

Order affirmed. SCHALLER, J.

RAMSEY COUNTY.
Photographs as Evidence.

Albert O'Neil, appellant, vs. Charles P. Potts, respondent, and Rose O'Neil, appellant, vs. Charles P. Potts, respondent—

1. Strasser vs. Stabeck, 112 Minn., 90, 127 N. W. 384, followed to the effect that a photograph will be admitted, when properly verified, to illustrate or express the testimony of a competent witness, but it is not original evidence.

2. The admission of evidence tending to show a practice among automobile drivers of signaling to cars behind them before stopping, held not prejudicial error. Failure to conform to the practice was merely evidence tending to show want of ordinary care.

Orders affirmed. SCHALLER, J.

RAMSEY COUNTY.
Railroad Taxation.

State of Minnesota appellant, vs. Northern Pacific Railway company, respondent—

1. Where two carriers enter into an arrangement by which one becomes practically the hiring and disbursing agent of the other in the performance of duties partly owing by both, paying out for and receiving back from the other only the actual cost of the service, with no intention of gaining revenue or making a profit out of the transaction, held, that where such arrangement is made in good faith and not in fraud, subterfuge or evation of the obligations of either party to the state or to the public, such moneys are not subject to the gross earnings tax.

2. Where such services are included in the freight charges of the other railway companies, which pay a gross earnings tax thereon, held, that to compel defendant to pay a tax on these same receipts would be in the nature of double taxation, exacting the commutation taxes on the same property twice, which cannot lawfully be done.

3. Defendant and certain navigation companies agreed that defendant should employ stevedores to perform certain work, part of which it was the duty of defendant to perform, the navigation companies paying to defendant the actual cost of the labor. Defendant in hiring the men to do the work, really acted for the boat companies as hiring and disbursing agent, paying for the actual cost of the work, making no profit and receiving back from the boat companies only what it expended. Held, that in the absence of fraud, subterfuge or evasion of the obligations of either party to the state or to the public, moneys received from such boat companies under such circumstances are not subject to the gross earnings tax.

Judgment affirmed.
SCHALLER, J.

RAMSEY COUNTY.
Creditor's Rights.

National Surety Company, respondent, vs. Joseph A. Hurley, defendant; Charles A. Bettingen, as trustee, appellant.

1. Where a debtor, by trust deed assented to by all his creditors, conveyed his property to trustees to be converted into money and the proceeds thereof to be distributed to his creditors, the creditors took a vested and not a contingent interest in the trust estate.

2. The interest of a creditor in such trust estate is subject to garnishment; and if it cannot be determined at the time of the disclosure whether the amount to which such creditor is entitled will be sufficient to satisfy the claim of the plaintiff in the garnishment proceeding, the garnishment proceeding should be continued until the amount applicable to such claim can be determined.

3. By service of the garnishee summons, plaintiff impounded the interest of Defendant Hurley in the trust estate in the hands of the garnishees, and it sufficiently appeared at all times that Hurley's interest in such estate was more than sufficient to satisfy plaintiff's claim.

Affirmed. TAYLOR, C.

RAMSEY COUNTY.
Date Not Essential.

Mary Murphy, appellant, vs. City of St. Paul, respondent.

1. A complaint alleging a defective sidewalk whereby the plaintiff was caused to stumble, and became confused and stepped into the entrance of a building which had become dilapidated so as to constitute a trap and pitfall, the sidewalk being unguarded, and was precipitated some ten feet to the floor below, and was injured, states a cause of action.

2. A mis-statement of one day in the date given in the notice to the city of the time of the accident is not fatal upon demurrer.

Acquiescence an Estoppal.

Ethel Stolorov et al, respondent, vs. National Council, Knights and Ladies of Security, appellant—

A member of a fraternal insurance association, whose membership is attempted to be terminated by expulsion after proceedings had by the order on charges made against the member, may, by acquiescence in the result, lose such membership, whether the proceedings be legal or not.

The court erred in refusing to submit to the jury the question whether or not the deceased member acquiesced in the action of the society expelling her and canceling her certificate.

Damages Not Excessive.

O. B. Knapp, respondent, vs. Great Northern Railway company, appellant—

In this action under the Federal Employers' Liability act the evidence is held to make the issue of defendant's negligence, plaintiff's contributory negligence and assumption of risk for the jury and not the court.

It was also for the jury to determine whether defendant's negligence was the proximate cause of the injury.

The damages as reduced are not so excessive as to warrant interference by this court.

Order Affirmed.

William Anderson, respondent, vs. Canadian Northern Railway company, et al, appellants—

1. The evidence is held sufficient to sustain the verdict.

2. The damages awarded, as reduced by the trial court, held not excessive.

3. The refusal of the trial court to grant certain requests to instruct the jury held not error.

4. Under ordinary circumstances it is negligence to alight from a moving train. However, circumstances may arise under which it becomes a question for the jury. Held, that under the evidence in this case, the question as to whether or not plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence was properly for the jury.

5. The question as to whether or not a new trial should be granted for improper remarks, conduct or argument on the part of counsel is almost entirely within the discretion of the trial court, whose decision will not be questioned by this court unless it clearly appears that there was an abuse of discretion.

Order affirmed. SCHALLER, J.

Divorce Findings Upheld.

Lydia Tolzman, appellant, vs. Max Tolzman, respondent—

Plaintiff brought this action for a limited divorce on the ground of desertion and failure to furnish support. On the trial, more than two years after the action was commenced, defendant was permitted to amend his answer by alleging willful desertion of him by plaintiff for the statutory time, and asking an absolute divorce. It is held:

1. Plaintiff consented to the amendment, and the issue raised thereby was tried by consent.

2. The evidence sustains the finding that plaintiff was guilty of willful desertion continuing for the statutory period. It was not error to reckon as part of this period the time during which this action for a limited divorce was pending. Hurning vs. Hurning, 80 Minn., 373, distinguished.

Affirmed. BUNN, J.

REDWOOD COUNTY.
Judgment Affirmed.

Herman Trebesch, respondent, vs. Christian Trebesch et al., appellants—

1. A father living on a farm, and owning another quarter section of land, told an unmarried son that if he would stay and work on the farm until he married and would agree to pay certain installments of the unpaid purchase price of the quarter section, he would give him the quarter section of land upon his marriage. The son accordingly remained and worked on the farm until more than three years after his majority and made no charge for his services. After the son's marriage the father made him a parol gift of the land and delivered possession. In pursuance of the gift the son entered into possession, held such premises for fourteen years, made permanent improvements to the value of $200, and allowed any claim for services to be barred by the statute of limitations.

2. To constitute a valid transfer of land by verbal gift there must be a gift executed by delivery of possession, an acceptance of the gift, and performance of such acts in reliance thereon that it would work a substantial injustice to hold the gift void.

3. The doctrine rests on the ground that under such circumstances it would be a virtual fraud to interpose the statute as a bar to plaintiff's right.

4. Evidence that the donee, in reliance on the gift, rendered personal services of a character not intended to be measured by a money standard, and the value of which it is impossible to estimate in money, and that he allowed the statute of limitations to bar the assertion of any claim for such services, accepted the gift, occupied the land for fourteen years, and made permanent improvements thereon, is sufficient to show part performance.

5. The taking of a written lease of premises by one in possession under a claim of title adverse or hostile to that of the lessor does not estop the lessee from setting up title in himself.

Judgment affirmed. HALLAM, J.

Fair Weather Brings Out About 500 to Chester Park.

With the return of fair weather yesterday, the Duluth playgrounds enjoyed the largest attendance of the year. Five hundred persons took advantage of the charms of Chester park and directors were enabled to stage contests recently postponed on account of rain. J. R. Batchelor, recreational director, announced that the formal playground opening would be held next Tuesday in Chester park.

A baseball team representing the Chester park playgrounds defeated the West end team by the score of 13 to 12. The Chester park quoit throwers defeated the West enders two out of three games, but could get only one game out of three in volley ball.

DRAMA VAUDEVILLE MOTION PICTURES

COMMENT ON PLAYS AND PLAYERS — WHAT THE PRESS AGENTS PROMISE

PERIODICAL changes which are always a part of the existence of a stock company, will bring the departure from Duluth tomorrow of five members of the Baldwin company. They are: Miss Anne Bronaugh, Miss Margaret Lotus, Harry L. Minturn, William Mortimer and A. Romaine Callender. All five have done faithful and meritorious work in Duluth, and they will leave many friends and admirers behind them, who will hope for their return at some future date. Miss Bronaugh returns to Winnipeg for a stock engagement, and the others are going to Chicago and New York with plans not fully matured.

The Baldwin company's venture into musical comedy and Miss Edna Munsey's appearance will be the chief event of interest in the amusement field locally next week. The Grand theater with its popular priced vaudeville and Charley Chaplin pictures continues to draw capacity audiences.

MISS EDNA MUNSEY IN "MADAME SHERRY"

Baldwin Players Will Make First Venture in Musical Field.

"Madame Sherry" will serve as the vehicle to introduce the Baldwin Players to Duluthians in a musical production.

Also Miss Edna Munsey will make her debut before a Duluth audience as a prima donna, beginning with the matinee tomorrow, at the Lyceum.

"Madame Sherry" is not a musical comedy of the familiar type, but is rather a comedy with music. It has a coherent little plot, but several musical numbers are interpolated. It tells of the adventures of a teacher of aesthetic dancing, and the chorus consists of her eight pupils. There is no male chorus. It was seen in Duluth several years ago, and almost every theatergoer is familiar with the catchy hit from it, "Every Little Movement Has a Meaning All Its Own." There are several other musical numbers less well known, but almost as tuneful.

The center of attraction next week will be Miss Edna Munsey. Miss Munsey has been heard in vaudeville in Duluth, and also as a member of the "Tango Town" cast, but she has not yet appeared in Duluth as a prima donna in a musical production. All last season she was featured in "The Little Cafe" and next season she will have the title part in "The Only Girl," Victor Herbert's new musical comedy. This is not likely to come to Duluth, however, so next week will be the only opportunity Duluthians will have to hear her.

Another member of the cast who has attained considerable prominence in musical comedy will be Fred Carleton, who has been brought here for the week's engagement. Mr. Carleton has played in "Madame Sherry" and last season was with "Sari." He will have one of the principal parts next week.

George Fox, one of the veteran members of the Baldwin forces, is expected to come into his own next week. His training has been almost entirely along musical comedy lines, and he has had little opportunity to show his ability with the company to date, but next week he will appear as Theophilus, the principal comedy part.

Other members of the company who will have prominent parts in the production are: Miss Geraldine Blair, Walter Baldwin, Jr., Miss Maud Melville, Miss Marie Campbell and William Donovan.

Much interest has been aroused by the production, judging from the advance inquiries at the Lyceum box office. Monday night will be Elks' night, and fully 200 Elks and their families are expected to attend.

Tonight will mark the closing performance of "The Squaw Man." It has been one of the best dramatic productions of the entire Baldwin season. "Madame Sherry" will open with the Sunday matinee and continue all week with the usual matinees Wednesday and Saturday. It may be followed by another musical production if the desired arrangements can be made.

STRONG PROGRAM AT NEW GRAND

Charlie Chaplin, Aki Trio and Other Acts Full of Interest.

The present bill at the New Grand is one of the best seen at that popular playhouse in some time. It contains all the essentials that go to make a thoroughly enjoyable entertainment and the lively tempo that is struck at the beginning is maintained until the asbestos descends and ends it all—all but the pictures, and they add a finishing touch of the desirable kind to an excellent entertainment.

Dividing headline honors with the SCENE FROM "WILD OLIVE," Showing Myrtle Stedman, Said to Be One of the Most Beautiful Women in the "Movies."

Aki troupe, Nick Hufford and the Lockhart Sisters have registered the comedy hit of the bill at every performance. One of the many numbers in this act is the impersonation by Hufford of an old Southern negro preacher. From the time he finishes his first sentence he has his audience "going" and from that on until he is reluctantly permitted to make his last bow, his discourse is punctuated with shrieks of laughter.

The Aki troupe of Japanese "wonder workers offer a novelty in Japanese acts. Mystery, sleight-of-hand and singing by tiny Hatsha Kuma, the child Japanese "marvel," combine to make the offering unusual and one to be enjoyed. Gorgeous black velvet and gold settings give the act a magnificent appearance.

Bits of vaudeville are offered by the versatile Jermon and Mack. Club swinging, singing, dancing and a clever line of chatter fill in twenty minutes of enjoyable entertainment.

Society dancing is featured by Paddock and Paddock, who offer a repertoire of all latest society dances, including some original dances of their own. A number of songs are also interpolated in a pleasing manner.

"Getting Acquainted," featuring the universal favorite, Charlie Chaplin, is one of this clever comedians best subjects. "The Silent W," in two reels; one of the Helen Holmes railroad stories, "The Midnight Limited," two comedies, and the Hearst-Selig News complete an excellent entertainment.

Commencing Monday matinee the new bill is headed by the Nettie Carroll troupe. Burnham and Yant, comedy singing and talking; Judson Cole, the talkative trickster, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cappelan in a comedy playlet, "Hiring a Maid," are other vaudeville offerings.

"The Criminal," a three-part Vitagraph drama, features Norma Talmadge and Maurice Costello. One of the Billy Reeves comedies, "Just Like Kids," and a drama, "The Conversion of Smiling Tom," complete the bill.

GRAND OPERA FEATURED

Rex Pipe Organist Plans Italian Program; Noted Film Stars Coming.

Italian grand opera is Mr. Runkel's special music for today's feature. Selections will be largely from Mascagni's opera, "Cavalleria Rusticana," which contains the famous intermezzo. Mascagni is one of the foremost of Italian opera composers.

Duluth folk will be interested in knowing that Jane Grey, who will be at the Rex Monday and Tuesday in "The Flaming Sword," is leading woman for Willard Mack in his great Republic theater success, "Kick-In."

One of the five most beautiful women in pictures is the distinction given Miss Myrtle Stedman, co-star in "The Wild Olive," to play at the Rex Wednesday and Thursday. Her expressive eyes and her splendid physique combine with her glowing personality to make "Wild Olive" a masterpiece, which would be hard to surpass. Forest Stanley, starring with Miss Stedman, is the matinee idol whose golden hair and strongly chiseled profile have had feminine hearts fluttering by the thousands. He is said to stride through "The Wild Olive" with the air of a young Greek god.

Something entirely new will be the attraction Friday and Saturday. The world-famed dancer, Maud Allan who with her bosom friend, Pavlowa, is ranked one of the two greatest dancers in the world, will make her first appearance in Duluth and her first appearance for the camera in "The Rug Maker's Daughter." Miss Allan, whose interpretative dances adapted from Beethoven, Chopin, Grieg and other masters and whose revival of Greek nature dances have made her name famous, has just completed a triumphant two years' tour of Australasia, India and the Orient. Her eight months' run at the Palace theater following her first appearance in Great Britain is said to have broken all records.

The South American excursion via the Paramount Travel Series, will be given Friday and Saturday, each week.

At the Lyric.

"The Cup of Life" is a Mutual masterpiece played by an all-star cast and produced by one of the biggest producers in the country, Thomas H. Ince.

"The Cup of Life" is a graphic portrayal of the lives of two sisters, both beautiful, young and innocent, but one chooses the false atmosphere of material pleasures—the other is content with the simpler things of life. Bessie Barriscale, as the worldly-minded one, plays the part with intensity. The girl's gradual descent from the pinnacle of luxury and ease, the fading of youthful beauty and charm, are faithfully portrayed. The butterfly life of the cafes and boulevards, the frothy gayety and snobbery of selfishness and pleasure seeking are graphically shown. "The Cup of Life" holds the mirror up to nature in very truth, it is said. This picture will be shown at the Lyric Friday and Saturday.

At the New Sunbeam.

"The Goddess," the wonderful new serial story in fifteen installments, written by Gouverneur Morris and picturized by the Vitagraph Company of America, will have its initial presentation at the New Sunbeam theater tomorrow. This new serial will be shown in installments of two reels each and has been declared by critics to be one of the biggest sensations in moving pictures that has been produced this year. Miss Anita Stewart and Earle Williams, two of the Vitagraph players who stand high in motion picture circles, will portray the leading roles.

"Midst Raging Beasts," a Selig wild animal picture in two reels, will also be shown tomorrow. The Selig company is acknowledged to have one of the finest collections of wild animals possessed by any amusement company in America and they have already issued some of the finest productions along this line that have ever been produced. Miss Katherin Williams, a screen artist of unusual ability, is the titled artist in this photoplay. Charlie Chaplin, who is liked by everyone, appears tomorrow in a comedy entitled the "Star Boarder." Chaplin is becoming intensely popular with the motion picture public of the country and is working like a Trojan in order to keep up with the demand for his pictures. For Monday and Tuesday "The Money Leeches," a powerful two-act Kalem play depicting the loan shark associations of this country, will be shown.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

Prosperity will begin when the coming theatrical season opens, if one is to believe in the prophetic utterances of managers who are preparing to place before the American theater-going public a rather pretentious list of new productions. According to Selwyn & Co., war or no war, the people will demand the highest grade of entertainment, and theatrical lines will prosper along with other lines of endeavor.

Acting upon this gladsome statement, Selwyn & Co. will start things going with the production of "Rolling Stones" on Aug. 16. Early in September their second venture, "Under Fire," by the author of "Under Cover," will be started. Irvin Cobb's "Back Home" will be the next in order, and "The Mystic Shrine" will follow a little later. In October "The Devil's Garden" will be put on, then "The Show Shop." Margaret Illington in "The Lie," five companies of "Twin Beds," two companies of "Under Cover," and last, but not least, Irvin Cobb will make another tour of the states to tell "What I Saw at the Front." Besides these productions, which the Selwyns emphatically state will be produced, there are others on the list which may later be put on.

Phyllis Neilson-Terry, the English actress who has been playing under American contract for the last season, has braved the submarine-infested seas and sailed for her home.

* * *

Since her European engagements were interrupted by the war Louise Gunning has been taking life easy on a ranch out West. She is expected back in New York shortly, however, to resume her musical career. Offers have been made for her services here and abroad, but Miss Gunning prefers to stay in America.

* * *

William Hodge will appear again next season in his former successful comedy by Lawrence Whitman, "The Road to Happiness."

* * *

The Shuberts have just completed arrangements with the Teatro National, in Havana, Cuba, whereby ten of the best weeks in the winter season at this theater are laid aside for a Winter Garden production.

Louis Mann, in "The Bubble," enters upon his fifteenth week of prosperity at the Booth theater, New York.

* * *

Rehearsals of the musical production, "Hands Up," booked for early production in New York, have begun again. In the new version now being rehearsed Lew Fields will not be in the cast. Ralph Herz will fill the gap created by Field's withdrawal.

* * *

Margaret Dale has been engaged as leading woman for E. H. Sothern during his engagement in modern plays next season, previous to the farewell tour of Sothern and Marlowe, which is expected to take place in 1917.

* * *

Percy Burton, manager for Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, sailed on the steamer New York for London July 3, after having completed negotiations for Forbes-Robertson's farewell tour of the cities in this country, which were not covered in his itinerary this past season. Mr. Burton will return to this country when the season opens, and will direct the Granville Barker tour of "Androcles and the Lion" and "The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife," at the same time retaining his position as manager for Sir Forbes-Robertson, who will appear in Shubert theaters.

Julia Marlowe is reported as having fully recovered from her illness and will be able to resume the gigantic task of playing a repertoire of five or six Shakespearean plays a week.

* * *

The Shuberts are preparing to produce a new operetta, "The Blue Paradise," by Leo Stein, author of "The Merry Widow."

* * *

One of the funniest situations in "The Peasant Girl," which played at the Forty-fourth street theater, is the breaking of a dozen or so china plates every night by Helenc, who in a fit of tantrums over Count Bole's unfaithfulness, hurls the loose chinaware about the room. Since the opera began twelve weeks ago, 1,980 china plates have been destroyed, an average of 165 a week.

* * *

Josef Holbrooke, composer of "The Enchanted Garden," and Adolf Schmidt, who are under contract with Max Rabinoff to aid in the production of the opera, arrived in New York recently from England. "The Enchanted Garden" is the medium for starring Pavlowa when she begins to demonstrate "mimo-choreographic grand opera" in America for the first time. The "mimo-choreographic" style of grand opera consists of dance features having about the same relative importance as both the musical score and libretto. Another style called the "mimo-dramatic," will also be demonstrated by the light-footed Pavlowa. This latter style is a composition in which pantomime artists appear with the singing principals and chorus. Auber's "The Dumb Girl of Portici," which is also included in Pavlowa's repertoire, is an example of the "mimo-dramatic" opera.

Out of the mystic Orient has come the new play in which Mme. Nazimova is to star next season. The work is from the pen of the Bengal poet, Rabindranath Tagore, who visited this country a few years ago. This is the first work of the author presented here, except "The Postoffice," which was given by a house club. Maurice Stern is preparing for the production, and has acted as intermediary for the Russian actress and Tagore.

Margaret Illington's long season in "The Lie," in which she had a season-long success at the Harris theater, and in which she will tour the whole country during the coming year, opens at Atlantic City late in July. She will play several weeks in the seashore cities before she goes into Chicago for a long stay.

* * *

Gertrude Hoffman will make use of a new version of "Sumurun" in the pretentious vaudeville act she is getting together for next season.

* * *

It is rumored that Olive Wyndham, late star of "A Modern Girl," is to be married in August to W. Kirkpatrick Brice, son of the late United States Senator Calvin Brice.

WORLD LOSS IN DEATH OF KLEIN

Friend Says Playwright's Possibilities Surpassed Anything He Actually Accomplished.

Joseph I. C. Clarke in the New York Sun: Such lists of the plays written by Charles Klein and such dates in his all too brief career as have been published since the German torpedo made the huge Lusitania his coffin, should not suffice as the life story of a remarkable personality. The sullen waters took no warmer heart to their cold embrace, and not many finer brains. One who speaks from nearly a quarter of a century of friendship and knew the man well can add that greater possibilities went down with him than anything he had achieved.

Like all men of genius, he wrought unevenly. The manifestations of his super-excellences came unexpectedly. Exercising a craft wherein success or failure cannot be predicted, we generally speak of the work of the dramatist by his successes and let the rest go. It is the easier way, but not the most satisfying.

He was born in London of Jewish parents on Jan. 7, 1867, and was reared in an art atmosphere much out of the usual in that big prosaic town. His father taught languages in a college-giate school in Camden Town—a shy, quiet little man. His mother, a bustling, active woman, taught deportment in the West end. There was a large family, six boys and a girl, all but Charles developing one musical taste or another as they grew up.

At 16 he ran away. He found his way somehow to America. Naturally he joined forces with his brother, Alfred, who had already located there.

It was all adventure. Of that time he told an episode that cost him his life. He was playing a couple of parts in an American play of "The Messenger From Jarvis Section" kind—the kind that makes a piece almost a monologue for a dialect star.

When Klein Broke Up the Play.

One of the parts was a ragmuffin boy, and at a certain point in the play he had to sit on the back of the star, who was adopting this means of trapping a cur that was passing slowly, stretch himself and lounge off the stage, uttering some ancient aside about getting a plate of beef and beans.

The antics in the wings of the gasman, who had been drinking, had, however, caught Charley's eye, and sent him into an explosion of laughter. Forgetting his position, he sat squarely down with a bump on the star and yelled with delight.

The house roared; the star squirmed; the cautious villain turned and looked villainously elsewhere. Klein was laughing convulsively, and at every bump he edged a little more around until the small actor was planted firmly on the pit of his stomach.

"Get off! Get off! Are you crazy?"

Charley but yelled the more as the audience now joined in with laughter. Only the purblind villain remained calm and kept up a make believe search for the star around an isolated well at left center. Finally the star, drawing up his legs and gripping Klein by the arms, flung him half way to the footlights, and then arose and chased him with objurgations out through the stage door, shouting as Klein cleared the fence in the alleyway:

"You are discharged!"

His Friend Charley Dixon.

"Naturally," Klein said, adding: "It was years before we made friends, but my back thought is admiration for the villain, who kept up his non-observant search unperturbed till they lowered the rag amid cheers and catcalls for the star, and the beggar took the call."

It was somewhere in this period that the event occurred which is, so far as I know, without parallel in the history of the drama. Among his actor friends was one named Charles Dixon, a gentle, genial, talented man, a player of eccentric comedy parts, whom many many playgoers will remember. He was a great believer in the dramatic genius of Charles Klein. Wherever he could boost Charley he did.

At last Charley Dixon, good old quiet Charley—not that he was very old but a dear good chap—had a great, a unique idea. He had a brother. This brother was a tailor, doing a flourishing business. To him one morning went Charley Dixon. And he said:

"J. B., do you want to be Maecenas; the Maecenas of America?"

"What was it, Charley?" answered J. B. Doblin, for that was his full name. "Would you like to be the Lorenzo de Medici of Forty-second street?"

"For the love of heaven, what was it, Charley?"

"Well," pursued Charley, "it's like this. There's a young fellow, an actor you've seen him act. You know the boy that sassed the policeman. Yes? Well, Charley Klein, and he wants to write plays, but he hasn't got the time."

"Let him take all the time he wants. What have I do with his time? Does he want credit for a suit of clothes? Is he a steady man or a bum friend of yours?"

This was a wholly uncalled for reflection on Charley Dixon's friends, but such gentle reproof is current coin among brothers. Charley turned his back to the counter, leaned against the edge of it, and said:

"This is a Maecenas with a comeback that I am laying out for you; this is a Lorenzo de Medici with a string to him."

Pleaded for Work.

"These men were Italians by the names of them. Come down on the ground, Charley."

"I'll bring the little man around and he'll talk to you, and my advice is to go with him as far as he wants to and you'll come out all right."

"You take up my time with conundrums," said J. B., turning testily away.

So Charley Dixon, departing, returned with Charley Klein, and the dramatist in posse laid his case before the tailor in esse.

"Charley, I tell you, was a good business man," said J. B. Doblin, a few days ago, "and he made a good arrangement with me. You know there was a force and a sincerity about his manner that you could not resist.

"I remember his fine, earnest eyes and how he pleaded to be allowed to work and to study and to do great things. I tell you, he went right home to my heart, and I got to love him. His pretty young wife and their two babies, with this young husband and father pleading for them! As for him, he could starve himself while he wrote and studied, but he could not let them starve. And what prospect had he on the stage?

"He could not play boys' parts much longer with the black beard showing through his skin. Then where would they be? If he was a boy pleading for his father's life and I was a judge he could not have pleaded harder. The tears, I tell you, were on my face, and I almost would have signed anything.

"All my family said, 'You are crazy.' And I answered, 'I am no pauper, and I believe in him.' And they said, 'Anyhow, you are crazy, and your money should be locked up, and Klein should be locked up.'"

Mr. Doblin the Winner.

Mr. Doblin kept his contract to the letter, and so did Charles Klein. Not all of the nine plays were money makers, but nearly all brought something, and some were successes. The list includes some forgotten, some not known: "Percy Medwin," "By Proxy," "The District Attorney," his first real dramatic hit, although it made little money, written in collaboration with Harrison Grey Fiske; "A Paltry Million," "The Attache," in collaboration with Clyde Fitch, never saw the light; "El Capitan," his first monetary success and big hit; "Ben Dagon," "Heartsease," in which I collaborated, and "Dr. Belgraff," a Svengali sort of play which disappointed many in not proving a great money maker.

It is pleasant to know that the valiant Mr. Doblin's bet at long odds as it was proved a big winner. He is now a wholesale clothier, and mourns sincerely for Charles Klein, who called to see his old friend the day before he sailed to his doom.

Klein had one-third royalties on "The Auctioneer," half royalties on "The Music Master," but full royalties on "The Lion and the Mouse." Wealth poured in on him in streams.

When His Fortune Changed.

Klein's mode of living henceforth enlarged. He had his country place in Connecticut, his yacht. He traveled abroad. He became a figure in London. The good things of life were about him, and his nature overflowed in generous deeds.

No fortune so high, however, that the arrows of fate cannot reach. Losses in many directions, unfortunate mixing in the responsibilities of management supervened. One is not to be expected to follow these out, except generally. "Daughters of Men," an admirable play, cost him much. "The Step-Sister" and "Next of Kin" failed. Then "The Third Degree" and "The Gamblers" succeeded, both sterling melodramas in modern style.

But the shrinkage in his fortunes persisted.

He sold out all around and went to England. Yet a mere potboiler, a thing he had undertaken under pressure almost on the eve of his departure and which he had thrown off in a few weeks, brought forth the interrupted golden shower and all the landscape was bright again. More plays were rattled off, more projected. A run across the Atlantic to attend to a little business, to greet old friends, to renew old friendships—and then the hideous bolt of doom on the Lusitania.

It stilled a virile brain and stopped the beating of a warm heart. It shattered the hope of a score of years of ripened work that seemed at our last handshake to be foreshadowed in the firmness of his grip and the clear light of his eyes.

PLANS BEING MADE FOR FORMING OF WESTERN ROWING ASSOCIATION

Meeting Will Be Held in Duluth During Northwestern Regatta for Purpose of Organizing Rowing Body to Embrace Leading Clubs of Central West—Duluth Has Taken the Initiative in the Plans and Is Real Leader in Move for Association to Succeed Northwestern.

BY BRUCE.

IT was stated here yesterday that a new rowing association, to embrace all of the representative boat clubs of the Middle West and possibly the Pacific coast, will be organized during the holding of the Northwestern International regatta here, next Friday and Saturday.

Including Duluth, St. Paul, Peoria, Grand Rapids, Lincoln park, Quincy, Detroit, the seven clubs of St. Louis, and a new club that is expected to be organized in Minneapolis between now and next season, the new association that is expected to prove a strong rival to the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen, will include the very cream of all the Western talent.

Sometime ago The Herald announced that plans were being formed for the organization of a new rowing association to supplant the Northwestern International Rowing association. These plans have been proceeding in a very quiet manner, but the consent of practically every Western Rowing club has been secured for the organization of the new association.

Northwestern Too Small.

As has been pointed out on numerous occasions, the Northwestern International Rowing association was too small—in other words, it has outlived its usefulness.

Had it not been for the fact that there are a bunch of hustlers identified with the rowing game up here, the regatta scheduled for next Friday and Saturday would prove a sad affair. As it is now, the big show of July 23 and 24 promises to be the best regatta that has been held in the West in years.

The Northwestern International failed to furnish sufficient competition. New blood has been needed, and out of the needs of the rowing situation in the Northwest has grown the inspiration for the organization of a Western association that may prove the largest rowing association in the United States.

Duluth followers of rowing and the Duluth Boat club stand responsible for the suggestion of the new association. It was in this city that the first suggestion came, and it has been the Duluth Boat club that has taken the initiative and sent out feelers to all of the clubs in the West.

To Divide the Country.

The organization of the Western Rowing association would mean that the country will be divided into two great rowing divisions. The Western association would rule supreme in the West, while the National association would control the affairs of rowing in the Eastern states.

With St. Louis entering seven clubs in the Western association, and with Detroit and Duluth, clubs that have figured in national rowing history in recent years, composing integral parts of the new organization, it will include within its ranks the fastest rowing crews of the country.

So far have the plans progressed toward the organization of the new association that Grand Rapods has made a formal bid for the first regatta. Having one of the best river courses in the West, and possessing ample facilities for the housing of visiting oarsmen, the Grand Rapids Boat and Canoe club will make a strong bid for the initial regatta.

The regatta to be held here next Friday and Saturday will prove a fitting inauguration of the idea that suggested the organization of a new and powerful Western Rowing association. While held under the auspices of the Northwestern International Rowing association, the regatta of next week will in fact be a mid-Western regatta and will embrace the supremacy of a wide rowing stretch of territory.

Duluth Western Leader.

It is a far cry from the the lowly and scornful position occupied by the Duluth Boat club years ago in the rowing affairs of the West to the leadership now so proudly held by the local club. It is the rise of the Duluth Boat club and the urgent demand for greater competition here at home that has had more than any other factor to do with the agitation for a new a more powerful rowing association to supersede the old and somewhat moribund Northwestern association.

There is not the least exaggeration or provincial braggadocio in the statement that today Duluth stands as the leader in Western rowing. The lean and hungry years through which Julius H. Barnes and a few others grimly and tenaciously fought for better crews here, have borne the fruit of success. The rise of Duluth has brought glory not only to this city, but also to the West in general, and it is the prowess of the Duluth crews and the stand of the followers of these crews that promises to result in the organization of one of the largest rowing associations in the United States.

It is probable that the meeting of those interested in the organization of the new rowing association will be held next Friday evening. Representatives of at least seven Western rowing clubs will be present. It is likely that the rowing clubs of St. Louis may combine and select a representative for their interests.

EASTERN GOLFER IS RATED AS A COMER

"BOB" M'DONALD.

"Bob" McDonald of the Buffalo Country club is one of the promising young golf players of the United States. In the first day's play of the Metropolitan Golf association's open championship tournament McDonald shared the honors with Walter Hagen the open champion. McDonald had a score of 145 for the first thirty-six holes, the same score as that turned in by Hagen, and played steady and consistent golf all the way.

AL CUMMINGS HAS BAD LUCK IN GAME

Loses in Eleventh After Not Allowing Hit for Ten Innings.

Quincy, Ill., July 17.—Pitcher Cummings of the Quincy Three-Eye team, after not allowing Rockford a hit until the eleventh inning Thursday, lost a great 1 to 0 battle when Catcher Jacobs made a home run over the left field fence in that round.

Pitcher Cummings is Al Cummings of Duluth. Al started his baseball career here while a schoolboy, and developed so much talent in that line that as soon as he was graduated from the Central high school he became a professional, playing in the old Northern league.

Some years ago he suffered an injury, of much the same nature as that which put Jack Coombs, formerly of the Athletics and now of the winning Superbas of Brooklyn, out of the game for years. Like Coombs, Al just managed to get back into the game this year, but has been pitching sensational ball since the opening of the season for the Quincy team.

JOHNNY DIDN'T MEAN IT; NOTHING FIXED IN GAMES.

Boston, Mass., July 17.—President Tener of the National league said today that he had found nothing to substantiate reports that Capt. Evers of the Boston Braves had charged that the National league race had been "fixed." Mr. Tener said after a conference with Manager Stallings of the Boston club and Capt. Evers that the latter denied having meant any such thing as was attributed to him in the published articles.

ORE DIGGERS CALCIMINED BY THE HUSTLING DOOKS

Posten Holds the Range Team to Four Hits and 4-to-0 Count; Game Is Played in the Fastest Time of Entire Season.

Palisade Posten held the faltering Virginia crew to four scattered hits in the baseball soiree of yesterday, the Dooks coming through with a lilting victory of 4 to 0.

During the game the visitors got but one man to third and four to second. Kernan collected three of the four blows gathered by the Ore Diggers, one of these blows being a slashing two bagger that Altman made a vain but gallant effort to pull down. In the fourth round, with men on third and second and one gone, Cronin belted a line drive that Wolfe pulled down and converted into a double play, pulling Posten out of a tight situation. After that the Pallisade man rode easy.

The game was the fastest of the local season, requiring but one hour and twelve minutes for its completion. Large Robert Wright was slabbing for the visitors, holding the locals to six blows. While the Dooks earned their first two runs by clean bludgeoning, some erratic baseball behind the big visiting twirler figured in the two runs of the eighth round.

In the first frame Burgwald singled and Altman was hit. Kirkham forced Altman at second, Burgwald going to third. Schroeder lofted to Sundheim. Williams was purposely passed and Wolfe was hit, scoring the first run. O'Brien lofted to center.

Kirkham singled in the third, advanced on Schroeder's out at first, and counted on William's clout over second base.

Altman was safe in the eighth on a fumble by Sundheim. Kirkham sacrificed the runner to second. Schroeder singled Altman to third. Williams walked. Wolfe hit to Sundheim who heaved Altman out at the plate, but in throwing to first to catch Wolfe Agnew made a bad peg, Schroeder and Williams counting, though Wolfe was flagged at second after the ball had been hurled around the diamond several times.

Sundheim pulled one of the most sensational catches of the year in the fourth, when running wit hhis back to the ball he pulled a back-handed one-hand stab of Sweeley's hit.

ATHLETIC TWIRLER NOW WITH YANKEES

"BOB" SHAWKEY.

Robert J. Shawkey, recently sold to the Yankees by Connie Mack, reported this week and will likely get a chance to work soon. Shawkey was born at Brookfield, Pa., in 1890. He first played ball for the Harrisburg Tri-State club in 1911. He attracted Connie Mack's attention and he was taken to the Athletic camp at San Antonio. He was soon sent to Baltimore, where he played until 1913 when Mack brought him to the big show. He is a good pitcher but not a world beater.

MAKES NEW MARK IN BACKSTROKE

Hebner of Chicago Beats Belgian's Reverse Swimming World Record.

San Francisco, Cal., July 17.—Harry Hebner of the Illinois Athletic club of Chicago, established a new world record for the 150-yard backstroke in the Panama-Pacific exposition indoor swimming championship meet last night, it was announced today. His time was 1:53 3-5, which is one-fifth of a second less than that made by Weckesser of Belgium, who held the world's record.

Hebner holds the American record in this event at 1:49 3-5, but this time was not allowed by the international records committee, as it was not made in a 75-foot tank.

Duke Kahanamoku of Honolulu, who won two events last night, is entered in the various events to be contested tonight. Other contestants include Perry McGillivray and Arthur Raithel of the Illinois Athletic club of Chicago, J. Wheatley and L. J. Goodwin of the New York Athletic club, and Herman Laubis of the Missouri Athletic club of St. Louis.

The eight events scheduled for tonight are: 100-yard dash, 200-yard breast stroke, 500-yard dash, high diving and 75-yard dashes, and springboard diving for women.

The meet will close tonight.

ED WALSH STAGES FINE "COMEBACK"

Chicago's Favorite Pitcher Shows Old-Time Form and Wins.

Chicago, July 17.—Ed Walsh has "come back," in the opinion of the biggest week-day crowd of the season, which watched him pitch Chicago to victory over Philadelphia yesterday 6 to 2. Holding the Athletics to six hits, passing only three men and strikink out five, the big pitcher looked like the Walsh of old, though some critics thought he lacked much of the speed he once showed. It was noted by others that he seldom, if ever, resorted to the spitball, but depended mostly on a slow curve and his expert knowledge of the opposing batters.

Of the half dozen safe drives the Athletics gathered, J. Walsh made three and Davies two; the latter getting a triple which paved the way to Philadelphia's first run. Walsh's most trying inning was the eighth, in which a walk and two singles gave the Athletics one run and threatened more, but he fanned Schang and caused La Joie to fly to Weaver for the final outs.

The Sox runs were mainly gifts. Schalk singled after Wycoff had passed two, and La Joie fumbled a grounder in the second, when four scored. Pitcher Sheehan got by without allowing a run, but successful bunting in the eighth off Knowlson netted two more for the White Sox. Besides the bestowal of gifts upon Walsh, the ceremonies included the raising of the Chicago championship pennant by a squad of soldiers from Fort Sheridan.

BIG FIELD IN WESTERN TITLE PLAY

Cleveland, Ohio, July 17.—Twelve and possibly thirteen teams from golf associations in the United States and Canada will compete today over the Mayfield course for the Olympic cup trophy, the annual curtain raiser to the Western amateur championship.

Because of late arrivals, officials did not know exactly what the makeup of the teams would be. Teams are expected to represent the following golf associations: Central Ohio, Chicago, Detroit, Southern, Trans-Mississippi, Canadian, Nebraskan, Intercollegiate, California, Western Pennsylvania and Indiana. Play will start at 9 o'clock.

It was announced by Secretary George F. Henneberry of the Western Golf association that "Chick" Evans of Chicago positively would compete in the amateur tourney starting Monday. Evans wired Henneberry to this effect late yesterday.

In all there were 182 entries in the amateur event, composing the most classic field that has ever participated for a western amateur title.

HE APPEALS TO THE GOOD JUDGE FOR HELP

SOME men have tried so long to find tobacco that would satisfy them, that they are naturally a little skeptical when they first hear of the Real Tobacco Chew.

But once they get the good tobacco taste they want to help other men. That's why they tell one another about it.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough—cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

Take less than one-quarter the old size chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just take a nibble of it until you find the strength chew that suits you, then see how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end. The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

"Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste."

MANY CRACK CREWS WILL ENTER THE NATIONAL REGATTA

Springfield, Mass., July 17.—With the time fast approaching for the forty-third annual regatta of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen, followers of the rowing game all over the country are beginning to speculate on the probable outcome of the championships. This event, the premier rowing regatta of the country in amateur circles, to take place on the Connecticut river, Aug. 13 and 14, opposite Riverside Park, this city, brings together the pick of amateur sweep swingers in this country and Canada.

Incidently one of the most important races of the regatta—championship singles—will be between an oarsman representing a Canadian club and another registered by an American organization. Although there will undoubtedly be other entries for this race, the two oarsmen considered as probable winners are Robert Dibble of the Don Rowing club of Toronto, Can., and John B. Kelly of the Vesper Boat club of Philadelphia.

Records of the last two years show Dibble to have won, but whether or not he will be able to equal the record made by Frank Greer of the East Boston A. A. Boat club, when he won the races three years in succession, is something worth considering. In Kelly, Dibble will run up against a sculler who was runner-up last year and who has been setting the pace for the many Philadelphia oarsmen, one of his most recent victories being in the singles race of the Navy day regatta.

Last year, Kelly was beaten by Dibble by the mere distance of half a length, and from Philadelphia comes the word that he is in better shape this year than last and capable, if ever, of defeating the great Canadian oarsman. Entered in the race in 1914 was Everard Butler of the Toronto Rowing club, his efforts amounting to third place. No word has been received from the Toronto club whether or not Butler will be here. Besides running second to Dibble Kelly gained prominence by winning the association singles race by a length and a half. There is no doubting that Kelly is the man to beat Dibble, if any, but it remains to be seen whether this is the year he can turn the trick.

Both clubs have assured officials of the association that Dibble and Kelly will positively be on hand. On account of the war in Europe, it was feared by some that Dibble would be unable to represent the Canadian club, but everything is all O. K.

Incidental to the announcement that these two famous scullers would be on hand comes word from these same clubs that each will bring along a partner for the championship doubles. Kelly's side kick will be Walter Smith, an oarsman of apparently much slighter build than Kelly, but of great capabilities. With Dibble will be Fred H. Leeper, his side partner for a number of years. Kelly and Smith have the distinction of being the present champions in the senior doubles event, capturing the honor last year in the national at Philadelphia. The year previous, on the Charles river basin, in Boston, Dibble and Lepper were the winners, making it an even break for these pairs in the last two years. The meeting of these scullers this year, therefore, will be in the form of a "rubber" race and that the interest attached to its outcome is as great as in some of the more important races, there is little doubt. It will mean the bringing together of the best doubles in the country and Canada today and although other entries for this event are expected, there is little doubt that either the Philadelphia or Toronto pair will be the winner.

Neer May Compete.

Detroit Boat club has sent word that it is not certain, as yet, whether or not W. A. Neer, winner of last year's intermediate single sculls will be on hand. However, the club hopes to send him along and among other entries which the Michigan organization is planning to send are intermediate eight, senior four and intermediate doubles. Neer had little trouble in carrying off the honors in the 1914 race, this victory being the first he has secured in a national regatta. As he is practically a newcomer of national prominence, it is not at all unlikely he will stay away. Those who know believe he will be here to defend his title, even if the Detroit club is at present unable to give a definite answer.

The regatta course, over which this year's events will be contested, is second to none in the country both from a competitor's and spectator's point of view. Riverside Park, opposite which the races will end, is a recreation resort and is situated about five miles south of Springfield, easily accessible by trolley, boats or automobile. For the past two years, the local boat clubs, which form the Western Massachusetts Amateur Rowing association, under whose auspices the regatta will take place, have used the course for its annual fall regatta. There is a straightaway of between two and three miles, and the width is large enough to accommodate six or seven shells. At the finish line, there is parking space for thousands of persons and with the line close to the shore, there is no need of any stretching of the neck to discover who is winner. That it is an ideal spot for an event of this kind, is attested by many of the country's leading rowing officials and it appears to be only a matter of a few more years before more events of this nature will be contested on the course.

HAWAIIAN WONDER WINS WATER DASHES

San Francisco, Cal., July 17.—Duke Kahanamoku of Honolulu won the two principal races in the Panama-Pacific exposition indoor swimming championship contests which opened here last night. His time in the 50-yard dash was 24 1-5 seconds and he won by a good margin. In the 220-yard dash P. McGillivray of the Illinois Athletic club of Chicago led to within twenty yards of the finish when Kahanamoku overhauled him and finished first. Time 2:26 2-5. McGillivray was second and G. Cunha of Honolulu, third. Cunha was third also in the 50-yard dash and C. Lane, another Hawaiian swimmer, second. There were twelve entries in the 50-yard dash.

The 100-yard dash for girls was won by Miss Frances Cowells of the Pacific association in 1:16 4-5. It was announced that she had established a coast record.

Officer Mathieson, who fired the shot, is in the Wilkin county jail, and is in a serious condition from prostration as a result of his act.

LOFTUS CHALLENGES JUDGE TO DEBATE

Devils Lake, N. D., July 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Another big grain marketing debate is in prospect, with Judge John F. Cowan of Devils Lake and George Loftus, championing opposing sides of the question.

The fact that Judge Cowan recently took exception to certain statements made by Loftus, during the course of an address on the marketing question, brought to him a challenge from Loftus.

Judge Cowan has not yet indicated his intention, either of accepting or rejecting the challenge.

MRS. WILLIAMSON WINS SILVER BUTTON

Duluth Angler Lands 26-Pound Lake Trout Along the North Shore.

Trolling with rod and reel off Grace Point at Washington Harbor, Isle Royale, last Tuesday, Mrs. H. F. Williamson of 2402 East First street, caught and landed a lake trout weighing twenty-six and one-quarter pounds. As a token of her angling ability Mrs. Williamson was presented with the first silver button given by the Washington club, of which both Mr. and Mrs. Williamson are members.

The Washington club has just adopted the competitive fish contest buttons. The rules and regulations covering the giving of the buttons are similar to those in force in the clubs of Long Key, Fla., and Catalina Island, Cal. A bronze button is awarded to one catching a fifteen-pound lake trout; a silver button for a twenty-four-pound lake trout, and a gold button to one catching a lake trout weighing thirty pounds.

Under the competitive rules the fish must be caught with rod and reel and no assistance received in landing it.

He declares that the invention should revolutionize the fire protection system. Wires are placed, through this new invention, in every part of a building, and fuses attached to the wires so that an alarm is sounded when the wires become heated. The central operator receives the alarm and notifies the fire department. Louis Bergland and John Carlson are associated with Mr. Fryberg and the three plan to manufacture the alarms, if a suitable offer for the invention is not received.

PAVING SEASON IN DULUTH IS AT ITS HEIGHT SEVERAL BIG JOBS UNDER WAY---CONCRETE POPULAR

MINNESOTA AVENUE NEAR THIRTY-FOURTH STREET. —Photos by McKenzie.

ANOTHER VIEW OF MINNESOTA AVENUE, LOOKING THE OTHER WAY.

CONCRETE STRETCH ON WOODLAND AVENUE, NEAR FOURTH STREET.

In every section of Duluth contractors are busy putting in new pavements, and thousands of dollars are being paid out by citizens to insure good highways. It is one of the busiest seasons in the history of the public works department.

Commissioner Farrell yesterday made a tour of inspection in all but the West end, West Duluth and New Duluth districts, to check up on work being done and the progress made. good idea of concrete paving work, one of the many varieties chosen by property owners. Concrete is a popular paving in the East end sections.

The Illustration showing the smooth stretch of roadway, followed by the apparently rough sand road, is a strip of the Minnesota avenue $52,000 job, which, when completed, will extend from Twelfth street to Thirtyeighth street. It is twenty-one feet wide, and has a curbing on one side.

The smooth place is unfinished paving, which just has been laid by the mixer shown in the other illustration, and which is too soft to be covered. Beyond it, the sand has been spread over finished paving. This sand covering is put on as soon as the concrete is hard enough, and dampened frequently, so that the mixture hardens evenly.

The mixer, with the crew at work, is operating at a point just a few feet from the smooth stretch of new concrete shown in No. 1. Commissioner Farrell can be seen standing on the curb. This job was started about June 10, and will be finished in about fifty more days.

A part of Woodland avenue's $14,000 job, extending from Fourth to Eighth streets, is shown in the third illustration. Workmen are covering freshly-laid pieces with gravel. This pavement is thirty feet wide, and the job includes the installation of two curbs. Work was begun about June 15, and will be finished within thirty days, according to Commissioner Farrell.

SHARP NOTE SENT TO GREAT BRITAIN

Rights of Americans Must Be Respected, According to Law.

Washington, July 17. — Secretary Lansing made public today a paraphrase of the note presented by Ambassador Page on July 14 to the British government to conserve the rights of American citizens in cases being tried by British prize courts. It has no relation, he said, to the general note on contraband, still in course of preparation. The paraphrase issued by the state department follows:

"In view of differences which are understood to exist between the two governments as to the principles of law applicable in prize courts proceedings in cases involving American interests and in order to avoid any misunderstanding as to the attitude of the United States in regard to any such proceedings, the government of the United States informs the British government that in so far as the interests of American citizens are concerned, it will insist upon their rights and the principles and rules of international law as hitherto established, governing neutral trade in time of war, without limitation or impairment by orders in council or other municipal legislation by the British government and will not realize the validity of prize court proceedings taken under restraints imposed by British municipal law in derogation of the rights of American citizens under international law."

SAYS BLACK RUST IS NOT A MENACE NOW

St. Paul, Minn., July 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Commissioner Jacobson of the state railway and warehouse department, does not agree with Prof. Bull of the state agricultural college that the wheat crop in Minnesota is threatened with black rust. Mr. Jacobson insists that the present weather is against the particular blight.

"Wheat is not yet in milk," said Mr. Jacobson today, "and to bring about black rust the nights must be cold. I know something about wheat and my observations are that the crop at present is not menaced, as Prof. Bull says."

INDIANS TO ACT AS GOVERNOR'S ESCORT

Will Also Have Two Companies of United States Cavalry.

St. Paul, Minn., July 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two companies of United States cavalry and a band of Glacier Park Indians acting as an escort, will be a feature of Governor Hammond's visit to the Panama-Pacific exposition July 22. That date is Minnesota day.

The state executive department today received from the exposition officials the program which will feature the visit of Governor Hammond and his party now en route to the exposition. The governor will be met at Oakland on July 21, when he will be given breakfast and taken in charge by a reception committee. At the hotel in San Francisco on July 22, a band of Glacier Park Indians will visit him. Later, they, with the cavalry, will escort him to the exposition grounds.

At the exposition, Governor Hammond will plant a tree, following which he will be presented with a set of exposition jewels. A speaking program will then take place.

Since departing, Governor Hammond has been wired by a number of Commercial clubs of cities along his route to stop and be entertained by them. A telegram of this character was today received from the Los Angeles Commercial club.

PASSENGERS ENDANGERED

Baron Rosenkrantz Tells How Shells Passed Over Orduna.

Mysterious Sailing Vessel May Have Shielded Submarine.

New York, July 17.—When the big ocean liner Orduna docked today Capt. Taylor was asked to give an account of the attack on his ship.

"Ask the passengers what happened," Capt. Taylor said. "I am attached to the royal naval reserve and therefore cannot discuss the matter. Ask Baron Rosenkrantz; he saw the whole thing."

"But there is one question, Capt. Taylor, that you can answer, and you alone. Were you attacked without warning?"

"I did not have even the slightest warning of the attack,' he replied. "Beyond that I will say nothing.'

Baron Rosenkrantz, one of a group with the captain on the bridge, described the attack in detail.

"We left Liverpool about 2:20 o'clock on the afternoon of Thursday, the eighth,' he said. "At 5:55 o'clock by my watch, the first missile, a torpedo, was fired.

"A few minutes before that, however, we saw a small sailing ship just ahead of us. She had two American flags painted on the side that was turned to us. She was broadside to us and seemed to be beating up the wind. We could see her over the bows.

Became Suspicious.

"Capt. Taylor apparently became suspicious of this boat. We noticed that the course of the ship was immediately changed so that the little vessel ahead would be given a wide berth. I could see that we would pass far astern of her if we kept to the new course.

"Some of those aboard believed that the sailing ship was hiding a submarine behind her. Of this I can't say.

"We passed the sailing ship at a considerable distance. Having done this, most of us forgot her," Baron Rosenkrantz continued. "A few minutes after we had left her behind I looked through my glasses over the sea and saw a white streak coming towards us through the water. I wasn't sure at first it was a streak, such as the wake of a torpedo or the periscope of a submarine, but the question was soon settled.

"It was a torpedo. We could see it coming towards us at high speed. When it appeared to be half a mile or so off, the Orduna seemed to jump ahead, and a second afterward to swerve to one side. It looked then as if the torpedo would strike us aft. But it did not. It passed not more than ten yards behind the rudder, churning up a white wake of foam as it whizzed by.

Submarine Comes in Sight.

"A short time after the torpedo had clipped past the Orduna's stern—it may have been fifteen minutes, it may have been half an hour, a submarine came into sight. We were not specially surprised to see her, but what did surprise was her location. The torpedo had come at us from the port and the submarine that now loomed up was abaft our starboard quarter.

"This may have been accounted for by the fact that Capt. Taylor had been speeding the Orduna in a zigzag course. Possibly it was another submarine. I don't know.

"At any rate she opened fire on us immediately. She seemed to have the range, too. The first shell fell uncomfortably close and threw up a fountain of water. Capt. Taylor swerved again and showed the submarine only the liner's stern, making as small a target as possible.

"Before the first shot was fired, however, immediately after the torpedo missed us, the stewards ran to the state rooms and told the passengers to get ready. Most of the passengers were asleep. They dressed hurriedly, some of them with the assistance of stewards and stewardesses, and when the first shot was fired were assembled on the upper deck, each passenger at his allotted place at the life boats. As a further precaution each passenger put on a life belt.

"The second shot passed over the heads of these passengers. We could hear the scream of the shell. Apparently the submarine was aiming at the bridge and the wireless. We heard the wireless crackle and afterward learned that the captain had sent out a wireless call for help.

PASSENGER BOAT ON GROUND IN MICHIGAN

Chicago, July 17.—The lake steamer Arizona ran aground in a fog last night at the northeast entrance to Little Traverse Bay, Mich., and the seventy passengers were taken to Harbor Springs, Mich., according to a wireless report received here today.

The passengers are said to have proceeded to the various destinations by other means.

YORK RITE MASONS WILL HOLD PICNIC

Two Local Bodies Will Hold Reunion for First Time.

York Rite Masons of Duluth will hold their first annual outdoor reunion and basket picnic at the Oatka branch of the Duluth Boat club on the afternoon and evening of Thursday, Aug. 5, according to plans which were announced yesterday.

The affair will be under the joint auspices of Duluth commandery, No. 18, Knights Templars, and Keystone chapter, No. 20, Royal Arch Masons. Heretofore the two local York Rite bodies have held picnics as separate affairs. It was decided to hold a joint picnic this year. All Masons and their families will be invited.

The joint committee in charge of the affair consists of the following: John Smith, M. W. Turner, James Dunbar, George L. Hargraves, Charles B. Cannon and William Bradbury.

This afternoon Duluth and Superior Masons are holding a joint picnic at Billings Park, Superior. The affair is being given under the joint auspices of Palestine lodge, No. 79, A. F. & A. M., of Duluth and Superior lodge, No. 236, F. & A. M., of Superior. It is expected that about 1,500 Duluth Masons and their families will attend.

The program will begin at 2:30 o'clock and will consist of a number of athletic events for which prizes will be offered. The Duluth Temple band will furnish music for the occasion. Picnickers will take basket lunches.

PLENTY OF USES FOR IDLE MONEY

Money saved to cover the city's share of the cost of paving two miles of street along Grand avenue west, to connect Duluth proper with the steel plant and provide the last link in a highway to western suburbs, will be spent in other places unless the Grand avenue petition is filed with the city clerk in the near future.

"I have been saving that money," said Works Commissioner Farrell, this morning, "as I am very anxious to get the Grand avenue job out of the way, and complete that highway, but unless the petition is filed soon it will be too late to finish the work before winter, and there will be no use in starting it.

"This highway is needed and will make a lot of difference to West end, West Duluth and New Duluth residents. It is of special importance because of developments at the steel plant."

When Grand avenue is paved from Twenty-ninth to Fifty-fourth avenue west, teams, trucks or automobiles will have about ten miles of paved highway from the heart of the city to the steel plant and model town.

From Fourteenth avenue west and Superior street to Thirtieth avenue west there is brick pavement. At Thirtieth the route turns to the right, and extends along Thirtieth to Vernon street, thence to the Grand avenue intersection with Vernon street, and then out along Grand avenue.

If this petition does not go through, public works officials say that Central avenue, West Duluth, will be paved from Cody street to the Duluth, Missabe & Northern right-of-way, and that other small jobs will be put out of the way, as money now held for the Grand avenue work will be available.

CROOKSTON'S FAIR TO CLOSE WITH CARNIVAL

Crookston, Minn., July 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—With a grand carnival of fun, the seventh annual fair of the Northwestern Minnesota Agricultural society will close tonight, the weather the last three days having been ideal.

The million-dollar stock parade was the greatest pageant of the kind ever seen in Northern Minnesota and the fair showed a big growth over last year.

The free-for-all race today attracted an immense crowd with auto excursions from Roseau and other points.

J. P. Marcun was robbed of $35 while watching the fireworks last night, the only robbery reported during the fair.

GOVERNOR HAS $3,500 IN SALARY DUE HIM

St. Paul, Minn., July 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—If Governor Hammond, who is now on route to the Panama-Pacific exposition should go broke, he can easily make a "touch" on the state treasury, as there is now awaiting him nearly $3,500 in salary which he has not drawn.

Governor Hammond receives $7,000 a year, but since entering the office six months ago he has made no call for his monthly envelope. The money is in the state's strong box and awaits his demand.

Swimming Hole Death Trap.

Minot, N. D., July 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—A swimming hole, made by the recent rains, proved a death-trap for Leo Stygar. He and three others were swimming in the pool when young Stygar, who is 22 years old, was suddenly overcome and sank. As none of the others were good swimmers he was not rescued for some hours.

SATURDAY.

Second day of rowing regatta at Boat club; weekly dance at the main house of Boat club in evening.

NEVER has Duluth society had a gayer or more busy time than this summer and when bridge, luncheons, dinners and dances are not on at the Country, Kitchi Gammi or Boat clubs there is golf, tennis and boating and motoring parties to neighboring inns and summer homes for week-end parties, for bridge or picnics. The summer resorts are drawing the fishers and this group includes just as many women as men and natty fishing togs are included in the summer wardrobes as well as dinner and tea gowns.

The coming week promises as full a program as the past one with the big regatta at the main house of the Boat club as one of the real big features of the summer. With races on Friday and Saturday afternoons and a program of other water sports everyone who can get down there will be on hand for the events and many parties have already been made up for the two days. Every arrangement has been made by the Boat club to give convenience and comfort to those attending, and to help in getting the crowds back across the canal the club has engaged an excursion boat which will land at the government pier shortly after the races and will take passengers to the foot of Lake avenue or the Fifth avenue docks. Automobiles and all other vehicles will be prohibited from crossing on the bridge during the crowded hours so those having autos are asked to leave them on the uptown side of the canal unless they expect to cross early and remain until after the crowd has been brought over.

Regatta Parties.

Among those who have bought large groups of seats for the regatta on Friday and Saturday and who will entertain at parties are:

Messrs. and Mesdames—
Julius H. Barnes, Arthur Barnes, Whitney Wall, I. S. Moore, C. S. Wilson, H. B. Paull, D. S. Horak, Ray Higgins, W. J. McCabe, C. S. McDonald, F. A. Patrick, F. F. Killorin, Sidney McPhail, W. C. Dinner-Dance.

Another event of special interest next week will be the dinner-dance of the canoe and motorboat section of the boat club, which will be held at the main house on Tuesday evening. Mrs. Stacy H. Hill will have charge of the decorations for the dinner and among those who have already made reservations for parties are D. A. Williard, who will take a party out in his launch, the Marjorie, before the evening's dancing; Mr. and Mrs. Julius H. Barnes, who will use their boat the Bobbie B.; Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Hill, who will use their boat the Tribune, and there are other reservations for small and large parties.

The weekly bridge and dinner-dance at the country club on Wednesday will undoubtedly attract its number of guests and the midweek Oatka lark on the same night will be of interest to boat club members. The "Agony quartet," which made a hit at the first of the series of "larks," will sing a new group of songs and the Robinson string orchestra will play. There will be dancing after the program.

Other social affairs include the dancing party which Mr. and Mrs. John G. Williams and Miss Helen Williams of 2601 East Second street will give at their home Friday evening for Miss Elizabeth Jennison of Jamesville, Minn.

Mrs. Franklin Paine of 5349 London road will entertain at an informal afternoon Monday for the women of the guild of St. John's Episcopal church and their friends, when a musical program will be given.

Tuesday evening the annual lawn fete for the members of the congregation of the Unitarian church and their friends will be held on the lawn of the home of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Keyes, 2029 East Third street.

Peggy Peabody's Observations

The Homeless Summer Cat.

This is the season of the year when the poor cat, who had considered itself quite as a member of the family, is having its illusions dispelled. The families to which Mr. Tom and Mrs. Tabby thought they belonged have fled from their usual haunts in town to the seashore and country, and in some cases have left these poor animals to starve.

Old cats and frisky kittens, it makes no difference about their age, have been forced out into the world to starve, or by dint of hard grubbing or the friendly aid of some neighbor pull through the long, hot weeks of summer, while their owners enjoy themselves far out of the hearing of the pitful "meouws" of their erstwhile pets.

Though the half-grown kitten who came to my door recently may have strayed from a good home somewhere, the closed shutters and deserted appearance of several houses in my near vicinity bear mute evidence to quite a different explanation of how this poor little morsel came to be so hungry and forlorn. It would not seem to be so much trouble to bundle such a mite into a bag or basket and take it along on the summer outing.

I am thankful to say that I know many families who would about as soon think of leaving the baby behind as the cat, and others who always provide a home for the animal when it is not convenient to take it along.

The question for a home for cats whose owners cannot take them with them on their summer vacation brings to mind a splendid opportunity for any boy who loves animals to make money during the three months that people take up a residence in the country or at the seashore. A boy who lives in a suburban district within easy access of the city may advertise in certain daily papers of the city that he is prepared to board cats and dogs during the summer months.

A young man of my acquaintance having quite a specious back yard and several comfortable outbuildings, started the venture this summer and when I last heard from him had twelve star boarders occupying the premises. He asks $1 a week for cats and $1.50 for dogs. With the left-overs from the family table and about $3 I should say that he could make a profit of close to $10 weekly.

SUPERIOR WOMAN MAKES INQUIRY

Grand Forks, N. D., July 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Menzin of Superior, Wis., disappeared here two and a half years ago, just about the time an unidentified man was killed in this city by robber murderers and now Mrs. E. Dopp, 250 West Eighth street, Superior, has asked officials if they can identify the murder victim as Menzin.

The description of Menzin, supplied to local officials, tallies very closely with that of the man who was found here, but it is hardly probable that the identity of the victim can be definitely established.

The victim was robbed and his body secreted in a haystack. An attempt to cremate the body in the hay failed, rain quenching the fire.

ALL MUST FACE JUDGE.

"Prepare to Meet God" Is Warning of Pastor Stemple White.

"Prepare to meet thy God" was the warning message that rang out last night at the Bible Chautauqua tent on West Second street, near the Y. M. C. A. Speaking before a large audience, Pastor Stemple White said in part:

"God has subpoenaed this revolted world of soon-coming judgment and as our Heavenly Father recognizes no proxy work in His dealings with the human race, each individual has long been notified that he must take the stand in person. The standard by which every soul will be measured and weighed is the law of God, and every individual who trusts alone in human effort will not stand the test. Unless we have been converted and truly born again, taking Jesus with us in the balances, we will be weighed and found wanting.

"How searching will be the final test before the bar of God, when every deed, word and thought, and every secret thing will be fully analyzed by the Great Judge, who fully reads all hearts. We are daily making and molding individual records, that will one day be run off in the presence of many who have a similar case at court."

A prominent achievement of the club's meeting was the offer of two Brainerd banks to loan money at 6 per cent to all farmers who desire to build silos, the bankers shrewdly foreseeing the great possibilities of the farmers having silos.

More Who Spoke.

Beside President Vincent, who advocated rural school consolidation, the speakers were: Rev. Wilbur Hunt of Brainerd; D. C. Henderson, president of the Crow Wing Federation of Farmers' clubs; Dr. J. C. Sheridan, vice president of the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce, and Congressman Charles A. Lindbergh.

A short business session of the federation was held in the forenoon.

Mayo of Rochester has invaded the field of scientific agriculture, and is intent upon gaining the dairy cow championship of the state at the Minnesota state fair, Sept. 6 to 11, for his herd at Mayowood farm, near Rochester. Prizes amounting to $500 are offeerd in this contest. Out of six cows eligible to this contest Dr. Mayo owns two. One of them, Estrada, established a new Minnesota Guernsey record of 642.35 pounds of butterfat last year. The other, Imp Creme de Reserve Second, is said to be doing remarkably well.

D. D. Tenney of Minneapolis has entered a Guernsey cow, Imp Duchess of Chateau al'Oeuf, from his farm at Crystal Bay. This animal won fourth place in the contest a year ago.

Another Rochester Entry.

The other three animals are Holsteins, entered by Dr. Christopher Graham, of the Mayo firm of Rochester, owner of Grahamholm farm. Two of these cows won first and second place in the grand champion contest at the fair last fall, and Dr. Graham is attempting to repeat in the order named.

To be eligible to this contest it is necessary to complete a twelve months' butterfat and skimmed milk test under the supervision of the dairy department at the Minnesota Agricultural college. The value of the butterfat and skimmed milk produced in that time and the excellence of conformation are the two deciding factors. Each animal entered must score not less than 80 per cent in conformation and produce not less than 400 pounds of butterfat.

A public demonstration will be conducted in the livestock pavilion at the close of the contest at which the judges will explain the reasons for placing the animals.

MARKET OFF AT THE CLOSE

Wheat Turns Weak on Expected Heavy Movement in Southwest.

Flaxseed Advances With Good Crushers' Buying on Higher Cables.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 17.—After showing strength at the start today, in sympathy with higher Liverpool cables and export inquiry at the seaboard, the wheat market broke on heavy selling originating at Chicago on the news that 140 cars of new wheat had been received there. Predictions were made that deliveries of new crop wheat at the Chicago and the Southwestern markets would begin in earnest next week. Bullish sentiment at the start locally was also created through the export sale of a small lot of new wheat for September delivery. That was taken as an indication that buying by foreigners will cut a figure on this market later on.

The market in old wheat held strong throughout on account of the light supplies remaining and strong bidding on the part of millers for everything offering on the tables. July wheat was advanced ½c to $1.44, and held there to the close. September opened unchanged at $1.12¼, advanced ⅝c, and then eased off 1¼c to a close of $1.11⅝ asked. December closed ⅝c off at $1.11⅝ bid.

Durum continued its show of strength, it being helped along by limited receipts, and the fact that elevator supplies have been practically cleaned up. The July future closed 2c up at $1.23, and September 1c up at $1.21.

New York reported sales of 700,000 bu of wheat for export at around $1.09 this morning, and Boston wired that some business was put through there. Continued wet weather interfering with cutting and threshing at many points in the Southwest was a bullish factor. Its effect was shown in receipts of only 82,000 against 611,000 bu last year at Kansas City today, and of 36,000 bu against 311,000 bu a year ago at St. Louis. Supplies of old wheat in the Northwest are said to be rapidly cleaning up, as shown in the receipt of many bulkheaded cars. Markettings of it are expected to be only of a straggly nature from now on.

News from over the Northwest continues cheering, experts considering that prospects could not be well improved upon. All that is wanted is warm drying weather from now on.

Flaxseed Turns Strong.

Flaxseed turned strong after showing weakness during the early trading. Strength was inspired by sharp advances at both Buenos Aires and London. That induced liberal bidding on the part of crushers and the putting through of a large volume of business than had been recorded in several days. On the windup moderate gains were chalked up. July flax closed 1½c up at $1.71½ nominally. September opened unchanged at $1.73½, weakened 1¼c and closed ½c up in the day at $1.74 asked. October opened unchanged at $1.75¼ and closed ½c up at $1.75¾ asked. November closed ½c up at $1.76 bid.

At Buenos Aires, flax closed 2¼c up at $1.26½ and London 4¾c up at $1.92¾.

At Duluth, oats closed ⅝c off at 53⅛c for on the track; rye unchanged at 98c and barley 1c up at from 66c to 72c.

Bartlett Frazier of Chicago had the following from B. W. Snow at Omaha: "Roughly my observation indicates that 75 per cent of the Nebraska corn can mature under normal conditions. The balance is very doubtful unless the season is unusually long and favorable. Wheat harvest began this week north of Platte. In the south about one-third is yet to be cut. A large part of this is dead ripe, and from repeated storms the land is water-logged. Yield will not reach earlier estimates and quality and color are hurt."

Lecount wired from Chester, S. D.: "Wheat is looking generally good and is heading well. Crops in this territory are decidedly above the average, best in general I ever saw in this state. Wheat here is slightly affected by red rust, but it is not important. It is too early to tell anything about black rust but I believe black rust will do lots of damage if the weather continues hot and muggy. It is clear and hot today."

Minneapolis cash wheat market was unchanged. There was good demand for desirable milling wheat. No. 1 northern blue stem sold at 12@13c over July, and velvet chaff at 3@6c over. Flour trade was quiet.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "Undertone is very firm with growing belief in American deterioration as emphasized by Modern Miller's report and the delayed American movement as shown by the receipts. Spot market was strong unchanged to 1½d higher with good inquiry at the advance. Cargo market is strong, winters 7½d higher with purchases at the advance. Manitobas 3d higher. Indians at 6 to 7½d advance and Plates unchanged. Indian holders are very reserved and selling little of the new commitments with a growing belief that reserves are under expectations and Argentine reserves very light of merchantable quality. Mediterranean countries are buying and bidding freely for Pacific coast wheat. Continental bids are higher."

Inglis wired Logan & Bryan from Mitchell, S. D.: "Too wet for driving. It is too early for rust development, only coming into water stage. Too much rain has fallen and country is flooded. Corn is much the same as Iowa only not so clean."

CHICAGO MARKET.

Strength at Liverpool Has Bullish Effect on Wheat.

Chicago, July 17.—Strength at Liverpool had a bullish effect today on the wheat market here. Flood conditions in Ohio counted also against the bears, and so, too, did predictions of general showers in the harvest region and in the spring crop states, as well. Besides, the overnight purchases of new wheat to arrive were said to be light. After opening ⅛c off to ⅝c up, the market scored a moderate general advance.

Subsequently the market underwent a sharp decline, due largely to increasing receipts here and to reports that threshing in Illinois was being rushed by double crews. The close was heavy at ⅞c to 2⅛c under last night.

Corn eased down owing to good weather for rapid growth. Selling pressure was chiefly on the December delivery. Opening prices, which ranged ⅛@⅜c lower, were followed by additional declines.

No important rally took place. The close was unsettled, ½c off to ⅛c up compared with last night.

Oats took the same path as corn. The trade, however, seemed to be more evenly divided than in the coarser grain.

Highest hog prices of the year made provisions firm. Demand, though, lacked volume.

TRADE REVIEW

New York, July 17.—Bradstreet says:

"Factors making for expansion multiply. Evidence is provided by such facts as considerable improvement in industrial matters, virtually full movements in finished steel, overtime work in numerous war order lines, smart activity at shipyards, freer distribution of seasonable goods, somewhat fairer skies aiding crops, bounteous yields of foodstuffs, better collections, growing scarcity of labor, slightly larger sales of steam coal, absence of strain in money matters at the crop moving season, increased construction of plants to take care of war orders, and some agricultural implement makers resuming operations, whereas a while ago it seemed as though work would not be started before September.

"There is a notable absence of talk of shutdowns due to necessity for repairs or for vacation purposes. Irregular improvement in railway freight tonnage, accompanied by a uniformly heavy movement of passenger traffic, is reported. Commercial paper sells freely, at the west, but demand for money is not remarkable, and consequently the general supply of commercial paper is not large, while low rates rule.

"Bank clearings for the week $3,338,001,000."

STEEL HAS AN ADVANCE

Rises to Best Price of the Year, Selling at 65.

War Shares Pushed Up to New Record-Breaking Figures.

New York, July 17.—With the exception of United States Steel which rose to 65, the best price of the year, all former speculative favorites were swept aside again today, while the various war specialties were pushed forward to new record-breaking quotations.

Chief among these were Crucible Steel, which made an early gain of over 6 points, with 5 points for the preferred. Gains of 3 to 6 points were registered by Bethlehem Steel, Sloss-Sheffield Steel, Republic Steel, General Motors and some of the more obscure industrials, including Allis-Chalmers, common and preferred. Meantime some heaviness was observed in Southern Pacific, Union Pacific and Amalgamated Copper.

Recessions of 1 to 2 points from the high levels occurred later. The closing was strong. Bonds were steady.

ALICE GOLD & SILVER MINING PROPERTY TO BE SOLD AGAIN

Must Bring More Than Paid By the Anaconda Company.

Good Progress in Raising Funds for Resumption By Tuolumne.

Butte, Mont., July 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The resale of the Alice Gold & Silver Mining company's property, which was first taken over by the Butte Coalition company, and was later transferred to the Anaconda Copper Mining company, will take place as soon as a final hearing is had under an interlocutory degree which Judge George M. Bourquin of the Federal court entered last week. Peter Geddes and other minority stockholders of the Alice company had the sale of the property set aside because of some technical informalities and alleged insufficiency of the consideration. Testimony will be taken regarding the debts of the Alice company which were assumed by the Anaconda company, interest paid or payable; an accounting of all reasonable expenditures by the Anaconda company; the amounts realized by the Anaconda from the sale of the Alice properties; the dividends paid by the Anaconda to the Alice company upon Anaconda stock; stock received by the Alice in consideration of the transfer, and interest thereon, and also a complete inventory of the property of the Alice company. The amounts shown by the accounting, together with the $1,500,000, which the court has determined to be the value of the Anaconda stock transferred to the Alice by the Anaconda, will be taken as the total proceeds received by the Alice company for its properties.

Notice of the sale will be published in New York, Boston and Butte newspapers by John Lindsay, the special master appointed by Judge Bourquin. No bids will be received unless in an amount greater than the consideration for the transfer of the property to the Anaconda company, and all bids must be accompanied by a certified check for 10 per cent upon some Montana bank. If the sale is made, the prior sale to the Anaconda company will be declared void, and the Alice company will return to the Anaconda company the consideration already paid. If a new sale is not made, the sale to the Anaconda company will be declared valid, but the complainants will be given thirty days after the sale date to surrender their stock in the Alice company and receive in lieu thereof in cash their proportion of the purchase price paid by the Anaconda company for the property. Shareholders not a party to the action and not estopped are given sixty days in which to appear and prove they are entitled to the relief accorded the complainants.

In a memorandum relating to the appointment of the special master, Judge Bourquin says: "The time is past when masters or receivers are enriched by sales. Here the master's services are merely ministerial, and his compensation will be, accordingly, perhaps $500 if no sale, and fair addition if a sale is made." Concerning the $1,500,000 stock valuation fixed by the court, as to which there was some opposition by the litigants, the court observes: "Curiously enough, though a high valuation is favorable to the complainants and unfavorable to defendants, the former seem to desire to reduce it and the latter to maintain it. Doubtless both see some advantage in their respective positions, but the court does not."

Parrott Mine No More.

Work has been on the removal of the steel head frame of the Parrott mine to the Never Sweat, where it will replace the old timber head frame. The Parrott shaft as an operating shaft of the Anaconda company, was abandoned long ago, and the underground connections between the Parrott and those of the adjoining groups of mines, were utilized for hoisting the ore from the old Parrott mine. The steel head frame, which was erected by the old Parrott company in 1906, is in splendid condition. The removal of the head frame marks the final disappearance of evidence of the once active copper property, which has been worked since 1884. The Parrott was first famous as a silver producer.

Anaconda's June Output.

The June output of the Anaconda company exceeded that of any other month in a year, notwithstanding a suspension of operations for several days. The total production in June was 22,100,000 pounds, which compares as follows:

	1915.	1914.	1913.
January	18,700,000	24,400,000	21,300,000
February	15,100,000	21,300,000	21,250,000
March	19,900,000	23,800,000	22,300,000
April	21,800,000	22,000,000	23,800,000
May	20,500,000	23,500,000	25,600,000
June	22,100,000	23,800,000	21,500,000

The production in June was, according to the official figures, 1,700,000 pounds less than in June of last year, 300,000 pounds more than in June, 1913, and 150,000 less than in June of the record breaking year, 1912.

The official average price of copper during the month of June, based upon sales of electrolytic copper in New York, and upon which average the Anaconda and other Butte companies base their wages to miners, was 13.477 cents per pound, and the daily wage of miners therefore $4. This is the highest price of copper in years. Since last November the advance in price has been steady, as shown by the following table:

	Cents.
November, 1914	11.739
December	12.801
January, 1915	13.841
February	14.394
March	14.787
April	16.811
May	18.506
June	19.477

It is anticipated that the average for July will be fully 20 cents.

Davis-Daly.

The Davis-Daly company has begun stoping ore from the new vein opened on the 2,500-foot level of the Colorado mine. It is the first large ore body that has been opened in the mine, a drift on it extending 150 feet. The ore body has an average width of 5½ feet of 7 to 10 per cent ore. As soon as the stope sets are in further drifting will be done and the full extent of the ore body determined. Crosscutting on the level is also being continued, and it is thought that the Hesperus vein will be reached by the middle of August. There is great expectation based on that vein. The disappearance of the zinc in other ledges between the 1,900 and 2,500-foot levels is an important indication. At the present time the company is shipping one car per day to the smelter.

Tuolumne.

It is reported that good progress is being made in raising funds for the resumption of work by the Tuolumne Copper company. About $20,000 has been pledged in the loan to the company, suggested to stockholders by President Hickey. About $15,000 more is needed to give the company the required money. "Whether we resume or not will depend on whether the money is subscribed or not," said President Hickey. At the time the mine closed last October copper was selling at 11 cents. It is now selling at 20 cents and a great quantity of ore that had previously been set aside in the rush to get out big profits several years ago, under a bad management, can not be mined at a profit, but many shareholders who have been asked to advance money to the directors and take the company's notes for it, have been wondering why, if the Tuolumne is any good, funds can not be raised by mortgage or other means. The mine has been opened to a depth of 2,600 feet and on four levels, it is claimed, there is enough ore in sight to warrant the expectation that the company can ship forty cars of ore per month for six months at least, without any further development. The company could therefore begin shipping ore at once, and the only money needed is to carry current expenses for a month or two. The company's debts are small, probably $10,000.

Boston & Montana.

The Boston & Montana Development company's tunnel on the Elkhorn property has reached a distance of 2,040 feet, and crosscutting from the 2,000-ft. point has just started, according to word from Supt. Hopkins, who has a force of thirty-five men working. Just before work in the tunnel was suspended, preparatory to work on the crosscuts, another crosscut was cut. It is four feet wide and on both walls carries sulphide ore, containing values in copper, gold and silver. As a cross vein it is of no great importance itself, but its value is in the evidence it furnishes that the mineralization is carried to depth. Cross-cutting to the master veins will show what there is in the ground, but the officers of the company are very confident of results. The Central vein, which will probably first be reached by the crosscut is clearly defined on the surface, and will be cut within 200 or 300 feet from the tunnel, its location of course depending on the dip of the vein. The crosscut will run in a northwesterly direction to the Indiana vein. A 900-foot tunnel which was driven in above to prove the Indiana ten feet wide with four feet of ore 'on the hanging wall. This was 600 feet in from the portal. One hundred feet further in the vein widened to 25 feet with more than four feet of ore on the hanging wall and three feet on the footwall. One of the crosscuts which has been started from the big tunnel will run southeasterly in the direction of the Park vein, one of the strongest of the master veins in the Elkhorn property. Samples taken from this vein, which runs for three to twelve feet in width, assay 3 per cent copper, 23½ ounces of silver to the ton and $1.20 in gold. When the two crosscuts are completed work will be resumed in extending the tunnel 1,000 feet further, at the end of which further crosscutting will be done. The big working tunnel is constructed with a slope that will permit the conduct of workings by gravity and running the ore direct to railroad cars at the portal, or may be sent to the concentrator, which will be built later. It also provides perfect drainage.

IMPROVEMENTS AT BUTTE-ALEX SCOTT

New Hoist and Double Compartment Shaft to Be Utilized.

Butte, Mont., July 17.—General Manager S. J. Stone of the Butte-Alex-Scott, says improvements are planned to increase to a great extent the producing capacity of the mine. Beginning Aug. 1, the old gallows frame is to be torn out and a new hoist installed. The old frame is 40 feet high and adapted for a single compartment shaft. The new frame which is to be installed under the direction of the Nordberg people of Milwaukee will have a height of 75 feet and will with the new engine to be installed be able to handle the operations of a double compartment shaft to a depth of 3,500 feet.

The old hoisting engine will be taken out and a new one that is scheduled to arrive here by Aug. 1 will take its place. They are at present fixing up the west compartment of the shaft for use.

A large number of other improvements, including an automatic sampler, are to be put in and all these are to be complete by Sept. 1. The management has been steadily sinking the shaft and yesterday they were within 40 feet of the 2,200-foot level. As soon as that level is reached a station will be put in and this will all be complete and ready by the time the surface improvements are ready.

New cages and skips are to be installed, carrying three cars in a skip. At the present time the Butte-Alex-Scott is hoisting between 150 and 200 tons of ore per day, which is being sent to the East Butte smelter and which is running about 4 per cent copper. In the month of June the production was about 500,000 pounds of copper.

When the proposed improvements are made and the 2,200-foot level is opened up, the production will be increased to 300 to 350 tons of ore per day or practically double the amount now taken out.

At the present time about 125 men are employed there. After Sept. 1 the number of men employed will be increased to about 200.

WORK THROUGH SELLERS SHAFT

Butte & Superior Will Develop the Butte & Milwaukee Property.

Butte, Mont., July 17.—The Butte & Superior management is planning the development of the adjoining property of the Butte & Milwaukee, controlled by the Butte-New York, which latter concern is in turn controlled by the Butte & Superior. A new hoist will be installed at the Colonel Sellers shaft, capable of carrying operations to a great depth. The property has been opened as low as the 1,200-foot level by means of a crosscut from the Black Rock. It is expected that several months will elapse before the new hoist is in place. While the Butte-Milwaukee ground thus far has not disclosed any large tonnage of ore, the showing, nevertheless, is regarded as promising as indicating the probability of a great tonnage being opened at greater depth.

Butte & Superior is completing the cutting of a station on the 1,700-foot level. The shaft of the Black Rock, which is being sunk from the 1,600 to the 1,900-foot level, is now well below the 1,700-foot level and is progressing at the rate of about 75 feet monthly. Thus far the shaft has been in ore throughout and it is expected to continue in ore for some time, a fact which is tending to handicap any great speed in shaft sinking. The rock is hard and tough to drill and when it is shot down comparatively little ground is broken because of the toughness of the zinc ore, which seems to give rather than to shatter. There is a heavy flow of water in the shaft.

CUYUNA TO BE ACTIVE

Big Rush of Business Expected in Next Sixty Days.

Rowe Mine to Begin Operation of Concentrator in August.

Brainerd, Minn., July 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Indications point to a great rush of business on the Cuyuna iron range in the next sixty days. On Aug. 1 the big Rowe mine at Riverton will start shipping from its pit, and will begin the operation of its concentrator, one so large as to compare favorably with the best on the Mesaba. Ore in the Armour No. 1 pit lies exposed, and shipping is expected to start some time this month. The Thompson pit is shipping from pit and concentrator. The Pennington pit, it is rumored, may ship a large tonnage. The Mahnomen and Hillcrest pits are engaged in development work.

The Armour No. 2 shaft mine is shipping from skips. The Kennedy mine at Cuyuna is also loading from skips. The Adams mine at Oreland, it is reported, may start up mining and shipping this season. President Marshall of the American Manganese Manufacturing company is expected on the range soon, at which time an announcement may be made as to when the Cuyuna-Duluth and Cuyuna-Mille Lacs mines, subsidiaries of the company, will resume work.

Iron Mountain.

At the Iron Mountain mine they are now installing a big pump, and when this is finished, more men will be added to each shift. Three shifts have been working some time and daily shipments of ore are made. The first drift has been put through a solid body of high grade manganiferous ore, it is said. A new larger "dry" is under construction.

Shaft work at the Croft mine has progressed 150 feet. The Adbar Exploration company may put down it is said, a shaft near Woodrow. The Cuyuna-Sultana will fill rush orders for ore from its shaft, first sunk near the pit. The air compressor has been installed.

The North Star Iron Mining company has a lot of fee lands on the range from which it is already deriving a substantial royalty. Lands have been leased by them to the Duluth-Brainerd, Duluth-Moctezuma, Little Rabbit Iron company, etc. In the death of Michael Flynn range lost a pioneer. Iron was found on his homestead and there was put down on his land one of the deepest drill holes ever sunk on this range. This was an angle hole over 900 feet deep. He was getting royalties from the Gorham-Garbett company of Minneapolis.

Brainerd-Cuyuna.

The Brainerd-Cuyuna mine in the city limits of Brainerd is hoisting ore, being some seventy feet in the shaft and 700 gallons a minute is being pumped. Trestles have been built and the ore is being stockpiled.

At the meeting of the county commissioners of Crow Wing, an application was received from Charles Neimeyer of Duluth, asking for the reduction in the valuation of the unplatted portion of the southwest quarter of the northeast quarter, except railway right-of-way, of section 11, township 46, range 29, and the same was rejected by the board.

At Barrows, the Barrows Mining company has started shaft work under the direction of Supt. C. B. Rowley of Brainerd. The shoe came from the National Iron Works of Duluth.

RECORD OUTPUT BY EAST BUTTE

Best Showing for Any Time in History of the Property.

Butte, Mont., July 17.—East Butte Copper company made a record output in June, with 1,500,000 pounds of copper, on which the profit should approximate $150,000. From May 19, when the first shipment was made after resumption of operations, to end of the month, the output was 580,000 pounds of copper, from which there was a profit of $58,000.

The ore for June made the best showing for any time in the history of the property, with ore—first and second class—averaging 5.8 per cent copper.

With a continuance of present profits it will be a matter of but a few months before the company will be able to clear up all of its debt, amounting to about $600,000.

BIG RETURNS ARE MADE BY STEWART

Has Paid 150 Per Cent in Dividends Within Two Years.

Stewart Mining company, which has just declared a dividend of 25 per cent, will, with this disbursement, have paid to stockholders 55 per cent by the end of July—from current year's operations. Furthermore, it will have raised the return to stockholders since dividends were started two years ago to 150 per cent.

Disbursements to date (including the current dividend payable July 29) have been as follows:

	Dividend, Per Cent.	Per Share.
1915	55	.55
1914	62½	.62½
1913	32½	.32½
Total	150	1.50

The previous disbursements made this year were 10 per cent each, in February, April and June.

The Stewart management has under option a copper property located on an island off the western coast of Canada. Development work has been carried on for some months, but not to an extent sufficient to warrant the exercising of the option at the present time.

GREENE-CANANEA NOW VERY ACTIVE

Output for July Expected to Reach Three Million Pounds.

The output of the Greene-Cananea Copper company for the month of July is expected to reach 3,000,000 pounds of copper.

The company is now operating three stands of convertors, two reverberatory furnaces and four blast furnaces. Several sections of the mill are in operation, but the plant is not yet running to full capacity.

Official advices are to the effect that the company expects gradually to work up to an output of 5,000,000 to 6,000,000 pounds of copper per month.

The only thing that is holding back the output of Greene-Cananea is the fact that a large number of new men have been engaged at the properties, who have not yet attained the efficiency of the old force that was engaged at the mine and smelter before the property was closed down by the strike of two years ago.

Since the revolution the efficiency of the Mexicans has become rather low and the company is doing its utmost to recruit the old force, who are returning to the property in large numbers every week.

On the present output of 3,000,000 pounds a month net earnings are equivalent to $8.50 per share per annum, representing a return of 20 per cent on the present market quotations of the shares.

BUTTE & SUPERIOR EARNINGS LARGE

Expected Showing for the Quarter Ending With June.

It is probable that the forthcoming quarterly report of Butte & Superior for the three months to June 30 will show earnings of between $8 and $9 per share for the 273,000 shares. During the March quarter the company earned $4.25 per share. The June quarter's profits are, therefore, double those of the March quarter and at the rate of $32 to $36 per year.

This may be accepted as a minimum statement. It is possible that actual net for the quarter will run $10 per share. In the March quarter the average price of spelter was taken at 7.99 cents. This was something of an estimate, the management of mining in its report that it was probable that the amount "actually realized will be well in excess of this estimate." It is likely, therefore, that material profits from the March quarter will be adjusted in the June quarter.

This estimate of profits of $8 per share for the three months to June 30 is based on a very low settlement price for spelter. The average for the three months has been taken at 13 cents, which is probably conservative.

The company was, of course, more or less sold ahead during the June quarter. The period of big earnings will come during the September quarter and it is the September period's profits which will form the basis for determining the size of the next extra distribution.

CARPENTER MINE RAPIDLY OPENING

Large Tonnage of Ore Developed at Crystal Falls Property.

Crystal Falls, Mich., July 17.—Such rapid development work has been done at the Carpenter mine the last few months that the indications now are it will become one of the largest mines on the Menominee range. Several Negaunee people are interested in the fee of the mine. A one-seventh share of it is owned by the Julius Jacobson estate.

The mine is said to be one of the best equipped properties in the Menominee range district and the most modern methods are used in mining. It has been leased by the M. A. Hanna company from the fee owners. Although the mine has not been fully completed operations are far enough ahead to provide a good output of ore should occasion warrant. An 18,000-ton stockpile will be disposed of before the close of the season, it is expected. No ore has been shipped yet from the property.

The Carpenter is under the management of James D. Ireland of Duluth. Alfred Martin is the superintendent. Capt. Creer, formerly of Ishpeming, has charge of the mining work. Supt. Martin and Capt. Creer are both well-known mining men. They have worked in the Lake Superior district for a number of years.

A feature of the surface equipment of the mine is the dry, which is one of the most modern in the Upper Peninsula. The building is 40 feet wide and 80 feet long. It is equipped with steel lockers and is furnished with shower baths, toilets and other accommodations.

The main shaft is 450 feet west of the ore body and is about 350 feet deep. There are a number of sub-levels from the main level. The ore is taken out clean from all the stopes. In many of the stopes the ceiling or overburden can be seen. In others the ore is taken out to within four or five feet of the overburden. While this manner of mining requires more timber the operators are rewarded with a large tonnage.

VALUES RAISED ELEVEN MILLIONS

Arizona Mine Valuations Increased By State Tax Commission.

Phoenix, Ariz., July 17.—Arizona's producing mines were valued, for purposes of valuation by the tax commission, at $121,225,833.74, an increase of $11,000,000 from last year's figure of $110,393,989.93. The figures are of added interest as in 1914 the mines were valued under a specified law, the basis of which was four times net production plus 1½ per cent of the gross and physical value of the improvement this year. The commissioners fixed the values under the general statute, taking into consideration the earning capacity for the last three years, the selling value of the stock and other matters.

Copper Queen continues to be the heaviest taxpayer with a total valuation of $29,367,656.65, an increase approximately of $3,000,000. Superior & Pittsburgh is next with $20,000,000, an increase from $16,000,000, this is the greatest individual raise. Inspiration enters the list of producers for the first time, with a valuation of $1,500,000. Slight increases were made in Ray, United Verde, Miami and other big companies. Arizona Copper company was decreased from $8,000,000 to $6,000,000.

Cochise heads the counties in mining valuation with a total of $28,325,468.66; Gila next with $18,538,484.41; Greenlee is third, $13,000,000; Pinal, $11,000,000; Yavapai, $15,000,000; Mohave, $3,000,000; Santa Cruz, $725,000, and Maricopa, $338,000.

COMMERCIAL GRADING OF CORN

Grades Fixed By the Secretary of Agriculture Widely Adopted—New Department Bulletin Explains Various Factors Involved in Determining Grades.

Washington, July 17.—The grades for commercial corn which were promulgated by the secretary of agriculture on Jan. 3, 1914, and which went into effect on July 1, 1914, have been generally adopted throughout the corn belt and in the cities in that part of the United States and at the gulf ports, but are not in use in the cities along the Atlantic seaboard. The grades include the classification of white, yellow and mixed corn into six grades and "sample" and have been recognized by the Grain Dealers' National association, the state associations affiliated with this organization, the state grain inspection departments of Washington, Minnesota, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and the department of agriculture, commerce and industries of the state of South Carolina.

In order that the producers, dealers and consumers throughout the United States may more fully understand the correct interpretation of the government corn grade, somewhat detailed explanations are given in the new bulletin of the United States department of agriculture, No. 168, "Grades for Commercial Corn." The classification which was made by the secretary and became effective July 1, 1914, divided commercial corn into six classes and "sample," the classification being based on the moisture content of the corn, the color, the amount of damage, foreign material and cracked corn. It also included eleven general rules for making this classification. Necessarily even with the definite limits for the more important factors, points will arise on which the best experts may differ. For this reason the bulletin gives somewhat in detail methods of securing a representative sample from bulk corn, mixing samples for detailed analyses, the size of samples, sieves for screening, moisture tests, determining the amount of damage of corn, foreign material and cracked corn. It also includes a color plate which represents, as nearly as possible, the various types of kernels from the standpoint of color. This bulletin may be had free upon application to the United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., as long as the supply lasts.

KLONDIKE AND YUKON GOLD FIELD

Early Bloom Has Faded Away But Still Contains Considerable Quantity of Alluvial Gold Which Can Be Secured By the Application of Capital and Brains.

Washington, July 17. — In a recent publication of the Smithsonian Institution H. M. Cadell reports his studies and investigations of the Klondike and Yukon goldfield, including an interesting review of the early history of this district as well as a prophecy as to its future development.

The name Klondike was once in every mouth, and late in the Nineteenth century it nearly became a synonym for all that was rich and prosperous. But of late it has not been so common, its early bloom having faded away. The sensational pockets of fine placer gold, which attracted hordes of hardy adventurers from every quarter, are now nearly depleted, and no new ones have been discovered to maintain its earlier reputation. But while this part of the Yukon district can no longer be called a poor man's goldfield, it still contains a considerable quantity of alluvial gold which can be secured by the application of capital and brains. It remains a region well worth visiting, for besides the gold it has other possibilities of development. There are many points of geographic and scientific interest; in this remote and imperfectly explored northwestern corner of the British empire there are numerous problems awaiting the discussion and investigation of the geologist and the geographer of the years to come.

The Gateway to the Yukon.

On his trip of investigation, Mr. Cadell steamed up the coast from Vancouver, and through the Lynn canal, to Skagway which he terms the gateway to the Yukon, and describes as "a wretched little town with decayed wooden houses and grass-grown streets, the scene of many robberies, riots and murders at the time of the gold rush, which the police authorities had neither the power nor energy to control. Skagway is not, and can never be, of much use to the United States, except as an obstruction to Canadian progress, but might be of some advantage to the vast Canadian hinterland less than twenty miles inland."

Skagway is surrounded on three sides by a plateau of steep and rugged mountains, through which two trails lead to the north over the White Horse and the Chilcoot passes, up whose wild and difficult ravines thousands of fortune seekers trekked and struggled with their heavy packs, tools and tents in the mad rush to the expected El Dorado over 500 miles away. Soon after the gold was found in quantities, a mountain railroad was built up the White Pass from Skagway to the summit and on to Lake Bennett, a distance of forty miles, traversing a wild and ice-worn plateau of gigantic proportions, strewn with moraines, sprinkled over with lakes, and enclosed by snowy peaks 5,000 to 6,000 feet in height.

Deserted Town of Bennett.

At the head of Lake Bennett lies the deserted town of Bennett, where, at the time of the gold rush, there were lodged some 5,000 people in houses, huts, and tents, but the only building now standing, besides the railroad station, is a wooden Presbyterian church which shows that at least a few righteous men were among that sordid crowd. It was here that the first prospectors and miners got into boats and canoes, and navigated their frail craft through lakes and rapids for the remaining 531 miles of their venturesome journey to Dawson City. The last stretch of the railroad from Skagway runs along Lake Bennett to White Horse, a few miles above Lake Laberge, where safe navigation down the Lewes river to Dawson begins.

Although the great ice fields of the early ages swept the greater portion of North America they missed the region of the Klondike, and consequently the gold producing deposits remained intact until the early prospectors discovered them. The Yukon goldfield is confined mainly to the vicinity of Dawson City, although small quantities of gold can be found in the sand of the Yukon for hundreds of miles up the valley.

Fortunes Made Quickly.

Dawson City is situated on the alluvial flat where the Yukon is joined by the Klondike river, two tributaries of which are the famous Bonanza creek and Hunker creek. Although traces of gold were discovered in the Yukon valley in about 1869, it was twelve years later, in 1881, before it was found in the Big Salmon, and in the Lewes, Pelly, and Stewart rivers. Five years afterward coarse gold was found on the Fortymile, a tributary of the Yukon below Dawson, and in 1894-1896 the discoveries of Bob Henderson and George Cormack, in Hunker and Bonanza creeks drew miners into Klondike valley from all quarters. Prodigious quantities of gold were soon found in Bonanza creek and many miners made fortunes in a short time, but unfortunately most of the gold was spent foolishly or in debauchery. One man is said to have taken $600,000 out of a claim of 86 feet by 100 feet, but, so the story goes, he spent it in a few years and died in poverty. The quickest fortune on record was secured by two men who cleaned up gold to the value of $65,000 in twenty-seven hours. Stories of the proceedings at the Klondike during these "golden days" are not edifying, but point to the moral that wealth too easily and quickly won is apt to work ill.

Great Output.

The total output in 1898 was $10,000,000 from which figure it jumped $6,000,000 annually until 1900 when the production reached $22,275,000, the highest point. From this point a steady decline began until in 1908 when it was $2,820,131, at which time hydraulicking and dredging began and the total output rose slowly until it was $5,018,411, in 1913. It has been estimated that only about $20,000,000 worth of gold remains to be produced, out of the original available amount of nearly $180,000,000.

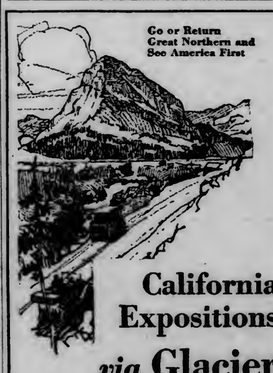

At the height of the boom in the winter of 1899 the population of Dawson is said to have reached 25,000; recently, however, it has dwindled down to less than 2,000 people.

The various processes of recovering gold in this region fall under three main heads; individuals, by washing surface gravels with shovel and pan, or by sluicing with flume and sluice box; small parties, by working drift with mechanical scrapers and sluices, or drift mining in shafts and sluicing; and capitalists, by dredging with powerful mechanical plants, hydraulic sluicing with monitors, or mining and stamping ore in mills. The first class includes "poor men's diggings," and the second requires more financial resources and mechanical ability, but a successful man in the first may become a member of the second class. While the first two classes require fairly rich ground, only men with exceptional ability and ample capital can reach the third class and work the low grade placer gravels or quartz veins successfully.

Problems For Future Geologist.

The author describes in detail the several methods of extracting gold from the frozen Klondike field, based upon his personal observations, and shows how man has changed the topography of this district, especially in the valleys. First the drift miners turned the gravel upside down, then the dredgers plowed it all over again and threw it into great ridges of stone with mud banks between, and finally, where there were white gravels on the high ground, the hydraulic "giants" washed them down into great fan-shaped cones, sometimes reaching across the entire valley, completely burying all below, damming up gullies and producing new lakes. All of which operations have made tough problems for the future geologist.

The vast territory of the Yukon district is imperfectly explored, and although it is far north, the climate in summer is warm and favorable for agriculture and grazing. Exploration is now readily effected from Dawson, and Mr. Cadell hopes that fresh enterprise will reveal new resources that will lead to the permanent settlement of this remote and almost uninhabited outpost.

Great Output.

The total output in 1898 was $10,000,000 from which figure it jumped $6,000,000 annually until 1900 when the production reached $22,275,000, the highest point. From this point a steady decline began until in 1908 when it was $2,820,131, at which time hydraulicking and dredging began and the total output rose slowly until it was $5,018,411, in 1913. It has been estimated that only about $20,000,000 worth of gold remains to be produced, out of the original available amount of nearly $180,000,000.

At the height of the boom in the winter of 1899 the population of Dawson is said to have reached 25,000; recently, however, it has dwindled down to less than 2,000 people.

The various processes of recovering gold in this region fall under three main heads; individuals, by washing surface gravels with shovel and pan, or by sluicing with flume and sluice box; small parties, by working drift with mechanical scrapers and sluices, or drift mining in shafts and sluicing; and capitalists, by dredging with powerful mechanical plants, hydraulic sluicing with monitors, or mining and stamping ore in mills. NEWS FROM STEEL PLANT PUTS NEW LIFE INTO THE REALTY MARKET IN DULUTH

Has Attracted Widespread Attention Throughout the Country.

More Confidence and Broader Inquiry Already in Evidence.

Western Suburbs Get the Most Direct Results From News.

Definite knowledge that the Minnesota Steel company will begin the operation of its plant on Nov. 1 has worked wonders in the promotion of confidence and broader inquiry for all classes of realties has already resulted from it, real estate operators say.

"The news that our steel plant is approaching completion has been widely spread in all parts of the country and financial and business men in many of the leading centers are coming to realize more fully that Duluth is beginning to ride upon the crest of the wave," said N. J. Upham today. "This interest may be expected to increase as the time draws nearer for the opening of the plant. The inaugurating of a payroll including about 2,500 men on the start just at a time when the tendency is for a slowing down with the closing of navigation will mean much to our business interests. It should result in bringing into the city about 1,500 additional men, meaning, with their families, an increase of at least 5,000 to its population."

Realty men generally hold similar views to Mr. Upham and plans are being laid for an active movement in all classes of properties. It is conceded that at the outset the steel plant districts, West Duluth and the West end, are likely to show relatively the most marked activity.

House Properties Moving.

A feature of the week in real estate circles was the putting through of a transaction in which M. K. Stack exchanged a block of four brick houses, being 517 to 523 East Fourth street, with Julius Garon for a residence property at 301 East Fifth street. The values of the East Fourth street property was placed at approximately $12,000. The deal was put through the office of E. H. Caulkins & Co.

Good inquiry during the week was reported by the N. J. Upham company. Business put through included four resales of lots in Waverly Park at substantial profits to their original purchasers, and of a house and lot in Crescent View Park. Considerable building is foreshadowed in Waverly Park between now and the end of the season, the projects including three homes to cost about $15,000 each.

PLAN ADDITIONAL STORY FOR FARGUSSON BUILDING

Massachusetts Realty Co. Will Make Improvement to Cost $27,000.

Home Building Continues Actively in All Parts of City.

Letting by the Massachusetts Real Estate company of the contract for the building of an additional story upon the Fargusson building at the southwest corner of Superior street and Fourth avenue was the feature of the week in building trade circles. Smith & Vokes were the successful bidders at $27,000.

The additional story will be fitted up into offices, and it is understood that it will be modernly appointed in every particular. The contractors are now assembling the materials, and work will be started at once with a view to the premises being ready for occupancy late this fall. Plans for the project were prepared by W. P. Allred, architect, last summer, but on account of the unsettled conditions brought about through the outbreak of the European war, the work was postoned.

Much Work in Hand.

New work coming out this week was well up to the season's average, permits issued at the building inspector's office numbering 24, with cost of improvements involved placed at $34,815.

The largest permit in the list was taken out by W. M. Prindle & Co., for a brick garage now under erection on Superior street between Second and Third avenues east. It will cost $8,000.

A $7,000-frame house is being built for Warren E. Greene on the west side of Woodland avenue, between Oxford and Ruthven streets.

• • •

E. E. Scoble is building a $5,000-frame house on Robinson street, between Forty-second and Forty-third avenue east.

THIEF RIVER FALLS PLANNING FOR FAIR

Annual Pennington County Show to Be Held Aug. 4 and 6.

Thief River Falls, Minn., July 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual Pennington county fair will be held here on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Aug. 4, 5 and 6, and preparations for the event are now being made by Secretary La Bree and the several committees. Harry Webster of Duluth has been secured for the aviation flights, and Miss Laura Stoppel, a prominent young lady of this city has offered to make a flight with him. The Patterson shows have been secured for the amusement features of the program.

The annual school election will be held this evening and directors will be chosen to succeed Rasmus Oen and W. A. Borden. The proposition of moving the Central building to a new location five blocks north of the present site will also be submitted to the voters.

The state railroad and warehouse commission held a meeting here Thursday morning, in the matter of the petition of the Tri-State Telephone company for an indeterminate permit to operate and exchange here. The hearing on the petition was continued until July 28. There is strong sentiment locally in favor of the purchase of the system by the city.

An election will be held within a short time to decide whether the city should purchase the waterpower and dam, owned by Mrs. Anna Kretschmar and W. A. Schreiter in this city. The owners offer the property, which also includes a lease to the H. & B. Milling company for $35,000. The property is now bringing the owners a revenue of $325 per month, $175 from the city and $150 from the milling company.

Albert Lonson, assistant cashier of the First State bank for the past four years, has resigned and will leave next week for Callaway, where he will take charge of a new bank recently incorporated and owned by Mr. Lonson and W. H. Frederick of this city; L. M. Hoag, D. N. Winton and C. J. Winton of Minneapolis.

Wedded at Detroit.

Miss Cora B. Knipfel was married to Roy Morgan July 12, at Detroit, Minn., both well known young people of this city. The bride, whose home is in Menasha, Wis., was until June 1, employed as linotype operator here, while the groom is proprietor of the Lyceum theater.

The village of Goodridge at the east end of the electric railway, which on July 5, celebrated the first anniversary, will vote on Aug. 6, on the proposition of incorporation, the notice having been issued Wednesday by the county commissioners. According to a census taken last week, Goodridge now has a population of 228.

W. M. Parker, one of the owners of the Sanderson & Parker racing stables at Sauk Center, was here this week arranging to bring a string of racers here for the county fair.

Edwin A. Rolfe, who left here about four years ago for Florida, where he now holds a position with the Seaboard Airline at Jacksonville, was here the first of the week.

A quantity of corn meal, corn flakes, and other cereals, salvage from the Grocery company fire of a month ago, and stored in the August Carlson barn, caused spontaneous combustion that resulted in the destruction of the building Thursday noon.

Alice May Wilcox, 17-year-old daughter of E. S. Wilcox of this city, died at Cass Lake Tuesday night from exhaustion and heart failure, following an illness of ten days. The funeral was held here Friday afternoon.

Leaves Worthless Checks.

Ralph T. Wennerblom, who came here about April 1, as local representative for the New England Mutual Life Insurance company, left the city between two days last week, and in his wake are a number of worthless checks, and an innumerable number of sorrowing friends.

At the annual meeting of the P. W. Sharp Printing company held this week, officers were elected as follows: President, Robert McGinn; vice president, Math Barzen; treasurer, P. O. Myhrom; secretary, Theodore Tandberg; directors, Louis Hanson, P. W. Sharp and Bert Norby.

GROCERS BACK CELEBRATION

Retailers Indorse Civic Program for Steel Plant Opening.

Further Plans for Picnic; Thirty-Day Credit System Success.

Retail grocers of Duluth are heartily in accord with the plan for an elaborate civic celebration to mark the opening of the Minnesota Steel company's plant in Duluth on Nov. 1 this year.

Support to the project was promised last evening at a meeting of the directors of the Duluth Retail Grocers' association. M. R. Bush, president, was authorized to appoint a committe to confer with the Commercial club in the matter.

In the opinion of George M. Peterson, secretary of the association, the idea is a splendid one. "The retail grocers realize this," he said, "and will do all in their power to make the affair a success."

Further plans were made for the annual picnic to be held July 22 at Lester Park. The grocers will close their places of business on that day to give every member of the association a chance for an outing. The Third Regiment band has been engaged and will furnish music for dancing afternoon and evening. A good sports program has been arranged.

Inspection tours to West Duluth factories will be resumed the first week in August. The Union Match factory and rug and broom factories will be visited.

The members of the association are finding that the thirty-day credit plan for customers is meeting with success, according to Secretary Peterson. The credit system was started on July 1, in accordance with a resolution which was passed by the retail grocers some time ago.

WOULD HAVE LOCAL FIRMS MAKE RIFLES

Buffalo Man Writes Mayor He Has Order for 2,000,000 Weapons.

Saying that he has an order for 2,000,000 rifles, to be delivered in twenty-two months, E. J. H. Pauley of Buffalo, N. Y., in a letter to Mayor W. I. Prince asks if there are any Duluth firms who could take a portion of the order. The letter was received yesterday.

Mayor Prince plainly was mystified by the communication and was unable to tell whether it was a joke or to be taken seriously. The writer professed to be an insurance agent, "authorized to place the order by a representative of certain contracting parties." The letter is a multigraph copy, signed with a rubber stamp, indicating that other similar ones have been sent out.

Specifications of the kind of rifle wanted are exact. They must be seven-millimeter weapons, either Springfield 1903 models or of the Mauser 1908 pattern, with stocks of ash, walnut or hard maple.

NEW HOSTELRY FOR RED LAKE FALLS

Will Be Modern Affair and Built Upon Old Opera House Site.

Red Lake Falls, Minn., July 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Peter Mardoz of Minneapolis while here, accompanied by Miss Nazovick of Crookston, announced her intention of building a modern brick hotel, having thirty rooms, on the old opera house site, near the Great Northern depot. While here she closed the deal with W. T. Spillane for the lots, and declared the intentions were to start work immediately.

Last Sunday the Warren baseball team, accompanied by the Warren band and rooters, came here in a special train, to play the team of this city. The game was a good one, Warren winning by a score of 4 to 1.

The local baseball team accompanied by the band will go to Grand Forks on a special train over the Northern Pacific, to play with the Grand Forks Stars.

County Fair Plans.

The Red Lake County Agricultural society has closed a contract with Clifton Kelley shows, to appear here during the three days of the county fair, July 27, 28 and 29. The fair grounds have been put in fine shape for the fair, many new improvements having been added, the principal one being a new grand stand, to replace the old one destroyed by wind early in the summer. A good race program has been provided and, weather permitting, the fair promises to be bigger and better than ever.

On Aug. 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5, Red Lake Falls will hold its first chautauqua and from the list of attractions on the program should prove a big success.

Teachers' examinations will be held at the high school building in this city, July 26, 27 and 28.

PORTUGUESE LEADER SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

Lisbon, July 16, via Paris, July 17.—Dr. Alfonso Costa, former premier of Portugal, is reported to have passed the crisis of his illness. He has improved steadily since an operation which was performed early in the week.

President Braga called today at the hospital where Dr. Costa is a patient and was permitted to talk with the leader of the Democrats of the country for three minutes although physicians had issued orders that no visitors were to be admitted to his room.

CHECK UP ON LICENSES.

Many Firms Are Delinquent, Declares City Clerk.

Delinquent license holders will be checked up by police, according to City Clerk Walter Borgen, who stated yesterday that various firms are neglectful of renewing their permits, frequently waiting several months before remitting.

All licenses, except those for liquor and cigarette sale, expired April 30 and are supposed to be renewed May 1. A list of the delinquents will be turned over to the police, with instructions to round them up.

The list includes plumbers, second-hand dealers, pawnbrokers, employment agency operators and pool and billiard hall proprietors.

Quiet Near Torreon.

Washington, July 17.—American Consular Agent Carothers reported today that quiet prevailed between Zacatecas and Torreon. His message, however, is believed to have been delayed, as other reports to the department say Villa's forces abandoned Zacatecas to the Carranza army and retired northward toward Torreon, destroying the railroad. Villa is reported at Torreon.

ON THE IRON RANGES

MORE INDEPENDENTS NOW BEING WORKED

Improved Conditions Give Impetus to Mesaba Range Mining.

Hibbing, Minn., July 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—A rise in the price of iron ore and the decreased freight rates to lake ports, has made mining operations on the range more active now than for several years. Many of the independent properties which have been closed down for years have resumed operations and indications are, mining officials says, favorable for one of the best seasons in the history of the range.

At Chisholm, mining companies have announced, operations are being continued at full capacity. The Mahoning mine will put out 500,000 tons of ore more this season than last, while in other properties larger crews are being put on to handle the increased output.

Developing Carson Lake.

Among the new properties being developed is the Carson lake mine at Hibbing. Foundations for the dry, engine and boiler rooms have been started and work of filling in the old Lake basin is going on rapidly. When completed the engine room will house a hoisting engine and a big 11 K. V. A. dynamo. The boiler room will contain three horizontal tubular boilers. One and a quarter million cubic yards have already been dumped in the basin and this phase of the work is continuing at the rate of 60,000 cubic yards a month.

One shovel is stripping at the Wahcootah mine at Mountain Iron and a second shovel, it is expected, will be added soon. It is rumored that this property will be shipping Aug. 15. A shaft has been sunk at the North Eddy mine between the Agnew and Utica properties at Hibbing. The Glen mine, idle for several years, is now employing a crew of more than 100 men. This property will soon be operating its maximum of 1,500 tons daily, officials declare. Virginia residents are looking forward to the development of Missabe Mountain and Columbia properties. The stockpile of the Missabe Mountain mine has been shipped this season. This mine is leased to the Oliver Mining company for a period of fifty years. Squatters over the Columbia ore bodies have been ordered off. This is taken as an indication that officials plan to begin removing the overburden soon.

SOUDAN PIONEER DIES.

Richard Martin, Nearly 80 Years of Age, Is Summoned.

Tower, Minn., July 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Richard Martin, a resident of Soudan for the last twenty-eight years, died Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock, after an illness of several years, during the last few months of which he has been confined to his bed.

Partial paralysis was the nature of his first affliction. This, together with an acute attack of rheumatism, caused his permanent disability, and during the last few days total paralysis gradually set in, finally causing his death.

Mr. Martin was nearly 80 years of age, and had, until he became disabled, been an employe of the Oliver Iron Mining company at the Soudan mine. For several years he has been drawing a pension from the company. He leaves a widow and two sons, William of Soudan and Fred of Genoa. The relatives were all at the bedside when the end came. Funeral services will be held at the Soudan Methodist church Sunday at 2 p. m. Rev. Mr. Schenck of Aurora will officiate, and interment will be in Lakeview cemetery.

PRAISES CROOKSTON FAIR.

Superintendent Bergh of Grand Rapids State Farm Lauds Show.

Grand Rapids, Minn., July 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Supt. Otto I. Bergh of the local state farm returned Thursday from Crookston, where he was one of the judges at the fair of the Northwestern Minnesota Agricultural association. Mr. Bergh reports that that fair is making rapid strides forward and made an unusually good showing, doubtless due to the large amounts offered in premiums, which in many cases are larger than the premiums offered at the state fair.

Over 400 cattle were on exhibition, and they included stock from North and South Dakota, Iowa and Wisconsin as well as from this state. A herd of Guernseys from the Jean Duluth farm was an exhibition. An interesting exhibit was a bunch of Angus cattle from the Jim Hill farm, which included a $10,000 prize-winning bull.

ILLNESS PREVENTED WINTON CELEBRATION

Winton, Minn., July 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because of illness in the family, the double birthday of Mrs. James Simpson and her daughter, Gladys, was not celebrated by a party in the usual way, although several friends dropped in during the afternoon and evening to tender congratulations and sample the cake.

FREE LIFE READINGS TO ALL WHO WRITE AT ONCE

The well-known European Astrologer, Prof. Roxroy, has once more decided to favor the people of this country with Free Test Readings of their lives from his office in Holland.

Prof. Roxroy's fame is so well known in this country that he hardly needs an introduction from us. His power to read the lives of people, no matter at what distance they may be is described as simply marvellous.

In August, 1913 he clearly predicted the Great War, and informed all his clients that "a bereavement in Royal circles will affect most of the crowned heads of Europe." Even Astrologers of various nationalities and reputation all over the world acknowledge him to be their master, and follow in his footsteps.

He tells you what you are capable of, and how you can be successful. He mentions your friends and enemies, and describes the good and bad periods in your life. His description as to past, present and future events will astonish and help you.

Baroness Blanquet, one of the most talented ladies of Paris, says,

"I thank you for my Complete Life Reading, which is really of extraordinary accuracy. I had already consulted several Astrologers, but never before have I been answered with so much truth, or received such complete satisfaction. With sincere pleasure I will recommend you and make your marvelous science known to my friends and acquaintances."

If you want to take advantage of this special offer and obtain a review of your life, mention the name of this paper and get a Trial Reading free. Money not necessary. Simply send your full name and address (written by yourself) the date, month, year and place of your birth, and state whether Mr., Mrs. or Miss.

If you wish you may enclose 10 cents (in stamps of your own country)—to pay postage and clerical work. Do not enclose coins in your letter. Send your letter to ROXROY, Dept. 54-P, No. 24, Groote Markt, The Hague Holland. Postage to Holland 5 cents.

(We are informed that Prof. Roxroy's Office is open as usual and all letters are safely delivered and collected in Holland.)

BUSY PREPARING FOR BOOSTERS' DAY AUG. 1

LOUIS STEIN.

Virginia, Minn., July 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Louis Stein, secretary of the Northern Minnesota Band league, is busy preparing plans for the entertainment of the league's 450 members here on "Boosters' day," Aug. 1. The Aurora and Grand Rapids bands recently joined the organization. Eighteen bands are now enrolled in the league. Mr. Stein is a veteran member of the City band and was formerly a member of the Aurora band. He has been prominent in range musical circles for several years.

BENEFIT SOCIETY MUST PAY DAMAGE

In district court yesterday afternoon, Judge Dancer rendered a decision in which he awarded Charles Trucano $300 damages against the Societa Italiano Vittorio Emanuele III of Ely and its members.

Trucano sued for $10,500 damages, claiming that he was accused of being a faker and unjustly expelled from the society. The organization is a mutual benefit society, consisting of thirty-one members. It maintains a benefit fund for its members, and its bylaws provide that if any member shall be totally disabled, he shall be entitled to a benefit of $25 monthly for a period not to exceed six months.

Trucano was sick for six months, but the society refused to pay his claim and expelled him from the order, claiming that he had entered into a conspiracy with his physician to defraud the organization.

INDIAN KILLED BY HIS SON, TAKING HIM FOR DEER.

Deer River, Minn., July 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—A few nights ago, while out hunting, each in separate canoes, Joe Pratt, an Indian, age about 40, residing at Ball Club, was shot in mistake for a deer by his stepson, Bebo, and was killed instantly. Neither was using a light. A khaki suit worn by Pratt made him appear like a deer in the poor light, Bebo claimed.

DRUNKS ON PROBATION.

Grand Rapids Judge Suspends Sentence Pending Good Behavior.

Grand Rapids, Minn., July 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge H. S. Huson has hit upon a novel plan of reducing the drunk docket. Every drunk found guilty is given a sentence of $10 and costs or thirty days in jail with the option of a suspended sentence provided he takes the pledge to restrain from drink for six months. If caught drunk or drinking during that time the sentence becomes effective and commitment is issued. H. Hendricks was given such a sentence and Fred Stevens received the same dose.

The local police are going after the auto speeders and the joy riders. Three came under the observation of the police this week, Officers Johnson and McVeigh both making arrests. Niel Bluntach and Roy Scannell, two drivers for Latham of Coleraine, were fined $5 and costs each, amounting to $8, by Judge Huson for speeding. Wesley Houseknecht, a young man of Hibbing, received the same punishment for coming through town faster than the law allows.

IS FOUND NOT GUILTY.

Alleged Itasca County Illegal Deer Killer Goes Free.

Grand Rapids, Minn., July 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Garrison was found not guilty of having killed deer out of season. He is said to be an old offender and it is likely that prosecution will be started for having green hides in his possession without a retaining tag.

Joseph Boyd, a foreman in the C. M. Erskine Timber company works, and Ed. Beaulieu were bound over to the September grand jury on a charge of forgery in the third degree. They are accused of making out and cashing a time check against the account of one Nick Cove on the Erskine Timber company.

GRAND RAPIDS BRIEFS.

Grand Rapids, Minn., July 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—R. L. Fishbeck of Fosston this week visited his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Raboin.

Miss Myrtle Becker is spending a couple of week as the guest of the Gunns, at Wolf Lake lodge.

W. J. Corwin, who is subject to attacks of poison ivy, is confined to his bed by the poisoning, which has been unusually bad.

MORE MONEY IN BARLEY

Better Profits for Growers Possible, Says State Farm Bulletin.

While the acreage of barley in Minnesota is fast approaching the 1,500,000 mark and the average total yield is usually close to 30,000,000 bushels or better (impressive figures), barley-growing in the state is far from being as profitable as it might be. The total yield might well be nearly 60,000,000 on the same acreage, and the quality might be far superior if growers would give more attention to the crop, particularly between the time of cutting and the time of marketing.

The foregoing are facts in a bulletin on "Barley Investigations," by C. P. Bull of the division of agronomy and farm management, Minnesota experiment station, just issued and obtainable by addressing the office of publications, University farm, St. Paul. The facts strike the average reader as altogether sufficient ground for investigations which were begun by the experiment station years ago to find out just what are the best commercial varieties of barley for Minnesota conditions and how varieties and strains might be improved or better adapted to Minnesota's needs.

The bulletin gives figures to show that there has been an actual decrease in the average yield per acre in recent years, and that the records of the state grain inspection department show (for 1912, for example) 78.1 per cent graded as "feed." The way to remedy these conditions is indicated.

Those who have co-operated with the experiment station in growing barley from selected seed have reported yields varying from 35 to 45 bushels to the acre, while at the station itself yields as high as 48.8 bushels to the acre have been obtained. Such results have been secured, too, on silt loam of only moderate fertility with a sandy or gravely subsoil. The use of selected seed, then is one step in the right direction.

The experiments, moreover, show that the commercial barleys that have given the best results, to discover which was the prime aim of the experiments, are Manchuria (Minnesota No. 105), a 6-rowed bearded barley, which produced 48.2 bushels to the acre for a period of thirteen years from 1899 to 1911 inclusive. This record was surpassed, however, by Minnesota No. 184 a pure line stock selected from Minnesota No. 105. This gave 48.8 bushels to the acre for the 3-year period from 1906 to 1910, during which No. 105 gave only an average of 39.4.

In the efforts to improve varieties by selection and by crossing and selection, some progress has been made but in the main results have been rather inconclusive. The experiments will, therefore, be continued.

WILL PICTURE ON RURAL LIFE TOPICS

Keystone Expert Secured for Conference at Farm College.

In securing Charles O. Bemies of Pennsylvania for a series of lectures at the Rural Life conference to be held held at the University farm, St. Paul, July 27 to 30, the committee announces that it is in a position to offer those planning to attend the conference something exceptionally good:

Mr. Bemies is a lecturer and teacher in the field of country life, not as a theorist, but as a man of experience. He knows the farmer, the school master, the rural minister, and country life generally from the inside. Kenyon L. Butterfield, president of the Massachusetts agricultural college, one of the country life authorities of the United States, says Mr. Bemies "is one of the earliest pioneers in making the country pastorate a community-building career, and his long and successful experience, his thorough knowledge of fundamentals, give him the ability to present a clear and interesting story."

URGES SPRAYING TO CHECK EARLY BLIGHT

Proper Treatment Will Prevent Potato Losses, Declares Farm Expert.

Potatoes should be sprayed to prevent early blight. The attention of all potato growers is called to the important leaf diseases, early and late blight. Both of these diseases annually cause large losses. Late blight last year did much damage in Minnesota.

Proper methods in spraying will prevent such losses to a great extent, according to Arne G. Tolaas, assistant in plant pathology at the Minnesota experiment station. He says:

"The vines should be kept thoroughly covered with 5-5-50 Bordeaux mixture during the growing season. The first spraying should be done at this time, as the early blight generally makes its appearance in the early part of July. It is important to get the spray on the vines before the disease appears, as the spraying of vines already attacked will do very little good as far as the diseased plants themselves are concerned, though it will prevent the spread of the disease to healthy plants. Three sprayings, at intervals of two weeks, on the early varieties, and four or five on the late varieties, will keep the vines covered during the season, depending on weather conditions.

"Further details and particulars are given in Extension Bulletin No. 35, which can be obtained by writing to the office of publication, University farm, St. Paul.

NEW FARM SCHOOL CATALOGUE READY

Registrar Would Put Copy in Every Prospective Student's Home.

The new catalogue of the school of agriculture, Minnesota university, is ready for distribution.

J. M. Drew, the registrar, would like to send one of these catalogues to every farmer in the state having sons and daughters who are interested in getting an education beyond that offered in the district schools. To all such young people, and to their parents, the following facts and suggestions are offered by Mr. Drew:

"A large majority of those who have attended the school of agriculture since its founding in 1888, have returned to farm life and in nearly all cases have shown in their work at home that they have profited greatly from knowledge gained at the school. Those students who were fairly mature when they entered the school have been the best students, as a rule. For this and other reasons the rule making the lower age limit 17 years has been adopted.

"On the farms of Minnesota are many young men and young women who think they are too old to go to school and who for this reason never get anything in the line of education beyond the common branches taught in the district schools. Many of them do not even get all they could from the district schools because, on account of leaving school every spring as soon as active farm work begins, they drop behind their classmates. This continues until they have grown so large that they are ashamed to go to school with the smaller children in the neighborhood. Such would receive a welcome at the school of agriculture, where the average age of students is nearly 20 years, and a great many are old enough to vote. Two of the best students ever at the school were 27 years old when they entered.

JOINT PICNIC AT EXPERIMENT FARM

Thursday, July 22, is the date which has been set for the first annual joint picnic of the Northeastern Minnesota Horticultural society, the Federated Farmers' clubs and the Garden society. The affair will be held at the Northeast Minnesota Experiment station, two and one-half miles northeast of the Woodland car line.

Picnickers will bring basket lunch but coffee, cream and sugar will be provided by the committee. A bus service will operate between the end of the Woodland carline and the station between the hours of 9 and 12 in the morning and 3 to 6 in the afternoon. A good time is in store for everybody whether one is interested in growing live stock, grain, fruit or flowers. Everybody in Northeastern Minnesota is invited.

The program, in part, follows:

"Northeastern Minnesota, a Fruit Growing Region."—President S. George Stevens.

"Bee Management and Demonstrations"—Prof. Jager.

"Northern Farm Management"—Prof. Andrew Boss.

REPLY TO GERMAN NOTE WILL BE UNMISTAKABLE

TERRIFIC ONSLAUGHT OF GERMANS IS MOST GIGANTIC SINCE OPENING OF WAR

FIGHTING IN FULL SWING FROM BALTIC TO DNIESTER RIVER

Famous Generals Who Won Victories on Franco-Belgian Line Now Commanding Divisions in East.

Russians May Abandon Defense of Warsaw and Attempt to Withdraw Their Great Armies Intact.

London, July 19.—Attention is now centered on the gigantic operations in the eastern field of war, where fighting is in full swing in nearly every section of the Russian line from the Baltic to the Dniester.

Gen. von Buelow, who was on the left of Gen. von Kluck in the first invasion of France, now commands the extreme left of the German advance toward Riga, which is being conducted by cavalry on a scale exceeding anything heretofore during the war. Berlin claims a steady advance and Petrograd concedes an advance after the Russian forces had made a stubborn contest.

Held Up By Fortress.

On Von Buelow's right is Gen. Von Eichhorn, who is being held up by the great Russian fortress, Ossowetz. On Von Eichhorn's right is Gen. Von Gallwitz, whose name appears for the first time in large operations. After capturing Przasnysz, he is now pressing a German attack on the Narew river, and its tributaries.

On the famous Rawka and Bzura lines there is comparative quiet, which is also reflected on the south side of Warsaw, but to the southeast the movement against Lublin, which was temporarily checked, is again in full swing.

Russians May Withdraw.

The Russians must fight a defensive battle for the possession of Warsaw, or abandon all of Poland. The Germans are considering undoubtedly to prefer the first issue, hence the Russians, in the opinion of many military observers, are likely to attempt a complete withdrawal with their armies intact. These tremendous activities by the Germans in the east suggest that they have little reserve left to devote to the western campaign, which offers the entente allies a respite, either for the completion of munition supplies, or a concerted attempt to recapture Lille.

Best Service of Allies.

Another view holds that the best service her allies could give Russia at this time would be the forcing of the Dardanelles. It is possible that the allies may combine both sugested attempts, but it is unquestionable that for the time the center of gravity in the war has shifted to eastern Europe.

The western front continues quiet, without a sign of any new development. The Italians report some prog-

INVENTED BOMB PLOT IN HOPES OF REWARD

Harry Westbrook Put Dynamite on Track and Then "Found" It.

Reading, Pa., July 19.—Harry F. Westbrook, who last week went to a Pennsylvania railroad tower near Altoona, Pa., with a piece of pipe containing twenty sticks of dynamite, and said he had found the explosive on the tracks, was arrested here last night and today, according to the police, he confessed he had invented the scheme in the hope of getting a reward.

Westbrook, in his confession, according to the police, said he had conceived the idea after reading of the exploits of Frank Holt. He made the bomb at his home here, the police said. It contained enough dynamite to destroy a city block. Last Thursday night, Westbrook said, according to the police, he went to a point near Altoona, placed the bomb on the track, later removed it and told the officials of the railroad he had found it.

The railroad officials did not believe his story from the start. Westbrook further said, the police declare, that he had gotten up the scheme to become a hero, and to improve his position in life for the sake of his wife and babies. Westbrook is 32 years old.

KERR BELIEVES DULUTH WILL BE SHIPPING STEEL IN FALL

AMERICAN CONSUL CALLED HOME TO AVOID FRICTION

ARNOLD SHANKLIN.

CONSUL WITHDRAWN FROM MEXICO CITY

Shanklin Called Home to Avoid Friction With Brazilian Minister.

Washington, July 19.—Arnold Shanklin, American consul general in Mexico City, is on his way to Washington, under orders from the state department to report upon conditions. This was stated officially today, and incidentally it was admitted that Mr. Shanklin has been withdrawn temporarily from duty in Mexico City to avoid continuation of friction with Senor Cardoza, the Brazilian minister there.

Last week Mr. Shanklin went to the Mexican capital to carry on Red Cross relief work. Some differences as to methods developed between the consul general and the Brazilian minister. They were not serious, but as Senor Cardoza has been for many months looking after American interests in a manner so thorough and satisfactory as to win the gratitude of the state department officials, they regarded as only proper to remove any causes of friction, quite regardless of the merits of the question.

MOVEMENT OF ORE HEAVIER

Says Corporation's Mills Are Now on 90 Per Cent Basis.

Indorses Plan of Holding Celebration of Plant's Opening.

"While I can't say with exact knowledge, I believe, at least, that the Duluth steel plant will be shipping late this fall. If not this fall, then early in the spring of 1916."

Thus spoke D. G. Kerr, vice president of the United States Steel corporation. Mr. Kerr is here today, together with McGilvray Shiras, ore agent of the United States Steel corporation, and F. B. Kellogg, one of the corporation's attorneys.

"We are shipping more ore than last year," said Mr. Kerr. "The total shipments for the present season will be greater than the gross tonnage shipped from the Head of the Lakes a year ago. On an estimate it might be stated that this year we will ship possibly more than 20,000,000 tons.

"Foreign and domestic demand for iron ore have resulted in the increased shipments. Here and there over the country the demand for steel has increased. The foreign demand for cer-

Wheeling, W. Va., July 19.—The last of the idle steel mills in the Wheeling district was placed in operation today, when a part of the force returned to work at the Riverside plant of the National Tube company. Two weeks will be required to get all departments going and give work to the 5,000 men who have been idle for fourteen months.

BODY OF BATES, LOST ON LUSITANIA, FOUND

Remains of New Yorker Washed Ashore on the Limerick Coast.

London, July 19.—A body supposed to be that of Lindon W. Bates, Jr., of New York, who lost his life on the Lusitania, has been washed ashore on the Limerick coast. A telegram to that effect was received today from Wesley Frost, American consul at Queenstown, by Newton D. Knox, an American mining engineer and friend of Mr. Bates.

The telegram says a gold watch and a gold cigarette case marked with Mr. Bates' monogram were found on the body. Measurements of the body also indicate that the identification is correct.

Mr. Knox will leave tonight for Queenstown to take charge of the body.

UNITED STATES TO ASSERT ITS RIGHTS ON THE HIGH SEAS

President and Secretary Find They Have Reached Same Conclusion as to Position of United States.

Note Will Inform Imperial Government What This Country Will Do If There Is Further Violation of Rights.

Washington, July 19.—President Wilson and Secretary Lansing today discussed in detail a draft of the note to be sent to Germany this week informing the imperial government what the United States will do if there is further violation of American rights on high seas.

The return of President Wilson from Cornish, N. H., gave Secretary Lansing his first opportunity to confer on the policy to be followed as the result of Germany's failure to satisfy the American demands made in the note of June 9.

SAME CONCLUSION.

It was understood that the president and Mr. Lansing found that they had reached about the same conclusion—that the next communication to Germany will be of a definite character, making unmistakably clear that the United States cannot be expected to remain passive in the event of another attack on an unarmed and unresisting ship with a loss of Americans.

TO ASSERT RIGHTS

The note, it is now practically agreed, will announce to Germany the intention of the United States to assert its rights on the high seas, in accordance with international law. There probably will be little or no discussion on the principles already treated in previous notes.

Prompt action in dispatching the note was generally forecasted. Tomorrow it will be submitted by the president to the cabinet and possibly may be revised again at Friday's meeting. In official quarters it was agreed the communication will be on its way to Berlin by Saturday.

Will Make Change.

Although it is not certain whether reference will be made to the attack on the Cunard liner Orduna, it is known that that incident has swept aside previous suggestions that the next communication would take into consideration that German submarine commanders in actual practice were conforming to the rules of international law. Irrespective of the details of the Orduna attack, the fact that a vessel carrying Americans bound to the United States and transporting no contraband was attacked without warning impressed high officials that German submarine warfare still held forth many hazards for Americans traveling the high seas "on lawful errands."

Secretary Lansing was at the White House for more than an hour. While he had been in frequent communication with the president since the president went to Cornish, it is understood that he did not obtain until today the president's final decision of the extent to which the purposes of the United States should be stated in the next note. The president is said to have become convinced that the next communi-

LOSS AT STRAITS TOTALS 42,434

Includes Both Naval and Military Branches, Says Asquith.

London, July 19.—The total casualties of the Dardanelles expeditionary force to date in killed, wounded and missing have been 42,434 officers and men. Premier Asquith told the house of commons today. The total includes both naval and military branches of the service.

Out of an aggregate of 8,084 casualties among officers, the premier's statement said the killed numbered 1,933.

WHY IS IT?

LEO FRANK DELIRIOUS FROM WOUND MADE BY A CONVICT

Noted Prisoner in Serious Condition as Result of Attack.

Throat Cut While Asleep By William Creen, Fellow Convict.

Milledgeville, Ga., July 19.—Physicians who examined Leo M. Frank in the state prison early today said his condition was much worse. The jagged cut in his throat, received at the hands of a fellow prisoner Saturday night, was swollen and his temperature was 102 2-5.

Dr. H. J. Rosenberg, the Frank family physician, who returned to Atlanta last night, believed Frank's condition warranted his leaving. He and another Atlanta doctor were summoned back today.

Early today Frank was restless, his temperature continued to rise and at about daylight he was delirious at brief intervals. The temperature reached the highest shortly before 8 o'clock and then began to drop. At 9 o'clock it was a fraction over 101.

Dr. Guy Compton, the prison physician, was not so alarmed over the turn of the night as were the other attendants. He said that some fever was to be expected and that the swollen neck was not necessarily an exceed-

ITALIAN DEPUTY BACK FROM FRONT

New Member of Cabinet Warmly Greeted By Constituents.

Rome, via Paris, July 19.—Signor Barzilai, the Republican deputy who on Saturday was appointed a member of the cabinet without portfolio, returned from the front yesterday with Premier Salandra. Signor Barzilai's constituents marched with flags and bands to the new minister's home to welcome him. He made a speech to the electors, declaring the war would demonstrate the error of those who talked wildly about a divided Italy.

Premier Salandra expressed satisfaction with the accomplishments of the army since his last visit to the front, and said there were good prospects that the Isonzo line of the Austrians would be conquered soon.

STRICT ORDERS ARE ISSUED TO BELGIANS

Brussels, July 19, via London.—Gen. Von Bissing, governor general of Belgium, promulgated an order today for the punishment of any Belgian between the ages of 16 and 40 who leaves the state to serve in any capacity for a country at war with Germany. The penalty provided is a fine of 10,000 marks, ($2,500), or five years imprisonment, or both.

ITALIAN WARSHIP IS SUNK BY AUSTRIANS

Giuseppe Garibaldi Goes Down in Adriatic Sea Fifteen Minutes After Being Hit By Torpedo.

Berlin, July 19, by wireless to Sayville.—The following official communication was received here today from Vienna, under date of July 18:

"An Austrian submarine this morning torpedoed and sank south of Ragusa the Italian cruiser Giuseppe Garibaldi. The cruiser foundered within fifteen minutes."

The Giuseppe Garibaldi was an armored cruiser of 7,234 tons displacement. She was 344 feet long and was laid down in 1898. Her complement was 550 men. She was armed with one ten-inch, two eight-inch, fourteen six-inch and ten three-inch guns.

Ragusa is a fortified seaport of Austria-Hungary, in Dalmatia, on a peninsula of the Adriatic sea, thirty-eight miles northwest of Cattaro.

SUMMARY OF THE WAR NEWS

News dispatches from Athens report hard fighting on the Gallipoli peninsula with the forces of the entente allies attacking along the whole front. The attacks are said to have been successful, but there is no definite news as to the extent of the ground reported to have been gained.

The Italian armored cruser Giuseppe Garibaldi, has been torpedoed and sunk in the Adriatic by an Austrian submarine, it is officially reported from Vienna. The destroyed warship, which displaced 7,234 tons and had a complement of 550 men, was laid down seventeen years ago.

Belated dispatches from the Russian front tell of the recent concentration of great Austro-German forces on the 100-mile line between the Vistula and the Bug. It is here that severe pressure is now being put by Field Marshal Von Mackensen upon the Russian forces in the great Teutonic move against the armies of the Grand Duke Nicholas which has brought forth simultaneous attacks all along the front from the Baltic provinces to Bessarabia, Russia's army opposing Gen. Von Mackensen is declared to be one of the best she ever put into the field.

President Wilson has returned to Washington for conferences, at which the reply of the United States to the latest German note on submarine warfare will be taken up.

REPAIRING CITY SCHOOLS

Board Will Spend More Than $15,000 on Duluth Buildings.

New Lunch Room for Central—Old "Land Marks" Removed.

A total of $15,818 is being spent on thirty-five Duluth public schools this summer, and when the pupils return for the term next year they will probably miss many old "land marks" which have been removed either because of unsightliness or from being decidedly out of date. In their place will be found many new features which the public and others interested in the schools have long wished to see. On most of the schools there will be nothing but general repairs, while in many of them there will be special work done, most of it by contract. The total of this year is $3,500 less than that of last year.

In the Central high school a new lunchroom is being installed, and the assembly hall is receiving some attention. Some contract work and ground sodding are being done at the Adams school, while the former lunchroom at the Washington school will be made into three classrooms and one storeroom. Work which is expected to be very welcome is that which is being done on the Kenwood school. There will be two rooms instead of one, new fences and walks, and most important of all, a big basement and a good heating plant. Considerable agitation was raised among the residents of Kenwood regarding the conditions of their only school, and the board decided to make some repairs. The Kruger school will be closed and the pupils will be sent to the Lowell. Varnishing and painting are two of the most important items in the list of school repairs, and all of the schools are receiving a thorough cleaning.

Supplies for the janitor work during the coming year were provided for $3,500 being appropriated for this purpose. The board was authorized to take advantage of the coal market when the price was low to buy coal for the coming year. This item last year amounted to $18,000, and will probably be about the same this year. J. L. Thwing was given the contract as the lowest bidder to do the school printing, his bid being $178.97. This work is merely for the larger ledger and other work requiring an especially large press. Most of the general work is done at the high school printing department.

Schools that will have important repairs made on them and the amount that will be spent are: Central high school, $2,825; Adams, $1,283; Cobb, $100; Emerson, $325; Endion, $850; Ensign, $50; Fairmont, $150; Fond du Lac, $150; Franklin, $40; Irving, $325; Jackson, $425; Jefferson, $2,490; Kenwood, $2,025; Lakeside, $125; Lester Park, $345; Lincoln, $10; Longfellow, $135; Lowell, $45; Madison, $80; Merritt, $25; Monroe, $75; Munger, $125; Nettleton, $200; Oneota, $350; Radisson, $65; Salter, $140; Smithville, $25; New Stowe, $800; Washburn, $275; Washington, $1,200; Webster, $350; Whittier, $245; Bryant, $50.

STEEL PLANT FORCE GROWS

Of These 150 Are Working on the Cement Plant.

Nearly 1,100 men are now employed on construction work of the Minnesota steel plant and the Universal Portland Cement company, according to the latest reliable information to be secured from officials of the companies. Of this number there were 925 on the pay roll Saturday at the Steel company and nearly 150 employed at the cement plant.

It is claimed that at least another 100 men will be on the pay rolls of the Steel company before Aug. 1. Every man who can conveniently be put to work is being given employment. While there are only a few men put to work each day, the number is gradually increasing as the work is being pushed.

Since the inauguration of Sunday work as well as overtime evenings, the Northern Pacific railroad has increased the number of coaches carried for taking the men to the plant. The first train to be operated for the working men on Sundays left West Duluth on the regular week-day schedule yesterday morning and ran to New Duluth. The train carried nine coaches.

Steel is being erected at the steel plant by a crew of thirty men at present. Several bricklayers have been put on, and work at this point is progressing normally.

There is no scarcity of men, it is claimed. Every day a large number apply at the various gates or make applications to the foremen. Most of the men seeking employment are those who have been attracted to the city because of the resumption of construction work.

At Morgan Park a large crew of men is at work completing the construction of streets and sidewalks, and in other ways making the village an attractive spot for the employes to live in. The connection with the city streets will be completed within another month, so that heavier traffic to the city may be carried on.

PROCTOR VOTES AGAINST CHANGE

Will Not Become Independent School District—New High School.

Proctor will not become an independent school district according to action taken Saturday evening at the annual meeting of the school board held at the West Side school building. The proposition was brought up but unanimously voted down by the school board.

The principal discussion at the meeting was on the erection of the new high school building for the district. It is proposed to erect this building on the site of the West Side school but it will become necessary to purchase additional property. The board owns six lots in the block and an additional two or four lots may have to be purchased.

Plans for the schools are now being drawn by an architect and will probably be ready within another month. When these plans are accepted the board members will know just what amount of additional property will be required.

The board elected John Code, president and Harry Barnard, secretary. William McMurtrie is treasurer of the board.

FREY WILL TRY AGAIN.

Makes Another Attempt to Get Transfer of Saloon License.

"Try, try, again," is the motto of J. J. Frey, who will petition the city council, at their meeting today, for the liquor license formerly held by C. J. Petruschke at 410 Central avenue.

Fresh from the lawsuits arising from disputes with Mr. Petruschke, Mr. Frey will oppose citizens of West Duluth, who stopped proceedings with a protest when he tried on previous occasions to secure a permit to operate a saloon at 5217 Ramsey street.

The petition was filed with City Clerk Walter Borgen this morning, and will be presented to the council this afternoon.

Will Consolidate Tents.

The consolidation of West Duluth Tent No. 2 and Proctor Tent No. 1945 will be the feature of a meeting of the Knights of the Maccabees to be held tomorrow evening at the West Duluth Commercial club rooms.

Dr. E. H. Haas of St. Paul, great tent commander of the Maccabees of Minnesota, will be present and be the principal speaker.

A program of several musical numbers will also be given. It is expected that the meeting will be one of the biggest gatherings of Maccabees held in West Duluth in a number of years.

Install Officers.

Costa lodge, No. 243, Vasa Order, held its annual installation of officers Saturday evening at Victor's hall, 5528 Grand avenue. The ceremony was conducted by E. H. Nelson assisted by Edwin Horngren and Anton Erickson.

The new officers to be installed are W. Walberg, president; N. P. Pengivoll, vice president; A. Johnson, secretary; Christine Anderson, vice president; A Johnson, secretary; Christine Anderson, vice secretary; Peter Russ, chaplain; Gust Enquist, master of ceremonies; Martha Lindman, vice master of ceremonies; Eric Bertlin, inner watch; Harold Peterson, outer watch.

Cabin Party.

Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Batley of North Fifty-fourth avenue west, entertained at a cabin party at their cabin at Woodland Saturday evening. Members of the party motored to the place. Those in the party were: Misses Zelma Moyer, Gladys Lindstrom, Lydia Lee, Agnes Kellar, Alma Strand, Helma Strand, Emma Lee, and Messrs. Melvin Olson, Ray Bailey, Clifford Stowell, Goodwin Olson, Burl Springstead, George Becks, Elmer Olson and Raymond Erickson.

Three Delegates.

Mesaba tribe, No. 25, I. O. R. M. will have three representatives at the meeting of the great council, Red Men to be held in Minneapolis on Aug. 11 and 12. The regular delegates will be T. Fitzgibbons and Charles Zell. N. P. Willner, deputy great sachem and presiding officer of the local district of Red Men will also attend.

West Duluth Briefs.

Plans for an active campaign for membership will be discussed at the meeting of West Duluth council No. 4, Modern Samaritans, this evening at the West Duluth Commercial club rooms. The meeting will be addressed by some of the imperial officers of the society.

LICENSES AND CONTRACTS

Council Will Consider Five Renewals and Three Transfers.

Will Also Act on City Expenditures Involving About $55,000.

Five renewals and three transfers of liquor licenses will be considered by city commissioners at the first afternoon council meeting in several months today, in addition to a long list of resolutions calling for the approval of improvement and supply contracts involving about $55,000.

With the exception of $5,000 asked by the city water and light department for new machinery, the appropriations are for new grading, paving and sewer installation work. All of these appropriations have been considered before, and will come up for adoption and second or third reading, as the case may be.

The largest item in the list is for $43,613.11, covering the cost of paving Grand and Commonwealth avenues between Eighty-fourth avenue west and Zimmerly avenue. This will go to the E. W. Coons company of Hibbing. One course concrete with a trap-rock surface will be laid.

J. J. Frey wants the liquor license held by C. J. Petruschke at 410 North Central avenue transferred to him at 5217 Ramsey street.

Harry J. White, 5701 Raleigh street, will petition for the transferal to him of the license held by A. L. Brewer at the same location.

Samuel Kernes, 1920 West Superior street, wants the liquor license held by M. Rachlein, 28 South Twentieth avenue west. Rachlein recently failed to obtain $1,000 for license renewal, pleading poor business.

Eli Brizette and T. Pinsonnault want a license at 2008 West Superior street.

W. A. Wagner, 312 West Superior street; Karl Lehto, 244 South First avenue east, and Homer Tillotson, 513 West Michigan street, wants their licenses renewed.

J. O. Renning, jitney operator, has announced his intention of establishing a jitney supply station at 2305-7 West Superior street, and wants permission to use the sidewalk for a gasoline pump.

Other paving contracts to be approved include: One for $2,790 to Hilliard & Julien for a rock surface on East Fifth street between Twelfth and Third avenues; one to the same concern for $1,218.45, covering the cost of paving Fifth alley from Twenty-first avenue east to Twenty-second avenue, and one to J. D. O'Connell for $1,404, covering the paving of Sixth alley between Tenth and Eleventh avenues east.

CONFER REGARDING WAREHOUSE LAW

Representatives of Storage Companies Meet With State Commission.

St. Paul, Minn., July 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representatives of leading warehouse and storage companies operating in Minneapolis and St. Paul conferred today with the state railway and warehouse commission regarding the warehouse control law which becomes operative Oct. 1. On that date all warehouse and storage companies in cities of the first class will come under the jurisdiction of the commission.

The act concerns buildings used for warehousing and storage purposes. Grain warehouses and buildings used for cold storage are exempt. Inasmuch as the new law calls for a $50,000 bond and a license of $100, it is expected that it will aid materially in reducing the number of small concerns in the three big cities.

The meeting today was for the purpose of considering the necessary forms and blanks to be used by the companies in making reports to the commission. Storage companies, under the law, must keep the commission informed on all details concerning their business, including rates. The rates are subject to revision by the state.

PROTEST AGAINST WAR.

Socialists at Cloquet Hold Open Air Meeting at Pinehurst Park.

Cloquet, Minn., July 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Socialists had a war protest meeting here in Pinehurst park yesterday afternoon. The Finnish band furnished music. A field-meet and speeches were held and a large crowd assembled to protest against war. About 1,000 people came out despite the rain and poor weather conditions.

TO DROP PROPOSED SUIT AGAINST ROADS

Will Not Attempt to Make Railroads Disgorge Excess Fares.

St. Paul, Minn., July 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Attorney General Smith, who has had in mind for some months a suit against all the railroads operating in Minnesota to compel them to disgorge in bulk, excesses collected in the shape of passenger fares and freight charges while the 2-cent fare and freight schedule laws were in litigation, it is said probably will drop the matter. He does not view the claim as sound.

Since the Minnesota rate decision was handed down by the supreme court of the United States, individuals and concerns have collected from the various roads over $2,000,000 in the way of excess payment. In addition there are suits in preparation which may aid in the recovery of about $250,000 more which is known as disputed claims. Papers in this suit are now being prepared.

Though hundreds of persons and companies have recovered money paid the roads, there are thousands who have never given the matter a thought or who have not the necessary receipts showing that they are entitled to excess money. It was to secure these claims that the attorney general had in mind a general suit, but after giving the scheme close study, he finds it impracticable.

LICENSE CONTEST CLOSE IN STEELE

Minneapolis, Minn., July 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Reports from Steele county, where an election on the license question is being held today, indicates that the contest will be very close. Both sides are claiming a victory. The heavy roads have hampered some of the farmers in getting to the voting places, but the drys expect a big farmer vote, nevertheless.

ESTABLISH TITLE TO VALUABLE IRON LAND AFTER LONG LEGAL BATTLE

Loan of $8.25 Made in 1899 Yields Interest in Property That May Be Worth Millions — Interesting Points of Law Raised.

After a fight which has dragged in the courts for several years, Jacob and Amelia Stubler of this city have succeeded in establishing title to an undivided one-sixth interest in a 40-acre tract of mineral land adjoining the Grant mine west of Buhl on the Mesaba range.

According to a dispatch from St. Paul Saturday, the Minnesota supreme court upheld the contention of the Stublers as against the claims of Charles McGillis, an intervenor, and W. S. Telford, who brought an action against the Stublers and others to establish his claim to an undivided one-twelfth interest claimed by the Stublers.

The value of the property involved in the action is largely speculative as it has not been explored or developed. Its close proximity to rich mineral bearing land has led its owners to believe that it is a valuable prospect, however, and if their expectations are realized it will be worth from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000.

The land is owned by several persons in undivided interests. Except for a one-sixth interest, the property was not in dispute. The case before the court resolved itself into two separate controversies, one between the plaintiff, W. S. Telford, and the defendants, Stublers, and the intervenor, Mr. McGillis, who joined in contesting the validity of Mr. Telford's title to an undivided one-twelfth interest, and the other between the Stublers and Mr. McGillis, as to the other one-twelfth interest not claimed by Mr. Telford.

Claimed Nine Twelfths.

Mr. Telford claimed to own an undivided nine-twelfths of the land, but the trial court after two trials awarded to him title to eight-twelfths only, the remaining one-twelfth claimed by him being awarded to Mrs. Stubler. As against the Stublers, Mr. McGillis claimed the right to extinguish their title by redemption as mortgagor. Judge Fesler before whom the case was last tried, first held that the McGillis claim was valid, but later reversed himself, holding that the intervenor had no claim to this property, or right to redeem from the Stublers. Mr. McGillis appealed to the supreme court from Judge Fesler's order denying his alternative motion for judgment or for a new trial. Mr. Telford also appealed from an order denying a new trial of the issue involving the one-twelfth interest awarded to the Stublers. The supreme court, however, affirmed both orders of the trial court.

Mr. Telford's Claim.

Mr. Telford's claim of ownership of the particular one-twelfth interest was founded upon a tax title, the validity of which was challenged by the Stublers and the intervenor. The court held that the notice of expiration of redemption which was given by Mr. Telford was insufficient.

The most interesting feature of the case was the issue between the Stublers and McGillis. The latter was the patentee of the land, having acquired his patent several years ago. In March, 1892, he sold the tract to the Pennsylvania Iron & Steel company for $500. The company, however, failed to pay the taxes on the land and at a forfeited tax sale in June, 1899, the land was put up for sale and was sold to Mr. McGillis, who was the highest bidder, for the sum of $7.25.

Borrowed to Pay Bid.

Mr McGillis was without funds at the time and was unable to pay the amount of his bid, and to enable him to do so, he borrowed of the defendant, Jacob Stubler, the sum of $8.25. In making the loan Mr. Stubler acted as agent for his wife, Amelia. To secure the repayment of the loan, Mr. McGillis caused the tax sale certificate to be issued in the name of Mrs. Stubler and it was so issued and subsequently recorded in the office of the register of deeds.

A like certificate of sale was also issued to Mr. McGillis, which he recorded. The issuance of the two certificates of the same sale and on the same day, the court found, was probably an error on the part of the county auditor. About six months later, Mr. McGillis conveyed his purported interest by warranty deed to one McDonnell, who commenced an action against the Stublers to determine title to the land. The case was won by the Stublers.

In December, 1910, Mr. McGillis tendered to the Stublers the sum of $8.25 with interest, the amount he claimed to have borrowed from them for the purpose of acquiring the tax certificate in June, 1899, and demanded a conveyance of the two-twelfths interest held by them. This they refused. The court held that by his conveyance to McDonnell he parted with that interest and that it has never been reconveyed to him.

As the matter now stands, the title of the tract is vested in the following persons: W. S. Telford, eight-twelfths interest; John G. Williams, one-twelfth; Theodore Hollister, one-twelfth; and Mrs. Amelia Stubler, two-twelfths.

William P. Harrison appeared as attorney for the Stublers, E. P. Towne, T. J. Davis and E. L. Kimball as counsel for Mr. Telford, and Judge W. G. Davis of St. Paul, J. E. McGray of St. Paul and John Heitman of Duluth as attorneys for Mr. McGillis.

HOMESTEADER DEAD IN BELTRAMI DITCH

Had Left Thorhault Friday Night Under Influence of Liquor.

Bemidji, Minn., July 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Fridlund, a homesteader living near Thorhault, was found dead in a ditch near his home Saturday and Coroner Ankersberg, who returned to Bemidji this morning from an investigation, said that the exact cause of death could not be determined, although exposure is believed to have been the cause.

Fridlund was last seen at Thorhault Friday evening and left for his home. He appeared to be under the influence of liquor and when found had a bottle of liquor in his pocket.

A sister, Mrs. Mattson, proprietor of a large farm at Erskine, has made arrangements for his burial at Thorhault.

CARRANZA TROOPS HOLDING CANANEA

State Department Dispatches Confirm Victory in Sonora.

Washington, July 19.—State department dispatches today from Nogales confirmed earlier reports of the victory of Carranza troops over Villa forces at Anavacachi, Sonora. The triumphant forces took possession of Cananea.

American Consul Silliman reported the arrival of large quantities of food at Vera Cruz and that wireless communication between Vera Cruz and Mexico City probably would be established today by means of the new station at Chapultepec installed by Gen. Carranza.

Famine conditions in the capital are described by a Red Cross report received today. Dated July 1, it says more than 100,000 women on the previous day applied to the international committee for food tickets. Only 40,000 were available.

"Where formerly 200 people a day went to the slaughter house to get the blood that is saved and given away," the report says, "there are now 2,000 daily besieging the gates. Near there the other day, twenty people were seen struggling to get pieces of a dead horse."

SUGGESTS GRAND PAGEANT SHOWING THE HISTORY OF IRON DEVELOPMENT

Minnesota Pioneer Wants All Surrounding Towns to Take Part.

Those Who Followed the Old Vermilion Trail Should Be Remembered.

If one may judge from the number of suggestions that are coming in and the tone of them, interest and enthusiasm in the proposed celebration of the opening of the steel plant in November is growing rapidly. There has not yet been received a suggestion that has not rung with enthusiasm over the affair and optimism for the future of Duluth. The announcement that the plant will be opened on Nov. 1 or before that date seems to have acted as a business stimulant to people in all walks of life, and to have awakened a feeling that a great destiny for Duluth is fixed.

Several suggestions sent in unsigned, have not been used because of the established rule that those submitting ideas must sign them, whether they with the names published or not. Names will be withheld if such a request is made, as is the case with those published today.

One of the best and most detailed suggestions so far is that signed simply "J. O." It is rather unfortunate that the signer asked that his name, save his initials, be withheld, for he is one of the leading men of the northeastern part of the state, is a pioneer and has taken and is now taking a leading part in the development of St. Louis and adjoining counties. His suggestion follows:

"I would suggest that you make this celebration the one feature for at least a decade and planned on the broadest lines possible. Take in the whole of St. Louis and Lake counties and I might say Carlton and Itasca counties. Invite every town that, by reason of its location, wants Duluth, or should, to be the big town of the state, to participate and be invited to be represented by one or not more than two floats in the grand parade, which should be started at 1 p. m. on the first day. On the evening of the first day free tickets should be given to every visitor to the theaters and dance halls and there should be free music and fireworks.

"On the second and third day there should be a free excursion to the steel plant at 10 a. m.

"The floats from the range towns should represent development. From Tower, for instance, there should be a pick, shovel and hand drill and in large figure on the banner should be '1884,' and each step of progress should be shown to the present year, with a car of steel rails at the climax. Mountain Iron, Biwabik, Virginia and Hibbing should be labeled in the order in which they entered the shipping lists of iron ore.

"I would like to see some of the pioneers in the development of the iron business guests of honor on that great day, such as Charlemagne Tower of Philadelphia and his company, which spent the first $3,000,000 in the state to develop the iron interests. At that time in Duluth's history it meant more to the future greatness than $20,000,000 today. I think he should be invited as the guest of honor of the city. Martin Pattison, Bob Whiteside and the Merritts, the boys who carried the packsacks over the Vermilion and Mesaba trails, should be in the line and every manufacturing plant in the city should fall in.

"You cannot make it too big, for the occasion will eclipse anything that has ever taken place for this entire great Northwest, and especially for Duluth.

"Hurrah for Duluth and St. Louis county and the great Northern state! Aren't we glad that we are still in St. Louis county?"

Another man, who requests that his name be omitted, suggests that the celebration should be held at Seventy-fourth avenue west, close to the steel plant, in order that all citizens will be sure to visit the place; and that it should continue for one week. He believes that no money will be needed for the affair. His program is unique and ambitious. He suggests that every able-bodied man in Duluth should get out and finish the building of the car line to the plant, the street railway company to furnish the ties and the rails. In that way, he feels, the track could be laid in a week and the line would be ready for service as soon as the plant would begin operations.

Several others have suggested that the money should be raised by popular subscription, and one or two have added that the city and county governments should appropriate liberally toward the expense. In most instances the place for holding the celebration suggested is either in the center of the city or at the steel plant.

CREDIT MEN OF THE COUNTRY ADVERTISING DULUTH WIDELY

Duluth is the watchword of every credit man in the entire country.

This city will be the host to the National Association of Retail Credit Men at their annual convention on Aug. 18, 19 and 20, and every member of the organization throughout the United States is being sent one of the best circulars advertising the city that has appeared in years.

A card entitled "The Credit World—Duluth Extra" contains the official notice to the members. A feature of the card is a large cartoon portraying the crowded trains leading to the one destination—Duluth. Every train is crowded and at the head as the engineer is H. B. Richmond of Los Angeles, the secretary of the national association.

The following message is carried in the circular:

"ALL ABOARD! Duluth calls us. All Duluth stands with outstretched arms extending a hearty welcome to be her guests at the national gathering of the Retail Credit Men's National association, Aug. 18, 19, 20. Duluth is the one city in this great universe that is a past master in hospitality—Duluth stands alone in the art of entertainment—Duluth's people are a hardy, whole-souled set that would venture all to make a stranger happy. Duluth, the city that shall never be forgotten by the credit managers who are wise enough to take advantage of this one chance at learning what Duluth has done, can do, and will do, to make your visit rest with you in years to come as the most pleasureable days you ever spent. Will you go—disregard business ties—and help make this gathering one grand jollification?"

Local men are planning all kinds of entertainments, according to A. C. Pearson, president of the Duluth Retail Credit Men's association. The local association is also sending out special folders telling of the convention and inviting outsiders to come. The Spalding hotel has been designated as the convention headquarters. The other officers of the local association are: James McKinty, vice president; George C. Fairley, secretary, and the board of directors included these officers and H. A. Berg, E. G. Linck, Albert Mark and Miss Bertha Mendelson.

MOVE STARTER'S BOOTH DOWN HILL

New Kiosk Will Be Located on Third Avenue West.

For years a landmark in Duluth's business district, the street car starter's kiosk at the corner of Third avenue west and Superior street, will be moved.

After a conference with several prominent business men with offices in the Lonsdale and Alworth buildings, Safety Commissioner Silberstein announced that Vice President Herbert Warren had agreed to remove the booth.

"When citizens learned that the kiosk was to be torn down and replaced by a new one," said the commissioner, "they started an agitation to have the location changed, arguing that any booth at that point would be an obstruction.

"We held a long conference this morning and went over the proposition until it finally was decided to move the booth downhill on Third avenue.

"It will be so far enough from Superior street to give pedestrians and drivers of vehicles a clear path and will not interfere with the performance of the car starter's duties."

DULUTH POLICE SEARCHING FOR TWO ASSISTANTS OF THE COUNTERFEITER

Believed to Have Helped Robbins Make Spurious Bills Here.

Prisoner Identified as Son of Duluth Man By Herald Picture.

Arrest Was Result of Prisoner's Effort to Avoid Blackmail.

Working upon the theory that two assistants of Samuel Rabinovitz, alias Samuel Robbins, 22-year-old counterfeiter, who was the leader of one of the cleverest gangs ever operating in this country, are Duluth men, local police are searching for further clews which may reveal their indentity.

When police find the two men who worked with Rabinovitz in his room at 28 West Second street for five months previous to March 30, 1915, helping him in the manufacture of the thousands of dollars of spurious currency, they expect also to locate a large amount of counterfeiting paraphernalia, believed to be hidden in this city.

One Duluth man, known to have been intimate with Robbins, or Rabinovitz, is wanted here on another charge, but left the city within a day or two of the time the leader of the counterfeiters went to Chicago. His name had been withheld by local police.

Robbins was identified as Samuel Rabinovitz, son of Heiman Rabinovitz, 117 West Fourth street, by means of a picture published in The Herald Saturday. He now is held in $10,000 bonds pending a trial.

"Yes," said the elder Rabinovitz, when shown the picture, "that is he. But why do you ask? What is this picture for? I have cast him off. He no longer is my son."

Sister Kept Silent.

Catherine Rabinovitz, a sister, and Jacob, a brother, of the accused man, said they had known it was their brother, when the first story of the counterfeiters' arrest appeared in Friday's Herald, but had kept silent, hoping that their parents would not find it out. Mr. Rabinovitz is a Jewish sochet, or meat cutter, an office prescribed by the Jewish religion.

"Robbins" as he was called by his friends, was arrested because of his efforts to avoid blackmail by Samuel Pinas and Benjamin Saltzman, two Chicagoans who are held as accomplices, according to Chicago reports.

"They threatened to tell the 'cops,'" he said, "unless I 'came adross' with $300, and I was all packed, ready to move, when they found out about it and started the fight that attracted police."

Working upon this information, Capt. Thomas I. Porter of the Chicago branch of the secret service, with Police Captain Caughlin, located "Robbins'" new room near Taylor street and Ashland avenue, and found $25,000 more in counterfeit $5 bills, which he had left in a satchel there.

"Assistants" Released.

Joseph Berkowitz and Edward Baker, at first believed to be the two men designated as "assistants" by Robbins, were later found to have been hired to help move the large trunk containing Robbins' fortune in spurious currency and were released.

Spinas and Saltzman were held under $2,000 bonds. The hearing was held in Chicago Saturday before United States Commissioner Mark A. Foote.

After the Rabinovitz children had failed in their attempt to keep their parents in the dark concerning the affair, the father said he "would not lift a finger to help Samuel."

"My God, what can we do?" wailed the sister, when asked if other members would try to help the "black sheep" of the family. "There are so many of us and we are poor. We have no money. My father is only a working man and anyway his heart is hardened against Samuel. He is my brother, and if it is true, he has disgraced himself and his home."

Capt. Porter, in telling of Rabinovitz' methods, said he had developed a way to transfer an engraving from a glass negative without making a copper etching. He has discovered acids by means of which he can split the edge of $1 bills so that both sides may be used in raising them to the $5 denomination. He is an expert on high power photographic lenses.

The Rabinovitz family came to America from Russia about eight years ago. After a short visit with Chicago relatives, they came to Duluth, Samuel staying in the Illinois city with an uncle. He was educated there and learned the printing and auto repair business, according to Jacob Rabinovitz, his brother.

Last fall when Samuel came to Duluth the family occupied a small house and kept boarders, so there was no room for the son. He accordingly took a room at 28 West Second street with Mrs. Katherine O'Leary. He said he was going to Detroit to do automobile repair work when he left here March 30, Jacob said. The family had not heard from him since that time.

STATE FEDERATION OF LABOR OPENS SESSION AT WINONA

Clash Between Executive Council and Minneapolis Trades Assembly.

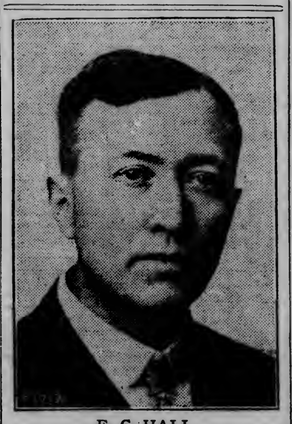

Probable That Next Year's Meeting Will Go to Hibbing.

Winona, Minn., July 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Minnesota State Federation of Labor convention opened here this morning with a spirited clash between the executive council of the Federation and the Trades and Labor assembly of Minneapolis, the former seeking to have the latter excluded from seats in the convention because of an alleged scurrilous report of the federation convention of a year ago at Duluth published in the Labor Review, owned by the Minneapolis assembly. The convention arranged to hear both sides this afternoon and then vote on the matter.

The presentation of the annual reports of the different officers showed the past year to have been one of progress along labor lines in Minnesota, trades unions being stronger now in Minnesota, than ever before.

Address By Power.

Mayor Power of Hibbing in an address scored the United States Steel corporation for its methods on the Minnesota iron range, and told how Hibbing had successfully combatted the efforts of the corporation to reduce the taxes it had to pay there. His remarks led up to an invitation to have the convention meet at Hibbing next year to arouse enthusiasm for the cause of labor organization there. His address is considered to have settled that the federation will meet at Hibbing in 1916.

E. G. HALL,
President of State Federation of Labor.

Miss Mary McFadden of Duluth asked for a resolution indorsing equal suffrage.

The convention was called to order by Bert Walworth, the Winona vice president, who welcomed the delegates on behalf of the Winona labor organizations. His address was followed with prayer by Rev. S. Arthur Cook of Winona, after which W. A. Hodgins, mayor of the city, tendered the welcome of its people to the gathering.

President E. G. Hall responded to the address of welcome.

On Auto Ride.

This afternoon the delegates were taken in automobiles on a sight-seeing tour of the city and surrounding country, and at 7:30 a. m. there will be a street parade of the delegates and local unions to the convention hall, where a mass meeting in the interest of organized labor will be held and addresses will be delivered by John H. Walker, president of the Illinois State Federation of Labir; J. H. Strief, president of the Iowa State Federation of Labor; S. S. McDonald, formerly of Duluth, president of the North Dakota State Federation of Labor, and W. E. McEwen, former secretary of the Minnesota State Federation of Labor.

Moonlight on River.

On Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock there will be a moonlight excursion on the Mississippi on the steamer Gardie Eastman, accompanied by a commodious barge. The social entertainments will be free to the visiting friends of the delegates as well as to the members of the convention, and all are invited to participate in them.

In addition to the program outlined several of the Winona unions are specially entertaining the visiting members of their several crafts.

It is expected 500 men will be in the parade tonight. It will be in three sections, as follows:

First division—Marshal; police escort; fire department representatives; mayor, city, council and city officials; Gate City band; officers of the Minnesota Federation of Labor and distinguished guests and fraternal delegates; out-of-town delegates.

Second division—Barbers, No. 38; Bartenders; Blacksmiths, No. 108; Boilermakers, No. 201; Brewery Workers, No. 331; Carpenters, No. 307; Cement Workers; Cigar Makers, No. 70; Electricians.

Third division—Machinists, No. 133; Molders, No. 264; Painters, No. 540, Plasterers, No. 83; Plumbers, No. 6; Printers, No. 246; Retail Clerks, No. 52; Steel Metal Workers, No. 232.

Typographical Unions.

The annual conference of the Minnesota Federation of Typographical unions was held yesterday afternoon. Seven years ago at the Red Wing convention the state federation of typos was organized. It was formed for the purpose of bettering the conditions of the men engaged in the printing industry. The association has grown steadily and today there are locals in St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, St. Cloud, Winona Brainerd, Hibbing, Virginia and Stillwater.

The Minnesota federation is a branch of the international organization. It proposes that small town printers affiliate with the organization in order that they might be prepared at any time to enter a large city and be able to present the union card as an aid in securing employment. President Gus T. Winberg reported that two new branches have been brought into the organization. One is at International Falls, and the other at Faribault. At the same time many of the locals have been bolstered up. It was announced, also, that a Wahpeton-Breckenridge temporary organization has been perfected.

Mr. Winberg, as the organizer, has had a successful year. H. S. Holcomb is the secretary. Both were re-elected.

Meetings were also held by the Blue Label league, of which Eugene Campbell is president and E. G. Hall, secretary, and the Home Rule league of which Joseph Mulholland is president and Edward Ruhe, secretary.

Gold produced in the United States to the first of this year is estimated by the geological survey at $3,549,799,400 in value and the silver at $1,709,517,600.

W. A. WHITNEY IS KILLED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

WILLIAM A. WHITNEY.

William A. Whitney, one of Superior's leading business men, was crushed under his roadster as he was driving from Hibbing to Virginia late yesterday afternoon and died at the Lenont hospital at Virginia at 1:55 o'clock this morning.

There were no witnesses to the accident. Mr. Whitney was alone in his car. While in Parkville, a suburb of Virginia, one of the front wheels came off his car. The car became uncontrollable, skidded to the side of the road and climbed an embankment, where it struck a stump and overturned, the driving wheel crushing in his breast. The ribs were fractured and penetrated the lungs.

Dr. E. W. Fahey and R. T. Meads of Duluth, driving a car a short distance behind Mr. Whitney, arrived on the scene about a minute after the accident happened. They found the machine overturned with the steering wheel resting on the victim's breast. E. E. Corey of Superior and others assisted in liberating the man and took him to the Virginia hospital.

Mrs. Whitney, their son, Gwyn Whitney and Miss Jane Van Vleck, all of Superior, were in the family touring car but a short distance behind. They returned to Virginia with Mr. Whitney, where five physicians worked over him. The physicians were Dr. Fahey, Dr. C. B. Lenont of Virginia, Dr. C. W. More of Eveleth, Dr. Fred Barrett of Gilbert and Dr. J. M. Fisher. Mr. Whitney failed to regain consciousness after his first statement on being released from the machine when he said to Dr. Fahey, "It's awful, but I stayed right at the wheel."

"I do not believe he was going very fast," Mr. Meads said last evening. "We came along about a minute after it had happened. He has just passed us and we were wondering where he had disappeared to. We saw a crowd gathering around an object, which proved to be his wrecked automobile. We rushed over, and picking him from under the car, rushed him to the hospital."

Mr. Whitney was one of Superior's leading business men. He was president of the Whitney Brothers' Constructing company; president of the Superior Knitting Mills, had been president for several years of the Douglas County Fair association, and until this spring was president of the United States National bank. He was one of the bank's directors. He was one of the most active workers in the Superior Commercial club and the Superior Rotary club. He also was a prominent member of the Elks.

Mr. Whitney has resided in Superior for more than twenty years. He resided with his family at 1604 Ogden avenue. Besides his widow he leaves only one son, Gwyn Whitney. He leaves four brothers, Harvey Whitney and Everett Whitney of Superior, W. W. Whitney of Milwaukee, and Hiram Whitney of New Brunswick.

The body arrived in Duluth this morning over the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad and will be taken to Superior. Funeral arrangements will probably be made this afternoon.

LEO FRANK DELIRIOUS

ingly dangerous sign. Blood poisoning is most feared. The stitches seem to be holding.

Creen Refuses to Talk.

William Creen, Frank's assailant, still refused to talk today. He is kept in irons. Some of the guards today recalled that he had expressed a feeling of animosity toward Frank before the latter was brought to the prison.

Dr. W. J. McNaughton, a convict, was near Frank when he was attacked. McNaughton, like Frank, was saved from the gallows by a commutation of sentence from Governor Slaton.

Dr. Rosenberg today gave Dr. McNaughton full credit for saving Frank's life. His quick work in making a ligature of the ends of the jugular vein stopped the flow of blood.

Dr. Rosenberg also said the muscles in Frank's neck were badly cut and if he lives he always will have a stiff neck.

Has Fighting Chance.

Attendants at the hospital said last night that Frank had a fighting chance for recovery. Physicians had succeeded in stopping the flow of blood from a jagged wound in his throat, made with a butcher knife in the hands of William Creen, a fellow convict, also serving a life term for murder. The blow was struck as Frank slept in his bunk in a dormitory late Saturday night. An investigation of the attack probably will be conducted by the Georgia prison commission, the same body that refused to recommend that Frank's death sentence for the murder of Mary Phagan be commuted to life imprisonment. Reports from Atlanta were that Governor Harris intimated he would start such an investigation to ascertain if Creen acted entirely of his own volition.

Creen Regrets Act.

Creen said when taken from solitary confinement long enough to be questioned, that he planned the attack alone and that no one knew what he intended to do. He was not communicative and gave as his excuse that he "thought it should be done." He said, however, that he regretted his act.

Frank was quartered at night in a dormitory with about 100 other prisoners and occupied a bunk about forty feet from one of the two doors to the large room. Creen's bunk was fourth from his. No prisoner is allowed to leave his place without permission from one of the two guards stationed at the dormitory at night. Shortly after 11 o'clock Saturday night Creen called out for permission to get up and it was granted.

He started down the line of bunks toward the one occupied by Frank. As he reached it, he quickly grabbed Frank by the hair and delivered one blow with the knife he had concealed. A guard rushed to the bunk and prevented Creen from striking again.

Among prisoners who rushed to Frank's aid were two physicians, one of whom also was serving a life term for murder. They gave first aid, treated the wound until Dr. Guy Compton, the prison physician, was summoned from home half a mile away. The three men took twenty-five stitches in Frank's neck. Dr. H. J. Rosenberg, the Frank family physician, arrived from Atlanta yesterday with nurses. He said that while the patient's condition was precarious, he had a chance for life.

Wife Hysterical.

Mrs. Frank was in Milledgeville at the home of J. M. Burns. She was not told of the attack until physicians had finished their work. She became hysterical, but later was calmed and was taken to the prison hospital.

The cut extends from the front of the neck around the left side almost to the middle of the back of the neck. Neither windpipe nor the spinal cord is hurt, but the jugular vein is partly severed. The physicians' greatest fear tonight was that some of the stitches might slip, causing more loss of blood.

Frank was benefited a great deal by the outdoor life since being brought to the farm June 21. Though a small man, he always has had a rugged constitution and that, coupled with his exercise of the last three weeks, is in his favor, the doctors say.

Knew of Demonstrations.

Frank knew of the demonstrations against the action of Governor Slaton, whose term recently expired, in commuting his sentence and also of threats to take him from the prison farm by force. Those who reached his side first after he was wounded believed he had all this in mind when he said:

"I guess they have got me now." He did not lose consciousness and after being taken to the hospital, asked that his assailant be forgiven.

Creen was sentenced from Columbus, Ga., for killing a man named Kitchen. Shortly after the crime, a jury inquired into his sanity, but declared him sane. Saturday he was helping to kill hogs with other prisoners. He concealed in his clothing the knife he used in the butchering and later, it is believed, secreted it in his bunk.

No Action Yet.

Atlanta, Ga., July 19.—Governor Harris said last night that he had taken no official action in connection with the attempt upon Leo M. Frank at the state prison farm at Milledgeville.

"Nothing has been done in the matter as there has been no official notice of anything out of the ordinary at the prison," said the governor. "I have no doubt though that the authorities will take such action as the situation demands. I have tried to get into touch with members of the prison commission, but so far have failed to reach any of them."

French Statement.

Paris, July 19, via London, 3:45 p. m.—The following official report was given out this afternoon:

"In Belgium the enemy last night bombarded with considerable violence our trenches at St. Georges, as well as the village and church of Boesinghe.

"In Artois, the Germans toward midnight, made an attack west and southwest of Souchez on a front of 1,200 yards, but were repulsed.

"In the Argonne a German attack in the region of St. Hubert was driven back. In Apremont encounters occurred with bombs and grenades without infantry action.

"In Lorrain at Nahof, on the Seille and on the southeast borders of the forest of Parroy some advance post encounters were reported wherein we had the advantage.

"The night was calm on the rest of the front."

KERR BELIEVES DULUTH WILL BE SHIPPING STEEL IN FALL

tain grades of steel has also increased the output of the mills."

When asked as to the output of the United States Steel corporation's mills at the present time, Mr. Kerr stated that the mills were operating at about 90 per cent of their capacity.

"We are making every effort to complete the Duluth steel plant this fall. Coal is already being shipped there. There is no doubt whatever that the opening of the plant here will mean an increase in business for the city of Duluth."

Indorses Fete.

During the course of his interview with The Herald Mr. Kerr was asked his opinion regarding the proposed fete to celebrate the opening of the Duluth steel plant.

"It's a great idea," said Mr. Kerr. "But that, however, is in the hands of your citizens here. We are making every effort to complete this plant and have it in operation and it really does us a lot of good to behold the appreciative spirit of the citizens of Duluth."

While refusing to state that he felt there was an increase in the general volume of business of the country, Mr. Kerr did state that there was a distinctly better feeling prevailing and that the steel corporation had experienced a greater demand for steel during the last two months than in the preceding months of the present year.

Mr. Kerr, Mr. Shiras, President W. J. Olcott of the Oliver Iron Mining company and President W. A. McGonagle of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad, together with some of the other local steel officials, are making an inspection of the Duluth steel plant this afternoon.

REPLY TO GERMAN NOTE WILL BE UNMISTAKABLE

cation to Germany must point in much more emphatic terms than have heretofore been used the earnest intention of the American government not to surrender any of its rights.

President Returns.

Washington, July 19.—President Wilson returned here early today after an absence of nearly a month and began consideration with Secretary Lansing and other members of his cabinet the situation between Germany and the United States growing out of German submarine warfare. He had been at Cornish, N. H., since June 24.

The president discussed with Secretary Lansing formulation of the policy which the United States intends to follow as a result of the last German note. A tentative draft of the American answer had been prepared for consideration. It will be submitted to the cabinet tomorrow and the revised draft probably cabled to Berlin before the end of the week.

To Set Forth Consequences.

The new note in all probability will set forth definitely the consequences of further violation of American rights.

Official advices were still being awaited today as to the circumstances of the German submarine attack on the British steamer Orduna carrying a score of Americans. The fact that the liner carried no munitions or contraband leads officials here to believe that the position of the United States as outlined in its previous note has been considerably strengthened. It bears out, officials claim, the American contention that the capture of a vessel, her destination and cargo can be safely determined only by visit and search.

CELEBRATE "BEAVER WEEK."

Duluth Lodge Conducts Very Successful Membership Campaign.

Duluth lodge, No. 155, Benevolent Order of Beavers, has just finished celebrating "Beaver week" and has been very successful in increasing the membership. The lodge was organized here June 28, and now has a membership of 142 and expects to initiate about seventy-five more candidates tonight at the Moose hall, 224 West First street. An invitation has been extended to several prominent men of Duluth to speak, and also to District Manager P. F. Harouff of the Brotherhood of American Yeomen, who will give a talk on "Fraternity." An entertainment and lunch will finish the evening's program. The supreme officers of the order, who were expected to attend the meeting, are not able to be here on account of the annual convention held at Davenport, Iowa, but have promised to be here at the next regular meeting on Aug. 2.

Deputy Organizer S. L. Boyum organized the local lodge and much credit is given him for the excellent start which he gave the Beavers in Duluth. He is going to remain here until the membership has increased to 300, and also expects to have the clubrooms and hall ready by Oct. 1.

The committee in charge of the entertainment for tonight consists of W. Sears, chairman; Dan Bellmeur and Barney Olsen.

Field Trials Date.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Aug. 25 is selected by the North Dakota Trials club for the annual dog trials to be run near Grand Forks. In connection with the trials, a bench show also will be held in Grand Forks.

KANSAS RIVER AGAIN RISING

Heavy Rains Bring Increasing Fears of Disastrous Flood.

Storm With High Winds Does Much Damage Near Topeka.

Kansas City, Mo., July 19.—Increasing fears of floods prevailed here today following heavy rains in Kansas and this section of Missouri last night.

Accompanied by strong winds, from two to four inches of rain fell in the Kansas river watershed and today the river at Kansas City was rising again. The reading here was 24.8 feet. The stream had been falling up to 7 o'clock this morning, but at that hour it began to ascend at the rate of one-tenth of a foot an hour. The Missouri river here also was rising at about the same time. The reading of the latter stream was 28.1 feet.

Reports from Kansas indicated last night's storm did much minor damage. A high wind accompanied the rain. Small buildings were unroofed, trees were uprooted and telegraph and telephone wires were blown down. At Greenleaf, Kan., four inches of rain fell in a few hours.

Bridges Washed Away.

Several wagon bridges were washed away near Topeka and a street car bridge was undermined. Water backed up from Sunganunga creek, in the eastern part of the city, and covered the streets to a depth of several feet.

A 3-inch rain in twenty-five minutes near Abilene, Kan., caused the Smoky Hill river to rise so rapidly the situation there is considered grave. The Union Pacific railroad reported its main line washed out in two places near Chapman, Kan.

The rainfall in Topeka this year, according to the local observer, has been 33.17 inches, a mark surpassing that reached in the flood years of 1903 and 1908 and surpassed only in 1892.

Fifteen Rescued.

Kenton, Ohio, July 19.—Fifteen persons, standing up to their necks in water and nearly drowned, were rescued early today from a flood-submerged house in the Scioto marsh, near Foraker, a suburb of Kenton.

While the rescuing party, composed of officers and civilians, was at work with rowboats, the water in the marsh rose six inches.

It rained nearly all night, causing a renewal of last week's inundation. It is feared that more residents of the marsh may be in similar straits and loss of life may possibly have occurred. The search for sufferers and possible victims was continued today.

ALVARADO, MINN., NOW ENJOYS BUILDING BOOM

Alvarado, Minn., July 19.—There is much building activity here. The village is located in one of the biggest wheat regions of Northern Minnesota, and ships annually almost 1,000,000 bushels of grain. Several new residences are being built by retiring farmers. Henry Nystrom is building a big hotel. Cement sidewalks are being laid, electric lights have been put in this year, and the village is taking on a citified appearance.

Minot Bank Consolidation.

Minot, N. D., July 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Metropolitan State bank, recently organized here, has purchased the First International bank, and H. Heiverson of this city will be president of the joint bank.

FATE UP TO WASHINGTON

Nine Austrian Subjects Held for Entering Country Illegally.

Two Others Will Be Deported to Canada By Local Officer.

The fate of nine Austrians now held at the county jail on a charge of having crossed the border from Canada to the United States illegally is in the hands of the department of labor at Washington, D. C., and a decision in their case is expected by Immigration Officer McDonald in a few days. Mr. McDonald put the case up to the department at Washington shortly after making the arrests a month ago. This is a separate case from that of the fifteen Austrians and Russians who have been held since last fall.

The local immigration office will dispose of two of the eleven cases. One of the men is a native-born citizen of Canada and a second has a father living there. Mr. McDonald will take these two men back to their homes, he said today.

"The other nine prisoners are subjects of Austria and it is up to the department of labor to dispose of their cases," said Mr. McDonald. "I do not know whether they will be held for deportation to Austria or whether they will be sent back to Canada whence they came. I rather expect that they will be sent back to Canada within a few days."

Officer McDonald will leave Duluth Wednesday for Fort Arthur and Fort William, where he will be on hand for an inspection of an excursion party, which will leave those two Canadian ports for Houghton, Mich., on the steamer Forest City. Mr. McDonald said that he planned to take two of the prisoners back with him on this trip, thereby killing two birds with one stone."

MUSIC MAN BUYS OUT HIS PARTNER

W. C. Allen Takes Over Interest of E. N. Smith; Big Sale Announced.

As a result of the reorganization of the Smith & Allen Music company of 309-311 West First street, W. C. Allen has arranged to take over the interests of E. N. Smith and will become president and general manager. The company will remain in its present commodious quarters. The other men who are so well known in connection with the store will be found in their same positions. L. A. Dunaway will stay at the head of the sales department and O. W. Stoelting has charge of the tuning and repair work.

Every effort is being expended to increase the efficiency and service of the store and the same former standards of prompt, courteous service and one price to all will still be maintained.

As their warerooms are overstocked and as it is their policy to offer only new goods at the opening of the fall season, the firm is planning a piano sale on a very extensive scale. The advertising campaign has been approved by the postal authorities and the Duluth Advertising club, which guarantees its truthfulness.

ELEVATORS PROSPER.

Farmer-Owned Concerns in Karlstad Vicinity Doing Well.

Karlstad, Minn., July 19.—A farmers' elevator company will be organized here this fall is plans do not miscarry. Farmers' elevator companies in nearby villages have held their annual meetings, and all are found to be in prosperous condition. The Farmers' Elevator company at Roseau handled 101,000 bushels, and paid out for grain $96,000 during a part of the year with a profit of $5,100. The Farmers' Elevator company at Greenbush and Badger declared an 8 per cent dividend besides a patronage dividend of 4 per cent. The farmers' elevator at Kennedy showed a net profit of $3,200; the Newfoldin elevator declared a handsome dividend, and the farmers' elevator at Halma made good money as did the similar concern at Stephen.

Postpone Tennis Meet.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The North Dakota tennis tournament, originally scheduled for the week beginning Aug. 9 has been delayed till Aug. 16, the officers of the North Dakota Tennis association making the change because the western tournament will be in progress during the early part of August in Chicago, and the conflict in dates would result in keeping several net stars from the North Dakota meet.

This Invention For Rupture Sent On 60 Days Trial

Won't Cost You a Cent if the Two Months Test Doesn't Prove All Our Claims.

Away With Worthless Trusses Like These

You can make a thorough prove-it-to-you test of this guaranteed rupture holder without having to risk a single cent.

We'll send it to you for sixty days trial—practically lend it to you that long—just to let you see for yourself how it takes all the misery out of being ruptured.

If it doesn't keep your rupture from coming out or bothering you in any way—in spite of any work you do or any other strains—then it won't cost you a penny.

The Only Thing Good Enough To Stand Such a Test

A mere try-on—like at a drug store—can't possibly prove whether a truss or anything else for rupture is going to do any good.

Only one thing good enough to stand such a long and thorough test—

That is our guaranteed rupture holder—the famous Cluthe.

Made On New Principles

The Cluthe is so radically different from everything else for rupture that it has received eighteen separate patents. Made on an absolutely new principle—far more than just a truss.

It has so thoroughly proved its merits in nearly 300,000 cases that surgeons in the U. S. army and navy and physicians in all parts of the world now recommend it instead of advising operation.

Will Save You From Operation

A rupture can't possibly be relieved—can't even be kept from growing worse—unless protected against all strains and constantly kept from coming out. Just as a broken bone can't "knit" unless constantly held together.

And that is the curse of wearing elastic or spring trusses—not one in twenty ever holds successfully—they sooner or later make operation absolutely necessary instead of preventing it.

But remember the Cluthe is guaranteed to hold—and won't cost you a cent if it doesn't.—And in addition it provides the only way ever discovered for overcoming the weakness which is the real cause of rupture.

It does that entirely automatically—without any attention whatever from you.—And has thus brought complete recovery in thousands of cases that seemed almost hopeless, and has saved thousands of people from having to risk their lives under the surgeon's knife.

No Belt, No Leg-Straps, No Springs

The Cluthe does away entirely with the curse of wearing belts, leg-straps and springs. People who have tried it say it is as comfortable as their clothing. And it is waterproof—will hold in the bath. Also perspiration-proof. Easily kept clean.

Get World's Greatest Rupture Book

Don't send any money—don't take any risk. Just write for our free book and find out all about it. This sensational book—cloth-bound, 96 pages, 20 separate articles, and 23 photographic illustrations—is full of facts for the ruptured never before put in print.

It shows why elastic and spring trusses are a crime—how they are the ruptured man's worst enemy—why the law should stop their sale.

It exposes the humbug "appliances," "methods," "systems," "plasters," etc.

It show why operation for rupture ends in permanent weakness or death oftener than in complete recovery.

And it tells all about the famous Cluthe—gives names and addresses of over 5,000 people in all parts of the country who have tested it and have voluntarily endorsed it—and tells how you can get it on sixty days trial, and how little it costs if you keep it.

Simply use the coupon or say in a letter or postal "Send me your book"—that will take only a minute and may save you from paying out a good many dollars and save you from years of misery.

"CAN REMAIN IN JAIL UNTIL THEY ROT," WAS IMMIGRATION OFFICER'S REMARK

Witness Tells Result of Protest Against Holding Aliens Prisoners.

Government Investigation of Their Detention Urged By Attorney.

One of Prisoners Died in Jail at International Falls.

A government investigation of the detention of fifteen Austrians and Russians by the immigration authorities at International Falls, subject to deportation, and as witnesses in the Federal action against George H. Partridge and Fred A. Harmon, co-partners in the firm known as the Northwestern Construction company, who are charged with bringing aliens into the United States as laborers, was urged today by Attorney George H. Spear.

Deputy Inspector of Immigration O. B. Holton, who took the men into custody at International Falls, was severely scored this forenoon by Attorney Spear, one of the attorneys for the defense. The defense finished taking testimony this afternoon, and the case is now being argued before Judge Page Morris.

Attorney Spear charged the immigration authorities with being negligent in not taking action to secure some disposition of the aliens, and an attempt was made to prove that he was indifferent to their welfare while they were imprisoned at International Falls.

Harmon on Stand.

Fred A. Harmon, one of the defendants, was on the stand today, and gave an account of his alleged dealings with Mr. Holton while the latter was inspecting the crews of laborers working for the Northwestern Construction company. Mr. Harmon said that he had given Mr. Holton all the information he could regarding the men and had pointed out to him a number of new employes, part of which were taken into custody by the deputy inspector later.

After the aliens had been taken into custody and had been in prison for about five months, Mr. Harmon said he asked Mr. Holton what was going to be done with them. Thereupon, Mr. Holton is said to have remarked:

"They can remain in jail until they rot as far as I am concerned. It's none of your business anyway."

Mr. Harmon said he protested against holding the laborers in jail for months as they had not knowingly committed any offense and that his company also was guiltless of committing any offense.

United States Attorney Jaques at this point asked Mr. Harmon if he had any ulterior motives in wanting the prisoners relieved. "You would just as soon have had them released and scattered all over the United States and Canada, would you not?" said Mr. Jaques. "If they had been scattered, they would not have been brought in as witnesses against your company."

Mr. Harmon said he had not had any objection to their being brought in as witnesses in the case as his company had not done any illegal act. He endeavored in his testimony to show that his relations with Mr. Holton had not been of the most cordial, and said Mr. Holton had told him that it would be an easy matter to put him in the penitentiary for bringing over alien labor. He also declared that Mr. Holton had acted partly on his own responsibility in the matter and without authority from the government officials over him.

Attorney Spear in making his argument to the jury this afternoon scored Mr. Holton roundly for not making an effort to secure the release of the prisoners.

Men Have Families.

"Most of the prisoners are ignorant of their offense," said Mr. Spear this morning. "Many of them have families dependent upon their earnings for a living and these men have been unjustly detained so that they might give testimony in this case. I think there should be an investigation of the immigration department for its action in this case. Only yesterday I talked with one of the prisoners and he pleaded with me with tears in his eyes to do something to help him secure his liberty. He said he did not know that he had committed any offense and did not know why he was being held a prisoner for months. Some action should have been taken to get relief for these men and it is an outrage that they have been held during all this time with nothing being done by the immigration officials in their behalf."

During Saturday afternoon Mr. Harmon denied that his company was guilty of any attempt to bring laborers illegally into their employ. There were plenty of men in International Falls, he said, to do all their work and it was entirely unnecessary to go to Canada for them. He said his company had made a contract with Alex Lagoot for securing men and that his company had paid Lagoot money for his work.

Five Actions Dismissed.

Five actions in the case were dismissed Saturday afternoon. Three of the laborers were not called as witnesses, another failed to survive his imprisonment at International Falls and died there, and the court was unable to secure the services of a fifth witness. The company is now held liable for bringing over ten laborers. A fine of $1,000 in each case may be assessed against the company in case of conviction.

Redress for the alleged flagrant and unreasonable detention of the prisoners will be asked by the Austro-Hungarian and Russian governments, according to statements made by Edgar Prochnik, Austro-Hungarian consul at St. Paul, and Moritz Heim, Russian imperial consul at St. Paul.

A communication has been forwarded by Mr. Prochnik to the Austro-Hungarian embassy at Washington in which he characterizes the detention of four Austrians for nearly ten months at International Falls as "the grossest deprivation of rights of liberty of aliens called to the attention of the office."

Following the conclusion of the case, negotiations will be entered into with United States Attorney Alfred Jaques to secure compensation for the detention of the Russians, Mr. Heim declares.

BRIBERY ALLEGED.

Trial of Former Detectives of Chicago Begins in Windy City.

Chicago, July 18.—Hearing of testimony in the cases of former Detective-Sergeants William Egan and Walter O'Brien, on trial in the criminal court charged with having accepted bribes in protecting Christian P. Bertsche, Frank and James Ryan and other members of the alleged "clairvoyant trust," was begun today.

Assistant State's Attorney Frank Johnston outlined the case of the prosecution at the opening of court, and said that the state's principal witnesses would be Bertsche, who admits having acted as the go-between in the alleged bribery of the police, and Frank and James Ryan, who operated under the alias of "Prof. Charles Crane" in conducting a string of clairvoyant offices.

MISCREANTS RUIN PILLSBURY PORTRAIT

Minneapolis, Minn., July 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Vandals invaded the city hall some time within the past few days and used a knife on the oil painting of the late George A. Pillsbury which hangs in the council committee room on the third floor.

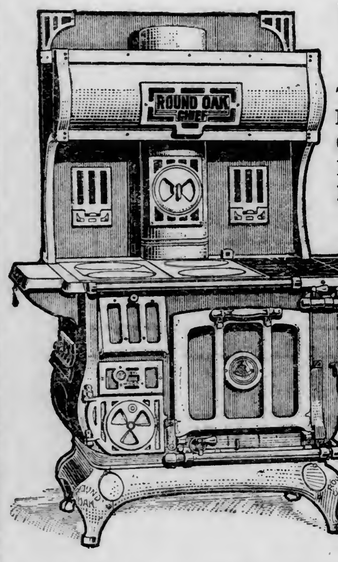

A jagged cut fully fifteen inches long was made across the lower portion of the portrait, with another smaller scratch just above it. The picture is ruined, as the damage cannot be repaired.

Mr. Pillsbury was mayor of Minneapolis in 1884 and 1885 and the painting was presented to the city by executors of his estate in 1890. It has occupied the same place on the wall of the committee room since the present building was completed.

IS FELLED BY WHISKY JUG

Rice Lake Farmer in Hospital Following Vicious Assault.

Alleged Assailant Arrested; Quarrel Followed Annual School Meeting.

Enraged because he was rebuked for attempting to create a disturbance at the annual school meeting at Arnold Saturday evening, Wilhelm Larson, 42, Rice Lake farmer, is believed to have subjected Chris Mellin, one of his neighbors, to a vicious attack with a whisky jug after the gathering broke up.

As a result of the fracas, Larson was arrested yesterday morning by Sheriff John R. Meining and lodged in a cell at the county jail. Today Mellin swore to a complaint charging him with the crime of assault in the second degree, an offense punishable by a penitentiary sentence. Mellin is confined to St. Luke's hospital.

While the annual school meeting of District No. 30 was in progress Saturday evening at the Arnold schoolhouse, Larson, on his way home from Duluth, stopped in.

"What's going on here," he is reported to have bawled out.

This was a cue for Mellin to suggest that there was no place for "drunken men" at the meeting.

Charles Nelson, moderator, rapped for order and Larson was told that he would have to quiet down. Larson made no further disturbance, but remained until after the meeting had been adjourned.

Outside, Larson and Mellin quarreled on the way home. About one block away from the schoolhouse, Mellin claims that he was struck across the forehead by a whisky jug. The blow rendered him unconscious. He was picked up later by neighbors and taken to his home. Today he was brought to Duluth and placed in St. Luke's hospital, where he is under the care of Dr. S. H. Boyer.

According to residents of Rice Lake township, Mellin and Larson had quarreled on previous occasions and it is said that there was considerable bad blood between them.

About sixty-five people, one-third of them women, attended the annual school meeting at Arnold Saturday night. B. W. K. Lindau was elected clerk for a three-year term. About $6,000 was appropriated for school purposes for the coming year.

Superior Baptists Will Erect $35,000 Structure on John Avenue.

A church for every day in the week that will cost approximately $35,000 will be erected by the Baptists of Superior at John avenue and Sixteenth street. The construction of the building will begin on Sept. 1.

The building will have all conveniences for carrying on extensive social center work. It is to be kept open every day and evening of the week and will be open to all comers. One of the features will be a large gymnasium wherein games of all kinds can be played.

The building property will have 100-foot frontage on John avenue and 140 feet deep on Sixteenth street. Its main auditorium will have a seating capacity for 350 people.

Masonic Picnic.

The joint picnic of the Masons of Duluth and Superior was attended by approximately 2,000 people Saturday. The crowd began to gather at Billings park early in the day and until nearly 6 o'clock the weather conditions were ideal for the outing. Basket luncheons were carried by the visitors.

Mrs. Otto Redfern of Duluth won the long distance baseball throw by tossing the sphere ninety yards. Members of Palestine lodge won the tug-of-war. Duluth members carried off most of the honors in the various contests. During the evening the Masons enjoyed dancing at the pavilion.

MEN and women of Duluth interested in the single-tax and in universal suffrage will have an opportunity of hearing a woman who is an ardent advocate of both movements Wednesday in the coming to Duluth of Mrs. Joseph Fels, widow of the late Joseph Fels, millionaire of Philadelphia and London.

According to Mrs. Fels, these two reforms are the fundamental needs for true democracy and she will speak on both subjects while in Duluth Wednesday. She is on her way to San Francisco to attend a meeting of the Fels Fund commission and is now in Minneapolis giving a series of lectures.

A luncheon has been arranged for Wednesday noon at the Commercial club by a number of single tax enthusiasts at which Mrs. Fels will be the guest of honor.

In an interview in Minneapolis on suffrage Mrs. Fells said:

"The Congressional union is making a mistake when it brings the methods of the suffragettes to this country. The best way to get suffrage is through the state campaigns. It is always a temptation to take the easiest method and some the national amendment seems to attract, but I believe, in the end, we will make greater progress by gaining state by state.

"I think it was a great mistake for the Congressional union to try to force Mr. Wilson to consider suffrage. You cannot force a thinking man with that sort of tactics. He must be convinced by arguments.

New York Strategic Point.

"The hope of the suffragists now lies in New York. That is the strategic point and I believe the chances of winning there are good. It will mean more to win New York than to get the constitutional amendment, because New York is so large that other states would give women the suffrage in order to keep the balance in national politics."

Social Workers in Party.

In the party with Mrs. Fels are several social and economic workers. They are Daniel Kiefer, a retired business man of Philadelphia, who is chairman of the Fels Fund commission; Dr. John Willis Slaughter of London, Gertrude Huebsch of New York and Walter Contes of London.

The place for the general meeting here has not been announced.

AMUSEMENTS

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Baldwin Players in "Madame Sherry."
NEW GRAND—Vaudeville motion pictures.
REX — Photoplay, "The Flaming Sword."

MISS MUNSEY AT LYCEUM.

Popular Duluth Singer Scores in Production of "Madame Sherry."

Led by Miss Edna Munsey, the Baldwin Players—doubtless with some trepidation—made their first venture into musical comedy, or it would perhaps be better to call it a farce with music, at the Lyceum yesterday afternoon.

"Madame Sherry" would make a very good farce without the music. It is full of sparkling lines and amusing situations, and free from vulgarity. The music is distinctly tuneful, and it is not hard to understand the success it met with.

Considering the handicaps a stock company labors under in producing a musical entertainment, the production given by the Baldwins was most surprisingly good. The stage settings were all that could be asked of any company, stock or otherwise. The local chorus, consisting of the Misses Alice York, Blanche Dell Hazel West, Mary Hall, Jessie French and Peggy Flint, showed none of the awkwardness or nervousness that might have been expected from tyros, and the young women were graceful and pretty. Several of the principals, notably George Fox, Walter Baldwin, Jr., Miss Geraldine Blair and Miss Maud Melville, showed surprising aptitude for such work and last, but not least, there was Miss Munsey herself.

Of the many young women who have left Duluth to start the difficult climb toward success in the musical comedy field, none have scored more substantially than Miss Munsey. In something less than three years, and, starting without any training or experience, she has worked herself pretty close to the top in her chosen line. Her assets were youth, beauty, a voice in the rough and a willingness to work. She has acquired perfect self-possession, an easy and charming stage presence and her voice shows the results of study and training.

Her work shows professional finish and the charm of naturalness. She bore the burden of most of the solo numbers yesterday, and to her is due no small part of the credit for the success of the performance, for she seemed to radiate confidence. Her reception showed the genuine enthusiasm of the audience.

George Fox, in the comedy part of Theophilus, seemed to have found himself. Baldwin patrons have long suspected that Mr. Fox was a rather unusual stock company comedian, and he has his chance in "Madame Sherry."

Miss Maud Melville also rose to the occasion and developed unsuspected abilities in the comedy line. As the Irish housekeeper she scored one of the real hits of the performance.

Miss Geraldine Blair has never seemed more attractive than she does in the rose of Yvonne, the little convent girl. Her voice is light and limited in range, but sweet, and she made a very pretty, graceful and delightful little convent maid.

Vaudeville or musical comedy would seem to be the line for Walter Baldwin, Jr. He has always been popular with Duluth audiences, and as Edward Sherry he scored quite decidedly yesterday, also getting his songs "across" in good style.

Fred Carleton is a new member of the company, who made his first appearance yesterday. He is a good-looking young chap and an excellent dancer, although he had little opportunity to show his ability in this line yesterday. The other parts are adequately filled by Miss Mari Campbell, William Donovan and Al Smith.

Tonight will be Elks' night, and the members of the local lodge will turn out in force to greet Miss Munsey, who is a daughter of a former exalted ruler of the lodge, George Munsey.

Theater Gossip.

There is an exceptionally good bill at the New Grand for the first half of this week. From the opening act to the closing one there is not a dull moment and every act on the bill scores heavily.

Nettie Carroll and her bevy of "Venuses" head the bill. Wire work is featured by these dimpled maidens, but it is by no means their only accomplishment for they entertain in numerous other ways. Jack Moore ably assists in the fun-making and special settings and elaborate wardrobe add much to the offering.

"Hiring a Maid," a domestic comedy, is the offering of Mr. and Mrs. Cappellan, and as a funmaker it is a gem. Bright, witty lines, sparkling comedy and good, wholesome fun as interpreted by such sterling performers as the Cappellans is all that is necessary to make up twenty minutes of excellent entertainment.

Burnham and Yant offer a singing and dancing diversion and a fast routine of patter in a pleasing manner. The talkative trickster, Judson Cole, is one of the comedy hits of the bill.

The Broadway star feature, "The Criminal," in three reels, is the photo-play feature. Miss Norma Talmadge and Maurice Costello are cast in the leading roles. One of the funny Billy Reeves comedies, "Just Like Kids," and "The Conversion of Smiling Tom," are other photoplays on the bill.

On Tuesday and Wednesday the eighth chapter of the "Diomond From the Sky," entitled, "A Mind in the Past," will be added to the above program.

A great deal of interest is being shown in Miss Jane Gray's appearances in "The Flaming Sword," at the Rex today and tomorrow, on account of Miss Gray playing the leading role in Willard Mack's great Republic theater success, "Kick In."

"The Flaming Sword" boasts two distinguished actors, Lionel Barrymore and Jane Gray, and required a cast of sixty principals and many minor players. The play was produced under the auspices of Director Middleton, and was staged along the Maine coast with portions on a small island several hundred miles out in the Atlantic. The blighted life of a loving husband and the faithful love of two young people are the main cords in this gripping drama.

"News From All Over the World" is featuring the beauty contest held in the Italian gardens of the Hotel Biltmore, New York city, to select a model to serve as "Electra" during Electrical Prosperity week. Miss Florence Cassassa, the winner, and her likeness will be reproduced over 100,000,000 times. The latest war news shows a destroyed bridge across the Yser river.

Peggy Peabody's Observations

As to Amount of Sleep.

Thomas Edison says that sleep is only a habit and there is nothing to prove that men really need it. The great inventor further says: "Men first learned to sleep because when darkness came they had nothing else to do. If men had always lived in a land of perpetual light and sunshine it is possible that sleep would be unknown."

Mr. Edison limits his portion of sleep to about four hours out of the twenty-four. A test of the sleep necessary to nearly a hundred men employed in his laboratory, covering a period of two years, seemed to prove that five hours' sleep was enough for all hands and that no injurious effects resulted from the slender rest allotted them.

The amount of sleep an individual needs really varies in cases. I know many who for years have not slept more than the five hours that Edison allots as a full quota for himself, although he prefers but four. That is all the sleep they require upon the stretch, and yet every one of my acquaintances take one nap during the day and are so constituted that they enjoy "forty winks" now and then throughout their waking hours.

After a certain age is reached each person learns for himself the amount of sleep necessary to his well being. Six hours suffice for some, seven for others, eight for a lot of people and nine and ten for more people than would be believed. Just so much sleep and no more seems to thoroughly rest some people. If they oversleep even by so small a margin as fifteen minutes they feel languid and less rested than when they went to bed.

Those whose need of sleep is satisfied with a brief five or six hours are usually the people who can drop off to sleep at will and who take cat naps after dinner and whenever a little leisure gives opportunity for a few winks. And the long sleepers are those who never could compose themselves for sleep except the conditions were propitious, and that means absolute quiet, darkness and the comfortable length of their own bed, amid its customary surroundings.

It is useless to say that sleep does not benefit humanity, and for that reason it seems as though it was a blessing devised by God, and not a habit which man in his idlness and lack of better things to do evolved for himself. One has only to compare two babies, a child who sleeps long and naturally and a child who is fretful and restless. The baby who sleeps is healthy, happy and fat; the other a pindling, white-faced little creature, who crys and frets continually.

ANCIENT CRAFT OF MESOPOTAMIANS.

The kufa, a curious circular boat made of basket work, and seen nowhere else in the world, is a common sight in Mesopotamia. The ferrymen charge only a cent each passenger. There is one good point about these strange craft; they are not easily upset. Their carrying capacity also is great, and the kufa men pack in their passengers like herrings in a barrel. I had the good luck to take a photograph of the actual building of a kufa on the banks of the Tigris river, says a writer in the Wide World Magazine. They are made of date-palm branches woven together with rope made out of leaves of the same palm, thickly plasteded on the outside with bitumen. They range from four to twelve feet in diameter. Nowhere but on the Tigris and lower Euphrates rivers can one see these curious craft, which serve principally for the transport of passengers, country produce and beasts of burden across the river. About three men are required to make a kufa of respectable size, and it takes them some twenty days to build it. Like the kelek, the kufa is of great antiquity, for both these strange craft were in use long before the time of Christ. The evidence of this is indisputable, for on the bas-reliefs taken from the palace of Sennacherib both craft are clearly represented.

THE GLORY OF IT AND THE PITY OF IT.

Secretary Daniels's plan of "mobilizing the brains of the country" by getting up a naval advisory board of great inventors headed by Thomas A. Edison is a splendid idea. It gears up to the navy the greatest inventive brains of the world. We are glad, and everybody is glad, that it was thought of and is being carried out.

It is a fine, big scheme, and will do great good.

Yet—the pity of it!

Thomas A. Edison works from fifteen to twenty-two hours a day on devices to make life easier, better, happier. His time is a precious thing, and its waste irreparable.

Now he must devote a part of that precious time—all of it, maybe, if the need arises—to devices dedicated to the mere brute purpose of destroying life!

It is simply a greater, more spectacular, more penetrating example of the utter waste of war—kin to the fact that so many millions of men whose labor might be devoted to ameliorating life on this planet are being diverted to the destructive and wasteful purposes of war.

As the perfecter of the spithall, Big Ed Walsh should be eligible to that board of inventors for the navy.

SOCIALISTS SPEAKING FOR GERMANY'S BETTER SELF.

Quite the best sign of these troubled times, and the best hope for the future of civilization, comes straight from the heart of embattled Germany.

And it comes through the voice of Socialism—or at any rate the Social-Democrats of Germany. Though the Social-Democrats are Socialists in theory, in point of fact and practice they are little more than the Democrats or Progressives of the German Empire. Theirs is the voice of the plain people and they urge the cause and speak the aspirations of the plain people. They are a strong minority in the reischstag, and are today the only opposition party in that body.

And today they are sending a gleam of hope through the murk of Europe by a firm and vigorous statement of their demand that there shall be no forcible conquest of territory, no matter how great a victory Germany may win—a distinct gleam of hope even though this protest by a minority party is plainly prompted by a contrary intention in influential quarters.

The Social-Democrats have their differences. They are divided into a "majority" section and a "minority" section—but not on this issue. In a telegram to a New York newspaper, the Times, the leader of the majority group declares that "the entire Social-Democracy is against a war of conquest." One of the minority section—which is the more radical element—goes further. Besides opposing annexation of foreign land because it would imperil any peace based upon such a policy, Dr. Ernest Meyer would remove another direct cause of war—huge armament. "We desire," he declares, "general disarmament and security against another disastrous war through far-reaching international agreements."

Vorwaerts, the stalwart organ of the German Social-Democracy, vigorously states its determined opposition to any retention of foreign soil by Germany.

Wherever the sympathies of Americans may run in this terrible conflict, nobody, surely, can disagree with the position taken by the Social-Democrats of Germany. Nobody, surely, wants Germany to keep Belgium in chains. Nobody, surely, wants Germany to turn France into another prostrate Belgium. Nobody, surely, wants Austria or Germany to annex Russian Poland, especially since Russia has promised Polish autonomy at the end of the war.

On the other hand, surely nobody wants the allies, if they win, to dismember Germany or to keep a foot of her territory. Surely nobody wants Austria to lose an acre of her soil inhabited by people who wish to remain under Hapsburg rule.

The completion of a buffer line of states between France and Germany by the addition of Alsace-Lorraine to Belgium, Switzerland and Luxemburg; the erection of a buffer line of states between Germany and Austria and Russia by the re-creation of Poland and the freeing of the restless Slav states of the Autro-Hungarian empire; the recovery by Italy of the Italian-speaking provinces of Austria; the restoration of Germany's colonies; these, in so far as they can be utilized to lay the foundations of permanent peace, might be hailed by the neutral world with more or less satisfaction.

But the neutral world will sympathize thoroughly with the hope of the Social-Democrats of Germany that there will be no conquest by any country of the unwilling territory of any other country. Any such conquest will be simply laying a train of powder to the mine of a future war, as the conquest of Alsace-Lorraine forty years ago led indirectly but surely to the present war.

Having had his own case finally disposed of, Thaw might devote his attention to the discovery of the whereabouts of Dorothy Arnold.

UNGRATEFUL.

Doubtless Mr. Bryan thought he was paying a high tribute to womanhood, and making an important contribution to the cause of votes for women, when he said to his San Francisco audience:

> If women are intelligent enough to keep out of the penitentiary and have enough morality to go to church, there is no question of their fitness for the ballot.

But to at least one woman he has utterly failed to appeal. Editor Clara Fuller of the Little Falls Transcript thus registers her complete failure to appreciate Mr. Bryan's contribution to the "cause:"

> "Fitness" be hanged! When was any special brand of "fitness" ever required of man before giving him the ballot? Then why is it required of woman? Woman demands the ballot as her right because she, too, is a human being, equal to, contemporary and co-existent with man.
>
> And to think that people pay WJB money for spreading that sort of twaddle all over the this dear country!

Bravo! We applaud the spirit and commend the logic of this hearty rejoinder!

It isn't a question of fitness. That is beyond question. Man is reckless indeed if he sets up the issue of relative fitness between himself and his feminine co-partner in life. If the ballot ever gets down to a question of mere fitness, man will have to look out, or maybe there will be more women voters than men.

Equal suffrage rests itself squarely on a question of right and of rights. It is enough, when woman asks the ballot, to submit the fact that she is a human being, that she is "people," that she is "folks;" and there's an end of it.

Democracy, purporting to be government by and for the people, is more or less a joke so long as half the people do not participate in it.

Even the shocking bathing costume has its usefulness in preparing the sensitive mind for costumes not intended for bathing purposes.

LEGISLATION FOR WOMEN.

A survey of legislative activities in the several states last winter shows an unusual amount of legislation—or attempted legislation—affecting women.

As legislative activity of large consequence usually is the reaction of the manifest pressure of public sentiment, this seems to show that the sex-consciousness that has been interestingly manifest of late years is having its effect.

Votes for women was considered in twenty-two states, and seven states referred the subject to the men voters in the form of constitutional amendments. Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania will vote this fall on the question of broadening the suffrage to include women, and Iowa, South Dakota and West Virginia will pass on it next year. In Arkansas and Tennessee resolutions submitting the question were adopted, but final action was postponed by technicalities. Minnesota had the question up, but its legislature rejected the proposal to let the people vote upon it.

California, Colorado, Connecticut, Nevada, North Carolina and West Virginia passed laws on divorce, all except Nevada tending to make divorce less tempting. In Nevada, however, the profitable divorce business of Reno was re-established; a national scandal.

The minimum wage for women was considered in a number of states, but the only progress reported was in Idaho, where the matter was compromised by the creation of a commission to investigate the subject.

Mothers' pensions, the purpose of which is to enable destitute mothers to keep their children in school and under home influences instead of being compelled to send them into factories, were provided for in Kansas, Montana, Nevada, New Hampshire, New York, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Wyoming. Texas and West Virginia voted down this proposal. Eight other states amplified or otherwise improved existing laws on the subject, though Washington made the terms of its mothers' pension law less generous.

In Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts and Wyoming women workers were given the protection of new laws. New Mexico increased the wife's right of property, and Wyoming and Idaho—both equal suffrage states—placed the wife on an equality with the husband in this respect; which is where she should be. Oregon forbade discrimination in the matter of pay between men and women teachers.

Women aren't voting—yet—in many states, but they are manifestly exercising considerable influence on legislation just the same.

The British are said to be short of officers. Uncle Sam has a couple of colonels he might be willing to donate.

Archery is being revived in Chicago. This is only a fair sample of the lengths to which Americans with the travel habit are being driven by the war.

Now that Harry Thaw has been officially declared sane, it ought to be a cinch for him to get the popular vote for king in some of those warring nations.

Wisconsin legislators are complaining of the length of the session. Which is much like a man's wishing he didn't have something that he could easily get rid of.

Setting Mr. Bryan Right

S. S. McClure in the New York Mail.

A few days ago in the office of the Pittsburgh Leader I was introduced to a member of congress. Almost immediately he asked me who owned the New York Times. I replied that Mr. Ochs was the principal owner and that most of the remainder of the stock was owned by members of the staff, like Mr. Miller, the editor-in-chief; Mr. Van Anda, managing editor. I asked him why he was interested in the ownership of the Times. He said he thought the Times must be controlled by English capital to account for its pro-English and anti-German policy.

I reflected how strange it was that a man capable of such absurd ideas should be regarded as being fit for congress.

But the belief of this congressman in regard to reasons for the policy of newspapers is held in various forms by many people.

Mr. Bryan, speaking in San Francisco, seems to have been obsessed by a similar idea. From the report telegraphed to New York we quote:

> Experience in the state department, Mr. Bryan said, had convinced him that the public welfare would be benefited by a law compelling editors to tell what pecuniary interest, if any, they had in government policies they advocated, so that the public might know what weight their editorials deserved.

I wonder if Mr. Bryan could name one newspaper, or weekly, or monthly that has pecuniary interests in any governmental policy it advocates.

Some years ago, in its wisdom, congress passed a law compelling publishers to state the ownership of their publications, including bondholders, etc. This was for the purpose of revealing, if it existed, secret control by individauls or corporations inimical to the public interest. All publications have complied with the law. Has there been a single sinister revelation?

I have had close personal and business relations for many years with the editors of the leading newspapers and periodicals in the United States and England, and a fairly intimate touch with editors in France, Germany and Italy.

I know the editorial business, and I know newspaper men especially well in the United States, and I can say that I have never known a single instance of the influence of a newspaper or magazine being bought.

A newspaper is absolutely the creature of all the industrial, social, commercial, political forces and life of its environing population, influenced to a certain extent by the personality of the controlling mind that directs its policies.

But no paper can live that is not an integral part, and in a peculiar sense a product of its environment. There is no institution of civilization that is so nearly an expression of the resultant of all the forces of civilization as the newspaper.

I have known of a newspaper being bought to enable the purchaser to carry through certain policies harmful to the public welfare, but the influence of that newspaper was not secured with the purchase of the paper, and, needless to say, the purchaser failed in his purpose.

It is possible for a man or group of men to purchase a newspaper, or other periodical to enable them to carry out some purpose inimical to the public welfare, but it is impossible to secure the influence of a newspaper or periodical by such purchase. Such purposes reveal themselves inevitably, whether the fact of ownership is known or not, and generally the fact of ownership is known.

The influence of a newspaper depends on its reputation. The reputation of a newspaper is the most delicate thing in the world.

The influence of a newspaper cannot be purchased. It is destroyed by the very act of purchase for a sinister purpose.

The Country Banker

Chicago Tribune: If Diogenes were to return to the world today with his lantern and tub, this time in search of the man who knows most about his fellows, would he spend his time on the city street corners? Would he find the man who knows men and human affairs best in State street, or Wall street, or Fifth avenue, or University avenue?

The bigness of his surroundings has been the city man's undoing. Complexity means departments and departments specialists. The ribbon clerk knows literally everything about ribbons, one vice president of a metropolitan bank everything about foreign exchange and the humble president of a railroad knows all about hard hearted bankers.

The city man does not meet men. He learns the name of his first neighbor above by reading of his suicide or divorce in his newspaper. Henry Grady cut short a New York career and packed up for rural Georgia because no one in his flat was able to tell him about the little girl the undertakers had called for. No one in the block knew more than that she was a little girl.

The country doctor, the country parson, the country lawyer perhaps lead those who know their fellowmen, but a place must be made also for the country banker. True, he does not see men and women in the tensest moments of domestic life. That is reserved for the country doctor, and, in a lesser degree, the minister. Like the lawyer, too, he is limited to men for the most part in his dealings. Women seldom borrow, and only infrequently require the services of a lawyer.

But modern economics have armed the lender with questions, and the entire business life of the community passes in review before him. Business is done on borrowing and the man as well as the transaction, passes under the inquisitive eye of the leader in the country bank. If the farmer wants new machinery, the banker learns the cost of farm machinery, the different grades, the different manufacturers, the uses, the savings as compared with the less modern methods. The astute lender also discovers how much wheat the borrower has, what the production is per acre, what other assets the borrower has, and why it is that he is out of ready cash. In time the grocer, the lawyer, the doctor, the smith and the station agent will knock at his door with the story of their lives and ambitions.

A Pure Democracy.

George M. Trevelyan in the Atlantic: The Serbs of independent Serbia offer to the student of political philosophy one of the rare examples of a purely democratic society. Serbia is far more democratic than either America or England. In our countries wealth is very unequally divided; we can only redress these social inequalities in our politics. In Serbia no one talks about democracy, because they are all democrats. It is no more necessary to emphasize the fact of democracy in Serbia than it is for the human body to emphasize the function of breathing. There is only one important class—the peasant proprietors, who number 86 per cent of the population. There is practically only one kind of wealth—land—and that is equally divided up. There is no pauperism, and on the other hand no one is really rich. There is, therefore, no social problem in Serbia, and consequently no politics except foreign politics.

Hurt His Feelings.

Chicago Herald: Lytway, the butcher, had been very busy for a few moments with a well-known dictionary. Suddenly he closed it with a snap and glowered at his wife in the cash desk.

"That Mrs. Smarte is getting too clever," he growled.

"What's the matter?" asked the good lady, surprised at this criticism of a good customer.

"When she came in just now she told me I ought to rename my scales the Ambuscade brand."

"Well, why——"

"I've just looked up the word," went on the infuriated man, "and the dictionary says that ambuscade means 'to lie in weight.'"

Will War Be Won By Shells?

Editorial in the New York Evening Post.

Even so-called expert opinion on the war has a tendency to be carried away by the fad, the phrase of the moment. At the beginning of the war, people thought only in terms of flank movements. Then the lines stiffened in France and Belgium and before Warsaw, and people thought only in terms of deadlock. The day for flanking operations was past. The possibilities of breaking through were over. Exhaustion was the keynote until the Austro-Germans in Galicia shattered the Russian line on the Dunajec. They showed that breaking through was not a thing of the past; and by taking Russia's Carpathian armies in the rear proved that flanking operations are still to be reckoned with. Today the one word is shells. England's agitations and preparations have been interpreted as meaning that munitions are everything. It has become a commonplace to say that the war will be won in the armament factories. And the observant correspondent, who often observes what he is prepared to observe, has described the passing of the rifle, the passing of infantry in general, and the winning of battles as a mere perfunctory occupation by infantry of trenches devastated by heavy gunfire.

From all this one would imagine that the heavy gun and shell had played little part in the earlier phases of the war, and that heavy gun and shell will be the only decisive factor for the remainder of the conflict. Yet it is on record that a concentration of high explosive shell fire is by no means a guarantee of success. Take the highest estimate of von Mackensen's display of force against the Russians in the first days of May. No less than 400,000 heavy guns are said to have been ranged along a line of forty miles, or 100 cannon to the mile. But it was this same von Mackensen who was reported last winter to have trained 500 cannon on an eight-mile front along the Bzura river. In Galicia the Russian army was shattered. On the Bzura the Russian line held firm. In the course of the fighting around St. Mihiel the French reports spoke of 4,000 German shells falling on a front of less than a mile in the space of an hour, but with little effect. The crown prince of Bavaria speaks of 35,000 French shells falling on a single regiment within twenty-four hours, and when the bombardment was over that regiment counter-attacked with success. We know that the English success at Neuve Chappelle was made possible by a heavy concentration of artillery, but it is also true that it was the German machine guns that saved Neuve Chappelle from turning into a disaster for the kaiser.

General consideration will show that to attribute success in the field merely to shells is an error. It may be true that the German munition factories are turning out shells more rapidly than the allies. But it must also be true that Germany's position at the beginning of the war was stronger than it is today in the matter of guns and ammunition. Otherwise what becomes of the argument for preparedness? German superiority to the allies in the matter of guns and ammunition at Ypres in November must have been easily as decisive as it is today, yet the Germans were stopped at Ypres in November. For that matter, if shells alone are the determining factor, why does not Germany now drive through the British lines in the direction of Calais? After all, it is in the west that the war must be decided. The common argument is that when Russia is disposed of the Germans will turn their attention to the British and French. But this apparently means that Germany is willing to let England have several months' breathing space for the manufacture of shells, expecting to counter against allied ammunition with German masses of men.

The truth is that men as well as guns counted in the Austro-German victories in Galicia. Behind the guns were the winter-trained troops, a new army which Germany had a choice of using in the east or the west. She chose Russia because that was the weakest line of resistance, because the chance of a great sweep were much brighter in Galicia than in the west, and a great forward movement was necessary to stimulate public sentiment at home and shape neutral sentiment in the Balkans. Against the allies in the west, guns or no guns, Germany could not hope for anything like a decisive advance; and for the simple reason that in the west she had to reckon with superior men—both in numbers and in fighting efficiency. Russia in Galicia was not only outmunitioned, but outnumbered. She had against her, from Southern Poland to Bukowina, no less than eight or nine German and Austrian armies, at least a million and a quarter men, and probably a million and a half, and to oppose them she had less than a million.

With regard to the situation in England there has unquestionably been a great deal of exaggeration. From a shortage of ammunition the correspondents, professional and amateur, have gone on to speak of no ammunition at all. They have pictured the British sitting helpless in their trenches under German fire unable to make reply. This is absurd. What England is actually agitated about is not a shortage of shells for her present battle line, but an adequate supply for the immense new armies she is creating. Where is the British army? the Germans ask now as they did during the first days of the war. Of that army a million is now in France, probably, and other millions are still drilling. If no British advance in force has been attempted, the reason may not be altogether one of munitions, important though that may be. There are indications that British policy is against any attempt by a portion of her full available strength. If the Germans are to be pushed out of Belgium, the attempt must be made by vast numbers and the attack must be sustained. A thoughtful article in the London Nation some weeks ago called for the creation of a "phalanx," a heavy mass of men, a huge human battering ram, such as the Germans drove against the Russians in Galicia. Such a phalanx is unquestionably now in the course of formation in Northern France, and it will be made up of men as well as guns.

E. Z. Mark

Walt Mason in Chicago News: We ask him to invest in town the cash he has to spare; he turns such propositions down with cold and haughty stare. "Your dinky local enterprise," remarks this loft gent, "looks pretty fiddling to my eyes—it won't pay 6 per cent. I won't unlock my treasure chest for local schemes, my friends; when I have money to invest, I want big dividends." And so he sends his cash away (with big results in view) for silver mines in far Cathay, oil wells in Timbuctoo. He buys a hundred cars of cloves, upon the Wall Street plan; he's buying Greenland orange groves and earthquakes in Japan. Oh, anything that's far away, that's boomed by unknown sharks, looks bigger than a load of hay to all the E. Z. Marks. His once large pile is dwindling fast, 'twill soon have moseyed hence, and soon he'll view the dismal past and wish he'd had some sense. Meanwhile our local ginseng mills are running day and night, and we are putting in our tills the doubloons, clean and bright.

North Dakota Notions

Various Views Expressed by Newspapers of That State.

Do You Mean —?

Bismarck Tribune: Press dispatches did not give the make of the car which bumped into President Wilson's automobile. One guess is enough.

Practical Common Sense.

Valley City Times-Record: Over in Grand Forks county when the schoolhouse is too small for the attendance when the eighth graders graduate, a big barn is festooned and the whole community gathers for a good time. That's practical co-operation.

The Way They All Feel.

Howard Democrat: A North Dakota farmer who left the state in search of fairer fields and pastures greener in California, writes back: "Offer a premium at your next county fair for the biggest fool in the country and I will try to be back there in time to compete for it.

Professor Ladd's Analysis of Puffed Wheat.

Fargo Courier-News: In the Current Bulletin Prof. Ladd finds this popular article of diet has advanced in price recently from 10 to 15 cents per package, ostensibly because of war prices for wheat. The package contains five ounces; one bushel of wheat would make 180 packages. At this rate the consumers of puffed wheat pay $27 per bushel for the original grain, allowing $1.80 per bushel for it, giving a net cost of 1 cent per package. Some profit, eh? No adulteration—doesn't need to be with such a profit? Dr. Ladd's mathematics is as merciless as his chemistry.

Easy Money.

Bottineau Courant: It is within the power of the road drag, the common ordinary $5 split log road drag, in fact, almost any old kind of a road drag, to immediately increase very materially the price of every acre of farm land in North Dakota. The drag can put into the pocket of every North Dakota farmer and land owner many dollars in a single season. All that is necessary to do is to use it on the roads.

Sure—It's Valueless.

Devils Lake Journal: One of the criticisms Republicans are leveling at the administration is that "no man borrows easier or in any other place than before the Federal reserve banks were opened." In view of the fact that the purpose of the Federal reserve bank was not to increase the borrowing capacity of men who had already borrowed to the limit of their credit, but was to make available more money for legitimate business expansion, the value of such criticism may be rightly gauged.

How About a Dollar Watch?

Minot Optic-Reporter: The only prepaid thing that we know of that goes on tick is a telegram.

All For a Song.

Langdon Courier-Democrat: A music publisher says he spent over $8,000 to popularize a song. Still, he got many a whistle for his money.

An Early Guess.

Oakes Times: It looks like McCumber and Burdick vs. Hanna and Twichell in the next campaign. What?

Just a Moment

Daily Strength and Cheer.

Compiled by John G. Quinlin, the Sunshine Man.

Grant, O Christ, that we may worthily feast at Thy table here and be accounted worthy through Thy grace to be admitted to Thy table hereafter, at the eternal supper of the Lamb, and to Thee, Father, Son and Holy Spirit, be glory and honor. Amen.

There was a famous sculptor in Paris, who executed a great work which stands today in the Galerie des Beaux Arts. He was a great genius, and this was his last work; but, like many a great genius, he was very poor and lived in a small garret. This garret was his workshop, his studio, and his bedroom. He had this statue almost finished in clay when, one night, a frost suddenly fell over Paris. The sculptor lay on his bed, with the statue before him in the center of the fireless room. As the chill air came down upon him he saw that if the cold got more intense the water in the interstices of the clay would freeze. So the old man arose and heaped the bedclothes reverently upon the statue. In the morning, when his friends came in, they found the old sculptor dead; but the image was saved!

Preserve at any cost the image into which you are being changed by the unseen Sculptor, who is every moment that you are in his presence working at that holy task. The Spirit of God is busy now recreating men, within these commonplace lives of ours, in the image of God.—Henry Drummond.

Christ said, "Peter, deny yourself." Instead of doing that Peter denied his Lord. Just think of it! It was a choice between that ugly, cursed self and that beautiful, blessed Son of God; and Peter chose self. No wonder that he wept bitter tears.

Christians, look at your own lives in the light of the words of Jesus. Is there self-will, self-pleasing? Remember this: Every time you please yourself you deny Jesus. It is one of the two. I must please Him and deny self, or please myself and deny Him.—Andrew Murray.

Our Father, we ask Thy blessing upon us as we partake of this bountiful provision, for which we give Thee thanks. Make us faithful workers for Thee and forgive all our transgressions. We ask it in the name of our Redeemer. Amen.

The Children's Hour.

Between the dark and the daylight,
When the night is beginning to lower,
Comes a pause in the day's occupations,
That is known as the Children's Hour.

I hear in the chamber above me
The patter of little feet,
The sound of a door that is opened,
And voices soft and sweet.

From my study I see in the lamplight,
Descending the broad hall stair,
Grave Alice, and laughing Allegra,
And Edith with golden hair.

A whisper, and then a silence,
Yet I know by their merry eyes
They are plotting and planning together
To take me by surprise.

A sudden rush from the stairway,
A sudden raid from the hall
By three doors left unguarded
They enter my castle wall!

They climb up into my turret
O'er the arms and back of my chair;
If I try to escape, they surround me;
They seem to be everywhere.

They almost devour me with kisses,
Their arms about me entwine,
Till I think of the Bishop of Bingen
In his Mouse-tower on the Rhine!

Do you think, O blue-eyed banditti,
Because you have scaled the wall,
Such an old mustache as I am
Is not a match for you all!

I have you fast in my fortress
And will not let you depart.
But put you down into the dungeon
In the round tower of my heart.

And there I will keep you forever,
Yes, forever, and a day,
Till the walls shall crumble to ruin,
And molder in dust away.

—Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

Duluth and The Herald

Bouquets and Brickbats From the State Press.

Maybe We'd Better Take to the Woods.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: The Duluth Herald has started something sanguinary. It did it this way: "Nobody opposes the boxing contest except pale-blooded old women in trousers."

On reading the above deadly insult, Admiral C. F. Macdonald ordered out the submarine, "The St. Cloud Times," to sink the sinister craft, "The Duluth Herald," and Gen. Frank A. Day loaded the big Zeppelin, "The Fairmont Sentinel," with death-dealing bombs and grape juice, and directed it to circle above the Zenith City, and begin operations.

Attacked from the depths and the heights, it is up to the dreadnaught, "The Duluth Herald," to either show the white flag, make a run for the open, fight, or send for Peacemaker Bryan.

The date of the battle is scheduled for Aug. 6, when the Northern Minnesota editors will act as war correspondents, and will write wireless descriptions of the great conflict.

"Pale-blooded old women in trousers," indeed! Both Admiral Macdonald and Gen. Day will show the reptile of "The Herald" that they both possess copious quantities of good red fighting blood, which they are ready to spill in defense of their honor.

After the battle the Journal-Press will tender its services as arbitrator—but not before.

Do Hill City Ants Wait for You to Come to Them?

Hill City News: The Duluth Herald remarks: "Go to the ant, thou picnic lunch." Of course if you haven't any more sense than to set your lunch down by an ant hill you must expect to eat ants or go hungry.

Here Is a True Prophet.

Swanville News: All news in Duluth these days is secondary to the announcement of the fact that their new $20,000,000 steel plant will open for business on Nov. 1. The Zenith City has a great future in store for it with the further development of the iron industry and the agricultural development of the northern counties.

Some Kidder, This Chap.

Bemidji Sentinel: Of course it is warm in Minnesota in the summer time but it is so wet that you don't feel it—except in Duluth.

Kansas Papers Please Copy.

Albert Lea Standard: Down in Kansas it is so wet that the farmers are running binders with beer kegs for wheels and The Duluth Herald is curious to know how in a prohibition state they get the beer kegs. Respectfully referred to ex-Governor Hodge or any of the other Kansas prohibition orators.

We Are Overwhelmed.

Grand Rapids Herald-Review: The Duluth Herald continues to follow the pace it long ago set for itself as a great journal. To the exchange reader and editor the daily visit of The Herald is refreshing and encouraging, for its news pages teem with real journalistic enterprise and its editorial tone is wholesome, able and gratifying.

We Are Answered.

Redwood Falls Gazette: "What is so rare as a kid who is already wishing school would reopen?" questions The Duluth Herald. Take it from us, Herald, the kid who demands a silver fork with which to eat watermelon is so rare as to be nearly an extinct species.

Corrected the Fault.

Cincinnati Enquirer: "See here, sir," yelled the indignant citizen, as he entered the office of the editor of the Daily Whoop, "what do you mean by this article in yesterday's paper?"

"What is it?" asked the editor.

"What is it?" shouted the indignant citizen. "Why do you refer to me as a greedy jobber?"

"That is too bad," replied the editor. "It is a typographical error, and I am sorry it appeared as it did."

"Oh, very well," answered the indignant citizen. "I accept your apology."

"I don't know how that fool linotype man came to set the word 'jobber,'" added the editor. I wrote the word 'robber' very plainly."

Horrors of War.

Chicago Herald: It was several days after arriving home from the front that the soldier with two broken ribs was sitting up and smoking a cigar when the doctor came in.

"Well, how are you feeling now?" asked the latter.

"I've had a stitch in my side all day," replied the wounded soldier.

"That's all right," said the doctor. "It shows that the bones are knitting."

Twenty Years Ago

From The Herald of this date, 1895.

The Duluth grocers were a sadly disappointed lot of men when they awoke yesterday and looked upon the damp, cold morning. They had advertised their stores to be closed all day, and in consequence could expect little business, and they could not hold their annual picnic. There was nothing to do but postpone it for a week.

Duluth temperature at 7 a. m. today, 50; maximum yesterday, 51; minimum yesterday, 48.

J. W. Miller of the Ideal restaurant and Robert and Alford Clendenning of Fargo, N. D., returned yesterday from the Brule with a phenomenal catch of 500 fine brook trout from two days' fishing.

L. G. Matthews and family have gone to Pewee valley in Kentucky and will be away three or four weeks.

Mrs. J. J. Sykes of Courtland, Ala., arrived in Duluth yesterday and is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Sterling S. Smith.

The Negaunee and Ishpeming iron mine strikers visited the Cascade range last night and compelled all the men employed there to quit work. Work at all mines in Marquette county, except the Champion and Republic, is suspended.

Secretary of the Interior Smith yesterday denied the motions for review filed by Emil Hartmann and W. W. Billson of Duluth, two of the parties interested in the celebrated Section 30 land case. This disposes of the case before the interior department. Any further proceedings will have to be taken in the courts.

Out of thirty-five candidates examined last week by County Superintendent of Schools Stultz only nine passed and will receive teachers' certificates. They are Misses Agnes Button, Lida M. Dow, Mattie Moffett, May Bain, Flo J. Cameron, Susie Murphy, Rose Wickey and Alexander Summerfield, T. F. Thomas and R. W. Belghle.

Judge Nelson has filed an order granting Receiver Fitch of the Duluth & Winnipeg railroad authority to enter into a contract with the Duluth & Winnipeg Terminal company of Wisconsin for the use of the latter's terminal facilities, ore docks, etc., at a rental of $10,000 a year.

J. E. Cooley urged the chamber of commerce yesterday to provide for a St. Louis county exhibit at the state fair this year. The county owns a building there and the expense of securing an exhibit would not be great.

SENATOR JONES CORRECTS HIMSELF

To the Editor of The Herald:

Some days ago The Herald printed an article in which I was quoted relative to the semi-monthly pay day law. Since then I have received a letter from an official of the Duluth, Winnipeg & Pacific Railway company denying that this company intended to make any distinction between "salary" and "wages." I am glad to make the correction in the Open Court, and quote from the letter as follows:

"The statement as attributed to you, and inferred that a certain railroad company with headquarters in Winnipeg did not intend to comply with the law in this respect. Your inference would apply to the Duluth, Winnipeg & Pacific Railway company, and in justice to this company I would ask that you restate this matter, as you have evidently been misinformed as to the attitude of the company towards the law, as arrangements had been made to comply with it, and no distinction is being made between the terms 'salary' and 'wages,' as all employes are to receive their pay semi-monthly."

My information was obtained from employes of the road who were left in the dark as to what was to be done, and who understood that the distinction mentioned in the article was to be made. I am glad that the Duluth, Winnipeg & Pacific railway will not insist on making any such distinction. Yours truly,

RICHARD JONES.

SHOULD CELEBRATE WHEN WEATHER IS FINE

To the Editor of The Herald:

I have lived in Duluth long enough to observe how frequently festival and gala times of one sort or another have been spoiled by inclement weather. I am heartily in favor of "big doings" to mark the opening of the steel plant in November next. But by that time we may be in the very beginning of the chilling blasts of winter. Why not have the celebration a month, say, in advance of the opening of the plant, during a season when we are usually blessed with the finest weather to be found anywhere in the United States, when it is a delight for all classes of people to be out of doors? What difference will it occasion in the public rejoicing if we make a "joyful sound" over this great event, which is now assured, if it is actually a month in advance of the opening of the plant?

URGES PROMPT ACTION ON SUPERIOR STREET PAVING

To the Editor of The Herald:

Superior street is Duluth's main business street and between Sixteenth avenue east and Twenty-fourth avenue east it is not only a business thoroughfare, but it runs through one of the most select residence localities in the city. It is the street over which tourists always pass when they go out to see the city. Nevertheless, that stretch of tar macadam pavement is a worse road than any old turnspike. There has been some talk of trying to make the bonding company resurface the street or fix it up in some way, but the improvements stopped there. Talk is cheap. I am going to make a suggestion for quick and speedy action. There is a good crushed stone foundation on that street which could be leveled up at a slight expense, and the street could then be resurfaced with asphalt, tarvia or some other good wearing surface material and it would make a good street for years to come at a slight expense.

Would it not be a good plan for the city commission to make an experiment of this kind at least on a part of it? The whole city is interested in this plan and not the property owners alone. They have filed a protest, which, under the charter, will prevent improvement at their cost for three years. It would seem that something must be done by the city before that time in the way of temporary repairs. Let the city council either do that or push the case against the bonding company. Why not push that case if the city has a valid claim? But at any rate let us see some action.

VICTIM.

GRAVEL VS. CRUSHED ROCK FOR CONCRETE

To the Editor of The Herald:

I wish to take exceptions to some erroneous statements made through your columns of last evening's Herald headed, "Farrell refuses to substitute gravel" on the Commonwealth avenue paving. This is a great injustice to our company as the statements in question are misleading and untrue, and as an old subscriber and for many years a correspondent of your paper, I feel that you will hasten to correct them.

The facts are these: None of the New Duluth property owners own the gravel pit near Carlton, nor have any interest in it whatever. The pit is owned and operated by railway employes well known in Duluth. The gravel in the Commonwealth avenue paving put in last year was all taken from the Zenith gravel pit at Carlton, was properly washed and screened, and the laboratory tests gave it a much higher test than any other material at the Head of the Lakes, crushed rock not excepted. We invite your business men to inspect the pavement as it speaks for itself, and furthermore, it is a saving to the property owners as well.

Now a word for Commissioner Farrell and Assistant City Engineer Otto E. Brownell. They were gentlemen enough to make the trip to Carlton and get their information first hand. It is certainly refreshing these days to meet gentlemen that a person can do business with in the good old fashioned way, who say what they mean and mean what they say, and are not jumping around like the proverbial flea.

Mr. Farrell and his engineer did not condemn our gravel, but spoke of the washed and screened product in the highest terms. They did, however, turn down bank gravel which some of the New Duluth property owners wished to substitute for crushed rock. This, Mr. Farrell and his engineer were perfectly justified in doing, as the bank has never yet been found which runs in the proper proportions to give the best results.

We have a washing and screening plant here with twice the capacity of your Duluth crushed rock plant. We will challenge any one to take the tests from the University of Minnesota laboratory and show a higher efficiency.

We have furnished the material for some of your largest ore docks and we intend to stay in the game for many years to come, and help you all build up the Zenith city. We are proud of the name and proud of our plant, and are willing to take our chances with Mr. Farrell and his city engineer. All we ask is a fair deal and the privilege of helping you build a bigger and better Duluth.

Yours very truly,

ZENITH CONCRETE GRAVEL COMPANY, R. J. McFarland, president.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

This department does not pretend to be infallible. It will endeavor, however, to answer questions sent to it by readers of The Herald to the best of its ability, reserving the right to ignore all that are trifling or of concern only to the questioner, or that ask for advice on legal or medical questions.

To receive attention, every inquiry must bear the name and address of the person sending it. This is not wanted for publication, but as an evidence of good faith.

John Pickard, White Pine Mine—Will you please give me any information about the government railroad building in the Yukon? Kindly let me know if they ship men from Duluth out there and under what conditions, stating wages, as there are a number of men here wanting to go out there.—There is little chance to secure work on the government railroad in Alaska. It was announced several weeks ago that no more men were needed, and thousands of surplus applications were received. No men have been supplied from Duluth.

M., Duluth—The writer holds three season tickets at a local theater, and has been greatly annoyed and embarrassed by two people sitting behind, who insist that the backs of two of our seats belong to them, the man going so far as to remove a child's wrap in front of himself.

Not accustomed to such rudeness, I would simply like to know my rights in the matter. Does my seat belong to me, or half of it to the individual in the rear.

May I lay my wrap over my own seat, or should I reserve it for the hat behind, or for nothing, as it sometimes happens?—You should so adjust your wraps as to make it just as pleasant as possible for the people behind you. If they do not appreciate your courtesy and are objectionable, ask to have your seats changed. The best weapon against ill-breeding is not more ill-breeding, but real courtesy.

R. G., Duluth—Please publish in your Open Court where I can have medicine analyzed.—Apply at the office of the city health inspector. If you suspect that the medicine contains dangerous drugs, he will doubtless take up your case, or at least direct you to the proper authorities.

W. J. Barkla, Marble—We have been taking your paper for some time, and we would like to know if you would kindly inform us through the columns of the question bureau of a firm that makes over old carpets into rugs.—We cannot give business addresses in this column. Look through The Herald's business directory published every Saturday. Perhaps somebody in the business will see this and write you.

R. Hagen, Proctor—If refuse is left lying around for any length of time, will it catch fire by itself? If so, what do they call it?—It depends on the kind of refuse. Spontaneous combustion is what this action is called.

Lodge, principal of physics, University of Manchester, and George Geraldstoney, well known as a consulting engineer.

BRITISH AMBASSADOR'S HOME IS GUARDED

Beverly, Mass., July 19.—A detail of secret service men came here yesterday to guard the summer home of the British ambassador, Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, who is expected to arrive with Lady Spring-Rice from Washington. It is thought here that this protection was furnished in view of reports that when Erich Muenter, known as Frank Holt, wounded J. P. Morgan, he had intended to attack Sir Cecil, who was Mr. Morgan's guest at the time.

Rescued By Life Guards.

Chicago, July 19.—Thirty-four men, contestants in a canoe race, given by the Columbia Canoe club along the north shore of the lake, were rescued from probable drowning by life guards yesterday. A strong gale from the north caught them three-fourths of a mile from shore, and of the twenty-seven canoes, seventeen were overturned.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

The Ole Swimmin' Hole

IT TAKES more than one summer to make a swimmer. Nowadays it takes too many summers. It never did us any harm to go swimming, and we went in early and often, and stayed till we got good and ready to come out, for which we praise the memory of the best father that ever lived.

If anything makes us sick, it is to hear parents frowning—yes, you can hear it, it is so mean—at the pleas of the youngsters who want to go barefoot or go swimming. You would think human beings nowadays are too delicate to handle. Unfortunately, the writer's boys are all girls, but, nevertheless, we see to it that they go swimming at every reasonable opportunity and whenever they like.

Outside of the healthful—the invariably healthful—influence of swimming as an exercise, the acquirement of that important accomplishment is something every good parent should encourage in his children. Indeed, swimming ought to be taught in our schools as part of the common school course. The notion that exposure, or chilling, or something like that is bad for the youngsters is all wrong. Honestly, now, have you ever known of an authentic instance of swimming hurting the health of a boy or girl? We haven't. And we believe and advise that boys and girls of all ages should go swimming at any time whatever, with no exceptions, the only condition being that the boy or girl desires to go.

This old-time feeling that you must shake your head and frown when the youngsters apply for a swimming privilege is part and parcel of the equally obsolete notion that open air was a dangerous thing for young people to inhale.

To the young people who have not yet learned to swim, let us recommend the crawl stroke, with the head, for the most part, in the water. This is the easiest and most natural swimming position, and once you have acquired the trick of breathing between strokes, so to speak, and learned that there is nothing to fear from ducking your face, you will soon be a fast and powerful swimmer—a thing almost impossible for the old-fashioned breast stroke swimmer.

Sour Taste in Mouth.

I have a very sour taste in my mouth when I wake every morning, and it often awakens me at night, writes K. M. Is there any cause for this?

Reply—If there is no nasal catarrh, no disease of the nasal sinuses, no bad teeth or diseased gums, or infected tonsils, possibly you have insufficient kidney function, or high blood pressure. That would mean a careful physical examination.

Oleomargarine Is O. K.

I would like to have an expression from you regarding the use of oleomargarine, writes Mrs. G. S. W. Is 't good for cooking purposes and for table use? The writer has been advised to use it as a substitute for butter.

Reply—It is in every way as wholesome and nourishing as butter. Most of us have enjoyed it many a time when we imagined we were eating A No. 1 butter.

Grandma and Worms Again.

An elderly neighbor of ours insists that a child can't be healthy unless it does have worms. Can you enlighten me? It seems absurd that there should be live worms in our bodies.

Reply—About once in a hundred times when a child is accused of having worms, he really has them, whether or not they are the cause of his digestive disturbance. But granny is delirious when she assumes that parasites are healthful and indispensable in children or adults.

CROP LATE BUT LARGE

Dakota Agricultural Commissioner Sends Report to The Herald.

"Best Condition as a Whole" in Last Ten Years.

Leading authorities agree in the view that the crop outlook over the Northwest is bright and that all the indications point to heavy yields in wheat and other small grains. It is conceded that owing to the excessive rainfall during June, the wheat harvest will be late and will probably not begin in North Dakota before Aug. 15.

Referring to the general situation, R. F. Flint of Bismarck, commissioner department of agriculture, North Dakota, says in a report to The Herald, made up to the end of last week:

"The best condition as a whole for small grain that has existed for ten years, is the consensus of opinion of numerous persons covering the entire state. The North Dakota County agricultural agents, representing all sections of the state, have been in session with the United States and various plain state agronomists at Mandan, N. D., during the past three days and their close touch with field conditions enables them to speak with accuracy regarding the crop situation. Copious rains have fallen over nearly all sections of North Dakota with greater frequency than has been entirely acceptable, since April 21, and the top soil and subsoil are well saturated. This condition would enable the growing crop to withstand a dry spell of at least ten days with little damage, but not necessarily hot winds. Hot winds, however, are not likely to occur with the general moist conditions that obtain throughout the sections adjoining, and North Dakota. In the northern tier of counties, beginning with Central Cavalier county and extending west, including Divide county, the rainfall has not been so heavy by about one-half that at Bismarck. While conditions are quite favorable throughout that section, crops could not so well withstand adverse conditions. With no extraordinary adverse weather conditions, however, an average yield should be harvested.

"Considerable damage has been done in the eastern portion, in the lower spots of fields, by excessive moisture, but not nearly so great to grain as might be inferred, as farmers—more generally than in earlier years—have seeded low areas to grass, and drainage has been provided. On the better drained areas, the grain stands are immense and the promised high yield should offset the poor spots.

No Rust Damage.

"Some rumors are heard of rust, but so far as we are able to ascertain, no real damage has yet been done and, in many cases when investigated, a report was merely a rumor.

"Rye harvest will be unusually late—in fact, but a few days earlier than the wheat harvesting ordinarily begins—and the yield promises to be considerably better than many anticipated shortly after the late frosts, though some fields were cut for hay.

"Flax acreage is very largely confined to new breaking throughout the western half of the state and while backward, is growing nicely. Winter wheat came through the best of any year since it has been seeded and because of the excellent results promised, will undoubtedly become more popular. Corn, like other crops, is unusually backward, but with favorable weather and good care and no killing frost until the average date for same, would yet make a crop.

"Hail storms have already done considerable damage in various sections and while these are extremely hard, unless protected by insurance, to the individual whose grain is struck, the loss as a whole so far will be felt but little. Haying is general now and a heavy crop of grass is available. Laborers are in demand and will be in active demand when the harvest begins, which time will be at least twenty days later than last season, or about Aug. 15.

"A large percentage of men offering themselves for employment are not skilled farmers, and are not giving satisfaction. When the harvest is on is a poor time to break in a green man, and farmers do not want to bother with this class, but present indications are that men who can do the work will find ready employment and good wages from Aug. 15 on until crop is harvested and threshed."

COURTHOUSE TEAM GETS REVENGE

Defeats Nine Representing Work Farm By 16-to-11 Score.

In an eight-inning contest Saturday afternoon the courthouse baseball team defeated the work farm aggregation 16 to 11. Earlier in the season the work farm crew administered a 17-to-4 defeat to the courthouse nine. "Bob" Johnson pitched for the men from the county building and Stubler, a southpaw, did mound duty for the farmers. Supt. Fred Ward was behind the bat for the work farm boys and did some heavy stick work. Judge Bert Fesler of the district court acted as umpire. The affair was witnessed by a large crowd, including A. H. Crasweller, president of the work farm commission.

B. P. NEFF HONORED BY SALES MANAGERS OF AMERICA

Bentley P. Neff of this city was honored at a recent convention in San Francisco when he was elected vice president of the Eastern division of the International Sales Managers' association, embracing all territory east of Chicago. Mr. Neff was vice president of the old National Sales Managers' association.

The following account of the convention is taken from a San Francisco newspaper:

"The National Sales Managers' association of America, representing more invested capital in industry than any other 1915 convention, held its meeting yesterday.

"At the morning session after the association had received one of the bronze plaques and President Wooley had told of the ideals and aims of the great body, the delegates decided to increase the field of the association's usefulness by making it an international body. This action was at once taken and at the afternoon session M. Louis Wooley of San Francisco was elected the first international president. His election was in the form of a reward for his service as temporary president during the last year, during which period he has organized divisions in every city of importance in America.

"The international convention elected four vice presidents. Bentley P. Neff of Duluth, Minn., formerly first vice president of the old association, was elected vice president of the Eastern division of the international association, embracing all territory east of Chicago. W. L. Bilger of Seattle is vice president of the Western division. D. P. Parker of Dallas, Tex., is vice president of the Southern division and E. A. Daniels of London, England, is vice president of the European division.

"The business session was devoted to talks on the various departments of salesmanship and impelled by the stress of the 'calamitous situation' which they predicted would sweep the sea of American ships and totally destroy the foreign trade of American manufacturers and producers which had been produced at a cost of millions of dollars, the association named a committee to draft resolutions calling upon President Wilson and congress to take action for the repeal of the La Follette 'seaman bill.'"

Mr. Neff is at present out of the city, but this well deserved recognition on the part of the National Sales Managers' association with which he has always been strongly identified will be appreciated by his many friends in Duluth.

MORE RAISING OF WINTER RYE URGED

Crookston Farm Expert Tells of Benefits That Will Accrue.

Crookston, Minn., July 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Prof. F. L. Kennard, agronomist at the Crookston experiment station, has prepared a timely article on winter rye. He says that winter rye is the hardiest of all grains and should have a more prominent place in the system of farming in Northwestern Minnesota. The crop survived last winter, he says, while winter wheat in a great many instances winter killed entirely. There are a great many very good reasons for growing winter grain, whether it be wheat or rye. Chief among these are distribution of labor, both at sowing and harvest time, when used as nurse crops for grass or clover in the control of noxious weeds, and as early spring pasture.

On the average farm, winter rye could be grown profitably for one or all of the above uses. The labor problem is always a grave one on a grain farm. If a portion of small grain can be seeded in the early fall and matured two weeks before the bulk of the harvest the rush is avoided to some extent.

According to Prof. Kennard, no grain is better to be used as a "nurse" crop than winter rye. The grass or clover can be seeded in the spring after the rye has started its growth and as the crop relatively little foliage and matures early the grass crop has not the struggle for existence that it has with an oat or spring wheat crop.

Weed Crop Killed.

Because the seed bed for winter rye must be prepared early the crop of weeds which usually occupies the land after a grain crop is removed is necessarily killed in the preparation for the rye. Then, too, after the crop is harvested the farmer has an opportunity to practically summer fallow the rye land and in this way can combat quack grass, sow or Canadian thistle. Early plowing followed by repeated cultivations will do a great deal toward the control of such weeds.

For spring and early summer pasture winter rye is very good and on lands that are sandy and subject to blowing makes an excellent crop to plow under for green manure.

The seed bed should be prepared early, plowing the land as soon as possible after the preceding crop is removed and harrowing or discing often enough to make a firm bed with a surface mulch two or three inches deep. The seed should be sown with a drill early in September. The usual rate of seeding is five to six pecks per acre.

SHOOTS SELF THROUGH FOOT WITH RIFLE

Son of Rice Lake Farmer Fingers Trigger and Discharges Gun.

He is improving, according to hospital reports this morning, and was not seriously injured.

Only about 1,000 votes were cast, the returns having been received at Central high school, at which place the successful candidates were declared elected. In two districts two votes were cast for Andrew Nelson, despite the fact that he was not a candidate.

A resolution was adopted, approving the payment of $537.50 to the 215 election clerks and inspectors who acted.

CITY IN NEED OF MORE POLICEMEN

Safety Head Will Recommend Ten More Men for 1916.

Duluth's growth has increased the demand for a larger police force, according to Safety Commissioner Silberstein, who hopes to provide for ten more men in the 1916 budget.

"We really need twenty-five more policemen," said Mr. Silberstein, "and I hope to increase the force by ten beginning next year." The present force numbers eighty-five, including sixty-nine patrolmen.

In case ten new men are added to the force, the detective staff, now composed of five men, probably will be increased by one man. Lieut. F. A. Schulte's recent promotion to the newly-created position of chief of detectives has taken some work from the chief of police and made room for another plain clothes man.

Under the present system Chief McKercher is able to give more attention to the executive side of the work, and is not handicapped by a large amount of detail work at his desk.

Commissioner Silberstein praised the work of the present department, saying: "The force, although not sufficient, is working in splendid fashion and giving the maximum of service. Any misunderstandings and 'sore spots' that existed at first have disappeared, and the new administration has no complaint to make.

"Chief McKercher is making a great showing and has the loyalty and personal regard of his men."

The safety division head has received many applications for better police protection in various parts of the city recently. Many of the requests he considers worthy ones and by the time steel plant work has caused a growth in the western suburbs, it will be necessary to enlarge the New Duluth and West Duluth forces.

BERLIN REJOICES OVER VON HINDENBURG'S WORK

Berlin, via London, July 19.—The news of Field Marshal von Hindenburg's newest surprise for the Russians which the war office announces has resulted in important victories caused general rejoicing and the appearance of flags all over the city.

Military critics attach great significance to the breaking of the Russian lines and the consequent Russian retreat toward the Narew river, particularly as the German advance between the Pissa and Vistula rivers threatens to crumple the right flank positions of the Russians.

With Field Marshal von Mackensen progressing against the other flank, the maintenance of communications offers a serious problem for the Russians. The breaking of the Russian line near Krasnoslava, thirty-four miles south of Lublin, brings the Germans dangerously near Cholm and Lublin, both points being of the highest importance to the Russians in maintaining their position in the Vistula region.

ACTIONS QUEER.

North Dakota Minister Held in Chicago for Relatives.

Chicago, July 19.—Rev. William Paul, 77, a retired minister of Martin, Sheridan county, N. D., entered a West side police station today and reported that he had been robbed. His replies to questions led to an examination by the ambulance surgeon, on whose recommendation he was sent to the psychopathic hospital.

Detectives traced his movements to a hotel, where was found the minister's money and watch with papers which established his identity. Some of the aged man's baggage was found at a railway station and taken in charge by the police. The minister will be detained in the hospital until word is received from relatives.

FIVE BATHERS ARE DROWNED AT CHICAGO

Chicago, June 19.—Two young women and three men were drowned together yesterday while bathing in Lake Michigan. An undercurrent swept them into a deep hole, and all the members of the party were drowned at almost the same time. The undertow swept the bodies away.

The dead are: Miss Marie Dwyer, 21, daughter of a probate court clerk; Miss Nora May, 20; F. J. Kelly, G. H. Vetter and Stanley Kotoski.

Persons on shore saw the five bathers swept suddenly from their feet as if seized by an undertow, and carried to a spot where the water is fifteen feet deep. Rescuers started to their aid, but the five did not reappear.

The police, after several hours' search with grappling hooks, could not find the bodies.

Two Killed, Five Hurt.

Valparaiso, Ind., July 19.—Two men were killed and five others seriously injured in a collision between a railway motor car and a switch engine near Boone Grove yesterday.

FIND MISSING MAN'S CLOTHING BESIDE RIVER

Aitkin, Minn., July 19.—Some of the clothing of John Kellerman, age 61, living at Cedar Brook, near here, who disappeared last week, as announced in The Herald, was found beside the Mississippi river bank, giving rise to the theory he had drowned himself in the stream. Dynamite is being used in an effort to bring the body to the surface. Kellerman has a wife and three children.

Louisville Woman Praises Remedy Being Sold at Abbett's.

Declares She Feels Like a New Person Since Taking It.

Louisville, Ky., July 17.—Mrs. Emma Henle, who for twelve years has lived at 1549 Kentucky street here, said today that she was happy now she had tried Tanlac, the premier preparation.

"I feel like a different woman," Mrs. Henle declared. "For years I suffered with kidney trouble. I had rheumatism, too, and suffered agonies from that. Sometimes the pain was almost unendurable. I had no appetite, and could not sleep. I lost flesh and strength. My friends became alarmed over my condition.

"I decided recently to try Tanlac, but with many misgivings, because I had tried other remedies with no benefit from them. To my surprise and joy I noticed improvement after I had taken only a few doses. My appetite picked up and I slept soundly. When I woke I felt refreshed. I began to gain flesh and strength. The pain disappeared almost as if by magic.

"I am so happy that I am glad to tell the public about the help Tanlac has brought me. It is a wonderful medicine, and I am glad to recommend it."

Tanlac is on sale in Duluth at the drug store of William A. Abbett, "the careful druggist," 219 West Superior street. Claude J. Meredith, "the Tanlac man," or an assistant, is present to explain its merits. —Advertisement.

LEAD UPWARD TO HEAVEN

Dr. Hovis Tells of Benefits Gained in "Mountain Climbing."

Efforts in Gaining Top Offset By Inspiration on the Height.

"A High Mountain" was the subject of the sermon preached yesterday morning by Dr. William Forney Hovis, pastor of the Endion M. E. church. His discourse in part follows:

"A mountain suggests divinity. In the presence of the pyramids of Egypt, the coliseum at Rome, or, the hanging gardens of Babylon, one stands utterly overwhelmed with the magnitude of their proportions and the wonder of the toil which brought them forth, but in his thought he turns to man. When one gazes upon a mountain, bald, scarred, majestic, towering, snow-capped, and wreathed in purple mist, he muses in speechless worship while his soul reflects upon the handiwork of God. There is something so strong, so sublime, so surpassingly stupendous about a mountain! The psalmist in an attempt to characterize Jehovah calls him a King above all gods, in whose hand are the deep places of the earth and then adds, 'The strength of the mountains is His also.'

Many Mountains to Climb.

"Human experience meets many mountains of exceeding height. They are steep and difficult to climb. At their base lie undulating meadows, and sunny, verdant slopes, easily traversed by the slow of heart; but, beyond the threshold are wrinkled glaciers, beetling rocks, narrow ledges, and perpendicular walls, where only the keen-eyed, level-headed, iron-willed have strength and courage to follow the guide. Their granite crags reach dizzy altitudes, but life on the sunlit summit repays the rigor of the climb. From this vantage ground of glory, truth is seen in right perspective, and the soul stands on the highlands face to face with God.

"The world's best servants are mountaineers. There are people who do not know a mountain when they see it. They look upon it only as a huge pile, a gigantic obstruction, an insurmountable impediment. The most stupid creatures in the world are sometimes found in Alpine vales; they do not see in the stony steeps a royal chance for climbing; they live content in the shady dell and do not emerge from the hedge-row; but, the heralds of dawn must scale the cliffs and shout from the top of the mountain. To the soul with a vision, the ascent of a mountain means elevation, communion, universality. The call to service is a call to climb a mountain.

"God is under the necessity of meeting many of His children on the lowlands, but when He wishes to give man some mighty revelation He calls him up on a mountain. There is no sublimer picture than that of Moses mounting Sinai. Why does he go so high? He is to have an audience with Deity. What moral suggestiveness in the fact that the Master took the three disciples up into a mountain and was transfigured before them! It is ever thus. The angels on Jacob's ladder first went up to heaven's gate and then came down to serve. The world owes its progress to the visions of its seers. Law, invention, discovery, truth, have been brought from the mountain-top. Newton, Copernicus, Linnaeus, Euclid, Shakespeare, Milton, Wordsworth, Hugo, Isaiah, Paul, Savanarola and Luther walked the earth like kings because they had been on the highlands.

"The horizon of the valleys and the foothills is of necessity circumscribed.

Work Worth While.

"It is worth while to climb a mountain to gain the prospect from the top. Satan is represented as taking the Son of Man into a high mountain from whence he could see the kingdoms of the world. How attractive the scene! How tempting the vistas! The archfiend knew the advantage of elevation and displayed earth's glory from the mountain-top. From the crest of Nebo, while Jehovah pulled back the curtains of futurity, Moses looked out over Jordan upon the goodly land into which he was not to enter, and, having viewed the heritage of the chosen flock, he fell asleep on the mountain side.

"High places should bring exalted thoughts. One ought to lose his lower nature in climbing toward the skies. He who goes up into the mountain of achievement should come down baptised with power, refreshed as with morning dew, his very face shining and his whole mien sanctified. Mountains are ladders by which men may climb into the glory of the omnipresent God. A mountain is really nothing in itself; like man it is only useful to reveal the purpose of its Maker. We may talk of 'the everlasting hills' and revel in their superabundant treasures, but hills wear out and all their wealth becomes exhausted. A mountain is meant to lead to something higher than itself.

"Mere mountain climbing for its own sake is both perilous and profitless. No one has any right to waste his time in hazardous exploiting. Real mountain climbing is sacrificial; it seeks to find a path of safety to the mountain.

"Life's jagged steeps have all been scaled. At the base of every frowning height stands the symbol of the Savior which points the path to the mountain's crown. Whether we climb the Mount of Beatitudes or Olivet, of Transfiguration or of Calvary, we may follow the footprints of the faithful guide. He has been all over the mountainside clear to the mountain-top. He has mapped the world for the human heart and marked the points of danger. He has made the way so exceeding plain that no one ought to lose it. He who is fearful of losing his way should use the 'chart and compass.' Man is not under the necessity of being an explorer; all that he is required to do is to follow beaten paths.

Climbing Not Easy.

"But mountain climbing is never easy. The task is worthy of one's truest steel.

"God's challenge to His children is to climb mountains; impediments are blessings in disguise. The man who said 'There shall be no Alps,' did not think that God would pluck the mountains out of root and hurl them from his path; he meant that he himself would scale their heights and put their boulders underneath his feet. The call to courage is not only 'upward' but 'onward and upward.' The task may have to be accomplished through sweat and toil, and dust and heat, and weary, foot-sore marches. God does not promise to His faithful child a pathway free from fire and flood; His assurance is 'When thou passest through the water I will be with thee,' and 'when thou walkest through the fire, thou shalt not be burned.' He does not promise that man's course, if he trust in Him, will never be impeded by a mountain; He intimates that the bigger the mountain the better the chance for a record in high climbing. Mountains are steps in the stairway that leads from earth to Heaven. Thank God for mountains!"

BE NEUTRAL; STAY AT HOME

Americans Warned Against Windy Orators and Gadabouts By Dr. Lawrence.

The country should pay no attention to the political gadabout and the windy orator and Americans should stay at home and preserve a neutrality of obedience to the law of righteousness that is determined by men brought together by a great principle and the highest international law, declared Rev. W. W. Lawrence, pastor of the Glen Avon Presbyterian church, yesterday morning. He said in part:

"In this hour in America we need an ideal rather than a policy. The headlands are dropping out of sight but the stars are out. The chart is our guide, not wind nor windy orators. We want no peddling policy. The hour is striking to be patient with the working of old principles. Mistakes hold over from one administration to another. Permit a law to have time to show its rightful results even working under the shadow of an evil condition.

Gadabout Is Abroad.

"The political gadabout is abroad in the land. He is the politician that bids for your support with no settled conviction about government. He is a vote-getter who sweeps the country with a new party catchword. He and his kind assemble in party convention and fit together a platform that will serve only while the party rides into power.

"His ear is to the ground, not for the understanding of the heart of the nation but to mark the approach of that which may prove popular. The Oriental politician has flitted with Assyria while that great nation promised power and protection. His face is now toward Egypt since the great Nubian is sweeping up the valley of the Nile and assures of the greatness of a new world power. The rights, the resources, the constitution of Israel are not considered and the God of Nations is forgotten. The prophet is saying you will find your safety in great ideals, fundamental principles and the law of righteousness.

"The Oriental gababout is in the same genus with the modern—unstable, gossipy, seeking new interests, shifting the ground to avoid any trouble or miss self enrichment. There is no great controlling objective, no character-making concentration, no depth of soul but a restless seeking of ways of selfish comfort, and an easy approach to the center of interest or throne of power.

Bible Imperishable.

"The Bible is an imperishable monument of the efforts of Jehovah to enlighten the world unto truth. Jesus in His parables establishes His point of contact. The prophet shouted to Israel, 'Why gad about for your alliances to start into thoughtfulness?'

"The religious gadabout also is in the land. He is seeking some short course to character other than the old-time, sealed way of sacrifice, conviction, love and service. They turn religion into a system for advancing in the honors of the present life. Your gadabout has either a religion that makes things easy or one that makes things pay."

ORDINARY PERSON HAS IMPORTANT PART

Rev. A. W. Ryan, rector of St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal church, in his sermon yesterday morning, declared that the every-day person, although he ordinarily pursues an obscure life that does not bring him before the public, has an important part to play in the world, for he may sometime be called upon to play a part that will place him high in the estimation of fellow men.

Through others, ordinary persons are often the means of accomplishing very important things, Rev. Mr. Ryan declared. The high ideals of a mother in bringing forth a daughter or son with a capacity to do something may bring renown, said Dr. Ryan.

CHURCH AND STATE NOT IN CONFLICT

Denying that the Catholic church has any conflict with the state, Rev. Father Hugh Floyd, in a sermon at Lakeside Catholic church last night stated that the relations of the church and state were very clear, each having its own function to perform.

Rev. Father Floyd declared, that the great majority of the Catholics did not believe that the pope was supreme in temporal as well as spiritual things, and pointed to the performances of Catholics in wars of all nations as a refutation of the assertion that the Catholics were unpatriotic and not loyal to their countries.

Although he lauded the public school system of the United States, Rev. Father Floyd asserted that the Catholics believe that their children should be taught a knowledge of God and the church as well as the regular school subjects—hence the parochial schools.

SCORES DEFENSE PLANS.

Pastor White Discusses Present Conditions in Light of Prophecies.

"Peace Cries Silenced By War Bombs," was the topic last night at the Bible Chautauqua tent on West Second street near the Y. M. C. A., where Pastor Stemple White spoke to a large audience. He illustrated the remarkable world-power prophecy of Daniel, and with a big sectional metallic image of a man whose head was of gold, breast of silver, thighs of brass, legs of iron, with feet and toes part of iron and part of clay.

"In this wonderful dream, which God gave Nebuchadnezzar, and interpreted through the prophet Daniel," said Mr. White, "the historic place of Babylon, Medo-Persia, Grecia, Rome and the present European toe nations were most fittingly foretold.

"Not only is every nation striving to put themselves in a better state of military preparedness, but the United States is leading in the program. The largest gun in the world is soon to guard the Panama canal. Senator Tillman pleaded in the senate that we build the biggest, fastest war vessel, maximum throughout, name it the Terror, and thus become the peacemaker of the world.

"The Herald cartoonist has just produced two remarkable cartoons showing keen thought as to exactness of world conditions as to peace and war. In one, Mrs. Europe's peace seeds produced a heavy crop of bayonet thistles, while in the other it was hoped that Edison could invent such a machine, that in the hands of Uncle Sam, wars could be stopped as readily as they are started.

"The word of God cannot be broken. War will not ultimately cease, until the war dogs are smitten at Armageddon at the second coming of Christ, who will then establish His eternal kingdom of peace in the world to come."

WEST END

JUDGMENT DAY NOT SPECTACULAR

Will Be Summing Up Time of Never Ending Judgment.

"The Judgment of a Noble Life" was the subject of a sermon last night given by Rev. C. W. R. Wermine, pastor of the First Swedish M. E. church, Twentieth avenue west and Third street. Said he:

"Judgment day, as foretold by the Bible, will not be memerly a spectacular scene that will suddenly and without warning astonish men, as many people think, but it will be rather a summing up of the judgment God is passing on men all the time.

"The whole life of Christ was a judgment. His words, His looks, and His character were everyday judgments on the men and women of His age. He spoke not many words of condemnation, but the ordinary words He spoke, though not aimed at any particular person, stirred up the sense of self-reproach in men.

"Christ's look condemned very often," said Mr. Wermine. "Looks are many times the means of causing greater pain than the cruellest words. Deeds, words, and actions are not always necessary to make men feel reproachful. A look from Christ often made men feel the guilt of betralay in the deepest depths of their hearts.

"But Christ judged also by what He was. His character was a strong judgment on the men and women of His day. No other character like that of Christ has ever been known. It was perfect and complete. Christ judged men unerringly and unceasingly. Men often judge Christ and often wrongly. His judgments are always right. Legal judges sometimes cast off their legal robes and become private citizens, but Christ's robe of judgment is His character, inseparable from Himself.

"In these days, when men are trying to judge Christ, sometimes sincerely and often not, it is of great importance that we turn to ourselves remembering that Christ is always judging us. The last judgment will be merely a summing up of the judgment He is doing all the time."

DECLARES AMERICA DOUBLY BLESSED

Peace and Abundant Crops Should Be Causes for Thanksgiving.

In speaking on the text, "Like As a Father Pitieth His Children," Rev. Swaney Nelson, pastor of the First Swedish Baptist church, Twentieth avenue west and Third street, last evening said that the people of the United States have now more cause for rejoicing in the kindness of God than ever before in the history of this country. The fact that this country has not become embroiled in the European war and that it has a promise of abundant crops were given as evidence of the Creator's kindness. He said:

"God has been kind to us in America. How many luxuries we enjoy today which only within the reach of the wealthy in days gone by. Our tables are provided with food that should make us bow our heads in grateful thanksgiving. The wheat crops of the country promise to be larger than ever before. Man cannot boast of his power to produce this bounty. God gives us the sunshine and rain that makes the earth fruitful.

"There is a national tone in the words of the text. God has remembered our nation in love and tenderness. Our president and his cabinet are now wrestling with mighty questions regarding our relations with European powers. God is leading and giving wisdom in this crisis of our nation and is showing us a national pity.

"The fatherhood of God appears in its highest power in the salvation of the soul of His erring child. He forgives all transgressions and puts them as far away as is the east from the west. The man who anchors to God will be given power to triumph over sin and the devil and win the immortal and unfading crown of life."

CONDITIONS BAD AT PUEBLA, MEX.

Much Looting and Destruction of Property in That Vicinity.

Puebla, Mex., July 10, via Key West, Fla, July 19.—(Delayed in transmission.)—Conditions in the region between Vera Cruz and Puebla (sixty-three miles southeast of the city of Mexico), are greatly unsettled. There has been much looting and destruction of property. On the Interoceanic railroad all stations have been destroyed between Vera Cruz and Jalapa, sixty miles inland. In one instance, the station agent and telegraph operator were killed.

On the British owned broad gauge railroad the Zapata forces are becoming bolder. There has been shooting in the outskirts of Orizaba and Cordova. Trains are delayed and frequently passengers, including Americans, are compelled to lie on the floors of cars while bandits shoot through the windows.

In response to the protest of John R. Silliman, President Wilson's special agent in Mexico, against continued destruction of foreign owned property, Gen. Carranza stationed a guard at the large American owner sugar plantation at Protero. Zapata troops went to the plantation and hanged the Carranza men to a tree.

News Intermittent.

Although Mexico City has been cut off from direct communication with Puebla for three weeks, couriers with newspaper dispatches have been arriving here intermittently. Some times the messages are seized by soldiers and destroyed, as both sides seem unwilling that news of conditions in Mexico City become public.

Every city along the railroad has been isolated from the territory back from the line. The interruption of the receipts of food supplies, together with the added burden of supporting the invading troops, has caused increased suffering among civilians.

Reports from the state of Oaxaca, which early in June declared its independence of the rest of Mexico until general peace is restored, say the people there are enjoying comparative prosperity. The state has coined its own money and notice has been served that the people will resist invasion by any faction.

Two Killed By Lightning.

TO TOURISTS AND PICNIC PARTIES

This is the season for tourists and picnic parties. The most convenient and inexpensive way for a tourist to see Duluth, or for a picnic party to reach pleasant and suitable grounds, is by a street car.

The following guide, showing the principal parks in Duluth and Superior and some of the points of interest reached by street cars, is offered for the convenience of Duluthians and their summer visitors:

FAIRMONT PARK—Take West Third street car line. Ideal picnic grounds, beautiful park scenery, and new municipal bathing beach.

LINCOLN PARK—Take West Third street car line. Beautiful and convenient park and popular for picnic suppers.

BOULEVARD—Take incline car from Seventh avenue west, running every fifteen minutes. Unique ride on cable car, and one of the grandest and most picturesque views in the Northwest from the summit of the hill are the attractions. The tourist can seen a panorama of the entire city for 10 cents. This should be the first trip made by a tourist when he reaches Duluth, for it gives him a comprehensive picture of the entire city and harbor and enables him to "get his bearings" at once.

CHESTER PARK—Take East Fourth street car line to this attractive natural park. It is the picnic resort of the East end.

LESTER PARK—Take Lester Park car to this popular resort. Tourists will find much of interest there, and it has many conveniences for picnic parties.

BILLINGS PARK — Take Duluth-Superior car from Duluth and transfer to Billings Park line to reach Superior's beautiful riverside park, with its pretty picnic grounds, bathing beach and boating facilities.

There is also a "Seeing Duluth" car that leaves the center of the city at 2 o'clock every afternoon.

Picnic parties are reminded that returning from picnics between 5 and 7 o'clock they get the best car service of the day. The cars are returning empty or nearly so after handling the evening rush.

Take One From Virginia and One From Fort William.

Hewitt and Hallman Hurl Fine Ball on Sunday.

Fort William lost to Duluth yesterday by a score of 4 to 2, in a contest which was cut to seven innings by the introduction of rain. The game, while it lasted, was a good one, and Hallman, in the box for Duluth, and Hewitt for the visitors, hurled excellent ball. Hewitt was hit for only three hits but they secured eight bases for the home team; and he struck out seven men, Hallman whiffing six.

Williams and Schroeder were the men who made the long hits during the contest. Williams slammed out a three-bagger, and when McGraw dropped Wolfe's fly the chief scored. His three-bagger brought in Schroeder, who had been walked. This was in the second inning. Then in the sixth Schroeder knocked the only home run of the day. The ball went over the center field fence with loads of space to spare.

The game was good on both sides in all departments. The score follows:

Duluth and Virginia split the honors on Saturday. In the first game Duluth had it rather easy and rubbed the fact in by a score of 10 to 6; but in the second game Virginia had its revenge with a still worse score, it being 11 to 4. Wolfe, the Duluth shortstop, was the hitting star of the two games, and Sweeley did some great throwing in the second game, getting seven runners at second.

Jackson, who started in the box for Duluth in the second game, threw it away, and after Virginia had garnered six runs, Duluth switched pitchers, but the first inning settled it. The score:

Senators Grab Double-Header.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 19.—Washington took two more games from Cleveland yesterday. Cleveland had each won until the ninth inning. In the first game, Morton had the visitors blanked until the ninth, when Walter Johnson, acting as pinch hitter, drove in the tying run. Washington then won 4 to 2 in the thirteenth in a combination of errors and hits. Cleveland playing errorless ball until that round. Ayres, who finished the game for Washington, was invincible.

Cleveland led 3 to 1 in the second until the ninth when, with two out and two men on, Moeller's infield single filled the bases. Foster's single sent in the tying runs, while Wamsby's error sent the winning run across. Walter Johnson, who had acted as pinch hitter at the start of the inning, had to be recalled from the clubhouse to pitch the last half of the round. The scores:

Red Sox Now Leaders.

Chicago, July 19.—Erratic playing behind Faber cost Chicago first place yesterday when Boston was handed a 6 to 2 victory. Chicago made five errors of commission and one error of judgment, and all these plays resulted in runs for the victors. In the opening inning, after two men were out and two were on bases, J. Collins misjudged Lewis' fly and it went for a double, giving Boston two runs. Thereafter four of the visitors reached first on fumbles, three of whom scored, while another boot allowed a Bostonian to reach third, and score on a sacrifice. Wood pitched a great game after the first inning, when Chicago saved themselves a shutout with a double, a base on balls and two singles, giving them two runs. Only one other hit was made off Wood. His support was perfect, Barry, Lewis and Janvrin cutting off several hits. Score: R. H. E.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 19.—Two more shutouts were administered to Columbus by Minneapolis yesterday, 2 to 0 and 1 to 0, making three successive whitewashes. Sullivan's double drove in both Minneapolis runs in the first game, while Benson's wild throw, Holland's sacrifice and Massey's single enabled Hopper to score the only run of the second game. Hopper pitched his first game for the home team, and was master of the situation at all stages, only three men reaching second base. Sensational fielding, particularly by Holland, marked both games, which were played in remarkably fast time on a slow field and cloudy day. Scores:

Kansas City, Mo., July 19.—Falkenburg started both games for Newark yesterday and was knocked out in each instance, the locals winning 10 to 4 and 4 to 2. Cullop and Johnson, who pitched for Kansas City, were never in danger and their hitting was timely. Shaw's home run over the right field fence in the first inning of the first game, was said to be the longest hit ever made on the local field. Score:

Chicago, July 19.—Mordecai Brown attempted yesterday a play with which, successfully executed, he broke a Detroit rally in the final game of the world's series of 1907. With two Buffalo men on base in the eighth and none out, he had Fritz holding third base, while he himself fielded Engle's drive, attempting to force a runner out at third. This time, however, he threw the ball to left field and Buffalo counted two runs on the error, beating Chicago 6 to 4. The game was a free hitting contest. Score: R. H. E.

FIRST SAILING RACE COMPLETED ON BAY

The arrival of a northeaster late yesterday afternoon made it possible to complete a series of races at the boat club.

In B division, I. L. Y. A., the Joyetta, sailed by Bramstad, was caught by the wind and finished strong. The "Allegro," with Brewer sailing, was the only other boat to finish. Trux in the "Dixie," dropping out just before the wind came up.

McRae in the "Feather" won first place in A division of the 28-foot class and Jamar's "Sea Gull," crossed the line second. In the B division of this class Curry in the "Agwindie," brought his boat across the finish line first, and the "Merry Widow," sailed by Haroldson, came in second. The "Yaqui," sailed by Thompson and Waldron's "Banshee," started this race but dropped out before the finish.

There will be no sailings next Saturday at the club. On July 31, boats manned by women will race.

DULUTH TENNIS STAR IN BRILLIANT FORM

LAUREN KENNEDY.

FAST TENNIS AT BOAT CLUB

Three Sets Needed to Decide Washburn-Kennedy Match.

Close and well played matches characterized play in the tennis tourneys at Oatka Saturday and the best play of the season was brought out before an enthusiastic gallery.

Miss Amelia Andrews playing a beautiful back court game defeated Miss Mildred Washburn in the semi-finals of the women's singles. Miss Washburn displayed at times brilliant net work, but was forced to defeat by her more steady opponent 6-3, 6-1.

The most exciting match of the day was the Mac Washburn-Walter Kennedy match in the eights of the men's singles resulting in a win for Kennedy after three excellent sets, 6-8, 6-3, 7-5. The last set brought out some of the best tennis played in the city and as Washburn with a five-to-two score, against him began to come up from behind and finally evened the score at five all, the excitement became intense. The latter, however, after his thrilling spurt was unable to keep the pace and Kennedy again started his smashing game at the net and quickly annexed the remaining two games and the match.

Another good match advanced Gordon Hegardt by his win over Chinnick to the eights. Oscar Kincaid played a steady game against Ballou and won what was conceded to be a very even race in three sets. Ballou appeared a trifle off his game but Kincaid was quick to take advantage of his opponent's unsteadiness and won a well earned victory.

Charles Fraker advanced over Hunter Towne to the eights and will meet Lauren Kennedy this afternoon for a place in the semi-finals. Other matched schedules for this afternoon's play are: W. Fraker vs. Ingalls, Hegardt vs. Kincaid, Toben and Rosencrantz vs. Hegardt and W. Kennedy. Horak and Hewitt vs. Fee & Ballou. In the mixed doubles Miss Marshall and C. Heimbach advanced by default from Mr. and Mrs. Macgregor to the eights and will meet Miss Ritchie and F. Falk this afternoon.

FINAL WEEK FOR SHAPING OARSMEN FOR BIG REGATTA

Ten Eyck Has Much Work to Do Between Now and Big Races With His Juniors and Bantams; Senior Eight and Four Are Right and Look Unbeatable to Duluthians.

By BRUCE.

This is the final week for putting the finishing touches on the Duluth crews. Regarding the seniors Ten Eyck is not worried in the least. The juniors and bantams are another proposition. The few days that intervene before the staging of the big regatta on the St. Louis bay course will have to work a lot of improvement in the junior eight, junior four and bantam four candidates.

Members of the senior eight struck a great stride a month ago and have been showing increased speed every day. The senior four looks unbeatable. These two crews will be depended upon to win two of the big events of the program.

During the last week the bantams showed considerable improvement. Ten Eyck hopes that both of his bantam fours will be as fast as the bantam crew that won at Kenora last year.

In the case of the junior four, it begins to look as if this entry might be the weak spot of the club. There has not been very much opportunity to work a junior four, owing to the lateness in getting things started. The failure of the new boats to arrive and also the lateness of the coaching launch, added to the fact that there has been considerable experimenting in the junior material, may work a handicap in regards to the four.

Hoover Picked to Win.

Walter Hoover is expected to make a great showing for the Duluth club in the senior single event. An effort was made to get "Snapper" Culver down here to row against the lad who defeated the former association senior scull champion at Kenora last year, but Culver appears to be out of the game this season.

In addition to the entrants that will start for Peoria and Grand Rapids, Art Osman of the Duluth club will row against Hoover. As Osman and Hoover have never met and there is considerable rivalry between the pair, it looks as if the two Duluth boys will have a race all by themselves in the senior single contest.

St. Paul Is Optimistic.

The coming of Jim Wray, famous Harvard rowing coach to St. Paul, has worked a miraculous change in the situation there. From the soggy depths of pessimism the hopes of the Minnesota Boat club men have risen to the dizzy heights of optimism.

Wray has come out with the statement that the St. Paul eight is as fast as the Harvard eight. This is some sweeping assertion, and coming from a coach with the ability and reputation of the veteran Australian sculler, has made some of the followers of the game in this section of the state sit up and begin to look around a bit.

Interest in the big regatta is growing. The very fact that five senior eights will start, with the prospect that another eight will be added to the list, and the fact that three outside senior fours at least will attempt to defeat the crack senior four of the club, has started rowing fans talking.

Duluth, it appears, will turn out to the regatta in larger numbers than ever before, while reservations at the hotels indicate that hundreds of persons are coming from outside the city to witness what looks like the larg-

WITH THE AMATEURS AND THE SEMI-PROFESSIONALS

It took ten innings to decide the scheduled seven-inning game between the South Superior Box Makers and the Duluth Zenith Furnace team at Hislop park yesterday, a long drive by Patterson in that inning deciding the contest. The score was 3 to 2, the game proving one of the prettiest amateur exhibitions that have been held here this year. Clark of the Zenith furnace team struck out 14 men while his opposing mound man fanned 9. The furnace men got six hits and made five errors, while the Superior artists obtained only five wallops and made seven misplays. On dope the Duluth aggregation should have won, but it was the timely hitting of the box makers that snatched the game for them. The score:

	R.	H.	E.
Zeniths	0 1 0 0 1 0 0 0 0—2	6	5
Box Makers	1 2 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—3	5	7

Batteries—For Superior, Shook and Ennis; for Duluth, Clark and Nelson.

Snow, erstwhile twirler for the Superior Northern league team, was with the Chisholm nine yesterday, and aided by some generous wallops on the part of his teammates and irregular pitching on the part of the opposing moundman, he defeated the newly organized Superior independent baseball club at Hislop park, Superior, to the tune of 9 to 3. The game was called at the conclusion of the fifth inning, J. Pluvius finally interfering so badly that a continuation of the contest was impossible. Several league players took part in the contest, most of them showing to advantage.

Two hits and a walk netted Superior two runs in the first inning, while an error in the fifth allowed the other count. Horrigan's irregular pitching allowed nine runs to slide over the pan in the first two innings. He was relieved by Olson, who retired the range men without a score in the next three innings. The score: R. H. E.

GREAT FIGHTS FOR PENNANTS

Chicago Teams Drop to Second Place; Numerous Contenders.

Windy City Team Tops Outlaws; St. Paul's Remarkable Streak.

New York, July 19.—Two notable battles for first place are in progress in the two major leagues, in each of which a Chicago team figures. As it chances, the rivals for the lead are in both cases just now matched against each other, and every game won or lost figures appreciably in their relative positions.

As the week closed, the advantage lay with Philadelphia in the National league, which led its Chicago rival by three points, while in the American league the White Sox retained the top position they have so long held. They lost it to Boston yesterday, however, in the game between the White and Red Sox, and the former champions lead.

The struggle in the senior organization is, as a whole, the more interesting, as four more of the clubs are within striking distance of the top. Boston, in next to last place, is less than 100 points behind the Phillies; Brooklyn is but 12 percentage units to the rear of the Cubs, while St. Louis, Pittsburgh and New York are closely bunched a short distance away from the first place. It is anybody's race yet, even Cincinnati not being a hopeless last.

The Philadelphias did not make very good work of it during the week, getting only an even break. Despite that, they were able to take the lead away from Chicago, because the latter had difficulty in taking three out of seven games they played. Even the Peerless Alexander failed the Phillies in the closing game of the week, Roger Bresnahan's men getting four runs off his pitching, while the Quaker twirler's teammates were unable to get any off Cheney.

The defeat broke Alexander's string of victories, which had extended to nine.

Chicago's chief reverses came at the Polo grounds, where they lost three out of five to the Giants, after dropping a whole series to Brooklyn. Their victory on Wednesday was the first of their eastern trip.

Superbas Pounding Away.

The Brooklyn kept up their good work and won all but two games in seven. Cincinnati captured one of these and Pittsburgh the other. The Superbas' pitching staff is again apparently in prime shape, Jack Coombs, who was stricken while in the box recently, having come back with a fine exhibition of work. Their pennant aspirations are still high.

St. Louis lost more ground than any of the clubs but the Reds, and ended the week in a tie with the Pirates, who though only breaking even, have shown improved form. The Giants likewise did better than in any week for a long time and their supporters have again begun to look for a streak of consistent play that will put them in the race.

In Boston the Braves at last seem to have awakened. Johnny Evers' "peppery" personality may have gotten him into trouble with the umpires and the league authorities for a time, but his presence in the game or some other influence has enabled the world's champions to make a much better showing recently. George Stallings is jockeying his pitchers and utility men daily in a determined effort to win. To date his team has won five straight games.

In the Junior League.

The initial clash between Chicago and Boston for the leadership in the American league, resulted in a draw, the White Sox retaining their grip on the lead through the winning form displayed by Russell in the second game of Saturday's doubleheader. The two clubs kept neck and neck throughout the week, each winning and losing the same number of games. Their fight is a pretty one, but Detroit is close behind and menacing both. The remainder of the American league clubs are cutting little figure in the race.

The Federal league race was marked during the week, by the rise of Chicago to first position, St. Louis, which had led for some time, dropping to third place. The relative positions of the other clubs were unchanged. The race among the five clubs remains close.

Saints Continue to Win.

St. Paul's winning streak, which now includes fifteen straight games, and the corresponding losing streak of Indianapolis tightened up the race in the American association so that admirers of Manager Kelly's team see a chance for a pennant. Early in the season, critics were disposed to prophesy a second division place for the Saints, but last week, they attained the leadership with their fourth straight win over the Hoosiers.

DULUTH AGAIN WINS AT GOLF

Northland Club Players Take Second Game From Portage Lake.

Over the Northland club links Saturday afternoon the local players repeated their victory of Friday, winning from the Portage Lake team of Houghton by the score of 8 to 4. The game was for the Thomas F. Cole trophy.

The visiting players expressed much satisfaction with the condition of the course. The Northland greens were never in better shape, and Richard Clarkson, the club professional, who has been in charge of them, was given many compliments during the day.

Elmer N. Whyte again distinguished himself by beating his opponent, 3 to 0 and making the low score of the day, 79 for the eighteen holes. T. F. Cole also won from his opponent, 3 to 0, and thus helped to keep for the Northland club the trophy which he donated.

COLLINS IS IN DULUTH

Well Known Hudson Boxing Promoter Is Here on Business.

Mike Collins, well known to boxing fans of the country as principal owner and manager of the Hudson Boxing club, and now the manager of Fred Fulton, is in Duluth today.

Collins is not decided as yet whether he will continue the promotion of glove contests in his big Hudson arena. It depends somewhat on how the game goes in the Twin Cities.

In addition to being the heaviest stockholder in the Hudson club, the genial Mike is also matchmaker of the Eau Claire Boxing club, and then has the affairs of Fred Fulton, the big Rochester, Minn., heavyweight on his hands.

It was Collins who promoted the biggest glove contest in the Northwest last season, pulling the Gibbons-McGeorty match at Hudson. Mike is here on business.

RAIN SPOILS AUTO RACES

Downpour Causes Postponement of Speed Contests at Hibbing.

A drizzling rain that started shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, prevented the holding of the big range auto races on the fair grounds track at Hibbing.

With such wonderful drivers as Louis Disbrow, "Wild Bill" Endicott, Eddie Hearne, Johnny Rainey, Zip Kaiser, Tommy Milton and George Clark on the track, and ready to drive, the big crowd that has assembled was grievously disappointed that the steady drizzle made the track so treacherous that racing was next to impossible.

It is estimated that there were 400 automobiles on the grounds when it was decided that it would be impossible to hold the races. Automobile parties made the trip to Hibbing from Duluth, Grand Rapids, Virginia, Biwabik, Eveleth, Ely, Chisholm, and from as far north as International Falls and Fort Frances.

Secretary Lawler of the Hibbing Commercial club believes that had the day been a perfect one over 6,000 persons would have been present.

If possible the contests will be run off today. Rain checks were issued and every one given their admittance money back. There were something like 3,000 persons in the grand stand and on the grounds when Starter Huff Darward, after examining the track, and sending several of the speed demons around on experiment trials, declared that it would be utterly impossible to race.

GERMAN DERBY IS BIG SUCCESS

Most Entries Since 1902 Despite War—Track Very Heavy.

Hamburg, July 18, via London, July 19, 11:20 a. m.—The "Deutsches Derby," the biggest sporting event of the year in Germany, was won today by Haniel's Pontresina with Jockey Pluerchke up. The prize for the winner was 125,000 marks ($31,250).

The race was run on a muddy track which put the favorites out of commission at the start. Archibald, an American jockey, riding Roi Soleil, finished a bad eleventh, although heavily backed to win.

In spite of the war and its handicaps the derby had more starters—twenty—than in any year since 1902. All previous speculation about the outcome was thrown into the discard when the day opened with a heavy rain which continued almost until the horses were sent to the post. The victory for Haniel's stable was enhanced by the capture of second place by his Languard, ridden by Jockey Janek. Both Pontresina and Languard got away to a poor start but easily overtook the field and won in the mud without difficulty.

WESTERN TITLE PLAY OPENS IN CLEVELAND

Cleveland, Ohio, July 19.—Light rains during the night did little but frighten the golfers who have been hoping the Mayfield golf course would be sufficiently dried out for the start of the Western amateur golf tournament this morning. The course is in fairly good shape despite heavy rains the latter part of last week.

With practically every noted star of the West already here, the tournament promises to be unusually interesting. "Chick" Evans and Eben Byers were due to arrive late this morning, being scheduled to play at 1:30 this afternoon.

Few withdrawals were expected during the day. The start on the eliminating round was made at 8:30 o'clock. Sixty-four best scores will continue in play tomorrow and thirty-two will qualify for the championship.

COMPANY E AFTER STATE RIFLE TROPHY

Duluth Men Leave for Camp Lake View for Shoot.

The crack rifle team of Company E, which won in the meet of the Third regiment held at the state encampment at Lake City in June, left Duluth yesterday for Camp Lake View to compete with the best marksmen of the First and Second regiments today for the championship of the state. The local team is in fine condition and should make an excellent showing, according to Capt. George W. Stiles.

"If the boys shoot in the same form they have been showing on the home range they will give a good account of themselves," he said. "They have worked hard to perfect themselves for this competition, but they will be pitted against the best in the state. I expect to at least make the other fellows shoot their best to win."

Company E won over eleven other companies of the Third regiment in the recent encampment of the M. N. G. The three regimental shoots were held simultaneously at the encampment, and the winning companies will be pitted against each other for the National Guard championship of the state.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

OLD TIMERS ARE EXPECTED

Pioneers of North Dakota to Be Honored at State Fair.

Everything About in Readiness for Opening Gates on Tuesday.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The bustle and activity of preparation at the state fair grounds here will continue right up to the opening of the gates tomorrow for five days of what promises to be the best state fair held here.

Late this afternoon, it is claimed, about everything will be in readiness for the opening Tuesday. Tomorrow will be old settlers' day, the pioneers of the state and territory having a meeting on the fair grounds.

Fine Stock Exhibit.

The splendid exhibits of stock will be a striking feature of the fair. A dozen barns on the grounds will be filled to capacity. Provision has been made for great shelter tents for such of the animals as cannot be taken care of in the regular barns. Most of the exhibits already are placed, but a few more shipments are expected tonight.

Judging in the cattle department will commence tomorrow afternoon, and will be completed by Friday noon. The big stock parade will be given on Friday evening, after all the animals have been judged.

Railroads operating into Grand Forks have made a special rate for the fair, the charge being 2 cents a mile, which, no doubt, will result in materially increasing the patronage.

Boys' Encampment.

A boys' encampment will be held during the entire five days of the fair, under the direction of F. R. Crane, and about 100 to 125 boys will participate. The lads will sleep in their tents, have a course of agricultural instruction, and be guests of honor of the fair management.

The automobile industry will take advantage of the fair as a means of putting new models to the front, many companies having chartered exhibition space.

Machinery firms have agreed among themselves to refrain from the use of fairs for advertising purposes, and small machinery shows have been staged since such agreement was entered into, but several companies will show, but not on as elaborate a scale as in other years.

The Grand Forks Commercial club has associated itself with the fair management in the handling of the crowds that will attend the fair, providing accommodations for all.

THIEF RIVER FALLS MEN NICELY STUNG

Public Wedding Pulled Off on Market Day With Male "Bride."

Thief River Falls, Minn., July 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Secretary Fred Lincoln of the local Commercial club and the committee in charge of the successful market day given here Saturday are being "joshed" by all their friends today over a little affair "put over" on them as a star feature of the big trade day.

When the committee was making the arrangements for market day Mr. Lincoln suggested that a public wedding would be a feature, and the committee subsequently asserted the genial secretary was right. An agreeable couple was sought and early Saturday morning a man called on the secretary and informed him that he and his prospective bride would be on hand to be married at the scheduled time. Mr. Lincoln was elated—likewise the balance of the committee.

But it developed the couple were two local young men, the "groom" being Ole Brude, an employe of the Thief River Falls Manufacturing company, while the "bride" was Albert Lonson, married, and the assistant cashier of the First State bank.

"Bride" and "Groom" Arrive.

At the appointed time an auto arrived at the appointed place and the "bride" and "groom" alighted, met with great appreciation by Mr. Lincoln and John Wold, chairman of the market day committee. Amid cheers the couple, attended by Miss Rose Moran and Ray Mundt, mounted the platform, while the Thief River Falls band played a wedding march. Judge Tarrant read the ceremony, and the happy couple were presented with a check from the Commercial club in the sum of $5, a certificate of deposit in the First National bank in the sum of $5, and numerous orders for wedding gifts from local business men, by Mr. Lincoln.

It was then the storm broke. Some youngster recognized the bride as Mr. Lonson, and amid a shower of rice the couple were hurried to a waiting automobile, while the crowd yelled "stung"—and commenced its stunt for Lincoln. But he was busy at something else. Needless to say, the "wedding" was a success, and the committee is being congratulated for the efficient manner in which the stunt was pulled off.

Successful Market Day.

As a market day the affair was a big success. Farmers came to this city from points fifty miles distant, and spent the entire day here taking advantage of the many bargains offered. A free vaudeville act and a big band concert were among the attractions. One most pleasing feature of the day was the statement from a number of the farmers to the effect that the recent rains had not done more than 10 per cent damage to the crops, this announcement causing much rejoicing among the business men of the city.

BELTRAMI SCHOOL GROWTH.

Substantial Gain in Pupils Reported in Past Year.

Bemidji, Minn., July 19.—During the past year, Beltrami county gained 424 pupils in the public schools, making a total of 5,144 in the schools of this county, according to the report made by W. B. Stewart, county superintendent of schools, at a meeting of school officers held in this city at which 122 delegates from different parts of the county were present. P. C. Tonning, assistant superintendent of schools, talked to the delegates, explaining what the state would do for the rural schools.

In telling of the increase in Beltrami county schools, Mr. Stewart said: "We now have enrolled in our schools of the county 5,414 pupils, or an increase of 454 over last year. Of these, 4,704 are drawing apportionment which is 508 more than last year. The amount per pupil is $7.63 and the amount of the apportionment is $32,015.48. Last year there were 754 pupils not entitled to apportionment or a loss to the schools of the county of $5,333.37. This year there are 699 pupils who did not earn their apportionment, or a decrease of 55. There are two high schools, seven graded schools, three graded 14-A, 33-B and 6-C rural schools drawing special aid money amounting to $30,476. If every boy and girl could draw apportionment in Beltrami county schools, we would be able to increase our total special aid from nearly $63,000 to over $68,000.

SCHOOL ELECTIONS ON MESABA RANGE

Both Eveleth and Virginia Re-Elect Their Old Board Members.

Eveleth, Minn., July 19.—(Special to The Herald.) — Albert Rohrer and Thomas H. Davey were re-elected to the board of education in Independent District No. 39 Saturday after what developed into the hardest fight made for directorships since 1910.

A vote of 1,192 was polled. At 8 o'clock in the evening when the voting was supposed to close the high school was crowded with voters who had been unable to cast their ballots and an additional thirty minutes was needed to get the votes all in.

The old members of the board won by about 200 majority. The vote was as follows: A. Rohrer, 695; T. H. Davey, 692; A. P. Romer, 499; Jacob Ambrozich, 494.

Virginia Reelects Old Board.

Virginia, Minn., July 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—By a 3-to-1 margin, Chairman William H. Eaton and Andrew Hawkinson of the school board Saturday were re-elected at the annual school election over Alderman Ernest F. Murray and Edward Ala. Mr. Hawkinson polled the largest vote of the election, getting 696 votes. Mr. Eaton polled 680 votes, while Mr. Ala's vote was 225 and Alderman Murray's 224.

Owing to the late opposition the vote was smaller than expected. The absence of an issue resulted in many voters remaining away from the polls. The old directors were confident of reelection and there was little doubt of the outcome.

Chisholm's Election Tame.

Chisholm, Minn., July 19.—Special to The Herald.)—Little interest was taken in the school board election here Saturday, the total vote being 641 against 874 last year. One hundred and ninety-eight women voted, giving the nominee of the Woman's club, Mrs. Siukonen, only 48 votes, Dr. Nelson 152 and Judge Masters 150. The vote polled by the different candidates was: Dr. E. H. Nelson, 543; Judge William E. Masters, 528; Mrs. L. H. Siukonen, 99.

A resolution asking the public examiner to make an examination of the books and accounts of the district under the supervision of five taxpayers, not members of the school board, failed of passage.

Mountain Iron Result.

Mountain Iron, Minn., July 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The school election here Saturday resulted in the election of G. A. Apull, who got 260 votes and Victor Frazier, who got 245. The other candidates received: Charles Murphy, 198; Henry Schwarz, 188; Lawrence Peltier, 32.

Aurora Election.

Aurora, Minn., July 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—At Saturday's school election W. Bashkin and William Canfield were elected for the three-year term getting 258 and 232 votes, respectively. Two other candidates were Frank Tillman and E. T. Sandberg, whose receptive votes were 146 and 161. C. T. Roath was elected for one year, receiving 204 votes. His opponents were Andrew Maki, 130 votes; George Simonich, 75.

One Biwabik Candidate.

Biwabik, Minn., July 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. F. Hilderbrand was elected to the board of education here Saturday without opposition getting 83 votes, a small vote.

Outcome at Gilbert.

Gilbert, Minn, July 19.—F. P. Rutherford with 390 votes and P. C. Cosgrove with 381 won out in the school election here today, being re-elected. J. E. Fait received 119 votes.

Grand Rapids Meeting.

Grand Rapids, Minn., July 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The school meeting here Saturday evening approved the action of the board in asking for $100,000 for general maintenance of schools of the district and $32,000 for expenditures on consolidated schools and other improvements. While some friction developed the board had a majority of the meeting with it by a vote of about 80 to 0. A small minority that has made attacks on Supt. Freeman, who has held the position nine years, failed in efforts to criticize the board for retaining him. There was no election of officers, as those are chosen in the fall.

VIRGINIA MINISTER HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Pinned Under Car Which Turned Turtle Between Hibbing and Chisholm.

Hibbing, Minn., July 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Pinned face downward in the mud under a Ford car until a bus filled with men came along and extricated him, was the experience of Rev. W. J. Bell of Virginia, who with his wife had a narrow escape from death yesterday morning, when the machine he was driving slipped from the road between here and Chisholm into a ditch and turned turtle.

Mrs. Bell was thrown completely from the machine. Mr. Bell was pinned under until the bus came along and the men lifted the machine from off him and on to the road.

SEEK FEDERAL ACTION.

Temperance Workers Would Close Chisholm and Hibbing Saloons.

Virginia, Minn., July 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The enforcement of the Indian treaty law at Chisholm and Hibbing, which would wipe out the saloons of these towns, is a factor in the county option fight in St. Louis county in the opinion of Paul S. Engmand and others who addressed the meeting of anti-saloon men at the North Pole hall here Saturday night.

H. C. Embree, an Iowa university student, one of three option workers in St. Louis county, addressing the temperance workers, said that he is now in communication with Cato Sells, Indian agent, regarding the enforcement of the Indian treaty law at Chisholm and Hibbing.

"We can do little until we hear whether the treaty is to be enforced or not," said Mr. Engman, an option worker, who recently interviewed many Chisholm and Hibbing merchants on county option. "In the event that the two Western Mesaba range towns must lose their saloons through the enforcement of the treaty law, we will receive many votes from Chisholm and Hibbing."

Mr. Embree estimated that $4,000,000 is being spent annually in the 400 saloons in this county. Duluth has 156 saloons. St. Louis has 111 patients at the state insane hospital at Fergus Falls, said the speaker, and 23 per cent of the cases were due to liquor.

Conrad Mattson, Rev. W. J. Bell, H. Gordon, P. S. Engman and J. Kostin were named as a temporary option committee, with Mr. Mattson as chairman. The Finnish and Swedish temperance organizations and many churches were represented at the meeting.

BEATS SOUDAN MAN.

Eleventh Hour Candidate Wins Out in School Election.

Tower, Minn., July 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The voters sprang a surprise at the school election in district No. 8 Saturday by electing Axel Lofgren of Tower treasurer over Fred Williams of Soudan, the present incumbent, who sought re-election. Lofgren was persuaded to run at the last minute and won out.

School district No. 9 comprises Tower and Soudan, and for some time past all three members of the board have been Soudan residents, or people whose chief interests were at Soudan. This condition did not appeal to all the voters, consequently when their man was put up, they saw to it that he was elected.

Result at Ely.

Ely, Minn., July 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The voters Saturday evening elected two school board members to succeed T. E. Miller and James Noonan, who did not seek re-election in district No. 12. CONFESSES TO KILLING FOUR Man Arrested at Buffalo Says He Murdered Illinois Family.

May Be One Who Killed Twenty-Seven Others With Ax.

Chicago, July 19.—Police of a number of cities today delved into records of mysterious ax murders, while two Chicago detectives and Mayor Jones of Blue Island, Ill., left for Buffalo to bring back Casimir Areiszewski, who is said to have confessed to the murder of Jacob Mislich, his wife, his daughter, Mrs. Mary Mansfield and her baby, Mary Mansfield, in Blue Island, Ill., July 5, 1914. Areiszewski was a boarder at the Mislich home, and he told the Buffalo police that he waited until the family was asleep and then killed his victims with an ax.

The similarity of the series of ax murders which began four years ago in Colorado Springs, stretched across the country to Ellsworth, Kan., to Monmouth, Ill., then to Villisca, Iowa, and east to Boston, led the police to believe that perhaps one man was responsible for all the crimes. The murder of the four persons in Blue Island, Ill., in 1914, brought the total number of victims to thirty-one.

Ax Used on All.

All the murders were committed by a man who used an ax, and the crimes were all the work of a man who virtually left no clew behind. In each instance he waited until the persons were asleep. All the crimes were committed on a Sunday night.

A list of other ax murders in regard to which Areiszewski will be questioned when he is returned to Chicago follows:

H. C. Wayne, wife and child, and Mrs. A. J. Burnham and two children, Colorado Springs, Colo., September, 1911.

William E. Dawson, wife and daughter, Monmouth, Ill., October, 1911.

William Showman, wife and two daughters and a son, Ellsworth, Kan., October, 1911.

Rollin Hudson and wife, Paola, Kan., June, 1912.

Winnipeg Man Is Detained in Grand Forks, N. D.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Though he has been a resident of Winnipeg for years, being engaged in business in that city, Joseph Marcovitch is held here in the county jail by United States immigration authorities, because of irregularities in his credentials.

Marcovitch came to the United States without securing proper papers from Winnipeg to insure his admission to that country on returning. Arriving at the boundary line, American immigration authorities detained him.

URGE PENSIONS FOR MAIL CLERKS

Duluth Delegates Return From State Convention at Albert Lea.

Retirement on a pension for superannuated mail clerks and other Federal employes was indorsed in a resolution passed by the thirteenth annual convention of postal mail clerks at Albert Lea, Minn., Saturday afternoon at the close of a two-days- meeting. It will be the aim of the postal mail clerks of the state to do everything in their power to bring about this provision as soon as possible, and a copy of the resolutions will be sent to the national association of postal mail clerks, which holds its convention in Los Angeles next September.

This movement has been under way for some time, according to C. C. Mathison of Duluth, state treasurer of the association, who, with delegates B. A. Erickson and N. A. Keeler, returned yesterday afternoon. Letter carriers, mail clerks and other Federal postoffice employes are all working for a retirement and pension law. Virtually every country of Europe has laws providing for retirement of employes on a pension, it is claimed.

Mr. Mathison was re-elected treasurer of the state association, and St. Cloud was selected as the place for holding the next state convention.

President Frank T. Rogers of the national association was present and gave one of the principal addresses. Congressman Sydney Anderson gave one of the principal addresses at the banquet, which closed the convention Saturday night.

The following officers were elected: President, J. C. Kilbride, Albert Lea; first vice president, C. Brennan, St. Paul; second vice president, O. N. Rock, Red Wing; secretary, E. H. Nelson, Minneapolis; treasurer, Mr. Mathison.

HOLD ANNUAL CONVENTION

Sons of American Revolution From Every State in Session.

Represent 14,000 Descendants of Participants in Great War.

Portland, Or., June 19.—From every state from Hawaii and the Philippines, delegates to the twenty-sixth annual convention of the Society of the sons of the American Revolution assembled here today representing 14,000 descendants of participants in that nation-making struggle. The last actual participant of which there was record died in 1869 and it is estimated that not more than thirty sons of revolutionary soldiers are living now, but each year their descendants meet to freshen the memories of Valley Forge and Yorktown and sow seeds of patriotism in the heart of young America.

Hall of Archives.

President General R. C. Ballard Thruston of Louisville, Ky., in his opening address emphasized the need of a hall of archives at Washington. The records of the Revolution, as well as other government documents, he said, are stored in garrets, cellars and other undesirable places exposed to deterioration and destruction and inaccessible even to officials of the government.

"We don't know what they show as to the history of our country," he declared.

A committee of the Sons of the Revolution will work during the coming session of congress at Washington with the American Historical association to get appropriations for a permanent hall of records.

Declaration of Independence.

The imperfectly known details of the adoption and signing of the Declaration of Independence were reviewed at length in the report of the secretary-general. While the historic document was accepted by the committee of the whole, reported to the congress and adopted on July 4, 1776, it appeared from the researches reflected in the secretary-general's report that this action was not then unanimous. The New York assembly did not approve until June 15, and it was not until Aug. 2 that it was engrossed and signed by the members present, and as late as Jan. 18, 1877, one member of the continental congress had not yet affixed his signature. One-fourth of the members were not present on July 4, 1776, and seven of those who later signed were not members of the congress on that memorable day. The original parchment, much faded, reposes in an airtight, light-proof compartment in the state department library in Washington. A fac-simile is on exhibition.

Washington Guards.

Work of organizing the Washington Guard, an auxiliary body in which are enrolled boys of revolutionary descent under 21 years old, was detailed by the secretary-general. The organization, not essentially a military body, aims to train boys in the fundamental principles of national government and self-protection. Boys of 9 years and under are enrolled as junior guardsmen; of 10 to 14 as guardsmen and of 15 to 21 years as senior guardsmen. The boys are taught to foster true patriotism and extend the institutions of American freedom. As they become of age they are eligible for enrollment in the parent society.

OWNERS SUE FOR FIRE LOSS

Would Recover From Lessees for Damages to Flower Shop.

Whether lessees may be held responsible in damages for losses due to the elements, where leases are drawn providing that tenants restore property to owners in the same condition as it was in when it was leased, is the question which has been put to District Judge Dancer for a decision.

Saturday afternoon, Judge Dancer listened to arguments on a demurrer interposed to the complaint of the Gregory company against Louis Visias, James Visias, George Visias and John A. Stephenson to collect $3,600 for the loss by fire of a building leased to Louis Visias and his associates. Mr. Stephenson is a joint owner of the premises with the Gregory company and was made a party defendant because he refused to join as plaintiff. He is not directly involved in the controversy.

When the Gregory company and Mr. Stephenson leased to the defendants, the instrument provided that the lessees should, at the expiration of the lease, deliver the property over to the lessors in as good a condition as they found it when they took possession. The usual exception concerning reasonable wear and tear and damage by the elements was not contained in the lease.

The building in question was occupied by the Seekins flower shop and was located at the southeast corner of Third avenue east and Superior street. It was destroyed by fire on March 4 last. The Gregory company is now seeking to recover its loss over and above what was collected in insurance.

C. C. Colton, attorney for the lessees, argued that the lease contained no explicit exception regarding loss by fire or damage by elements, such exception was implied and that, therefore, no cause of action was stated in the complaint. J. A. P. Neal appeared for the Gregory company.

Judge Dancer took the case under advisement.

BOTH SIDES MAY MAKE CONCESSIONS

New Proposals May Result in Settling South Wales Strike.

London, July 19.—It is understood that new proposals have been advanced which are likely to constitute a basis on which both sides concerned in the South Wales coal strike will be able to arrange peace without loss of prestige.

No definite information has been given out, but there was another dramatic turn in the situation this afternoon as the result of a communication sent, following a cabinet meeting, to the executive committee of the miners at Cardiff. The committee, which was in session when the communication was received, adjourned immediately and started for London to meet Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade, tonight.

Originates With Miners.

It was learned late that the proposals for ending the strike originated with the miners. They were sent to London by the executive committee with the sanction of the miners' leaders, who believe they will prove acceptable. It is understood the plan contemplates temporary concessions of the demands of the miners, which, however, would not be embodied in any new agreement until the government has had ample time to consider the whole matter.

Munitions Court Would Decide.

The questions in dispute would then be referred to the munitions court, which would decide regarding marginal differences between the award of Mr. Runciman and the full demands. It is possible that Mr. Runciman himself, instead of the munitions court, may conduct the arbitration.

The proposed terms entail some slight concessions on both sides. There seems to be no doubt the cabinet had the proposal before it at today's session, and the outcome of its communication to the miners' committee is accepted as indicating that the ministry ratified the suggested compromise. This will mean immediate return to work by the men and an undertaking to abide by the decision of the court or Mr. Runciman, whatever it may be.

Ability Is Recognized.

Edward H. Whelan, advertising manager of the F. S. Kelly Furniture company, is paid a high compliment for his advertising ability in the July issue of the Grand Rapids Furniture Record, one of the leading journals devoted to the furniture business. One of the advertisements that depicts the value of editorials as a constructive influence written by Mr. Whelan is now reproduced and the article has the following to say in regard to his ability: "Mr. Whelan's work, which never fails to carry interest, is not new to these columns. Among the principal features of the above ad are those of excellent composition, well-balanced make-up, a careful selection of type faces and white space well apportioned. It occupies but four columns and eleven inches, yet its display value is equal to many half-pages that reach this office. Mr. Whelan, in explanation, simply offers the report that the advertisement proved more than usually effective."

VALLEY CITY'S MAYOR POSSIBLE CANDIDATE

Valley City, N. D., July 19.—The Democrats of the state may find the most available compromise candidate for governor in Mayor L. S. Platou of this city. The mayor has always been an enthusiastic Democratic worker but has refused to be drawn into the factional differences and is regarded as about the most prominent man of the party who would be acceptable to all the party. He has been easily elected mayor here several terms against strong candidates and has developed a great deal of local strength.

It is understood that the mayor would be willing to make the race for governor if given assurance that there was a demand for his candidacy.

AUTHENTIC ACCOUNT OF SHOOTING OF HARRY CONEY RECEIVED IN DUTUTH

Letter By Employers' Representative, Who Claimed Body at New York, Gives All the Facts Obtainable.

Several stories concerning the manner in which Harry J. Coney, of Duluth, local agent for Spencer Kellogg & Sons, was shot by Caesar Bravo on the steamer Tennyson while en route from Buenos Aires to New York two weeks ago yesterday, have been published and they have been more or less conflicting. What is claimed to be the authentic story of the shooting came in a letter today to E. Rheinberger of the Spencer Kellogg & Sons offices here from E. H. Stickel of the Buffalo offices, and whose duty it was to meet the steamer which bore the remains to New York.

Mr. Stickel says in his letter that he was unable to obtain any information from the ship's officers further than that Mr. Coney was shot and killed by a fellow-passenger, Caesar Bravo, who, they believed, must suddenly have gone insane. Mr. Stickel then says:

"One of the passengers, H. S. De-Rees, an American, who has been living in Argentina for a number of years, came to me and said that he had been the cabin mate of the man who shot Mr. Coney; that their cabin had been directly opposite the one occupied by Mr. Coney and a Mr. Ives. I found that Mr. Ives, who occupied the cabin with Mr. Coney, is the representative of the Albert Dickinson company of Chicago, and was a personal friend of Mr. Coney. I accompanied Mr. De Rees to Mr. Ives' hotel and met Mr. and Mrs. Ives and Miss Grace Ives. The following is their account of the tragedy:

Stop at Bridgetown.

"The steamer Tennyson reached Bridgetown, Barbadoes, on Sunday morning, July 4, and as the steamer was not to sail until the afternoon, many cabin passengers went ashore for a few hours, Bravo among them. Mr. Coney and Mr. Ives also went ashore in another party. While Bravo was ashore he must have purchased a bottle of rum and drank some of it. Upon his return to the boat he gathered a number of passengers about one of the tables in the smoking room and bought them cocktails. While they were there, Mr. Coney returned to the boat and was observed walking down the deck past the smoking room entrance by Bravo, who rushed out and pulled him in, saying that he, Coney, would have to drink a cocktail with him. Mr. Coney sat down and the drink was brought and placed before him. As soon as Bravo's attention was taken up with something else, Mr. Coney quietly left the table without drinking the cocktail and passed up the deck, stopping about midway and began entertaining the little 10-year-old daughter of a missionary who was returning to this country. At this time Miss Ives came on deck and meeting Mr. Coney, he stopped her and said:

"'That man Bravo is in the smoking room buying cocktails and insists that I drink with him. Now I'm not going to, and I have just slipped away from him, but he may come looking for me. If he does you say to him that I have an engagement with you to "walk deck" before dinner.'

"Must Drink With Me."

"Just then Bravo appeared and, coming up to Coney, grabbed him by the arm and said:

"'I want you to understand that you cannot treat me in this manner; you have to come with me and drink that cocktail.'

"At this Miss Ives said to Bravo:

"'Mr. Bravo, Mr. Coney has an engagement to 'walk deck' with me before dinner, and, being a gentleman, he wants to keep it, and I know that you, being a gentleman, will do nothing to prevent his keeping the engagement.'

"The man acquiesced and left them, and Mr. Coney and Miss Ives, who walked forward, talked over the incident. Reaching the forward end of the promenade deck they crossed to the starboard side and stopped, leaning over the rail, talking, Miss Ives at the right of Mr. Coney. Miss Ives suggesting to Mr. Coney that he go to his cabin and dress for dinner, but Mr. Coney did not want to do this as Bravo might learn that he was there and again insist that he drink with him. The next moment they heard Bravo behind them saying:

"'I'll teach you to refuse to drink with me,' and fired.

"The first shot missed, but the second one killed Mr. Coney instantly. Miss Ives shrieked and ran for assistance. Three more shots were heard, or five in all. The man, apparently trying to shoot himself, missed twice, but the third time succeeded in inflicting the wound that caused his death twenty-four hours later.

"Bravo went on board at Buenos Aires and then was not known to any of the passengers, but occupied the same room with Mr. De Rees. They soon became acquainted and, as Mr. Coney's and Mr. Ives' room was directly opposite, they naturally also became acquainted with him quickly. The four men were quite friendly, leaving their cabin doors open and using each other's personal effects whenever they so desired. Bravo seemed in high spirits at times and then, again, quite depressed. He suffered a great deal from earache. During one of these attacks he made Mr. De Rees promise that if anything happened to him, Bravo, Mr. De Rees would see that his personal effects were taken care of and sent to a friend in New York city. Another night he got up and roamed the deck until the captain took him in charge. The next day he told Mrs. Ives and her daughter that the night before he had considered taking his automatic, going forward, jumping overboard, and then, when the steamer was far enough away so the shot could not be heard, to end it all. He repeatedly intimated that he would never reach New York. It is the general belief that the man was insane when he committed the deed."

PRESENTS NEW PURITY PLAN

Clifford Roe Tells of New Efforts to Be Made.

Says Chicago Is Today, Morally, the Cleanest City.

San Francisco, Cal., July 19.—Addressing delegates to the ninth international purity congress today, Clifford G. Roe of Chicago, president of the American bureau of moral education, appointed by President Wilson as American delegate to the congress, proposed a new purity plan.

"The campaign against the social evil has spread so rapidly and widely that the local and national groups engaged in it are mostly unaware of what a diverse world-wide movement they constitute," said Mr. Roe. "Each seems bent upon some pet solution of the problem. Some insist the solution must be medical and psycopathic, others say that laws and police only are efficient in the matter, while still others put their whole faith in economic education and social hygiene. While all these are necessary and helpful, the supreme appeal must be greater than all these; it must be the appeal to morality—moral education.

Tells of New Plan.

"Therefore, in this great gathering of the ninth International Purity congress, I wish to tell of a new plan for this purity appeal.

"In the past our efforts have been largely centered upon the school teacher, the doctor, the lawyer and the minister. Our new plan is to bring the facts before the great masses of the people, the farmer, the business man and the laborer. The message of purity, therefore, is not only preached today from the pulpit, but likewise from the chautauqua and lecture platform, and in clubrooms and the auditoriums of great commerce associations.

CLIFFORD G. ROE.

"People are awakening to their civic and moral responsibility as never before. This fact is evidenced in no greater degree anywhere than in Chicago where the new purity plan has taken root and grown.

Chicago Morally Clean.

"In my opinion Chicago is today morally the cleanest metropolitan city in the world. And what has made it so? An aroused public sentiment—a quickened moral conscience—a deeper and truer conviction concerning the responsibility of citizenship. The underlying issue of the recent mayoralty campaign was a greater, better and cleaner Chicago in every sense of the word. William Hale Thompson was elevated to that high office by the largest plurality ever given an American mayor—a plurality of 148,000 votes—because he stands for the best there is in citizenship. What does it mean? It simply means that an aroused public conscience has chosen a man whom they believe will do his civic duty."

HALF MILLION NEVER SAW AN OPEN SALOON

Governor of Kansas Speaks About Boys and Girls of His State.

San Francisco, Cal., July 19.—There are half a million boys and girls in Kansas who never saw a saloon, Governor Capper of that state remarked in the course of an address at the exposition today. His speech was delivered from the steps of the Kansas building in celebration of Kansas day.

"If it is good to live in Kansas it is because the people of Kansas have made it so," said Governor Capper. "Kansas people have never dodged a difficulty nor refused to face an issue. Kansas is now a good place in which to live largely because thirty years ago we dared to make the open saloon an outlaw because we were not afraid to attack a curse as ancient as human history and put it from us forever. I am immensely proud of the fact that Kansas has half a million boys and girls who never saw an open saloon. And now that national prohibition and world-wide prohibition are coming just as surely as tomorrow's sunrise Kansas has done, is doing and will do more to bring this great blessing about than any other state."

NO VACCINATION FOR THE GOVERNOR

Wisconsin Executive Submitted to Operation Only Year Ago.

Madison, Wis., July 19.—Governor Philipp will not have to be vaccinated, despite the fact that Assemblyman Charles F. Ploeger is quarantined at Seymour with smallpox. Ploeger visited the executive office shortly before taking his train Friday night. The governor announced that he was vaccinated just one year ago. Sam Banky, the governor's messenger, was notified today that all who had mingled with Mr. Ploeger must be vaccinated. Reluctantly he went to the board of health and was vaccinated.

Physicians were busy today vaccinating members, employes and correspondents.

The assembly chamber and adjacent rooms were fumigated Sunday afternoon and Dr. Harper believed if all connected with the legislature are promptly vaccinated there will be no further contagion.

There is some speculation whether Joseph Fels of Philadelphia and Daniel Kiefer, both well known single taxers, who visited the legislature Friday, have been exposed.

MEN TO BE CALLED OUT ON TUESDAY

Fail to Hear From New Yorker Who Asked for Postponement.

Bridgeport, Conn., July 19.—Labor leaders in charge of the strike situation in Bridgeport announced this afternoon that they had failed to hear from the New Yorker, who on Saturday requested the postponement of the calling out of machinists employed by the Remington Arms & Ammunition company.

"If we do not hear from this man by 4 o'clock this afternoon," said J. J. Keppler, international vice president of the Machinists union, "we will have to believe that the negotiations have failed. In that event the men will probably be called out tomorrow, twenty-four hours after the time originally set for the beginning of the strike."

Simultaneously with this announcement came another of equal importance from the secretary of the Bridgeport Manufacturers' association that at a meeting today the manufacturers had determined to stand as a body behind the Remington company in its edcision to run an open shop.

NEW DEPUTY COLLECTOR

Miss Gertrude Witz of Duluth Is Given Federal Appointment.

Owing to the great increase in the duties of the internal revenue office at Duluth, an assistant deputy has just been appointed by Collector E. J. Lynch of the St. Paul office to assist here. Miss Gertrude Witz of Duluth has been named and she took up her work in the office today. From now on there will be three deputies at the Duluth office.

The local office has been rushed for several months owing to the putting into operation of new tax laws, passed by the present administration. The income tax law, the war tax laws and the Harrison anti-narcotic law have all increased the work of the local office, while the other duties have not been diminished.

Because of this rush Louis Levine of Duluth was made deputy last spring and since June 1 has been assisting Ira Coburn, the regular deputy. Even with Mr. Levine's assistance the work has continued to grow and both Mr. Coburn and Mr. Levine have been working under pressure. Mr. Coburn has not had a holiday since last November and has often worked until 9 o'clock in the evening. Mr. Levine has also put in long hours.

Daughter of Gen. Sherman Dies.

Paris, July 19.—Eleanor Sherman Thackera, wife of Alexander M. Thackera, American consul general at Paris, died yesterday. Mrs. Thackera was daughter of Gen. Sherman of Civil war fame. Mrs. Thackera had been working hard, especially for Serbian relief for six months until she was taken ill three months ago. A letter of appreciation and thanks from the king of Serbia reached her after she fell ill, as also did a decoration from the Red Cross.

Lights and Shadows of Police Court

THREE MOTORISTS FACE POLICE COURT

One Forfeits Bail, Second Pays Fine, Third Puts Up Fight.

A motorcyclist, an automobilist and a jitneur were in trouble at police headquarters today because of alleged traffic violations.

The motorcyclist, who gave his name as Dell Pall, forfeited $10 bail, after Patrolman Setterquist of the Lakeside division had commandeered a buggy and then an automobile to capture him.

The automobilist, Martin Matteon, pleaded guilty to operating at night without his front lights, and paid a $7 fine. He was arrested by Officer W. Monahan.

The jitneur alone survived, and at 2 o'clock this afternoon Evald Anderson faced Judge Cutting for the fourth time, while G. Roy Hall, traffic commissioner of the Commercial club, and Walter Gonska, city prosecutor, started to show that he was guilty of driving by open street car gates.

Anderson put up a stubborn defense, which occupied the court's attention for an hour this morning, and gave promise of continuing for some time this afternoon.

Gilbert Schofield, Bellboy, as Mischievous as Penrod.

Although he is not related to Booth Tarkington's Penrod, Gilbert Schofield, bell boy at the Lenox hotel, is as mischievous as Mr. Tarkington's character at his best.

Gilbert, who is 18 years old, was arrested Sunday by Detective Donald Irvine, charged with stealing a traveling bag from the lobby of the hotel. The boy is being held at headquarters until the owner of the stolen property is found and swears to a complaint charging petit larceny.

PRISONER "TALKED."

Carl Ferrario Offered to "Tip Off" Police to Burglaries.

A busy tongue has proved the undoing of not only Louis Carl Ferrario, age 19, but also of Erling Johnson, age 18, an alleged accomplice.

When Detectives Toewe and J. L. Bradley arrested Ferrario recently for the Minneapolis police on a petit larceny charge, he pleaded with them for his freedom, saying that he could "tip them off" to several burglaries. He mentioned some names, among them being Johnson's.

The second lad was taken into custody Saturday and a charge of grand larceny placed against him. Johnson, with Ferrario, is alleged to have entered the cabin of George Anderson, Lester park, last May, and to have stolen a $100 phonograph.

The talking machine was recovered in a West Superior street second-hand store, where it had been sold for $15. Johnson will be arraigned in municipal court as soon as the formal complaint against him is filed.

MAKES ONE RAID NIGHTLY.

Makes Two Arrests at Metropole Hotel.

Keeping up his record of one disorderly rooming house raid a night, Police Sergeant John Roberg made an inspection tour at the Metropole hotel, Lake avenue and Michigan street, early this morning.

Peter Maagen, age 29, and Ida Olson, age 26, were taken into custody by the sergeant, who was assisted by Officer Le Beau.

Maagen forfeited $25 bail by non-appearance in municipal court today, while the woman pleaded guilty to a disorderly conduct charge. Sentence will be pronounced this afternoon.

BLINKED HIS EYES.

Mike Ptashik May Be Returned to Austria and May Not.

Because Mike Ptashik, age 27, blinked his eyes in the sunlight and couldn't see as far as his friends, he may have to give up his job on a farm near Duluth and return to war-torn Austria.

When told that Ptashik was suffering from trachoma, a contagious disease of the eyes, Immigration Officer Brown McDonald made a trip to the W. D. Terry farm near South Range and arrested him.

He was brought to Duluth and lodged at police headquarters, wondering at the strange proceedure of United States officials and trying to learn about his offense.

His employer this morning secured Dr. Homer Collins, who examined Ptashik, and declared that he was suffering only from granular lids, a trouble not contagious.

An appeal will be made in case the inspectors decide that Ptashek must return to Austria.

CHANGE

By DR. SAMUEL G. DIXON, Commissioner of Health for Pennsylvania.

The majority of people who are occupied for fifty weeks out of the year should seek in the remaining two to find, not necessarily rest, but a change of environment.

The man who has struggled through the crowded streets of a city, ridden on packed trolley cars and railroad trains for months on end should make his way to the quiet country side, the camp in the woods or some spot equally free from the press of humanity.

The man who lives in the country or small town may find a corresponding benefit from a week or more spent amid the rush and turmoil of the city. Each of these widely varying environments holds the possibility of affording a mental stimulus to those who are unfamiliar with their moods.

The mind no less than the body needs refreshment and change. It needs the stimulation of new ideas. It is more difficult to acquire this in our ordinary surroundings than where everything is strange and unusual and the mind is stirred to activity. It is out of the question for the man who maintains his regular routine day in and day out to continue to put into his work the same vigor.

We can become over-developed along one line mentally just as readily as physically and the results may even more seriously effect our welfare.

If in seeking for a change, we encounter surroundings, which owing to unfamiliarity, are not agreeable, in the long run we profit. If in no other way, at least they make our own daily round seem more acceptable by contrast.

So plan your vacation that it will bring you to realize afresh how multifarious and interesting are the activities of mankind or how soothing to the weary mind are Mother Nature's marvels.

PRISONER WILL BE EXTRADITED

Armed with a warrant of extradition, Sheriff Richardson of Kane county, Ill., arrived in the city this morning to take charge of Martin Joyce, alleged to have broken jail at Geneva, Ill., about a year ago. At the time of the alleged escape Joyce was held on a larceny charge. He will be taken back to Illinois for trial.

In municipal court this afternoon disposition will be made of the fugitive warrant upon which he has been held pending the arrival of the Kane county authorities. Joyce twice sued out writs of habeas corpus in an endeavor to secure his liberty since he was arrested two weeks ago.

ADDITIONAL SPORTS

EVANS ARRIVES SANS CADDY AND CLUBS

Cleveland, Ohio, July 19.—The early squad of golfers in the eliminating round of the Western amateur tournament at the Mayfield Country club this morning turned in very poor scores for a championship meet. John Marshall, Jr., of the Louisville Country club had 78, the only score below 80 of the first thirteen returns.

"Chick" Evans arrived this morning minus his favorite caddy, Jeff Adams, and his bag of golf clubs. The caddy forgot them at Chicago, and "Chick" probably will have to borrow someone's clubs to play his eliminating round.

Dewitt Balch, Cincinnati Golf club, 86; George F. Henneberry, Glenn View, Chicago, 86.

FEW BUY EXPENSIVE SEATS TO SEE BOUTS

St. Paul, Minn., July 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Of over 5,000 persons who witnessed the recent boxing contest held in the St. Paul auditorium, only 136 paid $5 each for the privilege. A statement of ticket sales filed today with State Auditor Preus shows that the majority of the spectators bought $2 tickets.

The $2 tickets numbered 1,104; $3 tickets, 609, and $1 tickets, 958. The contest realized the promoters a little over $5,000.

CASHIER CONFESSES TO TAKING $30,000

Chicago, July 19.—Max Pelenske, cashier of the Drovers' National bank, for whom detectives have been searching for several days, surrendered himself today to United States Marshal John J. Bradley and confessed to having embezzled a sum approximating $30,000. Officials of the bank declared that the institution will lose nothing by the defalcation as Palenske was under bonds. The shortage was discovered while the cashier was on a vacation at Lake Geneva, Wis.

CRIMINAL CASES DUE

Italian Editor and Missionary Will Be Tried This Week.

Many Prominent Italian-Americans as Witnesses in Federal Court.

Following the conclusion of the case now being tried before the United States district court, the criminal section of the calendar will come before the court. Arguments in the case of the government against the Northwestern Construction company will probably be concluded today, and the criminal cases set for trial tomorrow.

Of chief interest to the public will be the cases against Vincenzo Cimino, editor of The Courier, the Italian newspaper of Duluth, and Gaetano Lizzi, a Presbyterian missionary. Cimino is held under indictment for attempting to secure money by fraudulent methods through the United States mails. Lizzi is indicted on a charge of sending a sourrilous letter through the mails addressed to Father Zarilli, the Italian priest in Duluth. Lizzi's letter is said to contain some sensational charges, put into strong language, much of which is barred by the postoffice rules.

A large number of the most prominent Italian-Americans in Duluth will be called as witnesses in both cases.

The criminal calendar is short as several of the most important cases were disposed of at the opening of the July term when six of the prisoners indicted made confession and came up for sentence before Judge Page Morris.

BIG DEMAND FOR STEEL

Growing Shortage of Semi-Finished Product Is Noted.

Heavy Orders for Billets; More Furnaces Are Blown in.

Growing shortage of semi-finished steel, indicating increasing consumption, was a feature of the last week in iron and steel trade circles.

Orders for 70,000 tons of steel billets have been placed with outside Eastern furnaces by the United States Steel corporation. This includes 15,000 tons reported a week ago. The corporation has started up four more blast furnaces and a considerable number of open-hearth furnaces. This brings its operations up to 90 per cent of its ingot capacity, according to the Iron Age. The resuming furnaces are at Cleveland, Lorain, South Chicago and Pittsburgh.

New Business Heavier.

New business placed with the steel companies so far this month is said to be in larger proportions than during June, and all companies with war orders on their books are operating on practically a capacity basis. There is said to be no end in sight of the bar tonnage required for shells, and buyers are looking farther ahead. Contracts covering one and even two years are now proposed, one of them calling for more than 100,000 tons of rounds. The bar specifications of agricultural machinery makers have increased.

In pig iron the feature of last week was the purchase of from 40,0000 to 50,000 tons of basis iron by a Youngstown steel company from a Cleveland furnace that is about to resume operations. Other heavy sales of basic iron were reported. An export inquiry for 40,000 tons of Bessemer iron of special chemistry is said to have been received by a Johnstown, Pa. district company.

A large part of the Russian rail order is reported to have been placed, the Cambria Steel company taking 100,000 tons and the Lackawanna Steel company 60,000 tons. It is expected that about 250,000 tons more steel rails for shipment to Russia will be placed in this country.

To Enlarge Plant.

Further evidence of activity in the iron trade is afforded in the intimation that the Valley Mold & Iron company, the largest producer of ingot molds in this country, has under consideration, plans for the enlargement of its plant at Sharpsville, Pa. Floyd K. Smith, the general manager of that company, predicts the resumption of practically all the Eastern merchant furnaces within a short time.

The market is strong in all iron and steel products. The United States Steel corporation and the Cambria Steel company have advanced quotations in bars from $1.25 to $1.30 per 100 pounds, equal to $1 per ton. Other steel companies are expected to take similar action. Early in the year prices were as low as $1 per 100 pounds so that the present prices represent an advance of $6 a ton.

ROTARY CLUBS OPEN SESSION AT FRISCO

San Francisco, Cal., July 19. — The sixth annual convention of the International Association of Rotary Clubs opened here today. C. H. Victor of San Francisco, president, delivered an address of welcome to the 3,500 delegates in attendance from the United States, Canada, Great Britain, Australia and Hawaii.

The convention will be in session all week.

A HELPING HAND.

Washington Star: "Our shipping, thanks to the war, is in a bad way," said Representative Ira Copley in Aurora. "It needs a helping hand.

"Yes, our shipping needs a helping hand of somebody as resolute and forthright as the young lady to whom a bashful suitor said:

"'That's a beautiful dog you have there, Miss Ethel. Is he affectionate?'

"'Is he?' she answered archly. 'Here, Bruno! Here, good dog, come and show Charlie Smith how to kiss me.'"

MARKET HAS GOOD BULGE

Wheat Advances With Active Bidding and Light Southwest Receipts.

Old Crop Durum Soars, Scoring Sharp Bulge of 12 Cents.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 19.—The market was strong at the close with good bidding and a feature was a bulge of 12c in July durum on buying for a specialist.

July wheat closed 2c up; September 1¾c up, and December 1⅝c up. July durum closed 12c up and September 2c up.

Oats closed ¼c of at 53¾c for on the track; rye unchanged at 98c, and barley unchanged at from 66c to 72c.

At Winnipeg, July oats closed ⅞c up at 63½c asked, and October ¼c off at 42¾c bid.

Puts on Minneapolis September wheat closed at $1.08¾ asked and calls at $1.12⅝ bid.

Reports of more rains at Kansas City, Omaha and at some other sections of the Southwest contributed to a strong market in wheat today. Liverpool was also higher on light receipts, and small world's shipments this week. The delayed marketings of winter wheat in this country taken in conjunction with unfavorable conditions in some parts of Europe, were also a bullish factor. It is now thought that foreigners will have to buy heavily over here at the outset and that considerable winter wheat will be required before the Canadian spring wheat harvest begins. Experts agree that the market will be influenced mainly by weather conditions during the next few weeks, and that the delayed marketings of the Southwest crop will be in an important factor in the interval.

Primary receipts are a bagatelle at present compared with a year ago. Today they were 776,000 bu against 3,425,000 bu last year. At Kansas City 125,000 bu were received as against 924,000 bu a year ago. Strong milling inquiry was reported at Kansas City today, and July wheat sold up to $1.20, an advance of 7½c from Saturday. It was noted that nearly all the grain marketed at St. Louis today graded Nos. 3 and 4, its quality having been affected by the wet conditions for harvesting and threshing.

Business was quiet on the Duluth market through today's session, with operators largely awaiting developments. Crop reports received by operators from over the Northwest was all encouraging, the prospects being regarded as the best in years. The weather has been against the development of black rust, and no complaints on that score were heard.

The visible supply report showing a decrease of 1,426,000 bu in wheat stocks in the week was about as expected, and had no market influence.

July wheat opened 1c up at $1.45 and gained 1c more up to the noon hour. September opened ⅞c up at $1.12½, advanced to $1.13⅞, and then eased off to $1.12⅞.

Durum was strong with specialists bidding for it and unable to pick up much grain. July advanced 1c to $1.24. September opened unchanged at $1.21 and gained 1¾c.

Flaxseed Slightly Off.

Flaxseed showed moderate weakness on the development of quiet selling pressure while crushers were only in the market for small lots. Crop reports were also encouraging regarding the development of the plant. Business put through during the session was comparatively limited.

July flax closed 1c off at $1.70½ nominally. September opened unchanged at $1.74, and closed ¾c off at $1.73¼. October opened unchanged at $1.75¾, and closed 1c off at $1.74¾ asked. November opened unchanged at $1.76, and closed ½c off at $1.75½ asked.

At Winnipeg, July flax closed ½c up at $1.52 asked, and October ⅝c off at $1.55 asked.

At Buenos Aires flax closed ½c up at $1.27 and London ⅞c up at $1.93⅝.

MARKET GOSSIP.

Wheat stocks in Duluth and Minneapolis elevators, as on July 17, were 2,370,000 bu, against 6,439,000 bu last year. At Duluth there was 233,000 bu, compared with 635,000 bu a year ago, and at Minneapolis 2,137,000 bu, compared with 5,804,000 bu last year.

Flaxseed supplies in Duluth and Minneapolis elevators, as on July 17, were 1,445,000 bu, against 2,565,000 bu last year. At Duluth there was 1,284,000 bu against 2,408,000 bu last year, and at Minneapolis 61,000 bu, compared with 157,000 bu a year ago.

Keusch & Schwartz company had the following from Lyle from Aberdeen, S. D.: "Fields in this vicinity look well. It takes long hunting to find spores of black rust. The critical period is at hand, and experience makes for some uneasiness. If nothing happens to modify the present crop prospects this state will raise 50,000,000 bu wheat. Latter is about all in head in this section, and in the milk or dough stage, but getting near safety. All the northern part is raising nearly all wheat."

Snow's summary on conditions says: "Personal observation for two weeks covering northern Illinois, Iowa, Southern Nebraska and Northern Kansas, leads to the conclusion that prospects for a full corn crop is exceedingly doubtful."

Hallett & Carey company of Minneapolis and Duluth had the following today:

Kidder, S. D.—"We have as good a stand and prospects for a bumper wheat crop as we ever had."

Oakes, N. D.—"We have the heaviest all-around crop I ever saw in this country."

Tolstoy, S. D.—"Grain looks fine, with plenty of moisture to mature crops. Wheat is very good, and oats in excellent condition all over this territory."

John Inglis wired Logan & Bryan from Watertown, S. D.: "A year ago wheat cutting was in progress around Mitchell, S. D., which was earliest harvest on record. This year it will be the latest as some of it is now just passing from the bloom, which is in good condition. Fields are a little dirty from leaf rust, but so far there is no evidence of black rust. Rye and barley are ready to cut. It is impossible to get into the fields as it rains daily."

Lecount wired from Bradley, S. D.: "Terrific storms visited much of South Dakota in the latter part of last week, but damage is slight, as very little of the crop lodged. There is a little red rust, but the crop generally is less affected with red rust than any season in my recollection and the stand has never had such a promise of a record-breaking crop. Wheat is late, being mostly in blossom now. If this crop matures properly all records for spring production will be broken. Weather is cool. If it continues I believe there is little to fear from black rust, but will watch the Mitchell district closely."

The Minneapolis cash market was steady with good demand for the top grades. No. 1 northern blue stem sold at 11c to 13c over July and velvet chaff at 3c to 6c over July. Flour trade was reported dull. Cash No. 1 northern wheat sold there at from $1.40¾ to $1.50¾ and No. 2 northern at from $1.37¾ to $1.47¾.

World's shipments wheat: American, 4,232,000 bu; Russian, 248,000 bu; Indulian, 2,040,000 bu; Argentine, 296,000 bu; Chile and North Africa, 24,000 bu; corn, 5,933,000 bu.

Wheat on passage, 30,040,000 bu; decrease, 6,688,000 bu; corn, 25,032,000 bu; increase, 1,252,000 bu.

Liverpool stocks: Wheat, 5,352,000 bu; last year, 2,088,000 bu; corn, 461,000 bu; last year, 256,000 bu.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "Wheat is quiet but firm. The unexpected decline in America and indications of larger receipts offset the effect of lighter arrivals here. Spot is unchanged. Cargoes are firm. Plates and Manitobas unchanged, Indians 3d higher and winters 3d lower. World's shipments are light. European harvesting reports are unfavorable. Much depends on American weather."

South Africa shipped 264,000 bu corn last week to the United Kingdom.

Russian shipments this week were: To United Kingdom 767,000 bu and to France 80,000 bu. Output of Archangel is practically blocked with military shipments and therefore grain clearances are almost impossible.

Duluth car inspection: Wheat—No. 1 northern, 3; No. 2 northern, 4; No. 3, 4; No. 4, 11; rejected, 1; total wheat, 23, last year, 87; flax, 6, last year, 11; oats, 4, last year, 2; barley, 6, last year, none; total of all grains, 39, last year, 103; on track, 60.

The wheat crop yield of the United States and Canada for the present season, is estimated at 1,203,000,000 bu as against 1,040,000,000 bu last year. This will be the largest out-turn in the continent's history. The American yield of winter wheat is estimated by experts at 668,000,000 bu against 684,000,000 bu last year, and the spring wheat yield at 295,000,000 bu compared with 206,000,000 bu a year ago. This makes a total of 963,000,000 bu against 890,000,000 bu last year.

The Canadian spring wheat crop is estimated at 240,000,000 bu or 90,000,000 bu more than in 1914.

The surplus available for export in this country is placed at 400,000,000 bu, and a Canadian authority claims that the Dominion will place 150,000,000 bu at the service of Western Europe during the coming fall and winter.

Clearance reported: Wheat, 642,000 bu.; flour, 32,000 bbls.; together equal to 786,000 bu; corn, 116,000 bu; oats, 284,000 bu.

Primary markets report the following receipts and shipments today:

Wheat—Receipts, 776,000 bu.; last year, 3,428,000 bu; shipments, 245,000 bu; last year, 2,397,000 bu.

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wet Weather, With Delay in Harvesting, Brings Advance in Wheat.

Chicago, July 19.—Wet weather that implied delay to the harvesting and movement of the new crop brought about a decided advance today in the wheat market here. The July delivery was especially affected. Bullish crop advices from Canada and Australia told to some extent against the bears. Opening prices, which ranged from ⅝c to 2¼c higher, were followed by other material gains before there was any important reaction.

Railroad reports that farmers in the Southwest were holding their wheat back prevented downturns from lasting very long. The close was unsettled at 1½c to 2¾c net advance.

Corn rose with wheat. The upturn, however, was only moderate. After opening ⅛c to ⅜c higher the market tended to sag. In the oats crowd prices seemed to be governed by the action of other grain. Most of the business was between floor traders.

Subsequently reports that prospects for a full crop were doubtful hardened the price of deferred deliveries. The close was steady, 1⅛c to ¼c up, compared with Saturday night.

Lower quotations for hogs carried provisions down grade. On the decline, though, packers turned to the buying side.

FLAX WEAKENS ON REPORT

Not Much Credence Given Government Figures But Have Effect.

Other Conditions Cause Bearish Tendencies in Duluth Market.

Flax is debatable just now, but the seed is undeniably weak. Even though the traders put but little credence in the government figures, which were decidedly bearish, the report is having a weakening effect until something more definite has been learned. Winnipeg got frightened about it and started the slide, and other markets followed suit.

The weakening is aided by the fact that the old-time stagnation of the seed has been resumed, nothing going forward from the elevators, and at the same time more Argentina seed is arriving in the country. The combination is too much to stand against, but the market holds much steadier than could reasonably be expected under the circumstances. Its decline has been gradual and every few days, the crushers make a plunge and buy on low spots.

The present decline is due to the fact that the price of Argentina flax has fallen off, which makes it available for shipping again, the recent higher prices having kept it out of the shipping possibilities for a brief period.

But the flax traders are not entirely of the belief that the decline is warranted and the bull side has many advocates.

The closing prices for the past six trading days, compared with the same period a year ago, were:

London Money.

London, July 19.—The current week will be a busy and interesting one in the money market. The payment of the 10 per cent installment on the war loan tomorrow will disturb nearly £60,000,000 while the option to pay in full under the discount clause will move another large amount, estimated at £200,000,000. Although the bulk of the funds, it is expected, will be re-loaned as soon as possible, the market is temporarily dependent upon the Bank of England.

Short loans and discounts were therefore firmer today. The stock market was practically dead. In the American section only business was in United States Steel and Canadian Pacific. The latter finished dull, but steady.

New York Money.

New York, July 19.—Close: Mercantile paper, 3@3½ per cent; sterling, 60 days, $4.72; demand, $4.7625; cables, $4.7680. Francs, demand, 5.53½; cables, 5.53; marks, demand, 81⅛; cables, 81⅝; lires, demand, 6.13½; cables, 6.12; rubles, demand, 33; cables, 33⅛. Bar silver, 47½c; Mexican dollars, 36¾c. Government bonds steady; railroad bonds easy. Call money, steady; high, 2 per cent; low, 1⅜; ruling rate, 2; last loan, 2; closing bid, 1¾; offered at 2. Time loans firmer; 60 days, 2½ per cent; 90 days, 2¾; six months, 3@3½.

WAR SHARES HAVE SLUMP

Heavy Selling With Declines of Three to Seven Points.

Some Strength Shown By Railroad Stocks—Closing Is Irregular.

New York, July 19.—Indications that last week's boom in war shares had run its course for a time were observed on the resumption of trading today. Crucible Steel opened with a decline of 2¾, which was soon extended to almost 7 points. Other issues in the same class, notably General Motors, Baldwin Locomotive, Allis-Chalmers preferred and Westinghouse, lost 2 to 6½, and United States Steel, Saturday's leader, fell a point at the outset. Bethlehem Steel, Allis Chalmers and National Enameling rose 1 to almost 2 points. The majority of the more representative stocks opened with declines, Reading, Amalgamated Copper and American Smelting being under pressure.

After the first hour operations switched to the better known railroad stocks, advances of 1 to 2 points being made by Grangers, trunk lines, tran-continentals and coalers. This checked the decline in war specialties, Crucible Steel and General Motors regaining from half to two-thirds of their early setback. Bethlehem Steel was the only issue of its kind to show some degree of strength, but reacted sharply before noon, when dealings became dull and irregular and railway issues lost much of their rise. United States Steel lacked its early support and other industrials were feverish. Bonds were irregular.

Crucible Steel's severe loss at the opening was attributed to a statement issued by Horace S. Wilkinson, a member of the executive committee, in which stress was laid on the company's financial conditions, more particularly last year, when small earnings necessitated suspension of the preferred dividend. Mr. Wilkinson's statement also implied that the reaction in the stock was due to manipulation on the part of speculators who intended selling out at higher prices. He also deprecated many other statements made in connection with the war contracts received by the company, some of which he characterized as exaggerations.

The downward trend became more pronounced in the early afternoon, United States Steel adding to its loss, while the railways forfeited all their forenoon advance. War specialties were again highly reactionary.

Selling of war shares with recessions of three to seven points and some strength in railways were the features of today's active trading.

Specialties shaded again in the final dealings. The closing was irregular.

EVACUATION OF WARSAW NEAR AT HAND

FINAL DRAFT OF THE ANSWER TO GERMAN NOTE IS APPROVED BY THE PRESIDENT AND CABINET

TO BE SENT TO BERLIN IN DAY OR TWO

Publication to Be Withheld Until It Is Actually Delivered.

Some Changes Suggested Will Be Incorporated By Secretary Lansing.

Cabinet Members Refuse to Discuss Contents in Any Way.

Washington, July 20.—President Wilson and the cabinet, after two hours discussion today approved a final draft of the note to Germany. Cabinet officers refused to discuss its contents or to intimate how the insistence of the United States to obtain a definite answer to its representations on submarine warfare had been prepared.

The note will be ready in a day or two for dispatch to Berlin. Some changes suggested in today's meeting will be incorporated and after careful revision by Secretary Lansing it will be cabled to Ambassador Gerard. Publication will be withheld until the note actually has been received in Berlin.

It was the first cabinet meeting in a month and the secretaries, returning from different sections of the country, brought to the president their views of public sentiment. Generally it was for taking a firm stand.

No Tension Manifest.

There were no manifestations of tension in official quarters, the confidence prevailing that in the absence of any new violation of American rights, the situation would not become immediately dangerous. Some officials were impressed, however, that the attack on the British steamer Orduna, endangering a score of Americans, had introduced a new set of circumstances, showing that even on voyages from Europe to the United States submarine warfare as being waged by Germany subjects neutrals to constant risks. It is not certain, however, that any reference to the Orduna case will be made in the new American note.

MINERS' STRIKE IN WALES IS SETTLED

Expected Men Will Be Back to Work on Thursday.

London, July 20.—The strike of miners in the South Wales coal field has been settled. An agreement to end it was reached this afternoon.

It is expected the miners will be back at work on Thursday. The agreement which ended the strike has been drafted and has received the approval of the miners' executive council. It will be submitted to the men for indorsement at mass meetings in the various districts tonight.

STANDARD OIL MEN ON STRIKE

Five Thousand Employes at Bayonne Plant Quit Work.

Practically Stops Loading of Case and Barrel Oil for Europe.

New York, July 20.—Virtually every workman employed by the Standard Oil company at its Constable Hook plant in Bayonne went on strike today. There are now about 5,000 men out.

At the adjoining Tidewater Oil plant the men are still at work, but they are said to be restless and the strikers say they will shortly join them. If they do, the entire production of oils, gasoline, naptha and by-products will stop.

There was some disorder at the Standard Oil plant this morning when a few of the men insisted upon going to work. Some shots were fired, but apparently they were intended only to add to the noise and excitement as no one was reported hit. The police made six arrests.

Director of Public Safety Henry Wilson of Bayonne sent almost the en-

BIG STRIKE CALLED AT REMINGTON PLANT

Over 1,000 Machinists Quit Work at Their Lunch Hour.

Labor Leaders Assert That Nothing Can Stop Action of Men.

Declare Within a Week All Work in Factories Will Cease.

Bridgeport, Conn., July 20.—Approximately 1,000 machinists, according to the estimates of labor leaders, went on strike this afternoon at the works of the Remington Arms & Ammunition company and four subcontractors.

The men walked out at their lunch hour and the labor leaders asserted they would not go back.

Plans were made for the men on strike to attend a mass meeting later in the day, where they would be placed on the strike benefit payroll at $8 a week.

Efforts Fail.

Efforts to settle the complicated labor troubles so far have failed. "Neither Samuel Gompers nor the president of the United States can stop this strike now," said J. J. Keppler, international vice president of the machinists' union. Mr. Gompers, as head of the American Federation of Labor, has called a conference of machinists officials at Washington, but those in charge of the situation here assert

CARRANZA TAKES MORE OF SONORA

Nacozari, Cumpas and Pilares Are Captured By Gen. Calles.

Expect to Occupy Town of Cananea By Next Sunday.

Situation in Mexico City Growing More Serious.

Douglas, Ariz., July 20.—Nacozari, Cumpas and Pilares, three important towns of the Moctezuma district of Sonora, have been occupied by Carranza troops, according to reports received at Agua Prieta today. This gives the Carranza forces under Gen. P. Elias Calles control of a strip of country 150 miles long, including seventy miles of the Nacozari railroad, which was being prepared to handle shipments of concentrates from Nacozari, El Tigre, and other mining camps.

Gen. Calles himself today telegraphed news of another victory over Villa forces at Villa Verde and notified his representatives here that he would continue on to Nogales, headquarters of Jose Maytorena, Villa governor, and lay siege to the place which lies on the American border.

The battle at Villa Verde occurred yesterday and Calles' message stated that the Villa forces retreated toward Nogales after three hours of fighting. The Villa losses were given at fifty-five killed and seventy prisoners. Calles also claimed to have captured two pieces of artillery, 325 rifles and a military train loaded with provisions and ammunition.

News of the victory was telegraphed to Gen. Carranza at Vera Cruz. Calles representatives here said their chief planned to occupy Cananea,

FIGHT STARTED AGAINST PROHIBITION LEGISLATION IN FEDERATION OF LABOR

Expected That Protest Will Be Adopted By Convention.

President Hall Wants Congress to Take Over the Mines.

Minneapolis Delegates Are Seated By One Majority After Hot Fight.

Winona, Minn., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fight against prohibition legislation was started this morning in the annual convention of the Minnesota Federation of Labor by the introduction of a resolution from the Brewery Workers' Union of Minneapolis protesting against the prohibition of the manufacture and sale of liquor in any form, except by and through the initiative and referendum of the people and then only in the smallest geographical unit, the municipality.

The county option law passed by the Minnesota legislature last winter, under which half of the state is now "dry," is throwing many men connected with the saloon and brewery business out of work, say the brewery workers. When the resolution is reported back to the convention from the committee to which it was referred there will be debate, but it is considered probable the convention will adopt it.

GREAT BRITAIN ASKS $750,000,000 MORE

Will Tide Over the Period of Parliamentary Recess.

London, July 20.—A new vote of credit of £150,000,000 ($750,000,000) was introduced today in the house of commons. This second supplementary vote will bring the sum actually appropriated by parliament for war expenditures to the total of £650,000,000 ($3,250,000,000).

The amount thus provided will tide over the period of the forthcoming parliamentary recess. The vote of credit does not involve new loan, but merely sanctions expenditures out of funds on hand.

Italian Loan.

Rome, July 19, via Paris, July 20.—The amount subscribed to the national loan up to Monday morning was 950,000,000 lire ($190,000,000), according to information gathered by the Banca Italia. This sum will be increased by subscriptions received by the institutes of commerce which have not yet come to hand.

Donation By Baron.

Saint Die, France, July 20.—Robert Bacon, formerly ambassador to France, made a visit yesterday to Saint Die, where he presided over the Franco-American celebration of 1911. He gave 10,000 francs ($2,000) to the relief committee for the aid of the homeless.

FIVE GARIBALDIS ON AUSTRIAN FRONT

Declare They Will Defeat Enemy or Die in the Attempt.

Udine, Italy, July 19, via Paris, July 20.—Peppino Garbaldi, his four brothers and a number of other officers who served with him in the regiment of Italian volunteers which fought with the French army in the Argonne earlier in the war, have reached the Italian front in the Cadore region. They have been attached to the Alpine brigade formed by the grandfather of the Garibaldi brothers, the famous Italian patriot, in the war against Austria in 1866.

The Garibaldians have taken an oath to defeat the Austrians or die in the attempt.

RUSSIANS IN DANGER OF DISASTER

Virtually All of Courland Now in Hands of Von Hindenburg.

Advance Along Lublin Railroad Menace From the South.

Wisdom of Abandoning Polish Capital Becomes More Apparent.

London, July 20.—The uppermost question concerning the eastern campaign now is when Warsaw will be evacuated, rather than whether it will be given up. With virtually all of Courland in the hands of Field Marshal von Hindenburg and with the Austro-German forces across the Bug, continued occupancy of the Polish capital exposes the Russians to the danger of disaster.

Windau Taken.

Through Copenhagen comes a report of the occupation of Windau by the Germans. This menace to the Russians from the north is paralleled from the southeast by the advance of the Teutonic allies on the Lublin railroad, one of the chief arteries of communication with Warsaw.

The wisdom of abandoning the Warsaw salient in favor of a straight Russian line daily becomes a more definite subject of speculation among the allies and Russian retirement from the capital before it is invested completely is predicted widely.

Advancing on Riga.

From Windau the Germans are reported to be advancing towards Riga with the intention of seizing that port and clearing the nearby seas of mines, thus obtaining another naval base. All the glory has not gone to von Hindenburg, as his colleague, Field Marshal

CONGRESSMAN GOES INSANE

Richard Parker of New Jersey Taken to Private Sanatorium.

Newark, N. J., July 20.—Congressman Richard Wayne Parker, who was committed late yesterday to the county hospital for the insane, is to be taken to a private sanatorium today by his relatives and friends. Dr. Ambrose F. Dowd, resident physician at the hospital, declared after several hours' observation that the congressman is undoubtedly insane.

Congressman Parker first developed signs of irrationality early yesterday. He had ridden on horseback from his summer home to the Newark railroad station on his way to Washington, where he declared he was needed on urgent government business, when relatives overtook him and had him placed under restraint.

FRANK'S CONDITION CONSIDERED GOOD

Prisoner Removed From Prison Hospital to Private Room.

Milledgeville, Ga., July 20.—Physicians attending Leo M. Frank, whose throat was cut by another convict at the prison farm here Saturday night, said today that Frank had passed a restful night and that they considered his condition good under the circumstances. He is able to take nourishment, but attendants have difficulty in preventing him from talking.

Physicians attending Frank issued a statement at 9 a. m. saying Frank's temperature at that hour was 100; pulse 80 and respiration 20.

Frank today was removed from the prison hospital to a private room. He stood the trip well, according to the doctors.

SOME DOG.

SUMMARY OF THE WAR NEWS

The great German offensive in the east is shown in the latest official reports to be seriously threatening Russian possession of Warsaw. Evacuation of the Polish capital cannot be far distant, in the opinion of many military observers, as from both the north and the south Teutonic pressure is being exerted with seemingly irresistible force.

In the center, Gen. von Gallwitz has driven the Russians back on the near defenses of the city, the German report claiming an advance to points within twenty miles of the stronghold.

To the southeast the Austro-Germans are pressing on the Lublin-Cholm railroad line, capturing Krasnostav and threatening by a further advance to compass an encircling movement. Further east, also, the Austrians are advancing to complement the German effort.

Windau, in Courland, has been captured by the Germans, who are advancing toward Riga, this movement in the Baltic provinces rendering the Russian lines to the south still more insecure.

Petrograd admits a general retrograde movement. Even on the old Bzura-Rawa line which so long withstood German attacks, the Russians are falling back, according to the Berlin report.

On the Austro-Italian front substantial gains are claimed by Rome in Carnia, while it is declared the assault along the Isonzo is being pursued with redoubled energy and producing gains.

Paris reports that French aeroplanes have bombarded the station at Colmar in Alsace and returned undamaged.

INDIAN HALFBREED IS FIGHTING FOR ORE LAND AND TO ESTABLISH LINEAGE

Claims He Is Son of Alexis La Framboise and Grand Nephew of Famous Chief of Big Water Tribe, and Is Entitled to Forty Acres of Vermilion Range Land—Loses First Round of Legal Battle.

No Indian brave ever cherished his lineage more than does Da-wee or David W. LaFramboise, Shakopee half-breed, who is a grand nephew of John Otherday, or Chief An-pe-tu-tok-chu of the Med-in-han-kaw-an or Big Water tribe who distinguished himself by showing heroic loyalty to the whites during the famous Indian outbreak of the Sioux in Minnesota in 1862.

With La Framboise, however, it is not altogether a matter of sentiment. His ability to establish his parentage will decide his right to a controlling interest in a valuable forty-acre tract of mineral land on the Vermilion iron range.

La Framboise has lost out in the first round of his legal battle to establish title to the land and to remove the stigma of illegitimacy from his name. But the end of the fight is not yet. Yesterday afternoon in district court La Framboise filed a notice that he ask the court for a new trial. If the court refuses the case will probably be taken to the court of last resort.

Three years ago La Framboise instituted suit to quiet title to a tract of land described as lot 7, section 6, 61-14, located about four miles east of Tower in the mineral belt. The value of the land is problematical, but owing to its close proximity to well-known iron properties, it is considered well worth fighting for.

Bought From Squaw.

R. Noble Day purchased the property from an Indian squaw in 1901. She called herself Ellen Cekiya, and claimed to be the widow and sole heir of Alexis La Framboise, who died in 1876. It is understood that Day paid $100 for it. Day resold a one-third interest in the property to one Daniel Maher, who was made a joint defendant in the action with Day. The land was patented to the heirs of Alexis La Framboise. The Federal government in 1864 gave to certain half-breed bands of Indians, among them the Sioux of the Sisseton, scrips which entitled them to locate on and secure patents to about 480 acres of government land in Minnesota. The grant was given in exchange for relinquishments of land formerly given up by the Indians near Lake Pepin.

In the division of the spoils a scrip for forty acres was awarded to Alexis La Framboise and his heirs. Alexis was of French-Indian extraction and during the famous outbreak of 1862 served the government as a scout. The question which was involved in the lawsuit is whether or not Alexis was the father of David W. La Framboise and whether David is entitled to heirship rights in the matter of his property.

The case was started before Former District Judge Dibell, now supreme court commissioner, in December, 1912, but was concluded before Judge Cant several months later. The testimony in the case was of a most interesting nature, owing to the fact that nearly all of the witnesses were Indians who participated in the outbreak, one of the famous events in Minnesota's history. One old Indian said he didn't know just what the date of his birth was, but thought it was the year the "stars fell."

David La Framboise and his witnesses claimed that Ellen (Yuhana) Cekiya, who sold the defendant Noble the property in question, was not the wife of Alexis La Framboise, and not his heir, but that one Emma (Quana) La Framboise, David's mother, was the wife of Alexis, and that he, David, is therefore entitled to a two-thirds interest in the land in question. Judge Cant, however, finds against him.

Had Three Wives.

Alexis La Framboise, the evidence discloses, was a man of three wives. The first was Quanna An-pe-tu-tok-chu, or Emma Otherday, daughter of Jacob Otherday, who in turn was a brother to John Otherday, a noted character. She is still living with her son at Shakopee.

The second wife was Ya-ha-da Ceki-ya, or Ellen Cekiya, who is a squaw now residing on the Sisseton reservation in South Dakota. The third wife was Julia McKay, whose name before her marriage to La Framboise was Julia Uta-zi-win.

La Framboise was first married in 1856 to Emma, David's mother, now aged 85. She testified that David "bought her" from her father during her 16th year. Ellen, the second wife, was her cousin. Emma admitted that at the time of the outbreak in 1863, four years before the birth of David, she knew that Alexis had been living at intervals with Yuhana, (Ellen) and that he had children by her. She stoutly maintained, however, that Alexis was the father of David, whose parentage was questioned by the defense.

Witnesses for the defense testified that David bore no resemblance to his father. Among them were Thomas Robertson, a white man, who spent the greater part of his life among the Indian people and whose wife is an Indian woman on the Sisseton reservation. Similar testimony was also given by Rev. Ezak Renville, an Indian minister, who talks no English but preaches the Presbyterian faith to the red men. He knew Alexis and Emma before David's birth more than forty years ago.

Tribal Customs Govern.

Judge Cant decided that tribal customs and not the laws of the white man governed when it came to questions of marriages and divorce. In his findings the court said:

"There is much unreliable testimony in this case. It is reasonably certain that Alexis La Framboise and the woman, Quana, or Emma, lived as members of the Sioux tribe of Indians, and that they were married according to the customs of that tribe. It is reasonably certain that according to the same customs they were afterwards divorced. For a number of years before the death of Alexis they were living entirely apart. It is also reasonably certain that the separation and divorce took place in the winter of 1862-1863, when they were living at Mendota. The evidence is somewhat conflicting, but decidedly the most intelligent of the witnesses, and probably the most reliable in every way, support the claim that, after the separation at Mendota, Alexis had nothing more to do with Emma, and that he constantly thereafter lived with Yuhana as his wife. His immediate relatives are apparently among the most credible of the witnesses. His sister has been a school teacher. They would know what his relations were with each of the women. They have no interest in telling what is untrue. The others may have some such interest. It is reasonably clear that after the winter of 1862-1863, the immediate relatives of Alexis regarded Yuhana, and not Emma, as his wife. This is quite persuasive. In addition, the Bible entries show a continuous family relationship with Yuhana from the year 1863 to his death. In my opinion the claim that the plaintiff is the son of Alexis is not sustained.

"The evidence as to the divorce was admissible, first, in opposition to the claim that plaintiff is the son and heir of Alexis; and, also, second, in support of the claim of title made by the defendants. They are in effect the plaintiffs in a case of this kind. They are called upon to prove their title. All questions of marriage and divorce with respect to Alexis and those with whom he lived are to be determined by customs of the tribe with which he lived and of which he was a part."

On July 27, La Framboise's attorney, F. D. McMillan of Minneapolis, will move the court for an order extending the time in which a motion for a new trial may be made. He will also ask for more explicit findings with reference to La Framboise's parentage.

D. G. Gearhart and Baldwin, Baldwin & Holmes of this city appeared as attorneys for Day and Maher.

POLICE FEAR CONGESTION

Ask Co-Operation of Auto Owners Attending Big Regatta.

Two Cars the Limit for Return Trips on Aerial Bridge.

Duluthians, automobilists especially, who attend the big rowing regatta at the boat club Friday and Saturday afternoons, will be asked by the police department to co-operate as much as possible in the handling of the traffic. The police had at first almost decided to refuse to allow automobiles to cross over on the bridge, but it was finally agreed that there would be more room for parking on the point side of the canal than on Lake avenue, north of the bridge.

The police do not believe that there will be much trouble in handling the crowds going over, but there will be several thousand who will all want to come back at the same time, and this will cause a congestion. It is possible that six autos will be allowed on the bridge going over, but on the return trip only two cars will be allowed. This rule will be enforced absolutely and the autoists are asked not to crowd to get on the bridge when there are already two cars on it. Without autos the bridge will hold nearly 800 persons, but the cars take up a great deal of the room and necessitate a great decrease in the number of people who can be carried.

"Fifteen thousand people and 1,000 autos, all trying to get across the bridge at the same time and acting as if they had but two minutes to live," declared Chief McKercher, "constitute a big problem for the police department, and we will have to request the public, therefore, to aid us by taking their time and not crowding."

CHICKEN OFFERED THREE TIMES A WEEK

One of Inducements to Get Men for the Harvest Fields.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fronts of employments offices in the bridge square districts are covered with posters with lettering a foot high requesting men for the harvest fields. In many cases the posters offer the men free fare to the destinations.

As another inducement to harvest hands, farmers this year are specializing in meals. Many of them, through the employment agencies, are offering the men chicken three times a week, fresh beef, boiled or fried potatoes and unlimited quantities of fresh cold milk and pies and dessert. Farmers who have had experience with harvest hands know that they are lovers of good food as well as other persons.

Dean A. F. Woods of the agricultural college said last night that about two-thirds of the college students would go to the harvest fields this year. This number, he stated, would far exceed that of previous years.

SAYS BREAKFAST FOOD STARTED FIRE

Pennington County Man Blames Spontaneous Combustion in Cereals.

St. Paul, Minn., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The destruction of a quantity of breakfast cereals caused by combustion, is the latest in fire causes to be listed with State Fire Marshal Hargadine. The report was received today from Pennington county.

According to August Carlson of that county, he stored a quantity of damp corn flakes and other breakfast cereals in the loft of his barn. During the night they caught fire and were destroyed and he blames the loss to spontaneous combustion. He says the cereals figured in a previous fire and were stored with him while damp. State Fire Marshal Hargadine is at a loss whether or not to ascribe the cause to spontaneous combustion.

WOULD AMEND MARINE LAWS

Lumber Dealers Tell Federal Trade Commission It Should Be Done.

Chicago, July 20.—Members of the Federal Trade commission concluded a two-day conference with lumbermen this afternoon and planned to leave for Detroit tonight where they will hold a hearing tomorrow.

Statements that the lumber business of the country is in a demoralized condition was repeated by representatives of industry who appeared before the commission at today's session.

E. H. Hazen of Portland, Or., representing the West Coast Lumber Manufacturers' association, summarized his recommendations for the relief of existing conditions as follows:

Our marine laws should be amended so that we can purchase ships anywhere and operate them under our flag between the Pacific and Atlantic coasts.

Railroad owned ships should be permitted to operate through the Panama canal from coast to coast.

The lumberman should be permitted to form co-operative selling agencies to care for the domestic trade.

STATE TO REOPEN ITS LABORATORIES

Closed Last April From Lack of Funds; Salaries Raised.

St. Paul, Minn., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state board of health at its meeting today ordered the reopening of the various laboratories which were closed last April because of lack of funds. On Aug. 1, new appropriations will be available and between thirty and forty persons who were dropped in April will be restored to the payroll. The meeting of the board today was behind closed doors. The members took the position that the business under consideration was wholly financial and should not be disturbed by outsiders.

Dr. H. A. Whitaker, director of the division having to do with the analysis of water, had his salary increased to $3,500. He had been receiving $3,000. Dr. C. C. Pratt in the department of preventable disease was given an increase of $800 in his salary, making a total of $1,800 a year. Miss Ruth Atlee, employed in the department, received a salary increase of $10 a month; she now receives $45 a month.

At the morning session no action was taken on the request of Dr. Bracken to be given a definite term of office or his intimation that if the board was not satisfied with his services, his resignation was ready.

MILWAUKEE CASHIER IS ROBBED OF $4,000

OLD FIGHT IS RENEWED

Grand Hotel Liquor License Is Once More Storm Center.

Residents Protest Against Permit—Petitions and Counter Petitions.

Aroused by reports that a liquor license might be issued to J. J. Frey at the Grand hotel, 5217 Ramsey street, West Duluth residents have started an active campaign against the granting of the permit.

One hundred and fifty citizens of the section who signed a protest some time ago, when Frey asked permission to run a bar in connection with his hotel, will be asked to attach their names to another petition which was started this morning.

Mrs. Carrie A. Cox, 5218 Wadena street, and Mrs. J. J. Holmes, 422 North Fifty-third avenue west, as members of a committee, conferred with Mayor W. I. Prince and Safety Commissioner Silberstein at the city hall today.

"Our talk was very satisfactory," said Mrs. Cox afterwards. "We have been assured that Mr. Silberstein will act in accord with the wishes of the majority of the citizens interested in this case, and are sure that most of them oppose the issuance of a license at that location, which is practically in a residence section."

"Mr. Frey told me that opposition to the saloon developed a year ago because a nearby building was being used for religious purposes," said Commissioner Silberstein. That was no longer the case, he said, and he believed that nothing would be said against it.

"I was not satisfied with that and told him that he would have to show me some backing before I could recommend to the council in his favor. Within forty-eight hours after our conversation he handed to me a petition containing 133 names and that seemed sufficient."

City officials say the controversy is by no means one-sided, as Mr. Frey must have a bar in order to make his hotel, one of the largest in West Duluth, a paying proposition.

"It would seem that Mr. Frey is not popular," said Mayor Prince. "As Mr. Silberstein has said, however, liquor licenses have been issued to men of less standing than Frey's. He should be allowed to earn a return on his investment on that property, which must be considerable."

Members of the Bethel Swedish Lutheran church, Fifty-third avenue west and Wadena street, propose to strenuously oppose the granting of any saloon license in the neighborhood.

"We certainly do not want the saloon there," said Rev. Carl Oberg, pastor of the church. "There are now plenty of saloons in this end of the city. A saloon at the Grand hotel building will accomplish no good and will only be a continual deft to the good work that is attempted by the church and its members."

William Holm, treasurer of the church and one of the most active temperance leaders in the district, said that the opposition to any saloon being established at that place was just as strong now as it ever was. He said that he believed Commissioner Silberstein must have been misquoted when he is alleged to have said that opposition to the saloon had been dropped.

The application for the license was made by John J. Frey at the meeting of the city commissioners yesterday afternoon.

FAIR PRICE FOR METERS

Reed Insists That New Ones Can Be Bought for $5.50.

Consumers Are Not Forced to Accept Price Offered Them.

Replying to citizens who have complained that $9 is not a fair price for water meters, which the water and light department proposes to buy, D. A. Reed, manager, this morning stated that new meters could be purchased for $5.50.

"Nine dollars is a lot to pay for meters," he said, "when you can buy new ones for about half that sum. Some citizens seem to think that we should pay them the original price of the meter, plus the interest on the purchase price."

With the August water statements, Manager Reed has arranged to send out slips telling of the plan of the department. This plan provides for what amounts to a $9,000 rebate on water bills, as the citizen who decides to sell his meter is credited with $9 on his annual bill.

"For new meters, set this year, we will allow the full $9," said Mr. Reed, "for each year the meter has been used we will figure depreciation at 8 per cent. The minimum price will be $2.50, however, and when depreciation brings the meter's value below that point, it will be disregarded."

Meters now in use have cost the owner as high as $17, according to Mr. Reed. Eleven dollars is an average price. Many machines have been in use for from fifteen to twenty years and in the meantime the market on water registers has slumped.

"It is not compulsory, however," said Mr. Reed, in conclusion. "A man owning a meter can put it to any use he desires, but we will be able to give better service if we own them all."

WILL RECEIVE $20 APIECE FOR TEN MONTHS' IMPRISONMENT

Immediate Release of Alien Laborers Will Be Recommended.

Russian and Austrian Consuls May Seek Further Remuneration.

Immediate release of nine Russians and Austrians who have been held for ten months as witnesses in the Federal action against George H. Partridge and Fred A. Harmon, doing business under the firm name of the Northwestern Construction company, will be recommended in a telegram this afternoon forwarded by Deputy Immigration Inspector O. B. Holton to the department of labor at Washington, D. C.

Three of the fifteen prisoners originally held will be taken to Canada, one is dead, and the services of two were not required.

Deputy Inspector Holton said today that his action is dependent only upon a decision in the case, which is now in the hands of a jury, which is expected to return a verdict at any time. Mr. Holton said he did not want to make any recommendation to the department at Washington until after the case had been disposed of.

Will Get $20.60 Apiece.

Each of the witnesses will receive $20.60 this afternoon for services on the witness-stand, the pay covering the time the case was actually on trial. When it is considered that some of the prisoners were in jail ten months, without pay up to the time of the trial, it will be seen that their remuneration will average but $2 a month from the date of their imprisonment. Meanwhile their families were left to shift for themselves.

If they secure any further remuneration for their time, it will be through the efforts of the Russian and Austrian consuls at St. Paul, who are now considering the case, said Mr. Holton. William Bauer, the official interpreter during the trial, went to St. Paul last night and will make a complete report on the matter to the two consuls, who in turn will petition in behalf of the prisoners to the Russian and Austrian embassies at Washington.

Mr. Holton declared today that he had learned a lesson in regard to investigations of labor cases involving the importation of aliens. He said that his relations with Fred A. Harmon, one of the firm of the Northwestern Construction company, had been badly misrepresented by witnesses.

Denies "Rot in Jail" Statement.

When asked if he had ever told Mr. Harmon that "the prisoners could rot in jail for all he cared," he hotly denied the allegation. He said he had not quarreled with Mr. Harmon, and that their relations at that time were of the best.

"The facts in the case are," said Mr. Holton, "that I wanted depositions taken at the start so that the men might be released at once to go to their families or wherever they pleased."

In his recommendation to the department of labor, Mr. Holton said he would urge that the prisoners be released on their own recognizance.

Three of the prisoners, Pawll Balonen, Fred Wolon and Nicolai Wlad are citizens of Canada and will be taken back to Fort Frances whence they came. Mr. Holton will take these with him when he leaves Duluth.

Michael Witnik, who was an old man when he began working for the Northwestern Construction company, worked but two days, and died of a cancer shortly after being taken to jail, said Mr. Holton.

The "star witness" in the case, Alex La Geot, the man who hired men for the Northwestern Construction company, could not be located by the Federal officials. This man, who is said to form the "missing link" between the company and the aliens, is said to have disappeared at a critical moment, and his testimony could not be obtained for the government.

Mr. Holton will ask release for the following prisoners: Efin Dovedov, Nicolai Karpunen, Iwan Irmakoff, Gabriel Schmoff, Pawll Baranuk, Alexis Kutyu, Emil Krechawoski, Iwan Nielinyk and Sam March.

ASK PRESIDENT TO DISMISS CLAXTON

Commissioner of Education Said to Have Made Unpatriotic Utterances.

Portland, Ore., July 20.—The subject before the National convention of the Sons of the American Revolution when it met today was a resolution introduced yesterday asking President Wilson to dismiss Dr. P. P. Claxton, United States commissioner of education. The resolutions accuse Dr. Claxton of making unpatriotic utterances regarding the American flag.

Dr. Claxton, who is at Bellingham, Wash., today said his language had been misinterpreted and that he never in his life had made a remark derogatory to the American flag.

SAVINGS INCREASE IN AUSTRIAN BANKS

Deposits First Half of Year Greater By 8 Per Cent.

Berlin, July 20, by wireless to Sayville.—The Overseas News agency today gave out the following:

Reports from Vienna say that savings bank deposits in the first half of 1915 increased 139,000,000 crowns, ($34,750,000), or 8 per cent. This increase, applied to the wohle of Austria, means a gain in savings deposits of 1,800,000,000 crowns (400,000,000). This gain has been made notwithstanding the great success of two war loans and is a splendid illustration of Austrian economic conditions.

"The speech of the Swedish premier, Dr. Hammarskjold, indicating that under certain conditions Sweden might go to war, is regarded in Berlin political circles as a warning to Russia and England.

"German field hospital service men, exchanged for French prisoners of war, complain of the treatment they received in the prisoners' camp in Corsica. They asserted the food was bad and that they were compelled to perform heavy labor and were insulted by the people."

CAN EAT PIE IN EVENINGS

David A. Tandy, Prominent Man, Tells Relief Tanlac Gave.

Indigestion and Vertigo Are Banished By New Remedy.

Dawson Springs, Ky., July 19.—David A. Tandy, a retired traveling salesman living here and widely known through the Middle West, is among the most earnest of those who praise Tanlac, the premier preparation, for the good it has done them. He is the father of the late Harry G. Tandy, formerly assistant secretary of state in Kentucky.

Mr. Tandy is 74 years old.

"I suffered from indigestion and vertigo," he said. "Sometimes I got so dizzy I was afraid to walk along the street, and would stop and hold onto a fence until I got steadier.

"My heart and stomach were affected. I didn't enjoy my meals, and could not eat solid food. I was nervous and suffered from insomnia.

"Friends of mine persuaded me to try Tanlac. I never in my life had better advice. After I had taken one bottle I felt pronounced improvement. Now I feel ten years younger. I have never found anything that gave me such prompt and marked help. Why, I can eat pie now with my evening meal, a thing I hadn't been able to do for years.

"I am glad to recommend Tanlac to any person as I did. It has done me so much good that I want it to do good for others."

Mr. Tandy's prominence is one guarantee of the earnestness of his statement. Tanlac is now on sale in Duluth at the drug store of William A. Abbett, "the careful druggist," 219 West Superior street, where Claude J. Meredith, "the Tanlac man," or an assistant is present to explain its merits to the public. —Advertisement.

FOUR LAKE STEAMERS BRING BIGGEST CROWD OF TOURISTS OF THE SEASON

Foundry Owner Says Wilson Would Carry New York Against Whitman—Woman Breeder of Fancy Dogs Here—Newark Manufacturer Talks of War.

Four lake steamers—the Noronic, Lakeland, Tionesta and South American—docked here today with the largest single day's passenger tourist business of the season to date. Approximately 400 tourists were landed in Duluth.

The South American docked at 7 o'clock this morning and three hours later pulled out, giving the tourists the big boat brought up the lake scarcely time to get out, take a couple of turns on terra firma, and see some of the sights of the city at the head of lake navigation.

Tourists coming up the lake on the Noronic had until a late hour this afternoon to get acquainted with Duluth, while the Lakeland and Tionesta will lay over until tomorrow.

George T. Bonsby, in the iron foundry business at Scranton, Pa., who follows politics as a sort of recreation, today at the Spalding declared that Wilson was his choice against the field at the next presidential election.

Wilson Entrenched.

"Wilson," said the Scranton business man and political dopester, "has surely established a strong following in the tier of Eastern states. Honestly I doubt if Whitman could carry the state of New York against Woodrow Wilson, were the present governor of the Empire state to make the run against the incumbent of the White House.

"Times are just beginning to stick their heads out of the cyclone cellar and grin a wee bit. Foreign orders are helping some, but there is discernible a wee mite more of buying upon the part of domestic consumers. There is no big double quick movement toward prosperity as yet, but things are perking up a little."

Woman Breeds Dogs.

Mrs. A. G. Partlett of Brooklyn, N. Y., registered at the Holland, is one of the most famous breeders of fine bred dogs in the East. Mrs. Partlett owns some of the blue ribbon winners at several big Eastern kennel shows and, in addition, has imported for her own kennels some of the finest toy spaniels, Pomeranians and other small breeds of dogs.

Dr. James Welsh of Battle Creek, Mich., one of the best-known physicians of that famous health resort, and the members of his family are here today, coming up the lake on a pleasure tour.

W. J. Rodney, a manufacturer of Newark, N. J., declared at the Spalding today that if the war in Europe did not end by December the trade balance in favor of the United States would be at a figure beyond comprehension.

"Europe is just beginning to fall back on the manufacturing and producing ability of the United States," said he. "During the first few months of the war the contending nations depended on their own latent resources. The drain of the most tremendous war the world has ever known is something incalculable. But the resources of the European nations are beginning to be drained and it is to the resources of the United States that they must turn."

Mr. Rodney declared that manufacturing plants in the East were working overtime because of orders received from abroad.

MARINE

BOATS OUT OF ORDINARY

Improvement in Freight Putting More Vessels Into Commission.

Independents Getting a Show; Ore Business Increasing Right Along.

The improvement in the freight market has been enough to warrant some owners adding more vessels to their operating fleets. A number of independent ships have been in ordinary either all season or the last few months. One by one independent ships have been sent out until none of the fleets is entirely idle.

Most of the ships that owners contemplate putting in operation will be in commission by Aug. 1. More boats will go into commission this week, but in most instances the vessels will not be ready to go out until Aug. 1. As soon as grain at Chicago reaches a profitable rate, a large number of vessels will go into commission. It is the current opinion that war orders and the domestic business that is going about in the steel industry will so increase the ore traffic by Aug. 1 that the fleet will be in fairly good shape.

A number of ore orders have been booked the last week and a much larger inquiry is coming out than during any time since the season for selling ore opened in April. From now until Aug. 15 it is believed ore sales will be made in larger quantities and delivery of the ore will materially increase the business for the boats the rest of the season. Wild ore has been a big factor the last two weeks and has been growing larger every week.

Grain shippers are not bidding very strong for tonnage for either immediate or future loading. Chicago shippers would charter at 1¼ cents and possibly 1½ cents for the first half of September, but the managers are not ready to do business at less than 1½ cents. Lake Superior shippers will not charter anything for future although brokers have sounded the market for storage boats to be laid up at Buffalo early in November. A firm offer of 3 cents on flax might get some of the barges, but shippers are not offering that rate.

TAKES ACTION ON BIG CELEBRATION

Munger Club First to Name Committee for Steel Plant Affair.

Members of the Munger Improvement club held their monthly meeting in the Munger school last evening. C. G. Firoved, E. A. Schulze and A. A. Fider were appointed representatives to cooperate with the public affairs committee of the Commercial club to arrange for the proposed festival in celebration of the opening of the steel plant. The members adopted resolutions favoring a great street parade and a visit to the steel plant on the day of the opening, to be presented at the general meeting of the civic associations.

The club decided to petition the city council for the construction of a culvert over the creek that crosses Eighth street between Seventh and Eighth avenues east. A sink hole on Tenth street between Tenth and Eleventh avenues east was regarded as a public nuisance by the members of the organization, and they decided to petition Commissioner of Public Works Farrell to have it removed.

A committee, composed of C. G. Firoved, Bert Kribsback and Tony Schulte, was appointed to confer with Herbert Warren, general manager of the Duluth Street Railway company, regarding the service on the East Ninth street line.

OFFICER'S REWARD FATTENS FUND

Gustav Lahti's Keen Eye Draws $100 Award for Joyce's Capture.

Because of Lieut. Gustav Lahti's keen eye, the police pension fund is fatter by $100 today.

The reward offered for Martin Joyce, wanted for breaking jail at Geneva, Ill., about a year ago, was turned over to Chief R. D. McKercher yesterday by representatives of Kane county, Ill.

Sheriff Richardson of Kane county arrived here and now is on his way home with Joyce, who fought extradition and who secured his freedom twice under habeas corpus proceedings.

Officer Lahti was riding on a Superior street trolley car July 11, when he saw Joyce on the sidewalk. He got off at the next corner and arrested him.

The reward is the first to go to the pension fund.

KILLED WHEN HIS AUTO TURNS OVER

Son of Boston Man, Known Here, Victim of Mysterious Accident.

As the result of a mysterious automobile accident at Beverly Farms, near Boston, Walter Cabot Paine, age 24, son of Robert Treat Paine, was found dead, pinned beneath his machine, according to the report which has been received in Duluth. The father was usher at the wedding on March 27 of Miss Marie Merrill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Merrill of 2626 Greysolon road, to Francis Sears of Boston.

It is believed that Mr. Paine's machine turned turtle at a sharp turn in the road, due to a miscalculation in the dark. He was pinned beneath the machine, the steering wheel having fallen across his neck.

Mr. Paine had taken the full course at Groton in preparation for Harvard. He belonged to the Institute of 1770, D. K. E., the Porcelain and Sphinx clubs, and the S. K. He was also a member of the Boston Country club. He had been with his family in their summer home at Manchester since school closed in June.

Steel Worker Gives His Record Before Asking Question.

When George L. Miller of Johnstown, Pa., asks a question, he does it in no half-hearted way.

A letter addressed to "The City Solicitor" found its way to Assistant City Attorney J. L. McHugh this morning, and he in turn forwarded it to J. Harris Trux, secretary to Mayor Prince.

"I, who am the undersigned, want to ask you a question.

"I am aged 46, married and a Protestant. My political faith is Republican and I am Lutheran in church membership. I am a member of the Sons of Veterans, the Loyal Order of Moose and the Pittsburgh Civic league.

"I am a steel worker, and have three dependents in the family. My son also is a steel worker, and I have a daughter 21 years old. The question I want to ask you is this: Where or how far from Duluth is the Minnesota steel plant?

"How far is it to the ore ranges? Are they now operating? If not, what is the prospect of an early start?"

Secretary Trux will answer Mr. Miller's questions.

FIRE CAUGHT IN WOODEN SUPPORTS

Blaze on Battleship Oklahoma Not of Incendiary Origin.

Washington, July 20.—The fire last night aboard the new dreadnaught Oklahoma at a shipyard at Camden, N. J., is believed to have originated in wooden supports and other inflammable material in the magazine space between the two forward turrets. Reports reaching the navy department today said officers thought it likely a cigarette stub or burning match had started a smoldering fire which was not discovered until night. It may, however, have been due to electricity.

Navy officials do not believe there is anything to indicate the work of an incendiary either in the fire aboard the Oklahoma or in recent fires on the New Jersey and Alabama.

AUSTRIANS PUSHED BACK FIVE MILES

Italians Said to Have Made Large Gains on the Isonzo.

Geneva, Switzerland, July 20, via Paris.—Dispatches to the Tribune say that large gains have been made by the Italians since July 16. According to these advices the Austrians have lost more than five miles in Cadore and lesser distances in Carnia, at Hochspite, Gradina, Dodero and Tellerwald, on the Isonzo. The Austrians have recaptured two positions near Tolmino and north of San Lucas.

The Tribune also publishes a dispatch from the Russian front saying that on the night of July 17-18 a fierce hand to hand encounter occurred in Rawka river in Russian Poland. After fifteen hours of fighting the Russians forced their opponents back several miles, capturing several hundred prisoners.

BRITISH STEAMSHIP IS SUNK IN COLLISION

London, July 20, 1:40 p. m.—The British steamer Polish Prince, from New York June 17, has been sunk in collision with the Lowther Range. One man was drowned, the remaining members of the crew being landed safely today at Barry by the Lowther Range. The latter was damaged about the bow.

The Polish Prince was of 1,862 tons net. From New York she went to the West Indies and thence to Queenstown, where she arrived on July 14. The Lowther Range sailed from Manchester, Eng., on July 15 for Montreal.

How Thin People Can Get Fat

Increase in Weight Ten Pounds or More

A Physician's Advice

"I'd certainly give most anything to be able to fat up a few pounds and stay that way," declares every excessively thin man or woman. Such a result is not impossible, despite past failures. Thin people are victims of malnutrition, a conditon which prevents the fatty elements of food from being taken up by the blood as they are when the powers of nutrition are normal. Instead of getting into the blood, all the fat and flesh-producing elements stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste.

To correct this condition and to produce a healthy, normal amount of fat the nutritive processes must be artificially supplied with the power which nature has denied them. This can best be accomplished by eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is a scientific combination of six of the best strength-giving, fat-producing elements known to the medical profession. Taken with meals, it mixes with the food and turns the sugars and starches into rich, ripe nourishment for the tissues and blood and its rapid effect is remarkable. Reported gains of from ten to twenty-five pounds in a single month are by no means infrequent. Yet its action is perfectly natural and absolutely harmless. Sargol is sold by Boyce Drug store and other good druggists everywhere and every package contains a guarantee of weight increase or money back.

Caution:—While Sargol has produced remarkable results in the treatment of nervous indigestion and general stomach disorders, it should not, owing to its remarkable flesh producing effect, be used by those who are not willing to increase their weight ten pounds or more.

DEATH STOPS WEDDING PLANS

W. S. Ford Was to Wed Duluth Girl—May Have Left Fortune.

A long illness due to paresis yesterday culminated in the death of W. S. Ford at St. Luke's hospital, after a pulmotor had kept him alive for two hours. He had been suffering from the disease for some time and came to the hospital five days ago, dying late last night.

He had been in Duluth but a short time and was not very well known here. He was to have been married to a Duluth young woman in the near future, illness having made necessary the postponement of the marriage several times. C. E. Whitney and S. Abrams of the Columbia Clothing company were both acquainted with Mr. Ford but not intimately. From them was gained the information that he was born and raised in Ontonagon, Mich., and that he had an uncle in Akron, Ohio.

It was rumored that Mr. Ford was the possessor of considerable wealth, having sold some mining property at Ontonagon, Mich., which brought him nearly a quarter of a million dollars. This fact could not be verified, however. He bought about $100 worth of clothing at the Columbia Clothing company's store recently, and while there told Mr. Abrams that as soon as they were married he and his wife were to leave for a trip around the world.

No arrangements for the funeral have been made as yet, pending the receipt of word from relatives. The body is at Stewart's undertaking rooms.

Mrs. Joseph Fels Will Talk on Single Tax and Equal Suffrage

MRS. JOSEPH FELS.

Three talks on the single tax and universal suffrage will be given in Duluth tomorrow by a woman who is known internationally in connection with these two movements, Mrs. Joseph Fels, wife of the late multi-millionaire soap manufacturer of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Fels will be a guest at a luncheon at 12:15 o'clock at the Commercial club, which has been arranged by a committee made up of G. W. C. Ross, John Stone Pardee and Senator Richard Jones, to which about fifty invitations have been issued, and she will speak following the luncheon.

In the afternoon, Mrs. Fels will speak at the library clubrooms at a meeting planned by the Duluth Equal Suffrage club, which is open and free to all people of Duluth who are interested, and a general invitation is extended to all.

Again in the evening, Mrs. Fels will speak at 9 o'clock at an open meeting of Clan Stewart in Foresters' hall.

Mrs. Fels is interested in the peace movement and will touch on that topic in her talks tomorrow.

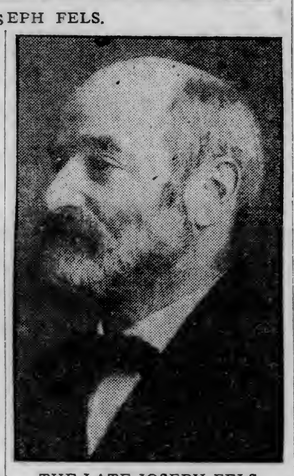

Mrs. Fels' Plans.

Mrs. Fels, who is well known in England as well as the United States, just before sailing for this country recently wrote the following announcement of her plans concerning the Joseph Fels Fund commission:

"Philadelphia, April 15.

"The time has come when you would naturally expect a formal statement of what I shall do toward a repewal of my husband's agreement with you and the Singletaxers of the United States. I am sorry to disappoint you, but cannot say just yet what I shall be able to do, except that after a few months I hope to meet all your present expectations and carry out my husband's part in contracts made and plans laid. I mean that I will continue his $2,000 a month to July 1, when I should be able to report more definitely as to the future. I hope, I may say expect, by that time to see my way clear to renewing our offer to match dollar for dollar all the money contributed by the Singletaxers of the United States, up to some such limit as $25,000 per annum.

"The delay is due in part to settling the estate; but also it is my desire to comprehend, personally, the policy, plans and personnel, not only of the United States commission, but of similar groups and commissions working toward the same end in England, Denmark, Germany, France, Spain and other countries, where Mr. Fels was giving support to our cause, his and yours and mine. It seems right to me to look over the whole field, then, to resume the work everywhere at about the same time with a clear, personal knowledge of the movement in all its parts and as a unit. And I may then have a suggestions for all the commissions for some loose sort of co-ordination and active interchange of ideas and experience.

THE LATE JOSEPH FELS.

"There is another reason for my wishing to begin getting into close touch with all parts of the movement. I do not want to give money alone; I want to give myself to this cause of justice, as my husband gave himself. It was a happiness to him to work for it; it will be a happiness to me. And if I give my personal service thus, it may put me in a position to plead for personal service from others also; and not as a duty, either, but as a happiness.

"That, as I understand it, is why you of the commission are so urgent in your appeals for a large number of small contributions of a dollar or less. You want the contributors. From my heart, I approve that policy. It is human; it is democratic; it is good politics. If every man and every woman—if every giver of a dime would give himself or herself also; if each self-giver would then go out and get others, and having their dimes and dollars, would send them on to get yet others in the same spirit, we would soon have this country girdled with living chains of living people all devoted happily to a happy cause.

"I shall sail for England on April 28. I am going there to work. While I am working there, you will be working here to continue the movement started spontaneously by the contributors to 'match their own dollars as Joseph Fels did.' The results already achieved indicate that it may succeed. If it does, it will indeed be a monument to Joseph Fels, for that was his spirit.

"I should be glad to be reduced to merely one of many equal contributors and workers in our cause; equal, not in amounts of money, but in the heart we all put into our work. In a word, I would like to match you all, but especially the humble givers, not only dollar for dollar, but man for man, woman for woman. "MARY FELS."

Peggy Peabody's Observations

Don't Marry Too Young.

Late marriage, it is claimed, is answerable to a large degree for a great part of the existing immorality of today. If the ambitious standards of social life and increased cost of living are responsible in a great measure for the postponement of marriage, it would appear that these and not the age of marriage were the matters to be revolutionized before any lasting good could result.

Marrying early in life has its advantages and disadvantages. Perhaps its disadvantages outweigh its benefits in the twentieth century, with woman more and more asserting herself and clamoring for her rights. There was a time when women practically allowed themselves to be married to men of their parents' choosing, whether the men were to their liking or not, and never after kept faith, though genuine happiness was never their portion.

The trouble with the average American youth and maid of today is that they do not know their own minds. They are not as serious at the ages of 18, 20 or 22 as their mothers and fathers were before them. They seldom realize the seriousness of marriage. Inwardly they argue that freedom from ties that chafe and bind is easy of accomplishment. Too rarely do they determine that they will make the best of this chosen lot which has proven uncongenial.

Marriage founded upon love is the need of this age which is descending more and more into commercialism. If a man and woman love each other they will survive the misfortune of the worst kind and be all the nearer and dearer for it, but if they do not love, it takes only a little thing to start them on the road of disagreement than those who marry a little later on when the judgment had been more permanently formed and life had taken on a more serious aspect.

I have observed many instances where two young people have married either before or at the age of 21, which is supposed to be the normal marrying age. A good number have experienced all sorts of unhappiness and some have never arrived at a comfortable state of bear and forbear, or even tolerance of each other's weakness.

Of course there is no married couple too old for differences or even for divorce, but surely the greater number of warring married people are to be found among those who married young, who did not know what was desirable in a life partner and who would not, at their age, have recognized what was for their truest happiness if you had passed it to them on a silver salver.

FRANK W. HEIMICK, FRIEND OF DULUTH NEWSIES, DEAD

Was Mysterious Benefactor Who Gave Boys Christmas Eve Papers.

Little Merchants Donating Their Pennies for Floral Offering.

FRANK W. HEIMICK.

The mysterious friend of Duluth newsboys is dead.

Many others who have been beneficiaries of his bounty are also mourning the death of Frank W. Heimick, one of the most widely known men in Duluth. Mr. Heimick succumbed to an attack of pneumonia at his residence, 1029 East First street, this morning.

Surviving him are his widow, his mother, a sister, Miss Helen Heimick, and a brother, Phil F. Heimick, all of Duluth. No funeral arrangements have yet been made.

Mr. Heimick was 41 years of age and was a native of Saginaw, Mich. He has lived in Duluth for twenty-two years, most of which time he has been associated with M. H. Ailworth in mining and other interests. He has taken a prominent part for years in the business life of the city and had hundreds of friends in Duluth.

Few men in Duluth were more philanthropic than he, but in this particular he was noted for keeping his light under a bushel. His giving was wide spread, but scores of needy people and public institutions benefited by his generosity without knowing the source.

Newsies' Santa Claus.

Mr. Heimick's inclination this way became known to The Herald by reason of his generosity to newsboys. He was the mysterious man who, for eleven years, each Christmas left orders with The Herald to give the "newsies" all the papers they wanted free of charge, and requested that The Herald urge, through its columns, that those purchasing the paper from the little merchants pay in large coin and accept no change. Then he would get out on the street and be one of the most liberal purchasers. It was a standing rule in The Herald office that the identity of the "mysterious donor" must not be revealed, and that rule is broken only because he has passed on.

Even the boys did not know the identity of their benefactor, but today they are making a collection to send a floral wreath for his funeral.

Christmas was not the only time that Mr. Heimick gave to the newsies. He felt keenly for the little fellows, and the penury that drives most of them onto the street to earn a few pennies for themselves and their home folks appealed to him strongly. But always his giving was done quietly.

Funeral announcements will be made later by the family.

STANDARD OIL MEN ON STRIKE

tire police force of the city to the plant. If there is further disorder Mr. Wilson will ask his fellow commissioners to vote money for special police.

Starts in Small Way.

The strike trouble at the works first appeared last week when the still cleaners, a comparatively small part of the working force, went out because their demands for an 11-per-cent increase in wages was not granted. They were followed yesterday by the men in the barrel shops, 900 in number, who had asked for 15 per cent increase. Today the rest of the employes refused to go into the works.

The strike puts an end for the time being to the loading of case and barrel oil for Europe. There are six steamers now tied up at the piers in the Kill Von Kull which skirts the plant. They will probably be towed out into the stream and anchored off Tompkinsville if the strike continues. They are in various stages of loading. All six are said to be destined for England.

The men who struck today made no demand for increased wages, but it is thought likely that they will do so before they return to work. At present their strike is of a sympathetic nature.

where large American mining interests are centered, before next Sunday. In the meantime, he hopes to drive Maytorena out of Nogales. He will then have control of the chief Sonora border points—Agua Prieta, Naco and Nogales.

Carranza Has San Luis Potosi.

Laredo, Tex., July 20.—Tampico advices today confirmed the taking of San Luis Potosi by Carranza forces under Gen. Navoa. Some fighting occurred, but there were no heavy losses of life before the city was evacuated by Villa troops.

A large smelting company sent eighteen carloads of bullion into the United States here today, making a total of forty-two cars this week.

Millions Reach Vera Cruz.

Galveston, Tex., July 20.—Gold and silver bars to the value of $30,000,000 reached Vera Cruz yesterday from the mines at Pachuca under military escort, according to information reaching the Constitutionalist consulate here today. The shipment is the property of foreign mining companies and will be forwarded to New York.

The report adds that food supplies in large quantities are entering the capital and are being distributed. The Carranza government is accepting all kinds of paper money from the poorer classes in payment for food.

There was no news of military operations in today's dispatches.

Causes Concern.

Washington, July 20.—Renewed military activity in Mexico was causing officials here some concern today. With Carranza troops leaving Mexico City to battle approaching Villa forces and food supplies again cut off from the capital by military use of the railroad to Vera Cruz, it was feared here hunger would again menace civilians.

Meanwhile news of renewed fighting in the north is reaching here. Carranza forces were declared to have taken Naco, Sonora, on the border and an army of the first chief is reported moving on Cananea and Nogales.

Latest official reports received here said that most of the Carranza forces under Gen. Gonzales had evacuated Mexico City and were speeding northward to engage Villa's forces who were approaching the capital after having taken Pachuca, forty miles distant.

The situation surrounding the Mexican capital is regarded in official circles as very grave and further developments are eagerly awaited.

When You Wash Your Hair Don't Use Soap

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.—Advertisement.

delegation from the Minneapolis Trades and Labor assembly was seated by a vote of 129 to 128. At times there were scenes of wild excitement. President E. G. Hall and Secretary G. W. Lawson defended the federation in its efforts to expel the delegation, while Louis Harthill of Minneapolis was the principal defender of the position of the Minneapolis assembly. The association officials presented a formal bill of charges.

Mr. Harthill defended the assembly's right to criticize and to a free press. Further he said, the Minneapolis assembly had been convicted even before being tried. Mr. Harthill's point was that if the central body in Minneapolis were denied delegates in the convention, every local union affiliated with the assembly, likewise, should be suspended, for they "are equally guilty." The intimation was that the foundation of the federation was being threatened.

The vote whitewashed the Minneapolis delegation.

President's Report.

President E. G. Hall's report, presented yesterday afternoon, opened with a paragraph of gratification in that he was able to report that organized labor has fared much better here than in many of Minnesota's sister states, this applying to every activity of the Minnesota branch of the American labor movement.

The report of the commissioner of labor at the Duluth convention contained a recommendation that the Federation appoint a conference committee for the state labor department. Those appointed are: Frank Gould, a member of Minneapolis Typographical union, No. 42; C. M. Hillman, a member of Minneapolis Machinists' lodge No. 447; J. P. Walsh, a member of the St. Paul Carpenters' union and the St. Paul's Building Trades Council; A. L. Rich, a member of the St. Paul Steam Engineers' union and the Twin City Engineers' joint council, and George W. Lawson, the secretary.

Recommendations Made.

President Hall recommended that efforts be made to establish a closer relationship between the Minnesota Federation of Labor and the Minnesota branch of the American Society of Equity; that the incoming officers be instructed to promote, as far as possible the "farm to table" movement through the medium of the parcel post, eliminating to the utmost extent the middleman and the addition they make to the cost of living; that the demand be made of congress to take over the mines and mining properties of corporations and operate them for the good of the whole people wherever a condition arises that entails hardships and oppression on workers and consumers, and that the government also take over the telegraph and telephone lines and operate them for the good of the whole people. Finally he recommended:

Legislation Suggested.

"That the incoming officers be instructed to have prepared, if funds permit, bills to be presented to the next legislature regulating and limiting the use of injunctions in labor disputes, the importation and use of gunmen in such disputes, and the enlargement of the number and functions of free employment bureaus; and that they be further instructed to cooperate with affiliated unions in getting their bills before candidates for the legislature, and that central bodies where they are in operation and unions in localities in which there are no central bodies, be urged to appoint legislative committees to bring their bills and the needs for the same to the attention of such candidates in a forcible manner."

President Hall also submitted the legislative report covering the activities of the federation along legislative lines at the last session of the Minnesota legislature. One notable achievement of the session was the enactment of the semi-monthly payday bill, an act requiring all public service corporations doing business in Minnesota to pay their employes at least semi-monthly. The house passed a bill providing for one day's rest in seven but this measure met death in the senate, where it died on general orders. Therefore, said Mr. Hall, for some time to come the man, woman or child who works in Minnesota will be considered of less account than the beast of burden or the machine, each of which is receiving greater consideration month after month.

More Unions Affiliate.

The report of Secretary-Treasurer George W. Lawson states that since the Duluth convention fifty-two unions with a membership of 2,434 have joined the federation. All unions behind in per capita tax have paid the bills sent by the secretary-treasurer with one exception. The number of members added to the numerical strength of the federation brings the total membership up to 3,200, making an additional per capita tax of $64.00 per month. Only one union, that of the machinists at Proctor, withdrew from the federation during the year owing to lack of funds due to slack work.

The Northwestern Blue Label conference elected the following officers: President, A. J. Goodnow, St. Paul; first vice president, Frank Hasler, Red Wing; second vice president, George J. Fischer, Winona; secretary-treasurer, E. G. Hall, St. Paul; executive board, the president and vice president, Frank Hasler of Red Wing; George J. Fischer of Winona; Albion Weigel of Minneapolis, and J. D. Chubbick of Minneapolis.

Printers' Conference.

At the annual meeting of the State Federation of Typographical Unions, it was decided to take a referendum vote on levying a five cents per month assessment for carrying on organization work. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, G. T. Winberg, Minneapolis; vice president, George Webster, St. Paul; secretary-treasurer, H. F. Holcomb, St. Paul; executive board, William B. Zuehlke, Duluth; E. P. Spink of Hibbing; P. J. Stadler of St. Paul; Ed Vandersluis of St. Cloud; Robert Zeitlow of Winona; G. W. Deacon of Minneapolis, and A. O. Anderson of Brainerd. At the close of the meeting a collection was taken up to purchase a souvenir to present to President Winberg in appreciation of his good work.

they will not heed the call.

All Work Will Stop.

Within a week, according to plans of labor leaders, all work in the Remington shops and in the factories of sub-contractors will be at a standstill. There are from eight to ten thousand persons employed by the Remington company and it is estimated that, including other local factories, 25,000 or more would be thrown out of work.

In addition to the new plant of the Remington Arms & Ammunition company, strike calls were today issued for the machinists working in the Bridgeport Engineering company, the Columbia Nut & Bolt company, and the Gaynor Manufacturing company. The men were to walk out at noon. Less than 500 machinists are employed in the three last named plants.

Demanded Strike Call.

At the Bridgeport Engineering company the men demanded that they be given the strike call because they said they were dissatisfied with working conditions. The call was issued for the Columbia Nut & Bolt company, J. J. Keppler, international vice president of the machinists' union said, because of a statement attributed to Fred Atwater, treasurer of the company, which quoted him as saying, "the more hours they make and the less money they receive, the better off they are. They will not have time to hang around in saloons."

The Gaynor Manufacturing company is engaged in making rifle bullets for Great Britain and her allies. When announcement was made that the men in these three plants would walk out, all was in readiness for the beginning of the strike at the Remington plant.

A member of the militia here said today that a quantity of riot ammunition had been received at a local armory late last night. The members of the militia, he said, had been instructed to hold themselves in readiness. This information could not be confirmed this forenoon. Extraordinary precautions to preserve order were taken by the police today.

For Bullard Company.

Later it was announced that the strike call also would be issued for the Bullard Machine Tool company, where thirty-five men were discharged last week. It was said that only a few machinists were working at the Bullard company now. Advertisements for machinists have appeared, however.

It was said at the headquarters of the bricklayers' union here today that 100 men who had been working on new buildings being erected for the Remington company by the Stewart Construction company, did not go to work today. They were informed last night that because of lack of work they were not needed.

The bricklayers had worked up to the point where the structural iron workers quit. All the bricklayers on the new plant, it was said, would have to stop work within the next two days. When they quit the hod carriers also will have to stop working.

Agitators Numerous.

Agitators were today going among the great number of Hungarian workers of Bridgeport, urging them to attend a strike mass meeting called for tonight. More copies of a Hungarian newspaper, containing articles advocating the walkout of the Hungarian workers in the plants of the Remington Arms & Ammunition company and various plants of the sub-contractors were circulated.

One of the editors of the paper still denied that he had received any inspiration for the articles printed. He reiterated his statement of last night that the Hungarian workers were entitled to share in the immense profits being made by the war munition factories. That idea and that alone, he added, was responsible for the agitation.

von Mackensen, is credited with the capture of Krasnostav.

On the western front the Germans apparently are content to maintain a series of sporadic attacks on various portions of the line. Paris claims the Germans suffered severe losses in an unsuccessful assault on the heights of the Meuse.

Closing in on Warsaw.

Berlin, July 20, via Amsterdam and London.—Important successes for the Teutonic allies all along the battle line in Russia, from the Baltic sea to Bukowina, are claimed in an official statement issued today at the German war office. The army of Gen. von Gallwitz is said to be standing in force on the Narew line southwest of Novo Georgievsk, one of the girdle of fortresses which protects Warsaw and only ten miles from the Polish capital.

With the capture of Windau the Germans have come into possession of another seaport on the Baltic and are within a few miles of Riga, seat of the governor general of the Baltic provinces.

The German and Austrian forces are said to have taken prisoners 45,000 Russians.

"Shook Strength of Enemy."

Vienna, July 19, via London, July 20.—Victories of the Teutonic allies all along the eastern battle front on the 18th "shook the strength of the enemy's resistance," according to an official Austrian war office statement issued tonight. The assertion is made that while the Russians brought up all the reinforcements available they were unable to hold their positions.

Germans Occupy Tukub.

Petrograd, July 20.—German columns have occupied Tukum, thirty-eight miles west of Riga and Doblen, eighteen miles west of Mitau, according to an official statement issued at the headquarters of the Russian general staff tonight. After capturing these points, they advanced southward against Hofzumberge and Benen.

French Statement.

Paris, July 20, via London.—The official announcement from the war office this afternoon says that a squadron of six French aeroplanes bombarded the station at Colmar, capital of Upper Alsace. The aeroplanes returned undamaged.

The text of the communication follows:

"In Artois, in the vicinity of Souchez and near Neuville St. Vaast, there was a violent bombardment last night and some fighting with grenades to the northward of Chateau Carleul.

"In the valley of the Aisne a fairly lively cannonade was reported and the town of Soissons was bombarded.

"On the heights of the Meuse, the night was a lively one, but without infantry action except near Calonne, where two German attempts to take a trench were easily repulsed.

"Four of our aviators dropped forty-eight shells on the junction station at Challerange, to the southward of Vouziers.

"A squadron of six aeroplanes this morning bombarded Colmar station. Eight shells of 150 millimeters (six inches) each and eight shells of 90 millimeters were dropped on railway buildings and trains. It has been established that damage was done to the main station and the freight station. None of the shells fell on the city. Our machines returned undamaged."

POPE DECLARES HE WAS MISQUOTED

Disavows Latapie's Article in Letter to the Archbishop of Paris.

Paris, July 20.—An autograph letter from Pope Benedict to Cardinal Amette, archbishop of Paris, contains the following:

"We absolutely disavow Latapie's article which represents neither our ideas nor words, and was published without our revision or permission."

The pope repeats his previous declaration that his views are to be found in public official statements and not in accounts of private conversations.

To make his attitude still clearer the pope enclosed a copy of an interview given by Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, to the Corriere d'Italia of Rome; and letters of the cardinal to the Belgian and British ministers to the Vatican, the former condemning the invasion of Belgium and treatment of the clergy, and the latter affirming that the pope never pronounced against the legality of the blockade of Germany.

Pope Benedict's letter was in reply to a letter from Cardinal Amette, who said that the Latapie interview had produced a painful impression in France.

KELLERMAN'S BODY IS FOUND IN RIVER

Aitkin, Minn., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of John Kellerman, who disappeared from his home last week, was found floating in the Mississippi river near his home, three miles west of here. The funeral was held Sunday.

Having previously suffered a stroke of paralysis and being unable to help himself, it is thought he fell into the river and was drowned. The widow and family of grown children survive. He was 68 years old and a native of Germany.

WARSHIPS OF ITALY ACTIVE

Cruisers Approach Port of Cattaro, Bombarding Territory in Vicinity.

One Ship Failed to Get Away and Sunk as Reported.

Rome, July 19, via Paris, July 20.—The following statement was given out at the ministry of marine here today:

"Since the last statement of July 7, the navy has intensified its action in co-operation with the aerial service against the enemy's coasts in the lower and upper Adriatic. The following operations on sea were carried out:

"In the Dalmatian archipelago: Cutting cables near islands which, on account of their proximity to our coasts, constituted effective centers for observation by the enemy; destruction of depots for revictualing barracks, factories and torpedo boats on one of the islands and the capture of a few prisoners.

Bombard Cattaro.

"At dawn on the 18th a division composed of the old cruisers Varese, Francesco Ferrucio, Giuseppe Garibaldi and Vettor Pisani, approached the waters of Cattaro, manifesting its presence by bombarding and seriously damaging the railroads of the locality, while other warships, acting against Cravosa, destroyed a machinery depot, the barracks and several other military buildings and landed a party which made a reconnaissance on Giuppana island. Enemy cruisers which had taken refuge at the Cattaro base, which although of obsolete type could have offered opposition to our old cruisers, did not come out from the port, but nevertheless kept up steam. While our ships were drawing off they made an attack by submarines and the Giuseppe Garibaldi, after avoiding the first attack, was struck by a torpedo and sunk.

Most of Men Saved.

"The crew preserved discipline and behaved with coolness, shouting several time 'Long live the king!' before jumping into the sea in obedience to orders. Most of them were saved.

"Among the most remarkable aerial operations must be cited the bombardment by one of our dirigibles on the 17th, off Trieste. The technical establishment was badly damaged in the previous raid of the fourth. This time bombs thrown on these important workshops started a fire so extensive as to be visible twenty miles away.

"Our seaplanes dropped bombs on Austrian destroyers protecting Fasana canal near Pola. Two other seaplanes bombarded the battery near the Salvower lighthouse on the 14th. One of our dirigibles bombarded with excellent results the Trignano station and Trieste railroad yards at Monfalcone on the 16th.

"On the 17th an enemy seaplane belonging to a small squadron which flew over Bari and Barletta was captured with two officers."

Farmer Kills Large Lynx.

Ray, N. D., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—A large lynx was brought to this place and attracted a good deal of attention, as the animals are rarely seen in this part of the country, especially of recent years. The big cat was shot by Marvin Tancre, a young farmer living south of here, in a piece of timber near his place. The lynx measured over five feet in length.

KRINGLE BOUND OVER.

Chauffeur Driving Auto When Two Are Killed, Must Answer.

Cumberland, Wis., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Alfred Kringle of Mikana, who was driving an automobile from Campia to Mikana the night the car went over a steep embankment, killing Mrs. Anthony Kling and her sister, Mrs. Julia Paczkowski of Milwaukee, had his preliminary hearing yesterday and was bound over to the circuit court, charged with manslaughter.

At the coroner's inquest, it is claimed, the evidence showed that young Kringle had been drinking and was under the influence of intoxicating liquor at the time of the accident, and the coroner's jury returned a verdict that the two women came to their death through the negligent driving of Kringle while intoxicated. Kringle was released from custody upon furnishing bail.

THREE SEEK MEETING.

No Decision at Woodmen Convention as to 1917 Gathering.

St. Paul, Minn., July 20.—Atlanta, Ga., New York and Excelsior Springs, Mo., were the first, second and third choice, respectively, of the delegates to the Woodmen of the World convention for the next biennial meeting of the organization, last night. Final selection of one of the three cities is left to the grand officials.

A lively tilt resulted when Dr. J. J. Andrews of Tennessee offered an amendment to the bylaws which would give the sovereign physician full power in the naming of camp physicians and would eliminate the right of appeal to the sovereign commander. The amendment failed when put to a vote.

The bylaws were changed in a manner that will prohibit representatives of competing fraternal insurance orders or old line insurance companies from becoming members of the legislative body or delegates to the sovereign camp.

Practically all business before the convention was completed last night, and the remaining days of the meeting will be devoted principally to social activities.

NORTH DAKOTA FAMILY BARELY ESCAPES FIRE

Cayuga, N. D., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—After getting his family to safety, through a bedroom window, Peter Pieterick, a farmer near here, followed them just as his bed caught fire in a blaze which completely destroyed his home and contents. Nothing was saved, the family barely escaping with their lives, in their nightclothing. A farmhand sleeping in the second story jumped to safety through an upper window. The fire is believed to have started from a carelessly thrown cigarette stump.

GREAT INCREASE IN STATE BANKING

Deposits Make Gain of $10,291,510 During the Past Year.

St. Paul, Minn., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—A net increase of $10,291,510.42 in deposits and an increase of sixty-four banks are features of a bank call covering business up to June 23, last, made public today by A. H. Turrittin, state superintendent of banks. Comparisons are made with a call issued June 30, 1914.

There are 917 banks operating under the authority of the state banking department and the call shows this number with resources of $184,864,763.48 and liabilities of a like amount. The prosperous condition shown is the greatest in the history of the state banking department.

Under the head of loans and discounts, an increase of nearly $13,000,000 is reported. Perhaps the only bad showing is that of over-drafts, of which an increase of nearly $41,000 is reported.

DULUTH CLAN WINS AGAIN

Clan Stewart Captures Prize in Nation-Wide Campaign for Members.

Second Winning of Contest; Chief Macaulay Takes Individual Honors.

Clan Stewart, Order of Scottish Clans, of Duluth, has again won the principal prize for the largest increase in membership during a given period. The contest was nation-wide, and the Duluth clan had for its competitors lodges from coast to coast. Clan Stewart rolled up the largest increase in membership between January and July of this year, which was the period fixed. During the previous six months, Clan Stewart also captured the principal prize in a similar contest.

Angus G. Macaulay, chief of Clan Stewart, is winner of the prize offered for the clansman bringing in the largest number of new members individually. The prize in this case was a gold watch, valued at $50. This contest also was nation-wide, and Mr. Macaulay far outdistanced all competitors.

Clan Will Celebrate.

The winning of the prizes will be appropriately celebrated at the meeting of the clan tomorrow night, at Foresters' hall, Fourth avenue west and First street. Business of importance with reference to the royal clan convention, to be held at San Francisco next month, will be discussed.

The meeting will begin promptly at 8 o'clock, so that all the business will be attended to in time to give way to the public meeting which will be held in the same hall at 9 o'clock at which Mrs. Joseph Fels, Daniel Kiefer and Dr. Slaughter will speak on the single tax and kindred subjects.

To the public meeting women are invited as Mrs. Fels is particularly concerned in interesting women in the work that she has undertaken since the death of her husband last year. Her late husband is reputed to have financed the budget campaign in Great Britain when Lloyd George forced the landowners, for the first time, to pay taxes. Daniel Kiefer is an active single tax advocate and was associated in the campaigns for the single tax with Mr. Fels, throughout the United States and Canada.

HOWLING WOLVES SPUR HIKING GIRLS FASTER

Big Bay, Mich., July 20.—Miss Nellie Kunz, daughter of Mrs. Fremont Clark of New Richmond, Wis., won a novel wager the other day. One of the teachers here, where Miss Kunz has been visiting, wagered a month's pay with Miss Kunz and a girl chum that they could not walk to Marquette, a distance of thirty miles, in one day.

The young ladies promptly took it up. They started at 6:30 a. m. and reached Marquette at 9 p. m., weary and footsore, but jubilant over their victory. Toward night they walked along a railroad track, through adense growth of timber, and heard the cries of wolves not a great distance away.

The girls took to their heels and ran their level best, making good their getaway without even looking back.

CUMBERLAND'S CANNERY HAS COMMENCED WORK

Cumberland, Wis., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Cumberland canning factory started canning the season's pack of peas, and the quantity and quality is the best harvested here for years and will net the farmers a very remunerative return. W. C. Pressing Canning company is operating the factory this season under a lease from the owner, Grafton Johnson.

AMUSEMENTS

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Baldwin Players in "Madame Sherry."
GRAND—Vaudeville and Motion Pictures.
REX — Photoplay, "The Flaming Sword."
ZELDA—Photoplay.

BREEZY BILL AT GRAND.

Bright and Classy Offerings Make Up Popular Summer Show.

The new show which opened at the Grand yesterday is well adapted for summer entertainment of the popular brand. Vaudeville, with a liberal sprinkling of music and comedy, and photoplays of heart interest make up the entertainment.

Nettie Carroll, with a group of winsome misses, comes in for unusual attention as they perform on the tight and slack wire. They are as much at home on the wire as "The Swiss Family Robinson" was in the treetop. They eat a meal, dance, romp and do numerous other "stunts." The young women are unusually attractive.

"Hiring a Maid" is the homely but interesting title to a sketch presented by Mr. and Mrs. Capellan. The wife, to "get something on" her hubby, impersonates a girl applying for work and her husband is "found out" when he carries on a lively flirtation with the charming would-be maid.

Burnham and Yant in a singing, dancing and talking diversion, have a breezy conglomeration of entertaining bits, which make up twenty minutes of laughter and cheer. Judson Cole, in a clever sleight-of-hand act conals a goodly number of chuckles with his original comedy talk and dexterious manipulations of his hands.

"The Criminal," a Vitagraph photoplay in three parts, features Maurice Costello and Miss Norma Talmadge, two stars of universal popularity. A Billy Reeves comedy film brings forth peals of mirth when the Irish are pitted against the "Dutch" in a neighborhood fight. Several other good photoplays are shown.

Today and tomorrow the eighth installment of the prize serial, "The Diamond From the Sky," will be shown as an added attraction.

Theater Gossip.

Duluth Elks gave Miss Edna Munsey a royal reception at the Lyceum last evening.

ELKS' NIGHT AT THE LYCEUM Purple and white, the colors of the lodge, were used in the decorations, and on each of the lower boxes was a massive elk's head, the horns of which were tipped with lighted globes. It was Elks' night, in honor of Miss Munsey, who is the daughter of a former exalted ruler of the lodge, George S. Munsey, and the biggest week night audience of the Baldwin season was in attendance. Miss Munsey received a beautiful bouquet of American beauty roses from the lodge, and was also greeted with the most enthusiastic applause on her appearance. The Elks left no doubt of their friendly feeling toward Miss Munsey with the reception they gave her, and their enthusiasm increased as they had an opportunity to enjoy her work in "Madame Sherry." The other women in the cast were not forgotten by the Elks, and bouquets of peonies were presented to Miss Geraldine Blair, Miss Maud Melville and Miss Marie Campbell.

Friday evening the visiting oarsmen and their followers will be guests at the Lyceum. The company is planning some special "stunts" in addition to the regular performance, in honor of the oarsmen.

"Madame Sherry" is proving the most popular bill the Baldwins have yet given, judging from the box office receipts. Next week "The Little Millionaire," another musical production will be the attraction, and the company will then probably return to drama.

* * *

On the large list of stars controlled by the B. A. Rolfe company for appearance in motion pictures are Willam Faversham, S. Miller Kent, Oliver Wyndham, Orrin Johnson, Jane Grey, Lois Meredith, Edward Connelly, Lionel Barrymore, Valli Valli, and of this long list no two are more popular or more widely known than Jane Grey and Lionel Barrymore, who make their appearance in the "The Flaming Sword," appearing at Rex Beautiful Monday and Tuesday.

TWO STARS IN REX FILM.

"The Flaming Sword," is a bristling story of the rocky Maine coast, the blighted life of a loving husband and the faithful love of two young people.

In the war pictures telephonic orders are received to send an aeroplane on scouting duty. Wounded soldiers are shown physically re-educated, captive balloons are used for observation and a destroyed bridge across the Yzer is shown. A beauty show is also one of the interesting events, showing today and tomorrow.

"The Ladder of Love" is the title of the feature production at the Zelda theater that will end its engagement tonight after the last performance.

THE ZELDA PROGRAM.

In connection with this the Zelda offers a mixed program, consisting of five or six other pictures, such as a comedy entitled "Many a Slip." Charlie Chaplin is also on the bill and he holds his popularity with a very strong grip. The Universal Weekly is also a part of this program, showing the current events in different parts of the world, as well as Hy Mayer the world's famous cartoonist. A very pretty picture is a Pathe colored film, "Oxford to Windsor." The Zelda singer, Miss Della Jones, is heard with the pipe organ accompaniment.

Tomorrow the Zelda will present a Shubert and William A. Brady feature production in five acts, entitled "The Lily of Poverty Flat," with the Broadway noted star, Beatriz Michelena. This production will be shown for two days only, Wednesday and Thursday, and in connection with it a one-reel comedy with Charlie Chaplin, a one-reel drama and another single reel comedy.

GATELY STORE WILL BE ENLARGED

Another Floor Will Be Added, Declares General Manager.

According to Fred E. Harwood, general manager of the Gately stores, who is in Duluth for a visit of a few days, another floor will be added to the local Gately store, 8 East Superior street, within a year. Mr. Harwood is making the regular annual inspection tour of the western territory of the company, and reports that Duluth shows the same signs of optimism and prosperity that he encounters all along his line. The third floor, now used for handling country trade, will then be turned over to city trade.

Hope was expressed by Mr. Harwood that the opening of the steel plant would not result in a spectacular boom, but rather a steady increase in the property values. He hinted that Duluthians should "watch their step" in connection with the advertising of the opening of the steel plant. If the fact is too broadly advertised the city will be flooded with laborers from all parts of the country and conditions would be far worse than they are now, declared Mr. Harwood. Such is the condition now at Gary, Ind.

Following his visit here, Mr. Harwood will leave for the Gately store at Calumet, Mich.

MANY BOYS ARE LEARNING TO SWIM

Qualify for Buttons at Y. M. C. A. Pool—All-Night Trip to Zenith Island.

Interest in swimming is growing with each day at the boys' department, Y. M. C. A. Not only are many boys learning how, but those who already know are striving to become more efficient. At the pool yesterday the following boys qualified as 200-yard swimmers: Clark Crosby, Matthew Swerdolph, Robert Johnson, Gerald Prince and John Mitchell. This afternoon they will swim fifty yards on their back, and tomorrow will dive and bring up a seven-pound object. They then will be entitled to wear the swimmer's button which is awarded by the athletic league of New York. Swimmers may try for the swimming honors any day after the regular swimming at the pool.

Quarter, half and mile-swimming will be the next feature. A boy may swim the quarter mile and will then be known as a quarter-mile swimmer. He can leave that class and get into the next as soon as he qualifies.

This afternoon the regular Tuesday afternoon of outdoor games was held at the grounds on West Third street. Baseball, quoits and other outdoor games were played, after which the boys had a swim.

Tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 a party will leave for outdoor swimming on Part Point. Each boy will bring his swimming suit and car fare. After the swim there will be games.

If enough boys want to go, the all-night trip to Zenith Island will be taken. The party will leave Thursday afternoon and return Friday night.

STREET MAY YET BE RESURFACED

Farrell Still Hopeful of Having Pavement Repaired Without Cost.

East Superior street between Sixteenth and Twenty-fourth avenues probably will be resurfaced without cost to property owners.

Works Commissioner Farrell announced yesterday that negotiations with the National Surety company to have the work done by them under Contractor Patrick McDonnell's surety bond were progressing satisfactorily.

"To save property owners $350 a lot," said Mr. Farrell, "I have been pressing the question of repair under the bond and expect the company to start work in the near future. One of their representatives has looked over the stretch of paving with me and estimates now are in the company's hands.

"The bonding company has taken an exceptionally fair attitude and may either resurface the street or turn over to the city a sum in consideration of the bond."

When Contractor McDonnell paved East Superior street with tar macadam, 35 cents a yard was added to the cost, for a ten-year guarantee.

Soon after Commissioner Farrell took office, City Attorney H. F. Greene handed down an opinion that the city had a claim against the contractor's bondsmen.

Quick, Painless Way to Remove Hairy Growths

(Helps to Beauty)

Here is a simple, unfailing way to rid the skin of objectionable hairs: With some powdered delatone and water make enough paste to cover the hairy surface, apply and in about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and every trace of hair has vanished. This is quite harmless, but to avoid disappointment be sure to get the delatone in an original package. — Advertisement.

Swedish Church Notes.

The Luther League of the First Swedish Lutheran church, Sixth avenue east and Third street, will hold its regular meeting tonight at the church parlors. Rev. J. M. Nervig, pastor of the Norwegian Lutheran church of the West end, will be the speaker of the evening. Rev. Next Friday, July 23, at 8 o'clock, the Luther league will give a concert for the benefit of the Minnesota college building fund. The college is this year erecting a $60,000 building. Dr. Frank Nelson, president of the college, will be the speaker. Miss Alice Margrethe Olsen will be the soloist on piano and organ. Miss Olga W. Johnson, soprano, will give two vocal selections, and the church choir will render two songs.

THREE PRIESTS ENTER CONTEST

Bishop Recovers From Illness and Begins Work on Bazar.

Bishop James McGolrick, who was confined to his home for several weeks with an attack of lumbago, is very much improved in health and last evening he met with the general committee of laymen representing each Catholic parish in the city, who are arranging for the bazar to be held for the benefit of St. James orphanage.

It was decided at the meeting held last evening to hold the bazar the week of Sept. 20, but the location will be announced at a later date. One of the interesting features will be a contest between three of the local priests, for a set of vestments to the one securing the most votes. The names of the three clergymen who have already started with vigor are Father O'Donahue of St. James orphanage, Father Thibodeau of the St. Jean Baptiste parish, and Father Icek of the Polish church.

Discusses the Soul.

The Bible chautauqua now being conducted by Pastor Stemple White in the pavilion near the Y. M. C. A. is proving to be a real Bible school. He has provided a special blackboard on which he makes chalk talks as well, in the elucidation of mighty topics. Last evening, when he spoke on "What Is the Soul?" he placed a list of scripture quotations on the board, showing the manner in which the word "soul" is used all through the Bible, and declared that in all the 878 places where the word is mentioned in the Bible, not once is it called immortal, but that eternal life is a gift through Jesus Christ on conditions laid down through the gospel. Tonight Mr. White will speak on "Where Are the Dead?"

A DULUTH AND MINNESOTA CELEBRATION.

One point that should be impressed on the mind of every citizen of Minnesota during the next few weeks is that the whole state is to share in the benefits of the new steel plant. It will be Duluth's steel plant and Minnesota's industry, and it will boost the Gopher state in the ranks of American manufacturing as no other institution has ever done.

With the opening of this immense plant the phrase "made in Duluth" will take on a broader and broader significance, and Minnesota will become known as the state where the iron is not only dug out of the ground, but where it is put through the necessary processes preliminary to its entrance into all the avenues of commerce and industry.

The following editorial paragraph appeared the other day in the Eveleth News:

> The best piece of news received on the iron ranges in some time was the statement last week that the steel plant at Duluth was to be finished and put into operation at once. The order from the Steel corporation to complete the plant at this time means the return of activity in the steel industry and prosperity for the ranges.

Duluth is planning on a big celebration of the opening of the steel plant, and this paragraph from the Eveleth News is but proof that other places in Minnesota are becoming actively interested in the event.

It is to be hoped that the entire state will join in making the celebration an event in keeping with that which it is intended to emphasize. The new concern will be known as the Duluth steel plant, but its influence and its benefits will extend to the whole state. That is why the celebration on November 1 should be made unanimous for Minnesota.

At last there is a point in the Berlin-Washington correspondence on which both sides agree—Berlin says the torpedoing of the Nebraskan "was an unfortunate mistake."

ABATING A NUISANCE.

It appears that at last one nuisance that the people of nearly every part of Minnesota have endured at one time or another is in a fair way to be abated. This is the "circulation contest" habit that has been acquired by many newspapers that found it difficult to persuade people to subscribe.

Two years ago some of the state legislators who had grown weary of being importuned to buy worthless and unwelcome periodicals in order to help some friend's friend get some sort of a prize, proposed a law aimed directly at this prize contest business. The bill was tempered considerably in tone before it became a law, and publishers whose chief hope of getting circulation lay in resorting to the contest nuisance thought they were safe.

Recently, however, some of the state newspapers have been planning new contest propositions, and some have even gone so far as to announce their plans. And now comes an opinion from the attorney general, upholding the law and its intent. In a letter to the East Grand Forks Publishing company, the state's legal bureau says:

> You propose to open a circulation contest, the plan being to offer a piano to the contestant securing the largest number of votes to be given away with subscriptions. There are to be ten other prizes for the next ten contestants. The contestant receiving the largest number of votes receives the first prize, the next largest number the second prize, etc.

The letter then quotes the statutory provision in full, and continues:

> It is apparent that the procuring of the prize or prizes offered by you depends upon a contingency; namely, that the persons who receive such prizes shall receive the largest number of votes. It is my conclusion, therefore, that the scheme proposed is in violation of the law.

This ought to put a permanent quietus on the ancient fraud of the "circulation contest." That it is a fraud is the recorded declaration of various organizations of advertising interests, and the firm belief of any person who has ever been hounded by the primary victims of such schemes, these victims being the guileless ones who are induced, by the hope of getting something that for many never comes, to beg their friends to invest in something they don't want.

In this kind of business The Herald never has taken part. Its policy has been to give its subscribers their money's worth in the paper itself, and under this policy it has been unnecessary for the publishers to hire people to take it by offering them other articles in addition to the publication. The more than thirty thousand subscribers to The Herald subscribed because they wanted the paper itself—not in order to get potato mashers or ink bottles or catsup labels, or to oblige friends.

Neither did they subscribe so they could have something to put in their pockets to read on the car; but that they might have a real newspaper in the house when they get home at night—a newspaper that is read by the women (who do the buying) as well as by the men.

The newspaper that gives its subscribers their money's worth does not have to resort to tricks and gifts and cut rates and contests to bolster up its circulation, and the letter from the attorney general's office gives basis for a hope among the people of Duluth and other parts of the state that at least one of the these forms of public nuisance is now permanently abated.

"Col. Roosevelt passed through here this afternoon. There was no demonstration," says one telegraphic dispatch. Another one: "Several thousand persons were at the station when Harry K. Thaw arrived here."—The king is dead; long live the king.

THE HIGH PRICE OF SELF-INDULGENCE.

A young Italian, Ralph de Palma, distinguished himself recently by winning a five-hundred-mile automobile race at Indianapolis. He made the distance in five hours, thirty-three minutes and fifty-five and a half seconds. His average speed was 89.84 miles an hour, so most of the time he was going at the rate of ninety miles or better.

Now it took several very interesting and very valuable faculties to do this feat.

It took nerve—not only nerve in its idiomatic or slang sense, but sound, true, steady, never-flinching, never-failing nerves—the kind of nerves that only a thoroughly healthy person has.

It took muscle—strong, active muscle responding unfailingly to nerve directions.

It took quickness—quickness of thought and action.

It took endurance, a thing compounded of strength and nerve, knit by perfect health.

It took all these things in abundance.

After thinking thus about this feat of de Palma's, it is not surprising to learn these things about him: that he neither smokes nor drinks; that he "lives a life of clean restraint;" that his life and mind are as clean as his body and his nerves and his muscles.

A man may smoke in moderation, even drink in moderation, and still live a passably good life. Yet what he drinks and what he smokes, and whatever he does to depart from a "life of clean restraint," is at the sacrifice of some of the qualities that enabled de Palma to win that race.

If winning automobile races were all, this life of clean restraint would not, perhaps, be much to celebrate.

But winning automobile races is NOT all. The faculties that will win an automobile race or a foot race or a game of nerve, agility and endurance will WIN THE GAME OF LIFE; for physical soundness is the foundation of a sound mind.

The cost of self-indulgence is high. It is paid in loss of EFFICIENCY.

Do you ever get to thinking that maybe you're asleep and when you wake up you'll find there really isn't any such war at all?

BE COMFORTABLE.

Washington Star: These are trying days, hot and humid, and despite the generally moderate weather that Washington has experienced this season it is difficult to endure the heat. The season of precaution is at hand, when it is necessary to take thought of the daily routine in order to avoid certain dangers incidental to the weather.

Following this paragraph the Star prints a list of precautions as to food, clothing, exercise, etc. They make odd reading to Duluthians, who in spite of the fact that certain summer precautions are necessary here as well as elsewhere, are not accustomed to tying themselves down in rigid fashion.

There is one sentence in the above that is especially striking. "Despite the generally moderate weather that Washington has experienced this season, IT IS DIFFICULT TO ENDURE THE HEAT."

Washington is not the only place where that statement would apply. Watch the weather reports from day to day and see the different cities where the mercury climbs to ninety or above—and imagine what it must be like to have such temperatures, accompanied by the high relative humidity of the air in so wet a summer as this has been.

A bit of advice can be given the people in every one of these localities in which "it is difficult to endure the heat," and that is to BE COMFORTABLE. And if they ask how in blazes they can be comfortable, tell them to come to Duluth. Send postcards or letters or any other form of message to your friends in the hot belts and remind them that there really is a place where they can get away from the extreme heat.

The word that Washington and other Eastern places are suffering in this way reminds one forcibly of the fact that the government has overlooked a big point in not establishing an official and permanent summer capital at Duluth, but it is impossible to account for many things governments do, and this oversight no doubt must just be added to the rest of them.

Meanwhile, we in Duluth can be comfortable while the others swelter, and it will be but an act of humanity to let as many outsiders as possible know of the advantages of this favored spot.

Any chance for popular song writers on that naval board?

No, Clarissa, ability to knock the housefly doesn't indicate great skill at baseball.

The threatened increase in the price of shoes will please the small boy by making his parents less opposed to his going barefoot.

The House of Clark

By Sarovard.

Washington, July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—A touch of nature makes the whole world kin, or words of that import writ by somebody a hundred years ago. And all our hearts must go out to Champ Clark and Mrs. Champ, particularly Mrs. Champ—on the occasion of the marriage of their daughter, and auspicious be the day.

The first time I saw Champ Clark was when he made his debut in the house of representatives, a great big giant of a man physically, with a teeming mind in his great big head. I wrote a letter to my paper about that speech and happily it rather pleased Champ, for he hunted me up and we have been pretty good friends ever since.

At that time Bennett—Champ's son—was an infant in arms. Champ told me one day that when his son was born he insured his own life for $10,000, the thing to mature at his death or when that boy was 21 years old; that the money should then be given to Bennett, and he might do with it as he pleased. In that same conversation Champ said that nobody—not even himself nor Mrs. Clark, even—should ever lay violent hand on that boy in anger until he was able to take care of himself. That kindly eye of his was brilliant and glittered when he made that declaration.

Two or three years later I met Champ in social converse and he announced the happy tidings that a daughter was born to the house of Clark and that he and his good wife were joyous in the new association. Then and there I reminded Champ of what he had said about the boy. Said I: "Suppose this chap should some day be found hectoring that girl, I bet you or Mrs. Clark would spank him."

Except the late John G. Carlisle, Champ Clark has, on occasion, the most saturnine countenance of any eminent American. He merely cleared his throat and gazed at me, and he spake not a word. And from all accounts of Bennett he has never "hectored". Genevieve.

And now Bennett has been married. May all the good fairies there are wait on Hymen and follow in that god's train. I knew Bennett when he was a boy, as bright a chap as you ever saw, born to politics, a good looking fellow, but not nearly so handsome as his sister. Bennett is the pride, as Genevieve is the love, of the house of Champ Clark. And if Genevieve had been a boy, her dad might be president right now. I am "sorter" persuaded that Mrs. Champ and the daughter are the real politicians of the family. I hope this is no serious reflection on Champ and Bennett. If so, I take it back.

Except John Quincy Adams, I know of no boy in American history who had the chance to make a statesman such as has come to young Bennett Clark. The last time I saw him he was at school and then his knowledge of American political history was simply enormous. His dad is a great teacher of that sort of thing and young Bennett Clark enters our politics the best equipped man for the fray of anyone since Walker Blaine, certainly—since John Quincy Adams, probably.

But human genius is a fickle jade and scorns heredity. In his way Champ Clark is a genius. Has he transmitted the quality to his offspring? I hope so, and the last time I talked with Bennett I believed so. There is one good thing about Bennett—he has never got too big for his britches, as some of the sons of great men do, unfortunately for themselves and for their daddies.

Bennett is an immense Democrat with a big D—that is, a party man—and he is an enormous democrat with a little d—that is, a people's man. There is no yellow streak about him. He is much of a man and when he grips the hand of labor, whether from farm, or shop, or mine, this chap's heart goes out to that son of toil. I think I can say that for this young fellow.

Some day he will be sent to congress. He will be as well equipped fellow for the job as you ever saw. If he is endowed with as big a mind as his daddy's he will climb to the top, as his daddy did.

He is a fine chap, is young Bennett, worthy his daddy and Mrs. Champ and Miss Genevieve.

Looking Backward

William Allen White in the Emporia Gazette: "Say, mister, that man told me to get you to give me the brick stretcher; he wants it," said a small boy to an Emporia man Saturday afternoon.

The old-timer gasped and then covered his mouth with his hand, and said: "Well, we just sent it over to the blacksmith shop to get it repaired; you will have to go after it."

The kid ran along and the old man and his cronies laughed, but the event had stirred up memories of the old man's own younger days, when he had chased after impossible things, and he sat for a while, sober and reflective.

As the kid days came back, he remembered the hot summer day when a greasy handed imp of Satan, posing as a plumber's helper, sent him after a left-handed monkey wrench. And he imagined he felt again the smarts and welts on his legs that followed a visit, years ago, to a grouchy old harness maker with a request for a pint of strap oil. A little further along he remembered how he missed his supper and got a whipping for chasing to every paint shop in town for some striped paint, which a tramp painter needed at once for redecorating a barber pole. And as he sat, he went again on counting fruitless trips after white lampblack, italic spaces, oven keys, tenk wrenches, stovepipe shears and dot and dash oil for the telegraph office.

The joke was not as funny when he remembered the old days. A little of the baffled feeling that he had known as a child came back and again the childish dread of being teased came over him. The boy came back along the other side of the street, dodging from hardware store to blacksmith shop, from blacksmith shop to implement shed.

"Hey, kid," the old man called, "there ain't no such thing as a brick stretcher. Those fellows are codding you. Here's a dime; go get yourself an ice cream sody."

Getting Even.

London Opinion: "Don't you care for any post cards today?" asked a postal clerk, as he handed the man the stamp he had requested.

"No, not today," said the man.

"Or some stamped envelopes? We have some new ones."

"No, thank you."

"Would you like a money order?"

"No."

"Or perhaps you would like to open a postal savings account?"

But the man had fled.

"Who was that fellow, and why did you ask him all those questions?" asked a fellow clerk.

"That," said the other clerk, "is my barber. For years when he has shaved me he has bothered me with recommendations of massages, shampooing, hair cuts and hair tonics. I am even with him now!"

Newspapers Must Be Free.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: Ivy Lee probably earned all the Rockefellers have paid him when he advised them not to establish a chain of daily newspapers to defend their industrial policies. A kept newspaper can't even fool a part of the people a part of the time.

Wanderer.

Fun: "Are you married, my man?" a woman asked a sailor.

"Yes, indeed, mum—married and fourteen children."

"Poor fellow, traveling about like this! And don't you ever get homesick?"

"Only when I'm home, mum."

Husbands and Wives in Professional Team Work

From the New York Sun.

That matrimony can go hand in hand with a community of personal and professional interest is shown in the increasing number of husbands and wives who do team work in the home and in their professions. Among those who are at the forefront in the same profession are Louise Closser Hale and her husband, Walter Hale. Each is an actor of note, and together they are successful co-workers in the field of literature and art.

The literary work of Mr. and Mrs. Hale follows a line somewhat similar to that of the Williamsons, whose dual novels are enjoyed by a vast number of persons on two continents. As it was an impulse, backed by necessity, that induced the English writers to hurdle onto the literary campus, so it was quite as spontaneous a suggestion that led the Hales to follow suit. Mrs. Hale writes books and short stories and her husband illustrates them.

Because of Mr. Hale's health the couple repaired to Italy four or five summers ago for a motor trip. Every one goes to Italy, Mrs. Hale observes in her usual serio comic style, when they are broken-hearted, and they inevitably take to writing. So, she says, what was more natural than in the search for health and necessary resources, we should each attempt self-expression with pad and pencil.

"It was dire necessity that drove us to it," said Mrs. Hale in her pretty apartment overlooking Central Park North, "and the result was 'A Motor Car Divorce.' In the beginning Mr. Hale had had experience, for he studied drawing in the Minneapolis Fine Arts academy and was a successful architectural draughtsman before he went on the stage. I was, though, quite inexperienced, as I never knew I could write. Even now I can't say it's easy for me. I don't write with the same enthusiasm that I act.

"It was only after we had motored several summers in Europe that we decided to turn our experiences to account. Little by little I found I could write acceptably, so we kept right on. I write the stories and Mr. Hale illustrates them. We always confer on the idea to be illustrated. I make suggestions about his composition and he assists me in turning the situations to mutual account. There is only one unfortunate thing about it and that is that he prefers architecture and I prefer people. However, we don't quarrel about it, although sometimes a person might think we did.

"One reason for our success in matrimony is undoubtedly because we have always insisted upon having a home. I try to impress on young actresses who get married the desirability of having their own home, if it is nothing but two rooms and a kitchenette. You see, if a man has only his trunk and a girl hers, it is quite the easiest thing in the world to pick up and leave."

Everyone knows the Kinneys whose collective signature is attached to so many illustrations, pictures and etchings, and more recently to an unusual book, "The Dance," written by them and profusely illustrated by original colored plates of world famous dancers.

No better example of mutual collaboration exists than this illuminated tome. It fully covers the subject, the matter for which being collected by the writers from all over the world. It was begun with no idea of the magnitude of the task, for it assumed unlooked for proportions in the energy demanded and the amount of time consumed in its preparation.

"We decided we would give up 100 evenings to getting the book written, explained Troy Kinney in telling of his literary experience. "It ended by our spending 100 evenings and a year both day and night. It seemed to grow in proportion as our enthusiasm increased and many a night we have worked until 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning."

It would be hard to find a husband and wife who do more or better team work. The partnership began when they were married. In order to prevent strangers as well as their friends from knowing precisely what part the other took in an illustration they assumed the joint signature. As a result they are pointed out as a practical example of what matrimony and business can accomplish when sympathetically yoked together.

Few persons know that James Montgomery Flagg, the illustrator, has a wife who is as talented in her way as he is his. Mrs. Flagg does beautiful book binding for which her husband draws the designs. She has a studio in West Fortieth street and her work stands side by side with that of experts in this line.

All who read books and magazines are familiar with Mr. Flagg's pretty girls, but they do not know that the face peering out of most of his canvasses is that of his wife. She has impressed his illustrations not alone with her likeness, but by her friendly counsels as well.

Down in Washington square, where artists dwell, is another pair of young artists who are doing team work. They live on the ground floor of one of those fine old residences once dedicated to New York fashion, but now to fashion specialists of another sort. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bevans are fashion illustrators for a number of the most widely known publications and they collaborate in their work. Both frequently work on the same drawing if it happens to be a rush order.

Mrs. Bevans often acts as model for her husband, and piquant beauty lends to his work much of its charm. Mrs. Bevans frequently draws in the backgrounds, puts in the faces and "hangs" the gowns, giving them the proper feminine touch, while her husband does the rest.

Charles Rann Kennedy and his talented wife, Edith Wynne Matthison, the husband a playwright and author of "The Servant in the House" and "The Terrible Meek," and the wife a Shakespearean actress and impersonator of her husband's roles, find their best efforts come from correlated interests and mutual sympathy each with the work of the other.

May Wilson Preston, one of the popular illustrators of the day, is in close professional sympathy with the work of her husband, James W. Preston, who is a landscape painter. George Middleton, playwright, and his wife, Fola La Follette, actress, writer and suffrage leader, are another couple who, although both individualists, work together in sympathetic union.

Only a Gnat, Maybe.

San Francisco Bulletin: There is a principle called historical perspective. It means that the further a particular segment of history recedes the less excited one gets over it. Historical perspective enables us to judge the men of the pre-glacial age with considerable tolerance, though there would be a race war in five minutes if any of them moved into our neighborhood to live. It would be good for us all if we were able to look at the men and events of our own time in the same unprejudiced spirit with which we regard the elections of 4567 B. C. We could still stand up for principles, and if a principle got stuck in the mud we could put our shoulders to the wheel and push, but we would not yell and pound the horses.

In times of public excitement all sense of perspective is lost. We look at the gnat that is buzzing before our eyes as though it were as large as a ferocious Bengal man-eating tiger, but it may be only a gnat, for all of that.

Life's Bargain.

Agnes Laut in the Century Magazine: For we take out of life just what we put into it. If we give to life only complaining, life gives back only a many-echoed wail of our own whining. If we give to life joy, life throws back to us all those gracious, joy-laden gifts that the ancients picture spring tossing out of her lap to youth. Happy dreams send us out into the day glad. Nightmare thoughts project their dull shadows across the day.

A Double-Headed Wrong

Editorial in the New York World.

The fact that a British commission is now visiting the Scandinavian countries and that these countries have entered a formal protest at London should not escape the attention of the American state department. This commission is instructed to find out the exact needs of Denmark, Norway and Sweden in the way of supplies from the United States, so that Great Britain may hold our trade with those countries in check.

Of course the British theory is that the great increase in commerce of late between this country and Scandinavia is explained by the trans-shipment of commodities to Germany, but this is merely an assumption. It is an assumption, moreover, which rests upon the assertion of a British right, regardless of law, to regulate or prohibit trade between neutrals in time of war.

Nothing in the recent German proposal to permit the United States on certain conditions to operate a few ships in the war zone was more offensive than the policy thus outlined in London. Except that in the case of Germany, which has nothing but submarines at sea, we have been confronted by the menace of "accidental" death, the principles on which the two belligerents are acting are precisely the same. Both invade neutral rights. Both violate the law of nations. Both deny the sovereignty of independent nations.

In the note which we sent to Great Britain on March 30 last, we entered an emphatic protest against unlawful interference with our ships and cargoes. We have had one or two expressions of opinion and explanations since then from the British government, but they were not responsive to the note, which remains practically unanswered.

Making due allowance for the horror of the Lusitania massacre, which for a season centered attention upon Germany, we believe that in the absence of further depredations upon American lives and commerce by submarines, we should maintain our position as boldly against Great Britain as against Germany. Hating, fearing and fighting each other, they are essentially in accord in denying us the use of the seas.

Germany's excuse for the misuse of submarines against merchantmen is that international law must give way to new weapons. Great Britan's excuse for blocking neutral ports is that when international law was established, railroad transportation had not made trans-shipment to enemy territory easy. Both, therefore, proclaim themselves above the law and take refuge in expediency and necessity.

There is a double-headed wrong here with which we must deal severely and impartially. If we attack it in all of its phases we are the more likely to triumph over it. Indeed, since the injustice aimed at us is retaliatory as between Great Britain and Germany, it is probable that in no other way shall we be able to make ourselves heard and respected by both.

Just a Moment

Daily Strength and Cheer.

Compiled by John G. Quinlus, the Sunshine Man.

Where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them. (Matthew xviii., 20).

If Christ had said, "Where five or six hundred are gathered in my name, there am I in the midst of them," how anxious we should have been to attend great meetings, that we might get near the Lord! But he says, "Where two or three are gathered together." If he had said, "Where bishops or popes or great men are assembled, there will I be," we should travel the world over to attend such assemblies. But we go to the prayer meeting, and we find only half a dozen, and we think it is best to adjourn. We say, "There will be no one there but that old lame brother, and that blind sister, and that deaf one," and so we stay away. When we believe what Christ has said we will not open a prayer meeting by asking him to come and be in our midst, but we will come expecting to find him, and will simply say, "Speak, Lord; for thy servant heareth."—H. L. Hastings.

Here are eight different terms to express the final state of the church: "glorious," "spotless," "without wrinkle," "without any such thing," "holy," "without blemish," "unblamable," "unreprovable"; and Jude has one more adjective, "faultless." Think of it. Even you are to be presented faultless before the presence of his glory. The presence of God's glory is so awful that when Daniel himself, the wellnigh perfect man in Babylon, was confronted with the vision of the glory, he says, "My comeliness was turned into corruption, and there remained in me no more strength." The very things that he had prided himself upon—his virtue, his morality, the excellence of his character, and the blamelessness of his life—when the glory of the Son of God beat upon him, lost their beauty, and his very comeliness was turned into corruption. And the holy man of God, John, who leaned on the breast of Jesus at the supper, tells us that when he beheld the vision of the glory of the Lord he "fell at his feet as dead." And yet—astounding fact!—you and I are to be presented faultless before the presence of that same glory. It will remove the last taint or scar of sin, so that even God cannot find a remnant of sin, not a trace of guilt, not even a scar left by the wounds of sin on your soul, in your final, ultimate, glorious perfection.—Arthur T. Pierson.

God and the Farmer.

God sat down with the farmer
When the noontide heat grew harsh,
The One had builded a world that day,
And the other had drained a marsh.
They sat in the cooling shadow
At the porch of the templed wood;
And each looked forth on his handiwork,
And saw that the work was good.

On God's right hand two cherubs
Bent waiting, winged with fire;
On the farmer's left his oxen bowed
Deep bosoms marked with mire.
Still clung around the plowshare
The dark mysterious mold,
Where the furrow it turned had heaved the new
O'er the chill and churlish old.

Jehovah's face was seen not
By ox or grazing kine;
But the farmer's eyes, were they dazed with sun,
Or saw he that look divine?
Was it the wind in passing
That stroked that farmer's hair?
Or had God's own hand of wind and flame
Laid benediction there?

Through muffling miles he fancied
Far calls of greeting blew,
Where on sounding plains the lords of war
Hurled down to rear anew.
Glad hail from nation-builders
Crossed faint those dreamland bounds,
Like a brother's cry from a distant hill,
And God spake as the pine-tree sounds.

"There are seven downy meadows
That never before were mown;
There were seven fields of brush and rock
Where now is no bush nor stone.
There are seven heifers grazing
Where but one could graze before.
O lords of marts—and of broken hearts—
What have you given me more?"

God rose up with the farmer
When the cool of the evening neared;
And the One went forth through the worlds he built,
And the one through the fields he cleared.
The stars outlasting labor
Leaned down o'er the flowering soil;
And all night long o'er His child there leaned
A Toiler more old than toil.

Mankato Free Press: Some people are born great, others have greatness thrust upon them—and still there are others who imagine they are great.

Stillwater Gazette: The barefooted boy is beginning to get into the game—stubbing his toes and running splinters into his feet.

It Does and Will.

Chaska Herald: We have a real governor and the state should feel proud of him and hang on to him.

Winona Independent: After having walked ten miles the small boy returns from a triumphant fishing excursion, in which he captured a minnow and had three nibbles.

Worthy of Peggy Peabody!

Virginia Virginian: Apply the lesson you have from the European war to your domestic affairs. It is cheaper to arbitrate than fight.

Hurrah for Minnesota!

Stillwater Gazette: There is no doubt but that Minnesota, the Star of the North, offers more and better attractions to the settler than any other of the entire forty-eight states. This is admitted by practically the entire population of the state, some two and a quarter million people. The resources are greater in many respects than any other, the wonderful iron mines of the North being excelled by none. There is never a crop failure in Minnesota, insuring the farmers, the backbone of the people, a steady and sure income. The water is pure and sparkling, containing healthful properties unexcelled. The climate is the finest in the world, although in the winter months we have bracing weather, but it is exactly what is needed to keep the people toned up. What more do you want? Come to Minnesota and ever afterward live happily.

Returns Many Fold.

Red Wing Eagle: An advertisement is to a merchant very much what sowing seed is to a farmer. It may take a little time for the results to become apparent, but they are sure to come. The wise farmer is not niggardly with his seed, nor the wise merchant with his advertisement.

The Police Force of the Future.

Newton D. Baker in the Atlantic: We must stop regarding policemen as mere keepers of order, and we must enlarge our view of their duties far beyond the arrest of criminals and the terrorization of the neighborhood small boy. They must be selected with reference as much to their ability to catch and spread the spirit of the social advance as to their personal courage and cleverness in following the twists of the criminal mind. Their chief use will some day be the stimulation of social self-control, for even now the most powerful force for the preservation of order is not the force shown or even implied by the policeman, but that innate sense for order which we Americans have and which we enforce by the pressure of neighborhood opinion and crowd self-respect. We can begin now to build the police force of the future. A good start would be made if a probationary period were established during which men too young for admission to the regular force could be in training for it. During that period the duties assigned should be largely on the social side,—duties such as sanitary inspection, traffic control, the regulation of amusements, and patrolling parks and public places in which people congregate for recreation; this work, under such conditions as conduce to the development of the social sense, would therefore train into these future policemen, in their impressionable years, a sympathy with people, born of association with them and of helpfulness extended to men and women and children as part of a duty flowing from employment by society itself.

How She Looked.

Collier's Weekly: "I lost a dollar at the matinee this afternoon," remarked the fleshy woman to her husband, "and I never was so angry in my life."

"How'd it happen?" asked the man.

"I dropped it in the aisle," she answered shortly, "and I looked for it—that's all I could do."

"Did you look good?" persisted the head of the house.

"Did I look good?" shrilled the woman, really angry now. "I looked as good as a fat woman crawling around on all fours ever does."

LEARNING SLOWLY.

To the Editor of The Herald:

How long is it going to take some of those reckless auto and jitney drivers and motorcycle speed fiends to realize that there are at the head of Duluth's safety and police department two men who will see to it that the laws pertaining to the regulation of auto, jitney and motorcycle traffic will be enforced to the letter? The brains of some of those offenders seem to be very dense. Life and limb are too precious to be endangered by the criminally careless actions of such reckless specimens of humanity. But the public of this fair city can rest assured that Commissioner Silberstein of Duluth's safety department and Chief of Police R. D. McKercher with the aid of the police force will gradually and surely clean out this class of lawbreakers. PEDESTRIAN.

DULUTH'S BATHING BEACH.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I visited the bathing "beach" at Fairmount park recently and I admit that had it not been for the bathhouse locations situated above on the steep, muddy bank I would have been unable to find the much-heralded place at all. If one should stumble twenty feet from the edge, he would probably roll into the water, whether or no. The bottom is rocky and muddy, rises easily and has no sand beach. One of the principal joys of an open air bath is to roll in the clean, hot sand afterwards; a good "sun-soaking" is a wonderful thing for the health, but even with a keen imagination it is difficult to find the pleasures of rolling in the mud. I think the place could be vastly improved by a scowload of sand or two dumped on the bank (after the grade had been lowered) and along the bottom of the inlet.

But aside from that, the place is so far from the center of town and the East end that it seems almost as if it might be a suburb of Minneapolis. Duluth needs not one bathing beach, but several, and it is a need not to be sniffed at. Other lake and coastwise cities spend large amounts annually for the supervision and upkeep of the municipal beaches, while Duluth, "the Summer City," makes its first amateurish attempt at the extreme end of its abnormally long length. Why not Park Point for the next one? It seems to me to be an almost ideal location for several reasons: First, easily reached from all sections of the city by car and water; second, easily graded and cleared to form a lovely and picturesque beach of the finest sand; third, much warmer water, which, while not all that could be desired, perhaps, would, I think, be clean enough near Oatka and at least would not rile at every step. Why not, Mr. Cleveland?

WATER METERS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Can you please give me some light on this plan of the water and light department to take away our water meters at a reduced rate? I paid $11 for my meter. I didn't want it, had no use for it and would rather have paid a flat rate per year for water service. But the department insisted that I must have a meter, and since I couldn't pay cash they made me pay $11 instead of $10. Now they intend to take this meter away from me—this meter they made me buy—and they don't even intend to pay me what it is worth. They have been saying all along (according to the articles in your paper) that they would allow $9 per meter in taking them back. Now I get a circular saying they will not even allow $8, and that they will figure a 10 per cent depreciation on that value. That is, if I had my meter five years I will only get between $2 and $3 for it, though the department compelled me to buy it and to pay four or five times that amount.

It strikes me, Mr. Editor, that we folks are being played for suckers. The department makes us buy meters at more than cost, and then makes us sell them to the department at a third or a fourth their cost.

I don't know what others are going to do, but I won't do it. I'll take my meter out and the department can buy a new one and put it in my house. I can use the old one when I get a tenant for the other part of my house. I can't afford to buy at top price and sell at low price, even for the sake of a city-owned water and light department.

Diphtheria and Paralysis

YEARS ago it was a very common thing to hear of cases of paralysis of the throat, or heart or other part following an attack of diphtheria. The "neighbors," in those dark days, looked upon this misfortune as a visitation of providence and said nothing about it.

Occasionally, even today, an attack of diphtheria will leave some serious paralytic condition behind it, or leave the heart greatly weakened. Now come the neighbors, or at least the chin-wagging kind, to explain that the evil effects are due to the antitoxin the doctor administered. Nevertheless, the death rate from diphtheria is less than a third of what it was in the days before antitoxin was discovered; and the cases of paralysis or serious heart damage following diphtheria today are so rare as to excite more than passing interest. This, if you please, neighbors, notwithstanding the universal use of antitoxin.

The real reason why paralysis or heart trouble still follows diphtheria in rare instances is plain enough; either antitoxin is used too late in the illness, or not enough is administered at the first dose.

Of course, a doctor has no way of measuring the degree of diphtheria poisoning the patient's blood will suffer tomorrow; he can only see what the condition is today, and gauge his dose of antitoxin accordingly. But while false economy or a sad deference to the prejudices of the neighbors may prompt him to use too little antitoxin for the first dose, it is practically impossible for him to give too much in the first dose. If, perchance, his first injection contains more units of antitoxin than there are units of diphtheria toxin (poison) in the blood at the time, the superabundance will at least be harmless, and in truth favorable, since it will be right there ready to neutralize any further poison given off by any germs which may still be doing business in the throat.

A dose of 10,000 units of antitoxin may sound large to the lay mind, but it is really a very minute quantity of antidote, as compared with the average degree of diphtheria poisoning in the blood. Often enough it is not only safe, but absolutely necessary to administer 30,000 or more units of antitoxin in the first dose, in order to completely antidote the poisoning of the disease and thus save the nervous system and the heart from the damaging influence of unopposed diphtheria poisoning. Weak children require many times more antitoxin proportionately than do strong adults.

He who objects to antitoxin or to a sufficiently large dose in the first injection, through misconception of the character of the remedy, is to be pitied if he is himself the patient. If his objection interferes with the use of the life-saving antitoxin in the case of a child, he is indeed worthy of the worst indictment.

"BEWARE THE SUMMER RESORT," SAYS PUBLIC HEALTH SECRETARY

Urges Guests to Demand Paper Towels, Air Tight Garbage Cans and Sanitary Food Before Settling Themselves to Enjoy Vacation.

Summer resorts are often very insanitary in the opinion of Dr. I. J. Murphy, former Duluth police surgeon, who is now serving as secretary of the Minnesota Public Health association.

"Health officers often term the summer resort an incubator for vacation typhoid," said Dr. Murphy by way of warning to the summer traveler. "Each guest should appoint himself a sanitary inspector of such resorts. Upon arrival you can easily observe the condition of the yard, the screening on windows and doors. The lavatory usually indicates the amount of attention the proprietor pays to sanitary matters. Is it kept clean and odorless? Is it fly-proof? Are there individual or paper towels? The garbage can is your next important guide. Is a fly-proof, water-tight, securely covered receptacle used? Is all the garbage kept in the can or is part of it strewn on the ground outside? Nuisances such as manure piles, and other fly or mosquito-breeding places, should be readily detected.

"But of most importance are things to be served on the table. If you have seen nothing but the best of sanitary technic, you are still not at all sure that you are not being fed tuberculosis, typhoid or other germs. Does the management insist upon approved public health procedures in procuring, preparing, and serving food stuffs? Is the water supply safeguarded? If the proprietor does not advertise these facts for the convenience of his customers you should ask him about conditions. In either case you should look for corroborating evidence. Opportunities for subsequent contamination by flies may easily be detected.

NEW INVENTION SHOWN IN DULUTH RECORDS BOTH ENDS OF TELEPHONE CONVERSATION

Might Come in Handy as Evidence in Breach of Promise Suits, But Is Intended Chiefly for Business Purposes.

When you're 'phoning to a fair one,
Keep in mind what you're about,
Er the telescribe'll git you
Ef
you don't watch out.

—With apologies to James Whitcomb Riley.

A new nemesis is on the trail of the telephone trifler, and hereafter he will do well to "keep in mind what he's about" when using the telephone.

Thomas A. Edison, that wizard who has amazed the world, has invented an innocent-looking little box, about as large as a half-pound tobacco tin, which may make things hot for the person who is careless about his conversation on the 'phone hereafter. It is called the "telescribe," and is being demonstrated in Duluth today and tomorrow. It records every word said at each end of the wire, and in the case of the too ardent "jollier" he may find that every little jolly has a meaning all its own if the young woman who is being "jollied" cares to force the issue.

Records of some of these conversations carried on over the telephone would be quite interesting in court, were a breach of promise suit to be started. A fair example of one of those conversations was heard the other day at a drug store telephone, and the young fellow who was talking to the girl at the other end of the wire was listened to at his end with rapt attention and evident admiration by two or three companions who hung around. It was typical of most of the talks of the kind. It would be interesting in court, for the man's end of it was something like this:

"Hello, is Miss Blank in?"

"Oh, is that you, dearie?"

"Pshaw, you know I mean it—don't you?"

"Sure I do—no, no."

"Well, you never give me the chance to show you—it's your own fault."

"Say, I dreamed about you last night—Uh, huh. And I thought I would call up and tell you about it. You see I think about you even in my sleep." Continued ad nauseam.

It sounded good to the girl, perhaps, and it might sound fine to a jury, should the fellow be worth while catching and the girl so inclined.

The Altar or Settle.

Just suppose a girl had had enough of that kind of talk from some chap she thought she would like to eat breakfast across the table from each morning, and made up her mind that she was going to turn the "kidding" to some account; and with that object in view, armed herself with a "telescribe." The surroundings when the conversation took place would not be discernable to the jury, all the settings of the stage would be absent, but the conversation would be there with all the ardor of voice and the "earnest" appeal.

Fine for the girl! It would be a pretty good case of "lead me to the altar or settle."

But that is just one phase of it. The "telescribe" is invented primarily for business men and not for the promotion of breach of promise suits. Attached to the telephone, it will record the conversation of both parties to it. Orders are heard by the man taking them, and at the same time are recorded on a wax cylinder and can be preserved for any length of time, just as the records for graphophones are kept. If the man at the other end of the wire makes a mistake or tries to back out on the order, he is going to have a bad time of it if the record has been taken, for his own words are recorded and a "telescript" can be made of them.

This is one of the latest inventions of the East Orange wizard. As has been said, the "telescribe" is not much larger than a half-pound can of tobacco. It is attached to the telephone and to a dictating machine, such as is used in most business offices nowadays, and the combination reports the whole conversation. The machine is being demonstrated at the Christie building today and tomorrow, and business men are much interested. Whether or not an agency will be established in Duluth is yet to be determined, but there probably will be.

Wind Kills Two.

York, Pa., July 20.—A severe wind storm wrecked a chautauqua tent at Dallas, near here, yesterday, killing two persons and injuring fifteen others. More than 1,500 were under the canvas and the entertainers were in the midst of their program when the storm broke. The gale, which came up very suddenly, whipped the tent from its fastenings and carried it forty feet, where it was deposited a mass of wreckage.

How to Heal Skin-Diseases

A Baltimore doctor suggests this simple, but reliable and inexpensive, home treatment for people suffering with eczema, ringworm, rashes and similar itching, burning skin troubles.

At any reliable druggist's get a jar of resinol ointment and a cake of resinol soap. These are not at all expensive. With the resinol soap and warm water, bathe the affected parts thoroughly, until they are free from crusts and the skin is softened. Dry very gently, spread on a thin layer of the resinol ointment, and cover with a light bandage—if necessary to protect the clothing. This should be done twice a day. Usually the distressing itching and burning stop with the first treatment, and the skin soon becomes clear and healthy again. Sample free, Dept. 28-R, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

MODERN GARAGE BUILDING WILL REPLACE FAMILIAR OLD LIVERY BARN

Local Liveryman Had But Four Calls for Horses on July Fourth—Horse No Longer Used for Recreation.

Passing of the horse and the incoming of the automobile, in so far as recreation or pleasure use is concerned, is strikingly exemplified in the number of former liverymen and carriage dealers who have switched over to the latter line of business during the last two or three years, and in the passing of the livery stable.

Men of means who formerly maintained handsome teams of horses, and corresponding equipments with coachmen and footmen, now own more or less expensive cars operated by chauffeur. Similarly the automobile has the call with less opulent citizens desiring to engage a vehicle for an afternoon or a day's outing. Striking evidence as to that condition was afforded in the statement of a local liveryman that on July Fourth, last, he had a call for only four horse turnouts, whereas, a few years back there was invariably a rush on every Sunday and holiday.

The change that has come about in the situation was strikingly exemplified last week in the taking out of a building permit by W. M. Prindle & Co. for a modern garage on the site at No. 206 East Superior street for several years occupied by Totman Brothers, as a livery stable. As a striking coincidence it may be mentioned that only the week previous a permit was issued to W. M. Prindle & Co. for a modern two-story garage building on the adjoining frontage to be occupied by J. M. Ford, who up till a few months ago conducted a livery and sales stable on First street east. Similarly a carriage dealer on First street east has adjusted himself to the changed conditions in devoting his attention largely to the horseless vehicle.

So great has the transformation been during the present season that a section of Superior street east extending from Second to Eighth avenues is now known as "Automobile Row," being devoted largely to automobiles and their accessories. In one block containing seven stores, four are now occupied by dealers in those lines. Within the area of five blocks mentioned are located salesrooms of many of the leading cars, and garages furnishing facilities at the sidewalk for replenishing car tanks with automobiles or free air pumps for the tires of patrons.

Duluth auto dealers aver that the present season has been so far a satisfactory one all-round in point of sales and they regard the future as offering good promise in the trade.

NORWEGIANS ARE MUCH INCENSED

Aroused By Their Vessels Being Torpedoed By German Submarines.

Christiania, July 20.—Although the German government officially has declared its willingness to pay full damage when Norwegian boats have been "accidentally" torpedoed by German submarines, reports of the sinking of Norwegian steamers are becoming so numerous as to offer serious complications.

Many of the leading papers denounce the government for not doing what it ought to in order to protect Norwegian sailors and citizens. No word has been published from the government regarding what steps it has taken or how it has protested.

The Tidens Tegn says that it now is necessary that the government break its silence and let the people know what it has done and is going to do in order to stop these continued encroachments, and "protect our flag, our sailors and peaceful travelers."

The Morgenbladet says: "While our sailors are met by insidious death, while our flag is offended and Norwegian ships are torpedoed without warning, the government and parliament are busy discussing whether the language we are talking is real Norwegian or whether the hymns and prayers are to be discontinued in public schools. About those events that fill everybody with uneasiness and wrath they say nothing."

The Aftenposten says: "Everything is all right in Norway! Germany, however, by reasons we do not understand, is torpedoing our merchant ships, but what does it matter? In the parliament the meetings are more quiet and undisturbed than ever; nobody seems to be affected or anxious. At the same time our farmers are up against a crop failure; the daily bread is dear for the common laborer, and everything seems to be uncertain—but with the government everything seems to have a rosy hue!"

The Shipping Gazette points to the American note to Germany, "which contains the same questions and requests which Norway, as a neutral country, must demand from the German government."

WOMAN BEQUEATHS $300,000 TO CHARITY

Philadelphia, July 20.—Bequests aggregating more than $200,000 are left to charity by the will of Mrs. Sarah E. Batterson, probated here. The organizations benefited chiefly are those connected with the Protestant Episcopal church and include the domestic and foreign missionary societies of the church.

A scholarship fund of $16,000 is left to the Nassotah house, Nassotah, Wis., and $10,000 to the general theological seminary, New York city. They are to be known as the Batterson scholarships.

Numerous local charities received substantial bequests, while a number of Episcopal clergymen are named as beneficiaries in amounts ranging from $1,000 to $5,000 each. One of the private bequests was to Florence M. Moberly of New York, who is given $40,000 "in consideration of her faithful attendance to my husband."

Mrs. Batterson was the widow of the Rev. H. G. Batterson, an Episcopal clergyman of this city who died in 1902.

Belgium has the honor of originating the school savings bank system. Professor Laurent of Ghent, in 1873, began the work.

COL. ROOSEVELT SCORES THE PACIFISTS

Sneers at "Peace-at-Any-Price Men"—Would Abandon Philippines, Build Up a First-Class Navy, Provide Adequate Coast Fortifications, Have Regular Army of 200,000, and Establish System of Universal Military Service in This Country.

"Recently, in certain circles, some popularity has been achieved by a song entitled 'I Didn't Raise My Boy to Be a Soldier'—a song which ought always to be sung with a companion piece entitled 'I Didn't Raise My Girl to Be a Mother.' The two would stand on precisely the same moral level."—THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

New York, July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Theodore Roosevelt, in an article in the August Metropolitan magazine entitled "Peace Insurance By Preparedness Against War," advocates a system of universal military service in this county, as the Swiss and Argentines have. Under a system like that of the Swiss there would be in this country military training in the upper grades of our schools; then on graduation from the high school the young man, say at some time between the ages of 18 and 21, would serve for a period not to exceed six months in the field in the army; after that first service he would serve a week or ten days every year for six or eight years, and then would go definitely into the reserve. He would also be trained in rifle shooting.

"Let us," he says, "as speedily as possible, leave the Philippines, and as the Philippines desire us to leave them we would be quit of all moral obligations to them, and would under no circumstances be obliged to defend them from other nations.

"There remain Alaska, Hawaii, our own coasts, and the Panama canal and its approaches, as the military problem with which we should grapple. To protect these places, we need, in the first place, a first-class navy; a navy first class in material, and above all first class in the trained efficiency that comes from incessant practice at sea and from having the right spirit in the whole service and therefore necessarily in the department itself. We need adequate fortifications which shall absolutely prevent a successful sudden attack on Hawaii, or the Panama canal or on our big coast cities—not merely a naval attack, but a sudden attack by a landing force. Of course all that fortifications can do is to stop a sudden attack, to parry a sudden blow.

As to Mexico.

"If we have to interfere in Mexico (and, of course, we ought to have interfered four years ago, and every month's delay has been so much to our discredit), such interference would really mean only a measure of self-defense. It should be undertaken only by the regular army. The work should be one of police and pacification. For such work volunteers are far less fitted than professionals, than regulars. We should, therefore, have a regular army of 200,000 men, which would enable us to have a mobile army of 150,000 or thereabouts. This would save all need of calling for volunteers to police Mexico; and by the exercise of common sense and forethought we should provide at once the regular force necessary to do whatever may need to be done. Not a volunteer should be put into Mexico. The National Guard could be called on very sparingly. The regular army should do the work."

—Copyright by Bain News Service.

Col. Roosevelt attacks the thirty all-inclusive arbitration-commission treaties that the administration has passed during the last year or so, and refers to Mr. Bryan as "a man who, however, amiable his intentions, had in actual fact stood against the honor and interest of America. * * * The success of the German policy of blood-and-iron largely depends upon their possible rivals and opponents adopting a policy of milk-and-water. The blood-and-iron statesman of one nation finds in the milk-and-water statesman of another nation the man predestined through the ages to be his ally and his tool."

"Peace at Any Price."

The colonel sneers at what he styles "the peace-at-any-price men," and says their fundamental characteristics is "sheer, downright physical or moral timidity." Declaring that there is no meaner moral attitude than that of a timid and selfish neutrality between right and wrong, the colonel says:

"Now, the fact that these male and female professional peace enthusiasts who have screamed so busily for peace during the past year have been afraid to make any concrete protest against wrong is doubtless due primarily to sheer fear on their part. They were afraid of the trouble and effort implied in acting about Mexico. Above all, they are afraid of Germany. Those of them who are politicians are afraid of the German-American vote; for these professional pacifists have no sense of national honor and are great encouragers of hyphenated Americanism. But in addition they are terrorized, they are cowed, by the ruthless spirit of German militarism. The Berlin Lokal Anzeiger spoke as follows after the sinking of the Lusitania: 'We do not wish to gain the love of the Americans, but we desire to be respected by them. The loss of the Lusitania will earn that respect for us more than a hundred battles won on land.'

Would Inspire Fear.

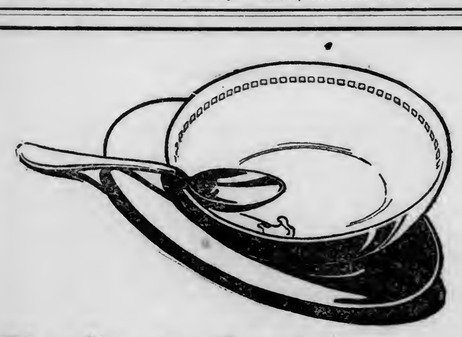

"Of course, when the Lokal Anzeiger spoke of inspiring 'respect' in America, what it really meant was that it would inspire fear. The murder of women and children does not inspire respect; but, unfortunately, it may inspire fear. As a matter of fact, I think it did inspire fear among our pacifists. There are plenty of Americans like myself who immensely admire the efficiency of the Germans in industry and in war, the efficiency with which in this war they have subordinated the whole social and industrial activity of the state to the successful prosecution of the war and who greatly admire the German people, and regard the German strain as one of the best and strongest strains in our composite American blood; but who feel that the German government, the German governing class, has in this war shown such ruthless and domineering disregard for the rights of others as to demand protest, and if necessary further action, on our part. Unfortunately, this ruthless and brutal efficiency has, as regards many men in the pacifist type, achieved precisely the purpose it was intended to achieve. As part of her program, Germany has counted on the effect of terrorism upon all men of soft nature. The sinking of the Lusitania was intended primarily as terrorism; just as the use of poison gas in the trenches (a use defensible only if one also defends the poisoning of wells and the torture of prisoners) was intended as terrorism. The object—terrorization—has not been achieved as regards the fighting men of England, France, Belgium, Russia, Italy and Serbia.

Has Cowed Timid People.

"But it has had a distinctive effect in cowing timid persons everywhere. I do not believe it would have any effect in cowing the bulk of our people if our people could be waked up to what has happened; but I have no question that it has had a very great effect in cowing that noisy section of our people which has talked loudest about peace at any price. The people who say of the present administration that 'at any rate, it has kept us out of trouble with Mexico or Germany;' the people who say that we ought not to act about the Lusitania; the people who say we ought not to have acted on behalf of Belgium, include in their ranks very many of the persons who are cowed by Germany, who are afraid of what Germany would do if we stood up for our own rights or for the rights of other and weaker peoples. Recently, in certain circles, some popularity has been achieved by a song entitled 'I Didn't Raise My Boy to Be a Soldier'—a song which ought always to be sung with a companion piece entitled 'I Didn't Raise My Girl to Be a Mother.' The two would stand on precisely the same moral level. This hymn, in condemnation of courage, has been sung in music halls and even in schools, with applause. Think of such a song being sung by or of the mothers, sisters and wives of the men who fought under Washington in the Revolution, or of the men who fought under Grant and Lee in the Civil war! Those who applaud such a song are wholly out of place at any patriotic celebration on Decoration day or the Fourth of July; and most assuredly men of this abject type will be easily affected by terrorism.

Pacifists Terrorized.

"The sinking of the Lusitania, the destruction of Louvain, the shooting of the Belgians who rallied to the defense of their flag precisely as the men of Lexington and Bunker Hill once rallied to the defense of theirs, the merciless thoroughness of the exploitation of the civilian population of Northern France and Belgium, the utter ruthlessness shown in dealing not only with men but with women and children—all this has undoubtedly cowed and terrorized the average American pacifist, the average peace-at-any-price man in the United States. It has cowed the type of man who cheers such a song as 'I Didn't Raise My Boy to Be a Soldier.' It has terrorized the type of man who makes speeches and writes editorials or newspaper or magazine articles on behalf of disarmament, on behalf of universal arbitration and against the Monroe doctrine. There is a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde in nations as in individuals; and sheer terrorism is often found working hand-in-hand with flabby and timid international pacificism for the undoing of righteousness and for the deification of the most brutal form of successful militarism."

WEST END

CHICKENS OF FEATHERED KIND GET INTOXICATED

West End Gardener Hits on Novel Plan to Protect His Garden.

At least a dozen "drunks" lay in a back yard on West Seventh street yesterday afternoon and no "cop" molested them.

The "drunks" were not sufficiently noisy to attract much attention any great distance from the place. Their condition was brought about by the inventive genius of a gardener, who took that method of saving his garden from destruction.

The fact is that the "plain drunks" were chickens—of the feathered kind. The poultry had been fed sumptuously on corn, soaked in alcohol, the grain having been liberally scattered about the garden. The neighbor's chicks on their daily stroll to the inviting garden found it scattered on the ground, and greedily picked it up.

A few kernels in each case were sufficient to cause staggering. As the stupor increased, the chicks' heads began to droop, and soon they were stretched out on the grass with barely a "kick" left in them.

"I had to do it to save my garden," said the garden owner last night. "I believe it is going to work wonderfully. The fence around the garden will not keep them out, but I am of the opinion that when the owners find the hens not laying as usual because of their "sprees," they will find some method of keeping them home. The alcohol will not injure the hens much, but it may keep them from laying for a few days, and it will also make the hens hesitate about coming into my garden."

PLAN JOINT PICNIC.

Young People's Societies of Three Cities Will Have Outing.

Young people's societies of Duluth and Superior will hold a picnic next Sunday with the Young People's Society of Two Harbors. Plans for the excursions are now being made by a committee of young people from the Zion Norwegian Lutheran church and other Norwegian Lutheran churches.

It is expected that at least 200 members of the society will take the trip. The excursion boat will leave the foot of Lake avenue at 9 o'clock. An all-day program has been planned at Two Harbors. This will include addresses, songs and games.

Road Nearly Complete.

Improvements to the Hermantown road have been under way during the last month. The work is now nearly completed. The highway has been dragged and in many places graveled.

The work has been done by farmers of Hermantown, who have worked under the supervision of County Commissioner Charles Kauppi. More than $1,000 has been spent in improving the thoroughfare.

Road work will in a few days be suspended by the farmers. At this season of the year many of the farmers are putting up hay. During that period the road work in most of the agricultural districts stops because the greater number of employes on the highways are the farmers. A few crews will still be employed on some of the roads that are being made or improved.

Outing at Fond du Lac.

The Sunday school of the Grace Methodist church, Twenty-second avenue west and Third street, is holding its annual picnic today at Fond du Lac. The teachers, officers and children left this morning at 9:30 on a steamer from the Twenty-first avenue dock for the picnic grounds. A program of games and sports was a feature of the day's program. Those in charge of the party are Charles E. Dice, superintendent of the school; W. C. Berkelman and P. T. Gorman.

Zion Notes.

The Young Girls' Society of the Zion Norwegian Lutheran church, Twenty-fifth avenue west and Third street, will meet in the church tomorrow evening. Mrs. Oren and Miss Hulda Hanson will entertain.

The Serepta society will be entertained Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Louis Peterson, 3910 Halifax street.

Midweek services will be conducted by Rev. J. M. Nervig at the church Thursday evening.

West End Briefs.

Miss Louise Emerson, 322 North Twenty-seventh avenue west, left yesterday for Missoula, Mont., where she will spend two weeks visiting relatives.

Miss Irene Gratto of the United States block, Nineteenth avenue and Superior street, is a guest of relatives at Crosby, Minn.

Mrs. James T. Cadotte, 3 Osborne apartments, entertained this afternoon for the I. S. W. club. Five hundred was played at four tables.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hagberg of Knife River are guests at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Henning Johnson, 627 North Twenty-seventh avenue west.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gran and son, Henry, 2014 West Second street, and Mr. and Mrs. C. Sundby have returned from a short camping trip at Fond du Lac.

The Men's Welfare League of the Swedish Mission church will entertain tomorrow evening at a moonlight excursion. The steamer will leave at 7:45 o'clock from the Twenty-first avenue dock.

Miss Lillian Magnuson, 2617 West Fifth street, has returned from a two months' visit with her sister, Mrs. M. F. Wilson of Bemidji, Minn.

PRICKLY HEAT ALL OVER HEAD

Hands and Back. Sore, Red and Inflamed. Itched and Burned. Fretful All Day.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"My baby was broken out all over her head and hands and back with prickly heat. Her skin was sore, red and inflamed, and it itched and burned causing her to scratch and irritate the affected parts. She was fretful all day and would lie awake at night and keep me awake for hours at a time. Her hair became very dry and dead and her head was a solid shield of dandruff.

"Finally a neighbor told me to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I got some. I used them two or three times a day, and in a short time she was healed and hasn't been bothered since." (Signed) Mrs. Maggie Williams, Omaha, Ark., March 12, 1915.

IS ARRESTED FOR BUILDING CULVERT

Fider Says He Applied for Permit and Was Refused.

A. A. Fider, real estate operator, was arrested yesterday on a warrant charging him with constructing a culvert without a building permit.

He pleaded not guilty before Judge F. H. Cutting in municipal court and will be given a hearing July 22. The complaint was prepared in the city attorney's office and sworn to by Building Inspector S. M. Kielley.

It is alleged that Mr. Fider has constructed a retaining wall on his lot on the south side of East Sixth street, without a permit, and in such a manner as to divert a stream from its natural course on his property to adjoining lots, damaging them and endangering the home of Thomas Osby, two lots southeast.

Even after warnings from Inspector Kielley and City Prosecutor Walter Gonska, Mr. Fider continued with the work, according to the complaint. The inspector is said to have notified the real estate man not to proceed with the wall until the plat was filed and a permit taken out.

Works Commissioner Farrell says that the wall is at such a sharp angle that it will force water in flood-time across the two adjoining lots on the east and that threatens to undermine Osby's house, which adjoins the southeast corner of lot 10.

He argues that Mr. Fider should have carried water in its natural course by a culvert until it leaves his property.

Mr. Fider claims he applied for a permit and it was refused him; that a permit for a culvert is not necessary under the ordinance, and has never been required before, and that he was merely protecting his own property from floods.

NEW CONTRACT FOR GRAIN EXPORTERS

Will Regulate Business in United States and Canada.

A new form of contract for use by grain exporters has been drawn up by the North American Grain Export association.

It will put the business on a strictly cash basis, will limit the liability of the shipper, and will provide for the contingencies arising from the present European war or any future war in which the United States might be involved. It is understood that the contract covers practically every point of just grievance raised by exporters, and it is expected that everyone interested in the trade both in this country and Canada will abide by it. Members of the association's executive committee expect that exporters will be able to put the new contract into effect within three weeks.

It is considered likely that the flour and produce trade of the country will follow the example of the grain men in requiring cash payment for cargoes shipped abroad, and in drawing up agreements similar in other respects to the new grain contracts.

Foreigners to Establish Credits.

Grain exporters expect that the foreign government will establish credits with banks in this country for the payment of grain as soon as the new season's export movement gets well underway.

The report that J. P. Morgan & Co., will act as exclusive purchasing agents for the allies in this country is discredited in grain trade circles at New York, according to the Wall Street Journal. It is known, however, that the British government has arranged for the financing of its grain purchases through the Morgan house, and that it is supervising practically all the buying.

With the foreign exchange situation more complex than ever, and with no basis for judging probable fluctuations in the market, grain men feel justified in taking the utmost precautions. Therefore they are insisting on payment either in American dollars or at a fixed rate of exchange to protect themselves against losses on export transactions. London is the only point at present, it is said, on which exporters will draw and sell bills at the market quotations, and it is thought that leading flour and grain men will take concerted action in refusing to draw anything but three-day drafts on London until the exchange market becomes more settled. At present thirty to sixty-day drafts are drawn for flour shipments and seven-day sight drafts for grain.

COMPENSATED FOR LOSS OF EYE-SIGHT

Since Feb. 15 last, William Randa's right eye has lost one-third of its original power of sight. In district court yesterday afternoon Judge Fesler held that the right eye in question had only two-thirds of its original power, and assessed Randa's employers, the Duluth Log company, for the loss, in accordance with the terms of the workmen's compensation act.

Randa's sight was partially destroyed when a chip of wood flew into his eye. The court set Randa's damages at $1.87 per week for 300 weeks, and $35 for medical fees.

Under agreement with the city, Mr. Congdon has paid $40,000 in awards for the boulevard property, which extends along the north shore to Two Harbors.

"MOUNTAIN DEW" VENDOR HELD FOR BOOTLEGGING

Lancaster, Minn., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank Wainkewiz was bound over to the district court under $500 bail, furnished by his brother Sylvester, on a charge of selling intoxicating liquor without a license. The charge was made by Attorney William L. Peterson and he had a hearing before Justice Holmquist. The defendant claimed that he had been selling a preparation called "Mountain Dew."

How Heat Affects the Vital Organs

Hot Weather Conduces to Chronic Constipation and Diarrhoea

A disposition to confine one's diet to cold food and to indulge freely in iced drinks, is one reason why constipation and diarrhoea is so prevalent in summer, and there is no season when bowel disturbances should be more carefully avoided, as much serious disease is directly traceable to these conditions.

To regulate the bowels and quickly relieve even an aggravated case of constipation, the combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin, sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is highly recommended by many physicians and all those who have used it. Unlike cathartics and violent purgatives, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin acts gently on stomach, liver and bowels, without griping or other discomfort and brings relief in an easy, natural manner. Mild, pleasant to the taste, and inexpensive, it is the ideal family laxative. By cleansing the bowel tract and eliminating the foreign matter and poisons that irritate and inflame, it will quickly check an attack of diarrhoea and restore normal conditions.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has been the standard remedy in countless homes for more than thirty years, and is sold in drug stores everywhere for fifty cents a bottle. A free trial can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 453 Washington street, Monticello, Ill.

WILL SPEND LARGE SUMS

Council Recommends Expenditures of $55,000 for Improvements.

Seven Contracts Allowed and Six Liquor Licenses Granted.

Nearly $55,000 for paving, grading and improvement contracts recommended by the public works division was voted yesterday at the first afternoon council meeting in several months.

Eight new contracts also were presented for the consideration of the board, seven of the eight being allowed because the work provided for involved an outlay of less than $1,000. The eighth, a $1,657 contract to be awarded J. Johnson for paving and improving Second alley from Twenty-fourth to Twenty-fifth avenues west, went over one week.

The other contracts call for: Paving Sixth alley from Third to Fourth avenue west at a cost of $993.76; paving Third alley from Nineteenth avenue east to Twentieth avenue, and paving Second alley from Tenth to Twelfth avenue east. In addition to this work, sanitary sewers are to be installed in Cook street from Fortieth to Forty-third avenue east; in Pitt street from Forty-fourth to Forty-sixth avenue east; in Ninth alley from Twenty-third to Twenty-fourth avenue east, and in Ninth alley from First avenue west to Lake avenue.

Liquor Licenses Granted.

Upon recommendation of Commissioner Silberstein six liquor licenses were granted, as follows: To John Anderson, William Cavanaugh and Martin Solberg, 524 West Superior street, being a transfer from M. Danculovich at the same location; Erick Person, 21 First avenue west; C. G. Strand, 1308 Commonwealth avenue; John Burke, 111 First avenue west; George Holloway, 2731 West Superior street, being a transfer from Alfred Gustafson at the same location, and A. Lundquist, at 6209 Raleigh street.

After a third reading two water and light department appropriations, involving $5,000 for equipment, were approved. One for $3,000 covers the cost of valve machines and one for $2,000 is to be used in purchasing new gas governors.

The largest paving job to be approved was the Commonwealth and Grand avenue work, which was awarded to the E. W. Coons company of Hibbing on their $43,613.11 bid. The material will be one-course concrete with trap rock surfacing.

Rocmac surfacing on East Fifth street, between Twelfth and Thirteenth avenues east, went to Hilliard & Julien for $2,790. The same company were low bidders on Fifth alley paving, from Twenty-first to Twenty-second avenue east. Their price was $1,218.45.

J. D. O'Connell was low bidder for the improvement of Sixth alley, between Tenth and Eleventh avenues east, with an estimate of $1,404.15.

MARVELS AT GROWTH OF ZENITH CITY

Rochester Man Sees Many Changes Here Since Visit in 1883.

Duluth's commercial advantages and possibilities and their remarkable development during the last thirty years never ceases to be wonderful to Charles B Hawkins of Rochester, N. Y., who has visited here on several occasions since 1883, when he made his first trip to the Head of the Lakes.

Mr. Hawkins arrived in Duluth yesterday on his way home from the fair at San Francisco. He will be a guest for a few days at the home of his brother, Lyndon Hawkins of the Chatham apartments.

"Duluth is a much-talked of town," said Mr. Hawkins. "No matter where one goes, he is sure to hear it mentioned. The new steel plant seems to be a big factor in advertising the city, but its natural advantages as a great shipping center have always appealed to me as one of its greatest assets."

Mr. Hawkins said that he visited Duluth the first time about thirty-two years ago and has made several trips here since. He declared that the city was enjoying a healthy growth, and that he could see no reason why it should not forge ahead with a still greater pace, now that the steel company officials had promised to begin the manufacture of steel here in the fall.

Mr. Hawkins commented upon the amazing work of Arthur Smith, the aviator, who is astonishing the crowds at the fair with his night flights at 'Frisco. In his opinion, he said, Smith is even greater and a more daring aviator than the late Lincoln Beachey, who during his lifetime, was considered the boldest of the aircraft men.

COMPLAINT FILED BY GREAT BRITAIN

State Department Will Investigate Activities of German Sympathizers.

Washington, July 20.—At the instance of the British government the state department has called on the department of justice to investigate the activities of certain German sympathizers in the United States, who are alleged to have been employing unlawful means to strike at Great Britain and her allies.

Until inquiry has developed whether there is sufficient evidence to warrant prosecutions, no names will be made public and officials of the departments as well as those of the British embassy are reticent about discussing the matter. It is known, however, that the information had reached the embassy concerning all kinds of plots, ranging from schemes to wreck bridges over which railroad trains were carrying volunteers of the British army, to the incitement of strikes at American industrial plants making war supplies for the allies.

One case in which the British government informed the state department it had evidence involves a wealthy German resident of Detroit, who was alleged to have supplied money to certain persons in Windsor to finance an attempt to dynamite a Canadian armory and a factory making clothing for the British army.

Great Britain inquired whether this case, if fully substantiated, would constitute military activity on American soil and a breach of neutrality.

All the evidence furnished by the British embassy will be turned over to the department of justice which will conduct the inquiry through its bureau of investigations.

SOCIETIES TO SELECT

Secretary Daniels Calls on Scientists to Name Committee.

Will Act as Advisory Board for the Navy Department.

Washington, July 20.—Sixteen American scientists to form, with Thomas A. Edison as chairman, the advisory board for the proposed bureau of invention in the navy department, will be selected by leading scientific societies of the country.

Secretary Daniels announced he had written the presidents of eight societies asking that two members be selected by each organization to become members of the board.

Following are the societies addressed:

American Chemical society, President Charles H. Herty, Chapel Hill, N. C.; American Institute of Electrical Engineers, President Paul M. Lincoln, Pittsburgh; American Institute of Mining Engineers, President Benjamin B. Thayer, New York; American Mathematical society, President E. W. Brown, Yale university; American Society of Civil Engineers, President Hunter McDonald, Nashville, Tenn.; American Society of Mechanical Engineers, President James Hartness, Springfield, Vt.; American Acronautical society, acting president, Frederick W. Barker, New York; Inventor's Guild, President Edward Weston, Newark, N. J.

Wants Ablest Men.

"Much depends on the personnel of the committee," Mr. Daniels said in announcing his plan, "and I have been desirous, first of all, that it should be made up of the ablest men in the country who have demonstrated their leadership in their profession. It would be comparatively easy for any well-informed man to select half a dozen names which would immediately suggest themselves, but the desire was to have a committee that would not only, in themselves, insure high service, but as well be representative of the inventive and engineering talent of their society.

"After consultation with eminent men in the navy and civilian life, I have decided to ask eight societies having large memberships each to select two members who will make up the advisory committee. In this way I feel sure we will have the hearty co-operation of the thousands of trained experts who make up their membership. The members of these societies will naturally see to it that their most eminent representatives are chosen. We will therefore obtain for the navy the direct advice of those selected to serve on the committee, and also the interest of all the members of the societies who make the selection."

Mr. Daniels explained that the selection of the eight societies did not exclude other organizations of the same character which it might be found advisable to call upon later, as there is no final limitation on the membership of the committee. He said that societies of marine engineers, in many cases, composed largely of present and former navy officers, had not been included, for the reason that navy officers would constitute the new bureau within the department which the committee would aid.

Secretary's Letter.

In his letter to the presidents, the secretary wrote:

"I am writing to ask the membership of your society to give practicable and valuable aid and needed co-operation by selecting representatives of their body to serve as members of the advisory committee. . . . I am going to ask you, by a poll by letter of your members or in whatever way seems to you most certain of securing the men desired by the majority of your organization to choose two of your members to serve on this board, and it will give me pleasure when you have furnished me these names to extend to the gentlemen the formal invitation of the department.

"We are anxious to begin as soon as possible, and if your secretary can furnish me the names at an early date, it will help the prompt organization of the advisory board very much. In adopting this course, I have the emphatic approval of Mr. Edison, and he agrees entirely with me that your society should be represented in this way, and that no better method of getting the kind of men we need, could be devised."

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS PICNIC

"SAFETY FIRST" WAS NEGLECTED

Employer Held Responsible for Death of Employe in Firetrap.

That a recent decision of the Minnesota supreme court holding a St. Paul firm responsible for the death of one of its employes, burned in a fire caused by an accumulation of waste paper, will have a decided effect in reducing the fire hazard in Duluth, is the opinion of State Fire Marshal Hargardine. The waste paper fire referred to cost the firm $5,000 alone for the death of its watchman.

"This department always has maintained owners of factories cannot be too careful in keeping all waste material in a safe place, away from danger of ignition," Mr. Hargardine, the state fire marshal, said.

"In the case referred to, the janitor was working in a basement, the exits of which had become obstructed with refuse. When the fire broke out, it was almost impossible for the men working there to escape and the result was not only loss of life but the practical destruction of the building.

"The attitude of the supreme court shows it believes employers and owners of large establishments are liable for any damages awarded by the lower courts for injuries arising out of such neglect."

Warnings have been issued in every case where unsatisfactory conditions have been found.

STATE'S WAR FUND CLIMBS

But the War Is Against Disease, Not Against Rival State.

Minnesota Has Spent $600,000 in State Aid to Sanatoriums.

Care of tuberculosis patients during the past two years has cost the state of Minnesota alone more than $600,000. A like sum has been expended by counties interested in the sanatorium movement, according to figures which have been given out at St. Paul.

The figures are exclusive of the state sanatorium at Walker on which nearly $1,000,000 has been expended. Its cost for the next two years will not be far short of $250,000 it is estimated.

Up to the present time, thirty-one Minnesota counties have taken advantage of the county tuberculosis sanatorium law passed by the 1913 legislature. St. Louis county was one of the first to seize the opportunity. The result was the establishment of the splendid institution now in operation at Nopeming. In Ramsey and Ottertail counties, like institutions are also in active operation. In fourteen other counties hospitals are either ready to open or are under construction. The state gives $50,000 to each institution and $5 a week for each free patient cared for.

In order to spread the cost, groups of counties are permitted to build a sanatorium, the expense to be met by a 1 mill tax levy and the state aid, which cannot be in excess of $50,000 for each institution. The counties or groups of counties that have elected to take advantage of the law are:

St. Louis, Otter Tail, Goodhue, Polk and Norman, Becker and Clay, Hennepin, Ramsey, Todd and Wadena, Beltrami, Hubbard and Koochiching, Wabasha, Chippewa, Lac que Parle, Yellow Medicine and Renville, Aitkin and Crow Wing, Roseau and Marshall, and Lincoln, Pipestone, Lyon, Nobles, Cottonwood, Murray, Jackson and Rock.

The legislature of 1913 appropriated $250,000 for 1914, and $250,000 for 1915. The 1915 legislature appropriated $100,000, making a total of $600,000 to be disbursed by the advisory commission.

The World's Loss in Man Power

It is estimated that two-thirds of all human endeavor is wasted. This means, among other things, that most men do most of their work the long, hard, imperfect way. Too much time and energy are spent in the actual doing—not enough in the planning.

The same facts apply to you in the management of your money. If you plan for every dollar, and then check up the actual, tangible results of that dollar, inevitably you will land in the well-to-do class. A savings account at the First National Bank works right along these lines.

CAN ANY BALL PLAYER TAKE TY COBB'S PLACE?

Mike Kelly Was the Tyrus Raymond Cobb of His Day and Yet He Is Remembered By But a Few of the Older Fans; Young Mickey McGraw Should Make Good.

BY BRUCE.

WHEN TY COBB is gone, who'll take the place of the Georgia wonder? Right quick off the trigger of declaration comes the reply: "Say, Bo, there ain't no one who ken take the place of this bird!"

Well maybe not, and maybe so.

Fame is fleeting and the dear old public soon forgets. There was Mike Kelly. He was more idolized in his day than Ty Cobb is in this modern age of hero worship. Was Kelly a greater ball player than Tyrus Raymond Cobb? Ask the average man on the street that question and he would wonder if the lunacy doctors were off the job.

It is probable he would come back with the remark that Kelly couldn't carry water for Cobb, or suggest the theory that King Kell played in an age when the boys in the big show were amateurs compared to the players of today.

Out at Athletic park one recent day we brought this same question up to old Ted Sullivan—a hoary veteran of some four decades of baseball; a scholarly old man who has watched the development of our great national pastime from the corner lot days to the age of concrete baseball parks; who has looked 'em over from the youthful days of the Kellys, Ryans, Gores, Pfeffers, Comiskeys et al., to the days of the players thousands of followers of baseball enthusiastically declare the greatest in the long and fervid history of our national pastime.

"How can you compare a man who plays in the outfield," began Sullivan, and he leaned forward and gave the writer a poke of emphasis in the ribs, "with a man who could play the infield with any of the players of his prime?"

It was clear from the opening conversational gun that Sullivan, perhaps hovering occasionally and longingly back to the so-called golden age of baseball, was sticking for the greatness of Mike Kelly, who was surely the Ty Cobb of his day and generation.

"Kelly could do everything," continued Sullivan, occasionally letting fall the trend of the conversation to ask sharply the name of one of the players. "He was the smartest man that ever played; he was the greatest base runner of all time, and he invented many of the tricks of the game that are used today. He was as great as Cobb and more useful on a ball club. There will never be another Mike Kelly. There is no baseball player living who has the magnetism this wonderful player possessed."

There are perhaps other gray-haired men who will agree with Ed Sullivan. "A play Eddie Collins made the other day in Chicago took me back to the classical days of baseball," said Sullivan. "Back to the days of the great players, back to the days when the great plays were made, back to the times when ball players thought for themselves."

So, therefore, in this age of laudation, this self-sufficient day, when the twentieth century is inclined to laughingly toss the dust of gray oblivion on the men and efforts of the past, it causes one to stop, pause and ponder as to whether Tyrus Raymond Cobb, the idol of baseball millions, was really greater than King Kelly, or whether he, like the immortal Mike Kelly, will not be forgotten and easily supplanted in the minds of the multitude by some young and coming player.

"No one can ever take the place of Cobb," comes the ringing cry from the brown throats of the hoi polloi, the 90 per cent crowd that makes the great game, or the game great. A Christmas tree looks great when it is lighted. When the drab streaks of Cobb's career begin to show on the unalloyed gold of his present brilliant achievement, watch the subduing of that great cry—wait for the hail of some new hero.

Mike Kelly was the Ty Cobb of his day; and only a few of the old cronies recall him.

Will a player rise to take the place of Cobb? We wonder.

The Case of Mickey McGraw.

Admitting right at the start that it is hardly up to a baseball writer to tell the manager of a baseball team how to run his club, we will then proceed to endeavor to show that it would have been the part of wisdom for the management of the local club to have taken little Mickey McGraw on at the start of the season and given the boy a chance to develop.

Most of those who have watched the youngster admit that he is a natural hitter. In his seven or eight league games he has struck out but once and has missed about two strikes. Mind, this kid is just turned 18 years of age and is just off the corner lots of this town.

Had McGraw been placed in the outfield of the Dooks at the start of the season it is possible that he would have come fast and developed into a real hitter. Admitting that Mickey is a trifle shy on the fielding side of the game, it also must be admitted that fielders are much more numerous than natural hitters.

A local boy, if he can play, is also a great drawing card. If young McGraw fulfills the promise of his present day ability, he might be worth some real money to a club owner one of these days. And one more little observation—the kid could hardly have performed worse than some of the experiments that were placed in the Dook outfield before Altman, Kirkham and Williams were finally secured.

A lot of fans of this town are watching with eager interest the career of young McGraw, rooting with frenzied enthusiasm for his making good.

BETTER SCORES EXPECTED.

First Day's Play In Western Golf Championship Makes Worst Yet.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 20.—Sixty-four players started this morning on the qualifying round of the Western amateur golf championship. The cream of the country, outside of Ouimet and Travers, is included. The course is in good shape and better scores are expected today. The thirty-two low scores of the sixty-four players in this morning's and yesterday's rounds will play in the first round of match play this afternoon.

Poorer scores were made in the elimination round yesterday than have been recorded in several seasons. Five out of eight players who made 87 were left in the running for the qualifying round. The lowest scores of the day were two cards of 76, made by Jack Neville of Oakland, Cal., and Paul Hunter of the Midlothian Golf club of Chicago.

"Chick" Evans, minus his favorite golf clubs, left in Chicago by mistake, made the course in 81, playing with Eben Byers of Pittsburgh, who recorded a 79.

WINS SWIM AND BREAKS RECORD

San Francisco, Cal., July 20.—Ludy Langer of the Los Angeles A. C., won the amateur athletic union open water championship for the quarter-mile yesterday, breaking the American record, formerly held by Duke Kahanamoku of Honolulu, by five and three-fifths seconds. Langer's time was 5.32 1-5. J. Wheatley and Bud Goodwin, both of the New York A. C., were second and third.

Langer won by a clean twenty yards, taking the lead early and steadily pulling away from the field. Michael McDermott of the Illinois Athletic club of Chicago took the water first with everybody in the running. Langer crawled forward and established a short, clear lead at the first turn, the 110-yard pole. Wheatley was three yards behind him and N. Ross of the Multnomah club, Portland, Ore., was third. At the second turn, Langer lengthened his lead and pulled farther away from the field, until the end.

Goodwin pulled into third, passing Ross at the 300-yard turn, and held his position.

Twilight League Excursion.

The excursion of the Duluth Twilight Baseball league will be held on July 22 instead of Aug. 22, as stated in the morning paper. There will be band music, vaudeville and other features.

GAME ENDS IN A DRAW

Darkness Stops Dooks and Fort Bills With 2-to-2 Count.

Sox Knot Count in Seventh and Neither Team Can Score.

Fort William, Ont., July 20.—Darkness ended a ten-inning game between Duluth and Fort William yesterday, the score standing 2 to 2 when the contest was called.

In the first round O'Brien reached first on Weidell's miscue on his grounder and was safe at second when Wertz let Fusner's throw get away from him. A passed ball allowed the Dook to get to third and he crossed the pan on Schroeder's single. Williams got to first in the seventh on a fielder's choice, advanced to third on Wolfe's blow and scored on a sacrifice fly by Morse.

In the home half of the first Wertz hit the ball over the fence, while in the fourth De Rose singled and counted on Weidell's double.

COURT DECISION BARS FIGHT FILMS

Sustains Federal Law—Willard-Johnson Fight Pictures Involved.

New York, July 20.—Attorneys for L. Lawrence Webber have received word from Philadelphia that the United States circuit court of appeals had handed down a decision in the case which Webber brought against the deputy customs collector of Newark, for an injunction restraining him from preventing Webber bringing into the United States the Willard-Johnson fight films. The decision sustained the constitutionality of the law against the importation of fight films.

Benjamin F. Spellman, one of the attorneys, announced that an immediate appeal would be taken to the United States supreme court.

SURPRISES SPRUNG AT GRAND CIRCUIT

Great Harness Races at Cleveland Produce Sensational Results.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 20.—Three favorites were returned winners, one outsider threw a panic into the talent, the fastest opening heat in the history of the grand circuit was trotted, and a 2-year-old trotting track record of 2:13¼ was established yesterday in the opening at North Randall of the first 1915 clash of the Grand Circuit campaign.

The Edwards stake for 2:10 pacers produced the sensation of the day, when Russell Boy, a rank outsider, captured the honors in four heats. Incidentally he made the fastest mile ever made in the stake when he went the second heat in 2:03¾. Hal Boy, favorite in the race, finished fourth. Hal B. drew the place position.

The greatest interest of the day outside of the Edwards stake, centered in the action of the two Pastime trotters, Lee Axworthy and Volga, favorites, respectively, in the 2:08 trot and the 2-year-old trotting sweepstakes. Both were straight heat winners.

Lee Axworthy was lame when the horses were called for the 2:08 trot, but his owners decided to start him, and he rewarded them by outclassing a great field and trotting the fastest opening heat in the history of the circuit in 2:05¼. This heat also established a new season's record.

The North Randall Sweepstakes for 3-year-old trotters of the 2:18 class is the feature event today. The Pittsburgh trotter, Bondella, piloted by Tommy Murphy, was touted as the favorite, though Pop Geers with De Roche and John Dickerson with either Harlem Express or Parvelte are expected to be close to the wire at the finish. This is a two-in-three-heat race.

Other events of the card are the 2:19 trot, purse $1,200; 2:12 pace, purse $1,200; 2:05 pace, purse $1,200.

Today's weather was cooler and cloudy, but without indication of heavy rain.

Efforts to bring Directum I and William together in a match-pacing contest here Saturday have failed. The contest between the stars will take place next Tuesday at Detroit.

GRAND RAPIDS SENIOR EIGHT LOOKS DANGEROUS

Michigan Crew Won From Detroit Senior Eight Last Week in Exceptionally Fast Time; St. Paul Confident of Winning Senior Four and Junior Eight Race; Greatest Regatta in West Is Promised.

BY BRUCE.

In a dual regatta last week between the Grand Rapids Boat and Canoe club and the Detroit Boat club, the Grand Rapids senior eight defeated the senior eight of the Detroit Boat club.

This is the same eight that was coached by Jim Wray last year—also it is the same eight that won the junior eight race at Philadelphia last year. It defeated the crack crew in exceptionally fast time. Now the question rears an inquiring tongue: Can this crack eight defeat the great senior eight of the Duluth Boat club?

Dope is rampant just now. It always is before a big event that dope comes out in the sunshine and kicks up a pair of frisky heels. After the results are in, Dope often seeks cover, and like Achilles, sulks in moody silence.

Just now there is a strong line of dope that says Grand Rapids is going to give Duluth the battle of its life in the derby event of the two days of shell racing, the senior eight event.

Those boys of the Grand Rapids club, like the home oarsmen of the senior eight, are battle-scarred vets, used to the strain of racing; oarsmen who are not liable to lose their nerve at the stake boats, and a crew that is liable to step out and row its own race from start to finish line, regardless of what the other crews are doing. Those are the hard kind of crews to defeat.

Trouble for Mr. Hoover.

Walter Hoover will be the unanimous choice of the Duluth followers of racing here when he lines up for the senior single event. But again trouble is threatened from the general direction of Grand Rapids.

Kortlander is the individual who threatens dire trouble to young Mr. Hoover. Kortlander is the oarsman who is to represent the Michiganders in the senior single event. At the present writing this Kortlander person holds the titles of Southwestern and Middle States champion sculler. While in our city the visiting sculler will endeavor to add the title of champion Northwestern senior sculler to his present title.

In 1912 at Peoria this same sculler, then green and inexperienced, gave "Snapper" Culver a great race. Since that time the Grand Rapids man has added to his speed and knowledge of racing. With Art Osman and Walter Hoover representing the Duluth Boat club and Kortlander starting for the Grand Rapids club, in addition to the other entrants, that contest should be brim full of action.

What About St. Paul?

Let us turn to St. Paul. The Minnesota Boat club and Duluth are the only original members of the Northwestern International Rowing association left for this year's regatta. The old feeling of rivalry remains, and nothing would please St. Paul more than to cop off that senior four event.

Right there is where Duluth prides herself she is invincible. St. Paul knows of the strength of our senior four, of its seeming invincibility, and yet knowing all this, raises a wanton cry of defiance and warns Duluth to have several cares.

Last year at Kenora, a green but powerful four represented St. Paul in the junior four event. This crew rowed one of the feature races of the regatta, winning a contest that was marked by the dash and gameness of the one winning St. Paul crew. This season this crew is coming here, improved in speed, confident, touched by the master hand of Wray, and determined to give lusty battle to the famous senior four of the Duluth Boat club.

Junior Eights are Fast.

It was of the St. Paul junior eight that some one in the Apostle city quoted Wray to the effect that it was faster than the Harvard varsity eight. Old grads of the crimson school twitted Wray on this statement and James in a fit of peeve has denied that he ever made it.

Be that as it may, the fact remains that St. Paul is banking high and abundant hopes on the performance of its crack junior eight. Duluth will start two junior eights. Right up to the moment of starting these boats, it will be most difficult to determine which is the faster, or which crew is liable to go out and make the headier race or the gamer finish.

There is going to be a large and silver laden incentive for both of the Duluth junior eights. It all depends upon the showing one of these crews makes in the junior race whether the local boat club will send an eight down to Springfield, Mass., for the intermediate eight event.

St. Paul hasn't won a junior eight race since Kenora, 1911, when the Minnesota Boat club oarsmen swept the classic Lake of the Woods course. This has given the Mississippi river men quite some opportunity to build up. In the personnel of the St. Paul eight therefore will be found the names of some oarsmen who have been vainly striving for eight honors for several years.

They want that junior eight event mighty badly down at St. Paul, and, depend upon it, the Minnesota club will make a valiant and game effort to defeat the two Duluth eights, and all of the other outside eights. Some race—some race is right!

Don't Overlook This One.

There is one contest down on the program that should not be overlooked in the advance dope. That is the senior doubles. Those two sterling oarsmen, Dan Connelly and Tom Ellerbe, than whom there are few greater, are to represent St. Paul, while those large and enthusiastic gentlemen, Art Osman, former stroke of the Syracuse varsity eight, and Roy Kent, the greatest oarsmen that Duluth has perhaps ever turned out, will start for the D. B. C.

It was Kent and Osman who won at Philadelphia last year with about three days practice together. This year the boys have had greater opportunity, and a great and royal battle may be expected between those St. Paul cracks and the great Duluth pair.

Crews Coming Early.

St. Paul's contingent of oarsmen is due here tomorrow noon. This will be the advance guard of oarsmen that will swarm in here during the next two days. The big Chicago special train is due to pull in some time Thursday morning with the Grand Rapids, Peoria and Lincoln Park athletes.

Down at the boat club workmen are busy clearing out the big shell and canoe house under the main building. In this spacious room the visiting oarsmen and their shells will be housed. It is probable that the overflow of men and shells will crowd into the shell house, for Duluth has never in the history of rowing been called upon to entertain so many outside racing men.

Right here, three days before the regatta, Duluth people should come to a realization of what a big regatta has been laboriously planned for. The big water show that will be staged on Friday and Saturday of the present week is by far the largest regatta that has been staged in the West in years.

One can go over the program and pick what promises to be remarkable rowing contests. Let all readers realize that the very greatest oarsmen in the world, those representing the Duluth Boat club, are to oppose the very pick of the rowing clubs of the West.

Not only in the rowing races, but in the other features of the program will the two days furnish some great water features. In addition to the shell races, sailing races and motor boat contests, the famous Delyea brothers of Cloquet, Minn., champion log rollers of the world, will engage in a log rolling contest on each regatta day.

These boys, Victor and William, have vanquished every contestant in the land. At Eau Claire, Wis., last Labor day, William Delyea in competition with Ab Thompson, set a new world's record for time that both men remained on the log.

Tickets to the regatta are going with a rush. Duluth people should get their tickets early before the rush of outsiders. Plans have been made for one of the Clow & Nicholson steamers to take passengers from the government dock to the Fifth avenue dock.

Javelin Throw Tryout.

Bragg's distance was 140 feet, two inches.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Phillies 5; Cubs 4.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 20.—Before the largest crowd that has been inside the park in years, Philadelphia defeated Chicago yesterday afternoon in the first game of a doubleheader with first place going to the winner, 5 to 4. The second game was stopped by a thunder storm at the end of the visitors' half of the fourth inning with Philadelphia ahead, 3 to 1. In the first game both teams made the majority of their hits count, the home club winning on home run drives by Gravath and Bancroft, and batting rallies in the sixth and eighth innings. With Chicago a run behind in the ninth, two out and Saier on second, Mayer was taken out and Alexander was sent in as a rescue twirler for the first time this season. Alexander ended the game by striking out Williams. The postponed game will be played off here Aug. 23.

LARGER FARGO HOSPITALS.

Fargo, N. D., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Following the announcement that the St. John's hospital would construct a $50,000 addition this season, the officials of St. Luke's hospital have planned to construct a new building which will practically double their present room and ward capacity. Because of the state-wide reputation of local surgeons, patients come here from every section of North Dakota for operations and the applications for rooms in the local hospitals greatly exceed their present capacity for most of the time.

Gladstone: Great Example of Temperance

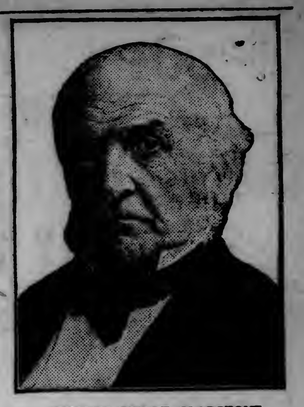

ENGLAND'S "GRAND OLD MAN" CHAMPIONS PERSONAL LIBERTY

No one will question the sincerity of the late Mr. Gladstone in the cause of temperance when in 1864 he wrote:

"How can I, who drink good wine and bitter beer all my life in a comfortable room among friends, coolly stand up and advice hard-working fellow creatures to take the pledge?"

Charles Dickens, the most popular writer of the English language, says: "There is no intrinsic harm in beer, far from it."

T. C. Flanagan, the famous Canadian athlete and trainer, says: "I have always maintained that beer is the best upbuilder and sustainer next to beefsteak that a man under a steady grind for long periods can take. There must be moderation, of course, in this as in other foods."

WILLIAM EWART GLADSTONE
England's "Grand Old Man." Held many government and cabinet positions, including the prime ministry. Lived in vigorous health to the age of 89.

KIESELGUHR FILTER
LATEST TRIUMPH IN BREWING

Why is Fitger Natural Beer filtered instead of pasteurized?

Because pasteurization, the old method for "keeping" bottled beer, spoils the taste. Kieselguhr filtration, the new method used to "keep" Fitger Natural Beer, preserves the taste.

Heretofore people have always preferred draught beer to the pasteurized bottled article. Now they prefer Fitger Natural Beer in bottles to the finest draught.

They prefer it because Fitger Natural Beer has the full, delicious taste and aroma of the finest draught, because it is filtered brilliantly clear of the yeast cells which draught beer contains, because it comes in convenient, scientifically clean bottles sealed at the brewery and opened by themselves.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

CROP OUTLOOK IS VERY BEST

Northwestern Minnesota Crops Look Better Than in Twenty Years.

Only Few Places in Red River Valley Set Back By Rain.

Crookston, Minn., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—There has been marked improvement in the crop outlook throughout Northwestern Minnesota during the past week.

In Marshall and Kittson counties, where they needed rain, there have been some heavy showers, with scattering showers in other portions where no rain was needed, but the precipitation was not sufficient to do any damage.

The barley has started to turn and will soon be ready for the harvest, and all grain is well headed out and standing up well.

Grain Stand Heavy.

The stand is the heaviest since 1895, and while there are some sections where there has been a loss from too much water, conservative men claim the outlook is the best at this time for a big harvest in the past twenty years, from Central Polk north to the Canadian boundary. Eastern Polk has the best promise of a big crop in years, but portions of Southwestern Polk have suffered from too much rain in some localities where the ditches were not sufficient to carry off the water.

The corn crop is not coming on as fast as expected owing to the cool weather, but corn is so late that it will make nothing but fodder anyway, and one of the problems to be solved is the securing of northern-grown seed corn for next year.

CAR DASHES OFF BRIDGE.

Crookston Contractor's Close Call When Machine Falls Into Water.

Crookston, Minn., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Sandberg, a local contractor, had a narrow escape last evening. While coming from Grand Forks his car skidded as he crossed a bridge north of Fisher and crashed through the railing, the front wheel going off the bridge and the car turning bottom side up in four feet of water. Sandberg crawled out and escaped with a badly bruised leg, managing to reach Fisher for medical aid after a painful mile and a half crawl. The car was badly damaged.

FORGES PRIEST'S NAME.

Paroled North Dakota Convict Lands Back in Penitentiary.

Mott, N. D., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—With less than a month remaining of his parole when he would have been a free man, Bernard Baumhefner has been returned to the state prison to serve a long term. He was originally sentenced from Stark county on a forgery charge and made such a good prison record he was paroled pending good behavior. He recently went to a local merchant selected a suit of clothes and informed the dealer that the local priest owed him for some work. A short time afterwards he returned with a check, purporting to have been issued by the priest for a sum in excess of the purchase. He was given the difference in cash and also the suit and disappeared, but was later located and returned to prison.

WEDDED FIFTY YEARS.

Parents of Archdeacon Parshall of Cass Lake Celebrate.

Faribault, Minn., July 20.—Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Parshall of this city celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Sunday. Every member of the family was under the parental roof for the occasion. The children are: William W. Parshall of Little Falls, Rev. H. F. Parshall of Cass Lake, archdeacon of the Episcopal church of the diocese of Duluth; Mrs. F. F. Robinson, Minneapolis; Mrs. B. D. Stine of Omaha; Arthur E. Parshall, Devils Lake, N. D., and Dana H. Parshall of Portland, Or. Mr. and Mrs. Parshall are pioneer residents of this city. Mr. Parshall was one of the first rural mail carriers of the state and served until a month ago, when he resigned.

WILL REMOVE SCHOOL.

Thief River Falls People Favor Changing Its Site.

Thief River Falls, Minn., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the annual school election here Dr. F. H. Gambell and C. A. Pitkin were elected directors for three years, succeeding William Boreen and Rasmus Ocn. The election developed into a warm fight towards the end, when the present board unofficially championed the cause of Dr. Gambell and Mr. Boreen. The business men had a ticket in the field upon which the candidates were Oluf Tessum and Attorney Pitkin. The vote, which was the heaviest recorded at a school election, was: Gambell, 316; Pitkin, 306; Tessum, 303; Boreen, 281.

The proposition of moving the Central building from its present site in the business section to a new location in the residence section, five blocks north, resulted in a vote of 410 to 123 in favor of the removal. The building was erected in 1893 and an addition was erected about four years ago. S. A. Challman, state superintendent of school buildings, favored the removal, claiming the present building to be worth at least $18,000, whereas it would bring less than $2,500 if offered for sale and a new building erected. The removal will not be made until next year, despite the present crowded condition of the several rooms. Thirty-six teachers are employed in the local schools and all the buildings are crowded. Two rooms in the city auditorium have been rented for next year to accommodate the normal department.

WOMAN IS TAKEN TO WRONG PRISON

Gets Free Trip From Fargo to Leavenworth and Return.

Fargo, N. D., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—After a nice journey to Leavenworth, Kan., Mae Peterson, who was recently convicted in the Federal court here with a violation of the Mann white slave act, is again in the Cass county jail waiting for the return of Judge C. F. Amidon in order that she may be sentenced to the right place. A mistake was made in sending her to the one she should have been sent to Lansing, no female prisoners being taken at the Leavenworth institution.

The woman was sentenced to fifteen months in Leavenworth and in charge of United States Marshal Doyle and his wife started the first of last week for the Kansas institution.

No Women Taken There.

High water in Nebraska and Kansas delayed the trip, but after detouring a considerable distance the Federal prison was reached and Marshal Doyle was informed that the woman could not be taken there.

There was nothing to do but to return to North Dakota with the prisoner. Mae Peterson is again behind the bars of the county jail waiting to get her sentence to Lansing.

The woman was found guilty of having transported Rachel Livingston of Voltaire, N. D., from that place to Kansas City, Mo., for immoral purposes.

SAVED FROM DEATH AT SHELL LAKE, WIS.

Man Sinks in Lake When Another Comes to His Rescue.

Cumberland, Wis., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Alexander Beltz, employed in a bakery at Shell Lake, narrowly escaped death by drowning. While in bathing in Shell lake he got beyond his depth, and, despite the efforts of two young boys, who were with him, sank.

Henry Helsterkamp came to his rescue in a boat and plunged to the bottom of the lake, bringing Beltz up, and, with the aid of a physician, restored him to consciousness. Helsterkamp took his dive into the deep water with all his clothes on, including a heavy pair of boots, making a very timely and heroic rescue.

FINGER CUT OFF IS GRAFTED INTO PLACE.

Northome, Minn., July 20.—Torger Nesset, a homesteader living near here, cut off one thumb with an axe, walked here, seven miles, to a physician, carrying the dismembered part in a piece of paper, and had it sewed back in place. Blood was infused and the member is growing on the stump. The patient has no temperature and no pain, the thumb has a good color and everything looks encouraging for keeping the man's thumb and, eventually, some use of it, as well as the better use of his hand.

GOGEBIC PASTORS MEET.

Last Session of the Year Is Held at Ironwood.

Ironwood, Mich., July 20.—The members of the Gogebic Range Pastors' association held their last meeting for the season here a few days ago. The work being done by the Anti-Saloon league was indorsed.

The Rev. Waldo C. Ekerberg of Illinois, who is exchanging pastorates with his father, the Rev. C. A. Ekerberg, pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church, Bessemer, Mich., read an able and timely article on "The Program of the Church as an Americanizing Agency." He said we are all foreigners, except the Indians, and no one people or tongue has a right to claim precedence over the others.

With Rev. S. L. Wilson sitting at the head of the table as toastmaster, the first annual banquet was held. Mrs. Wilson sat at his right. Rev. C. M. Frazer, the vice president of the association, with Mrs. Frazer to his right, occupied the other end of the table. Others present were: Rev. and Mrs. Bickford, Prof. and Mrs. Duffield, Mrs. J. A. Melrose, Rev. Mr. Silverstein of Rhinelander, Miss Elsie Ekerberg, accompanied by Rev. G. W. Henry, Rev. and Mrs. Glidden, Rev. and Mrs. W. C. Ekerberg, Rev. A. Haapanen, Miss Nannie Love Thompson and Rev. George B. Thompson.

The first number on the program was a solo by Prof. Duffield. Then came "The Minister, a Man among Men," by Rev. Mr. Bickford. Following this was "The Mistress of the Parsonage," by Mrs. Wilson. "The Minister in the Community" was profitably responded to by Rev. Mr. Glidden. Prof. Duffield gave "Memories of a Minister's Home." Mrs. Frazer set all to thinking as to the possibilities of "The Mrs. Minister in the Community." A piano solo was effectively rendered by Mrs. J. A. Melrose, after which Mr. Silverstein, who had taken Mr. Melrose's place in another capacity, gave a toast on "The Grace of a Sense of Humor." Miss Thompson's "Contrasts of North and South" were given with a distinct, Christian emphasis. Another solo by Prof. Duffield concluded the program, with the exception of a few closing remarks by Rev. Mr. Frazer.

The association adjourned to meet the first Monday in September.

TO RETURN VIA DULUTH.

Former Zenith City Curate to Visit Head of Lakes.

Rochester, Minn., July 20.—Rev. A. H. Wurtele has departed on his summer vacation, going to Chicago and thence for a trip through Ohio and Pennsylvania to Philadelphia. Mrs. Wurtele is at present in Philadelphia. During August Mr. Wurtele will preach in St. Thomas church, Whitemarsh. He will return in September by way of Canada, visiting his parents at Acton Vale, Que., and will go by boat from there to Duluth, where he was formerly stationed, and by automobile from the Zenith City to Rochester. During his absence the pulpit at Calvary church will be supplied.

DRY FARM IS SOAKED.

North Dakota Dry Farmer Says "Nature Should Take Its Course."

Flasher, N. D., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—With his "dry farm" under water, a farmer in this vicinity is convinced of the futility of endeavoring to shape nature's course too strongly in crop production. For many years he has advocated dry farming methods and to some extent put them in operation. This spring he prepared some land according to the methods used in the arid regions of the southwestern part of the United States and was progressing finely till the heavy rainfall of June and July placed his dry farm under water and practically drowned out his system. He is now somewhat inclined to the theory that "nature should be allowed to take its course."

BUTTE MAN SHOOTS WOMAN; KILLS SELF

Butte, Mont., July 20.—George Peris, wealthy Austrian saloon owner, shot and wounded Olive Falkner of San Francisco, and then fired a bullet through his temples, dying instantly. There is one chance for the Falkner woman, who was shot through the neck and near the heart, as she was on her knees in front of Peris, begging him to spare her life. The shooting was precipitated by the marrying by Peris of Miss Dana Budinovitz, a 21-year-old Austrian girl, ten days ago.

SOO LINE ALSO SUED.

North Dakota Official Claims Company Violated Anti-Liquor Law.

Williston, N. D., July 20.—That failure on the part of the Soo railroad officials to check shipments of liquor into North Dakota has encouraged open violation of the state prohibition laws is one of the charges made against the railroad in a suit filed here by Attorney General Linde. The suit is the second of a series which Attorney General Linde will bring under the Webb-Kenyon law to prevent wholesale shipments of liquor into North Dakota.

The first of these suits was filed against the Northern Pacific railroad in the courts at Fargo.

The Soo railroad case is based on evidence obtained in the city of Minot.

According to the statements made in the complaint, forty persons in Minot received over 13,000 cases of beer by freight on the Soo road alone, in the sixteen months ending April 30, 1915.

Gopher Pair to Front.

Fergus Falls, Minn., July 20.—Henry and Orrin Comstock, two former Fergus Falls boys, enlisted with the Canadian troops at Weyburn, Sask., and after some drilling in that neighborhood, have sailed for England, preparatory to being sent to the fighting line in France.

Fargo Newspaper Rumor.

Fargo, N. D., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fargo is to have a new Democratic paper, according to some rumors. One report is that the new publication will be a weekly, another that it will be issued daily. There are already two dailies and several weeklies, each representing some particular line of thought, and there is considerable interest in whether a third daily is to be established.

Drunken Motorist Hits Woman.

La Crosse, Wis., July 20.—Mrs. John Weisman was run over and probably fatally injured by an automobile driven by George C. Childress when his car left the street and passed over a sidewalk in the business district. THE GOOD JUDGE WAS PUZZLED AT FIRST CROWDS of men in every community using the Real Tobacco Chew —because it satisfies them better than any of the old kind.

When men who for years have tried brand after brand get started on the Real Tobacco Chew, you can bet that they're glad they've got it.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough—cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

Take less than one-quarter the old size chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just take a nibble of it until you find the strength chew that suits you, then see how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end. The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

"Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste."

STATEMENT IS PROMISED

Traction Company Considering Extension of Line to Steel Plant.

Farrell Says Highway Will Soon Be Ready for Rails.

"In a week or ten days, perhaps, but nothing now," said Herbert Warren, vice president of the Duluth Street Railway company, today, when asked to make a statement regarding the steel plant extensions.

"I am unable to state whether or not we will put our lines through to the steel plant before winter or not," he said.

When Works Commissioner Farrell announced recently that paving improvements along the street car right-of-way to the plant would be completed in time to allow the company to lay rails before frost, West Duluth and New Duluth residents began a movement to try to have the extension installed and ready for use by the time the first steel was turned out at the plant.

With Contractor Bealer of the Bealer Lemoons company, Hibbing, low bidders on the $44 609 Commonwealth and Grand avenues paving job, Commissioner Farrell went over the ground this morning, and planned ways and means for caring for traffic while the contractors were at work.

When this large contract is finished, connecting the paving from Eighty-fourth avenue west to Zimmerly avenue and thence on into Gary, a highway from Duluth proper to the western suburbs will be complete. Beyond Zimmerly avenue there now is two miles of paving, which reaches to Gary, and contractors are getting along with their work as well as could be expected, according to Mr. Farrell.

"The Northern Pacific subway at Smithville will be finished by Aug. 15, the contractors said this morning," declared the works department head.

"The only missing link in the chain will be a 600-foot gap this side of Crestline court, where there is a gully. This will have to be bridged anyway, and we are not planning to put in paving there this year.

"It will not interfere with the street car company's work, however. As far as that is concerned, they could start laying rails at Seventy-first avenue west right now.

"We will start the Commonwealth job at this end, and by the time the rails reach Eighty-fourth avenue they could keep on going through to Zimmerly. They could lay tracks to the south line of Gary, First division, if company officials decide to go ahead with it."

Commissioner Farrell said that there would be some difficulty in handling traffic at this end of Commonwealth avenue while the paving was being put in, and that the south sidewalk space would have to be cleared for the use of wagons.

ALVINA DUE FOR REGATTA

T. F. Cole's Ocean Yacht Under Charter By Party of Easterners.

The ocean-going yacht Alvina, belonging to Thomas F. Cole of Duluth, will arrive in Duluth probably on Thursday morning with a party of Easterners who have chartered her for the round trip from New York. The Alvina passed the Sault today on her way up.

The yacht, which has not been in her home port for several years, has been chartered by Harley D. Hutchins of Madison, N. J., for a trip from New York to the Head of the Lakes, via the St. Lawrence and return. The party will remain over here for the Northwestern regatta which will take place this week.

The Alvina, which is 181 feet long and of 526 tons register, was used by an Eastern party several years ago in a cruise around the world, at which time she was commanded by Capt. Davidson, now master of the steamer Goulder. At the outbreak of the European war last fall, she was used by the people having her under charter at that time, to help take American tourists home from South Euporean ports. This is her first trip on fresh water in several years.

TANK STEAMER IS FORCED TO RETURN

Started for Sea With Only One Wireless Operator.

San Francisco, July 20.—The British tank steamer Tamaha was seized and held today by Ellery Stone, assistant United States radio inspector, who pursued the vessel in the United States coast guard cutter Golden Gate when she put to sea with only one wireless operator aboard instead of two as required. The maximum penalty is a fine of $5,000.

Capt. Hollingshead of the Tamaha was notified yesterday, Stone said, that he would have to replace the second wireless operator. M. P. Forbes, first officer of the Tamaha, it was reported, was ordered by the captain to act as the second operator, but he refused, and the vessel put to sea.

M'GILLIGAN CASE UP TO FEDERAL COURT

"Persistent" Personal Injury Action Will Be Tried Fourth Time.

The trial of criminal court cases in the Federal court was held in abeyance today and the case of Joseph B. McGilligan against the Duluth, Winnipeg & Pacific railway was called for trial this afternoon before Judge Page Morris.

This McGilligan case is one of those "persistent" actions that has clung to the court calendar for a number of years, just as Mr. McGilligan's injuries are alleged to have clung to him. The action, which was brought for personal injuries, has had three trials already and is facing a fourth. The plaintiff secured a verdict for $3,000 at the last trial and the railway company appealed.

Judge W. M. Steel of Superior and A. E. McManus are attorneys for the plaintiff and Hector Baxter for the defendant. The sparring of the attorneys during the numerous trials of this case has made the courtroom popular with the curiosity squad.

CONEY LEFT AN ESTATE OF $5,000

Harry J. Coney, Duluth grain man, who was murdered on the steamer Tennyson while on a return voyage from South America on July 4 last, left an estate valued at $5,000, according to a petition filed this afternoon in probate court by his widow, Mrs. Mary A. Coney.

Mrs. Coney asks that his will be admitted to probate and that she be appointed executrix in accordance with its terms. The instrument provides that the estate shall be divided in equal shares between his wife and two children, Edward, a son, and Vivienne, a daughter.

Since the will was made, however, another son was born. The child will also come in for an equal share with the other children.

GOVERNOR'S WIFE WHO TOTED A GUN

Mrs. John M. Slaton of Georgia Helped Protect Her Husband From the Angry Mob.

New York Tribune: How peril made a "gun toter" of a governor's wife; how the woman accustomed to every luxury that beauty and position can command suddenly found herself learning the lesson of the pioneer wife, to "stand by and keep a stiff upper lip"; how she even went smiling to the dentist every morning during the riots that her husband might not suspect she was frightened—this is the story of Sarah Slaton.

It sounded like a chapter out of an Indian massacre, this tale of men skulking in the woods and a wife following her husband about with a gun. It sounded doubly impossible as one sat in the Waldorf-Astoria and gazed at the aristocratic, modishly gowned wife of John M. Slaton, whose last act as governor of Georgia was to commute Leo Frank's death sentence.

"I was not entirely unprepared for what happened," she said, shrinking from the melodramatic. "My husband had warned me when he told me that he was going to save Frank that it would probably mean an attempt on his life. It was 3 o'clock in the morning when he came to my room. 'Dear, I am going to save this man,' he said, 'but I want to tell you, before anyone, what it will mean to us. We will have to give up my political career, and they may try to kill me.'

She Told Him He Was Right.

"Of course, I told him he was doing just right, that I did not care a scrap for social power at the expense of what he thought was right.

"I was not really frightened until Friday night, the night of the big mob. Monday there was a great deal of howling and banging, but we felt they were only an unorganized crowd of ruffians. Friday, however, they were quiet. They stole stealthily about the grounds. We could see them skulking in the woods back of the house, and we knew they meant business. We knew they wanted to kill my husband and that it would be more of an achievement for them to kill him as governor than as a citizen. It was his last night as governor, so it was their last chance.

MRS. JOHN M. SLATON,
Wife of Georgia's Former Governor.

"I had been warned by anonymous notes—four of them—not to stay at the house that night."

Mrs. Slaton forgot this was melodramatic. She leaned forward and the fire of the pioneer wife burned in her eyes. Her voice was quiet, but proud, the voice of one who was too proud to be afraid. "I burned those notes up and said nothing about them to anyone, but I stuck to my post, as a woman always sticks when there is real danger.

"The thing that troubled me most was that my husband was so careless about leaving his revolver about. He was never afraid, and though he was supposed to have his gun with him, half the time he would leave it on the piano or under his pillow.

Toted Gun Around.

"I knew the soldiers were all about guarding the house, but I couldn't feel sure that some madman wouldn't break through the line some way and make his way into the house. I spent my time going around after him, picking up his revolver and handing it to him. I would carry it point downward, hidden in the folds of my skirt, so as not to excite the household by the sight of it.

Threatened to Burn Buildings.

"On Friday night the governor's sister came over to spend the night. She had been informed of the plot, and she purposed to be on hand, too. I sat in my room writing letters until about 11 o'clock. I had just begun to undress when I heard the sergeant downstairs speaking at the telephone. 'About 500?' I heard him say in a low, stern voice. 'About 1 o'clock? All right, let me know if you can send out any more men later.'

"I didn't faint away or cry, or do any of the things women are supposed to do in times of danger. I knew if I was to be any comfort to my husband I must keep quiet. Anyway, I went on undressing. Then old Lou, our negro cook, who has been with my family for years and years, came tapping at my door.

"'Miss Sadie,' she whispered, 'the men down at the barn done sent me up here. They say it ain't safe for nobody to sleep in dat barn tonight. They may set it on fire. Old Mack, he's gwine stay there 'till they sets it afire, so as to let the horses out.'

Took Lou's Advice.

"I told old Lou to make up her cot in the corner of my room. We both went to bed. Presently I heard her whisper: 'Miss Sadie, hadn't you better get dressed? If them debils starts to burn this here house'—

"'Oh, I don't believe the governor would like it if I stayed up, Lou,' I whispered.

"'He won't know nothin' about it,' she argued, with more horrible hints about them 'debils.' So finally I did get dressed and then went back to bed again. When the governor came over to kiss me good night I pulled the clothes up tight about my chin, and he never knew. In five minutes he was sound asleep and snoring as sweetly as if there were no such thing as dynamite in the world.

"About 2 o'clock I heard cries: 'Who goes there?' Then shouts: 'Where's Jack Slaton? We want to see Jack Slaton.' Then shots. I heard the governor steal to the window and look out. Then he went back to bed. After a while the noise outside stopped. Soon he was snoring again, but I lay there shivering, and old Lou rose up on one elbow from her corner.

"'Miss Sadie,' she whispered, 'did you hear them shots? Where do you suppose old Mack is?'"

BACK TO BIBLICAL DAYS

Old Testament Characters Walk the Streets of Bagdad Today—Twenty Centuries Have Not Changed Dress, Habits and Customs Along the Tigris River—Just Like Rebekah.

Villages which have lost step with the whirl of modern life for only a few years are a curiosity in America. Yet in Asiatic Turkey a whole nation has stood still for twenty centuries without causing the mildest wonder to its neighbors. Frederick and Margaret Simpich tell the story in the National Geographic Magazine.

Time seemed to turn back twenty centuries when I stepped off the Tigris river steamer at Bagdad. Old Testament men in turbans, sandals and quaint flowing robes ("abbas") crowded about, calling each other "Yusuf" and "Musa"—Joseph and Moses. From the river's edge veiled women walked away, gracefully upright, carrying on their shoulders tall jars of water—the same style of jars, no doubt, that held the water when it turned to wine.

Sheep are slain to seal a vow, and the blood covenant is common.

With their own shapely hands, Arab women still wash the feet of honored guests. Upon their own heads they heap handfuls of dust when they mourn for their dead children, and should a Bedouin woman sin her brother may cut her throat, and the tribe will applaud his awful act of righteous wrath.

Arab women live, love, slave and die knowing little of their Christian sisters in the Western world.

Few Knew of America.

Few Arab women I met had ever even heard of America. One or two, whose husbands sold wool and dates to Bagdad traders, knew there was such a place as "Amerique," but they believed it merely a part of that far away land called London, from whence came their bright calico and the cheap guns used by the sheiks in tribal wars. Even the men can tell the women little of the world beyond the desert's rim.

For all the average Arab woman knows of America, she might as well live on Mars. My serving maid, "Nejlbah" (the Star), asked me if I came to Bagdad from Amerique by railway train.

Once on this ancient plain, however, lived wise women—the consorts of kings—whose names and fame have come down to us through the centuries.

Where Queen Esther Lived.

Standing in Nebuchadnezzar's ruined palace at Babylon, my mind went back to the days of Queen Esther, the heroine of the Book of Esther. Here, amid this sand blown heap of fallen masonry, where the hand came on the wall, where lean jackals now wail above the bones of kings, Esther played her role in the adventures of Ahasuerus, Mordecai and Haman.

It was here, or maybe at Shushan, that Esther revealed the foul plot against the Jews, saved her uncle, Mordecai, and obtained King Ahasuerus' sentence of death on the wicked Haman, and as Haman's face was covered before they killed him, so to this day convicts' faces are hidden in Mesopotamia when they are led out to die. And maybe because Esther saved the Jews in that day they still flourish here. Bagdad alone shelters 40,000.

A Waste Where Eden Was.

And among the Bedouins on the Euphrates desert—the waste that once was Eden—I saw Arab girls drawing water from the wells, just as Rebekah was doing when Abraham's agent found her and took her as the wife of Isaac. The Bible says Rebekah drew water for Eliezer's camels while he rested. About all these desert wells crude mud troughs for watering the camels are still found.

And "lebben"—curdled camel's milk like the Arab woman Joel gave Sisera to drink before she slew him—is in common use among the Bedouins of Mesopotamia. Whenever I went out on a desert journey, passing by an encampment, tiny half naked Arab girls would dart out from the brown goat hair tents, bringing a brimming bowl of "lebben" for the wandering "Khartoum of the Ferengles"—woman of the foreigners.

Homely, Yet Admired and Envied; Her Secret

The convention crowd made a path for her, cast admiring side glances, then with longing eyes followed her to the elevator. It was at the Ponchartrain in Detroit. The incident was recalled when I chanced to sit across table from the woman. What was it about her that caused all that commotion? Her complexion. Really, I've never beheld its equal. Venturing to pick up acquaintanceship, I learned the secret.

"I've tried to make the most of my one charm," she said. "I know men abhor make-ups and artificiality. I bar cosmetics; there are two things I use to promote natural loveliness and youthful appearance. When my complexion begins to age, I get an ounce of mercolized wax at the drug store, apply at night like cold cream, wash it off in the morning. This gradually flakes off the outer skin; then I have a brand new complexion, magnetically beautiful, as you see.

"Wrinkles never bother me. At their inception I bathe my face in a solution made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. It works like magic."—Mona Morrow in Tatler.

WASTED STEAM.

A. Langstaff Johnston, Jr., in the Engineering Magazine: Ever since the introduction of electricity we have had and made free use of electrical meters, but it has only been within the past few years that reliable steam meters have been on the market, and these meters, with the accompanying coal and water weighers, have done more to demonstrate the wasteful use of steam and arouse the interest of the plant owner than anything else known. In one large plant the newly installed steam meters unearthed leaks and other waste amounting to over $60,000 a year, and this is by no means an extreme case.

BODY'S PIPING SYSTEM.

John H. Van Deventer in the Engineering Magazine: Did you ever try to breathe through a tube a few thousandths of an inch in diameter? If so you have a practical knowledge of the friction in pipes. That efficient pumping engine, the human heart, after delivering its fluid through the main and branch pipes, themselves several hundred feet in total length, finally sends it through several miles of capillaries, smaller in diameter than the smallest tube ever made. When you prick your skin with a needle, the blood comes from one of these little tubes. You can get an adequate idea of their extent by trying to stick a needle some place in your anatomy without drawing blood. In fact the distribution of these little tubes under the skin is so extensive that it may be compared to a fine-mesh screen, almost as closely woven as silk, extending over the entire surface of the body. If you could construct a counterpart of this system in metal tubes, and tried to force fluid through it, you would find the friction so enormous that many horsepower would be required at the pump in order to circulate a few drops. Now you begin to get an idea of what efficiency really is, for only a small part of those three meals a day that you eat is required to produce the energy which maintains this constant circulation throughout the system. There is another wonderful thing about this piping system that is worth mentioning. Suppose that under the street you live on an eight-inch water pipe furnishes the supply for domestic use, and that it is about up to its capacity when so doing. Now imagine a fire somewhere in the block that called for double the quantity of water. You would have to whoop up the velocity in that pipe, and by so doing you would greatly increase the friction and the pressure loss and run up the power consumption.

But suppose that this pipe had the ability to enlarge itself or swell to a twelve-inch diameter so as to maintain the same velocity until the demands went back to normal. You would call that "some pipe," would you not? And that is just what happens many times a day in your internal piping system when certain parts of the body require an increased blood supply.

T. D. WELLS STOPS SEVERE SUFFERING

Popular Duluth Barber Quickly Checks Sciatic Rheumatism With Akoz Mineral.

Thomas D. Wells, a popular barber in the Fifth avenue hotel, Duluth, who has a host of friends at the Head of the Lakes, after being practically laid up for three years with sciatic rheumatism, has received what he terms wonderful relief in a short time by using Akoz, the new California mineral rival of radium.

"For the past three years I have suffered severely with sciatic rheumatism," said Mr. Wells. "I have been practically laid up during that period. I have taken nearly all the remedies I have heard of for rheumatism. I have never found anything that has given me the wonderful relief that Akoz has.

"I had severe pains in my neck, knees and feet most all the time before taking Akoz. I am nearly free from them all now. I am walking without my cane—something I have not done for three years. I am feeling improved in every way and will cheerfully be glad to tell anyone about the wonderful remedy."

Akoz has proven very effective in the treatment of rheumatism, stomach, kidney and bladder troubles, piles, eczema and catarrh. Akoz is sold at the Lyceum Pharmacy and all other leading drug stores, where further information may be had regarding this advertisement.

Surety Agent Says Thompson Took $7,000 From Gilbert Bank.

Saved By Plea for Family—Still $2,500 in Arrears.

Minneapolis Minn., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—That J. B. Thompson, imprisoned cashier of the wrecked Osseo State bank was concerned with the misappropriation of bank funds prior to the time he went to Osseo was the statement made Monday by John C. Bennett of Minneapolis, general Northwestern attorney for the National Surety company of New York.

Family Plea Saves Him.

Mr. Bennett declares that in 1911 Thompson misappropriated more than $7,000 of the funds of the First National bank of Gilbert, of which he was cashier before going to Osseo. Prosecution at that time was deferred. Mr. Bennett says, because of a plea which Thompson made for his wife and children.

The surety company made good one-half of the bond of $5,000 and the rest was made good by the seizure of property which, Bennett says, Thompson had bought with the bank's money.

"Thompson has never paid us back a cent of that $2,500," said Mr. Bennett.

Paying $50 Monthly.

A letter dated June 16, 1915, from Thompson to Mr. Bennett, written on the stationery of the Osseo State bank and referring to the payment of the $2,500 owing on the surety bond, was given out by Mr. Bennett. It says in part:

"I am paying $50 a month on my indebtedness on the range, and the balance is all secured now, so that they will be paid if anything should happen to me. As soon as I have paid them off, I will take the securities that they hold and try to make some arrangement to raise enough to satisfy your company.

The reference to payments of $50 a month at Gilbert is not clear, but is believed to mean that Thompson's property on the range and the $2,500 paid by the bonding company was insufficient to pay the amount due the bank.

Over $7,000 Short.

A letter written by Mr. Bennett in 1911 to A. M. Birdsall, assistant general solicitor of the National Surety company, in New York, contains Mr. Bennett's account of Thompson's trouble at Gilbert. It says:

"I beg to advise that more than $7,000 shortage has been discovered in the accounts of Joseph B. Thompson, cashier of the First National bank of Gilbert, Minn. Fred B. Myers, president of the bank, called at our St. Paul office yesterday, accompanied by Thompson, and reported to our W. S. McCurdy that Thompson had misappropriated funds to the approximate amount of $7,338.35. Mr. McCurdy communicated with me and I arranged an interview with Myers and Thompson. Our bond is $6,000. This is a serious default and the case is a particularly aggravating one. Nevertheless, prospects are favorable for effecting a settlement.

A Second Wallingford.

"This man is a second edition of 'Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford.' He had figured cut in his own mind that by use of the bank's money in certain investments he would not only be able to make profits out of which to pay back the money withdrawn from the bank, but also have a nice surplus left for his own benefit. Unfortunately for him, some of the investments did not prove profitable and the discovery of an apparent discrepancy in the certificates of deposit account led to an investigation by Mr. Myers which developed a shortage to the amount named.

"Thompson manipulated his speculations through having collected upon notes in the sum of $4,118.35, without returning these notes to the makers thereof. Hence, they were never marked paid upon the records of the bank and were carried as accounts due and payable to the obligee.

How $1,650 Was Obtained.

"He likewise received a deposit of $2,000, for which a certificate of deposit was issued, but he entered the amount on the books of the bank in the certificate of deposit account as only $20, thus misappropriating through this transaction $1,980.

"He furthermore made three collections for which the bank is responsible in the sums of $200, $540 and $500, a total of $1,240, which latter sum was never accounted for, thus making the total approximate deficit $7,338.35.

"Thompson has come to a full realization of his offense and is on the verge of a collapse.

Gets Property Transferred.

"Owing to the good judgment and quick action of President Myers of the bank, the latter procured a transfer from Thompson of the defaulter's interests in certain properties which we have valued at $4,357, as follows:

Ownership in picture theater	$1,700
Interest in restaurant	500
11,250 shares stock Eastern Minnesota Mining & Exploration company	1,000
100 shares stock Finnish-American Mining company	200
Note of one Fred Barrett	307
Note of Max Cohen	550
One share bank stock	100
Total	$4,357

"In addition Thompson has an equity of $3,000 in a house and two lots at Gilbert.

"I believe that Mr. Myers will be able to dispose of Thompson's property at good advantage and preclude any loss under the bond executed by the National Surety company.

"J. C. BENNETT."

THOUSANDS WATCH RACES AT HIBBING

Speed Merchants Furnish Crowds With Several Thrills.

Hibbing, Minn., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Eddie Hearne, and John Ralmey of St. Paul lowered the state mile auto record for a half mile circular track yesterday evening from 1:15 to 1:09 2-5. The two drivers tied at this record after Eddie Hearne in his Case No. 5 car, had made the mile on the track at 1:10.

The postponed auto races thrilled nearly 5,000 fans. A nearby hill was nearly black with people, who watched the races with grand feature of not having to pay any admission. It is estimated that more than 1,000 persons witnessed the races from this hill.

Two Thrilling Events.

Probably the two most enjoyable events from the fans' standpoint were the Austrian pursuit race and the free-for-all. Tommy Milton, the sensational St. Paul driver, finished first in the Austrian pursuit. He also furnished lots of thrills in other races by his speedy driving and willingness to take chances. Eddie Hearne and John Ralmey had it out several times at such close quarters that the spectators were almost wild. These two speed demons finished practically even in the most spectacular races. John Ralmey came first in the free-for-all with Eddie Hearne only a quarter of a car length behind.

A feature was an exhibition trial of Louis Disbrow, world's champion driver, in his famous Jay-Eye-See car, which has traveled at the speed of 141 miles an hour.

In the novelty race Eddie Hearne replaced a wheel in 15 seconds, making the mile and one-half and taking off and putting on a wheel, in 2:27 minutes. Tommy Milton in his Simplex Zip finished this race a car length behind Hearne, despite the fact that it took him more than two seconds longer to replace the wheel. The cars started on scratch, raced two laps, stopped and made complete tire and wheel changes, and raced one lap to the finish.

The scores made are:

Mile Race.

Driver.	Car.	Time.
Eddie Hearne, Case No. 5		1:10
Ralmey, Case Comet		1:12
Endicott, Scat		1:12 2-5
Milton, Zip		1:14
LeCocq, Bullet		1:18

Following this race Hearne and Ralmey both made the mile in 1:09 2-5.

Three Mile Race.

For cars 300 cubic inches and under.

Driver.	Car.	Time.
"Wild Bill" Endicott, Scat		4:5

Eddie Hearne, Case		second
Le Cocq, Bullet		third
Kizer, Mercer		fourth

Free-for-All.

Run in heats.

"Wild Bill" Endicott eliminated Kizer and Le Cocq. Eddie Hearne and Ralmey were tied, eliminating by a half car length, Tommy Milton. Ralmey won from Hearne by a half car's length with Endicott about ten feet behind.

The speed kings will race at Grand Forks Saturday.

ITASCA COUNTY'S FAIR DISCUSSED

Several Plans Proposed to Arouse Interest in Affair.

Grand Rapids, Minn., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The directors of the Itasca County Fair association, which will give the usual county fair here Sept. 22-24, met and went over various plans to arouse interest in the event. One proposition considered was to increase interest in the fair by having local merchants take tickets and send them to their country customers so that the housewives would be sure and come to the fair.

A committee consisting of O. F. Guildemeister, chairman; Lester Lofberg, Henry Hughes, A. L. La Frenicre and Secretary Sisler was appointed to arrange an amusement and sports program. An advertising committee consisting of C. C. Peterson, chairman, and the publishers of all the newspapers in the county, also was appointed.

The financial committee reported having secured from the county board the usual allowance contributed each year by the county to the agricultural association.

Will Serve Lunches.

The Episcopal ladies were given the exclusive privilege of serving meals and lunches on the fair grounds. It was decided to charge $5 for all other concessions, and to allow all comers to enter the grounds, provided their enterprises are legitimate. In former years a fee of $10 was charged, and the one paying this had the exclusive privilege in his line.

Mr. Sisler urged the preservation of material, especially in the grains and grasses, to include in the state fair exhibit this coming September. Mr. Sisler also urged township exhibits, and suggested that movements in various towns be started with the end in view of having exhibits at the fair.

The matter of fixing up the road around Crystal lake to the fair grounds was discussed, and it was suggested that shortly before the fair the road be put in and the entire road from the business center of town to the fair grounds be fixed up. The idea will doubtless be acted upon.

ROOSEVELT SCHOOL WORK IS AWARDED

Virginia Contractors Given Jobs By the School Board.

Virginia, Minn., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Virginia Builders' Supply & Contracting company last night submitted the lowest bid for the remodeling of the Roosevelt school and was granted the work by the school board for $16,680.

The other bidders were: Frees & McLeod, $21,736; J. H. Schleunes, $20,850; Bowe-Eurke company, $18,076 all of Duluth. The remodeling work is to be completed by Aug. 30. In the event that it is completed before that date the contractors will be paid $50 a day for each day before Aug. 30. Fifty dollars a day will be taken off for every day after Aug. 30 until the contract is completed, if the work is not finished.

Get Decorating Job.

Biss & Darling of Virginia were awarded the work for painting and decorating the interior of the North Side school. They will also supply the material. Their bid was $1,236.84. The other bids follow: A. F. Koskinen, $1,050; J. Gleason, Hibbing, $1,380; A. Holdridge, work alone, $705.48; L. Paulson, $1,263.

The north side work is to be completed by Aug. 30, with a forfeit of $5 for each subsequent day. The $5 a day will also apply if the contractors finish the contract before the time limit.

James Sampson, a local contractor, was engaged to supervise the work at the Roosevelt building. The remodeling will start at once.

The auditorium, on the third floor, will be converted into six recitation rooms. A new ventilating system will be installed, and three new flights of stairway will be provided. Several feet of new flooring will be laid.

Prism glass windows are to be installed. The building will not be used for public gatherings. Each room will seat forty pupils. The plans for the remodeling have been approved by S. O. Challman, state school building commissioner.

INTERVENTION IS ONLY SALVATION

Woman Who Has Lived in Mexico Says That Will Save Country.

Hibbing, Minn., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Intervention in Mexico by the United States ultimately is necessary to relieve needless suffering in that country in the opinion of Mrs. C. P. Lyon of Boston, who is in Hibbing, in the interst of the New England Conservatory of Music. Mrs. Lyon lived in Mexico seven years and was one of the many Americans who was forced to flee to the United States following the revolutionary outbreak.

"Outrages of most horrible nature are being perpetrated in Mexico every day," Mrs. Lyon said, "and no good will come of them for the reason that none of the revolutionary leaders have definite ideals as was the case with those who were head of movements during internal crisis of other nations.

"My husband owns considerable property near Monterey. His mining interests are located about fifty-four miles to the west. Here it is that I have learned of Mexico as American women there have come to know it, as a place of privation, starvation, humiliation and insult, to say nothing of murder and cruelties.

Spanish Girl Ill Treated.

"I have an American friend whose husband was one of the largest merchants at Torreon. An officer in the Mexican army took possession of the store last December, and kidnaped a beautiful Spanish girl, aged 18, who screamed to the proprietor for help. She prayed and pleaded that she officer not ruin her life. 'Oh all right,' the officer said, 'I'll marry you that is easier than fighting.' He instructed one of his men to get a priest. In fifteen minutes he married her. He tired of her in a week, beat and starved her. The girl is now a broken, mental and physical wreck and has no means of support.

"This incident is only one of many which could relate, to show the kind of officers one has to deal with in Mexico. On my husband's mining property one night, all machinery was wrecked and other property destroyed, all for no purpose. There were no labor differences at that time and the property was only destroyed because of the vandalistic tendencies of the drunken Mexicans.

"The only way rights of government and humanity will be recognized is by force. Consideration for other people's rights knows no expression in Mexico. The only way depredations, outrages and atrocities can be stopped is by punishing those who perpetrate these crimes. If the Mexicans were shown that they could not do these things with immunity, they would soon stop. This is true with Mexicans more than any other class of people I know of."

DISTRICT COURT AT ELY AUG. 17

First Session Will Be Held Without Usual Grand Jury.

Ely, Minn., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Martin Hughes has filed an order with the clerk of the court at Virginia dispensing with a grand jury, when the first term of court is held here Aug. 17, under the act passed at the last session of the legislature.

There is little business for a grand jury at present as there are only a few criminal cases pending for the district covered by the Ely session. There will be a grand jury at Virginia Aug. 31, and all cases in this jurisdiction will be heard then.

To Call Petit Jury.

A petit jury will be called for Aug. 17 and preparations are being made now for the civil calendar. The Ely term is the result of a movement started by City Attorney A. J. Thomas, which was supported by attorneys and others in nearly all the range towns when it was presented to the last legislature.

IS CALLED AT GILBERT.

Mrs. Henry of Ridgeway, Mo., Who Came Recently, Dies.

Gilbert, Minn., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The remains of Mrs. Telitha Angeline Henry, who died Sunday afternoon at the residence of her son, A. C. Henry of Gilbert, were taken to Ridgeway, Mo., this morning for burial in the family plot at her home cemetery. Mrs. Henry was 55 years and 4 months old. Her husband, W. L. Henry of Ridgeway, was present at her bedside and also her two sons, A. C. and J. B. Henry, who both reside in Gilbert. A daughter, Mrs. Bertha Kampman of Ridgeway, is the other surviving relative.

Mrs. Henry came to Gilbert in the hope of improving her health, but the change of climate was unavailing. The remains were accompanied to their final resting place by Mr. Henry and his two sons, and the funeral will take place in Ridgeway, where the many friends of the family reside.

COUNCIL FIXES WIDTH OF WALKS

Two Harbors Property Holders Leave Matter to City Lawmakers.

Two Harbors, Minn., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council held a busy session last night, considering certain street improvements and also adopted a resolution ordering the construction of cement sidewalks on Tenth avenue.

The work of sub-grading Tenth avenue is just about completed and is now ready for the cement walks. The city will put in all the walks by day labor. There was a difference of opinion between the property owners as those who were in favor of the narrower walks claimed that they would be just as serviceable as a walk but one foot wider. The cement walks in other parts of the city are six feet wide and those who were in favor of six-foot walks argued that they were entitled to six-foot walks just as much as any where else in the city. After much arguing among the property owners who were present they finally took a vote and decided to leave the matter entirely with the council inasmuch as it seemed impossible for them to decide the matter. When the council took the matter in hand it did not take long to decide on six-foot walks, although several of the councilmen spoke in favor of the five-foot walks.

To Change Tenth Grade.

The matter of changing the grade on Tenth avenue was reconsidered and steps were taken to change the original grade and make it more in harmony with the general lay of the land, rather than to fill in the high places and cut in the low places as was a common circumstance under the plans of the old grade.

The Duluth Elks were granted permission to use the city park for a picnic on Thursday, Aug. 19, the date being changed from Aug. 12. The Elks will arrive here about noon by boat and leave again by the same route in the evening.

The local order of American Yeomen were granted permission to use the city park on Aug. 21 for their annual picnic.

TO LET SEWER JOB.

Virginia City Council Has Considerable Work to Give.

Virginia, Minn., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Several contractors are expected to attend the meeting of the city council tonight when bids will be opened for the proposed storm sewer to be built in the alleys north and south of Chestnut street to carry off flood waters and prevent a repetition of damages to goods from that source.

The jitney ordinance which has been hanging fire several weeks will also probably be further considered. The proposed ordinance will put jitneys and autos-for-hire in the same class so far as fees are concerned, and opposition to that feature has developed. Opinions differ as to what the fee should be. Some favor the fee altogether; others favor a fee of $2 a year, while it is currently reported that the ordinance committee will report in favor of a fee of $25.

DULUTHIAN'S BROTHER BURIED AT HIBBING

Hibbing, Minn., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Samuel Davis, aged 32, who died at the home of his sister, Mrs. F. Wiseman, following a three years' illness, was held from the Wiseman home at 2 o'clock this afternoon, Rev. R. W. Adair officiating, with interment in the Hibbing cemetery.

Mr. Davis is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Wiseman of this village, Mrs. J. W. Phillips of Chicago and Mrs. William Warren of Ontario, Canada, and five brothers, Joseph Davis of Alice, George, Louis and Daniel Davis of Duluth and David Davis of Ontario.

Rev. Father Hogan officiated this morning at the church of the Blessed Sacrament at the funeral of Mildred, the 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earle Hill of the Penobscot location, who died Saturday following a short illness. Burial was made here.

VIRGINIA GIRL SAVES BOY FROM DROWNING

Virginia, Minn., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Helen Nelson, aged 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Nelson, 605 Fountain street was in line for a Carnegie medal yesterday afternoon when she saved Remer, the 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Cook, 410 Fountain street.

Many youngsters were swimming and Remer had swam from Grace street and across the bay to Lake boulevard and was about half way back to the east shore when he was seized with cramps. He called for help and Miss Nelson responded, but before she reached him he had gone down once.

Miss Nelson was wearing water wings, which she removed and adjusted on Remer. He was nearly exhausted when he reached the shore and but for Miss Nelson's pluck would undoubtedly have drowned. Miss Nelson is an expert swimmer. She recently swam from Grace street to the Country club dock and back.

HIBBING MEN ARE GIVEN KEEWATIN JOBS

Keewatin, Minn., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a special council meeting, W. H. Hinn of Hibbing was appointed village engineer at a salary of $200 per month, and Gust Johnson, also of Hibbing, was appointed inspector of the concrete walks and curbs which are to be constructed here by Pogue & Co.

HIBBING PERSONALS.

Hibbing, Minn., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—David Pingree returned to his home in Sherburne, Minn., after a week's visit here with Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Everett. Mr. Pingree was a former Hibbing mail carrier.

OFFICIAL MAP OF THE WEATHER

FAIR

Yesterday started out badly, but the finish was delightful, and today seems to be a result of the break-up of bad weather. The day is perfect and conducive to good nature and temporary separation from rheumatic pains. On such days as this people find it hard to find anything over which to develop a mean disposition.

A year ago today was fine. The sun rose this morning at 4:33 and will set this evening at 7:55, giving fifteen hours and twenty-two minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"Temperatures 90 deg. or higher occurred Monday in Oregon, Nevada, Utah and most of the Southern and Eastern states. In northern districts cool weather was the rule last night. Local showers fell during Monday or last night over the Western lake region, Upper Mississippi valley, the Lower Missouri valley and Southwestern states, Louisiana, Tennessee and Middle and North Atlantic states. Heavy rainfalls at Washington, D. C., and New Orleans, La."

RANGE WANTS COOKS.

General Demand for Domestics Reported at Virginia.

Virginia, Minn., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—More cooks are in demand on the range than are housemaids, according to Mrs. B. M. Hartwick, manager of the local ladies' employment bureau.

She says that the demand for girls in all lines of domestic work is greater than the supply and that it is an easy matter for a girl or woman to get employment.

During the year in which she has been running the bureau in Virginia, Mrs. Harwick has succeeded in placing in good positions about twenty-five girls each month. These girls come from all parts of the range and some of them from Duluth.

VIRGINIAN NAMED ON CHARTER BOARD

Virginia, Minn., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Acting with the consent of the other district judges of this district, Judge Hughes has appointed R. J. McGhee of this city a member of the local charter commission, succeeding M. C. Dorway, who has moved from the city.

FREEMAN'S FRIENDS ARE MADE INDIGNANT

Grand Rapids, Minn., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Friends of Supt. E. A. Freeman of the local schools are indignant over the statement in a Duluth morning paper that at the school meeting Saturday night demands were made for the resignation of Mr. Freeman. On the contrary, as stated in Monday's Herald, there was little if any evidence at the meeting of dissatisfaction over Mr. Freeman's management of the schools.

During the meeting Saturday evening, Mr. Freeman was frequently consulted, his advice and suggestions asked for, and the latter invariably favorably acted upon.

FORMER DULUTH TEACHER IS MARRIED

Virginia, Minn., July 20.—Milward Smith, for several years clerk of the park board, who left here a year ago to travel for a St. Louis firm, and Miss Helen Stewart, who has been teaching school in Duluth for some time, were married here Saturday evening by Judge James P. Carey.

Mrs. Smith is a resident of St. Louis and the couple will make their home there.

Virginia, Minn., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—While visiting in the Michigan copper country during the last two weeks, Capt. T. Dennett of the Madrid mine of this city acted as guide for Rev. Father John M. Boddy, pastor of St. Agnes parish, Cresaptic, Md., who is touring the western part of the United States gathering material for a book. Father Boddy will visit Butte, Mont., Texas and the Rocky mountain country.

Dutch Lunch in Mine.

Virginia, Minn., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The committees planning to entertain the Gopher editors here on the occasion of their visit, propose to furnish a novelty in the shape of a Dutch lunch served in the bottom of one of the big open pit mines, probably the Alpena. This, it is believed, will give the scribes, especially those from Southern Minnesota, something to talk about when they get home.

Called to Saginaw.

Hibbing, Minn., July 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Chester Brockway, captain of Fire Team No. 1, left yesterday for Saginaw, Mich., where he was called by the death of his brother-in-law, Sheppard Brokway. SENDS $10,000 TO "CONSCIENCE FUND"

Treasury Department Recovers That Amount From an Unknown Source.

Washington, July 20.—Ten thousand dollars in currency, the second largest contribution to the "conscience fund" ever received by the government, arrived at the treasury department today in a plain envelope, mailed yesterday at New York, accompanied by an unsigned letter, saying:

"The sender has paid double to the United States the amount he stole and still conscience is not satisfied. Here is another payment."

The package contained three $1,000 gold certificates, eight $500 certificates and thirty $100 silver and gold notes.

Treasury officials found nothing in the letter or the amount to indicate a connection with any of the government losses by fraud or theft, so they placed it with $500,000 more which has accumulated in the treasury vaults from conscience stricken folk who have sent sums ranging from 1 cent to $18,669. The largest sum ever received came in 1909, probably from some one who had committed a customs fraud. The $10,000 package today came addressed to Secretary McAdoo and was marked "personal."

Monroe, Wis., July 20.—For the remainder of the summer the excuse it is "too hot to go to church" will not go here.

FEAR RESULTS OF FESTIVAL

Movement Started in Opposition to Steel Plant Opening Celebration.

Horde of Unemployed May Be Attracted as at Gary, Ind.

Fearing that too much enthusiasm over the opening of the steel plant for operation in November may lead many unemployed in other parts of the country to get a false idea of opportunities and rush here, and perhaps become stranded, some of the leading men of the city have started a movement in opposition to the celebration plan.

Those who think this way make it plain that they do not wish to be considered as "wet blankets" on Duluth's enthusiasm for they believe that Duluth and the state as a whole will have reason to rejoice; but they fear the reaction, for the reason given.

Gary, Ind., Results.

It is pointed out that at the time the big plant of the Steel corporation at Gary, Ind., was started, much was made of it, with the result that thousands of people flocked there, some with the idea of getting jobs, and others with the idea of starting in some sort of business, such as rooming houses, small stores and the like; and that many of them waited around there until they were penniless. The reaction was keenly felt in that instance, and it is desired to avoid such a condition here. That is the only reason why those who have raised objection to the plan are opposed.

The publicity committee of the Commercial club, which started the movement, will hold a regular meeting tomorrow and will likely further discuss the matter.

Superior Will Celebrate.

Superior is getting busy in the matter of holding a celebration at the time of the steel plant opening, and is advertising to the world that it will be the beneficiary. A press dispatch sent out from there today says:

"Judge E. H. Gary of the United States Steel corporation and Governor E. L. Philipp of Wisconsin will be asked to deliver addresses at the celebration to be held in Superior on Nov. 1, when the opening of the new steel plant across the St. Louis river will be formally observed here. Civic bodies are now organizing a monster industrial pageant to emphasize the commercial importance of the new plant to the industrial future of the Northwest."

HALL'S APPEARANCE MAKES JITNEUR QUAIL

Traffic Commissioner Helps Convict Driver of Law Violation.

"Jiminy!" said Ewald Anderson, jitney driver, "What chance have I to prove I'm innocent with a fellow like that against me?"

The "fellow" in question was G. Roy Hall, traffic commissioner of the Duluth Commercial club and victor in several traffic suits before the interstate commerce commission, to say nothing of the state railroad and warehouse commission.

On July 15, Mr. Hall saw Anderson drive past open street car gates at the corner of Fourth avenue west and Superior street, and when he learned that the jitneur had been arrested three times before for traffic violations, he determined it was his duty to testify against him.

Anderson secured a lawyer and witnesses, and the city did likewise. After the most pretentious trial ever given a jitney driver in municipal court, Judge F. H. Cutting found him guilty yesterday afternoon and fined him $10 and costs. Anderson thereupon paid $17.24.

TROYER ARRESTS ALLEGED FORGER

Former Duluth Chief Captures Another Man Wanted Here.

After two months of freedom, F. M. Edwards, alleged forger, came to grief at Fargo, N. D., yesterday, thanks to Chief C. H. Troyer of the Fargo force, and will be brought to Duluth to face trial.

On May 18 Edwards, it is alleged, entered the office of the Western Union Telegraph company at Duluth and professing to be one John Scheffler, signed a receipt and was given a $50 money order which was being held there for Scheffler.

He later is said to have cashed the draft.

Chief R. D. McKercher was notified this morning that Edwards was in custody at Fargo, after being arrested by Chief Troyer, who became familiar with the case while chief of the Duluth department.

SHOT ON SAME BRIDGE WHERE FATHER DIED

Tahlequah, Okla., July 20.—While walking across the same bridge on which his father was assassinated by a hidden enemy fourteen years ago, Charles West, commissioner of Cherokee county, was shot from ambush last night and probably fatally wounded. A political feud is believed to have caused the crime. Mrs. West, who was with her husband, was unharmed.

ADDITIONAL SPORTS

MOTORCYCLISTS TAKE MESSAGE BY RELAY

Chicago, July 20.—Plans for receiving the twelfth relay of motorcyclists carrying President Wilson's message to the president of the Panama-Pacific exposition and the dispatch of the thirteenth relay westward were completed today.

The trio of riders composing the twelfth is due to reach Chicago from South Bend, Ind., tonight at 7. Here President Pugh of the Sportsman's Clubs of America will receive the message and hand it to the thirteenth relay who will take it as far as Sterling, Ill.

The first relay left Washington at 9 o'clock Monday morning.

Will Go to Kansas.

St. Mary's, Kan., July 20.—Stephen G. O'Rourke, formerly athletic director at St. Thomas college, St. Paul, Minn., has been appointed athletic director at St. Mary's college here, it was announced today.

BAND WILL PLAY IF SUN SHINES

Mayor Hopes to Stage First Municipal Concert Sunday.

"S-sh," said the mayor.

"Don't tell a soul—but we are going to try to have a band concert in one of the parks Sunday if the weather man acts like a good little weather man should."

If no one tells Jupiter Pluvius, the concert plan will go through, for it is too late in the year for snow, according to the mayor, and as long as it doesn't rain, the chances are it will be warm.

For several weeks city officials have been trying to stage the Sunday "pop" concerts in the parks, but each time the elements have said "no" with emphasis.

"We will not decide upon the park to be favored until later in the week, when we learn of the requests made by picnic parties for park space on that day," declared Mr. Prince.

Every one who wants a concert has been sworn to secrecy, and Park Supt. Henry Cleveland believes the "jinx" has stopped following him.

BOY INJURED BY DYNAMITE CAP

When Ivan Grettum, age 9, son of a farmer living near French river, placed a dynamite cap on a stump yesterday and pounded it with a hammer, the explosion lacerated both hands, and may result in the loss of several fingers.

At the time of the accident Mrs. Grettum left her home and went across the road to care for a horse which was pulling hay from a stack owned by relatives living opposite the Grettum residence.

Ivan followed her and while playing about the yard, found a box containing the dynamite. He took one cap with him when his mother called him home.

The boy was taken to St. Mary's hospital, where it was stated that he would recover unless poisoning developed.

Almost the entire delegation of brewery workers to the state federation convention is now in Superior.

The convention will meet tomorrow. Delegates representing all of the unions of the state are expected to have arrived before tomorrow morning. The business sessions will continue until Friday evening. Local union men have planned several entertaining features for the visitors.

WHITNEY FUNERAL WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON

The funeral of William A. Whitney, who died early yesterday morning from injuries sustained in an automobile accident near Virginia, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock from the family residence, 1604 Ogden avenue. Members of the Superior Commercial club, Rotary club and Elks are planning to turn out in a body. Mr. Whitneys two brothers, W. W. Whitney and Everett Whitney of Milwaukee, arrived in the city last evening.

Socialist Picnic.

Scandinavian Socialists of Duluth and Superior will hold a picnic next Sunday at Billings park. It is being arranged by a joint committee from the various Socialist locals. A program of speaking, sports and games is being arranged.

A FIGHT FOR LIFE HIGH IN MID AIR

(Since the advent of the military aeroplane, there have been many thrilling flights high above the earth, but peaceful industry sometimes affords instances of struggles no less heroic. Here is the story from the Wide World Magazine of a thrilling rescue that took place last December on a great chimney-shaft high above the electric power works of the Leeds corporation.)

A cry—a groan—a crash!

The workmen at the foot of the great chimney at the Whitehall Road electric power works, Leeds, sprang to one side and looked hastily skyward as a big hammer came hurtling through the open iron-girdered roof of the old boiler house into the debris of broken metal-work and masonry that lay around the foot of the chimney.

Two hundred feet above the ground, against the blue sky of a clear but bitterly cold December day, soared the great square column of the chimney that was shortly to be demolished. Its massive head, overhanging the face of the chimney itself by several feet, was crowned with a cornice of huge stones, each one of which weighed over a ton.

Three men were working high up above, on the face of the chimney, and as the hammer came crashing to the ground the workers at the base instinctively looked aloft, for the cry they heard was a sudden yell of warning, while the groan that followed sounded like the last inarticulate exclamation from the throat of a man who had received a death blow that had knocked the breath from his body.

The hammer, crashing to the ground an instant later, told its own terrible story. There was trouble up aloft. A ladder had just been fixed, and the men were easing off the descending end of the rope, when suddenly the line caught the heavy hammer in Rafter's belt and pulled it out. Rafter made a clutch for the hammer, and nearly jerked himself off the ladder in doing so, but too late. He cried out to warn the man below, but the hammer fell almost as fast as the sound traveled. Instinctively Mayall ducked his head and twisted one leg around a rung of the ladder; then, with a sickening thud, the hammer struck him a terrible blow on the back of the head, crushing in the back of his skull, and with an awful groan he collapsed.

As the men in the works below and the passers-by in the street looked up they were horrified to see Mayall suddenly throw up his arm and fall backward. There he hung in mid-air, one leg twisted round a rung of ladder, his body upside down, and blood streaming from his head. Death seemed inevitable, for that twisted leg could not hold the weight of his body very long, and if he slipped the fall of 100 feet meant certain death; while, even if his leg held out, he must speedily bleed to death from the ghastly wound in his head.

Luckily the instinctive twisting of the leg around the ladder gave Mayall his one hope of rescue, for the work of fixing the ladders had been well done, and that particular ladder held firm even under the sudden wrench when the unconscious man fell outward and hung head downward in the air.

An instant later the onlookers were thrilled to witness the start of one of the bravest deeds in the annals of the steeplejack's profession.

A single glance below was enough to show Rafter what had happened; a single glance aloft told "Uncle Sam" the same tale. Four steps at a time, sometimes slipping by his hands and sometimes seeming almost to drop a few feet down the sheer face of the chimney, Rafter rushed down to where his unconscious comrade hung, while at the same time "Uncle Sam" hurried up toward him from below.

Seizing hold of the unconscious Mayall with one hand, Rafter held on to prevent him slipping until "Uncle Sam" had climbed up from below. When the unconscious man was reached, however, the real difficulty only began. How was he to be lifted upright, and how was his leg to be untwisted from the ladder, 100 feet in the air, by men who must themselves cling on somewhere to the slender rungs?

Here was the problem that must be solved, and solved quickly, for Mayall was rapidly bleeding to death. Moreover, under the strain of his weight his leg was untwisting, and at any moment he might slip and crash to the bottom of the shaft, taking his companions with him. The difficulty was great and urgent.

Clinging to the ladder with both hands, "Uncle Sam" got his head under the shoulders of the unconscious man and slowly pressed him upward, while Rafter, clinging to the ladder with one hand, strained every muscle to lift.

At length the desperate efforts of the two men began to tell, and slowly Mayall's inert body was raised, little by little, until at last it swung clear off the ladder and hung, 100 feet in air, suspended merely by the rope round one man's neck and resting on the neck and head of another man. It was a situation full of peril.

JOY RIDERS BUSY.

First Auto Theft Since Fourth of July Is Reported.

After being on their good behavior since July 4, automobile thieves with an inclination for joy riding were busy last night.

Howard M. Radar, 1115 East Second street, reported this morning that his car had been stolen from the garage in the rear of his residence. It was a five-passenger Studebaker car and carried an Ohio license.

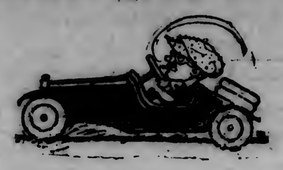

So far police have not recovered it.

Read The Herald Wants

THEY CAN'T HOLD 'IM.

—From the Des Moines Register.

HEAD-ON collisions are not profitable methods of disposing of used cars. Junk heaps are sold by the pound. Thousands of people in Duluth and the Empire of Steel are ready and willing to pay fair prices for used cars. They cannot afford new cars, or want to become thoroughly familiar with gas engines, transmissions, driving, etc., before owning a new car, or they can make use of an old car in their business with a smaller investment.

¶ These prospective buyers recognize "The Herald automobile column" as the best and largest list of used cars for sale. They are watching "Herald want ads" for their favorite make at the price they are willing to pay.

¶ The reason for these numerous sales was disclosed when a careful comparison was made of the list of names in which automobile licenses have been issued and the circulation books of The Duluth Herald. Ninety-eight per cent of the automobile owners in this vicinity were found to be readers of The Duluth Herald. If 98 per cent of the present automobile owners are Duluth Herald readers it is reasonable to believe that 98 per cent of the future automobile owners are also readers of The Duluth Herald.

¶ If you have a used car for sale and wish to reach this great buying class insert an ad in "The Herald automobile column" and sell it.

¶ For rates or other information concerning "Herald want ads" telephone Melrose or Grand 324 or call at The Duluth Herald business office or write.

MARKET BREAKS SHARPLY ON GOOD CROP ADVICES

Wheat Slumps With Selling on Expected Big Movement in Southwest.

Flaxseed Is Still Weak on Lack of Interest By Crushers.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 20.—The market slumped again at the close on increased selling pressure. July wheat closed unchanged, September 3⅞c off and December 3¼c off. July durum closed 5c off and September 3c off.

Oats closed 1c off at 52⅜c for on the track, rye unchanged at 98c and barley unchanged at from 66c to 72c.

At Winnipeg, July oats closed ⅝c off at 62⅝c bid and October ¼c off at 42⅜c.

Puts on Minneapolis September wheat closed at $1.04½ and calls at $1.08⅜ bid.

Settled weather conditions in all sections of the country and the forecasted beginning of a heavy movement of grain at Southwestern points within the next few days led to weakness in the wheat market today. To help the weakness along there was also the reported reselling of three cargoes of wheat by exporters at the seaboard. Stocks at Liverpool were reported liberal and a disposition was noted among millers over there to place all their high-price old-crop wheat rather than carry it over into the new crop.

Cash wheat in at St. Louis and Kansas City was heavy today, sales being put through at material declines from yesterday. Traders are generally of the opinion that when the market is called upon to absorb the heavy hedging sales that are to be expected within the next few days, a lower range of prices will be brought about.

Crop advices from over the Northwest are all that could be desired at present. The weather map showed dry conditions in all the territory and the uniformly moderate temperatures prevailing are regarded as most favorable in precluding the growth of black rust and in permitting the plant to develop. Conditions in South Dakota and in the northerly sections of North Dakota where dry conditions are usually complained of, are said to be especially promising.

Spring wheat supplies in Duluth elevators are now down to 191,000 bu and receipts are in small proportions. Today inspections here came to 33 cars against 209 last year, and in the lot many bulk-headed cars were noted, signifying that stores in farmers' hands and interior elevators are nominal. Apart from flaxseed, supplies of grain in elevators at the Head of the Lakes are the lowest in several years.

July wheat opened unchanged at $1.46 and was inactive. September opened unchanged at $1.13, broke 3c and stood at $1.13⅜ at the noon hour. December declined 2⅝c to $1.10⅜.

July durum was not quoted during the first three hours' trading. September opened unchanged at $1.23 and broke 2c.

Flaxseed Weak.

Flaxseed trading was quiet and its market continued weak on only limited buying by crushers. There were no new developments in market conditions, however. The close was firm on appearance of some support.

July flax closed 2c up at $1.70¼ nominally. September opened unchanged at $1.75¼ and closed ¼c off at $1.73 asked. October opened ¼c off at $1.74½ and closed ¾c off at $1.74½ bid. November opened unchanged at $1.76½ and closed 1c off at $1.74½ bid.

At Buenos Aires, July flax closed 1¾c up at $1.28¾ and London July-August seed 3⅞c off at $1.90.

At Winnipeg, July flax closed ¾c off at $1.51¼ bid and October ¼c off at $1.54¼.

While members of the Duluth board of trade are generally optimistic regarding the brilliant crop prospects over the Northwest they deem it prudent to refrain from shouting till the harvest is assured.

Said H. J. Atwood today: "It is just a year ago yesterday that I was out on an inspection trip over North Dakota and while wheat looked splendid everywhere I detected some black rust spores in a few fields I passed. Farmers to whom I drew attention to it expressed confidence that the crop would come through without material damage. Only a few days later the rust developed to such an extent that the yield in that vicinity was more than cut in two.

Rock Island railroad's weekly crop report says: "Farmers in Oklahoma are holding their wheat back for a better market. It is all cut and threshing yields 15 to 25 bu per acre. In Texas it is 25 bu and in Kansas 15 to 25 bu. Illinois and Missouri wheat is all cut. Hard rains in Nebraska have prevented cutting. Crop there is dead ripe and its condition serious, heavy loss being feared unless the weather improves. South Dakota wheat was damaged 5 per cent by wind and heavy rains. Corn is generally improved by warm weather, good growth being made in all states."

* * *

John Inglis wired from Aberdeen, S. D.: "Watertown to Aberdeen wheat is very good with some marquis in milk. Blue stream has progressed from blossoming to grain just forming. Find rust spores on advanced fields, but doubt if it will be serious to early wheat. Harvest will be general about Aug. 20. Small grain is heavy, with tendency to lodge."

* * *

Winnipeg Free Press says: "Canadian West requires six weeks of good hot dry weather and light winds to mature a crop which promises a fair average. Given this weather, harvesting of wheat will be general in Manitoba by Aug. 15 to 20; Alberta by Aug. 25 to 30, and Saskatchewan from Aug. 23 to 25. Some 9 points in Manitoba require rain. The other 149 points heard from declare plenty of rain has fallen to finish the crop."

Minneapolis cash market was firmer on top grades, but slow on lower grades. No. 1 northern blue stem sold at 11 to 12½c over July, and velvet chaff at 3 to 6c over July. Flour sales were fair. Cash No. 1 northern wheat sold there at from $1.40 to $1.50, and No. 2 northern at from $1.37 to 1.47.

C. E. Lewis & Co. had the following from Shipton Anderson & Co. of Liverpool: "Over here the market has been in a very stagnant state for some time, and the government has been storing and bringing over large quantities of wheat, so that the merchants' position here has not been an enviable one. Their brokers, however, are very erratic sellers; some days they are pressing and taking low cuts, other days they are apparently firm. The pressure of Indian wheats too by the government was also a cause of our weakness. At the present time stocks of old wheat throughout the country are very liberal and the demand for flour still continues very poor. In fact in the last week or two, a number of the millers have been closing down for various repairs and other overhauling, as they do not fancy carrying a pound more of the high-priced old wheat into the new crop than they can help."

Foreign crop summary:

United Kingdom — General rains have fallen and all crops are improved. Official indications point to a crop of wheat of 63,000,000 bu; barley, 44,000,000 bu; oats, 85,000,000 bu.

France—Wetness continues, and the recent heavy rain and other storms caused considerable damage and delayed harvesting.

Germany—Most reports are very favorable and a large yield is expected of wheat, with potatoes excellent.

Russia—Crop prospects are generally maintained, especially for winter wheat. Spring outlook is not altogether favorable. Reserves will be large and burdensome unless shipping becomes possible.

India—Indications for the monsoon is better, and moisture is again needed.

Australia—Further good rains have fallen, and indications based on actual conditions, point to a very large yield of wheat.

Italy—Harvest weather is rather better but the crop will not be up to expectations.

Spain—Outturn reports are not favorable.

Bradstreet's estimated world's visible wheat decrease, 10,312,000 bu in the week; corn decreased 918,000 bu and oats decreased 1,406,000 bu. The wheat supply was estimated at 78,381,000 bu against 99,074,000 bu a year ago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "Firmness was in evidence at the immediate opening as influenced by America, but private reports as cabled here state that American weather is improving and this served to check the advance. Spot wheat was very firm, ½@1½d higher with Rosafe nominally unchanged. Cargo market was firm with winters unchanged. Plates 6 pence higher, Manitobas 3 pence higher and Indians 6 pence higher. European harvesting reports are disappointing, arrivals in the United Kingdom of wheat are light and more firmness is being shown by sellers of new winters, which is leading to some apprehension. American receipts are serving to hold prices."

Argentina—Weather continues clear, dry and cool. It is favorable for corn but moisture is wanted for wheat. Freights are easier at 62s 6d, or a decline of 2s 6d since Friday.

European visible supply of wheat 65,296,000 bu shows a decrease of 7,323,000 bu. Last year the total was 61,200,000 bu, a decrease of 3,400,000 bu.

CHICAGO MARKET.

Improved Weather in Harvest Fields Lowers Wheat Prices.

Chicago, July 20.—Improved weather in the harvest region tended today to ease down the wheat market. Prices were bearishly affected also by the fact that conditions in the spring crop belt remained highly favorable and against the development of black rust. Traders here ignored an advance in quotations at Liverpool. The market, after opening ¼c to 1¼c lower, underwent a material further decline.

Bearish feeling was increased by announcements that export sales were being canceled. The weekly weather report was also decidedly against the bulls. Prices closed heavy, 3⅛@3⅜c under last night.

Corn weakened with wheat. On the downturn, however, speculators went to the buying side, owing to reports of a good Eastern shipping call and of country offerings being reduced. Opening prices, which ranged from ⅞@½c off to ⅛c up, were followed by a moderate general reaction.

Afterward the market was inclined to sag with wheat. The close was nervous, ⅞@1c down to ⅛c up, compared with last night.

In oats the feature was selling that was believed to be due to pressure from the new crop. The effect was to lower prices, especially for July.

Provisions declined in sympathy with hogs. Trade, however, was not large.

PERIOD OF LOW MONEY RATES IS NEARING END

George M. Reynolds, president of the Continental & Commercial National bank of Chicago, says that Eastern bankers believe that the period of abnormally low money rates is nearly at an end, as they expect the demand for funds to increase shortly.

The crop movement is expected to cause higher rates within thirty days, and as a precautionary step one large New York bank is said to have withdrawn entirely from the commercial paper market, as its surplus funds above a satisfactory reserve point have been fully loaned. Substantial improvement in the call for money is already reported by Mr. Reynolds and other Chicago bankers.

BETHLEHEM STEEL IS UP

Makes Further Gain and New High Record Is Reached.

American Can Also One of Features of Stock Market.

New York, July 20.—War shares were again heavily sold at the opening of today's market, with a further weakness in Crucible Steel, in which the initial offering was a block of 2,000 shares at 39½ to 39, against yesterday's closing price of 41¾. Bethlehem Steel, General Electric and Allis-Chalmers preferred also yielded 1 to 2 points with minor losses in Westinghouse, Studebaker and American Can. The more prominent railway stocks pursued a contrary course, Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific and Reading rising a point or more. Crucible made a slight rally before the end of the half hour.

Further buying of the railways, mainly trunk lines and coalers, strengthened the list elsewhere, coppers also being in fair demand. Specialties continued their movements, however, General Motors, which opened at an advance, soon falling back with others in the same group. Dealings in the first hour, while not up to yesterday's high point of activity, were moderately large. But towards midday there were frequent periods of dullness. Bonds were mostly lower with an increase of foreign offerings.

Bethlehem Steel made the new high price of $1.94¼ in the early afternoon, an over-night advance of 9½ points. In other respects the market was dull and almost featureless.

New high records for Bethlehem Steel at 1.98½ and American Can at 63⅝ were the features of today's market.

Bethlehem Steel made further strides in the final hour and Can also sold to a new high record. The closing was firm.

FIVE THOUSAND RIOTERS AND POLICE CLASH IN DESPERATE FIGHT AT STANDARD OIL PLANT

ONE RIOTER KILLED AND FIFTY HURT

Both Police and Members of Mob Among the Injured.

Guards Are Attacked and Forced to Draw Their Revolvers.

Firemen Called Out to Use Water in Dispersing the Mob.

New York, July 21.—Rioting around the Standard Oil plant assumed serious proportions yesterday. The Bayonne chief of police said that about 5,000 men were engaged in the attack and that one of the rioters was killed. Fifty persons were taken to the Bayonne hospital suffering from injuries. The injured included both rioters and police.

It was stated that the guards did not fire until the mob attacked them with sticks and stones and had fired a number of pistol shots. Then the guards responded with a round from their revolvers and the three men were wounded. The crowd thereupon dispersed.

Calls on Firemen.

Inspector Daniel Cady, who is in charge of the police at the plant, following the attack, called on Fire Chief Albert Davis for assistance, and the latter took a dozen men and many lengths of hose to the plant. These will be used to fight rioters with water, should there be any further attacks.

PRISONERS ARE TO BE EXCHANGED

Germany and Russia Will Send Incapacitated Ones Home.

Berlin, July 21, by wireless to Sayville.—The Overseas News agency today gave out the following:

"Negotiations between Germany and Russia for the exchange of incapacitated prisoners of war have finally been successful, after many fruitless efforts. This is due largely to the work of James W. Gerard, the American ambassador at Berlin.

"The plan of exchanging the prisoners on transports with escorts has been abandoned. The prisoners will be forwarded by railway through Sweden, by way of Karungi. Exchange stations have been selected and the Swedish government has undertaken to transport German and Russian prisoners to the frontier at the same time.

"An agreement has been reached for the designation by the Danish Red Cross of men to visit prisoners' camps in Russia and Germany for the purpose of determining conditions there. Three Danish officials will inspect the German camps and three others will go to Russia."

ANY DEVIATION FROM LAW BY GERMANY WILL BE "UNFRIENDLY" ACT

WILL MAKE ANOTHER APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT FOR BECKER

MARTIN MANTON.

United States Note on Submarine Warfare Makes This Plain.

Teutons Must Make Practices Conform to International Usage.

Phrase "Unfriendly Act" Carries an Implication of Finality.

Washington, July 21.—The United States has decided to inform Germany that further loss of American lives as the result of German submarine warfare in contravention of the principles of international law will be regarded as an "unfriendly act." The discussion of principles is virtually ended. The American government will now warn Germany of the interpretation it will place on future transgressions of American rights.

In the new note the United States assumes that Germany already has admitted the principle that passengers must be removed to a place of safety before destroying an unresisting merchantman as a prize.

Taking the position, therefore, that the two governments are agreed in principle the United States views it as incumbent upon Germany to make her submarine practice conform with the accepted principles of international law. Any deviation in actual practice resulting in the loss of American lives it is then pointed out, will be viewed as an unfriendly act.

The action which the United States might subsequently take is not indicated, but in diplomatic usage the phrase "friendly act" has always carried with it an implication of finality leading often to a severance of friendly relations.

EMPEROR DID NOT MAKE STATEMENT

Did Not Say War Would End in October, Says the Tageblatt.

Berlin, July 21, via London.—The statement attributed to Emperor William, which has appeared in foreign newspapers, that the war would end in October, is stamped by the Tageblatt as "a plain invention." The Tageblatt says it has learned that competent official circles know nothing of such a declaration.

THROW DOWN THEIR TOOLS

More Machinists Answer Strike Call at Remington Works.

Labor Leaders Claim to Have Taken 110 Additional Men.

Bridgeport, Conn., July 21.—Strike calls resulted today in machinists throwing down their tools in a number of Bridgeport shops and walking out. Labor leaders claimed they had taken 110 additional men from two plants doing work for the Remington Arms & Ammunition company; that pickets had succeeded in keeping eighty men from going to work at the new plant of the Remington concern; that 100 men on the night shift at the Union Metallic Cartridge company had gone on strike, and that during the noon lunch hour hundreds of men on the day shift would quit. They estimated this forenoon that nearly 500 skilled machinists were now on strike. They reiterated their statement that there would be a complete closedown of war munition factories by Saturday.

Disorder Imminent.

Disorder seemed imminent twice today; once at the new Remington plant,

BECKER AWAITING ACTION ON APPEAL

Sends Long Statement to Governor Denying Complicity in the Murder of Gambler Rosenthal.

New York, July 21.—Counsel for Charles Becker awaited today the result of Becker's appeal to Governor Whitman to forbid his execution on July 28 for the murder of Herman Rosenthal. Becker's plea, sent to the governor at Albany last night included a long statement of his version of the facts leading up to the murder.

In this statement Becker denied complicity in the murder.

Asks Respite.

With the statement was a request that the governor grant the condemned man a respite "in the light of certain facts now disclosed for the first time."

The publication of this statement here last night followed the announcement during the day by Martin T. Manton, of counsel for Becker, that, within the next few days an application would be made before a supreme court justice here for a new trial for Becker, on the ground of newly discovered evidence.

Becker's statement, done in his own handwriting, is a chronological history, told in plain language, of what, he says, were his dealings with Rosenthal and the others mentioned in the murder case. This communication was accompanied with a copy of the argument used by Bourke Cockran of Becker's counsel recently before United States Supreme Court Justice Hughes for a writ of error. The latter document was included in the documents sent to the governor in order that he might know the grounds on which Mr. Cockran sought a writ of error.

Sullivan Mentioned.

The name of the late Timothy D. Sullivan, at the time of the Rosenthal affair a state senator, is brought into Becker's statement at length. Becker claims that Sullivan had intervened with the police in an effort to get permission for Rosenthal to run his gambling house, saying that he was financially interested in the house, and wanted to help Rosenthal.

Later, after Rosenthal's place was

ITALIANS CAPTURE OVER 500 AUSTRIANS

Heavy Fighting Continues Along Front North of Gulf of Trieste.

Rome, July 20, via Paris, July 21.—Heavy fighting on the Isonzo front north of the Gulf of Triest, resulting in gains for the Italian forces, is announced in a statement given out tonight at the war office. The report is as follows:

"Our vigorous offensive all along the Isonzo front continued yesterday, progress being made especially on the Corse plateau, where at the end of the day several additional trenches were taken and 500 prisoners, including five officers, captured.

"Although fatigued by the sharp and stubborn struggle, prolonged until nightfall, our troops succeeded in establishing themselves rapidly and firmly in the conquered positions and resisted counter-attacks made by the enemy during the night. The actions continue to develop.

"The situation over the rest of the front is unchanged."

Paris Paper Sold.

Paris, July 21.—It is understood that the Journal has been sold by the Letellier family, which has owned the newspaper since it was founded twenty years ago, to a syndicate headed by Francois de Wendel, deputy for Meurthe-et-Moselle. The price is said to have been 22,000,000 francs ($4,400,000).

REINFORCED TROOPS OF CZAR ON OFFENSIVE ON THE DNIESTER RIVER

Determined Efforts to Retake Positions Captured By Austrians.

Vienna Reports Say All Their Attempts Were Unsuccessful.

Succeed in Breaking Into Austrian Lines in Bessarabia.

Berlin, July 21, via London.—A dispatch to the Lokal Anzeiger from Czernowitz, capital of Bukowina, reports fierce fighting along the Dniester river near the Bukowina-Galicia border. The Russians brought up large reinforcements and made determined attempts to retake positions on the left bank of the river, which had been captured by the Austrians. They were supported by heavy artillery, but, the dispatch says, their attacks gained them nothing.

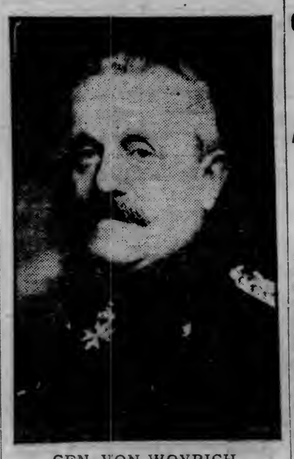

Along the Bessarabian front also the Russians are on the offensive, having made desperate attacks during the last four nights. They succeeded in breaking into the Austrian positions in one place, but the attacking forces subsequently were captured and here, as elsewhere, the Russians were unable to make gains. The battle of Monday night lasted six hours, during which the Russians made eight assaults at many points.

According to dispatches reaching Berlin, all the official archives in Riga, the Russian Baltic port, now threatened by the Germans, together with the moneys of state banks and court records, were taken to Petrograd Monday. Government officials have been advised to be ready to depart. It is said more than 10,000 inhabitants of the city fled last week.

FRANK'S RECOVERY IS PRACTICALLY CERTAIN

Milledgeville, Ga., July 21.—Marked improvement in the condition of Leo M. Frank, whose throat was cut Saturday night by a fellow-convict at the state prison farm here, was announced today by physicians attending him. His temperature was 100, the lowest since Sunday, and his pulse and respiration were practically normal. The physicians said that while he is not yet out of danger, his recovery now is practically certain.

GERMAN GENERAL MEETS WITH SUCCESS SOUTH OF IVANGOROD

GEN. VON WOYRICH.

CLOSING IN ON PORT OF RIGA

Capture of Russ City Would Force Retreat Toward Petrograd.

Gen. Von Woyrich Meets With Important Success Near Ivangorod.

London, July 21.—The most important success now reported by the Germans has been won by Gen. von Woyrich, south of Ivangorod. This seems to have been a surprise attack. The Russians, who had heavy reserves in the neighborhood, later delivered vigorous counter-attacks, but failed to recover the lost ground. Windau, in Courland, on the Baltic, is definitely in the hands of the Germans, who are now within thirty-five miles of the important Russian seaport of Riga.

Possession of Riga by the Germans would force the Russian armies near Shavli and Mitau to retreat, as the Baltic port is their chief point of supplies. The ambitious advance of the Germans in the Baltic provinces indicates they hope not only to capture Warsaw, but to cut off the retreat of the Russians by placing forces between the retiring armies and Petrograd.

An Embarrassing Position.

All these late advances place Grand Duke Nicholas, the Russian commander-in-chief, in an embarrassing position. To risk obstinate resistance might imperil his retreat, but it is pointed out here that such an extended Austro-German line may contain weak points against which a counter-move might be made in the hope of saving the Polish capital. Military writers assert that the presence not only of landwehr, but of landsturm

NO HALTING IN DRIVE ON THE CAPITAL

Teutons Close Under Guns of Big Fortress Nowo Georgievsk.

Only Nineteen Miles Away and Key to City From North.

Austro-German Troops Are Steadily Advancing in Southern Poland.

There is no halt, so far as official reports indicate, in the Teutonic drive aimed at Warsaw, and having as a larger motive the infliction of a crushing blow upon the Russian armies. The Russians, however, seem to be showing increasing powers of resistance as the lines of the attacking hosts draw closer to the Polish capital.

Latest official statements showed the Germans under the guns of the fortress Nowo Georgievsk, the key to Warsaw on the north, and only nineteen miles from the city. Further north the fortress of Ostrolenka fell.

In the Baltic provinces the impressive German advances continued. The campaign in this latter section is interpreted by military observers in capitals of the entente allies as possibly intended to cut in on Russian lines of communication and prevent a successful retreat of their armies from the Warsaw region.

Less speedy, but none the less steady, is the Austro-German advance through Southern Poland. So far as reports show, the important communication lines in the Lublin region have not been pierced.

Continued advances by the Italians in the Isonzo region are reported from Rome, the most notable gain of ground being on the Corso plateau. The Austrian war office, however, denies that the invaders are making progress.

Little activity of a pronounced sort is reported from the lines in France and Belgium.

There have been no official reports for several days of the campaign in the Dardanelles.

The South Wales coal strike has definitely ended with the acceptance by the miners of the settlement agreement.

TURK MERCHANT FLEET DESTROYED

Russian Warships Sink Sixty-Nine Vessels Loaded With Flour.

Petrograd, July 21, via London—The following official communication has been received from the headquarters of the Russian army in the Caucasus:

"Our destroyer flotilla destroyed a fleet of sixty-nine Turkish sailing vessels laden with flour.

"A battle is raging in the direction of Mush (Asiatic Turkey, eighty-three miles southeast of Erzerum). We captured Nazyk in the course of the fighting."

A dispatch from Sebastopol to London last night said that fifty-nine Turkish sailing vessels had been destroyed by the Russians.

Munitions for France.

Rome, via Paris, July 21.—The national munitions committee held its first meeting yesterday under the presidency of Premier Salandra. A number of plans were adopted to insure a continuous supply of munitions in the event of a long war, and to organize industries which produce other supplies for the army.

ALL DULUTHIANS ARE EXPECTED TO BOOST AND HELP MAKE THE REGATTA A SUCCESS.

AMERICANS CAN COMPETE WITH GERMANS IN INDIGO

Can Be Produced as Cheaply Here as Abroad, Says Manufacturer.

Michigan Man Tells of Experience in Sending Bromides Abroad.

Detroit, Mich., July 21.—Herbert H. Dow, president of the Dow Chemical company of Midland, Mich., told the Federal trade commission meeting here today that American manufacturers of chemicals could produce indigo and other products fully as cheaply here as abroad. All that is necessary for the cheap production of the chemicals is a little more experience and knowledge of the "tricks of the trade," he said.

Mr. Dow charged that as a result of his company selling a certain bromide abroad, Germany had taken the United States trade in that chemical from the Michigan concern.

"We were warned," he said, "that for every pound we exported the Germans would put two pounds in the United States. We thought it was a bluff and continued to export the bromide. The result was that we did not sell a single pound in the United States. The Germans not only paid a duty of 25 per cent but actually undersold us. Since the war started, however, we have regained part of our trade."

"Isn't that practice common whenever an American article gets a start?" asked Joseph E. Davies, chairman of the commission.

"It is," answered Mr. Dow.

"What effect did the tariff have?"

"It saved us from bankruptcy," replied Mr. Dow.

VOLLEY OF SLANG STAGGERS OFFICER

Two Youthful "Pugilists" Puzzle Sergt. Butchart With Lingual Outburst.

Sergeant David Butchart considered himself an authority on slang until yesterday afternoon, when he arrested George Hurst, aged 22, and Ben Cloud, aged 24, for fighting.

After George and Ben had strated a fight with Harry Dahl, 119 East Superior street, one of them administered a punch which felled Mr. Dahl, and the sergeant, attired in citizen's clothes, took a hand.

"Ahr chee!" ejaculated Ben, obviously disgusted with so much publicity, as he glared at the crowd which gathered on First avenue west near First street, where the fracas ended.

"Lamp the skoits," went on Ben, "if you was a regular harness bull, instead of a fly, you'd give'm the goodbye in a hurry."

Butchart was nonplused for a moment, but he came back bravely: "Sure, and I am a regular harness bull, but my collar doesn't fit and I left it at home this morning."

"Ahr chee!" was Ben's only answer.

Both men pleaded guilty before Judge Cutting in municipal court today and were given suspended sentences on a promise to leave the city.

CITY HAS TOO MANY LAWS

Attorneys Unable to Find Them Without Aid of City Counsel.

Charter and Hundreds of Ordinances May Be Compiled.

Duluth has so many laws that attorneys cannot find them without help from the city attorney.

That is the situation as pictured in complaints to city commissioners today, which asked for a compilation of the ordinances passed, amended and repealed in the last ten years.

Since 1905, when the last compilation of the city charter and ordinances was made, about 600 new laws, not including the appropriation ordinances, have been passed by aldermen and commissioners.

Aside from records kept by the city clerk and by the city attorney, there is no place where attorneys can refer to the city's laws, and because of this, frequent trips to the city hall are necessary, whenever an attorney handles a case involving violations of recently enacted ordinances.

"Before Attorney Greene became ill," said Assistant City Attorney L. J. McHugh, "he was considering the matter of compiling the charter and the ordinances and this probably will be done soon after he recovers sufficiently to return to the office."

"The city's records, in so far as the charter and ordinances are concerned, are in a chaotic state," said Commissioner Voss, "and a compilation should be made at once.

"Commissioners have considered the plan of having each division of the city government prepare a pamphlet containing the ordinances which they enforce, properly indexed, so that citizens interested could find the information desired at once.

"If pamphlets of this kind were prepared by the police, health and water and light departments particularly it would be a big time saver. Residents of the city should be given a better opportunity to familiarize themselves with the charter provisions."

"CHICK" EVANS IS PICKED AS WINNER

Second Round of Western Golf Title Tournament Is Under Way.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 21.—Eight pairs of golfers were off this morning in the second round of match play for the Western amateur championship. The Mayfield course was in the best shape of the tournament and weather conditions were ideal. Thirty-six holes are to be played today. Play for the president's, secretary's, directors', committee's, treasurer's and surprise cups, was begun this morning. The second round in the vice president's cup play also was under way.

"Chick" Evans, by his performances Tuesday, is being picked to win the Western title again this year, although his followers are conceding he will meet the stiffest opposition he has encountered in any previous Western event.

MORE DETAILS OF SWINDLING GAME

Investigation as to Police Protection Continues in Chicago.

Chicago, July 21.—Further details of the alleged protection of the clairvoyant and wire tapping ring by members of the police department who are accused of having shared in the profits of the swindling operations were given by Christian P. Bertsche, politician, saloon keeper and self-confessed "fixer," when he resumed his testimony today in the trial of former detective sergeants, William Egan and Walter O'Brien, charged with having accepted bribes. Bertsche said he frequently made tours of inspection of the clairvoyant parlors and wire tappers' headquarters which were operating under police protection.

"Did you personally take part in the swindling of the victims of these places?" asked Assistant State's Attorney Johnston.

"No, I just went around to see that everything was going all right," explained Bertsche.

The witness said he remembered when Mrs. Hope L. McEldowney of La Crosse, Wis., was swindled out of $15,000 by clairvoyants.

Bertsche identified a draft for $12,000 given by Mrs. McEldowney to James Ryan at the time she was defrauded.

The witness said he opened a bank account under the name of E. J. Christy and deposited the draft to his credit in order to protect Ryan in case of trouble.

"Ryan told me how he got the money from Mrs. McEldowney by agreeing to invest in mining stocks," said Bertsche. "Once he gave her $1,000 to show her he was trustworthy."

The witness said Mrs. Mary E. Rapp, of Naperville, Ill., was swindled out of $12,000 in the same manner by Ryan.

"Did you talk to the defendant, Walter O'Brien, about these women being swindled?"

"Yes, I told him about it in advance."

ENTERTAIN LUMBERMEN.

Several Men Prominent in Trade Visit Cloquet.

Cloquet, Minn., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following lumbermen were in the city Tuesday looking over the local lumber companies: William Irvine, Chippewa Falls, Wis.; Alexander McDonald of Chippewa Falls, Wis.; Horace Irvine, St. Paul; F. C. Denkman of Davenport, Iowa, and George Hawley of Tonawanda, N. Y. A dinner was served to them and some of the local men at the Hotel Cloquet.

NEW TRIAL FOR GEORGIAN.

Alleged Victim Being Alive, Convicted Man Gets Another Chance.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 21.—Nicholas Georgian, now serving twenty-five years for the murder of Frank Klug, must be given a new trial. This was definitely determined yesterday after the district attorney and Judge Backus had examined the records. The information filed against the man and the instructions read name Frank Klug as the dead person. Monday Klug appeared in good health and therefore Georgian is not guilty of his murder.

FEDERATION OF LABOR IS OPPOSED TO PROHIBITION

Asks That Question Be First Voted Upon By People.

Motion for Government Ownership of Liquor Traffic Defeated.

Winona, Minn., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Minnesota Federation of Labor by an overwhelming vote this morning went on record as opposed to state or national prohibition except the people first be given an opportunity to vote on the question through the smallest political unit, the municipality. An attempt to amend by declaring for government ownership and regulation of the liquor traffic was defeated about three to one.

The federation adopted a resolution declaring for an eight-hour day, with a day and a half rest in each week, the same to be secured "either by legislative enactment or by ordinary trades union methods."

Peace Resolution.

L. P. Straube, representing Labor's National Peace council, spoke in denunciation of the present European war and all wars as being detrimental to labor, and offered resolutions calling for a united demand for a cessation of hostilities, and, if necessary, a special session of congress to take steps toward the attainment of peace universal. The resolutions committee will consider this and several other peace resolutions offered, and the convention will adopt some peace resolution prior to adjournment.

Magnus Brown, representing the Minnesota branch of the American Society of Equity, spoke as a fraternal delegate, declaring that farmers and laboring men had many interests in common and urging closer co-operation between them.

The convention adopted a resolution condemning the conviction in Colorado of John R. Lawson of the United Mine Workers for murder, as being unwarranted in law; also a resolution providing for having labor represented on committees to help shape policies of industrial schools.

Tax Land Values Only.

Forty-eight resolutions were introduced yesterday, covering all sorts of propositions, from the stand on prohibition to the settlement of minor disputes between crafts in one of the cities. One, introduced by J. G. O'Neill of the Duluth Longshoremen's union and signed by six others of the Duluth delegation, indorses the bill introduced by Senator Richard Jones at the last session of the legislature. After a lengthy preamble, the resolution says:

"Resolved, That the present taxation system is morally and fundamentally wrong in that it rewards the land speculator and punishes the thrifty home-owner; it encourages honesty and places a premium on dishonesty in the matter of personal property assessments; and

"Resolved, That we favor a legislative measure that will remove all taxes whatever on personal property and improvements, and which will place the entire burden of taxation on land values, thereby forcing all valuable idle lands in use, and further

"Resolved, That this matter be given the serious and immediate attention of the executive council of the Minnesota State Federation of Labor with the request that a bill be prepared for introduction at the next session of the legislature similar to the measure introduced in the senate by Senators Jones and Pauly with the object of accomplishing the purpose set out in the preamble of these resolutions."

The Garnishment Law.

A resolution introduced by P. T. Marandaw of Duluth provided for the recommendation of a law that would give married men an exemption of $65 a month and single men $45 instead of the $35 now prevailing. The legislation committee recommended, in reporting, that the scale be changed to $46 and $30 and this suggestion resulted in a storm of protests.

During the argument, participated in by a large number of delegates, it was shown that the exemption would be reduced in the minimum as compared with the present law.

"Don't you people know what's good for you? Don't you know you are putting the yoke on ourselves, and that, in fact, there should be no garnishment against the wage earner?" declared J. F. Emme of St. Paul. Several others called the suggested amendment ridiculous and the result was that it was refrred back to the committee for further consideration.

The Minneapolis Trouble.

One of the resolutions offered by F. J. O'Neill of Duluth has bearing on the clash which took place on Monday. Charges then were made that the executive council convicted the delegates from the Minneapolis assembly before they were tried. The resolution asks that a committee be appointed to ascertain the truth of these statements. The resolution is not considered an anti-administration move.

The feeling between factions over the altercations in the compensation law cropped out at the conclusion of the annual report of Labor Commissioner Houk. Mr. Houk was asked the reasons for the withdrawal of labor recommendations from the conference committee, during the session of the legislature. Mr. Houk referred to the fact that very little labor legislation was secured.

Among the speakers before the convention yesterday were Senator Richard Jones of Duluth, Dr. C. A. Prosser, director of the Dunwoody Institute, Minneapolis; J. H. Strief, president of the Iowa Federation of Labor; Charles W. Cullen, organizer for the United Hatters' organization, and others. Mr. Prosser asked for co-operation with his efforts, and he explained the purpose of the new school.

The delegates last evening participated in a moonlight excursion on the barge Mississippi, dancing being the principal amusement on the trip.

Resolution Defeated.

At yesterday afternoon's session the Cabinet Makers' union, No. 58, of Minneapolis, introduced a resolution protesting against the action of the Labor Bulletin of Minneapolis in attacking the cabient makers, calling for censure of Editor Frank Gould and declaring it was a shame that unionism should be disregarded for dollars. A motion to concur in the resolution was defeated, 85 ayes and 96 nays.

Delegate Fischer, sergeant-at-arms, was then called to the platform to be presented with a large tin star, emblematic of his office. Mr. Fischer looked for the union label on the star and, not finding it, declined to accept it. Delegates Briemel was then instructed to have the union label attached to the star, it having been made by union labor.

The Duluth delegates are assigned to committees as follows: Auditing and credentials, Peter Schaeffer; rules and order of business, Nick Olsen, chairman, and Fred Bernard; officers' reports, R. J. Coole, chairman; organization, H. R. Tinkham, chairman; constitution, J. G. O'Neill; resolutions, C. Franke; union labels, Joseph Burke; building trades, S. C. Nelson; workmen's compensation, W. E. McEwen; convict labor, W. P. Zuehlke; fraternal relations, Henry Pereault and P. T. Marandaw. W. J. Dutcher of Duluth is acting as assistant secretary of the convention.

CHINESE MINISTERS ARE IN DISGRACE

Two Dismissed; One Is Charged With Wholesale Peculation.

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

Pekin, June 23.—Two important officers of the government, both vice ministers of the cabinet, have been dismissed summarily. President Yuan Shi Kai in a mandate made a charge of wholesale peculation against Chang Hu, vice minister of finances, who has been acting also as a director of the Salt Gabelle, one of the principal sources of revenue in the country. Chang Hu was banished to Szechuen province. Yeh Kung-Cho, the vice minister of communications, is the other dismissed man.

Not long ago another high official, formerly a personal friend of President Yuan, was executed because of corruption.

TEMPERANCE, SUBJECT OF PURITY CONGRESS

San Francisco, Cal., July 21.—Temperance was one of the subjects to be considered at today's session of the Ninth International Purity congress. Among the speakers on the program were Miss Edith M. Wills of Boston, whose subject was "Alcohol and the Child's Birthright," and James Argue of Winnipeg, Canada, who discussed "Temperance Progress in Manitoba."

Other speakers and their subjects were Miss Kate Davis of Cleveland, Ohio, "The Necessity for Federal Censorship of Motion Pictures"; E. H. Pratt of Chicago, "The Actor, the Stage and the Play"; Rev. Sidney L. Gulick of New York, "The Challenge of Asia to the Churches of America," and Dr. Yetsujiro Uyehara of Tokio, Japan, "Social and Moral Conditions in Japan."

ESCAPED BADGER CONVICT RETAKEN

Bemidji, Minn., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Arthur Knutson, who was arrested here last Saturday by Frank Ripple, chief of police, on a charge of wife desertion, was taken back to Shawano, Wis., Tuesday by Sheriff A. F. Anderson of that city. Knutson was convicted of wife desertion several months ago and sentenced to three years in prison. He was placed at work on the highways and a month later made his escape, coming to Bemidji, having relatives here.

Mr. Deppe Returns.

C. H. Deppe, head of the Glass Block shoe department, returned yesterday from a two weeks' buying trip in the East. Mr. Deppe visited New York, Boston, Haverhill, Lynn and Syracuse. He reports a probable rise in shoe prices, in the event of the present European war continuing. "In most cases," he said today, "Eastern manufacturers have only a ninety-day supply of imported leather on hand." Asked as to fall styles, Mr. Deppe said, "The trend is unquestionably away from the more conservative styles. How far this movement is likely to continue is difficult to say."

TO REGULATE CITY TRAFFIC

Safety Zones, Near-Side Stops and Other Provisions Planned.

Thirty Signs Will Be Posted, Fixing the Speed Limits.

Teaching Duluth to ride and walk properly is the task undertaken by Safety Commissioner Silberstein.

Safety zones, near-side stops for street cars, whistles for traffic police, and warning signs for speeding automobilists, all to be installed within the next few days, are expected to help solve Duluth's traffic problem, according to the commissioner.

After a stroll along Superior street this morning, in the course of which he conferred with traffic policemen at various corners, the head of the public safety division announced that the next step in his campaign would be a conference with Vice President Herbert Warren of the Duluth Street Railway company.

"I'm going to get this straightened out," he said, "and see if we can't improve conditions on the downtown streets."

A safety zone will be marked out on the lower west side of Superior street at Third avenue, where pedestrians may stand while waiting for cars. A similar zone, marked by the iron standards, will be established east of the crossing on the upper side of the street for cars going west. Street cars turning up the hill at Third avenue will not stop on Superior street, according to the plan.

Thirty signs to be placed on iron posts along the street, telling the speed limit, were delivered to the commissioner this morning. Fifteen of the signs, inscribed "speed limit ten miles," will be placed on iron posts carrying street car company's power wires, if company officials grant permission.

They are about three feet in length, and will extend at right angles to the post, after the fashion of a railroad signal arm. The signs giving ten miles as the limit will be placed at intervals on Superior street.

Others, giving a speed limit of fifteen miles an hour, will be placed along the most used streets in the residence districts of the city.

AUTO HITS GIRL AND DRAGS HER

Miss Edith Larson Crosses Behind Street Car and Is Struck.

Crossing the street behind a street car nearly proved serious for Miss Edith Larson, aged 21, last night at Garfield avenue and Superior street, for she was struck by an eastbound automobile and dragged about fifteen feet.

The automobilist, who stopped and then rushed the injured girl to her home at 1012 Garfield avenue, refused to give his name, but the police found that he is Adlore Pichee, 2717 West First street. Identification was made by means of the auto license, No. 75326.

After a further investigation of the affair this morning, Sergeant John Hunter of the West end station reported that the girl was not seriously injured and probably would recover. A warrant charging Pichee with reckless driving was sworn to by Police Capt. A. G. Eiskett.

At the time of the accident Miss Larson, accompanied by Axel Anderson, 704 Garfield avenue, had just alighted from an East Fourth and West Third street car and was crossing to board a Duluth-Superior car.

Patrolman Negoda of the West end station reported the accident.

St. Paul, Minn., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Examination of the Osseo State bank, wrecked by Cashier Thompson, probably will be completed Friday by A. H. Turrittin, state superintendent of banks. Mr. Turrittin said today that he did not expect the shortage would go over $62,000.

Further overtures were made to Mr. Turrittin today by representatives of Moore & Johnson, the Chicago speedway promoters, looking to a settlement of their indebtedness to the bank. These two men are charged with getting into the bank to the extent of about $12,000. The settlement offered is in the shape of secured paper.

MAY USE DORMITORIES AT BOYS' REFORMATORY

St. Paul, Minn., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Individual cells in use for housing prisoners at the St. Cloud reformatory may be changed into dormitories if a visit to be made this week to the Canadian reformatory at Guelph, Ont., shows that the latter plan is better. The Guelph institution is one of the most modern on the continent.

The board of control has under construction a cell wing at the St. Cloud reformatory and also has $70,000 available for the construction of an additional cell wing. As the institution houses young prisoners and those in the first stage of crime, the board is desirous of adopting some plan whereby the prisoners can be graded.

SEES IN THE SINGLE TAX SOLUTION OF MANY SOCIAL PROBLEMS OF DAY

Mrs. Joseph Fels Here to Spread Doctrine to Which Husband Left Fortune—Says English Striking Workmen Have Been Maligned.

Mrs. Joseph Fels, widow of the late multi-millionaire soap manufacturer of Philadelphia, who was an ardent believer and advocate of the single tax, and who, to promote its propaganda, offered to give a dollar for every dollar subscribed by friends of the cause, arrived here early today to give three talks in Duluth.

Declaring that the doctrine of single tax as a solution of many of the abuses, of much of the poverty and dissatisfaction now prevalent in the world, was spreading with tremendous strides, Mrs. Fels stated that the work was international in its scope and was making solid progress in every civilized country.

"Single tax," said Mrs. Fels, "is one of the basic principles of socialism. Until the theory of single tax came into being, the Socialists were lost for a basis to build the structure of their belief upon. Single tax furnished this basis, and is today one of the integral parts of present day socialism.

"Truth, especially a great truth, is always difficult to recognize. Single tax is one of the greatest and most simple truths in the world. It presents a solution for much of the poverty brought by present day conditions of taxation. It is a great philanthropic measure, and it has, for its end the humanizing of the world. Its adoption would do away with many of the present evils."

Mrs. Fels declared that selfish interests in instances opposed the adoption of the single tax idea, but that despite any and all opposition, it has achieved a remarkable growth.

Conditions In England.

Speaking of conditions in England, such as the great strike of working men at a time when the very national existence of England seemed to depend upon the war material output produced by the efforts of these men, both Mrs. Fels and W. Coates, an Englishman who is laboring with her for the single tax movement, declared that outside of England there was a grievlous misapprehension regarding the motives of the British workingmen.

"These men," said Mrs. Fels, "have been ground into the very depths of poverty by their employers. Out of the present war have come huge profits to the employer of labor, while the workingman has been forced to labor long hours for little pay. In one instance, British workmen struck to have a contract taken out of the hands of private individuals and given to the government, but the English press was given no inkling of this, or it was not printed at any rate.

"Censure should not be attached to the English working men. On the contrary the private employer who is reaping a huge profit, and yet refuses to ameliorate the conditions surrounding his employes, should receive the indignant censure of every fair-minded person."

Mrs. Fels stands today as one of the most prominent women speakers and workers in the country. Her name is as widely known in England and many of the countries of Europe as in the United States. Since the death of her husband, who was an ardent admirer of Henry George, she has gone on with the work to which the late Mr. Fels gave so great an impetus.

Not only has Mrs. Fels worked unselfishly in the cause she believes so greatly in, but she is devoting the great fortune her husband entrusted to her care to its promotion.

"In the East, where we live and have worked," Mrs. Fels continued, "maybe our work is somewhat better known. But the growth of the single tax idea and the development of a sound belief in its principles, is confined to no one section or portion of this country. Here in the West you will find a remarkable growth and a deepening belief in the arguments we advance."

Today Mrs. Fels gave a talk at the Commercial club during the noon hour, delivered an address this afternoon, and this evening will address a meeting of Clan Stewart in Forester's hall.

M'GILLIGAN CASE AGAIN ON TRIAL

Chronic Ailment Said to Affect Man Injured in Wreck.

The personal injury action brought by Joseph B. McGilligan against the Duluth, Winnipeg & Pacific railway was again on trial before Judge Page Morris and a Federal jury today. Mr. McGilligan sued for $15,000 and was given a verdict of $3,000 by the Federal court last winter. The railway appealed from the decision handed down.

The action involves what is termed a "peculiar" kind of injury. Mr. McGilligan is alleged to have been hurt in a wreck and the injuries are said to have affected his kidneys, bringing permanent impairment of his health. The defendant attorneys have repeatedly attempted to prove that Mr. McGilligan's ailments might have been the result of other causes than injuries received in the wreck and it is expected that some interesting testimony will be brought to disprove this assertion.

NURSE GETS TANLAC'S AID

Says She Had Severe Case of Gastritis for Years.

Quits Losing Weight and Declares She Enjoys Eating.

Louisville, Ky., July 10.—Mrs. Anna L. Bryan, a trained nurse of high reputation in Louisville, recently told of the benefit she had derived from taking Tanlac, the premier preparation now being sold in Duluth.

Mrs. Bryan lives at 301 Crescent Court, Crescent Hill, in Louisville. In speaking of her malady and of how she obtained relief from it, she said:

"I regard Tanlac as a fine medicine. I had been using it more than a week for gastritis when I felt relief. I had been taking various treatments, but without satisfactory results, until I tried Tanlac. I had been losing weight steadily, and frequently vomited.

"When I began using Tanlac there was a marvellous change. My indigestion and nervousness and the stomach trouble which had caused them were helped wonderfully. Tanlac has given me relief. I hope it will do as much good for other suffering women."

Mrs. Bryan's experience is similar to that of scores who have praised Tanlac, the peerless remedy. It is of proved value in cases of stomach, digestive and nervous troubles, in catarrh, coughs and colds, kidney and liver troubles. It is now on sale in Duluth at the shop of William A. Abbett, "the careful druggist," 219 West Superior street. Claude J. Meredith, "the Tanlac man," personally supervises its introduction there. —Advertisement.

Senator Sullivan of St. Cloud Thinks State Should Furnish Highways.

Farming Sections Would Then Develop Themselves, He Believes.

State Senator J. D. Sullivan, Mrs. Sullivan, their son, Charles, and their daughter, Miss Margaret, of St. Cloud, were in the city today and went East on the steamer Tionesta this afternoon. They will go to Detroit, Mich., to visit relatives for about two weeks.

Senator Sullivan said this morning that this was the first time that he had had a real opportunity to see Duluth, and admitted that the appearance of the city fascinates him.

"I have been in Duluth lots of times," said he, "but always to conventions and meetings, and about all I would see of the city was the hotel I stopped at and the place we met in. This time I have seen something of the city and I must say that it is beautiful and unique."

Revolving Fund Chances.

Speaking of political matters, Senator Sullivan declared that he believes that the next time the revolving fund amendment to the state constitution is submitted to the people, it will be passed easily.

"I don't think that anybody is against it," said Senator Sullivan. "The chief trouble the other time was that few knew what it meant and did not pay any attention to it."

Regarding Northern Minnesota and her needs, the senator declared that he is not much in sympathy with the idea of the state clearing the land for the settlers.

Should Make Roads.

"I believe," said he, "that the country should be developed so far as roads are concerned, and then the farming lands will be cleared and worked soon enough without the state going into the clearing business. But the country needs the roads and the state should see to it that they are built. I favor the idea of the revolving fund, because that it is a business matter. The state should lend money to actual settlers to help them develop the waste places of the state, just as well as a land company stakes settlers who take up the company's colonization plans."

FORMER DULUTHIAN AUTHOR OF SKETCH

A former Duluth newspaper man, William F. Sailor, is the author of the comedy sketch, "Hiring a Maid," now being played at the New Grand by Mr. and Mrs. Capellan. Mr. Sailor is now with the St. Paul Dispatch. Several of his sketches are now being played on the vaudeville stage, and his first sketch, "The Test," had its tryout under the Sullivan & Considine management in Duluth two years ago.

Mr. Sailor is a widely traveled newspaper man, having worked on many large city dailies.

ELEVEN ALIENS SENT TO CANADA

Subjects of Austria Are Deported By Local Immigration Officer.

Immigration Officer Brown McDonald left today for Fort William, taking with him nine Austrians, arrested about five weeks ago for crossing the border illegally from Canada to the United States. Two others of the same party of aliens were sent back to Canada yesterday afternoon. Mr. McDonald will inspect an excursion party at Fort William and Port Arthur, which will leave tomorrow on the steamer Forest City for Houghton, Mich.

The eleven Austrians were arrested in Northern Minnesota by the immigration department and have been confined in the county jail here ever since. Right after their detention Officer McDonald made out a complete report of the case and forwarded it to the department of labor at Washington. An answer was received yesterday afternoon, informing Mr. McDonald that the prisoners should be deported to Canada.

The Austrians for the most part are transient laborers and as they were subjects of the dual monarchy, they feared arrest by the Canadian authorities, they said.

MONEY PLENTY IN BRITISH BANKS

Sir Felix Schuster Takes Cheerful View of Financial Situation.

London, July 21.—Sir Felix Schuster, presiding today at a meeting of the Union of London and Smith's bank, of which he is governor, took a cheerful view of the financial outlook. In his opinion the most serious problem was the question of the foreign exchanges, particularly American. The adverse trade balance had assumed dimensions which could not be met in any ordinary way, but the country's commercial condition, he said, was sound and it could look confidently to the future.

It was essential, Sir Felix added, that Great Britain continue to be a creditor nation. He pointed out that on July 13, thirteen out of sixteen clearing banks held deposits amounting to £776,000,000 ($3,880,000,000) and cash to the amount of £177,000,000 ($885,000,000) so that the nation was prepared to deal successfully with the recent gigantic loan.

WANTS SURPLUS GARDEN TRUCK DISTRIBUTED AMONG THE POOR

Duluthian Believes Large Quantities of Fresh Vegetables Are Allowed to Go to Waste—The Associated Charities Will Help in Work.

Among the homecrofters in one of the suburbs of Duluth where almost every one has a garden that produces an abundance of fresh vegetables, lives a Good Fellow whose heart goes out to the unfortunates in the crowded districts of the city, for whom adversity has made wholesome garden truck a scarce article for their tables.

It has occurred to him that homecrofters could do a great service. Here is the way he figured it out. In the average Duluth garden a large proportion of the vegetables grown are wasted—allowed to go to seed or permitted to attain a rank growth that makes them unpalatable and unfit for use. While vegetables remain fresh and good, they will be welcome contributions to the tables of those who are dependent upon public charity to escape starvation.

The Good Fellow—he is not desirous of any personal publicity, he said—stated that he felt that an efficient distribution of the surplus food to those who are in dire need of it should be made.

Although Duluth has few congested districts where poverty is paramount, it has its unemployed who are more or less dependent upon charity for their existence, according to Miss Edna Meeker, secretary of the Associated Charities, who is thoroughly convinced that such a plan would work out to the benefit of a great many people. She stated this morning that the Associated Charities would be glad to endeavor to act as a clearing house for contributions.

No plans have yet been made for a systematic distribution of vegetables donated to charity by the suburbanites and others who have more in their garden than they know what to do with. Miss Meeker, however, suggests that anyone desirous of helping in this way, will do the society and its list of needy people a great favor by communicating with her on the telephone. Arrangements will be made to see that the vegetables are distributed to families known to the organization and in such a manner as to insure against imposition and to avoid injustice to professional truck gardeners.

Change in Customs Office.

International Falls, Minn., July 21.—John Holler has resigned as head of the custom service and his place is now being taken by John Thompson. Mr. Holler tendered his resignation some time ago because of ill-health but it did not take effect until recently. For the last seventeen years he has been in the customs service here and as head of the local branch has rendered efficient services to the government. Before coming here he resided at Monticello and was at one time a member of the legislature and a prominent man in state politics. Mr. Thompson has been in the service for the last seven years and has proved himself capable of taking charge of the work.

TWENTY BIDDERS AT STATE LAND SALE

About 716 Acres of School and Other Lands Bid in.

About twenty bidders were present this morning at the monthly sale of school and other state lands in St. Louis county. Eighteen descriptions covering a total of 716 acres were bid in at prices ranging from $5 to $30 an acre. J. A. O. Preus, state auditor, personally conducted the sale. He was assisted by Oscar Arneson, newly appointed manager of the state land sales department of the state auditor's office. Theodore Nelson, former manager of this department, has been transferred to the position of chief clerk in the state auditor's office.

A tract of thirty-three acres in section 2, 57-20 brought the highest price at today's sale. It was bid in for $30 an acre by Rinaldo Fenn of Chisholm. Palmer Pearson of Tower purchased lot 5, section 16, 62-16, near Vermilion lake, for $20 an acre.

CARLTON LAND RECLAIMED.

Forty-One-Mile Ditch Completed at Cost of $92,000.

Carlton, Minn., July 21.—The county commissioners have looked over, preparatory to accepting, County Ditch No. 2, known as the Corona ditch, forty-one miles long including laterals, which drains at territory of 40,000 acres and was built by Carlton county alone at a cost of $92,000.

The drain starts at Corona and runs south through the big Corona swamp, then down along the Kettle river past Rock Rapids. At the point where the ditch starts to run parallel to the river it is the widest. It follows the river four and one-half miles. Before the ditch reaches the point where it starts to follow the river it is 24 feet wide at the top and 16 at the bottom, with a depth of eight feet.

NO MONEY FOR INCINERATOR

City May Try Small Ovens of "Lamp Chimney" Type.

Proposed System of Three Units Would Cost $90,000.

Unit incinerators and municipal garbage collection, as planned by Safety Commissioner Silberstein, will not be installed in Duluth until $60,000 worth of outstanding water bonds are out of the way, according to Finance Commissioner Voss.

Small brick and concrete ovens, shaped like a lamp chimney, a recent invention of an International Falls man, may be given a trial, at a cost of $2,000 or $3,000, but the city cannot afford the $90,000 three-unit incinerating system, according to the commissioner.

"We would have to issue bonds," said Mr. Voss, "in case we decided to go ahead with the incinerating system at this time, and I do not believe this is warranted.

"If we can wait two or three years, until the remaining $60,000 of the 1913 $100,000 water bond issue is retired, we will be in a position to go on with the system as planned. Estimates furnished the council by engineers showed that a main plant, with sub-stations at Lakeside and West Duluth, would represent an outlay of at least $90,000."

The so-called lamp chimney incinerator may be tried as an alternative. In a recent letter to Commissioner Silberstein the Fargo, N. D., mayor indorsed these incinerators.

"These smaller plants can be installed at a cost of $1,500," said Mr. Voss, "and we may give them a trial. If they are not a success we probably can get along with the present plant at Eleventh avenue west, by repairing it and installing a few new devices.

"The biggest drawback with the present plant is the lack of dumping space, and the inability to dispose of manure."

SHRINERS COMING BACK FROM WEST

Potentate Ayres and Jesse Norton First to Arrive From Seattle.

Duluth Shriners are returning today from their trip to Seattle, where they attended the annual meeting of the imperial council of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

Lyonel Ayres, potentate of Aad temple, and Jesse Norton, past potentate, were among those who returned yesterday. Many of the Duluth delegation will stay in the West a few days longer and visit the expositions at San Francisco and San Diego before returning home.

"The trip was rather an eventful one for the boys," said Mr. Norton today. "When we arrived in Seattle, we were royally entertained. I might say, however, that Seattle weather proved to be as showery as Duluth weather was last month. There were few sunshiny moments, but the entertainment provided was all that could be desired. Everything was done on a lavish scale and the meeting was in every respect a thoroughly enjoyable one."

MAY IMPROVE EAST END OF BOULEVARD

City Commissioners Considering Plan to Extend Kent Road.

In order to improve Duluth's famous boulevard drive, city commissioners are considering a plan to extend Kent road to Nineteenth avenue east and complete the connection at the eastern end of the drive.

Following a suggestion from Mayor Prince this morning, Works Commissioner Farrell said that steps probably would be taken to cut the street through and grade it.

The expense would be small, probably not more than $200 and certainly not $300," he said, "and it would materially improve the drive, as well as shorten it by about two blocks."

Action on the plan probably will be taken by the park department, as the land affected has not been platted. All of the expense would have to be borne by the city.

FLOWERS FOR THEIR MYSTERIOUS FRIEND

Newsboys Contribute Pennies as Last Tribute to F. W. Heimick.

Newsies were collecting pennies this morning for a floral offering as a last tribute to their "Santa Claus," who befriended them for eleven years, but who was unknown to them until yesterday, when Frank W. Helmick died.

Funeral services for Mr. Helmick, who succumbed to an attack of pneumonia at his home, 1029 East First street, Tuesday morning, will be held from the residence tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Rev. John W. Hoffman of the First Methodist Episcopal church will officiate and interment will be at Forest Hill cemetery. Mr. Helmick leaves his wife, mother, a sister, Miss Helen Helmick, and a brother, Philip F. Heimick, all of this city.

GEN. GONZALES LEFT TROOPS

Sufficient to Hold Mexico City, Is Carranza Report.

Other Information Says Zapata's Army Occupies Capital.

Galveston, Tex., July 21.—That Gen. Gonzales left a considerable force of Carranza troops in Mexico City when he went out to meet a Villa column some time ago, is one of the statements contained in a message from Carranza headquarters at Vera Cruz received here today by the Constitutionalist consulate.

The statement says:

"There is no danger that the capital will be re-occupied by the Zapatistas."

The report adds that Gen. Gonzales is proceeding to Pachuca, where he expects to meet the Villa column, said to be retreating southward driven by Carranza troops under Gen. Dieguez.

The message received today was sent from Vera Cruz late last night. No mention is made of interruption of railway communication between Vera Cruz and the capital.

Zapata Has City.

Washington, July 21.—Further developments in the rapidly changing events at Mexico City were anxiously awaited by officials here today.

The Mexican capital is again occupied by Zapata forces, the city apparently is once more isolated from telegraphic communication with the outside world and railroad communication with Vera Cruz is suspended. These are the latest developments in Mexico City as disclosed in official reports to the state department.

Relief measures for the hungry civilian population of the Mexican capital have been halted in consequence of the suspension of railroad communication and the situation is reported as desperate. Officials fear that great suffering among the people will result.

The reoccupation of Mexico City Sunday by Zapata's army after evacuation by the Carranza forces under Gen. Gonzales took officials here by surprise. The Zapata forces were driven from there eleven days ago by Gonzales who is speeding northward to meet the advancing Villa troops.

Vera Cruz advices to the state department, dated yesterday, say the complete evacuation of Mexico City by Gen. Gonzales and its reoccupation by Zapata forces has been confirmed in Carranza quarters, and that there is no communication with the capital.

WABASH RAILROAD SOLD FOR $18,000,000

Property and Rights of $220,000,000 Corporation Under Hammer.

St. Louis, Mo., July 21.—The property, franchises and all other rights of the Wabash railroad, a $220,000,000 corporation, were sold under the hammer for $18,000,000 to the joint reorganization committee of the road's creditors under foreclosure here today to satisfy a $41,000,000 mortgage of which the Equitable Trust company of New York is trustee.

A few minutes before the scheduled sale the New York Trust company filed suit for $1,575,000 for the rental of cars and equipment against the Wabash railroad in the United States district court here.

SUPERIOR

TWO DIE SUDDENLY IN SUPERIOR BARS

Helper Collapses After Ejecting Man; Frequenter Expires of Alcoholism.

Two men met sudden deaths rather strangely in Superior saloons yesterday. Ole Nelson, age 40, a helper in the Svea saloon on Tower avenue, after engaging in a hard struggle with Alfred Alton, a saloon frequenter, in an attempt to put him out of the door, died suddenly when the scuffle ended, probably as a result of heart trouble. Jack Diamond, aged 50, a well known Superior saloon frequenter, died suddenly at a table at the rear of the John Andric saloon, 1523 Fifth street, at 7 o'clock last night, after having been treated to several glasses of whisky. Acute alcoholism was ascribed by Coroner Z. A. Downs as the cause of death.

Alton was hanging over the bar, sleeping, and when Nelson attempted to put him out he resisted vigorously. With help Nelson soon put him out, but on returning he toppled over on the floor and died. Vincent McKinnon, Superior chief of police, said that no charge would be put against Alton.

CONVENTION WANTS JITNEY BILL KILLED

A resolution demanding that the Wisconsin state legislature kill the jitney bill now pending was passed by the Wisconsin Federation of Labor at the opening session of the twenty-third annual convention here this morning.

In his address of welcome A. D. S. Gillett of Superior suggested to the assembled delegates a plan for the socialization of land. The suggestion provides for the purchase of land by means of bonds to be redeemed by revenue derived from a graduated income tax.

A report on the progress of labor legislation pending in the Wisconsin legislature was made by Frank J. Weber, Milwaukee, state organizer for the federation and a member of the legislature. Joseph Probesette of Cincinnati, one of the international officers of the brewery workers, urged union men to oppose prohibition, declaring the issue was not moral but economic and that it was to the interests of organized labor to protect the liquor industry.

There was a brief business meeting this afternoon for the reading of reports. The rest of the day was devoted to a boat ride about the Superior harbor.

Orphanage Contract Let.

The Egan & Tomlinson Construction company of Ashland, Wis., was awarded the contract for the erection of the St. Joseph's orphanage in Superior yesterday. The contract calls for an expenditure of $101,300. The plans for the tower on the building has been abandoned. The Catholics of Superior recently raised $90,000 by subscription for the building of the institution.

Whitney Funeral Held.

The funeral service for W. A. Whitney, prominent Superior man, who was killed in an automobile accident near Virginia Sunday afternoon, was held at 4 o'clock this afternoon, from the Pilgrim Congregational church. Representatives of nearly every civic organization in Superior attended. Interment was in the family lot at Greenwood cemetery.

HURT BY AUTO.

H. C. Bloedel, Thrown From Rig When Auto Hits It, Cut and Bruised.

When the rig he was driving was struck by a Duluth-Superior car, H. C. Bloedel, 223 Twelfth avenue east, was thrown to the street at Second avenue east and Superior street yesterday afternoon and sustained cuts about the head, and bruises.

Bloedel, who is 60 years old, is a driver for the Fleblger Hardware company. The street car tore off the rear wheel of the wagon.

The injured man was taken to St. Luke's hospital but recovered sufficiently a few hours later to go to his home.

BANNER DAY FOR PICNICS

Annual Outings Expected to Attract Thousands on Thursday.

Grocers, Horticulturists and K. C.'s Will Seek Amusement.

Tomorrow will undoubtedly prove to be the biggest picnic day of the summer, three big and several small picnics having been arranged for this date. The biggest outing will be the annual grocers' picnic at Lester Park, while the Northeastern Minnesota Horticultural society and the Knights of Columbus will also stage their annual outings, which are expected to attract several hundred persons.

The most important picnic of the summer is that of the Duluth Retail Grocers' association. It will be held in Lester Park.

At the Minnesota Experiment farm, two and one-half miles from the Woodland car line, will be held the joint picnic of the Northeastern Minnesota Horticultural society, the Federated Farmers' clubs and the Garden society. A bus line will be in operation between 9 and 12 o'clock in the morning and between 3 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon. Picnickers will bring basket lunches, but coffee will be provided by the committee. A good time is in store for everyone who attends, whether he is a grower of livestock, grain, fruit or flowers. The program of addresses has been arranged as follows:

"Northeastern Minnesota, a Fruit Growing Region"—President S. George Stevens.

"Bee Management and Demonstrations"—Prof. Jager.

"Northern Farm Management"—Prof. Andrew Boss.

"Carlton, a County of Homes"—C. F. Mahnke.

"The Garden Society, Its Purpose and Ideal."

"The Farmers' Clubs of Lake County"—T. A. Owens.

"Little Things in Fruit Growing"—Prof. Wellington.

"Our Federated Farmers' Clubs"—President O. Larson.

"Fighting Hog Cholera."

"The Function of the Summer Institute"—Dean A. F. Woods.

Judging dairy cattle under auspices of the farmers' clubs.

The annual joint picnic of the Superior council No. 499 and the Duluth council No. 447, Knights of Columbus, will be held tomorrow at Fond du Lac, weather permitting. The trip will be made on the steamer Columbia, leaving the Lake avenue dock at 9:15 a. m. and the Tower bay slip at Superior at 9:45 a. m. The steamer Columbia has a capacity of 1,200 people and has been chartered for tomorrow for the exclusive use of the Knights of Columbus, their families and friends. There will be an interesting list of water sports, foot races, athletic contests and other features. If the weather is unfavorable the affair will be held on July 28.

SMALL BOY IS KILLED

Unexplained Accident on Proctor Tracks Causes Death of George Roseen.

Nine-year-old George Roseen of Proctor is dead as the result of an unexplained accident, sustained yesterday afternoon on the tracks of the Missabe road near Proctor. The boy died this morning at St. Mary's hospital in Duluth, without regaining consciousness. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Roseen of Proctor.

The child was found unconscious beside the tracks by section men yesterday afternoon soon after the accident occurred, it is believed. He was taken to a nearby house and then to St. Mary's hospital as soon as possible, where it was found that the base of his skull was fractured. Nothing could be done for him and he passed away this morning.

The parents of the lad say that George often played near the tracks with other boys and believe that while doing so yesterday afternoon, he was either hit by a train, that some chunks of ore fell on him from a passing train, or that he might have been hit by a projecting rod. No boys who might have been playing with him have been found to explain the accident.

The body will be taken to the family home at Proctor today and funeral announcements will be made later.

RAIN PREVENTS THIRD ATTEMPT AT OPENING

Jupiter Pluvius last night interfered for the third time with the scheduled marshmallow roast that was to have been held in Chester park. The park was fit for anything but a playground opening, and those who risked a trip to the grounds returned with marks of the downpour.

The unfortunate, or rather fortunate, marshmallows might laugh, were they capable of it, at the attempts of Director Batchelor to stage the big opening. If the director thinks that another attempt is worth while, the juvenile army will make their attack on Fort Marshmallow at an early date.

Large Floodwood Vote.

Floodwood, Minn., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. D. Moore, J. L. Lalin and M. N. Triplett were chosen school directors at Saturday's election, the first two being reelected while Mr. Tripplett succeeds Mr. Isaacson. It is claimed the action of the old board in discharging Principal E. J. Colovin, resulted in a large vote being cast, 170 compared with twenty-six last year, in an effort to defeat the old board but two of them were reelected.

STEADWELL AGAIN CHOSEN PRESIDENT

La Crosse Man Elected Head of International Purity Congress.

San Francisco, Cal., July 21.—The ninth international purity congress yesterday resumed discussion of factors in society's dark spots, methods of reforms, the potential value of women's dress for good or evil, and kindred subjects.

Business efforts to prepare for renewed activity, consisted of the incorporation of the organization under the laws of South Dakota, which it was announced had been completed; a new method of financing the work, and a decision to hold a special meeting at the headquarters at La Crosse, Wis., at an undetermined time.

Pictorial bonds with twenty coupons of a face value at $5 each, will be issued and sold to maintain the work.

B. S. STEADWELL.

Condemnation of women's dress was voiced by the Rev. Albion Smith, Madison, Wis., speaking on "spirit rule versus animal rule for men and women."

"Spirit mastery," Mr. Smith said, "demands that clothing be such as not to attract attention to the animal, but to obscure it. Woman looks upon herself as an animal, and then decks that animal-self with showy trappings and here and there exposes herself."

B. S. Steadwell of La Crosse, Wis., president, and the Rev. Albert T. Moore, Toronto, Ont., vice president, were re-elected.

DEVILS LAKE MASONS ARE BUILDING TEMPLE

Devils Lake, N. D., July 21.—Work started this week on the erection of the new Masonic temple. The contract price is $33,189, without furniture or fixtures. Fjelseth & Johnson of this city were the lowest bidders.

Not Body of Bates.

New York, July 21.—A cablegram received by the family of Lindon Bates, Jr., who lost his life when the Lusitania was sunk after an attack by a German submarine, said that the body found on the Limerick shore, which was believed to be that of Mr. Bates, had been buried as that of Leonidas Bistis of Atlanta, also a victim of the disaster.

FREEDOM OF THOUGHT AND EXPRESSION SERIOUSLY THREATENED IN WAR ZONE

Hope Lies With Free-Thinkers of United States and Orient, Declares Head of the Rationalistic Society; Urges Organization to Check the Forces Pitted Against Free Institutions.

Freedom of thought and expression, which has taken centuries to acquire in the Old World, is seriously threatened in the war zone of bloody Europe, according to C. H. Eshleman, 421 North Fifth avenue west, president of the Duluth branch of the Rationalist society, recently organized.

"In Europe during this frightful war," he said, "freedom of thought and expression is steadily losing ground in many places where it had gained a foothold. With free-thinkers in the United States and in the Orient may lie the hope for the future. Even in America, conditions are gloomy. The economic depression is working heavily against all new movements and is giving a tremendous advantage to the strongly organized and wealthy bodies already established.

Rationalists Must Organize.

"Rationalists must organize. Failure to do so is dangerous—dangerous for the cause of freedom and dangerous for their own welfare. At present we can organize without being severely persecuted, but if the tide of religious enthusiasm of the older type now prevailing in many parts of the country continues to spread, it may soon be too late. One need only study briefly the nature of this enthusiasm to see the attitude it takes towards free schools, free thought and free investigation.

"In order to make the future sure against reactionary tendencies two things are necessary. We must search for the truth and practice the right as individuals. And we must promulgate the truth and the right for the welfare of humanity.

"In Duluth our organization is small and we do not expect decided immediate results. However, we have well defined aims and will undertake to minister to strongly felt needs, and we shall not be easily discouraged.

Open-Minded Attitude.

"We shall stand for free and open-minded investigation and discussion of all great moral, religious and scientific problems, both of the past and present. We shall stand for a natural and rationalist morality—a morality progressive both in form and in spirit—a morality which grows stronger and clearer and more inspiring in each succeeding century."

The Duluth branch of the Rationalist society was established about a month ago. It will hold its first public meeting on Sunday afternoon at a place and time and under conditions to be announced later.

PASSENGER MEN GO TO LAKE VERMILION.

Members of the Duluth Passenger association will hold their first outing Aug. 1 at Lake Vermilion, according to the announcement made by Seph Ogle, city passenger and ticket agent of the Canadian Northern railway. In addition to the thirty members of the local organization, about a like number of St. Paul Passenger association men are expected to attend the outing. A program of boat rides and water sports will feature the affair.

WEIGHT OF NAMES VARIES IN DIRECTORIES

Fifteen Million Make Ton But Some Cities Have Thicker Paper and Fatter Type Than Others; Duluth Directory Office Has Them in All Forms.

How many names in a ton?

Ordinary persons might stumble when asked the number of pounds in a bushel, or quarts in a gallon, but C. J. Bonner, superintendent of the Duluth Directory company, probably would estimate an answer if asked the question, and can glibly tell the weight of names in bulk.

A ton of names, about 15,000,000 of them, representing a population of more than 35,000,000 can be found on the walls of the directory company's offices in the Palladio building. Scores of people visit the offices daily, to learn the address of friends or relatives in Honolulu, or Key West, Fla., or in any town "from Portland, Maine, to Portland, Ore.," as Mr. Bonner puts it.

Many freaks of the bookmakers' art are displayed on the shelves, ranging from the fifteen-pound book representing New York, to the pound-and-a-half Key West book.

Boston, a city of about 700,000 persons, has a directory with 3,200 pages, more than New York's or Chicago's. It is the fattest volume of all, for the pages are thicker than in many of the books.

New York has 2,656 pages in her book, and Chicago 2,092 pages. The Chicago volume weighs about fourteen pounds. Even St. Louis, with a population of 850,000, has a book with 2,800 pages, more than either of those coming from the two largest cities of the country.

There are 2,458 pages in a five-pound book representing Minneapolis, and 2,202 pages in St. Paul's volume. All of these books are fatter than the Chicago publication, but less than half as large.

The joint Duluth and Superior directory makes a better appearance than the directories of many larger cities of the United States, according to Mr. Bonner. The 1914 volume had 1,550 pages, and weighed about four and one-half pounds.

HURLED FROM BED BY LIGHTNING BOLT

New England, N. D., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—When his home was hit by lightning, Jerry Nedland of this place was thrown from his bed onto the floor in the next room, but he passed through the ordeal without injury.

The bolt which hit Nedland's house demolished the chimney and bored a hole through the wall, just over Nedland's bed.

ATTEMPTED TO MAKE PICTURE OF FACTORY

Gary, Ind., July 21.—William Graham, who was arrested following a charge that he was attempting to photograph the gun cotton mills of the Aetna Explosives company, was fined $10 in a justice court.

Robert Andrews, in command of the guards who have surrounded the plant since rumors of the activities of spies have been current, testified that Graham drew a revolver when he attempted to prevent him taking a picture of the plant. Graham was fined on the charge of carrying concealed weapons, to which he pleaded guilty. He denied, however, that he had photographed the plant.

HOWARD ADDRESSES ASSOCIATION OF DEAF

San Francisco, Cal., July 21.—A ball was a feature here of the convention of the National Association of the Deaf.

Jay Cooke Howard of Duluth, president of the association, in an address yesterday urged that instruction for the deaf be not alone by lip-reading, but by a combination method.

In Your Wisdom Lies Your Baby's Health

A drowsy, calm day—a still, sleepy night—that's what summer means to babies whose mothers have learned full share of the new wisdom about babies. In the old days our babies passed from us in summer one in three. But doctors and scientists have worked for many years—and now mothers know that it isn't always the fault of Providence when the baby's sick—that a mother can help to keep her baby well. And wise mothers know that the baby's food is most important of all—that mother's milk is best—and that if the baby can't have that—the nearest thing to it is

Nestlé's Food

Don't try to put your baby off with cow's milk. You can't tell whether the cow is healthy—or the dairy clean—whether the cow's milk you're getting carries sickness—even consumption. And if you can—you do not know how to modify the heavy parts of cow's milk that are intended for a calf's four stomachs.

It's all done for you in Nestlé's—the healthy inspected cows—the protection against germs—the modifying of the heavy parts—the addition of the things your baby needs and the calf doesn't.

Even the frailest baby can digest Nestlé's. Cold water and one minute's boiling prepares it. Baby will thrive on it as the babies of three generations have done.

Society Women's Clubs Music Drama

LUNCHEONS, dinners and dances are crowded into these summer days, one upon the other, and hostesses, visitors and matrons and maids who are not entertaining guests are in a mad whirl from one event to another.

Tonight the weekly dinner-dance at the Northland Country club will hold the center of the stage with several dinner parties planned for the event. Miss Betty Merrill will entertain eighteen at dinner. Miss Margaret Rice will be hostess for sixteen, and Miss Lucy Barnett will have a party of thirty-eight. Other smaller parties have been planned.

This afternoon a large number of club members played bridge at the Country club at the weekly card party, and this morning the links were thickly dotted with fair golfers.

This afternoon also Mrs. Frank J. O'Donnell was hostess at a matinee party in compliment to Mrs. William Bennett Ross of Chicago, who is here on her honeymoon trip visiting her aunt, Mrs. C. E. Wachtel, and for Miss Marion Hinks of Boston, who is visiting Mrs. T. W. Hoopes of Hunter's Park. There were twelve in this party. Several other matinee parties honored Miss Edna Munsey, the Duluth prima donna who is singing this week in "Madam Sherry" being put on by the Baldwin Players.

Several social affairs are planned for tomorrow. Among them are a luncheon which Mrs. W. O. Falk of 2014 East Superior street will give at her home; a luncheon at which Mrs. F. H. White of 11 South Sixteenth avenue east will be hostess at her home.

Miss Esther Coffin of Hunter's Park will entertain at a luncheon tomorrow at her home, 1925 Woodland avenue, and another social event at Hunter's Park planned for tomorrow is an informal afternoon tea which Mrs. W. C. Sherwood will give at her home.

Camping Has No Terrors.

Camping trips, informal picnics for large parties and "just for the family" are being "sandwiched" in between the more formal affairs and the truly clever woman has no cause to make mental reservations in regard to the joys of a camping or cottage vacation or picnicking now days. The wideawake housewife has adopted modern methods which enable her to enjoy the beauties of nature in as care free a way as the other members of the family.

By judiciously buying the housewife can manage so that she will get the full benefit of her outing, at the same time materially adding to the psychological value of the trip for all. She will be surprised at the improvement in health and spirits if she will just "let go" of her prehistoric idea that she must do every bit of the cooking herself. In these days of specialization she would do well to let specialists do the drudgery for her, her ingenuity can be exercised in daintily serving the nutritious foods they prepare.

A visit to the immaculate kitchens where expert chefs, in shining white linen aprons and caps, prepare food products now in general use by busy and progressive people, will convince her of the excellence of these products.

The meats are cooked at just the right temperature and delicately seasoned. Never any possibility of giving valuable time, energy and fuel to the cooking of meat that turns out "as tough as sole leather." No worry as to whether there will be enough for extra demands.

For real summer comfort many lay in a supply of canned meats, chicken, summer sausage, soup and extract of beef. Then with a case of grape juice and a pail of pure leaf lard on hand, there will be material for refreshment and nutriment at hand for the most tired and hungry tramps.

When ordering canned goods one should always demand a brand that bears the inscription—"U. S. Inspected and Passed."

At the Boat Club.

Dinner Dance and Oatka Lark.

A canoe full of clover at one end of the cafe at the main house of the boat club and motor boat accessories, lanterns and coils of rope, pennants and anchors, were the decorations used at the dinner-dance of the motor-boat and canoe section of the boat club which was held last night. Several large parties and many parties of twos, threes and fours enjoyed the dinner and motor boat rides following and the dancing later in the evening for which Miller's orchestra played. Mrs. Stacy H. Hill was in charge of the decorations.

Tonight boat club members are interested in the mid-week lark at Oatka with the musical program which will be given from a float from 7:30 to 8:30 o'clock. Charles Young, tenor, will sing two groups of songs and the balance of the program will be given by Prof. J. L. Robinson's banjo-mandolin orchestra.

Several large picnic parties have been planned to precede the program.

Recipes for Picnic Dishes

Some recipes for appetizing summer picnic or camping dishes are given by Mary Jane McClure as follows:

Escalloped Fish—Boil good sized fresh fish in salted water; pick out meat, add one-third quantity bread crumbs, two hard-boiled eggs minced; season with salt, pepper, dash of nutmeg, piece of lemon. Add one teaspoon extract of beef. Bind together with butter or cream. Place in buttered baking dish, sprinkle with bread crumbs and egg and a little butter, and brown in oven.

Mock Venison—Brown two tablespoonfuls butter, add two tablespoonfuls flour and brown. Add one cup stock and when sauce thickens, two cups roast mutton cut in thin slices. Season with one tablespoonful Worcestershire sauce, one teaspoonful lemon juice, one tablespoonful currant jelly, salt and paprika to taste. When heated add one-half cup of grape juice and serve.

Fried Sandwiches—To make these delicious morsels, cut the bread as thin as possible, spread bountifully with softened butter, then sprinkle grated cheese over the butter, put the slices together compactly, let them stand at least two hours before frying. Have plenty of butter in frying pan, fry sandwiches on one side, turn and brown on the other, season with paprika. Instead of cheese, use potted tongue or chicken as a filling and fry the same way. Serve creamed potatoes with these. They are very appetizing.

Baked Bean Salad—Remove baked beans from the can and marinate with French dressing. Mix with half cup chopped celery and salad dressing. Arrange in a suitable dish on lettuce leaves. Lima beans, French beans and baked beans may be made into a variety of salads with the addition of boiled meats, fish, chicken, or tongue. Vary by adding olives, peppers and beets, or greens, such as parsley, watercress, etc., and mixing with either French or mayonnaise dressing.

Theater Gossip.

Alfred McGovern, the new leading man of the Baldwin Players, arrived in Duluth today and will make his first appearance with the company at the Lyceum next week, when "The Little Millionaire" will be the attraction.

NEW LEADING MAN ARRIVES.

Mr. McGovern has been the leading man with the Norfolk Stock company at Norfolk, Va., and has a wide experience in his chosen line. Walter S. Baldwin is now in the East and is signing several other new members for his company. The new leading woman has not yet been definitely decided upon, but she will probably arrive in Duluth early next week.

For next week the Baldwin company will present another musical production, with Miss Edna Munsey as the prima donna. Following that Miss Munsey will be compelled to leave for New York to begin rehearsals for her regular season, and the Baldwins will then return to dramatic work, with the reorganized company. Several new members will be added during the next few days, Mr. McGovern being the first to arrive. He has had some experience in musical comedy, although he has been playing chiefly dramatic roles.

The success of "Madame Sherry" this week has surpassed all expectations. The company has been doing capacity business since Sunday afternoon. Friday will be oarsmen's night, when all the visiting oarsmen will be guests of the theater management, and the theater will be decorated with their colors and pennants.

With two performances tonight one of the most pleasing bills of the season will come to a close at the New Grand.

TRAINED DOGS COMING TO GRAND.

Nettie Caroll and her troupe of "Yenuses" head the bill in a delightful manner. Jack Moore assists in the fun making and elaborate wardrobe and special settings make the act extremely popular.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cappellan in a domestic comedy, "Hiring a Maid;" Burnham and Yant in songs, dances and chatter, and the talkative trickster, Judson Cole, are among the other offerings.

"The Criminal," in three reels, featuring Norma Talmadge and Maurice Costello; the eighth chapter of the "Diamond From the Sky," entitled, "A Mind in the Past," and one of the funny Billy Reeves comedies, "Just Like Kids," deserve special mention among the photoplays.

Tomorrow the bill will be changed entirely and is headed by Barnold's Dogs, a wonderful aggregation of canine actors. Williams and Rankins, world's premier cornetists; Murray K. Hill, the five cent barber monologist, and Kammerer and Howland in character singing and pianologue are vaudeville offerings on the bill.

Charlie Chaplin in "The Face on the Barroom Floor;" "The Smuggler's Ward," a two reel feature; two comedies and the Hearst-Selig News of events complete the bill.

"The Wild Olive," the most elaborate production ever presented by the Oliver Morosco Photoplay company for the Paramount program is adapted from the celebrated novel by Basil King, which took two continents by storm.

"THE WILD OLIVE" AT REX.

The brilliant scenes of this famous love story of the New York aristocracy shift in kaleidoscopic succession from the grandeur of the lumber regions in the forest of the Alleghenies to the cosmopolitan charm of Buenos Aires, the gay capital of the Argentine republic.

"The Wild Olive" presents Myrtle Stedman and Forrest Stanley in their first co-starring combination. Miss Stedman ranks among the five most beautiful women in motion pictures. Duluth people will remember the prominent part she played in "Hypocrites," which was shown at the Rex recently.

Forrest Stanley is the matinee idol of the Morosco stage force and whether it be in flannel shirt sending a canoe through perilous rapids in the Alleghenies or in superb frock coat fencing gaily with coquettish belles, Forrest Stanley rides through the "Wild Olive" with the authority of a young Greek god. It will be at the Rex Wednesday and Thursday.

"The Lily of Poverty Flat" with the Broadway star, Beatriz Michelena in the title role, is the five act production that opened at the Zelda theater today. This play is taken from the story of Bret Harte, and was produced in the heart of California with all the beautiful scenes and settings, and by an all star cast. The story in brief relates how a poor California miner falls in love with Lily Follnsbee and saves her from insult from a Mexican. Lily's father, a prospector strikes it rich. Later he, his wife and daughter betake themselves from California to Paris to enjoy themselves. In Paris Lily's mother endeavors to arrange a marriage between the girl and a French aristocrat, but Lily remains firm in her loyalty to her absent lover. The wealth of the father vanishes and he is soon compelled to return to his old-fashioned life in the mountains. Of course the love story ends happily. In connection with this big production the Zelda presents Charlie Chaplin in one of his funny comedies, as well as two other pictures on the general program, and a vocal solo by the Zelda singer, and pipe-organ selections by Miss Goldie Robinson.

DEDICATE ASKOV CHURCH.

New Edifice in Pine County Village Scene of Notable Event.

Askov, Minn., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—This thriving little Danish community of Pine county was the scene of a notable event when the new church was dedicated last Sunday and Monday.

The church is a large brick structure with a seating capacity of 600, costing about $10,000. Askov boasts of having the finest church between Minneapolis and Duluth.

In addition to dedicating the church the new minister, Rev. Karl Andersen, who recently came from Brush, Colo., was installed. Visiting ministers were Rev. H. C. Strandskor, Brayton, Iowa; O. Gregersen, Alden, Minn.; A. J. Tarfgaard, Minneapolis; Theodore Knudsen, Tyler, Minn.

Charges Disapproved.

Washington, July 21.—Charges proposed on "trap" or "ferry car" services, which would have imposed a burden of several million dollars a year on industries of the country, were disapproved today by the Interstate commerce commission. The charges would have applied to railroads from New England to the Rocky mountains.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY SONS OF REVOLUTION

Portland, Or., July 21.—Newell B. Woodworth of Syracuse, N. Y., was unanimously elected president-general of the Society of the Sons of the American Revolution at their twenty-sixth annual convention here today.

Albert M. Childs Divided Property Between Two Daughters.

In probate court yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Alice C. Starkey of this city filed a petition in which she asks for the appointment of her brother-in-law, Edgar M. Thomas of Duluth, as executor of the estate of her father, Albert M. Childs, whose death occurred at his home here on May 5, last.

The will, which was also filed yesterday, disposed of property worth $4,500. It provides that Fern C. Sergal, a granddaughter residing at San Diego, Cal., shall receive $100 and that the balance of the estate shall be divided in equal shares between his two daughters, Alice C. Starkey and Ruberta C. Thomas, both of this city.

James Stewart, who died at his home in Duluth on July 2 last, cut off each of his three sons, John, James and William, with $5 apiece, and left his property to his daughter, Margaret Rusch. Today she filed her father's will and with it a petition asking that she be appointed executrix in accordance with its terms. The estate consists of personalty worth $150 and real estate to the value of $750.

Peggy Peabody's Observations

That Installment Plan Home.

Many folks with old fashioned notions would hold up their hands in holy horror if you suggested buying anything on the installment plan. They had their best days when young women early commenced to fold linens and woolens deep in the bottom of cedar chests and when house furnishings were not so numerous and were taken from the homes of the young people, or laboriously made by the hands of the loving young husband.

It is not exactly my intention to recommend that a young couple assume a burden of dept along with the varied responsibilities of married life or that they marry empty-handed. Perhaps in reality a young couple ought to have sufficient furnishings or at least an amount of money at hand to pay for those necessary to setting up a home for two. But, alas, they do not, and yet the desire for a home exists and two persons plunge into matrimony lacking the wherewithal to establish one. To these the installment plan appeals and I must own that friends of mine who started with little or nothing have succeeded in establishing homes through this means that they could never have had otherwise.

Not only the young married couple but home lovers of my own sex have attained a few possessions through what has been a method heretofore despised by me. The very nature of the furniture that I invariably associated with installment-bought goods antagonized me against the plan until recently when I had a change of heart.

A woman friend of mine, unmarried, decided that living between four walls, owning nothing and receiving a very poor return for the sum of money expended upon her bare living each week, was not only unsatisfactory but a rank waste of money into the bargain. She wanted to furnish and rent two rooms. But how? The installment plan smoothed her pathway and today she owns all the belongings in two beautifully furnished rooms.

I was recently surprised to learn how many homes are helped and improved through this identical means. After the family is half grown and nearly every cent is needed to keep the clamoring mouths fed various necessary pieces of furniture have a way of wearing out. They must be replaced. If, however, the head of the family had to take $25 out of his pocket in a lump sum the furniture would probably not be duplicated. But when it can be bought on the installment plan there will be new furniture to replace the old, and the entire family will be happier.

THE STREET CAR LINE EXTENSION SHOULD COME NOW.

When the courts decided the suit brought by the city against the street railway company in favor of the company, The Herald called the transportation officials' attention to the fact that the termination of that action removed what the company had constantly declared was a bar to the extension of its lines to the steel plant. The reply was that no such extension could be made until the roads were in proper shape for it, a situation that lay in the hands of the city to remedy.

Now Commissioner Farrell assures the public that the roads are ready for the extension, or at least that the way is ready for as much work as could be done at present, and that the remainder will be in shape by the time the company is ready to build over it.

That is sufficient preparedness for the company's needs, and the extension should come now. There never will be a time when it will be more needed, and no good reason is apparent why it should be delayed.

Manager Warren has promised a statement as to what the company will do, and promises that the statement will be forthcoming within ten days. That statement should be nothing short of an announcement of the early beginning of the work of extending the company's lines. The last pretext for delay has been removed and the sooner the work begins, the better pleased everybody will be.

Col. Roosevelt is hardly in position to criticize anybody who would take his suggestion and sing, "I didn't raise my girl to be a mother."

WHY FEAR FACTS?

The Chicago Tribune, which in pressing a policy of preparedness that comes dangerously close to militarism has fallen into the futile habit of hurling epithets at those who refuse to follow it, spills some rhetoric over the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace because its "division of intercourse and education" is sending out material for classes in arithmetic designed to teach that war is costly and dreadful.

It gives some specimens of the problems, selecting them from the examples in long division:

1. There are 300,000 Boy Scouts in America, and thirty dollars on an average would give each of them a camping trip and a Scout suit this year. We spent on our war department $173,522,804 last year. This amount would pay these expenses of the Boy Scouts for how many years?

2. Most boys would like to go to a ball game every week. If a boy went to a ball game every week for a season of twenty weeks, and took a fifty-cent seat, how much would it cost for the season? The amount which we spent on our navy last year, $139,632,186, would pay for tickets for how many boys?

3. A good tennis racket can be bought for $1.50. The battleship Vermont cost $7,563,963. This amount would buy rackets for how many boys and girls?

The Tribune gives more examples, but this is enough to show their nature. The Tribune speaks of them as "subtle and corrupting," "nauseating," "hypocritical," "peace at any price in its most contemptible form," "an attack on the morale of American youth," "intellectual dishonesty" and "moral perversion."

The Tribune's anger seems out of proportion. One reason the world is so prone to war is that it has taught its youth that war is noble and heroic, while it has concealed the costs and horrors of the actuality of war. It has laid undue emphasis on the patriotism of dying for one's country, and not enough emphasis on the patriotism of living for one's country. Indeed, the Carnegie Foundation would do no harm if it distributed examples in arithmetic for grown folks, too; something like these:

1. The battleship Vermont cost $7,500,000. A good consolidated rural school, that would be a fine social center for a rural community, can be built for ten thousand dollars. The amount spent on the Vermont would build how many schools?

2. The war and navy departments last year cost $300,000,000. A well equipped library for a community of three thousand people can be had for $30,000. The sum spent on the army and navy would furnish how many such libraries?

3. The war in Europe has killed or permanently disabled three million men in the prime of their usefulness. Each of these men, on the average, had before him twenty-five years of activity, and was capable of producing wealth amounting to five thousand dollars yearly. How much potential wealth has thus been destroyed by the war?

The Tribune is indignant because the Carnegie Foundation would teach the coming generation that war is frightful, and that preparedness for war, war itself and the aftermath of war are incalculably costly in men and money.

Well, this is all so, is it not?

Then why not teach it?

Is any harm likely to come from teaching truth?

Is the cause of militarism so insecure that it cannot survive the teaching of the truth?

Then it's in a bad way.

There is no possible harm in bringing up a generation that knows the facts about war—that it is expensive and frightful and to be avoided at all honorable cost; that undue preparedness provokes war; that war and preparedness for war are to be had only at a tremendous sacrifice; that its slender gains for humanity never balance its fearful cost.

Such a generation will not be a generation of cowards. It will be a generation that, knowing all the facts, will prepare for war so far as preparation is necessary and no farther, and that will bend its supreme efforts toward the high achievement of permanent world peace.

Now it remains to be seen whether Thaw will note any great difference in the people he associates with at present and those he associated with for the last six years.

ROOSEVELT VS. WATTS.

Col. Roosevelt makes a highly entertaining attack on the pacifists. His denunciation of the song, "I Didn't Raise My Boy to Be a Soldier," is nothing if not characteristic. Maybe to the colonel's mind it is, as he says, equivalent to saying that "I Didn't Raise My Girl to Be a Mother." He evidently considers fighting and maternity as a kind of Siamese twins in nature's family of purposes.

But you are wrong, colonel, dead wrong. Another author, better known in many circles than even your august and martial self, has already beaten you to this theme, and has stated the facts in words that will live long after your own are forgotten. You may be right on the race suicide question. Perhaps the purpose of the woman is to maintain or even increase the race numerically. But as to the fighting part you are all wrong. Read the words of the famous hymnologist:

Let dogs delight to bark and bite,
For God hath made them so;
Let bears and lions growl and fight,
For 't is their nature too.

But, children, you should never let
Such angry passions rise;
Your little hands were never made
To tear each other's eyes.

Another authority that ante-dates yourself, colonel, tells us that "the child is the father of the man," and still another and higher says that we should "become as little children."

Nay, nay, colonel, with such sympathy as we may be able to command for your strenuous and fiery nature, we believe our old friend Isaac Watts hit more closely to the truth. And to be frank, you come very near to convincing us of his unerring accuracy when we contemplate your own perfervid efforts and then recall his lines: "Satan finds some mischief still for idle hands to do."

Lawrence Y. Sherman says the tariff is to be the big issue in 1916. It must be that the "Y" in the senator's name stands for "Yesterday."

THE WEEDS.

A little while ago, when the season's vegetation was fresh and new, we read a piece somewhere celebrating the humble virtues of the weeds. They covered waste places with green and bloom, striving to overcome man's neglect. Though not showy, they had many beauties of their own. You'd think, to read that piece, that the weeds were a very much abused and very much under-valued tribe.

But now that the weeds are tall and straggly and ambitious, whatever feeling of sympathy that piece may have created has vanished.

They are nuisances, and that's about all there is to it.

Moreover, in too wide an area in this community, they are being allowed to be as much of a nuisance as they want to—and that's a good deal.

There are Canada thistles waxing tall and strong, and soon to scatter their seeds far and wide on the wings of the wind. Wherever these seeds fall, somebody has ahead of him in his garden or on his lawn a hard battle with a determined pest.

There are pig-weed and dandelions and plantains and chick-weed and several varieties of ragweed that will presently rear their ugly blossoms, reeking with pollen.

Now the pollen of the ragweed—as well as that of goldenrod—is rank poison to the hay fever victim. And Duluth, naturally one of the best resorts for the hay fever sufferer in the country, lets these pests get to the pollen stage without a struggle against it.

Down in Des Moines they are advocating a "weed cutting" day.

That would be a good sort of a day to have in Duluth, and it can't come too soon.

The Chicago News, surprised at the publication of the "confessions" of a dancer, acknowledges a belief that everybody knew everything about modern dancers. The News should have remembered that there is much more to most individuals than even the keenest eye can discern.

Reversed Conditions.

"I used to try to set him an example," replied the serious man. "But now I study him attentively to ascertain what kind of clothes I ought to wear and the style of conversation that is considered smart."

Teaching Efficiency in the New Rural School

Hubert Quick in the Saturday Evening Post.

We Americans, in city and country, are only about 30 per cent efficient. Three cylinders are missing. We are developing daily a third of our rated horsepower. The greatest reason is that our education is a bow-and-arrow education in an age of 42-centimeter guns. Only a minute fraction of our body of young people ever go to college; and yet nearly all of them must pursue a course leading to college if it leads anywhere.

Really it often does not lead anywhere. With life all about us, we are studying what the book compilers opine dead thinkers thought about the life of ages in which life was vastly different. We waste time on Greek and Latin when no man's life is long enough to learn half of what is available in English, which is vastly more important than anything ever written in Greek or Latin, and even then we do not learn either Latin or Greek.

We do this through weak mindedness, under the hypnotism of literature and the customs of the past. Because Tom Brown and David Copperfield studied Latin we feel that it is good form to have our boys do the same. In other words, the bow-and-arrow system of education does not make as efficient men as the 42-centimeter gun education.

Efficiency! That is the watchword of the day, and the deepest question in the world is that of national efficiency. The development of the efficiency of our rural communities to the highest percentage will be a world phenomenon second only to a similar uplift in the teeming rural population of Russia. I should not favor it if it had to be done at spiritual or intellectual loss; but it will bring illimitable gains, both spiritual and intellectual. Now we teach in the common schools reading, writing, arithmetic, history, language, geography, physiology—and that is about all. All these are better taught in the new kind of rural school than in the old kind.

I have mentioned language, reading, arithmetic and physiology. Today the rural school classes engaged on the problems related to the wheat crop are studying Russia, where more than 150,000,000 bushels of wheat are impounded by the Turks. They are studying the Dardanelles and their history, running back to times when old Ulysses drank delight of battle with his peers "far on the ringing plains of windy Troy." They are learning of the Balkan and Danubian regions, of the wheat of Canada and India, of the corn of Argentina, of our own fertile valleys.

They talk of Progreso and the acts of the Wilson administration resulting in the liberation of the sisal fiber lying in bales in Yucatan, that our wheat may be bound by the red machines which go tinkling along trimming the pile of the fields into sheaves. Here are history and geography and current events, all merged with life—the life of the home not less than the life of the school.

There is more bacteriology in farming than in medicine, more chemistry than in pharmacy, more botany than any school course gives, more manual training than is given anywhere outside the technical schools—and all these things are woven in the web of life. Not since the Spartans reared their youth for the one use of warfare have any people had the training for efficiency that will come to the Americans through the sort of rural school which has already been planted here and there over the land, and which is sure to come in and possess it.

The "Son and Father Business"

Ellis Parker Butler in the American Magazine: What's your notion of this son and father business?" he asked suddenly.

"This what?" asked Mr. Lloyd.

"Son and father business," said Sime. "I say it's right—dead right. The way the little fellers look up to us and reach out their hands to us, so to say, and we say 'Git out and don't bother me; I'm busy!' and let them go off by themselves. I say it's the right idee—the biggest business us fathers have got or will ever get is raisin' up our sons right.

"Our sons might as well be in Patagonia or Hong Kong for all the real near we get to them. You look at mother and daughter—sittin' side by side, sewin' together, sharin' each other's play and work—and then look at us fathers and our sons. We live like there was a sheet glass wall between us—son on one side, father on other—see each other but never touch. Father is always too busy, hey? Dickens he is!"

"What is it, a regular movement like—like the Big Brother business?" asked Mr. Lloyd.

"I reckon," said Sime, "but that's nothin' to me. I've got my own son, movement or no movement, and it's up to me to make his pleasures my pleasures—to show some interest in what interests him once in a while. That's how to get close to him and get a grip on him so I can know he'll come to me when he needs a friend. When I think how often son has asked me to do this or do that with him, and I've said 'No,' and he's gone off sort of disappointed when I might as well have said, 'Why, yes, son, I'll go with you; we'll have a good time doin' that'—when I think of it and how I would have enjoyed it—"

He looked at the back of his brown hand and shook his head.

"And that ain't all there is to it," he went on. "Us fathers grow old fast enough. We get petrified and stiff in our hearts. If we cut loose and let ourselves be boys with our boys once in a while we wouldn't grow old so fast. We wouldn't get so all-fired selfish."

To the Daisy.

With little here to do or see
Of things that in the great world be,
Sweet Daisy! Oft I talk to thee
For thou art worthy.
Thou unassuming commonplace
Of nature, with that homely face,
And yet with something of a grace
Which love makes for thee!

Oft on the dapple turf at ease
I sit and play with similes,
Loose types of things through all degrees,
Thoughts of thy raising;
And many a fond and idle name
I give to thee, for praise or blame
As is the humor of the game,
While I am gazing.

* * * * * * * * *

A little Cyclops, with one eye
Staring to threaten and defy,
That thought comes next—and instantly
The freak is over,
The shape will vanish, and behold!
A silver shield with boss of gold
That spreads itself, some fairy bold
In fight to cover.

I see thee glittering from afar—
And then thou art a pretty star,
Not quite so fair as many are
In heaven above thee!
Yet like a star, with glittering crest,
Self-poised in air thou seem'st to rest;—
May peace come never to his nest
Who shall reprove thee!

Sweet flower! for by that name at last
When all my reveries are past
I call thee, and to that cleave fast,
Sweet silent creature!
That breath'est with me in sun and air,
Do thou, as thou art wont, repair
My heart with gladness, and a share
Of thy meek nature!

—William Wordsworth.

"In nine cases out of ten the trouble with the woman who tries to be beautiful is that she is not well. When she is too stout, when her figure is thin and anemic, when her complexion is muddy and wrinkled, when her hair begins to come out, something is the matter with her health. Yet, unless there is some serious organic disease, the American woman may be her own doctor, may make herself well, strong and—as a natural corollary—beautiful. Why shouldn't she do it this summer?"

The American Venus issues this challenge to American womanhood. The American Venus is otherwise known as Miss Pauline Furlong of Washington. She approximates with remarkable accuracy to the measurements of one of the most famous statues of the ancient goddess of beauty. She is the author of "Beauty Culture at Home."

This is the psychological moment to begin the fight for health. Summer is here, with its possibilities of tennis, golf, rowing, swimming, riding, walking and all the other sports that keep man strong and fit, and that will have exactly the same effect on woman—if she gives them a chance. The succession of summer fruits and vegetables is about to begin—the most healthful food in the world for most of us. It requires no heroic self-control to leave the windows wide open every night and to take daily cool baths.

Miss Furlong realizes all this. Moreover, she is really much more interested in making women well than in making them pretty, because she knows that the latter state is dependent on the former.

"The thing most women want to do is to reduce," she said. "Few women who are too stout for good looks are in good health. Often, however, a few simple hygienic measures will put the corpulent woman in good condition. She may eat as much as she wants, but she should stick closely to the foods that do not make fat. She should exercise more and, above all things, she should exercise regularly. She should give up forever all alcoholic drinks, and she will be better off if she lets tea and coffee alone.

"The reducer need not starve herself, by any means, and just now is an excellent time for her to begin her diet. She has her choice of delicious green vegetables and fresh fruits. Made into salads this food is at once appetizing and healthful. For breakfast she may have one poached egg, or a bit of fish, dry toast without butter, and coffee if she must, though hot water is better. For dinner she has a wide choice among fruits, vegetables and lean meats.

"She must remember to avoid starchy vegetables, sweets and fat meats. On the other hand, the thin woman who wants to grow fat need only lie in bed all day and eat potatoes and ice cream," added Miss Furlong, with a laugh. "But there aren't so many of her."

Then the American Venus—who is a "pocket Venus" with pink cheeks, golden-brown hair and brown eyes that frequently show an unclassical twinkle—described some of the exercises that make a healthy, supple, perfectly proportioned body.

"There is no better exercise for the stout," she said, "than bending over with the knees stiff and attempting to touch the floor with the tips of the fingers. To reduce the hips, bend at the waist to the right and to the left, throwing the body as far over as possible and keeping the legs stiff. To develop the bust, stretch the arms above the head and bring them back to the sides. The swimming movement, in which the arms are extended in front of one, finger tips touching and then swept backward in a half-circle, palms outward, fattens a scrawny neck; while throwing back the head and rotating it in a half-circle helps to ward off a double chin.

"Most American women have neurasthenia in one form or another. Exercises such as I have described, taken regularly, tone up the nerves splendidly and give poise and grace. The important thing is to spend at least ten minutes in the movements every day; irregular exercise has little or no effect upon the system."

"What do you think of outdoor sports for women?" I asked.

"Splendid," said Miss Furlong. "Tennis, golf, water sports, walking and riding help to make health. Gymnasium work is also good, and I am especially in favor of the handball that is practiced in so many gymnasiums today. In outdoor exercise, however, a woman should take care to wear a broad-brimmed hat when she is exposed to the sun. Fresh air is fine for the complexion, but strong sunlight is likely to injure it.

"The way to have a good, healthy color is to be healthy, instead of buying red cheeks in a makeup box, as so many New York women do. If you eat the right sort of food and not too much of it; if you get enough sleep and fresh air; if you take some physical exercise every day; if you keep your face clean, your 'natural roses' will bloom satisfactorily, and it won't be necessary to resort to the cosmetics which are often positively unhealthy."

"Is it necessary for the woman who wants to be healthy to wear any special variety of clothes?" I asked.

"A woman can make herself perfectly well and strong without going in for dress reform. She can wear shoes with heels and she can wear corsets. The only thing to remember about the corsets is that when they are on, the waist measure should be exactly the same as when they are off. I don't think a woman looks neat without corsets, and if she does not use them to constrict her body they will do her no harm.

"It is so much better to make yourself beautiful by making yourself well," reiterated the American Venus. "It is such a satisfaction to feel that your color, your hair, your figure are your own and haven't been bought in a shop. If the well-to-do women who pad and paint themselves would eat less, use their own feet occasionally instead of motor cars, take ten long, deep breaths in front of the open window every morning and observe a few other simple hygienic rules, they would look better and feel better."

Considerate.

Chicago Herald: A young man saying good-by to his sweetheart was leaning on the garden gate.

"I'm going to ask you a favor," the girl said, hesitatingly.

"It is already granted," he answered.

"A very great favor," she repeated, as if doubtful of the propriety of saying what it was. "You're sure that you won't think it presumptuous or forward of me?"

"Never," he assured her. "Only tell me what I can do for you."

"Well," she replied, "would you mind not leaning on the gate? Father painted it this afternoon, and he will be awfully provoked if he has to paint it again."

Sad.

Columbus, Ohio, State Journal: One of the saddest phases of all human experience is the way a man, just about the time he succeeds in getting his brain developed to the point where he might accomplish something with it, finds that he has to devote all his attention to his teeth, stomach and legs to keep going at all.

Exceptional Qualifications.

Saline County, Mo., News: Position wanted—A young person having received an excellent education, including writing, geography, history, mathematics, music, and art, would like to enter a respectable family to do washing and ironing.

Michigan Musings

Brief Paragraphs From the Wolverine State Press.

A Law That Affects All Cities.

Marquette Chronicle: The idea that the city of Marquette is not called upon to take an interest in agricultural matters, particularly the development of agriculture in the district for which this city is the market and headquarters, is as erroneous as it would be to assume that the city as a whole need take no interest in the welfare of the individuals that compose it. A city, and especially these cities of the Upper Peninsula, are vitally interested in the development of the agricultural possibilities surrounding them—if the Upper Peninsula cities desire to grow.

Or Doesn't Go Down at All.

Baraga Journal: The price of wheat has been going down of late, but the man with a family hasn't realized any fall in the price of flour. The consumer usually finds that the price of things goes up by telegraph and goes down by canal boat.

Resignation From What?.

Ironwood Times: Bryan has been presented with a gold watch by his former employes. It is hoped that, by the aid of this new timepiece, he will be able to tell the proper time for his resignation.

Happy Copper Country!

Hancock Copper Journal: Big as our state is, it appears to be immune from tornadoes or destructive floods. If the people of the Middle West want to insure forever against the elements out of bounds, let them move to the Copper country of Michigan, where the cyclone cellar is unknown and the rivers stay within their banks.

They Know No Better.

Sault Ste. Marie News: They are boasting in Chicago that Chicago is the world's best summer resort. But you will notice that the boasters are the ones that have to stay there, and can't get away for purposes of comparison.

Deserve Severest of Punishment.

Calumet News: Some of the most disastrous fires which in earlier years devastated portions of Michigan, causing scores of deaths, were due to pure carelessness, if not actually to criminal recklessness. As years go by and timber becomes increasingly valuable owing to demand and scarcity, the carelessness which results in fires takes on more sinister significance. Whoever carelessly causes a fire which burns valuable timber is an actual robber of the general public and deserves the severest of punishment.

Horrible Thought!

Detroit Times: No rain for two days. Can it be possible our climate is changing?

Grand Rapids News: The Liberty bell stopped in Chicago for a few hours. Yes, the Liberty bell is cracked.

This Land of Ours

From "The Freelands" by John Galsworthy in Scribner's Magazine: A marvelous sweet thing, when all was said—this land! Changing its sheen and texture, the feel of its air, its very scent, from day to day. This land with its billion offspring of flowers and flying folk; its majestic and untiring march of seasons.

Spring and its wistful ecstasy of saplings, and its yearning, wild, wind-loosened heart; gleam and song, blossom and cloud, and the swift white rain; each upturned leaf so little and so glad to flutter; each wood and field so full of peeping things. Summer! Ah! summer, when on the solemn old trees the long days shone and lingered, and the glory of the meadows and the murmur of life and the scent of flowers bewildered tranquility, till surcharge of warmth and beauty brooded into dark passion, and broke. And autumn, in mellow haze down on the fields and woods; smears of gold already on the beeches, smears of crimson on the rowans, the apple trees still burdened, and a flax-blue sky wellnigh emerging with the misty air; the cattle browsing in the lingering golden stillness; not a breath to fan the blue smoke of the weed-fires—and in the fields no one moving—who would disturb such mellow peace? And winter! The long spaces, the long dark; and yet—and yet, what delicate loveliness of twig tracery; what blur of rose and brown and purple caught in the bare boughs and in the early sunset sky! What sharp dark flights of birds in the gray-white firmament!

Who cared what season held in its arms this land that had bred them all!

Just a Moment

Daily Strength and Cheer.

Compiled by John G. Quinlus, the Sunshine Man.

Repentance and other affections ascribed to God in scripture argue no change in Him. Repentance in God in only a change of His outward conduct according to His infallible foresight and immutable will.

We often read of God's repenting, repenting of the good He promised (Jer. xviii, 10), and of the evil he threatened (Ex. xxvii, 14), or of the work he hath wrought (Gen. vi, 6); but repentance is not properly in God. He is a pure spirit, and is not capable of those passions which are signs of weakness and impotency, or subject to those rgrets we are subject to. Where there is a proper repentance, there is a want of foresight, an ignorance of what would succeed, or a defect in the examination of the occurrences which might fall within consideration. He changes the way of His providential proceeding according to the carriage of the creature, without changing His will, which is the rule of His providence. When God speaks of His repenting that He had made man (Gen. vi, 6), it is only His changing His conduct from a way of kindness to a way of severity, and is a word suited to our capacities to signify His detestation of sin and His resolution to punish it, after man had made himself quite another thing than God had made him. "It repents Me;" that is, I am purposed to destroy the world, as he that repents of his work throws it away; as if a potter cast away the vessel he had framed, it were a testimony that he repented that ever he took pains about it; so the destruction of them seems to be a repentance in God that he ever made them, it is a change of events, not of counsels. Repentance in us is a grief for a former fact, and a changing of our course in it. Grief is not in God, but His repentance is willing a thing should not be as it was, which will was fixed for eternity; for God, foreseeing man would fall, and decreeing to permit it, He could not be said to repent in time of what He did not repent from eternity; and, therefore, if there were no repentance in God from eternity there could be none in time.—Ibid.

Let those who have failed take courage,
Though the enemy seemed to have won,
Though his ranks are strong, if he be in the wrong,
The battle is not yet done.
For sure as the morning follows
The darkest hour of the night,
No question is ever settled
Until it is settled right.

Art By the Yard.

Chicago Herald: Long had the poor young artist waited for his first patron. And now a prosperous-looking man stood before him.

"Pictures?" said the painter, trying to hide his eagerness. "Certainly, I have some to—er—dispose of. What subjects would you like to see: allegorical, landscape, or what?"

The stranger looked blankly at him.

"Don't care much about subjects," he replied. "What I want is something about three feet long and eighteen inches wide, to hide a crack in the wall."

Minnesota Opinions of Minnesota Roads

Scattered Comments by Editors of the State Press.

A Pessimist Reproved.

Mankato Free Press: "The people of Minnesota are not educated up to a really good road and the cost scares them out of their wits," says the Anoka Union. "Road building in Minnesota has proven almost a failure and the taxpayers have seen so much money foolishly invested that they don't care whether the state has any good roads. Maybe there'll come a time when the people will cry out in anguish, give us good roads or none."

The Union is pessimistic. The people of Minnesota may not be educated up to the good roads idea, but they are heading in that direction. We have not given up hope that they will some day arise to the situation and demand permanent good roads.

Still Thinking of the Legislature.

Redwood Falls Gazette: The Walker Pilot says an optimist is a man who has served as an assessor and still continues to love his fellow men. Not so, according to our lights! An optimist is a man, or possibly a woman, who can travel through Minnesota in a car, contemplating the repeal of the Elwell road law between bumps and ruts and honestly say to himself, "The legislature is one of the great institutions of our glorious state."

But It's There Just the Same.

Belle Plaine Herald: In all this talk about the cost of road improvement, not much is said about the high cost of poor roads.

The Real Thing Needed.

Anoka Union: Minnesota is too wealthy to construct makeshift roads—the kind Bob Dunn and Charley Mitchell favor.

Do Some Things Anyway.

Fergus Falls Journal: Failure to drag country roads after rains will be made a misdemeanor if Senator R. C. Dunn of Princeton, author of the Dunn road law, can obtain legislative sanction at the next session.—Moorhead News.

This would be going too severe, but failure to fill up deep holes on roads that are supposed to be regularly patrolled by $100-per-month men might very fittingly be declared a crime.

Who'd Oppose That Issue?

Anoka Union: Good roads are better than prohibition any day in the week. Good roads should be the issue next year.

One Form of Graft Spotted.

Long Prairie Leader: There ought to be a jail sentence and no option of fine for the road boss who puts sod into the roads. Most all road troubles have their origin in this lazy practice. Sod is not a solid substance. It quickly rots, and, being softer than the earth of the road, a depression is made as the wagons pass over it. In a few days there is a chuck hole and in wet weather it becomes a mire. This lazy and ignorant practice has cost the taxpayers as much if not more than most any one other wasteful practice in the public service.

Living on Five Dollars a Week.

Lillian D. Wald in the Atlantic: At the hearing of the Factory Investigation commission in New York during the winter of 1914-1915, a witness testified regarding the dreary and incessant economies practiced by low-paid working girls. This stimulated discussion, and an editorial in a morning paper queried where the girls were, pointing out that the working girls of New York presented not only an attractive but often a stylish appearance. I asked a young acquaintance, whose appearance justified the newspaper description, to give me her budget. She had lived on $5 a week. Her board and laundry cost $4. She purchased stockings from pushcart vendors, "seconds" of odd colors but good quality, for 10 cents a pair; combinations, "seconds" also, cost 25 cents. She bought boys' blouses, as they were better and cheaper. These cost 25 cents. Hats (peanut straw) cost 10 cents; tooth paste 10 cents a month. Having very small and narrow feet she was able to take advantage of special sales when she could buy a good pair of shoes for 50 cents. Her coat, bought out of season for $7, was being worn for the third winter. Conditions were exceptional in her case, as she boarded with friends who obviously charged her less than she would otherwise have been compelled to pay; but there was practically nothing left for carfares, for pleasure, or for the many demands made upon even the most meager purse; and few people, in any circumstances, would be able to show such excellent discretion in the expenditure of income.

WANTS TAG DAY FOR DULUTH NEEDY

To the Editor of The Herald:

Why is it that the city had a tag day for the people in the other countries when right here all around in Duluth are poor people needing help?

So many men willing to work cannot get a job.

Why is there no way of doing something for these men as I know many sober and willing workers that have looked for work but cannot get it.

CHILD LABOR LAWS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

An anonymous letter was received yesterday in which I was criticised for neglecting my duty—that of enforcing the child labor law at the Grand theater last week, for according to the correspondent, a "child about 6 years old" was performing there. This child's employment had already been investigated and the fact is that she was really 11 years old (very small for her age but this is characteristic of the Japanese) and was legally employed in that the manager had obtained a permit from the mayor, in accordance with the state child labor law which allows children over 10 to be thus employed if a permit is previously obtained from the mayor of the city in which the performance takes place, a duplicate of said permit being sent to the commissioner of labor or his local representative and one to the secretary of the child labor committee.

In this case the child was legally employed, but there may be cases where they are not and I should appreciate it if the public would assist the labor department by reporting such cases to me when they are first discovered and kindly sign their names to such written communications as all signed communications are always held in strict confidence, the employes of the labor department being prohibited from disclosing the name of any person supplying the information.

CRUSHED ROCK VS. GRAVEL.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I observe in last night's issue of The Herald that a correspondent of the Open Court states that tests made at the state university show that gravel used in concrete for street paving purposes is superior to broken stones. This statement is not supported by the latest bulletin issued in March, 1915, by the state university entitled "An Investigation of the Concrete Road-Making Properties of Minnesota Stone and Gravel," by Charles Franklin Shoop, B. S., assistant professor of experimental engineering. This bulletin shows clearly that broken stone is far superior to gravel for road concrete by "rattler" tests of concretes made from gravel and broken stone, using the same quantities of cement and sand, and states on page 37, "In general, the tests show that crushed stone makes a better wearing surface than the gravels, this advantage being due to the better bond." The bulletin shows that Pine county sandstone gave the best results of all the stones and gravels tested, under the abrasive or wear test, whether the rattling machine was loaded with the ordinary brick rattler charge of irregular steel cubes or with a wheel studded with calks such as are used on horseshoes. And says in this connection, "It was demonstrated in the case of the sandstone specimens (of concrete) that the stone wore down with approximately the same rapidity as the bonding mortar producing a smooth, even surface. It is also to be noted that the percentage of wear was normal." Also, "it is believed that a material which will wear at about the same rate as the cement mortar itself, insuring a smooth pavement, will in the end be the most economical, even though its co-efficient of wear (which is not true in this case) be greater. This probable increased co-efficient of wear will be more than counter-balanced by the wear due to the hammering action produced by the heavy traffic rolling over protruding stones and tending to break up the roadbed. In all probability, therefor the maximum life of such a roadbed will be greater and in addition afford an ease and pleasure in travel together with an absence of unsightly and annoying pockets."

The bulletin also shows that the crushing strength of sandstone is far greater than the crushing strength of any stone or gravel concrete subjected to test. Yours truly,

Antitoxin and the Neighbors

ONE reader writes that the family doctor wished to administer antitoxin to a child with diphtheria, but the neighbors advised him that antitoxin is dangerous when the heart is weak. He asks our opinion. Neighbors will please take to heart the following:

What in tarnation, to use a polite word, do the neighbors know about antitoxin more than you know yourself, may we ask? Why do you employ a doctor? Why not place the child under the care of the neighbors and save the difference?

What is antitoxin?

When a patient recovers from diphtheria without the aid of antitoxin, as happens in certain mild cases, what brings about the recovery? Nature. How? By producing something in the patient's blood to neutralize the diphtheria poison. What is this substance, this natural antidote? It is antipoison—antitoxin. If the patient produced no antitoxin, or too little of it to completely neutralize the diphtheria poison or toxin, the termination would be fatal or else there would remain some serious weakness of heart, or paralysis or other unfortunate effect of diphtheria poison.

Supposing a child or weak adult is not able to produce enough antidote, or not able to produce it rapidly enough to cope with the tremendous dose of poison the disease throws into the blood in severe cases. Isn't it a God-given blessing that we can utilize healthy horses, sheep or other clean animals to produce the antidote in unlimited quantities?

Antitoxin is obtained by administering to healthy young horses minute doses of diphtheria toxin or poison—not the diphtheria germs, but their filtered poison—and by easy steps increasing the dose, until in time the animal can withstand a tremendous overdose, which would kill an unimmunized or normal animal. Finally the blood is withdrawn; it contains the antidotal substance, the diphtheria antitoxin. It is carefully filtered, concentrated and placed in sterile containers for use.

Anyone who eats meat, sausage or milk can scarcely conjure up a bogie in antitoxin, unless he be one of these paper antivivisectionists.

The Itch Is All on the Outside.

Some time ago you commended grandma's old-time sulphur and lard ointment for the itch. Should it be taken internally or rubbed on the skin? And how much at a time?

Reply—The itch never gets deeper than the skin. Rub it on, using about a pound of freshly-made ointment the first sitting. If the skin is properly scrubbed with hot soap and water first, and the ointment rubbed in thoroughly, one treatment ought to clear up the trouble, that is, if you're sure it is the itch (scabies).

If your question is of general interest it will be answered through these columns; if not it will be answered personally if stamped, addressed envelope is enclosed. POEMS ASKED FOR.

The Herald acknowledges with thanks the receipt of a copy of "The Bridge" from Elizabeth Falbo of Northland, Minn.

The Bridge.

I stood on the bridge at midnight,
As the clocks were striking the hour,
And the moon rose o'er the city,
Behind the dark church tower.

I saw her bright reflection
In the waters under me,
Like a golden goblet falling
And sinking into the sea.

And far in the hazy distance
Of that lovely night in June,
The blaze of the flaming furnace
Gleamed redder than the moon.

Among the long, black rafters
The wavering shadows lay,
And the current that came from the ocean,
Seemed to lift and bear them away.

As sweeping and eddying through them,
Rose the belated tide,
And, streaming into the moonlight,
The seaweed floated wide.

And like those waters rushing
Among the wooden piers,
A flood of thoughts came o'er me,
That filled my eyes with tears.

How often, oh, how often,
I had wished that the ebbing tide
Would bear me away on its bosom
O'er the ocean wild and wide!

For my heart was hot and restless,
And my life was full of care,
And the burden laid upon me,
Seemed greater than I could bear.

But now it has fallen from me,
It is buried in the sea,
And only the sorrow of others
Throws its shadow over me.

Yet whenever I cross the river
On its bridge with wooden piers,
Like the odor of brine from the ocean,
Comes the thought of other years.

And I think how many thousands
Of care-encumbered men,
Each bearing his burden of sorrow,
Have crossed the bridge since then.

I see the long procession
Still passing to and fro,
The young heart hot and restless,
And the old subdued and slow!

And forever and forever,
As long as the river flows,
As long as the heart has passion,
As long as life has woes.

The moon and its broken reflection,
And its shadows shall appear,
As the symbol of love in heaven,
And its wavering image here.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

This department does not pretend to be infallible. It will endeavor, however, to answer questions sent to it by readers of The Herald to the best of its ability, reserving the right to ignore all that are trifling or of concern only to the questioner, or that ask for advice on legal or medical questions.

To receive attention, every inquiry must bear the name and address of the person sending it. This is not wanted for publication, but as an evidence of good faith.

"Watchful Waiting," Deer River—What does Webster say in defining the word "neutral"? Is America neutral in the sense President Wilson wants us to be?

Webster defines neutral as "not taking sides, not assisting either side; indifference." It is to be hoped that President Wilson's idea of neutrality is being lived up to.

C. H. Williams, Hibbing—How should a letter be addressed to Mr. Barker in the Duluth postoffice to reach him? Who is the author of the poem "Ask Me No More?" What is the meaning of the poem?

E. M. Barker, superintendent of registry division, postoffice, Duluth. Alfred Tennyson is the author of "Ask Me No More." The poem is one of the lyrics in "The Princess," and is said to be one of Tennyson's best. The lyric is spoken by the princess to her suitor, whom she has rejected up to this time. She is at the point of yielding and speaks these words, urging him not to importune her any longer.

Reader, Mitchell, Minn.: Will you, as a special favor, give me a recipe for canning pineapples?

"R. W. G." gives the following: There are something like a dozen different ways of canning pineapples, some of them including cutting the fruit into cubes and others merely slicing it. Different recipes also call for different quantities of sugar. The following is my favorite method: Pare the pineapples, chop them up and then grind them in an ordinary meat grinder, being careful to preserve as much of the juice as possible. You will need no other liquid than the juice from the fruit. Then boil slowly until the sherds are tender and the mass begins to grow transparent. Shortly before removing the kettle from the fire, stir in as much sugar as is desired (I never use more than half a teacup of sugar to each pineapple, and this I think is a good deal). Seal up the cooked fruit in air-tight jars. An exceedingly good variation of this recipe is to use equal quantities of pineapple and strawberries, or equal quantities of pineapple and rhubarb. In the latter case add a little more sugar than when you use only pineapple.

FELLOWSHIP AIM OF ROTARY

Charles Mackintosh Gives Address Before San Francisco Convention.

Love and Service Chief Characteristics of the Association.

The work, spirit and aim of rotary were discussed by Charles Henry Mackintosh of Duluth in an address on "Rotarian Fellowship" given yesterday at the annual convention of the International Association of Rotary Clubs now in session at San Francisco. His address in part follows:

"We long to see what has been done with us, what flower or figure our association with one another has caused to flame across the fabric of society, and we must wait until the work is well advanced.

"But now our web of rotary has been upon the loom throughout ten years of weaving.

"Before the beginning of rotary, the flaming colors in the fabric of society were not fashioned upon gay colors.

"Business was a solemn and a dreary thing in those days and men did not come to it with joyous and uplifted hearts to fill it full of splendid color.

"There was a something wanting in the spirit with which men went about the service of their daily tasks.

"Color came only through those who formed the fringes of the great gray serious business of serving; who served with song or brush, with instruments of melody, with mallet and chisel, or with flame-tipped pen; 'wasting' their lives that those who thought them wasted might know a little of that divine fire which flames through all work done for the joy of working.

"Then the fates wearied of their somber design relieved only by its golden borders and the great pattern called for an end to this gray panel and the beginning of a brighter and more beautiful design.

"And so they filled the shuttle of destiny with the glowing thread of Fellowship and sent it flying through the warp of labor, under and over the grey threads, until the grey itself began to glow with rich warm color.

"This was the commencement of our Rotary design.

"When Paul P. Harris and his Chicago companions conceived the idea of fellowship between men as business men, the first few colored threads flashed into that design which is rotary.

"There had been concerted movements towards fellowship between men before, but all on the fringes of the serious business of living, in leisure moments and between those who had a little time on their hands and were willing to effect a friendly exchange.

"Fellowship and business were things apart.

"Fellows of the leisure moment would meet each other in business with the unspoken warning of that almost obsolete maxim 'Caveat emptor!' which in the light of present-day rotary business—morality—can be translated only into: 'Let my brother beware!'

Something Lacking.

"True fellowship could not follow into office, counting house or store; these were the strongholds of selfishness in which men bowed the knees only to the god of greed.

"And then came rotary with its idealistic view of business as an opportunity to splendid service and with its practical method of fostering fellowship among business men as a means to the realization of that ideal.

"Hate and greed are twin offsprings of ignorance; they cannot continue in the light of fellowship.

"We cannot hate a man when we have come to know him with all his stifled aspirations, his human imperfections, his human hopes and fears so like our own; we may come to pity him perhaps, but pity is akin to love.

"Nor can we long continue to hold the service of self above and before the service of society after we have learned that we can serve self only through serving society, since we are specialists and present-day life is so complex.

"Fellowship is the antidote to greed as well as to hate, because in fellowship our mutual dependence is made plain to us.

"And in fellowship we find the dominant color-note in the design of rotary.

"Now rotary fellowship, like charity, begins at home.

"It finds its first and truest expression in a sincere desire to know our fellow members in our own clubs, and to know them in the very fullest meaning of the word; to share their dreams and their disasters, to rejoice at their attainments and to sorrow with their afflictions, to call each by the simplest and sincerest name in the human speech—friend.

"Christianity itself—the very creed of divine fellowship and love—has seethed and surged with the puny but poisonous hatred of sectarians and dogmatists until the kindly creed of the gentle Galilean glows dimly through the smoke of a thousand battles for his faith which proclaims: 'Love thy neighbor as thyself.'

"A man must bring love to his labor if it is to win him love again, and how shall he love that which he does not understand?

"Yet love is the greatest and the most insistent need of modern man, since he may not live by and for himself alone.

"Love is the true philosopher's stone, turning all it touches to the only gold worth gaining; and love lies along that pathway, the gateway to which is fellowship.

Bonds of Fellowship.

"Rotary enjoins us, then, first to weld strongly the bonds of fellowship between ourselves and our business brothers that we may come to learn that there is no worth-while labor without love and that there can be no worth-while love which is not expressed in labor.

"For love and service are synonymous terms.

"We come now to a consideration of the international application of rotary fellowship, which is at present bounded only by the limitations of the Anglo-Saxon language.

"There are at present 154 clubs affiliated with the international association and twenty others which have not yet become affiliated with us.

"These clubs cover every important city in the United States, Canada, England, Scotland and Ireland.

"Their membership is made up of the picked business men of the English-speaking world.

"When we have sown the seed of rotary in Australia and New Zealand there will be nothing left for us but to create a kind of rotary Esperanto before setting out to conquer the rest of the world.

"But this fact that we have business brothers in eight score cities will not help us unless we avail ourselves of the various avenues for establishing personal relations with the rest of our family.

"This we may do in many ways.

"But there is an even wider vision for those who truly learn the lessons of fellowship and service which are brought to them in their local clubs and through their inter-rotary relations.

"Rotary is not an end, but a beginning.

"And now the warp of labor stretches out before us into the far dim future.

Accomplishments of Future.

"We have read the rotary design so far as it has advanced, but we can only guess what infinitely more beautiful designs it may lead to in the social fabric of the future.

"We know because we have proved it, that the way of service is the way to happiness and that the gateway to service is fellowship.

"The task before us, then, is so to live this truth which we have learned that all may come to covet our secret of success and all may find it freely theirs to copy.

"Thus, at the last, Hate shall be stifled in every human heart; Greed shall be hurled from his age-long throne in the temple of Self in which the service of Society shall replace his wasteful worship; there shall be no more wars, nor any crime, nor pestilence nor poverty, nor any remaining among all these offsprings of ignorance; but every human being shall know it for a truth that indeed he is his brother's keeper and that whatever he does to any other is done unto himself indeed."

LIMIT ON CREDIT SEEN AS NECESSITY

In a letter sent out to the trade papers of the state George M. Peterson, secretary of the Duluth Retail Grocers' association, discusses their recently adopted 30-day credit limitation as follows:

"The policy adopted by the Duluth Retail Grocers' association, relative to confining credit limitations to thirty days is not only a practical procedure, but fast becoming a necessity in conformity with business principles. This cannot and should not be considered in any other way, and has no inclination towards depriving anyone from reasonable service or credits.

"The grocer must pay the commission houses every week for his perishable goods, and the jobber and wholesaler insist on settlement of their accounts every thirty days, therefore, the grocer is not taking any advantage by the enforcement of this request from his trade. It is simply making an equal distribution of responsibility and the consumer is simply asked to conform to rules which do and have governed their grocers.

"The banking business and the retail grocery business are two different propositions even though common necessities.

"The profits of the grocery business are very small, and even if on the contrary, they were large comparatively speaking, the extension of credits beyond thirty days would be unwarranted, or even supposing that Mr. Grocer can make the grade and borrow enough real money for not to exceed 6 per cent interest, to pay his account, the money due him from his customers is surely worth as much, so here goes, 6 and 6 are 12. He pays 12 per cent in reality and with the nice big margin of 3 per cent on groceries, unless he gets busy and gets his money every thirty days, and keeps his stock turning, he will simply be working his head off and paying 9 per cent on principal for the privilege of doing so until the sucker is closed up.

"Credit has it's advantages and disadvantages; it is a blessing to some and a curse to others. Under proper control it is absolutely legitimate, convenient and for many reasons it is desirable. On the other hand, misplaced confidence is a curse. Misplaced confidence and misplaced credits are twins commercially. It is an easy matter to get people into debt, and another matter to get them out, therefore, summing it up from any viewpoint you may desire, the fact is very evident, that the grocer who keeps his customers square on his books is in reality their friend, and doing them a big favor."

DEAD KNOW NOTHING.

Jesus' Secnod Coming Only Hope for Departed, Says Pastor.

"Where Are the Dead?" was the subject last night at the Bible Chautauqua Tent, West Second street near the Y. M. C. A., where Pastor Stemple White addressed a large audience. Mr. White said:

"Without any dissenting voice whatsoever, the Word of God through all ages has declared the sensible truth that the dead are in their graves, that man in death is absolutely unconscious, and that the only hope of their ever being awakened to a resurrected and real existence again, is at the personal return of Jesus the Life-Giver, who only holds the keys of death and the grave. This first death into which both saint and unrepentant sinner goes, is likened to sleep because of the certainty of the future resurrection, but the second death into which the lost souls go, is death eternal which knows no future resurrection."

Tonight Mr. White will answer from the Bible, "Where is the Repentant Thief Today, Who Was Crucified on Calvary?"

WALSH NAMES PIONEERS WHO SHOULD BE IN STEEL PAGEANT IF IT IS STAGED

"Bill" Bassett and John Mallman, Who Located Soudan Mine, Should Lead; Then the Original Pre-Emptors and the First White Woman to Walk to Tower.

If it is finally determined to hold a celebration in observance of the opening of the steel plant, the aid of T. J. Walsh, president of the North American Mining company, will be of incalculable value in getting it up. Mr. Walsh has lived in St. Louis county so many years that even he forgets the date of his arrival; and he might well be elected historian of the development of the iron industry here.

Mr. Walsh has suggested to The Herald a number of features in regard to the proposed parade and its make-up, and has named people now living who had a most important part in the development of mining in this county, who, he suggests, should be included in the celebration in the order of their work here.

In a letter to The Herald, Mr. Walsh suggests the following:

Back to Pioneers.

"For the celebration of the completion of the Minnesota Steel company's plant in this city why not go back to the employes of George C. Stone & Co., which company did the first exploration work for iron ore in Minnesota? "Bill" Bassett and John Mallman were the first cruisers and located the lands for the Soudan mine, which was the first iron mine in this state to ship ore. Also include in the list Col. C. H. Graves of Duluth and Edward Lynch, who pre-empted the lands which contain the Leo mine, where the first exploration work was done. These are the only two whom I know of who are now left of the original pre-emptors. There should also be included in the original list of employes John Smith, John Anderson and Mrs. Jack Armistrong of Madison, Wis. The latter was the wife of the first mining captain and was the first white woman to walk from Duluth to where Tower is now.

"I would further suggest that the procession of the day be headed by John Mallman, "Bill" Bassett, Mrs. Armstrong, John Smith and John Anderson. This would represent George C. Stone & Co. Next should come Charlemagne Tower of Philadelphia and Thomas L. Blood of St. Paul, who were respectively president and first paymaster of the Minnesota Iron company; next the boys of '81 and '82, who packed over the old Vermilion road. They were Robert B. Whitesides, Martin Pattison, Dick Ryan, John Gonska, Lon and Alfred Merritt, Louis Rouchleau, Joseph Roy, Louis Murray, Alex Fraser, Sam Owens of Eveleth, James W. Goss, Teddy Wheeler, and J. H. Murphy of Tower, and Paddy McDonnell of Duluth. These I believe include about all of the boys of the year above mentioned.

Railroad Builders.

"Next should come W. A. McGonagle and George Washington Loftkins, two of the engineers who surveyed the Duluth & Iron Range railroad. Next in line should be Thomas Owens who ran the engine which hauled the first train load of ore in Minnesota. Put with him as fireman, Roadmaster John Shea, who worked on the construction work of the railroad for John S. Wolff & Co. If you furnish these boys with sufficient coal they will be sure to make the grade. Capt. Con Flynn, who ran the Minnesota Iron company's first tug boat; D. H. Bacon of New York and Capt. Ed Ball of Alabama to represent the Federal Steel company, which was the successor of the Minnesota Iron company, should come next, and then follow up with the officials of the Oliver Mining company, present owners.

"The majority of the men in this list will not be able to make much of a speech but as single-handed talkers at a good big camp fire they can hold their own with most of the good speakers.

"I would suggest two floats. The first one should be a horse and cart, an old stump with a piece of steel driven into it to represent an anvil, a few picks and shovels, bars of steel, hammers and a cedar bark house about five feet high, which would represent the mining outfit and the sleeping camp at the Soudan mine in 1882. The second could be the skeleton of the first boat on Lake Vermilion, which is lying along the river at Tower, the lumber for which was sawed with a cross-cut saw out of logs suspended in the air, by Bob McCoy and Peter Jordan. This would represent the first saw mill at Lake Vermilion. The nails for this boat were made out of bar steel in the blacksmith shop by Andy White, and the boat was built by Andrew Reefer. This boat was built for the purpose of hauling to the mine the machinery left at the old gold diggings in '65. Hammers and steel were the principal things of value found there and the old boilers were cut in two and used as stoves. There are many other relics of this day which would be of great interest.

"R. B. Whitesides, Martin Pattison, Archie Chisholm, Dr. Conan and Peter Schafer represent the Ely pioneers."

BECKER AWAITING ACTION ON APPEAL

raided and the latter, being angry, began publishing charges against Becker, Sullivan, according to the statement, called the police lieutenant in and said that Rosenthal must be induced to leave town because of an inquiry, which, if started, might reach into election matters, a situation he wished to avoid. This was not long before the assassination of Rosenthal.

Rosenthal Refused.

Becker says it is common report that a sum of money was raised presumably by Rose from the gamblers to get Rosenthal away. Rosenthal refused the sum offered, but consented to go for a larger sum. It is said that it was for this larger sum that he was waiting at the Hotel Metropole when he was shot. Becker adds that if it could be shown that Rose had been entrusted with a sum of money to be given Rosenthal, it would shed a flood of light on the whole transaction, and would explain the source of $1,000 which Rose admitted they had paid to the gunmen.

The statement is accompanied by a supplemental document also framed by Becker, and really a part of his story, but revised somewhat by his attorneys. In this second statement, the condemned man declares at one point that if he is to die, he is as ready now to meet his fate as he has any reason to think he ever will be. He adds that there is only one service that can be rendered him now, and that is aid in finding evidence which will establish his innocence.

RIOTERS AND POLICE CLASH IN FIGHT AT STANDARD OIL PLANT

selves with streams of water, but the crowd withdrew.

The fire chief said there seemed to be no reason for the attack, except the fact that the firehouse was city property and the city, as was its duty, was guarding the Standard Oil plant.

No Addition to Strikers.

There were no additions to the strikers' ranks today. The men employed at the Tidewater Oil company's plant, which adjoins the plant of the Standard, were expected by the strikers to join them. Instead all hands went to work.

Whether the strikers had been misled in this matter is uncertain, but the sight of the Tidewater starting up for the day seemed to anger the crowd.

No one went in or out of the Standard plant today. The company's employes who remained on duty to guard against fire and keep things in shape come and go by the water front, where they can be loaded onto tugs. Most of these are engineers and firemen and foremen.

In the plant were seventy-five deputy sheriffs, sworn in by Sheriff Kinkead, and also 100 special policemen furnished by Bayonne. These men are said to be legally entitled to serve. Great care is said to have been taken to avoid the steps which led to the trouble at the fertilizer strike at Roosevelt, N. J., last winter, when outsiders were imported and sworn in as deputies.

Police Outside.

Outside the inner guard were the uniformed police of Bayonne. It was part of this force, under personal command of Inspector Cady, which was guarding the approach to the main gates of the plant, that was attacked. Several of the police were mounted and they, with the inspector, bore the brunt of the first fight. They drove the rioters back and most of them were hit with stones and pieces of slag. Shots were also fired at the police.

The situation became so threatening that the inspector ordered revolvers drawn and the police then fired a volley over the heads of the crowd. It halted the attack only a moment and then the order was given to fire again, but this time to aim low.

The police believe many bullets found human marks, but the injured were carried away.

Inspector's Horse Shot.

While the firing from the crowd was in progress Inspector Cady's horse became almost uncontrollable. Investigation showed that the horse had been shot and was suffering from an internal hemorrhage.

General Manager Gifford of the plant repeated today his statement that the company would listen to any request or demand of its employes, but had received none. The strike, he said, had been fomented by outsiders.

"We stand ready now, as in the past, to consider any complaints or requests of our men," said Mr. Gifford, "but under no circumstances will we deal with outsiders. Nor will we consider any ultimatum requiring an answer within twenty-four hours, or any other period, such as was recently presented."

A Polish lawyer of Jersey City, not connected with the company in any capacity, was employed by the still cleaners and the barrel men, it was said, to present their demands. It was this man's part in the strike that led the company officials to say they had received no complaint or request from their own men.

Mine warfare along the British front and isolated actions on the remainder of the western battle line are not of sufficient importance to distract public attention from the eastern campaign.

and once outside the works of a contractor making machine tools for the Remington company. Dirt wagons, driven two abreast, cleared the road in front of the first named plant. The police, according to an official connected with the contracting concern, dispersed strikers and sympathizers there after they had made a demonstration against the men who remained at work.

The labor leaders asserted that twenty-five guards at the Remington plant had gone on strike for more money today. Fifteen were said to have walked out yesterday.

Some Misunderstanding.

Although a strike call was issued for yesterday, only 175 men obeyed the summons, according to the labor estimates; but it is claimed that the reason all the machinists did not go out was because of a misunderstanding.

While the labor men claim 175 men struck, the Bridgeport Manufacturers' association asserts that only twenty-eight employes actually laid down their tools.

An attempt to get some statement from Maj. W. G. Penfield, works manager of the company, as to how many men, according to the company's count, had struck, was unsuccessful. John W. French, publicity agent of the Remington company, said:

"We are not at liberty to say how many machinists, if any, are out on strike. We can give no figures. We do not want to appear discourteous, but it is utterly impossible for us to make any statement of any kind."

Held For Shooting Uncle.

Fond du Lac, Wis., July 21.—Robert Gibbons, 20, Eden township, was arrested Tuesday for the attempted murder of his uncle, Edward Gibbons. The injured man was shot three times, in the head, hip and arm. His condition is critical.

IS CONVICTED ON ONE COUNT

Uncle Sam Scores Partial Victory in Alien Labor Action.

Russians and Austrians Expected to Be Released at Once.

In its fight against the alleged importation of alien labor by the Northwestern Construction company the United States government secured conviction of the company in only one count out of ten. An action was begun demanding fines amounting to $15,000, but the defendants now face payment of only $1,000 and costs of the action.

The verdict of the jury returned last night was in favor of the government, but conviction was secured on only one count. Five counts were dropped before the case went to the jury, so that only ten were considered in making out the verdict.

The count upon which conviction was obtained was that involving Afexander Kutya, a Russian. It was proved that the construction company had induced him to come to Pinewood on the north shore of the Rainy river from Fort Frances, having paid for his transportation. It is said that the jury was deadlocked on several of the other counts, and that the verdict returned was a compromise. The verdict is said to indicate that the jury did not favor drastic action, but preferred rather to render a decision that would express disapproval of the act of importing laborers that the case might be a warning to others who might engage in the practice.

Asks Release of Witnesses.

As soon as the verdict had been announced by Judge Morris Deputy Immigration Inspector O. B. Holton of Winnipeg, who has charge of the witnesses, wired to the department of labor at Washington asking that the men who have been held for ten months as witnesses as well as for deportation, be released on their own recognizance. An immediate reply was asked, that the aliens might secure their liberty as soon as possible.

Mr. Holton hopes to get a reply today. Three other prisoners will be taken to Canada by Deputy Inspector Holton.

The federal officials are well pleased with the verdict in the case despite the fact that convictions were not secured on the other nine counts. The case will be cited as an example in such proceedings in the future, and will go a long way toward stopping the practice of importing aliens for labor, they believe. The immigration problem is attracting wide attention at present, and promises to loom up larger and larger owing to the European war, which it is believed, will eventually drive many aliens to the American borders.

NO SEMI-FINISHED STEEL IN MARKET

Manufacturers Out of Market for New Business for Some Time.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 21.—For the first time in two years manufacturers report a scarcity of semi-finished steel. Pittsburgh producers of open hearth steel billets and sheet bars have been out of the market, so far as new business is concerned, for some time, but the pressure for delivery on orders booked has been so great that shipments are behind. Youngstown steel makers yesterday advanced the price of sheet bars to $23.50, Pittsburgh, the highest point in more than two years. A month ago sheet bars were available at $20.50 Pittsburgh.

POISONED HIMSELF AT 40

Death by slow poison is killing many a man, young in years, who has made the fatal mistake of failing to understand the warnings of kidney trouble.

When your kidneys begin to lag in throwing off natural poisons that accumulate in your body, the first warnings come in little twinges, or stiffness across your back and hips. Urination may be too frequent; you may feel "tired" in the morning when you should feel your best.

The best known remedy for these troubles is GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. This remedy has stood the test for more than 200 years since it was first produced in the ancient laboratories in Haarlem, Holland. It acts directly on the kidneys and bladder and gives relief at once, or your money will be refunded. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules are imported direct from Holland, and can be had at any drug store. Prices, 25c, 50c and $1.00. Accept no substitute.

PENSIONS ARE CONSIDERED

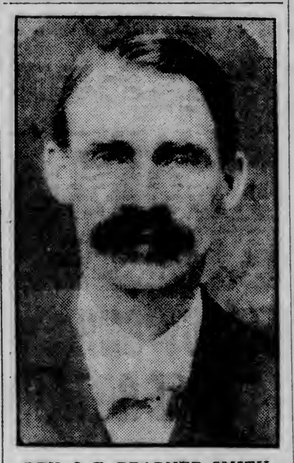

Matter Discussed By Methodist Board at Frisco Exposition.

Addresses By Rev. John T. Brabner Smith and Others.

San Francisco, July 21.—This was church pension congress day at the exposition. The meeting was held under the auspices of the board of conference claimants of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Pensions for retired ministers and adequate care of the widows and dependent orphans of deceased preachers were discussed by representative leaders of the various churches. Fifty million dollars for retired preachers is the slogan of the churches. The Methodist, Presbyterian and Episcopal churches will attempt to raise $10,000,000 each, and the Baptist, Disciples, Congregational and the other large denominations also are engaged in raising pension funds.

Among the speakers on the program were the Rev. William Hiram Foulkes, D. D., general secretary of the Presbyterian ministerial and sustentation fund, Philadelphia, Pa.; Bishop William Ford Nicols, D. D., Episcopal bishop of California, or his official representative, Bishop Edwin

REV. J. T. BRABNER SMITH.

Holt Hughes of the Methodist Episcopal church of San Francisco; Bishop R. J. Cooke of Portland, Or.; Dr. F. T. Keeney, First church, Syracuse, N. Y.; Editor F. M. Larkin, California Christian Advocate; Dr. J. W. Van Cleve, Decatur, Ill., vice president board of conference claimants of the Methodist Episcopal church; Dr. E. C. Clemans, Minneapolis; Dr. J. B. Hingeley, Chicago, secretary board of conference claimants; Rev. John T. Brabner Smith, editor of the Veteran Preacher, Chicago, Ill., and representatives of the Baptist, Congregational, Disciples and other churches. Excerpts from the addresses of some of the speakers follow:

Practical Christianity.

Rev. John T. Brabner Smith of Chicago said:

"Statistics reveal that there is more of the spirit of Christ and more practical Christianity in the business world than in the Christian church. The church has long neglected not only the worn-ont preachers, but the widows and dependent orphans of deceased preachers."

Rev. William Hiram Foulkes, D. D., general secretary of the board of ministerial relief and sustentation of the Presbyterian church, aid:

"The church does not need the approval of the world, but it cannot afford to lose the respect of the world. What do men like Henry Ford and many others thing of the church of Jesus Christ when the latter is staggered by $10,000,000 for the ministerial fund, when they themselves spell their obligations in terms of millions?"

Worthy of Support.

Chaplain E. C. Clemans, Third regiment, M. N. G., Minneapolis, Minn., said:

"They are worthy of a 'comfortable support.' They plowed the furrow, sowed the seed and the church is reaping today the harvest. Parsonages, churches, hospitals, colleges are the results of their labors. Material riches have been added to the church but best of all spiritual riches have been added. Their greatest work was in leading men and women and children to Christ. Because they have led people to Christ, shepherded the living, comforted the mourning, buried the dead, helped the needy, they are worthy of a 'comfortable support.'"

Rev. J. W. Van Cleve, D. D., Decatur, Ill., vice president board of conference claimants of the Methodist Episcopal church, said:

"The support of the minister must be removed from the market basis to the basis of military service, in which the ideas of loyalty and sacrifice are more conspicuous than those of employment and wages. The minister should have a position of separateness and honor like that of an officer in the regular army."

FEARED ELEVEN HAVE LOST LIVES

Canoe in Which Laborers Started for Fields Found Capsized.

Lima, Ohio, July 21.—Reports from Kenton say that eleven Kentucky farm laborers in the onion fields embarked in a canoe during high water and attempted to escape. The canoe was later found capsized. It is feared all eleven drowned.

The marshes are still under water, although the river is in its channel. The water will not drain and will have to dry off. Sanitary conditions are appalling. Around Lima conditions are nearly normal, although continued heavy rains yesterday and last night made residents of the lowlands fearful of another flood.

Farmers are still unable to get into their fields.

Relief Planned.

Columbus, Ohio, July 21.—Relief for hundreds of persons marooned and destitute in the Hardin county marsh lands was planned today by Governor Willis and Adjt.-Gen. Hough, acting in conjunction with county officers at Kenton.

Assistant Adjt.-Gen. E. S. Bryant, who visited the flooded district, reported today that the food supply of those marooned in the vicinity of Kenton was practically exhausted.

Arrangements were concluded today to remove those in peril and to send food to others.

Thousands of acres of marsh lands in Hardin and Allen counties are devoted to raising onions, potatoes and hemp.

THREE INSANE MEN ESCAPE AT WAUPUN

Dangerous Criminals Get Away From the State Prison.

Waupun, Wis., July 21.—Three inmates of the department for the criminal insane at the state prison, Waupun, escaped early today after knocking down and binding the night attendant and the night supervisor and locking them in a room. The men who escaped are James McAllees, Milwaukee, charged with murder in the third degree; Thomas Hallard, Princeton, Wis., charged with assault with intent to kill, and Oscar Sherry of Fond du Lac, charged with burglary.

Prison authorities say the three are dangerous criminals.

Former Brainerdite Dies.

Brainerd, Minn., July 21.—John Murray, former resident of Brainerd, died in Seattle, Wash., on Sunday evening from the infirmities of old age. He conducted a saloon here at one time, where Iver Holden is now located. From Brainerd he went to Victoria, B. C., and then to Seattle. He was an old soldier with an extended acquaintance.

Mr. Miller was born in Volga, S. D., came to Superior when but 3 months old, and then was brought to Duluth three years later by his parents.

He was at first employed in the county auditor's office, and on Jan. 2, 1911, went to the Bradstreet agency. He was made city reporter, then chief clerk, and finally superintendent on Nov. 1, 1914. On March 15, 1915, he was forced to resign his position because of his illness.

A Full Measure of Health is the reward of those who live right and eat right.

And as fresh air, exercise, and good food are the principal factors, it is important that food be selected which contains the essential nutritive elements in well-balanced, easily digestible form.

In making the famous wheat and barley food,

Grape=Nuts

the malting of the barley brings out the diastase (the digestive element) while the long 20-hour baking breaks down the starch cells of the grains. Thus Grape-Nuts does not tax the digestion, but actually assists in the assimilation of other foods.

WOULD EQUALIZE BURDEN OF TAXES

Member of North Dakota Tax Commission Seeks Discrepancies.

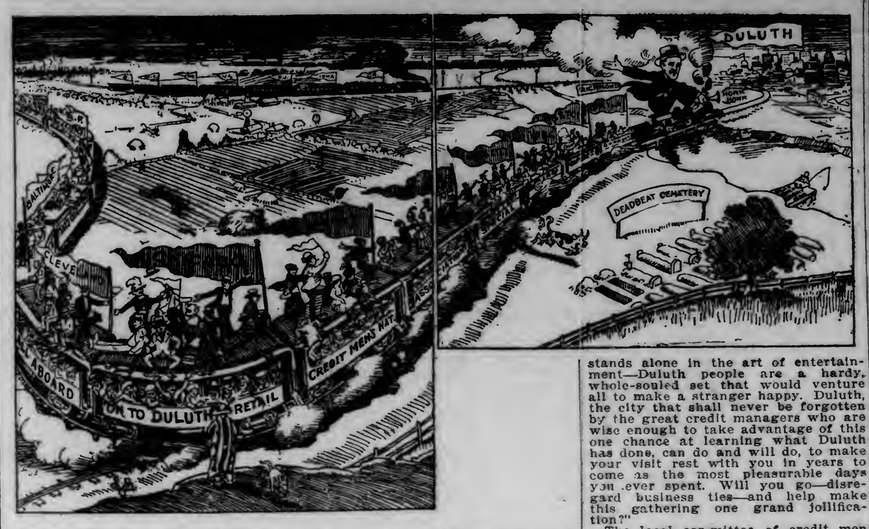

Grand Forks, N. D., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—More equitable distribution of the burden of taxation is the object that H. H. Steele of Bismarck, former state senator and now a member of the state tax commission, is seeking through the prosecution of an interesting and thorough campaign now under way.

Mr. Steele is here investigating Grand Forks county real estate values. He has already visited eight or nine other counties, scattered over the state, and has gathered sufficient data to become satisfied that there is ground for much reform in the matter of land taxation.

While Mr. Steele's investigation is not yet complete enough to determine the exact difference in taxation in various sections, as related to the true value of property, he has sufficient information to show that there is something radically wrong.

Land in some counties, it is being shown, is being assessed on a basis of as low as 12 to 15 per cent of the actual value, while in other counties the land is assessed as high as 33 per cent. The highest valuations, compared to actual valuation, are found in the western section of the state.

HERE IS THE WAY THE NATIONAL CREDIT MEN ARE ADVERTISING THEIR DULUTH CONVENTION

H. B. Richmond of Los Angeles, secretary of the Retail Credit Men's National association, is pronounced a "live one" by George Fairley of Duluth. The association is getting ready to hold its annual convention in Duluth on Aug. 18, 19 and 20—that is, Mr. Richmond is getting them ready; and he has just issued a special edition of the Credit World, official organ of the association, in which he urges a full attendance at Duluth, and not only that, but insists that each member bring at least one more new member along. The special edition of the World is not a large one, but every sentence that Mr. Richmond has written in it has the "punch" that is said to be characteristic of him, and which, it is claimed, has obtained big results for the association.

The cut here reproduced is from that edition and a part of the edition is devoted to one of the most complimentary notices that Duluth has yet received. It follows:

"Duluth calls us. All Duluth stands with outstretched arms extending a hearty welcome to be her guests at the national gathering of the Retail Credit Men's National association, Aug. 18, 19 and 20. Duluth is the one city in this great universe that is a past master in hospitality—Duluth stands alone in the art of entertainment—Duluth people are a hardy, whole-souled set that would venture all to make a stranger happy. Duluth, the city that shall never be forgotten by the great credit managers who are wise enough to take advantage of this one chance at learning what Duluth has done, can do and will do, to make your visit rest with you in years to come as the most pleasurable days you ever spent. Will you go—disregard business ties—and help make this gathering one grand jollification?"

The local committee of credit men will meet this week and prepare the local program. Most of it is outlined already, but at the meeting to be held the final plans will be made and the program will be ready for announcement.

The committee has much to arrange for in the way of entertainment, for not only is the bunch that will represent the association already mentioned going to be here, but on the previous three days the National Association of Credit Agencies will hold its annual convention, so the Duluth credit men have six solid days of it and a large crowd to take care of. The convention will be one of the largest to take place here this year.

PAVING BEST AD FOR CITY

Property Owners Urged to Boost and Give Financial Aid.

Improvement Necessary in Attaining Best Results, Says Jensen.

"Until the property owners thoroughly realize the importance of paved streets and are willing to go into their pockets to pay their share of the cost of such improvements, the West end and West Duluth will not attain their best results as residence or business communities," said George M. Jensen, secretary of the West End Commercial club, this morning. Mr. Jensen is advocating a more liberal extension of paving throughout the West end and lays blame on the city in general and its officials for not pushing such improvements to a greater extent.

"It is paved streets that advertise a city more than anything else," said Mr. Jensen. "For many years the entire city has been crying out for the need of paving on either Third street or Oneota street in order to provide one paved thoroughfare between Duluth and the western suburbs. The project seems at present to be just as far away as ever.

"It is short-sightedness on the part of the property owner to oppose paving or even refuse to pay the cost of building a good street. Every lot, where it is not held at exorbitant prices, will benefit by the improvement. Of course, there are some lots on Third street whose value could not be greatly increased by paving, because right now the owners are holding them at prices that are far higher than their value.

"The property owner should at least have civic pride enough to wish the best kind of paving and to have the improvement made as soon as possible. With the amendment to the city charter adopted two years ago, it is now no longer a hardship to pay for this improvement, the property owners being given an opportunity to pay for the work in four installments.

"It is to be hoped that civic bodies, the city officials and property owners on Third street will at least get together on a working basis and pave this thoroughfare."

MASONS ARRANGE FOR BIG PICNIC

Trinity Lodge Will Hold Annual Outing on July 28.

Trinity lodge No. 282, A. F. & A. M., will hold its second annual picnic at Fairmont park on Wednesday, July 28. Plans for an entertainment for every member of the lodge and his family are now being made by a committee.

Arrangements will be made for special cars to take the crowd to the picnic grounds. These will leave the Woodman hall, Twenty-first avenue west and First street, at 1:30 p. m. All members who intend going to the affair will be requested to be at the hall before that time.

The refreshments committee is arranging to disburse free to all members and their families, watermelons, lemonade, crackerjack, peanuts and coffee. Other food will be carried in baskets.

The sports committee expects to have arranged a good list of amusements. If possible a baseball game will be arranged. Members of the lodge say they do not care to challenge teams from uptown lodges owing to their having been winners in the indoor league last winter, but they are willing to accept any challenge from them.

Races, contests for women, and swimming at Indian Point will be some of the features of the day. All resident and sojourning Masons and their families are invited to attend. Dancing will be held in the pavilion from 8:30 to 11:30 o'clock.

TEACHERS TO GO TO SCHOOL

Summer Instruction for Rural Pedagogs Will Begin Next Monday.

Summer school for the teachers of the rural schools of the county will open Monday at the Duluth Central high school building for a six weeks' session. It is expected that about 150 teachers will enroll.

Special lectures will be held on various topics connected with rural school work. During the first week the subject of hot noon-day lunches for children who live too far away from school to go home for their meals will be taken up for discussion by Miss Georgina Lomen of the Winona normal school.

The subject of "Boys' and Girls' Clubs in the Country Schools" will be handled by T. A. Erickson, leader of this work in the state schools. It is also planned to give a series of lectures on sanitation and health in rural schools.

Instruction Staff.

The staff of lecturers and instructors will include the following: Supt. J. E. Lunn of Biwabik, director; Mrs. M. D. Holmes, language and reading; Miss Lillian Noonan, penmanship; Miss Anna L. Plapp of the Eveleth high school, industrial work; Miss Martha O'Connor of the Gilbert high school, arithmetic.

In outlining the object of the summer school course, N. A. Young, superintendent of the St. Louis county schools, had the following to say:

"The purpose of the summer session is not so much a course in general pedagogy as a means of familiarizing the prospective teachers with the special methods employed in St. Louis county.

"We shall touch on the various subjects taken up, of course, but the main idea is to accustom the teachers to the books in use, the manner of making reports, conducting examinations and things of that nature. It corresponds to the teachers' meetings held frequently in cities but can be held only once a year because of the impossibility of getting the teachers together more often."

COMPANY CAN CONTROL SALE OF ITS PRODUCT

New York, July 21.—Judge Charles M. Hough in Federal court here yesterday refused to grant an injunction against the Cream of Wheat company, which was charged in proceedings instituted by the Atlantic & Pacific Tea company of operating in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law and the Clayton commodity act.

The tea company, it was charged, sold the Cream of Wheat cereal at a price lower than the other retailers could afford to sell; in fact, it is alleged, sold at a loss. The Cream of Wheat company then refused to sell the tea company and suit was begun.

In his decision Judge Hough said the cereal was not a necessity, "and its continued existence depends upon the defendant's ability to control the marketing of its own product." The doing of what the plaintiff wished would take from every groceryman near a store which sold the cereal below cost the last incentive to buy the product, the court said, and added that "collectively such grocery keepers are more important to the public and the defendant, than is this plaintiff."

TESTING EFFECT OF MODERN TORPEDO

Naval Officers Use Steel Caisson as Target for Projectiles.

Norfolk, Va., July 21.—Naval officers made an experiment here yesterday to determine the effect of the explosion of a modern submarine torpedo against the hull of a battleship. They used a steel caisson built for the purpose and an explosive charge equivalent in power to an ordinary torpedo.

While no official comment was made, the disastrous effect of the test upon the caisson was obvious, demonstrating, according to witnesses, that even the structure of the latest dreadnaught, with its inner hulls, is not proof against the torpedo menace.

The test took place in Elizabeth river, not far from the Norfolk navy yard, where the German commerce raiders Kronprinz Wilhelm and Prinz Eitel Friedrich are interned. Lieutenant Commander De Frees, Lieut. Schuyler and Lieut. Smith were in charge.

Washington, July 21.—The test at Norfolk yesterday was one of a series being conducted by the navy department preliminary to the completion of plans for the next battleships to be built. After the caissons have been smashed by explosives reports upon their condition are sent to the department, where construction experts are trying to develop a type of hull that will withstand such attacks. These reports will not be made public.

WHITE TROUSERS FOR REGATTA DAY

Duluthians Urged to Don Flannels Friday and Saturday.

Make the regatta days "white flannel" days.

That is the suggestion of one of the officers of the Duluth Boat club, and it is likely to be carried out by boat club members at least.

Duluth does not get many opportunities to don "flannels," but the white trousers and white coats, if they are available, will add much to the festive air of the city, it is argued. Every Duluthian who boasts a pair of flannel trousers or a pair of "ducks" is urged to have them cleaned and pressed for Friday and Saturday, and to wear them all day, provided the weather man conducts himself in a reasonable manner.

WANTS DEPARTMENT TO BE MORE MODERN

Farrell Would Purchase Motor Truck and Other Equipment.

"I want the public works department to make a decent showing, and I will run the risk of criticism, if I can give it some much-needed equipment," said Works Commissioner Farrell yesterday.

His remark came at the end of a short discussion regarding the proposed purchase of a motor truck and other apparatus, including testing machinery for a laboratory to be installed at the old armory, Second avenue east and First street.

"Duluthians point to other cities of this size and remark on how much better they do in public improvements," said the commissioner, "but they forget that these cities have modern equipment which Duluth has not.

"In order to conduct a public works division effectively, modern and complete apparatus is needed and that is what I propose to provide, even if I'm labeled a squanderer in consequence."

The purchase of a motor truck by the works division recently was indorsed by the Duluth Automobile club, members taking the position that such a machine would facilitate street work.

Considerable saving could be effected by the truck, according to Mr. Farrell, who says that much time now is lost in delivering material to crews.

STARS FALL AT CLEVELAND LINKS

Cleveland, Ohio, July 21.—When the smoke of battle had cleared away late yesterday afternoon on the Mayfield golf course, several bright stars of the western field had fallen, among them being H. K. B. Davis of San Francisco, Panama-Pacific champion; Mason Phelps, Chicago, former Western champion, and E. M. Byers, Pittsburgh, former national champion. Phelps and Davis failed to qualify and Byers was defeated in the first round of match play by Ned Sawyer of Chicago, 5 to 4.

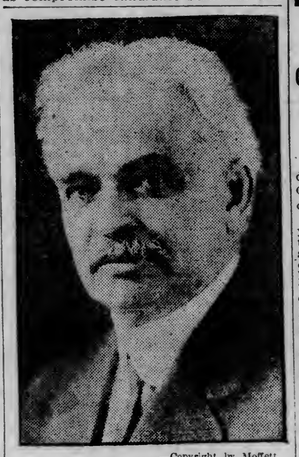

It was a history-making day, several thrills being furnished the large gallery in upsets and low scores. W. C. Fownes, who made the course in 72 in the last eighteen holes of the qualifying round, set a record for the Mayfield course as it stands today. The former record was 71 held by George Bole of Cleveland, but the tees recently were moved back, increasing the par from 72 to 73. Fownes was one stroke above Paul Hunter of Chicago, who won the 1915 medalist honors with 150 for the thirty-six holes.

Besides the final eighteen holes of the qualifying round yesterday, the first round in match play was staged. While there are a few dark horses in the sixteen contestants left, it is a classy field, and one from which some great golf is expected in the remaining days of the tournament.

ESCAPES FROM FARM.

Police Unable to Locate Albert Hagen, Wanted as Fugitive.

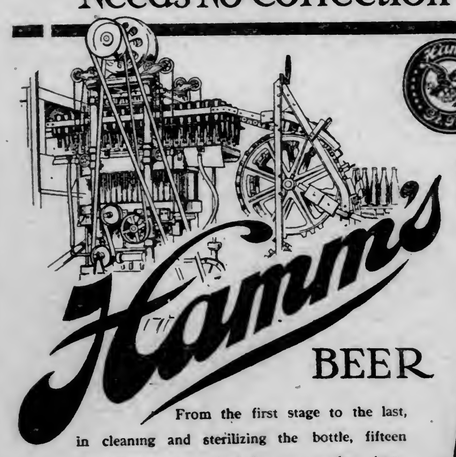

Efforts on the part of the Duluth police to locate Albert Hagen, 28, who escaped from the work farm yesterday afternoon, met with no success today. Hagen was sentenced on June 29 last by Judge Fesler to a term of six months at the county farm. He was arrested on June 1, 1915, charged with having burglarized a warehouse belonging to S. Goldish, fish merchant. He was caught in the act of peddling the fish. When brought before the court, Mason M. Forbes, first assistant county attorney, consented to accept a plea of guilty to a grand larceny charge.

Hagen admitted to the court that he had been sentenced to the Red Wing training school back in 1903. While on parole from that institution in 1905 he was mixed up in the larceny of a quantity of silk from the Silberstein-Bondy store. He was taken back to Red Wing and later transferred to the St. Cloud state reformatory.

THREATENED STRIKE ENDS PEACEFULLY

Laborers at the Zenith Furnace Plant Given Wage Increase.

Labor conditions at the Zenith Furnace plant are again reported to be normal after what threatened to become a serious strike yesterday. A small increase in wages was granted, which was accepted by many of the men, the others numbering about fifty, quitting with the statement that they intended going to the harvest fields.

Supt. Fred Harris said today that there was no strike as rumored. The men made a request for an addition in pay. An increase of nearly 10 per cent was said to have been granted. Those who would not accept this increase quit voluntarily, said Mr. Harris.

"We employed about thirty-six new men this morning" he said, "and we could have had 150 if we had needed them."

The men walking out were those employed as laborers about the plant. None of the skilled laborers walked out.

BUSINESS GROWS IN ELECTRICALS

Only Western Company Shows Falling Off; Phone Contracts Cut.

A fair indication as to business conditions is afforded in the American General Electric company's statement of earnings during the last six months.

During the first two months of this year the company's earning were at the rate of $73,000,000 annually, a shrinkage of 20 per cent from the level of sales billed out during 1914. Orders, however, picked up to such an extent that the statement for the half year ended June 30 recorded incoming business at the rate of $88,000,000 annually, a gain of 20 per cent over the low figures of the first two months.

While the great bulk of this betterment came in sales of electrical apparatus, a portion of it was brought about through war orders principally for the production of parts of high explosive shells which the company is handling as a sub-contractor for other concerns holding big foreign war orders.

With the exception of Western Electric, all the American electrical companies are said to be faring well in a business way now. The reason for the falling off in business of the concern mentioned is that the American Telephone company, with which it had large contracts, has cut down its construction program for the year 35 to 40 per cent.

Fargo, N. D., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Since Chauncey M. Troyer, former chief of police of Duluth, became head of the local police department it has been a very unhealthy place for Duluth crooks.

For the third time recently Chief Troyer's knowledge of the denizens of the Duluth underworld has assisted him greatly in his work here and twice he has made captures for the Duluth officers. The latest catch was the arrest of Ed Ward, wanted in the Zenith City on a charge of forgery. Ward is in the jail here awaiting the arrival of a Duluth officer.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

STOCK SHOW VERY FINE

Display of Animals at North Dakota Fair Better Than Ever.

First Day's Racing Gives Spectators Genuine Thrills.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The North Dakota state fair, which opened yesterday, really got under way today with an exceptionally large attendance. This is Northern North Dakota day, and several special trains brought the crowds.

The North Dakota fair this year has the greatest stock show in the history of the state. The space ordinarily given over to the stock show has been nearly doubled, and the result has been the crowding of the concessions from one end of the grounds.

A feature that is most striking is found in the fact that the show is exceptionally well balanced, the dairy and beef cattle both being very much in evidence. The number of exhibitors is greater than usual, covering a wider territory.

Judging Cattle and Horses.

In the cattle and horse departments, judgings will be completed this evening, and the big event toward which stockowners are looking, is the stock parade of Friday afternoon.

The judging of the butter and cheese exhibits was under way today, and the awards will be announced tomorrow. In both departments, the contestants are more numerous than usual.

Owing to the magnitude of the Shorthorn entries, Prof. H. R. Smith of the First National bank of St. Paul, asked to have another judge appointed. Frank S. Smith of the American Shorthorn Breeders' association, was sent to the city to assist in the work. The other judges are, J. G. Haney, Grand Forks, agriculture; Edna Steedsman, Larimore, culinary; Prof. W. H. Peters, state agricultural college, horses; Prof. H. H. Kildee, Ames, Iowa, dairy cattle; William Deitrich, Crookston, sheep; Alfred Lein, Platt, S. D., swine; Mrs. John Crouch, Grand Forks, poultry.

Governor Lauds Fair.

Governor L. B. Hanna, who formally opened the fair yesterday afternoon, visited the various buildings and barns on the grounds. After a complete inspection of the fair he declared that it was the greatest exposition held in the state.

"The fair has the finest exhibits of cattle, hogs, sheep, horses and poultry ever gathered in the history of the state," he said. "The stock show is one of the greatest things I have ever seen.

"I have been over the grounds thoroughly and inspected all the exhibits, and I want to say that it is the best and biggest fair the state has ever had. The women's exhibit in the liberal arts building is particularly good and one that will have the admiration of all visitors.

"The machinery exhibits also are remarkable. They show the wonderful development that has been made in the last few years."

Solon Springs Horse Wins.

The first day's races yesterday proved exciting. The free-for-all went to Shamboy, owned by Ely Bearce of Solon Springs, Wis., with Altman of St. Paul driving. He took the event in three straight, although close pressed by Rob Roy in the last two heats.

In the 2:12 pace, after King Dillard, owned by J. Benchi of New Ulm, Minn., had captured the first two heats, George W. Newton was sent across for the first in the next three heats.

Good time was made, considering the fact that the track has been subject to almost constant rains.

BRAVES DEATH AND FORFEITS HIS LIFE

North Dakotan Persists in Fording Little Missouri When Warned.

Marmarth, N. D., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Peter Anderson, employed on the C. A. Brown farm near here, was drowned in the Little Missouri river here when he attempted to ford the stream. The river is very high from the recent rains and to those who attempted to prevent his crossing Anderson said that he would ford the river or drown.

He had been to town and had been drinking and started home at about 11 o'clock at night. About two-thirds of the way across the stream his horse gave out and carried his rider down stream where the man was knocked off the horse by a cable.

Owing to the high stage of the water the body has not been recovered.

LOST IN BARLEY FIELD.

Child Away From Home Long Time Near Streeter, N. D.

Street, N. D., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—A young child of Mr. and Mrs. V. Ruschofh, living near here, was lost in a field of barley for nearly a whole day and a whole night.

While the family were working in a field near their home the child strayed away and was not missed until noon. Search was started then and with the assistance of neighbors was kept up throughout the afternoon and night. In the morning twenty men were secured from Streeter and late in the morning the child was found asleep in a field of barley two miles from home. Aside from being badly bitten by mosquitoes the little one was otherwise unharmed.

WANTED FOR ARSON.

North Dakotan Alleged to Have Threatened to Burn Stanley Stable.

Stanley, N. D., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—A reward of $200 has been offered here for the arrest of James Baker, suspected of having fired the North Side livery and feed stable which was burned to the ground with a loss of about $1,000.

The authorities state that they have been informed that Baker had made threats to burn the building and when the fire was discovered at 3 o'clock in the morning he had disappeared. The last seen of him was at the George Olson farm near here, where he ate breakfast.

WILL EMPLOY 350.

Upper Peninsula Lumber Concern to Work Large Force.

Marquette, Mich., July 21.—The impetus given to the operations of the lumbering department of the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company by the operation of the North Marquette furnace will greatly relieve labor conditions along the line of the Southeastern railway, which have been bad for over a year past, the period of the practical suspension of cordwood cutting.

George W. Ackerman, the general superintendent of the lumbering department, says that some 350 men will shortly be put at work in the district of which Rumely is the headquarters, and that they will be assured of employment through the fall and winter. Some 200 men will be employed in the camps cutting cordwood, and an additional 200, or thereabouts, in handling and hauling it. This force, supplementary to the 200 or more men employed at the furnace, means a force of about 600 men dependent on the operation of the Marquette plant.

WOOL AVERAGES 25 CENTS.

Wool Growers Around Bowman, N. D., Getting Good Prices.

Bowman, N. D., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—According to the estimate of experts the annual wool shipment out of this place will fall 25,000 pounds less than last year, the old sheep raisers going out of the business and shipments being made from other points where there are storage and railroad facilities that are handier to the sheep ranches.

Up to the present there have been 350,000 pounds of wool marketed here and at the present time all the wool in the warehouses having been sold with the exception of between 50,000 and 60,000 pounds. This wool has brought on an average of 25 cents, some choice cuts selling for as high as 26½ cents and 27½ cents, higher prices than received in years.

Last year the total shipment of wool amounted to 500,000 pounds.

FARGO PROFESSOR IS ORDAINED AS MINISTER

Fargo, N. D., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Prof. A. E. Fish of Fargo college, was today ordained a minister in the Congregational church at Marion, N. D. Professor Fish has been a member of the Fargo college faculty for the past two years but is giving up his teaching career to enter the ministry. He will substitute at the Marion church during the summer.

VERY FINE CROPS IN KARLSTAD SECTION

Karstad, Minn., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Crops around here are in fine condition. The fields never looked so universally good and really could not look any better. The grain stands high, thick and clean, not in spots, but throughout the whole farming territory tributary to Karstad. The incessant rains have not in any way hurt the grain, as the country is now pretty well drained, but no haying has yet been done, owing to too much moisture.

FARGO BURGLARY.

Fargo, N. D., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The home of Mrs. F. E. Dibley, 331 Eighth avenue south, was entered by burglars Monday night and over $400 in money and jewelry taken. There were also two attempts made that night to enter the J. E. Johnson home on Eleventh avenue north, but the thieves were frightened away.

DODGES STREET CAR; IS KILLED BY AUTO

Minneapolis, Minn., July 21.—Darting from the path of a street car into that of an automobile, Sophia, 11-year-old daughter of John Emro, was fatally injured at Washington and Twenty-first avenues south Monday night. SOME GREAT OLD FIGHTERS HAVE NEVER SEEN THE RING

Colie Munro Tells of Backwoodsman Whom He Believed Would Have Been the Greatest Heavyweight the World Has Ever Seen; Connie Mack After College Players.

BY BRUCE.

SOME one in the crowd bent eagerly forward and put the question. We had all been talking of fighters—the kind, understand, that fight within the four walls of the hempen ropes. "Have there been as great fighters outside of the ring as inside?" asked the bucko on the outside fringe of the group.

In answer to this question, which has oftimes been brought up, let us repeat a story that Colie Munro of Chisholm was telling the other day coming down on the train.

"My father ran a lumber mill over in Wisconsin in the early lumbering days," began Munro. "One day there came to the mill two chaps by the name of O'Connell. Both were fine looking, clean cut fellows. One in particular took father's fancy. He must have stood six feet five, had a trim waist, was small at the hips, but possessed wonderful shoulders, a neck that came up to his ears, and arms that tapered and yet contained the red meat of muscle.

"This fellow could do the work of two ordinary men. Around the camp was a chap named McLeod, who was awfully handy with the gloves. All of the gang was gathered in the bunk house one evening, most of them playing cards, reading, or doing some odd jobs. McLeod wanted to box. It seemed that he was about the only one who did. Mac asked all of the boys and they all in turn refused. Finally he got down to this tall O'Connell chap.

"'Come on and box, kid,' teased McLeod. In a slow, drawling voice, intoned with deliberateness, this tall and lanky Cornishman consented, declaring he would box if none of the other boys would take McLeod on.

"Now this McLeod was pretty handy and generally was considered about the best in that section of the country with the gloves. McLeod and the youngster put up their hands and Mac couldn't lay a glove on this tall chap.

"Suddenly McLeod pulled off his gloves and started on a run for the mill. 'Come over here, Bill,' he yelled at my father; 'come over here, there's a wonder here I want you to see.'

"Now father weighed 210 pounds and was considered as good as anything that walked on two legs in that section of Wisconsin. Let me say that there was some pretty good men in that section, too.

"Well father put on the gloves and the boys gave him the laugh when this tall and gracefully moving youngster made him look like a fool. Say, this O'Connell had a left that was wonderful, and he would slip a lead and hook like a champion.

"That man was built to be champion of the world. He could stand and jump a bar nearly the height of his head. He could turn hand springs without moving out of his tracks, and he was as light on his feet as a cat and possessed the strength of a lion.

"It became noised around that part of the country that O'Connell was awfully good. One day the mill gang went to town, and as usual on such occasions, congregated in a saloon. The bully of that part of the country, one of those monstrous men, with hairy arms and chest, and a roar like that of a bull, stepped up to young O'Connell and challenged him to battle.

"'But I don't want no trouble,' said O'Connell in that slow, drawling way of his.

"'It is usual down in this country for the best men to meet,' said the bully. 'Now I heard that you was pretty good and right here I am to settle who is the best man.'

"O'Connell never changed the smiling, good natured expression that was habitually his. He acted as if the notorious fighter and bully had pleasantly asked him to have a drink.

"'If we've got to fight, then we might as well have it over,' said O'Connell. 'Let's finish her up.'

"The bully peeled off his coat and stripped down. O'Connell didn't even take off his coat. They squared off, the champion gang fighter rushed at young O'Connell with a bull-like movement. Father and some of the boys have gone over the story of this fight time and time again to me. Remember that gang fighter was considered one of the greatest fighters of those old days; days when men fought their way up to supremacy in the affairs of the great woods. It was over so quick that those rough men stood dazed, awe struck by it all.

"O'Connell sidestepped and then shot a left at the jaw of this 220-pound giant of the woods. The feet of the rushing giant shot up, his huge body shot back and his head struck the floor. I don't remember how long it required to bring him to, but some of those rough fellows were worried, and it required quite a bit to worry them.

"What ever became of O'Connell? We never did find out. He drifted away and we never got trace of him. A lovable, even tempered giant, with those wonderful sloping shoulders and supple arms with muscles of the fiber of steel, with a remarkable knowledge of boxing that he had learned from his Cornish father, and with suppleness and agility that was almost miraculous and with a courage that never seemed even flurried. I have often wondered if this young giant of the Wisconsin woods would not have made the greatest heavyweight the world has ever known."

Educate Your Boy, Dad.

CAN the average man step from the portals of college into a $5,000 a year job? What is that unseemly roar from without? It is a million persons yelling no.

A young man that graduated from Yale college this spring was offered a salary of $5,000 per annum the very day he looked at his diploma to see whether it wasn't a calendar.

Quick, what's his name. Reilly—and he played third base on the Yale baseball team and Uncle Connie Mack was the employer who made the bid.

This Reilly led all of the college batters and played some grand little fielding game at the far corner. Always wanting to do what he can to assist the young college man in search of work. Cornellius McGillicuddy offered to dig down to the extent of the aforementioned five thou, which, it might be stated in passing, in some dig for Uncle Connie.

Yes, go on—and the young man hurried over to Philadelphia without taking time to visit the young lady? He did not! Reilly spurned the offer of Mack and declared that he was going into business.

Sure, it's a darn shame to spoil the story in this manner, but what are you going to do? Reilly refused to play. Home-run Baker is still a problem.

Speaking a little more of Connie Mack. Recently he said that he had built three pennant winning machines during his career, and that he would build another one, greater than any of its predecessors.

Quite a statement for the taciturn tactician of pennant ville.

The Old English Idea.

IN the times of Charles the Second, the Tudors and good Queen Bess a gentleman was one who did not work. Then listen to the recrudescence of the idea.

Tony Puck is getting up a "Gentlemen's" eight. This eight is to compete against an eight of sedate old gentlemen from St. Paul.

The other evening some practical joker slipped in a badly broken oar into the rigger of Hans Haroldson's place. Hans rowed up the course and half way down and finally caught a crab and then discovered that the oar was broken.

The chap that named that eight the "Gentlemen's" eight, did so with malicious intent.

If Hans and some of the others don't lose weight, you should know the reason why.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Pirates 6; Dodgers 2.

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 21.—After winning seventeen of the last twenty-one games played, having lost three and tied one, Brooklyn yesterday again struck a snag in the Pittsburghs, who had interrupted the winning streak by taking the first game of the double-header on Saturday. Harmon had the Brooklyns at his mercy and Pittsburgh won easily, 6 to 2.

Douglas was attacked vigorously in the first inning when triples by Collins and Wagner and a double by Hinchman netted two runs. Errors by Miller and O'Mara and three singles produced three runs in the seventh.

Getz's wild throw on Collins' grounder, Johnston's sacrifice, Hinchman's out and Wagner's hit scored another run in the ninth. A pass to O'Mara, Wheat's triple and Cutshaw's single earned Brooklyn two runs in the seventh. Myers had made a hit in twenty-three consecutive games until Harmon stopped him yesterday. Score:

Pittsburgh	2 0 0 0 0 3 0 1 —6	10	0
Brooklyn	0 0 0 0 0 0 2 0 0—2	6	4

Phillies 8; Cubs 6.

Philadelphia, July 21.—Bad pitching and fielding by Chicago in the eighth inning enabled Philadelphia to score six runs and win yesterday's game 8 to 6. For five innings the home team did not get a man to first but four hits off Lavender in the sixth produced two runs. Chicago tied the score in the seventh and took a lead of three runs in the eighth. With one out in the home team's half of the eighth Zabel, who took Lavender's place in the seventh, gave Byrne a pass and was succeeded by Pierce.

An error and a pass filled the bases and Cheney went in to pitch. Cravath's single and Niehoff's double scored four runs and Cheney's wild throw on Whitted's bunt and Cheney's two wild pitches sent in two more. Demaree succeeded Rixey in the ninth and yielded one run. Saier injured a ligament in his right leg in scoring on a double steal in the seventh and was taken to a hospital. Score:

Chicago	1 0 0 0 0 0 1 3 1—6	10	2
Philadelphia	0 0 0 0 0 2 0 6 x—8	6	0

Batteries—Lavender, Zabel, Pierce, Cheney and Bresnahan; Rixey and Burns.

Cardinals 3; Giants 1.

New York, July 21.—After losing six straight games St. Louis rallied yesterday and won from New York 3 to 1. Griner held New York to three scattered singles until the ninth inning, when he weakened. The Giants filled the bases with none out, but Sallee retired the side with only one run scored against him. Long won the game for St. Louis with a home run drive in the sixth inning. It followed Butler's single and Merkle's error on Dolan's sacrifice bunt. Score:

St. Louis	0 0 0 0 0 3 0 0 0—3	9	1

Braves 6; Reds 2.

Boston, Mass., July 21.—Boston fell on Benton in the second inning yesterday and scored five runs on three singles, a triple and two bases on balls, winning over Cincinnati 6 to 2. McKenery, formerly of the Northwestern league, made his first appearance in the box for the visitors and made a favorable impression. Score:

Boston	0 5 0 0 0 0 1 0 x—6	9	0

Batteries—Benton, McKenery and Wingo; Ragan, Hughes and Gowdy.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Red Sox 3; White Sox 0.

Chicago, July 21.—Ernest Shore yesterday held Chicago to two hits, one a scratch, and Boston shut out the locals 3 to 0. The defeat with Detroit's victory relegated the locals to third place in the pennant race. Boston's two runs in the second came when E. Scott singled, and after two men were out Shore lined to left. Murphy misjudged the ball and it went for a double. Hooper followed with another double to right. Their other run was made in the fifth on singles by Speaker and Gardner, with a batter hit by a pitched ball coming between. Russell held the visitors down after the sixth inning. Manager Rowland received word from President Johnson that he had been indefinitely suspended as a result of a dispute with Umpire O'Loughlin at the close of Monday's game. Score:

Boston	0 2 0 0 1 0 0 0 0—3	10	1

Tigers in Second Place.

Detroit, Mich., July 21.—Detroit made it four straight from Philadelphia yesterday, winning a hard-fought game 6 to 5. In the ninth inning Steen weakened and filled the bases after two were out and one run had scored. Dauss came to the rescue, and on his first delivery pitched a low ball that bounded off Stanage's glove and landed a few feet in front of the plate. Kopf tried to score, but Dauss recovered the ball and tagged him out. A great stop by Bush in the ninth averted a tie score. The victory puts Detroit in second place. Score:

Philadelphia	1 0 0 1 0 1 0 1 1—5	8	1
Detroit	0 2 0 0 2 1 0 1 x—6	7	3

Batteries — Knowlson and Lapp; Steen, Dauss and Stannage.

Indians Break Losing Streak.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 21.—Cleveland defeated Washington 5 to 4 in ten innings yesterday, thus breaking its losing streak. Walker outpitched Shaw, but errors let Washington take the lead in the seventh. Cleveland tied in the ninth and won in the tenth on Wambsganss' single and O'Neill's double. Left Fielder Graney was carried from the field in the first inning, believed to have fractured his right ankle. Score:

Cleveland	1 0 2 0 0 0 0 0 1 1—6	14	3
Washington	0 0 0 2 0 0 0 2 0 0—4	6	2

Browns 3; Yankees 2.

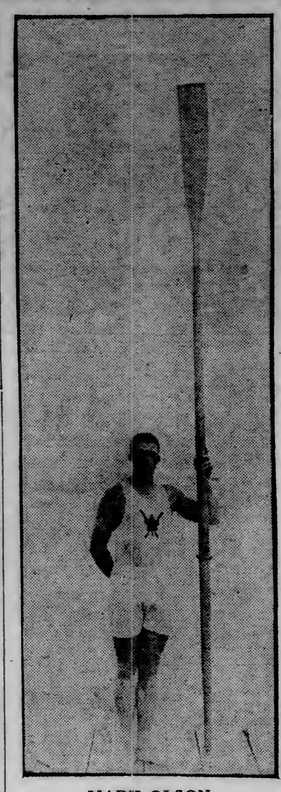

St. Louis, Mo., July 21.—By a hitting rally in the ninth, St. Louis took yesterday's game from New York 3 to 2 and split honors in the four-game series, Sisler started for the locals, but after hitting Cook and forcing him in by three consecutive passes, was replaced by Wellman.

St. Louis scored two in the first on a base on balls, singles by Austin and Pratt, a sacrifice fly and Nunamaker's error. In the fifth Peckinpaugh singled, stole second and tied the score on Maisel's single. Singles by Walsh, Agnew and Wellman filled the bases for St. Louis in the ninth. Then Shotten hit to second, and while Baumann threw him out at first, Walsh brought in the winning run. Score:

St. Louis, Mo., July 21.—A pitchers' duel between Plank and Bender in which neither walked a man, and which the home team won, 4 to 1, was the treat given St. Louis yesterday in a double-header which the locals divided with Baltimore. In the first game Plank held Baltimore hitless until the seventh inning, when Knabe doubled and on Duncan's single and Tobin's fumble brought in the run which saved Baltimore from a shutout. In the second game Davenport and Crandall opposed Conley and

FAMOUS THOMAS LIPTON TROPHY WILL BE DEFENDED BY DULUTH CREWS

The $5,000 Cup Donated By English Sportsman Will Be Competed for on Point System the Same as Last Year—"Con" Riley Is Coming to the Regatta—Duluth Crews in Their Final Hard Workout for Big Races.

BY BRUCE.

By the time this article appears in the regular edition of The Herald the members of the Minnesota Boat club's rowing squad will in all probability be quartered at the Duluth Boat club. Headed by James Wray, one of the most famous coaches in the United States, the St. Paul oarsmen were due to arrive here this afternoon.

Members of the Illinois Valley Boat and Canoe club, which is to all intents and purposes the Peoria club, and members of the rowing squad of the Grand Rapids Boat and Canoe club will arrive tomorrow, while the Lincoln Park contingent is due to roll in early Friday morning.

The draw of the various crews for starting positions will be made either this afternoon or evening. St. Paul will be represented by one of its officers, while the outside club will be represented by Duluth officials.

It was stated definitely today that the Sir Thomas Lipton $5,000 trophy would be competed for. This statement comes from an authoritative source and is given in opposition to several contrary statements.

The Sir Thomas Lipton cup will be competed for on the point basis. The junior single event first place will count 10 points, the double 15, the junior and bantam fours 20 points each and the junior eight race 30 points. The scoring of points in the senior events will advance 25 per cent; for instance, the senior single win will count 12.5 points and the first place in the senior eight event will count the winning crew 37.5 points.

In case of four or more starters in any event, second place will count 40 per cent of the points counted for first; third, 20 per cent of first. If three starters are in the race, second place will score 40 per cent of first. If but two starters are in the race, second place will count 20 per cent of first place. If but one entry is in the race the club making the entry will be entitled to score points for first place.

Duluth Won Last Year.

Along in connection with the Sir Thomas Lipton cup, one of the most famous competitive rowing trophies ever hung up in North America, let it be stated that last year was the first occasion of its offering for competition, and that it was taken from Canada to the United States by the crews of the Duluth Boat club, the local club totaling 183 points, while its nearest competitor, St. Paul, hung up 60.75 points, and Winnipeg, the nearest Canadian contender, scored a total of 55.75 points.

The cup is on exhibition at the present time in the window of the Kelley Hardware company. It was designed and manufactured by one of the most famous jewelry houses in London and is one of the most handsome athletic trophies in the length and breadth of the big world, the workmanship on it being exquisite.

Officials Are Named.

All of the officials of the big regatta were named last night. Here is the complete list:

Starter, A. W. Puck, Duluth.

Referee, Julius H. Barnes, Duluth.

Clerk of course, J. H. Trux, Duluth.

Judges at finish of course, J. D. Denege, St. Paul; Joseph P. Cronin, Grand Rapids; Elmer N. Whyte, Duluth.

Judges on boat, B. M. Peyton, Duluth; N. P. Langford, St. Paul; C. S. Riley, Winnipeg.

Timers, H. H. Peyton, Duluth; R. W. Higgins, Duluth; L. S. Stringer and G. B. Ware, St. Paul.

"Con" Riley Is Coming.

Announcement was made today that "Con" Riley, stroke of three Henley winning crews, stroke of innumerable winning crews in the Northwestern regattas, in the Canadian Henleys and at the National association, will be here to witness the regatta.

A true sportsman, a real gentleman of the old school, one of the greatest strokes that ever sat in a boat, one of the greatest judges of pace that ever timed his race, a booster and an inspiration for the rowing game, and perhaps one of the most famous club oarsmen in this whole United States, "Con" Riley's coming will be welcomed by a legion of true friends and admirers of this fine chap.

While Winnipeg, unfortunately, will send down no crews, because of deaths and injuries innumerable that have resulted from the grim conflict over the sea, the coming of Riley will serve as a sort of friendly bond between the clubs represented in the Northwestern Regatta association and the Winnipeg Rowing club, one of the greatest rowing organizations on the North American continent.

Meeting Thursday Evening.

According to the statement made today, there will be an annual meeting of the Northwestern Rowing association tomorrow evening, probably at the Spalding hotel.

Several matters will be brought up at this time. One is the competition for the Sir Lipton cup, which, it was stated yesterday, would be rowed for without question, though some officials are in favor of holding the competition over until next year, because of the fact that no Canadian clubs will be represented in the competition of this year.

Duluth in Final Workout.

Jim Ten Eyck sent his men out for their final real workout previous to the big contests of Friday and Saturday, late yesterday.

As the result of a contest between the two junior eights it looks certain now that Duluth will start but one junior eight in the junior eight contest.

Nelson's crew won by a comfortable margin; so comfortable, in fact, as to leave no doubt as to which is the faster of the two crews.

McQuade's eight will probably be cut in two, making a junior four and lapstreak four of it.

In the case of the bantam fours, there is no choice. The crews raced yesterday and the contest was so close that even Ten Eyck is undecided as to which is the faster four. Both bantam fours will be started, and no matter if a Duluth crew finishes ahead, there should be a great race between the local crews.

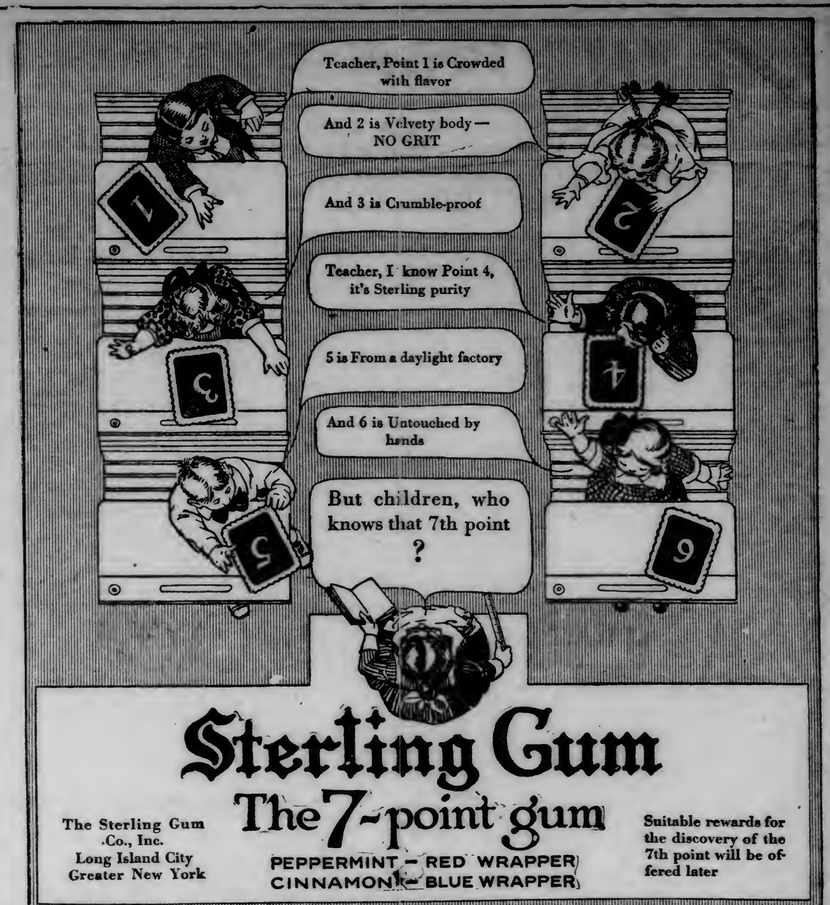

Hoover went a fast mile and then loafed home the last quarter. The Northwestern senior champion looked pretty sweet in his trial of yesterday. Big Osman will go out today and take a final crack at tapering off.

Both senior crews, the four and eight, paddled over the course, taking some starts and then settling down in the boat and reaching out for the water and putting everything on the stroke from their toes to the place where the hair starts to grow on the back of their heads.

These two crews look great and will start in the races of the two days carrying the complete confidence of local followers of rowing.

Entertainment For Visitors.

Visiting oarsmen will be royally entertained during their stay in Duluth. There will be a picnic at Spirit Lake on Sunday. On Saturday evening, following the final race of the two days' regatta, there will be dancing on the big tennis court. Lights are being installed and everything made ready for a real jubilee. Launches will be placed at the disposal of the outside rowing men, so that they will have a real good time during from the moment they land here until their train leaves.

Teams Equally Bad.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 21.—Minneapolis and Cleveland divided yesterday's double-header, the home team winning the first 14 to 6, and the visitors the second 9 to 6. Both games were marked by hard hitting, poor pitching and loose work in the field. Pitcher Bowman, who started both games for Cleveland, was taken out in the first because of wildness and compelled to leave the second because of a broken finger received by stopping a drive from Autrey. Nixon made five hits in five times up in the second game. Scores:

LARRY McLEAN OUT; OTHER PLAYER CHANGES

New York, July 21.—Larry McLean, the veteran catcher of the New York Nationals, who was serving a 60-day suspension for misconduct in St. Louis, was unconditionally released yesterday by President Hempstead.

It was stated that McLean was released so Manager McGraw could play Babbington, an outfielder of Brown university, who joined the team a few days ago, but was unable to get in the game because of the player limit. Babbington, it was announced, will replace Snodgrass in center field.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 21.—The Washington American league team yesterday released Pitcher Joe Engle to the Minneapolis American association, recalling Pitcher Harper from that team.

The New York American league club has offered $2,500 for Elmer Miller, leading outfielder of the Mobile club of the Southern league, and formerly the star outfielder of the Duluth Baseball club and of the Northern league.

This is the story that reached here today. According to further details, the Mobile club is holding out for $4,000 before consenting to part with the player who has made a great name for himself in the Southern league the present season.

Always a great outfielder from the first day he put on the spangles at Duluth, Miller has improved in his hitting to the extent where he has attracted the notice of several big league scouts.

Elmer Miller is without a doubt one of the greatest outfielders in the game today. In addition to his fielding ability the speed boy has one of the greatest whips in captivity.

"Doc" can whip the ball from out in any field and cut down a runner at the plate. He can go out or come in for a ball. He has no weakness as a great gardener, and it will please a lot of persons hereabouts to learn that he is making good down in the classy baseball company of the Southern league.

GRAND CIRCUIT'S CONTESTS CLOSE

Cleveland, Ohio, July 21.—With weather indications the best of the week and the card the most attractive thus far, race goers looked upon today's Grand Circuit program as the banner one of the week.

The program included the 2:11 trot, the 2:15 pace, the 2:09 pace and the Ohio stake for 2:09 trotters. Lou Lumine was touted to win the 2:11 trot. Rella E. seems to have the call in the 2:15 pace, Peter Scott is favored in the Ohio stake, while Fred W. Tredell and Major Ong are a toss-up in the 2:09 pace.

Boudella, the daughter of Walnut Hall, was the sensation of yesterday's program. Piloted by Tommy Murphy, she won the North Randall sweepstakes for 3-year-old trotters without effort, outclassing her field and stepping a mile in 2:07¾, which clips a quarter of a second off the local track mark for 3-year-old trotters, set a year ago by Lee Axworthy.

The 2:12 pace developed into a great duel. Judge Ormonde and Peter Farren fought it out in every heat, the former taking the verdict by winning two of the three sprints.

Lelia Patchen, thanks to the driving of Will Snow, paced Del Ray into the ground in the 2:05 pace, carrying him to breaks in three hard drives.

As had been predicted by the talent, Bud Murphy had a good thing in the 2:19 trot in Al Mack. He won in straight heats, beating the crack western mare, Loe Blossom.

Minneapolis American association, recalling Pitcher Harper from that team.

Probably 5,000 spectators were on hand for the second day's events.

Strike Settled.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., July 21.—The strike at the Algoma Steel company's plant, where 300 men walked out four days ago, has been settled and the men have returned to work. A superintendent, against whom the men had a grievance, resigned.

The Jitney Ordinance.

The jitney bus ordinance, placing all for-hire automobiles under the same regulations and requiring an annual fee of $25, had its first reading. Many aldermen favor lessening the fee to $2, as they claim the larger license will throw many jitney drivers out of business. The change will be made at the second reading of the ordinance. No auto-for-hire is to charge more than $4 per hour, while jitneys are not to charge more than 10 cents for rides within the city limits.

The bill of Edwin J. Bishop, who audited the city books, for $1,250, was referred to the finance committee. The electricians' ordinance requiring the bonding of applicants at $1,000 and a license fee of $25 annually, was given its first reading.

John E. Daley and H. E. Hagberg were granted auto-for-hire licenses, while Miss Ida O. Torseth was licensed to sell cigarets. The appointment of Alderman R. J. McGhee by district court judges to succeed Charles M. Dorway, resigned, as member of the charter commission, was accepted.

The pay of J. F. Mitchell, rock crusher inspector, was raised from $3 to $4 per day. The application of M. H. Boyle for the position of paving inspector was filed. James Pineo was granted a milk license. The street sprinkler from the Austin Manufacturing company was accepted.

William Tritchler urged the council to continue the meat investigation.

EVELETH CREAMERY IS BEING PLANNED

Idea Is to Furnish Market for Farmers Living Nearby.

Eveleth, Minn., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—A movement is on foot to establish a creamery here for the accommodation of farmers living in the district south of the city.

The first step will be to take a census of the cows in the territory tributary to the city. The Commercial club will probably take this matter up at its next meeting and ask the city to co-operate by instructing the market master to take the census. It is planned to supply the market master with blanks, representing sections of land and have each section filled out with the names of the settlers and the number of cattle.

If the census shows enough cows to support a creamery it will not be a difficult matter to have it built. A creamery would be of benefit to the city as well as to the farmers who need a market for their butterfat.

LEAVES FOR DULUTH TO SIGN CONTRACT

Hibbing, Minn., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Webb, secretary of the E. W. The contract was awarded to the local contracting company by the Duluth city commissioners and is for $41,613.11, and calls for concrete paving from Eighty-fourth avenue west to Zimmerly avenue, and is the last street improvement needed to link West Duluth to the steel plant district. The Coons company had the contract for the concrete work at Morgan park and officials have received compliments from cement experts on the soundness of the work.

ONE-LEGGED VIRGINIAN IS TRICK UNICYCLE RIDER

JOHN MACDONALD.

Virginia, Minn., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—John MacDonald, a local young man who lost a leg while playing about the cars at Bay City, Mich., is an expert bicycle rider and it is a familiar sight to see him getting about the city in winter and summer. He has learned a number of tricks with the bicycle and with a crutch.

He has given only one public performance, at a county fair in Hibbing several years ago, when he was first learning trick cycle riding. Being urged by friends, he has made application to get on the program at the state fair, but as yet has not heard from the board. If possible he will try and secure an engagement with a circuit in Iowa, which bills the county fairs there.

EVELETHIAN'S BID IS $6,000 LOWER

Way Under Hibbing Tender and Gets Eveleth Contract.

Eveleth, Minn., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Eveleth Construction company was the low bidder Tuesday afternoon for the contract for building a septic tank for the disposal of Eveleth's sewage. The bid of the construction company was approximately $6,000 under the bid of the Lawrence-McCann company of Eveleth and approximately $18,000 under the offer of Winston Bros. Co. of Hibbing.

The bids submitted were as follows: Eveleth Construction company, $34,880; Lawrence-McCann company, $40,965; Winston Bros. company, $52,848.47.

Owing to the fact that the city did not levy enough money to complete the sewage disposal plant this year only part of the contract was let. The low bidder was given the contract for the tank and sludge beds at $12,595. The remainder of the job will be let next year.

Feldman Succeeds Boyle.

The resignation of James P. Boyle as city attorney was accepted. Abe Feldman, who has been associated with Mr. Boyle, was appointed to the position. His was the only application received and the vote was unanimous. Mr. Feldman will take the position Aug. 1 when Mr. Boyle's resignation takes effect.

The liquor licenses granted J. J. Thibaut and Frank Lubancvich several months ago were canceled. The licenses were applied for but were never taken out.

The city clerk was instructed to advertise for a gasoline driven lawn mower to be used in cutting grass in the city parks and cemetery.

LACK OF LOGS HAS CLOSED TOWER MILL

Tower, Minn., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Cook & Ketcham sawmill here has closed down for the season, on account of a shortage of logs.

There was very little logging done by the company last winter, and negotiations pending for the purchase of several million feet in the vicinity did not go through as expected, consequently the company was forced to discontinue operations. It has not been officially stated whether the company would do any logging next winter, but Towerites hope they will operate on a large scale, as it means employment to most of the people living in town. The miners all make their home at the mining location of Soudan; consequently the prosperity of this town depends largely upon the operation of the sawmill.

The merchants at present are enjoying a liberal patronage from tourists who, since the weather has become more favorable, are coming on every train.

IS SUCCESSFUL FARMER IN FORBES DISTRICT

Forbes, Minn., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—T. S. Soine of the Clover Leaf farm, between Iron Junction and Forbes, is one of the successful farmers in the territory adjacent to Forbes. Mr. Soine has a fine farm, partially cleared and with good buildings.

Mr. Soine makes a specialty of poultry raising and supplies many families in Eveleth, as well as the More hospital, with fresh eggs weekly.

Mr. Soine has a sawmill on his place, which he uses each spring to saw lumber for himself and neighbors.

LODGE'S BOOKS ARE BEING AUDITED

Head Officers of Slovenic Catholic Union Busy at Ely.

Ely, Minn., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—John A. Germ, supreme president of Braddock, Pa., Michael Sunich, Calumet, Mich., Petter Spehr, Kansas City, Kan., John Kerzishnik, Burdine, Pa., John Vogrich, La Salle, Ill., and John Ausec, Cleveland, Ohio, comprising the board of trustees, arrived here Monday evening and are auditing the accounts of the South Slavonic Catholic union, a fraternal association organized in Ely in 1898 and having its head office here.

The local officers are: George L. Brozich, supreme secretary, and John Gouze, supreme treasurer, having held their respective offices practically from the time of organization.

Is in Good Shape.

The association is in excellent financial condition, having assets in the neighborhood of $160,000. The records for the first six months show a notable increase in membership. The association is composed of Slovenians only and is the leading fraternal organization among these people. Benefits paid to date since organization amount to over $1,000,000 and are composed of sick, accident and death benefits.

The affairs of the association are in the hands of subordinate lodges and officers, who number 116, with a membership of about 9,000. The volume of business arising between the head office and those subordinate societies requires the services of two assistants, namely, Leonard Slabodnik and John B. Smreaker, in connection with those of Mr. Brozich, the supreme secretary, who has office rooms in the First State bank building.

MACCABEES' GALA NIGHT

Considerable Will Be Doing at Two Harbors Gathering.

Two Harbors, Minn., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tonight will be a gala night in local Maccabee circles, as fifty candidates will be initiated. The membership campaign which has been in progress here for the past two weeks under the supervision of Deputy Great Commander Walter A. Fosdick of St. Paul, will close tonight with two important celebrations. After the initiation of the large class there will be addresses and music, followed by luncheon. Great Commander Dr. Edward H. Haas of St. Paul will speak on the progress and growth of the order and will also report on the supreme convention held recently at San Francisco, when plans were formulated for a national home for the aged and dependent members of the order. Other great camp officers will assist in the initiation and the program.

Mayor William Towl, who is a prominent Maccabee, will take an active part in the exercises.

For Saturday evening, July 31, the local Maccabees have chartered the steamer Columbia, and with their friends will enjoy a lake trip to Beaver Bay and return. Dancing will take place aboard the boat and refreshments will be served.

The local Maccabees have enjoyed a very healthy growth in this city for the past five years, having the largest membership of any fraternal organization in the city.

HAS HISTORIC RAZOR.

Evelethian Owns Old Blade Picked Up on Custer Battlefield.

Eveleth, Minn., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—A razor which has reached the discreet old age of 95 years and whose experiences include the Last Stand of Custer, is in the possession of John J. Farley, a local barber. The blade was given to Mr. Farley thirty-one years ago at Miles City, Mont., by Frank Chilson, a prospector who drifted into Miles City in 1884 with a heavy growth of beard. When Chilson was shaved he remarked that he had a razor, and, digging it from his packsack, he presented it to the barber.

The razor, which was made in 1821, he said, had been picked up on the field of the Frontier and his men made their famous fight. The razor at that time had a curious handle, horn on one side and a unique piece of carved wood on the other. Little value was placed on the tool and the handle has been lost.

KINNEY MINE STILL HEAVIEST SHIPPER

Kinney, Minn., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Kinney mine continues the heaviest shipper in this district. About sixty cars of ore are loaded from the pit at this mine daily and shipped to the Great Northern Railway company docks at Superior. About 100 men are employed at this mine, which is an underground.

One shovel is being operated in ore at the Dean mine, a state lease, which is being operated by the Todd Stambaugh company. Butler Bros. of St. Paul continue their stripping operations. They have at work on the stripping three steam shovels. This is to be one of the big open pit properties on the range when stripping is completed. It is electrically operated. Shipments from this mine as yet are not large.

HIBBING TO HEAR ABOUT FAMOUS TRIP

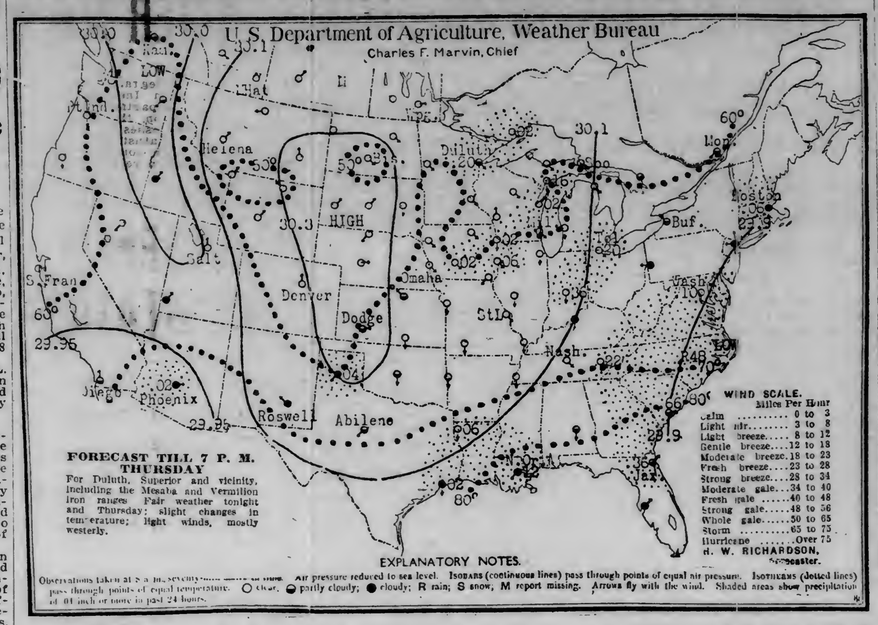

Hibbing, Minn., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ted Sullivan, America's famous baseball man, will lecture tonight at the Lyric theater, where the motion pictures of the world's tour of the New York Giants and the Chicago White Sox will be exhibited under the auspices of the local baseball club. Sullivan managed the trip around the world and was given letters by President Wilson to foreign potentates in the countries in which the players visited.

Aurora, Minn., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—A $78,000 bond issue was authorized by the voters here yesterday by a vote of 135 to 74. There were 209 vote cast and as a five-eighths majority is required the issue was carried by four votes. The bonds are to take up outstanding village orders which have been issued and which there are no funds available to meet and will place the village on a cash basis. The proposition was put before the voters a month ago and was defeated by one vote. As many misunderstood the purpose of the bonds the question was submitted again.

PIONEER MINE HAS INCREASED FORCE

Day and Night Shifts Now Being Employed in Property.

Ely, Minn., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two hundred men have been hired the past few days at the Pioneer mine, which is now working day and night shifts instead of day shift only. About 500 men will be required to work both shifts. A number of men working in the independent mines here have resigned to work at the Pioneer.

Last fall the Oliver Iron Mining company reduced the working force and did not reduce the wages, while the independent mines in this vicinity reduced the wages but kept their full working force.

FATALLY INJURED IN WACOUTAH MINE

Mountain Iron, Minn., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Erick Larson age 46, a Swede-Finn, having a wife and six children, was caught under a dump car of ore while working along the track in the Wacoutah mine pit about 9 o'clock this morning and instantly killed. The dead man had worked in this section several years, being employed until recently at the Iroquois mine.

Iron Range Railroad Lets Contract to Ely Man.

Ely, Minn., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Iron Range railway awarded Victor Gustafson, a local contractor, the contract to move the residences located on the company's land to the new Semer addition to Ely.

Last fall the railroad ordered all residents to vacate company land, but owing to the scarcity of lots, did not enforce the moving until the Semer land had been placed on the Ely plat.

Contractor Gustafson has begun moving the residence of Mrs. Martin Anderson. Mrs. Anderson has secured lots just across the street from where her residence was located.

Several contractors from outside points sought the contract Mr. Gustafson secured.

Ely, Minn., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first term of district court held here will be open on Aug. 10 instead of Aug. 17 as stated in Tuesday's Herald.

Dismiss Kinney Charge.

Kinney, Minn., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charges against four residents of this village charged with assaulting and robbing Samuel Bunyan Saturday night, when he was leaving a local saloon, were dismissed by Judge Barrett because of lack of evidence. Bunyan claims that he had collected $500 and that he went into a saloon for a drink. While there he said he was attacked by four men and robbed. The other side of the story is that Bunyan came into the saloon in an intoxicated condition and was ejected by them.

George Bukovich of Buhl was arraigned before Justice Barrett on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. He pleaded guilty and was fined $25 and costs.

Repairing Eveleth Church.

Eveleth, Minn., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Extensive repairs are being made to the Methodist Episcopal church. The auditorium had been pronounced unsafe and except for the east wall it will be replaced. The plans call for repairs to the foundation, the rebuilding and redecorating of the auditorium, a new roof and steeple, the redecorating of the basement and other minor repairs. ENDS HER LIFE WITH MERCURY

Mrs. Frances Brouse Is Believed to Have Committed Suicide.

After swallowing a number of bichloride of mercury tablets Monday afternoon in a fit of despondency, Mrs. Frances Brouse, aged 25, died at St. Mary's hospital Monday night.

Accidental poisoning was given as the cause of death by Clarence Brouse, 213 Lake avenue north, the husband, but Dr. C. W. Taylor, attending physician, said it was unquestionably a case of suicide. No coroner's inquest was necessary, according to Dr. C. F. McComb, as the case was a plain one, and no report was made to the police.

Mrs. Brouse was married less than a year ago in Superior, and she and her husband took up their residence at 610 South Sixty-fourth avenue west. Several weeks ago they moved to the Lake avenue address, taking rooms with W. J. Ernst.

"Frances and I were always the best of pals," Mr. Brouse declared, "and she was too good a woman to take her own life. There was no reason for such an act. I was in the front room when I heard her scream. The next minute she rushed in and threw her arms about me. 'Oh, Clarence,' she said, 'call a doctor, I've taken something.'"

Mrs. Alfred Anderson of Omaha, Neb., mother of the girl, arrived in Duluth late yesterday in response to a telegram from Mr. Brouse. The body will be taken from Crawford & Sons undertaking rooms to Omaha for burial.

Facts concerning Mrs. Brouse's death were not disclosed until last night when friends tried to find her. Mr. Ernst, with whom the Brouse family roomed, said the girl seldom left her room, and that she had been despondent of late.

EX-GOVERNOR DIX IN FINANCIAL TROUBLE

Friendly Involuntary Petitions in Bankruptcy Filed in Albany.

Albany, N. Y., July 21.—Announcement was made here today that friendly involuntary petitions in bankruptcy have been filed in the United States district court at Utica against Former Governor John A. Dix, individually, and the Moose River Lumber company, of which Mr. Dix is the principal stockholder.

No statement of assets or liabilities in either case was given. Written statements accompanying the petitions acknowledged the inability of Mr. Dix and the company to meet their obligations. Business conditions are blamed for both failures.

From the Dix summer home at Thomson, near Schuylerville, Saratoga county, Mrs. Dix said today that the former governor was unable to answer the telephone and probably would have no statement to make. Mr. Dix has been indisposed for some time, but his condition is not regarded as critical.

Work in the mines will be resumed at once. Both sides have promised the government to exert every effort to make up for the week of idleness.

David Lloyd George, minister of munitions, to whose efforts the ending of the strike is largely due, appeared in the conference hall in Cardiff after the decision had been reached, and received an enthusiastic welcome. FEAR CELEBRATION WILL BRING HORDE OF IDLE MEN

Danger of Too Much Publicity of Steel Plant Opening Urged.

Duluth Will Need No Men From Outside to Operate Plant.

That Duluth will need no men from outside to help operate the steel plant, when it opens, Nov. 1, was emphatically stated at a meeting of the publicity committee of the Commercial club, which considered the matter of a celebration, during its noon hour meeting today.

It was conveyed to the members of the committee that there is danger in advertising such a celebration, of attracting unemployed from other parts of the country, who may come here in the hope of getting work, when, as a matter of fact, there will be no work for some months for more men than are actually living in Duluth now and who can be employed. It was also semi-officially announced that aside from the steel workers who will be brought from other plants when the Morgan Park plant is ready for operation, only such men as are working on the construction of the plant and wish to remain, and men actually with homes in Duluth will be employed. Not for some months will there be berths for anybody else.

The committee took no action on the matter today, but it was the sense of the meeting after a general discussion, in which a number of leading business men of the city participated, that it would be unwise to go ahead with plans for such a celebration just now, and that the fixing of a date for the present would be impossible. It was pointed out that, for instance, a radical change in the war situation might put a completely new complexion on matters, and other things might interfere, such as the obtaining of supplies for the construction; in short that while the plant has been ordered completed by Nov. 1 and sooner, if possible, there is no certainty, beyond doubt, of when it will start.

The Weather Problem.

Another element which entered into the discussion was that of weather at that time of year. It is realized that the weather is uncertain then, and it was suggested that because of these two obstacles—time and weather—no action be taken now, but that after the plant will have started, some provision for a special observance be made in honor of the opening of the industry and of the men who were instrumental in bringing it here; but that even this be not done until the affair was a certainty and not a potentiality.

The result is that while the plan for a celebration of the opening of the plant has not been abandoned, it was determined to let the matter rest until more definite conditions are reached; and the brakes have been put on the movement for the present.

SUBMARINE HAS AMERICAN ENGINE

Austrian Boat Which Sunk Italian Battleship, Like C-1.

Washington, July 21.—The Austrian submarine which sank the Italian cruiser Guiseppe Garibaldi last Sunday in the Adriatic sea is an exact duplicate, it was learned of the United States submarine C-1, one of the oldest and slowest underwater fighters of the American navy now in commission. The Austrian boat was built under Holland patents but the engine and other parts were constructed in this country some years ago and shipped to Austria to be installed. A sister ship recently sank an Italian transport.

The C-1, which was commissioned in 1908 and is now in service at Panama has gasoline engines for surface operation and a cruising radius of less than 1,000 miles. Since her construction oil engines have been developed for use in submarines and the latest types designed for the American navy have a radius of more than 8,000 miles. The C-1's engines developed 500 horsepower and she has a speed of ten and a half knots on the surface and ten knots submerged.

The big cruiser submarine Schley now building for the United States navy will have nearly 4,000 horsepower, speed of probably twenty-five knots on the surface and displacement of 1,000 tons, being more than three times the size of the C-1.

According to a telegram received by Deputy Immigration Inspector O. B. Holton from the department of labor at 2:30 this afternoon, the seven Russians held as witnesses in the government action against the Northwestern Construction company will be released on their own recognizance this afternoon.

Three others will be deported to Canada, and three Austrians will be held until further orders are received from Washington. The department of labor wishes to send the Austrians back to Canada and Deputy Holton will wire for further orders regarding them at once.

The men received $21.60 apiece for the time they spent in jail, this being their witness fees.

IS GOVERNED BY WEATHER

Rainfall Chief Factor in Fixing Grain Prices Just Now.

Duluth Traders Are Inclined to Look for Lower Prices.

Just as is usual at this season, the course of the grain markets from day to day is governed mainly by weather conditions. With more settled weather reported in the Southwest and consequent prospects of the season's grain movement starting in earnest within the next few days, combined with a glowing outlook over the Northwest, the wheat market has taken on a weak tone of late.

Due to supplies in Duluth elevators being down to the lowest notch on record, the market in cash wheat has, however, continued strong, its quotation at $1.46, as at the close yesterday, showing a gain of 4½c in the week. The September future, after selling up to $1.13⅝, broke 4½c yesterday and its mark at $1.09⅛ was up just ⅝c from a week ago. The December future did not yield so readily to the pressure and its quotation at $1.09⅜, showed an advance of ⅞c. Compared with the beginning of the month, however, wheat has moved up substantially. Cash and July wheat showing gains of 9½c and September of approximately 4c.

Grain Men Bearish.

Duluth grain men are by no means bullish on the market situation. Said an operator yesterday: "When the winter wheat movement begins in earnest, and it will not be much longer delayed now, I look for prices to work off several points from their present levels. Unless some unforeseen developments materialize, hedging sales will exert a big influence in forcing prices down. It may be said too that while foreigners will undoubtedly require a big tonnage of American wheat next season, they appear to be holding back at present. There seems to have been some reselling by exporters during the last two or three days, but I do not think that will be much of a factor. By all accounts England will have to look to this country for substantial supplies pending the marketing of the Canadian spring wheat crop which is likely to be delayed. If they have the big crop up there that is promised, it is quite probable that Winnipeg prices may be forced down sufficiently to take the market away from us for a time just as happened two years ago. With a war on it seems certain though that we need not expect growers on either side of the border to sacrifice their grain. The tendency will be to hold for fair prices and they are likely to be rewarded in that way too."

Durum a Feature.

Durum will again be a prominent feature in the Duluth market during next fall and winter, according to present indications. It is to be noted that the new crop future at its close of $1.20 yesterday commanded a premium of 10⅞ over spring wheat. A year ago, September durum sold at 84¼c or 13c above the spring wheat figure. The tight position in old crop durum is shown in the advancing of the July quotation 12c within ten minutes of the close of yesterday's market. For that a specialist in that wheat was responsible. Durum was firmly held during the past week, quotations in the cash and July future showing a bulge of 14c at the market's close yesterday in spite of a recession of 6c during the session. The new crop future was advanced 5½c to $1.20. Operators are sanguine that durum will command a strong export call from Italy during the coming season by reason of the probability that the marketing of Russian supplies will be delayed and that the surplus available from that country may be cut down on account of war conditions.

According to advices received by Duluth grain men, the area under crop to durum has been greatly increased this season and the yield under the improved outlook for it in South Dakota especially, is likely to be heavy.

Flax Trade Marks Time.

The flaxseed market continues to mark time with trading coming within a narrow range of late. Operators are in the meantime endeavoring to secure data regarding the acreage under crop in the Northwest, as many are disposed to discount the figures of the last government report in that respect. The probable domestic consumption of linseed oil is also a subject of conjecture, so that taken all in all the trade is inclined to place closely to the boards at the present.

ADMINISTRATION BILL APPROVED

Wisconsin Measure to Consolidate Commission Staffs Advanced.

Madison, Wis., July 21.—An administration measure, introduced by Senator Frank Hanson, combining the architectural and engineering staff of various state commissions into one board to be placed under the jurisdiction of the railroad commission, was advanced to progressment in the senate today by a vote of 19 to 8. An amendment was adopted to retain the engineers now holding positions under civil service. Senator Hanson said the separate staffs now doing this expert service were costing the state about $325,000 a year and that there is considerable over-lapping.

By a vote of 16 to 15, Lieutenant Governor Dithmar breaking a tie, the senate refused to reconsider the vote by which it killed the Hanson bill amending the corrupt practices act.

The senate voted 21 to 7 to kill the Ackley measure requiring all appropriation bills to be reported to the governor before going to the legislature. It was denounced as costing the state about $325,000 a year and that there is considerable over-lapping.

Senator Bosshard as a wrong principle bordering on an unlawful delegation of legislative power to the executive.

The senate reconsidered the vote on concurrence in the Stemper liquor license bill and then struck out the Bray amendment which gives chiefs of police in Wisconsin cities power to pass upon licenses to be granted or discontinued. The Bennett substitute was then concurred in again and sent back to the assembly.

Governor Philipp has signed the Frank Hanson bill doing away with the election pamphlet.

The bill regulating jitneys as passed by the senate last week was today, after a lengthy debate, concurred in by the assembly, 51 to 20. Reconsideration was refused and the bill now goes to the governor.

The defeat of the Grell bill to permit the manufacture of skimmed milk cheese in this state; of the Fairchild bill to permit the election of the mayor of Milwaukee for a term of four years with power to appoint the city attorney, city treasurer and comptroller and of a committee measure to regulate the manufacture and sale of cances marked other important developments in the assembly today.

Passage was given the bill giving the railroad commission power to regulate the level of navigable lakes and to the Staudemayer substitute to the central board of education bill creating a board of five members to regulate the finances of the schools.

"In Artois the night was marked by a cannonade in the vicinity of Souchez and from Neuville. Soissons was bombarded during the night.

"In the forest of Apremont, the enemy attacked our positions at the Cow's Head and at Lavaux Ferry and were completely repulsed.

SEES NO SIGN OF IMMEDIATE PEACE

Jane Addams Tells President About the War.

Washington, July 21.—President Wilson was told today by Miss Jane Addams, representing the Woman's peace conference, which recently met at The Hague, that she saw no possibility for peace in Europe in the immediate future.

Accompanied by Miss Lillian D. Wald of New York, Miss Addams spent more than an hour with the president and gave him a detailed account of confidential talks she had with high officials in Europe. Afterwards, she said, she had not tried to interpret the views of those officials, but had sought to give the president an inside view of the situation as she had found it.

TEACHING PATRIOTISM.

London Tit-Bits: A school teacher recently gave his pupils a lecture on patriotism. He pointed out the high motives which moved the territorials to leave their homes and fight for their country.

The school teacher noticed that one boy did not pay attention to the instruction, and as a test question he asked him:

"What motives took the territorials to the war?"

The boy was puzzled for a moment, then, remembering the public "send-off" to the local regiment at the railway station, he replied:

"Locomotives, sir."

C., to San Francisco by relay motorcyclists, arrived in Chicago at 7:30 o'clock this morning, twelve hours behind schedule time, because of storms and muddy roads. The message was received by Secretary Charles T. Essig at the Sportsmen's Club of America and left on its westward journey across the country at 7:32 o'clock.

The message left Washington, D. C., at 9 o'clock last Monday morning and is due in San Francisco July 24.

TWO MEN ARE KILLED NEAR STAPLES, MINN.

Staples, Minn., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Vincenzo Gienelio, an Italian, while working on the Northern Pacific tracks near here Monday, fell and, striking his head on the rail, fractured his skull, dying soon afterwards.

While walking the Northern Pacific tracks at Holly on his way to work, Howard Pashley, formerly of this city, was struck by a train and killed. Two trains were approaching from opposite directions and while he was getting out of the way of one he stepped in the path of an oncoming freight. Both legs were severed and he died shortly afterward. He was employed by the cement works at Holly.

GRANDMA MORTIMER

Elinore Rupert Stewart, "the woman homesteader," whose letters to a former employer were a delightful feature of the Atlantic Monthly last year and have since appeared in book form, has begun a new series for the Atlantic called "Letters on an Elk Hunt." In the March number she writes of "camping across the creek" from the cabin of a new settler. The sound of a child crying in the night disturbed her and she crossed to the cabin. "We found a woefully distressed young couple," she writes. "Their first child, about a year old, was very sick. They were powerfully glad to see us, and the young father left at once to get Grandma Mortimer, a neighborhood godsend such as most Western communities have one of." Her story continues:

Mrs. Mortimer bustled in and took hold in a way to insure confidence. She had not been there long before she had both parents in bed. • • • She kept giving the baby warm tea she had made with herbs, until soon the threatening jerks were over, the peevish whining ceased, and the child slept peacefully on grandma's lap. I watched her, fascinated. There was never a bit of faltering, no indecision; everything she did seemed exactly what she ought to do.

"How did you learn it all?" I asked her. "How can you know just what to do and then have the courage to do it? I should be afraid of doing the wrong thing."

"Why," she said, "that is easy. Just do the very best you can and trust God for the rest. After all, it is God who saves the baby, not us and not our efforts; but we can help. He lets us do that. Lots of times the good we do goes beyond any medicine. Never be afraid to help your best. I have been doing that for forty years and I am going to keep it up till I die."

Then she told us story after story—told us how her different ambitions had "boosted" her along, had made her swim when she just wanted to float. "I was married when I was 16, and of course, my first ambition was to own a home for Dave. My man was poor. • • • We both took to work like a duck to water. Some years it looked as if we were going to see every dream come true. Another time and we would be poorer than at first. • • •

"When little Dave was 11 years old he had learned to plow. Everyone of us was working to our limit that year. I plowed and hoed, both, and big Dave really hardly took time to sleep. You see, his idea was that we must do better by our children than we had been done by, and Fanny, our eldest, was 13. • • • One of our neighbors had been sick a lot that year and his crops were about ruined. It was laying-by time and we had finished laying by our crops—all but about half a day's plowing in the corn. That morning at breakfast, big Dave said he would take the horses and go over to Henry Beles's and help him out. Fanny—said he could finish ours any time, and it didn't matter much if it didn't get plowed. • • •

"Fanny and I went to milk, and all the time I could hear little Dave begging his father to let him finish the plowing. His father said he could if I said so.

"I will never forget his eager little face as he began on me. He had a heap of freckles. I remember noticing them that morning; he was barefooted, and I remember that one toe was skinned. Big Dave was lighting his pipe, and till today I remember how he looked as he held the match to his pipe, drew a puff of smoke and said, 'Say yes, mother.' So I said yes and little Dave ran to open the gate for his father.

"As big Dave rode through the gate, our boy caught him by the leg and said, 'I just love you, Daddy.' Big Dave bent down and kissed him, and said, 'You're a man, son.' How proud that made the little fellow!

"Parents should praise their children more; the little things work hard for a few words of praise, and many of them never get their pay.

"• • • About 10 o'clock, I took a pail of fresh water down to the field. I knew Dave would be thirsty, and I was uneasy about him, but he was all right. He pushed his ragged old hat back and wiped the sweat from his brow just as his father would have done. I petted him a little, but he was so mannish he didn't want me to pet him any more. • • • As he had only a few more rows to plow, I went back, telling myself how foolish I had been to be afraid.

"Twelve o'clock came, but not Dave. I sent Fanny to the spring for the buttermilk and waited a while, thinking little Dave had not finished as soon as he had expected. I went to the field. Little Dave lay on his face in the furrow. I gathered him up in my arms; he was yet alive; he put one weak little arm around my neck, and said, 'Oh, mammy, I'm hurt.' The mule kicked me in the stomach.'

"I don't know how I got to the house with him; I stumbled over clods and weeds, through the hot sunshine. I sank down on the porch in the shade, with the precious little form clasped tightly to me. He smiled, and tried to speak, but the blood gurgled up into his throat and my little boy was gone.

"I would have died of grief if I hadn't had to work so hard. Big Dave got too warm at work that day, and when Fanny went for him and told him about little Dave, he ran all the way home; he was crazy with grief and forgot the horses. The trouble and the heat and the overwork brought on a fever. I had no time for tears for three months. • • •

"That was years ago. We came West. The country was really wild then; there was a great deal of lawlessness. We didn't get settled down for several years; we hired to a man who had a contract to put up hay for the government and we worked for him for a long time.

"Indians were thick as fleas on a dog then; some were camped near us once, and among them was a Mexican woman who could jabber a little English. Once, when I was feeling particularly resentful and sorrowful, I told her about my little Dave; and it was her jabbered words that showed me the way to peace. I wept for hours, but peace had come and has stayed. Ambition came again, but a different kind; I wanted the same peace to come to all hearts that came so late to mine, and I wanted to help bring it. I took the only course I knew. I have gone to others' help every time there has been a chance.

"After Fanny married and Dave died, I had an ambition to save up $400 with which to buy an entrance into an old ladies' home. Just before I got the full amount saved up, I found that young Eddie Carwell wanted to enter the ministry and needed help to go to college. I had just enough, so I gave it to him. Another time I had almost enough, when Charlie Rucker got into trouble over some mortgage business; so I used what I had that time to help him. Now I've given up the old ladies' home idea and am saving up for the blue silk dress Dave would have liked me to have. I guess I'll die some day and I want it to be buried in. I like to think I'm going to my two Daves then; and it won't be hard—especially if I have the blue silk on."

Just then a sleepy little bird twittered outside and the baby stirred a little. The first faint light of dawn was just creeping up the valley. I rose and said I must get back to camp. Mrs. O'Shaughnessy and I had both wept with Mrs. Mortimer over little Dave. We have all given up our first born little men child; so we felt near each other. We told Mrs. Mortimer that we had passed under the rod also. I kissed her toilworn old hands, and Mrs. O'Shaughnessy dropped a kiss on her old gray head as we passed out into the rose-and-gold morning.

We felt that we were leaving a sanctified presence and we are both of us better and humbler women because we met a woman who has buried her sorrow beneath faith and endeavor.

MOVIE MAKEUP IS ODD

Blue Smudge Covers Cheeks of Actresses Ready for the Film; The Perverse Camera Insists on Making Bright Colors Dark and Dark Colors Light.

Washington Herald: That beautiful peaches and cream complexion that you have so often admired in your favorite film actress is actually nothing but a smudge of blue on her cheeks and a fairly dark blue at that.

The paleness, the white brow and the cheeks and lips of the dying heroine which have wrung your herat and almost brought the tears to your eyes— these again are nothing but smudges of blue upon the cheeks, lips, brow and nose of the heroine, a little lighter shape, perhaps, than the first blue, but a blue for all that.

And the complexion of perfect health, of fascinating out-of-doors tan, rosy cheeks and red lips which you have so long admired in this big strong man or that beautiful woman who move upon the movie screens isn't by any means what it appears to be. The tan complexion is not tan nor any rosy cheeks and cherry red lips. They are white mixed with a little pink.

It's all the fault of the camera. The camera, which has been a blessing to the world in so many ways, has been a perverse thing in many others. No one has felt its perversity any harder than the movie people. It has kept their hands and their heads full devising ways and means to humor the camera and to induce it to photograph them the way they want to be photographed. And it is all because the camera insists upon making bright colors dark and dark colors light.

When the movie people first posed for the moving picture camera they made up for their parts in the usual stage makeup. They made their eyebrows blue, their eyelashes blue and blued their eyelids and underneath their eyes. They put rouge on their cheeks and rouge on their lips and powdered the rest of their faces white. They looked lovely—until the camera got hold of them.

But now the movie actors have learned a trick or two. They start with the usual amount of cold cream that is used on the ordinary stage. They use little or no rouge on their cheeks or lips, for both red and pink photograph black. The eyes are shaded with black cosmetics. A small amount of this black is sometimes placed on the lips.

A natural skin tint can never be used, for that would photograph black because of the pink in it. For characters who lead an indoor life an almost pure white powder is used. For out-of-doors characters who are exposed to the sun and wind and are tanned, white powder is used with just a slight tinge of Indian red.

The eyes are the most important feature of all in this new art of movie makeup and they must be treated with extraordinary care. Violet eyes are softly shadowed with light brown above the lids and both the upper and lower lids are delicately outlined in brown also. The combination must also be treated so that it will not be out of harmony with the eyes.

Lines of grease paint which actors behind the footlights use to show wrinkles and other lines of character in the face cannot be used by a movie actor. They may deceive the human eye, but never the eye of the camera. Movie actors are very often criticized for a poor makeup, but few people realize the difficulties they have to overcome. A makeup that is excellent, say, fifteen to twenty feet from the camera, looks very bad in a "close-up," say from seven to twelve feet from the lens. The movie actors strive for a happy medium, as they do not have time to stop and change.

The part of the sun's spectrum which appears brightest to the human eye, the orange and yellow, is just the part that exerts no perceptible chemical influence on the silver salts which coat photographic plates. On the contrary, toward the end of the blue, shading off into violet and ultra-violet, the chemical action becomes vigorous—just the part of the spectrum which attracts little notice or is even invisible to the human eye.

As a rule, those colors which appear brightest to the eye appear darkest to the photographic plate. The fact can be easily demonstrated by placing a yellow violet alongside a dark blue violet. There is no question as to which appears the brighter to the eye. If an artist were called upon to sketch them in pencil he would convey the impression by shading the yellow violet as nearly white and the blue one as nearly black.

But if they are photographed on an ordinary plate, a reverse result will be attained in the print. The dark blue flower will be white, the bright yellow one black.

The eye and the photographic plate possess an entirely different sensitiveness. The eye is affected most powerfully by yellow and green light. These colors appear to us the brightest, while the photographic plate is only slightly affected by them. On the other hand, indigo and violet rays, which appear dark to the eyes, and even rays which to the eyes are invisible, produce a powerful action on the plate.

This small sensitiveness of the ordinary photographic plate to feeble light explains the reason why shadows are generally too dark in photographs. To these defects must be added the false action of light—blue generally appears light colored; yellow and red, black. Yellow freckles, therefore, generally appear in a photograph as black spots and a blue coat becomes much too light.

Blue (and therefore dark) flowers on a yellow background produce, in photography too light flowers on a too dark ground. Red and fair golden hair becomes almost black. Even a very slight yellow shade has an unfavorable effect.

HE WOULD RECIPROCATE.

Harper's Magazine: "The palm for absent-mindedness," says a Princeton man, "is probably due a learned professor on the faculty of my university.

"One day this professor noticed his wife placing a large bouquet on his desk.

"'What does that mean?' he asked.

"'Why,' she exclaimed, 'don't you know that this is the anniversary of our marriage?'

"'Ah, indeed, is it?' said the professor, politely. 'Kindly let me know when yours comes around, and I will endeavor to reciprocate the favor.'"

WHEAT STILL SELLS DOWN

Market Shows Acute Weakness on Good General Crop Reports.

Flaxseed Quiet and Trading Narrow—Crushers Show Small Interest.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 21.—The market was strong at the close on active bidding and covering demand. July wheat closed 3c off; September 1¾c off, and December 1½c off. July durum closed 2c off and September 2c off.

Oats closed ⅝c off at 51¾c for on the track; rye 2c off at 96c for on the track, and barley unchanged at from 66c to 72c.

At Winnipeg, July oats closed ⅜c off at 62¼c asked, and October ⅜c off at 42c.

Puts on Minneapolis September wheat closed at $1.02½ bid, and calls at $1.07.

Acute weakness developed in the wheat market today. The prime factors were good weather over all sections of the country and splendid crop prospects in the Northwest. Duluth experts who have recently made inspection trips over North and South Dakota agree in the statement that the wheat plant is developing rapidly everywhere, and in their opinion only the possibility of black rust can stand in the way of garnering bountiful yields in those states. The weather has not been favorable for the development of rust lately, being clear and not too warm.

The feature in the Duluth market today was the springing up of heavy inquiry and the putting through of a good volume of business in new crop durum. Two local houses have been in the market for some time for durum, but they had been unable to pick up any tonnage. Today, however, with a premium of 13c in durum recorded between Minneapolis, the September durum future and September wheat, sales of the former came from houses with connections down there. It looked like a good proposition to them. Provided the allies do not succeed in opening the Dardanelles for some time yet, sharp inquiry for durum is regarded as certain to come upon this market from Italy and Greece.

No quotation was chalked up in July durum during the first three hours' trading, there being no supplies to do business upon, either in elevators or in growers' hands. September opened 3c off at $1.17 thus breaking the ice and paving the way for the market operations that were subsequently reported. The market later rallied to $1.18 and then eased off ½c to $1.17½, where it stood at the noon hour.

Business in wheat was comparatively light, and after the break that came about around the opening, prices rested.

July wheat opened 1c off at $1.45, and eased off 2c more. September opened 2¾c off at $1.07, and declined to $1.06½. December opened 1¾c off at $1.07, broke 1c more and later recovered 1½c.

Receipts of wheat locally continued light, there being only twelve cars inspected here today against 105 last year. At Chicago 146 cars came to hand, compared with 972 a year ago. Requests from the country for offers were reported, however, foreshadowing heavier marketings in the near future.

Flaxseed Quiet.

Operations in flaxseed continued limited, and a slightly easier tendency was in evidence. Crushers bid for small lots, and seemed disposed to only take the seed at recessions. Prices firmed up at the close with better bidding.

July flax closed unchanged at $1.70¼ nominally. September opened unchanged at $1.73, and closed unchanged at $1.73. October opened unchanged at $1.74½, and closed ¼c up at $1.74¾. November closed ½c up at $1.75 bid.

At Winnipeg, July flax closed ¼c off at $1.51 bid, and October ¾c off at $1.54 asked.

At Buenos Aires, July flax closed ⅜c off at $1.28¼, and London July-August delivery ⅞c up at $1.50⅞.

MARKET GOSSIP.

Lecount wired from Bradley, S. D., as follows: "All wheat examined today is in splendid condition. It is beginning to fill and prospects today indicate a bumper crop. There is some red rust, but it is not important. Weather is clear and cool, and very favorable for small grain."

John Inglis wired Logan & Bryan from Jamestown, N. D.: "Aberdeen to Jamestown wheat has a heavy growth. There is a large acreage in durum. Harvest will be late. Most of the wheat is just passing from bloom. It is too early to make a forecast of yields. All small grain looks well. Flax acreage is reduced and corn acreage increased."

The Keusch & Schwartz company had the following from Lyle at Aberdeen, S. D.: "Prosperity weather here. All crops are doing fine. Rust is doing nothing. Have been in fields again and found no trouble worthy of mention. This includes rust. Harvest will be late and dangers are not all passed. It certainly looks as though the state will make a great wheat crop."

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "The undertone was easy as influenced by America and better weather reports. A good export inquiry was noticeable at the decline. Spot market was easier, ½d to 1d lower, with cargo market irregular, and with the exception of winters, which were 7½d lower, was generally steady. Manitobas were 3d lower, Indians 3d higher and Plates unchanged. European weather continues to cause apprehension with Indian holders reserved, but expectations of free American receipts in the event of favorable weather and a belief that American winters will be marked at satisfactory prices to buyers, served to cause conservatism in purchases. It is noticeable that the demand becomes evident on all declines."

The Price Current Grain Reporter says: "Slight improvement over the winter wheat belt during the past week enabled harvesting to proceed in a number of sections. The new wheat is damp and unsatisfactory as a whole. It will take many weeks to properly condition it, and no very large movement is expected for some time. The situation seems similar to that of 1913, when intermittent rains kept the grain damp and delayed both harvesting and threshing. Corn was helped very materially last week by excellent temperatures, and very little complaint of damage to oats has been reported."

Broomhall's foreign crop summary: Russian special report says that in the south harvesting is progressing with weather favoring a yield indicated large and of good quality. In Poland the crop is late and cutting will not commence until Aug. 1. Dryness is reported over a wide area.

France—Wet weather continues to interfere with field work and much lodging and other damage is resulting. Crop promise is being lowered from earlier expectations. It is the belief importations will be necessary on a liberal scale.

Italy—Prices are falling as new wheat is arriving to markets of consumption. It is the belief that stocks will shortly show a large increase.

India—It is officially reported that moisture during the present month in the Punjaub and northwest frontier provinces and Rejupatana is scanty, and fears are expressed of dryness.

Minneapolis cash market was firm, with good demand. No. 1 northern blue stem sold at 11@13½c over July, and velvet chaff at 3@6c over July. There was some business in new crop flour, but the volume was moderate. Cash No. 1 northern wheat sold there at from $1.37¼@1.47¼, and No. 2 northern at from $1.34¼@1.44¼. Wheat stocks in Minneapolis elevators decreased 225,000 bu in four days.

The Tenny company of the Duluth board of trade received the following wire today from F. C. Tenny, who is on an inspection trip over North Dakota:

"Have just covered 1,000 miles by automobile of nine counties in the southwestern quarter of the state. I find the wheat plant in a very healthy condition with early wheat well headed. The growth has advanced rapidly in the last week, notwithstanding the cool, cloudy weather. It is warm and clear now, and there is not even a trace or suggestion of black rust, and there is no danger under present conditions. Rye harvest will be general in ten days. Considerable early barley is turning. Early flax has started to bloom."

Some fine samples of marquis and blue stem wheat plant and of barley and rye picked up near Mandan, N. D., were shown on the board of trade this morning by M. M. McCabe, who had just returned from a four days' auto trip along the line of the Northern Pacific to fifty miles west of the Missouri river. The crops are looking magnificent and growers are optimistic, he said. The good weather of the past week has dried the fields up and crops are making good progress. Nothing but black rust can injure wheat now, in his opinion.

Fourteen per cent more wheat is being grown in the province of Saskatchewan this year than last year, according to figures just announced by the provincial department of agriculture at Regina.

The total acreage sown to wheat is 6,884,874 this year, as against 8,005,522 acres, the actual acre increase being 881,352.

Oats increased from 2,792,611 acres a year ago to 2,846,949 this year. The actual acre increase is 54,338.

Barley dropped from 313,537 acres last year to 272,299 acres this year, a decline of 41,238 acres.

Flax declined from 902,794 acres last year to 539,674 acres this year, a decrease of 263,120 acres.

The department announces that while June frosts justified some anxiety at the time, the crops have largely recovered. Only a small proportion of the crop is seriously injured. Pasturage is fine and the condition of livestock is reported excellent.

Charles E. Lewis & Co. had the following closing letter from Chicago: "Wheat market has been rather choppy at a lower range of values, being off close to 2c at the extreme, and closing with losses of 1c per bu. Ideal crop conditions in northwest along with increased country offerings from sections east of the Mississippi river, were the principal bearish factors. Foreign purchasers were again in the market on the decline, while speculative interests also bought sparingly. From now on we look for increased arrivals from the country which should result in sharply lower prices."

NOTE—Weekly summaries of condition in the grain region will be telegraphed from Washington, April 13, and each Tuesday thereafter during the growing season, except that this summary will be telegraphed and published on Wednesday whenever the preceding Monday is a holiday.

Summary of weather and crop conditions in the corn and wheat region for the week ending July 20, 1915.

Washington, D. C., July 21, 1915.—In the central and northern portions of the winter wheat belt rains further delayed harvest and interfered with threshing in many sections, while considerable damage to grain in shock and lodging where uncut is reported. In the southern portion the weather was more favorable and threshing is well advanced with satisfactory yields.

In the spring wheat belt the week was favorable and the crop continued in generally excellent condition, but warmer weather and more sunshine is now needed for ripening.

In much of the corn belt the week was the most favorable of the season so far and corn made rapid growth. The crop is still backward in the north and cultivation is badly needed in some portions, while considerable local damage is reported due to overflow of lowlands.

Oats are generally good but there is much complaint of lodging and delayed harvest. Pastures and hay are excellent, but haying is delayed in many places on account of wet weather.

CHICAGO MARKET.

Free Selling of Wheat Results From Favorable Crop Weather.

Chicago, July 21.—Free selling of wheat resulted today from favorable weather throughout the entire domestic belt. Conditions for the spring crop were so promising that some authorities referred to indications of a bumper yield, notably in South Dakota. A decline in quotations at Liverpool counted also on the bear side. After opening ½@1⅝c lower, the market here continued to sag.

Subsequently export buying said to amount to 1,000,000 bu led to something of a reaction. The close was steady, but ⅞c to ⅝c under last night.

Notwithstanding that corn eased off a little with wheat, prices soon rallied. There was no pressure to sell. The opening, which varied from the same as last night to ⅜c down, was followed by a general hardening of values.

The prevailing cool temperature tended to bring about considerable strength. Closing prices were firm, ⅝@½c to 1c above last night.

Oats took the same path as corn. Trade opinions seemed to be well divided.

Lower prices for hogs weakened provisions. On the break, however, support developed, especially in hogs.

Liverpool Grain.

Liverpool, July 21.—Closing: Wheat—Spot, easy; No. 1 northern Duluth, 11s 7½d; No. 2 hard winter, 11s 7½d; No. 2 Manitoba, 11s 8¼d; No. 3 Manitoba, 11s 7½d.

Corn—Spot, easy; American mixed, new, 8s 3d.

Chicago Livestock.

Chicago, July 21.—Hogs declined in price today on account of liberal receipts and of a large leftover supply. Cattle dealers had hard work to interest the big killers.

The market for sheep and lambs were helped by inquiry from shippers and by the good quality of the offerings.

Hogs—Receipts, 26,000; slow, 5@10c under yesterday's average. Bulk, $6.90@7.35; light, $7.85@7.80; mixed, $6.85@7.65; heavy, $6.50@7.35; rough, $6.50@6.70; pigs, $7@7.80.

Cattle—Receipts, 1,000; weak; native beef steers, $6.40@10.30; Western steers, $7@8.35; cows and heifers, $3.25@9.15; calves, $7@10.50.

Sheep—Receipts, 15,000; steady; sheep, $5.60@6.75; lambs, $6@8.15.

London Money.

London, July 21.—Money was tight today as a result of yesterday's huge transfer in connection with the war loan. Discount rates were steady.

The stock market was dull. American securities were inactive but steady.

The stock exchange here will be closed Saturday, July 24.

SMALL DECREASE IN USE OF SUGAR

Despite the high prices of sugar that have prevailed since the outbreak of the war, it is estimated that 2,108,436 tons of the refined product were consumed in this country during the six months ended June 30.

This total, which allows for the sugar exported, marks a decrease of only 22,662 tons or 1.06 per cent as compared with the first half of last year when prices of sugar were abnormally low owing to tariff readjustment. As against the corresponding period of 1913 the latest figures display an increase of nearly 12 per cent.

On account of heavy buying by French and British buyers on the Cuban market recently, dealers are disposed to look for higher sugar prices in the near future.

EXPECT RUNAWAY MARKET.

Steel and Iron Business Greatly Stimulated By the War.

Improvement in iron and steel trade conditions has been so marked of late that operators are disposed to look for almost a runaway market in some products in the near future.

July exports of iron and steel, including materials involved in manufactures, are expected to reach 25 per cent of production. War demand is increasing and is thought likely to gain materially from now on as England's exports to neutral countries are falling off, owing to the feverish rush to manufacture war munitions.

Commenting on the current situation in the trade, the Pittsburgh correspondent of the New York Evening Post says:

"The steel market has been gaining ground rapidly since the first of the month, quite reversing the normal condition of the market, being dull in July and August. The increase of 413,698 tons in the Steel corporation's unfilled obligations during June was greater than the trade had expected, but this week the Steel corporation subsidiaries have advanced their price on bars, plates and shapes and it is evident that there was heavy contracting in these products in June.

"Buying of steel in the past few weeks has been at a rate somewhat exceeding the full capacity of the steel mills, yet the prospects are of increases along several lines. The war demand itself promises to increase somewhat further. Export demand from neutral countries is almost certain to increase very materially; for stocks accumulated before the war are exhausted, and even if the total consumptive requirements are greatly reduced, the demand from the United States must be large, because it will be practically the only seller."

South St. Paul Livestock.

South St. Paul, Minn., July 21.—Hogs—Receipts, 5,700; 10@15c lower; range, $6.40@7.40; bulk, $6.50@7.00.

Cattle—Receipts, 2,400; killers, weak; steers, $5.00@9.75; cows and heifers, $4.75@8.35; calves, 25c higher, $4.00@9.25; stockers and feeders, steady to weak, $4.50@7.50.

Sheep—Receipts, 400; steady; lambs, $4.75@7.75; wethers, $4.75@5.50; ewes, $2.00@5.25.

WAR SHARES ARE SOARING

New Records Made By Bethlehem Steel and American Can.

Crucible and Westinghouse Foremost Features of the Final Hour.

New York, July 21.—Vigorous bidding up of war specialties was renewed at the very outset of today's trading, Bethlehem Steel and American Can scoring new high prices at 199½ and 55 respectively. Crucible Steel, Westinghouse and Allis-Chalmers rose 1 to almost 2 points and United States Steel advanced ¾ on a sale of 1,200 shares. These gains were soon extended, Bethlehem Steel touching 200, a price almost unequalled by a non-dividend stock, while Crucible gained over 4 points. Trading was very active, but railway shares, which were lower in London, were again relegated to a comparative obscurity.

Complete dominance of the war shares was demonstrated in the first hour's business today. Can, Crucible and Westinghouse alone supplied almost half of the total of that period. United States Steel relinquished leadership to Can, which was buoyant on an enormous overturn, with a gain of 4¼ points before noon. Other stocks in this class moved with some irregularity, Bethlehem Steel reacting 2 points. Shares of various kinds having only remote connection with the war situation, as well as coppers, rose 1 to 5 points. Railway stocks manifested further restraint, Canadian Pacific being especially weak. Bonds were steady.

Munition shares climbed to new heights in the early afternoon, Bethlehem Steel selling at 204, with a further gain for American Can. Meantime the railroads continued under pressure, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Reading evincing heaviness.

Speculation in war specialties dwarfed all other operations in today's stock market. Bethlehem Steel and American Can broke into new ground and Crucible Steel recovered to within 1½ points of last week's high record.

Crucible and Westinghouse were the foremost features of the final hour, the former at 49⅛ and Westinghouse at 108½. Other issues of this class held most, if not all their gains. The closing was strong.

You put $3,200 cash into this splendid piece of property. You receive a NET INCOME from rentals of $450 the first year.
